Olde and New Testament, faithfully translated in to English.

M.D. XXXV.

S. Paul. II. Tella. III.

Staye for us, that the worde of God maye haue free passage and be glorified.

S. Paul. II. Collo. III.

Let the worde of Christ dwell in you plentifully in al wisdom.

Isaie. L.

Let not the Booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercise thy selfe therein daye and nyght, that thou mayest hope and do euery thinge according to it that is written therein.

These are the lawes, that you shall keepe before them.

ISAIA

MARCI. 16.

So youre waye into all the worlde, & preach the Gospel.

MATTH. 2

¶ Because that whan thou go

est to study in holy scripture, thou shuldest do it with reuerence, ther foze for thy instruction & lounge admonition thereto, the Reue-rende father in god, Nicolas, Bisshope of Salisburp hath prescribed the this prayer folowynge, taken out of the same.

Iacob. 3. Lorde God almyghty which longe agoo saydest by the mouthe of James thyn Apostle: If any of you lacke wysdom, let hym aske it of God which geueth it plenteously to all men, and casteth no man in the tette, and it shal be geuen hym. Heare my petition for this thy promys sake.
Let my prayer ascende luckely in to thy syght lyke incense. Let thyn eare be attent vnto my depe desyre. Geue me wysdome which is eue assistent about thy seate. And put me not out from amonge thy cheyn, for I am thy seruaunt and sonne of thy handmaide. Let me her (I meane thy godly wysdome) out of thyn holy heauens, and from the trone of thy maiesty, that she maye be with me, and laboure with me, & I may knowe what is acceptable in thy syght. Oh let me
p. sal. 118. me goodnes, nourtoure, and knowlege, for I beleue thy commaunde-mentes. Thou art good and gracious, instructe me in thyn ordy-naunces. Let myne hertie besechynge ascende in to thy presence. Geue me vnderstandynge accordynge to thy worde. Oh geue me vnderstodynge, and I shall kepe thy lawe, & I shall kepe it with all myne
p. sal. 118. herte. Shewe me thy wayes o Lorde, & teache me thy patthes. Leade me in to thy trueth and let me, for thou art the God of my helth.
p. sal. 118. And on the do I depende alway. Heare now my voyce o Lorde with which I haue cryed vnto the. Haue mercy vpon me, and graciously heare me for Iesus Christes sake oure Lorde, which lyueth and cryg-neth with the his father & the holy goost worlde without ende. Amen.

¶ After the ende of any Chapter (yf thou wilt) thou mayest saye these verses folowynge.

Psal. 118. Leade me (o Lorde) in thy waye, and let me walke in thy trueth.
Oh let myne herte deelyte in fearynge thy name.
O dye my goynges after thy worde, that no wyckednes reygne in me.
Kepe my steppes within thy patthes, lest my fete turne in to any contrary waye.

¶ Unto the most victorious Prince and our most gracious soueraigne Lorde, kynge Henry the kyng of Englonde and of Fraunce, lorde of Irelande, &c.

Defendour of the fayth, and vnder God
the chefe and suppreme heade of the Church of Englonde.

¶ The ryght & iust administracyon of the lawes that God gaue vnto Moyses and vnto Iosua: the testimonye of faythfulnes that God gaue of Dauid: the plenteous abundaunce of wysdome that God gaue vnto Salomon: the lucky and prosperous age with the multiplicacyon of sede whiche God gaue vnto Abraham and Sara his wyfe, be geue vnto you most gracious Prince, with your dearest iust wyfe, and most vertuous Princesse, Quene Anne, Amen.

Caiphas beyng bysshope of that ycare, lyke a blynde prophete (not vnderstandynge what he sayd) propheticd, that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that all the people shulde peryshe: he mea-nyng, that Christ was an heretike, a deceauer of the people, & a destroyer of the lawe, and that it was better therfore to put Christ vnto death, than to suffre hym for to lyue, and to deceaue the people. &c.
where in very dede Christ was the true prophete, the true Messias, and the onely true Sauour of the worlde, sent of his heauenly father to suffre the moste cruell, most shamefull, and most necessary death for our redempcyon: accordynge to þ meanynge of the prophete truly vnderstande.

Euen after the same maner þ blynde bysshope of Rome, (that blynde Baalam
I saye) not vnderstandynge what he dyd, gaue vnto your grace this tytyle: Defendour of the fayth, onely bycause your hyghnes suffred your bysshoppes to burne Gods worde the rote of fayth, and to persecute the louers and mynisters of þ same.
where in very dede the blynde bysshope (though he knewe not what he dyd) pro-pheticd, that by the ryghteous administracyon and contynuall diligence of youre grace, the fayth shulde so be defended, that Gods worde the mother of fayth with the frutes therof, shulde haue his fre course thorowe out all Christendome, but specially in your realme.

If your hyghnesse now of your princely benygnyte will pardon me to compare these two bysshoppes (I meane bysshope Caiphas and the bysshope of Rome) & theyr prophetes together, I doute not but we shal fynde them agree lyke byethren, though the one be a Iewe and the other a counterfayte Christian. First, Caiphas propheticd that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that the people shulde peryshe. The bysshope of Rome also, not knowynge what he propheticd, gaue your grace this tytyle: Defendour of the fayth. The trueth of both these prophecies is of the holy goost (as was Baalamis prophete) though they that spake the, knewe not what they sayd. The trueth of Caiphas prophete is, that it was necessary for mans saluacyon, that Christ by his death shulde overcome death, and redeme vs. And the trueth of oure Baalamis prophete is, þ your grace in very dede shulde defende the fayth, & euen the true fayth of Christ, no dreames, no fables, no heresie, no papistcally inuencions, but the vncorrupte fayth of Gods most holy worde, which to set forth (prayed be the goodnes of God, and increace youre gracous purpose) your hyghnes with youre most honorable counsell, applyeth all his study and endeuoure.

These two blynde bysshoppes now agree in þ vnderstandynge of theyr prophetes:
for Caiphas taketh Christ for an heretike, oure Baalam taketh the worde of Christ for heresie. Caiphas iudgeth it to be a good dede to put Christ vnto death, that he

An Epistle

Shulde not deceaue the people. Our Balaam calleth defendynge of the fayth, the suppressyng, keepyng secreete, and burnyng of the worde of fayth: lest the lyght thre of shulde bitter his darknes: lest his owne Decretales & Decrees, his owne lawes and constitutions, his owne statutes and inuencions shulde come to none effecte: lest his intollerable exactions and usurpacions shulde lose theyr strengthe: lest it shulde be knowne what a thefe and murderer he is in the cause of Christ, and how haynous a traytoure to God and man in defraudyng all Christen kynges & prynces of theyr due obedience: lest we poure graces subiectes shulde haue eyes in the worde of God, at the last to spee out his crafty conuepaunce and iuglynges: and lest men shulde se, how soe he and his false Apostles haue deceaued all Christendome, specially poure noble realme of Englonde.

Thus your grace seyth how brotherly the Jewysch bysshoppe and our Balaam agree together, not onely in mytter and outward appearaunce: but as the one persecuted the Lorde Iesus in his owne persone, so doth the other persecute his worde and respyeth his holy ordynaunce in the auctorite of his anoynted kynges. For so moche now as the worde of God is the onely trueth that bypueeth awaye all lyes, and discloseth all iuglyng and disceate, therfore is our Balaam of Rome so lothe that the scripture shulde be knowe in the mother tonge: lest yf kynges and prynces (specially aboue all other) were exterpysed therein, they shulde reclame and chalenge agayne theyr due auctorite, which he falsely hath usurped so many peres, and so tye hym shorter: and lest the people beyng taught by the worde of God, shulde fall from yf false fayned obediēce of hym and his disguised Apostles, vnto the true obediēce commaunded by Gods owne mouth: as namely, to obey theyr pryncce, to obey father and mother. &c. and not to steppe ouer father and mothers hely to enter in to his paynted religions, as his pprocrites teach: for he knoweth well ynough, that yf the cleare Sonne of Gods worde come ones to the heate of the dape, it shal bypue awaye all the foule myst of his deuylsh doctrines. Therfore were it moze to the mayntenaunce of Antichristes kyngdome, that the worlde were styll in ignorance and blyndnes, and that the scripture shulde neuer come to lyghte. For the scripture (both in the olde testament and in the new) declareth most abouerdantly that the office, auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges / is in earth aboue all other powers: let them call the selues Popes, Cardynalles, or what so euer they will, the worde of god declareth them (ye and commaundeth them vnder payne of dampnacion) to be obedient vnto the tempozall swerde: As in the olde Testament all the Prophetes, Priestes and Leuites were. And in the new Testament Christ & his Apostles both were obedient them selues, and taught obediēce of all men vnto theyr prynces ad tempozall rulers: which here vnto vs in the worlde present the persone of God, and are called Goddes in the scripture, bycause of the excellēcy of theyr office. And though there were no mo auctorities but the same, to proue the preminence of the tempozall swerde, yet by this the scripture declareth playnly, that as there is nothyng aboue God, so is there no man aboue the kyng in his realme but that he onely vnder God is the chefe heade of all the cōgregacyon and church of the same. And in token that this is true, there hath ben of olde antiquite (and is yet vnto this dape) a lounge ceremonye vsed in your realme of Englonde, yf whā your graces subiectes reade your letters, or begynne to talke or come of your hyghnes, they moue theyr bonettes for a signe & token of reuerence vnto your grace, as to theyr most soueraigne lord & heade vnder God, which thyng no man vbleth to do to eny bysshoppe, wherby (yf our vnderstondyng were nat blynded) we myght euidently perceaue, that euen very nature teacheth vs the same, that scripture comaundeth vs: and that lyke as it is agaynst Gods worde that a kyng shulde not be the chefe heade of his people, euen so (I saye) is it agaynst kynde that we shulde knowe any other heade aboue hym vnder God.

And that no prest nor bysshoppe is exempte (nor can be lawfully) from the obediēce of his pryncce, the scripture is full both of strypte commaundementes, & practises of the

of the holpest men. & Aaron was obedient vnto Moses, and cal led hym his lord, & thogh he was his owne brother. Eleasar and Phineas were vnder the obediēce of Josua. & Nathan the prophete fell downe to the grounde before kyng David, he had his pryncce in such reuerence (he made not the kyng for to kysse his fote as the bysshoppe of Rome maketh Emperours to do) notwithstanding he spared not to rebuke hym, and that ryght sharply whan he fell from the worde of God to adultery and manslaughter. For he was not afrayed to reprove hym of his synes, nomoze than Helyas the prophete stode in feare to saye vnto kyng Achab: & It is thou and thy fathers house that trouble Israel, because ye haue forsaken yf commaundementes of the Lorde, and walke after Baal. And as Johan Baptyste durst saye vnto kyng Herode: It is not lawfull for the to take thy brothers wyfe. But to my purpose I passe ouer innumerable mo ensamples both of the olde Testament and of the new, for feare lest I be to tedious vnto your grace. Summa, in all godly regimentes of olde tyme the kyng and tēpōzall iudge was obeyed of euery man, and was alwaye vnder God the chefe and supreme heade of the whole cōgregacyon, and deposed euen prestes whan he sawe an vrgēt cause, as Salomon dyd vnto Abiathar. who coulde than stonde agaynst the godly obediēce of his pryncce (excepte he wolde be at despaynce with God and all his holy ordynaunces) that were wll acquaynted with the holy scripture, which so earnestly cōmendeth vnto euery one of vs the auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges and tempozall rulers. Therfore doth Moses so strately forbyde the Israelites to speake Crod. so moche as an euell worde agaynst the pryncce of yf people, moche lesse than to dysobey hym, or to withstonde hym. Doth not Jeremy the prophete and Baruc also Jerem. exhorte the people in captiuite, to praye for the prosperous welfare of the kyng of Babilon, and to obeye hym, though he was an infidelle? In the new Testament Bar. 20 whā our sauoure Christ (beyng yet fre & Lorde of al kynges & prynces) shewed his obediēce in payenge the tribute to oure ensample, & dyd he not a miracle there in puttynge the pece of money in the fysshes mouth (that Peter myght paye the custom therwith) and all to stablyshe the obediēce due vnto prynces? & dyd not Joseph and Mary the mother of our sauour Christ departe fro Nazareth vnto Beth leē, so farrestom home, to shewe theyr obediēce in payenge the tare to the pryncce? And wolde not oure Sauoure be bozne in the same obediēce? & Doth not Paule pronounce hym to respyte God hym selfe, that respyteth the auctorite of his pryncce? And (to be shorte) the Apostle Peter dothe not onely stablyshe the obediēce vnto prynces and tempozall rulers: but affirmeth playnly the kyng (and no bysshoppe) to be the chefe heade. Innumerable places mo are there in scripture, which bynde vs to the obediēce of oure pryncce, and declare vnto vs, that no man is nor can be lawfully excepte from the same: but that all the mynisters of Goddes worde are vnder the tēpōzall swerde: & prynces onely to owe obediēce vnto God & his worde.

And where as Antichrist vnto poure graces tyme dyd thrust his heade into yf imperiall crowne of your hyghnes (as he doth yet with other noble prynces mo) that lerned he of Sathā the authour of pryde, and therein doth he both agaynst the doctryne & also agaynst yf ensample of Christe: whiche because his kyngdome was not of this worlde, medled with no tempozal matters, as it is euident both by his wordes and practyse: Luc. xii. Math. xxvi. Joh. vi. Joh. xviii. where he yf hath eyes to se, maye se: & he yf hath eares to heare, maye heare, yf Christes admynistacion was nothyng tēpōzall, but playne spiritual, as he hym selfe affirmeth & proueth in the fourth chapter of saynt Luke out of the prophete Esay: where all bysshoppes and prestes maye se, how farre theyr byndyng and lowlyng extendeth, and where in theyr office consisteth, namely in preachynge the Gospell. &c.

wherfore (most gracious pryncce) there is no tonge I thynke, that can fully expresse and declare the vtollerable iniuries, which haue bene done vnto God, to al prynces and to the compynalties of all christen realmes, sence they which shulde be onely the mynisters of Gods worde, became lordes of the worlde, and thrust yf true and iust pynces out of theyr rowmes. whose herte wolde not pille it (ye eue with lamentacyon) to remember but onely the vntollerable wronge done by that Antychrist of Rome vnto youre graces most noble pcedecessoure kynge John. I passe ouer his pestilent pykynge of Peter pens out of youre realme: his stealyng awaye of youre money for pardons: benefices and bysshoppes: his dilcaupng of youre subiectes soules with his deuelyshe doctrynes and sectes of his false religions: his bloudsheddyng of so many of your graces people, for booke of the scripture, whose herte wolde not be grieved (ye and that out of measure) to call to remembrance, how obstinate and disobedient, how presumptuous & stubburne that Antychrist made the bysshoppes of youre realme agaynst your graces noble pcedecessours in tymes past, as it is manifest in y Cronicles: I trust verely there be no suche now within youre realme. If there be, let them remember these wordes of scripture: Presumptuousnes goeth before destruccio, & after a proude stomacke there foloweth a fall.

What is now the cause of all these vntollerable and nomore to be suffred abhominacions? Cruelly even the ignorance of the scripture of God. For how had it els ben possyble, that such byndnes shulde haue come in to y worlde, had not y lyghte of Gods worde bene extyncte: How coulde men (I saye) haue bene so farre from the true serupce of God, and from the due obedience of theyr pynce, had not the lawe of God bene clene shut by, depicled, cast asyde, and put out of remembrance: As it was afore the tyme of that noble kynge Josias, and as it hath bene also amonge vs vnto youre graces tyme: by whose most ryghteous admynistracyon (thorowe the mercyfull goodnes of God) it is now founde agayne, & as it was in the dayes of that most vertuous kynge Josias. And prayled be the father, the sonne, and the holy goost wolde without ende, which so excellently hath endewed youre pynce ly hert with such feruentnes to his honoure, and to the welth of youre louyng subiectes, that I maye ryghtuously (by iust occasyons in youre persone) copare youre hyghnes vnto that noble and gracyous kynge, y lanterne of lyghte amonge pynces, that feruent protectour and defender of the lawes of God: which comaunded straitly (as youre grace doth) that the lawe of God shulde be redde and taught vnto all y people: set the prestes to theyr office in the worde of god: destroyed ydolatre and false ydols: put doyme all euell customes and abusyngs: set by the true honoure of God: applyed all his studye and endeuoure to the ryghtuous admynistracyon of the most vncorrupte lawe of God. &c. What felicitye was amonge y people of Jerusalem in his dayes: And what prosperous health both of soule & body foloweth the lyke mynistracion in youre hyghnes, we begynne now (prayled be God) to haue experience. For as false doctryne is the origenall cause of all euell plagges and destruccyon, so is y true executyng of the lawe of God ad the preaching of the same, the mother of all godly prosperite. The onely worde of god (I saye) is the cause of all felicitye, it byngeth all goodnes with it, it byngeth lernynge, it geueth vnderstandynge, it causeth good workes, it maketh chyldren of obedience, breuely, it teacheth all estates theyr office and duety. Serunge then that the scripture of God teacheth vs euery thyng sufficiently, both what we oughte to do, and what we oughte to leaue vndone: whome we are bounde to obey, and whome we shulde not obey: therfore (I saye) it causeth all prosperite, and setteth euery thyng in frame: and where it is taught and knowen, it lyghteneth all darkenes, cōforteth all sorow hertes, leaueh no pooze man vnhelped, suffreth nothyng amysse vnamended, letteth no pynce be disobeyed, permytteth no heresie to be preached: but refourmeth all thynges, amēdeth that is amysse, and setteth euery thyng in order. And why: because it is geuen by the inspiracyon of God, therfore is it euer byngynge profyte and frute, by teachynge, by inpyoung, by amendynge and refourmyng all the y wyl receaue it, to make them perfecte & mete vnto all good workes.

Considerunge now (most gracyous pynce) the inestimable treasure, frute & prosperite euerlastynge, that God geueth with his worde, and trustynge in his infinite goodnes that he wolde byngne my symple and rude labourer herin to good effecte, therfore as the holy goost moued other me to do the cost herof, so was I bounden in God, to labour in the same. Agayne, considerunge youre Imperfall maiestye not onely to be my naturall soueraigne liege Lorde & chiefe heade of y church of Englode, but also the true defender and maynteyner of Gods lawes, I thought it my dutye and to belonge vnto my allegiaunce, whan I had translated this Bible, not onely to dedicate this translatyng vnto youre hyghnesse, but wholly to commytte it vnto the same: to the intent that yf any thyng therein be translated amysse (for in many thynges we sayle, euen whan we thynke so be sure) it may stode in youre graces handes, to correcte it, to amende it, to improue it, per & cleane to reiecte it, yf youre godly wysdome shall thynke it necessary. And as I do with all humblenes submitte myne vnderstandynge and my pooze translatyng vnto y spirite of truelyth in your grace, so make I this protestacyon (haupng God to recorde in my conscience) that I haue nether wrested nor altered so moch as one worde for the mayntenaunce of any maner of secte: but haue with a cleare conscience purely & fapthfully translated this out of fyue sundry interpreters, haupng onely the manifest truelyth of the scripture before myne eyes: Trustynge in the goodnes of God, that it shalbe vnto his worshippe: quietnes and tranquilitye vnto your hyghnes: a perfecte stablyshment of all Gods ordynaunces within youre graces domynion: a generall comfote to all Christen hertes, and a continuall thankfulness both of olde and yonge vnto god, and to your grace, for beyng oure Moyses, and for byngynge vs out of this olde Egypte from the cruell handes of our spirituall Pharao: For where were the Jewes (by ten thousande partes) so moch bounde vnto kynge Dauid, for subduyng of grete Goliath and all theyr enemyes, as we ate to your grace, for deliuerynge vs out of oure olde Babylon call captiuyte: For y which 17. g. deliuerance and victorie I beseeke oure onely medyatoure Iesus Christ, to make soch meanes for vs vnto his heavenly father, y we neuer be vnthankfull vnto him, vnto your grace: but that we euer increace in the feare of him, in obedience vnto your hyghnesse, in loue vnfaigned vnto oure neghbours: and in all vertue that commeth of God. To whom for y defendynge of his blessed worde (by your graces most rightfull administracyon) be honoure and thanks, glorye and dominyon, wolde without ende, Amen.

A prologe.

Myles Couerdale Unto the Christen reader.

Considerynge how excellent knowlege and lernynge an interpreter of scripture oughte to haue in the tongues, and ponderynge also myne owne insufficiency therin, a how weake I am to perfourme þe office of a translatoure, I was the more lothe to medle with this worke. Notwithstandynge whan I cōsidered how greute pytie it was that we shulde wante it so longe, & called to my remembraunce þe aduersite of them, which were not onely of rype knowlege, but wolde also with all theyr hertes haue perfourmed þe theyr beganne, yf they had not had impediment: considerynge (I saye) that by reason of theyr aduersyte it coulde not so soone haue bene broughte to an ende, as oure most prosperous nacyon wolde sayne haue had it: the se and other reasonable causes consydered, I was the more bolde to take it in hande. And to helpe me herin, I haue had sondre translations, not onely in latyn, but also of the Douche interpreters: whom (because of theyr synghuler gyftes & speciall diligence in the Bible) I haue ben the more glad to folowe for the most parte, accordynge as I was requyred. But to saye the trueth befoze God, it was nether my labourer ner desyre, to haue this worke put in my hande: neuertheles it greued me þe other nacys shulde be more plenteouly fownded for with þe scripture in theyr mother tongue, then we: therfoze whan I was instantly requyred, though I coulde not do so well as I wolde, I thought it yet my dewtye to do my best, and that with a good wyll.

where as some men thynke now þe many translatyons make blusyon in þe sayth and in the people of God, þe is not so: for it was neuer better with the congregacion of god, then whan euery church almost had þe Byble of a sondre translation. Amonge the Grekes had not Origen a speciall translatyon? Had not Eulgius one peculiar, & Iherosolyme Chrysostom? Besyde the seuentye interpreters, is there not the translatyon of Aquila, of Theodotio, of Symachus, and of sondre other? Agayne amonge the Latyn men, thou findest þe euery one almost vbled a speciall & sondre translatyon: for in so moch as euery byshoppe had the knowlege of þe tongues, he gaue his diligence to haue the Byble of his awne translatyon. The doctours, as Irenaeus, Cyprianus, Tertullian, S. Iherome, S. Augustine, Hilarus & S. Ambrose vpon dyuerse places of the scripture, reade not þe texte all alyke.

therfoze oughte it not to be taken as euell, þe soch men as haue vnderstandynge now in oure tyme, exerceyse them selues in þe tongues, & geue their diligence to translate out of one language in to another. see we ought rather to geue god hys thanks therfoze, which thowow his spete stretcheth by mys myndes, so to exerceyse them selues therin. wolde god it had neuer bene left of after þe tyme of S. Augustine, then shulde we neuer haue come in to soch blindness & ignoraunce, in to soch errours & delusyons. For as soone as the Byble was cast alyde, & nomore put in exerceyse, then beganne euery one of his awne heade to wyte what so euer came in to his bryne and þe seemed to be good in his awne eyes: and so grewe þe darkness of mys tradicions. And this same is þe cause þe we haue had so many wyrters, which seldome made mencyon of þe scripture of the Byble: & though they some tyme aleged it, yet was it done so farre out of season & so wyde from þe purpose, that a mā maye well perceaue, how that they neuer sawe the orygynall.

Seynge then þe this diligent exerceyse of translatynge doth so moch good & edifyeth in other languages, why shulde it do euell in oures? Doubtes lyke as all nacjons in þe dyuersite of speeches maye knowe one God in the vnyte of faith, and be one in loue: euen so maye dyuerse translatyons vnderstande one another, & that in the head articles & grounde of oure most blessed faith, though they vble sondre wordes. wherfoze me thynke we haue greute occasyon to geue thanks vnto God, that he hath opened vnto his church the gyfte of interpretacyon & of pryncyng, and that there are now at this tyme so many, which with soch diligence and faithfulness interprete þe scripture to the honoure of god and edifyenge of his people, where as (lyke as whan many are shutynge together) euery one doth his best to be nyest the mark. And though they can not all attayne therto, yet shuteth one nyer then another, and hytteth it better then another, yee one can do it better the another. who is now then so vnreasonable, so despytefull, or enuyous, as to abhorre him þe doth all his diligence to hytte þe prycke, and to shute nyest it, though he mysse & come not nyest the mark: Ought not soch one rather to be commended, and to be helped forwarde, that he maye exerceyse himselfe the more therin?

for the which cause (accordynge as I was desyred) I toke the more vpon me to set forth this speciall translatyon, not as a checker, not as a reprovour, or despyser of other mens translatyons (for amonge many as yet I haue founde none without occasyon of greute thankesgeyunge vnto god) but lowly & saythfully haue I folowed myne interpreters, & that vnder correccion. And though I haue sayled eny where (as there is noman but he mysse in some thyng) loue shall constreine all to þe best without eny petyer iudgment. There is noman lyuynge þe can se all thynges, ne ther hath god geuen eny man to knowe euery thyng. One seyth more clearly then another, one hath more vnderstandynge then another, one can vtter a thyng better then another, but noman ought to enuye, or dyspyse another. He that can do better then another, shulde not set him at naught þe vnderstandeth lesse: yee he that hath þe more vnderstandynge, ought to remembre that the same gyfte is not his but Gods, and þe God hath geue it him to teach & enfourme the ignoraunt. yf thou hast knowlege therfoze to iudge where eny faute is made, I doute not but thou wilt helpe to amende it, yf loue be toynded with thy knowlege. Howbeit wherin so euer I can perceaue by my selfe, or by the informacyon of other, that I haue sayled (as it is no wonder) I shall now by the helpe of God ouerloke it better & amende it.

Now wil I exhorte the (who so euer thou be þe readeest scripture) yf thou syndest oughte therin þe thou vnderstandest not, or that appeareth to be repugnaunt, geue no temerarious ner hasty iudgment therof: but ascribe it to thyne awne ignoraunce, not to the scripture, thynke þe thou vnderstandest it not, or þe it hath some other meanynge, or þe it is haply ouersene of þe interpreters, or wyonge prynced. Agayne, it shall greatly helpe þe to vnderstande scripture, yf thou marke not onely what is spoken or wyrtten, but of whom, & vnto whom, with what wordes, at what tyme where, to what intent, with what circumstance, consyderynge what goeth befoze, and what foloweth after. For there be some thynges which are done & wyrtte, to the intente þe we shulde do lyke wyse: as whan Abraham beleueth God, is obedient vnto his worde, & defendeth Loth his kynsman from violent wronge. There be some thynges also which are wyrtte, to the intente þe we shulde eschue soch lyke. As whan Dauid lyeth with Arias wyse, & causeth him to be slayne. Therfoze (I saye) whan thou readeest scripture, be wyse & circumspecte: & whan thou comest to soch straunge maners of speakynge & darke sentences, to soch parables & similitudes, to soch dreames or byllions as are hyd from thy vnderstandynge, comytte them vnto God or to the gyfte of his holy spete in them þe are better letned then thou.

As for the commendacyon of Gods holy scripture, I wolde sayne magnifye it as it is worthy, but I am farre vn sufficient therto. & therfoze I thoughte it better for me to holde my tounge, then with few wordes to prayse or commende it: exhortynge þe (most deare reader) so to loue it, so to cleue vnto it, & so to folowe it in thy dayly conuersacyon, yf other men seynge thy good workes & the frutes of þe holy goost in the, maye prayse the father of heauen, & geue his worde a good repoyte: for to lyue after the lawe of God, & to leade a vertuous conuersacyon, is the greatest prayse þe thou canst geue vnto his doctryne.

But as touchynge the euell repoyte and dysprayse that the good worde of God hath by the corrupte and euell conuersacyon of some, þe dayly heare it and professe it outwardly with theyr mouthes, I exhorte þe (most deare reader) let not þe offende thener withdawe thy mynde fro the loue of þe trueth, nether moue þe to be partaker in lyke

A prologe.

Unthankfulness: but seynge þ lighte is come in to the worlde, loue nomore the wokes of darknes, receaue not the grace of god in vayne. Call to thy remembraunce how louynge & mercifull God is vnto the, how kyndly and fatherly he helpeth the in al trouble, teacheth thyne ignoraunce, healeth the in all thy syknesse, forgeueth the all thy synnes, fedeþ þ, geueth the drynke, helpeth þ out of peryl, noyeth the in straunge countrees, careth for the, & seyth þ thou warte nothyng. Call this to mynde (I saye) & that earnestly, and consydre how thou hast receaued of god all the se benefices (ye and many mo then thou canst desyre) how thou art bounde lyke wise to shewe thy selfe vnto thy neyghboure as farre as thou canst, to teach him yf he be ignoraunt, to helpe him in all his trouble, to heale his syknes, to forgeue him his offences, and that hartely, to fede him, to cherishe him, to care for him, and to se þ he warte nothyng. And on this behalfe I beseeke the (thou þ hast þ ryches of this worl-de, and louest God with thy harte) to lyfte vp thyne eyes, and se how grete a multitude of poore people renne thorow euery towne: haue pitie on thyne awne flesh, helpe them with a good harte, and do with thy counsell all that euer thou canst, that this vnshamefast beggynge maye be put downe, that these ydle folkes maye be set to laboure, & that soch as are not able to get theyr lyuynge, maye be prouyded for.
At the leest thou þ art of counsell with soch as are in auctoryte, geue them some oc-casyon to cast theyr heades together, and to make prouysyon for the poore. But the in remembraunce of those noble cyties in other countrees, that by the auctoryte of theyr prynces haue so rychely ad well prouyded for theyr poore people, to the grete shame & dishonour of vs, yf we lykewys receauynge þ worde of God, shewe not soch lyke frutes therof. wolde God þ those men (whose office is to maynteyne þ comon welth) were as diligent in this cause as they are in other. Let vs beware by tymes, for after unthankfulness there foloweth euer a plage: the merciful hande of God be with vs, & defende vs that we be not partakers therof.

Go to now (most deare reader) & syt the downe at the Lordes fete and reade his wordes, & (as Moses teacheth the Jewes) take them in to theyr herte, & let thy tal-kyng & communicacion be of them whan thou syttest in thyne house, or goest by þ waye, whan thou lyest downe, & whan thou rysest vp. And aboue all thynges sal-thyon thy lyfe, & couersacion acordyng to the doctryne of the holy goost therein, that thou mayest be partaker of þ good promyses of god in the Byble, & be heyre of his blessynge in Christ. In whom yf thou put thy trust, & be an vnspayed reader: or hearer of his worde with thy hert, thou shalt fynde swetenesse therein, & spye wonderous thynges, to thy vnderstonnyng, to the auoydynge of all sedycious sectes, to the abhorrynge of thy olde synfull lyfe, & to the stablyshynge of thy godly conuersacion.

In the first boke of Moses (called Genesis) thou mayest lerne to knowe the al-myghty power of god in creatynge all of naught, his infinite wysdome in ordynyng the same, his ryghteousnes in punysshynge þ vngodly, his loue & fatherly mercy in comforynge the righteous with his promyses, &c.

In the seconde boke (called Exodus) we se the myghty arme of god, in deli-uerynge his people from so grete bondage out of Egypte, and what prouysyon he maketh for them in the wilderness, how he teacheth them with his wholsome worde and how the Tabernacle was made and set vp.

In the thyrde boke (called Leviticus) is declared what sacrifices the prestes & Leuites vled, and what theyr office & ministracyon was.

In the fourth boke (called Numerus) is declared how the people are nombred and mustred, how the captaynes are cholen after þ trybes & kynreds, how they we-te forth to þ battayll, how they pitched theyr tentes, & how they brake vp.

The fyfth boke (called Deuteronomium) sheweth how that Moses now beynge olde, rehearseth the lawe of god vnto þ people, putterh them in remembraunce agayne of all the wonders & benefices that god had shewed for them, and exhorteth them earnestly to loue þ Lord theyr god, to cleue vnto him, to put their trust in him and to herken vnto his voyce.

To the reader.

After the death of Moses doth Josue bynge the people in to the lode of promes where God doth wonderous thynges for his people by Josue, which distributeth þ londe vnto them, vnto euery trybe theyr possession. But in theyr wealth they forgat the goodnes of God, so that oft tymes he gaue the ouer in to the hande of theyr enemies. Neuertheles whan so euer they called faithfully vpon him, and conuerted, he delyuered them agayne, as the boke of Judges declareth.

In the boke of the kynges, is describde the regiment of good and euell pryn-ces, and how the decaye of all nacions cometh by euil kynges. For in Jeroboam thou seyst what myschefe, what ydolatre & soch like abhominacyon foloweth, whā
the kyng is a maynteyner of false doctryne, & ad causeth the people to synne agaynst God, which fallinge awaye from gods worde, increased so sore amonge them, that it was the cause of all theyr sorowe and misery, & the very occasion why Israel first and then Juda, were carryd awaye in to captiuite. Agayne, in Josaphat, in Ezechias and in Josias thou seyst the nature of a vertuous kyng. He putterh downe the houses of ydolatre, seyth that his prestes teach nothyng but þ lawe of God, & 2. Par.
naundeth his lordes to go with them, and to se that they teach the people. In these kynges (I saye) thou seyst the cōdycion of a true defender of þ fayth, for he spareth nether cost ner laboure, to maynteyne the lawes of God, to seke the welth & prosperity of his people, and to rote out the wicked. And where soch a prince is, thou seyst a-gayne, how God defendeth him and his people, though he haue neuer so many enemies. Thus wente it with the in the olde tyme, and euen after þ same maner goeth it now with vs: God be prayesd therfore, & graunte vs of his fatherly mercy, that we be not unthankfull: lest where he now geueth vs a Josaphat, an Ezechias, yee a very Josias, he sende vs a Pharaao, a Jeroboam, or an Achab.

In the two first boke of Esdras & in Hester thou seyst the deliuerance of the people, which though they were but fewe, yet is it vnto vs all a speciall cōfōrte, for so moch as God is not forgetfull of his promes, but byngeth them out of captiuite, acordyng as he had tolde them before.

In the boke of Job we lerne comfōrte and patience, in that God not onely punysheth the wicked, but proueth & tryeth the iust and righteous (howbeit there is noman innocent in his sighte) by dyuerse troubles in this lyfe, declaryng thereby, þ they are not his bastardes, but his deare sonnes, and that he loueth them.

In the Psalmes we lerne how to resorte onely vnto God in all oure troubles, to seke helpe at him, to call onely vpon him, to satle oure myndes by paciēce, & how we ought in prosperite to be thankfull vnto him.

The Proverbes and the Preacher of Salomon teach vs wysdome, to knowe God, oure owne selues, and the worlde, and how vayne all thynges are, saue onely to cleue vnto God.

As for the doctryne of the Prophetes, what is it els, but an earnest exhortacion to eschue synne, & to turne vnto God: a faythfull promes of the mercy & pardon of God, vnto all them þ turne vnto him, and a threatenynge of his wrath to the vngod-ly: sayynge that here and there they prophete also manifestly of Christ, of þ expulsion of the Jewes, and callynge of the Hethen.

Thus moch thought I to speake of þ olde Testament, wherein almyghtie God openeth vnto vs his myghty power, his wysdome, his louynge mercy & righteoufnesse: for the which cause it oughte of no man to be abhorred, despyled, or lyghtly regarded, as though it were an olde scripture þ nothyng beloged vnto vs, or þ now were to be refused. For it is Gods true scripture & testimony, which the Lord Jesus commaundeth the Jewes to search, who so euer beleuech not the scripture, bele-ueth not Christ, and who so refuseth it, refuseth God also.

The New Testament or Gospell, is a manifest and cleare testimony of Christ how God perfourmeth his ooth and promes made in the olde Testament, how the New is declared and included in the Olde, and the Olde fulfilled and verifed in

2. Par.
17. b.

Jo. 5. d

A prologe.

Now where as the most famous interpreters of all geue sondyng iudgements of the terte (so farre as it is done by þe sperte of knowlege in the holy goost) me thynke noman shulde be offended there at, for they referre theyr doinges in mekenes to the sperte of trueth in the congregacyon of god: a sure I am, that there cometh more knowlege and vnderstandinge of the scripture by theyr sondyng translacions, then by all the gloses of oure sophistical doctours. For that one interpreteth somthyng obscurely in one place, the same translateth another (or els he him selfe) more manifestly by a more playne vocable of the same meanyng in another place. Be not thou offended therfore (good Reader) though one call a scribe, that another calleth a lawyer: or elders, that another calleth father & mother: or repentaunce, that another calleth pennaunce or amendement. For yf thou be not discaued by mens tradicions, thou shalt fynde nomore dyuersite betwene these termes then betwene foure pens and a grote. And this maner haue I vsed in my translacion, calling it in some place pennaunce, that in another place I call repentaunce, and that not onely because the interpreters haue done so before me, but that the aduersaries of the trueth maye see, how that we abhorre not this worde pennaunce (as they vntruly reporte of vs) no more then the interpreters of latyn abhorre penitere, whan they reade resipiscere. Onely oure hertes desyre vnto God, is, that his people be not blynded in theyr vnderstandyng, lest they beleue pennaunce to be ought saue a very repentaunce, amendement, or conuersyon vnto God, and to be an vnfayned new creature in Christ, and to lyue acording to his lawe. For is shall they fall in to the olde blasphemie of Christes bloude, and beleue, that they the selues are able to make satisfaccion vnto God for theyr awne synnes, from the which erroure god of his mercy and pléteous goodnes preferue all his.

Now to conclude: for so moch as all the scripture is wyrtten for thy doctryne & ensample, it shalbe necessary for the, to take holde vpon it, whyle it is offred the, pee and with ten handes thankfully to receaue it. And though it be not worthely ministered vnto the in this translacion (by reason of my rudnes) yet yf thou be seruet in thy prayer, God shal not onely sende it the in a better shappe, by the mynistracyon of other that beganne it afore, but shall also moue the hertes of them, which as yet medled not withall, to take it in hande, and to bestowe the giste of theyr vnderstandyng theron, as well in oure language as other famous interpreters do in other languages. And I praye God, that thorow my pooze ministracyon here in, I maye geue them that can do better, some occasyon so to do: exhortyng the (most deare reader) in the meane whyle on Gods behalfe, yf thou be a heade, a Iudge, or ruler of þe people, that thou let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercise thyselfe therein both daye and nyghte, and be euer readyng in it as long as thou lyuest: that thou mayest lerne to feare the Lorde thy God, & not to turne asyde from the commaundement, nether to the right hande nor to the lefte: lest thou be a knowler of personnes in iudgmet, and wrest the righte of the stranger, of the fatherles or of the wedowe, and so þe curse to come vpon the. But what office so euer thou hast wayte vpon it, and execute it, to the mayntenaunce of peace, to the welth of thy people, defendyng the lawes of God, and the louers therof, and to the destruccyon of the wicked.

For thou be a preacher, and hast the ouersight of the flocke of Christ, awake and fede Christes shepe with a good herte, & spare no laboure to do them good, seke not thy selfe, & beware of fylthy lucre: but be vnto þe flocke an ensample, in þe worde, in conuersacyon, in loue, in feruentnes of þe sperte, and be euer readyng, exhortyng, & teachyng in Gods worde, that the people of God renne not vnto other doctrynes and lest thou thy selfe (whan thou shuldest teach other) be founde ignoraunt therein. And rather then thou wouldest teach the people any other thyng then Gods worde take the boke in thyne hande, & reade the wordes cū as they stonde therein (for it is no shame so to do, it is more shame to make a lye) This I saye for sorch, as are not yet experte in the scripture, for I repproue no preachyng without the boke as long as they saye the trueth.

To the reader.

Yf thou be a man that hast wyfe and childre, first loue thy wyfe, acordinge to the ensample of the loue, wherwith Christ loued the cōgregacion, and remembre that so doyng, thou louest euen thyselfe: yf thou hate her, thou hatest thine awne flesh: yf thou cherishe her and make moch of her, thou cherisest & makest moch of thyselfe for she is bone of thy bones, & flesh of thy flesh. And who so euer thou be that hast children, byng them vp in the nurtour and informacion of the Lorde. And yf thou be ignoraunt, or art otherwyle occupied lausfully that thou canst not teach them thy selfe, then be euen as diligent to seke a good master for thy childre, as thou wast to seke a mother to beare them: for there lieth as great weicht in the one as in þe other. See better it were for the to be vnborne, then not to feare God, or to be euil brought vp. which thyng (I meane byngyng by well of chudren) yf it be diligently loosed to, it is the vpholdinge of all comon welches: and the negligence of the same, the very decaye of all realmes.

Finally, who so euer thou be, take these wordes of scripture in to thy herte, and be not onely an outwarde hearer, but a doer thereafter, and practyse thyselfe therein: that thou mayest fele in thine hert, the swete promyses therof for thy consolacion in all trouble, & for the sure stablyshyng of thy hope in Christ, and haue euer an eye to þe wordes of scripture, that yf thou be a teacher of other thou mayest be within the boundes of the trueth, or at the leest though thou be but an hearer or reader of another mans doyn

ges, thou mayest

yet haue

knowlege to iudge all spertes, and be fre from euery erroure, to the better destruccyon of all sedicious sectes & straunge doctrynes, that the holy scripture maye haue fre passage, and be had in reputacion, to the worshippe of the authoz therof, which is euen God himselfe: to whom glory & domynion

And God sayde: let there be a firmament betwene the waters, and let it deuyned y waters a sinder. Then God made y firmament, and parted the waters vnder the firmament, from the waters aboue the firmament: And so it came to passe. And God called y firmament, Heauen. And God sayde: let y earth bringe forth grene graspe and herbe, that beareth sēde: & frute full trees, that maye beare frute, euery one after his kynde, hauynge their owne seede in them selues vpon the earth. hauynge their owne sede in them selues, euery one after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the thirde daye.

And God sayde: let there be lightes in y^e firmament of heauen, to deuide the daye fro the night, that they maye be vnto toles, seasons, dayes, and yeres. And let them be lightes in y^e firmament of heauen, to shyne vpon the earth: And so it came to passe. And God made two great lightes: one greater light to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the night, and he made starres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen, y^e they might shyne vpon the earth, and to rule the daye and the night, and to deuide the lighte from darcknes. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: let the waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue life, y^e fowles so to flye aboue the earth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created great whales, and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue, which the waters brought forth euery one after his kynde: and all maner of feathered fowles, euery one after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good, and blessed them, sayenge: Growe, and multiplie, and fyll the waters of the sees, and let the fowles multiplie vpon the earth. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the fifth daye.

And God sayde: let y^e earth bringe forth lyuynge soules, euery one after his kynde: cattell, womes, y^e what as hath life vpon earth, euery one after his kynde. And so it came to passe. And God made y^e bestes of the earth euery one after his kynde, and cattell after their kynde, and all maner womes of the earth after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man in o^r similitude after oure likenesse, that he maye haue rule ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the fowles vnder y^e heauen, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all womes that crepe on y^e earth. And God created man after his likenesse: after y^e likenesse of God created he him, male y^e female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayde vnto them: Growe, and multiplie, and fyll the earth, and subdue it, y^e haue domynion ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the fowles of the ayre, and ouer all the bestes that crepe vpon the earth.

And God sayde vnto him, I haue geuen you all maner herbes that beare sede vpon the whole earth, and all maner fructifull trees that beare sede, to be meate for you. And to all bestes of the earth, and to all foules vnder the heauen, and to euery wombe that hath life (vpon earth) all maner grene herbes to eate. And so it came to passe. And God behelde all y^e he had made, and lo, they were exceeding good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the sixte daye.

The seconde Chapter.

Thus was heauen and earth fynished with all their host, and thus in the seventh daye God ended his worke, which he had made, y^e rested in the seventh daye from all his workes which he had made: And blessed the seventh daye, y^e sanctified it, because y^e in it he rested from all his workes, which God created and made.

These are the generacions of heauen and earth when they were created, in the tyme when the LORDE God made heauen and earth: before there was any troygg vpon earth, and as yet there grew any grene herbe vpon the felde. For the LORDE God had yet sent no raine vpon y^e earth, neither was there any man to tills the earth. But there arose a myst from the earth, y^e watered all the londe. And y^e LORDE God shope man out of the mould of the earth, y^e brethed in to his face y^e breath of life. And so was man made a lyuynge soule.

The LORDE God also planted a garde of pleasure in Eden, towards y^e east, and set man therein whom he had made. And the LORDE God caused to sprynge out of the earth all maner trees, pleasaunt to loke vpon, and good to eate: and the tre of life in the myddest of the garden, and the tre of knowlege of good and euill.

And out of Eden there wente a ryuer, to water the garden, and there deuided it selfe in to foure heade waters. The first is called Phison, which renneth aboute all the londe of Henuy. And there is fouthe golde, (y^e the golde of that countre is precious,) and there is fouthe Bedellion, and the precious stone Onix. The second water is called Gihon, which runneth aboute the whole londe of y^e Moouas. The thirde water is called Hyccell, which runneth towards the east syde of y^e Assirijs. The fourth water is Euphrates.

And the LORDE God toke man, y^e set him in the pleasaunt garden of Eden, to dresse it y^e to kepe it. And the LORDE God commaunded man, sayenge: Thou shalt eate of all maner trees in y^e garden: But of y^e tre of know

lege of good and euill, shalt thou not eate. For loke in what daye so ever thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

And the LORDE God sayde: It is not good y^e man shulde be alone. I wil make him an helpe, to beare him company. And when God the LORDE had made of the earth all maner bestes of the felde, y^e all maner foules vnder the heauen, he brought them vnto man, to se what he wolde call the: For as man called all maner of liuynge soules, so are their names. And man gaue names vnto all maner cattell, y^e vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and vnto all maner bestes of y^e felde. But vnto man there was founde no helpe, to beare him company.

Then the LORDE God caused an herbe slepe to fall vpon man, and he slepte. And he toke out one of his rybbes, and (in steade therof) he filled vp y^e place with flesh. And the LORDE God made a woman, of y^e ribbe that he toke out of man, and brought her vnto him. Then sayde man: This is once bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh. She shalbe called woman, because she was taken of man. For this cause shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, y^e they two shalbe one flesh. And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The iii. Chapter.

De the serpent was soryller then all the bestes of the felde, which y^e LOR

DE God had made) and sayde vnto the woman: Yee, hath God sayde in dede: Ye shall not eate of all maner trees in the garden: Then sayde the woman vnto the serpent: We eate of the frute of the trees in the garden: But as for the frute of the tre that is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: Eate not ye of it, and touch it not, lest ye dye.

Then saide the serpent vnto the woman: Tush, ye shall not dye the death. For God doth knowe, that in what daye so ever ye eate of it, youre eyes shalbe opened, and ye shal be as God, and knowe both good and euill. And the woman sawe that y^e tre was good to eate of, and lustye vnto the eyes, and a pleasaunt tre to make wyse, and toke of the frute of it, and ate, and gaue vnto hir husbande also therof, and he ate. Then were the eyes of them both opened, and they perceaued that they were naked, and so wed fygge leaues together, and made them apurue.

And they herde the voyce of the LORDE God, which walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd him self with his wyse, from the presence of y^e LORDE God amonge the trees of the garden. And y^e LORDE God called Adam, and sayde vnto him: Where art thou? And he saide: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was a frayd, because I am naked, and therefore I hyd myself. And he sayde: who tolde the, that thou art naked? Hast thou not eaten of the tre, wherof I commaunded the, y^e thou shuldest not eate?

Then sayde Adam: The woman, which thou gauest me (to beare me company) gaue me of the tre, and I ate. And the LORDE God sayde vnto the woman: wherfore hast thou done this? The woman sayde: the serpent diseaued me so, that I ate. Then sayde the LORDE God vnto the serpent: Becausethou hast done this, cursed be thou aboue all cattell and aboue all bestes of the felde. Vpon thy bely shalt thou go, y^e earth shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy life. And I wyll put enemyte betwene the and the woman, and betwene y^e sede and hir sede. The same shal treade downe thy heade, and thou shalt treade him on the heale.

And vnto the woman he sayde: I will increase thy sorrow, when thou art with child: with payne shalt thou beare thy child: and thy lust shal pertrayne vnto y^e husband, and he shal rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayde: For so much as thou hast done, thou shalt be cursed.

thou hast hearkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, and hast eaten of the tre, wherof I commaunded the, sayenge: thou shalt not eate of it. Cursed be y^e earth for thy sake. With sorowe shalt thou eate therof, all the dayes of thy life. Thornes and thistles shalt it beare vnto the, and thou shalt eate the herbes of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate thy bryed, tyll thou be turned agayne vnto earth, wherewith thou art take: for earth thou art, and vnto earth shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Adam called his wyfe Hena, because she is the mother of all luyng. And the LORDE God made Adam & his wyfe garments of skynnes, & thes he put on them. And the LORDE God sayde: lo, Adam is become as it were one of vs, & knoweth good & euell. But now lest he stretch his hande, and take also of the tre of life, and eate, and lyeue for ever. Then the LORDE God put him out of the garden of Eden, to tyll y^e earth, wher he was take. And he cast Adam out. And before the garden of Eden he set Cherubes, and a naked syre swerde, to kepe y^e waye vnto the tre of life.

The iij. Chapter.

After Adam laye with Hena his wyfe, which conceiued & bare Cain, and sayde, I haue opeyned y^e man of the LORDE. And she proceeded forth, & bare his brother Abell. And Abell became a shepherde, but Cain became an husbanded man.

And it fortuneth after certayne daies, that Cain brought of the frute of the earth, an offryng vnto y^e LORDE. And Abell broughte also of the firstlinges of his shepe, and of y^e fat of them. And the LORDE had respecte vnto Abell and to his offryng: but vnto Cain and his offryng he looked not. Then was Cain exceedinge wroth, and his countenance chaunged. And the LORDE sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou angrie? and why doth thy countenance chaunge? Is it not for that yf thou do well, thou shalt receaue it: but and yf thou do euell, thy synne lyeth open in the doire? Shal he then be subdued vnto the? and wilt thou rule him? And Cain talked with Abell his brother.

And it happened, that whan they were in the felde, Cain arose agaynst Abell his brother, and slew him. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Cain: Where is Abell thy brother? He sayde: I can not tell. Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude crieth vnto me out of the earth. And now shalt thou be cursed vpon the earth, which hath opened hir mouth, and receaued thy brothers bloude of thine hande. Whan thou tyllest y^e ground, she shall bring forth not geue hir power vnto the. A vagabonde and a renegate shalt thou be vpon y^e earth. And Cain sayde vnto y^e LORDE: my synne is greater, then that it maye be forgiven me. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from out of y^e sonde, and from y^e sight must I hyde myself, and must be a vagabonde and a renegate vpon y^e earth. And thus shal it go with me: that who so fyndeth me, shal slaye me.

But the LORDE sayde thus vnto him: Who so euer slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged sevenfold. And the LORDE put a marke vpon Cain, that no man which founde him, shoulde kyll him. So Cain wente out from y^e face of the LORDE, and dwelt in the lande Nod, vpon the east syde of Eden.

And Cain laye with his wyfe, which conceived and bare Henech. And he buylded a cite, and called it after the name of his sonne Henech. And Henech begat Irad, Irad begat Mahuial. Mahuial begat Mathusael. Mathusael begat Lamech.

And Lamech toke him two wyues: y^e one was called Ada, & the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jabel, of whom came they that dwelt in tentes and had cattell. And his brothers name was Jubal: of him came they that occupied harpes & pypes. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcain, a worker in all connynges poyntes of metall & yron. And Tubalcains sister was called Naama.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce (ye wyues of Lamech) and hearken vnto my wordes: for I haue slayne a man, and wounded myself: and (haue kylled) a yongeman, and gotten myself stripes. Cain shalbe auenged seven tymes: but Lamech seven and seuentie tymes.

Adam laye yet with his wyfe agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called him Seth. For God (sayde she) hath apointed me another sede, for Abell, whom Cain slew. And Seth begat a sonne also, and called him Enos. At the sametyme beganne men to call vpon the name of the LORDE.

The v. Chapter.

This is the boke of the generacion of man, in the tyme whan God created man, and made him after the similitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed the, & called their names Man, in the tyme whan they were created. And Adam was an hundred and thirtie yeare olde, and begat a sonne, which was like his owne ymage, and called his name Seth: & luyed thereafter eight hundred yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and thirtie yeares, and so he dyed.

Seth was an hundred and fyue yeare olde, and begat Enos: & luyed thereafter eight hundred and seven yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and twelue yeares, and so he dyed.

Enos was nyentie yeare olde, and begat Kenan: and luyed thereafter eight hundred & systene yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and fyue yeares, and so he dyed.

Kenan was seuentie yeare olde, and begat Mahalaliel: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and fourtie yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and ten yeares, and so he dyed.

Mahalaliel was thre score yeare olde & fyue, and begat Jared: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and thirtie yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was eight hundred, nyentie and fyue yeares, and so he dyed.

Jared was an hundred and two & sixtie yeare olde, and begat Henech: & luyed thereafter eight hundred yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and two and sixtie yeare, and so he dyed.

Henech was fyue and thre score yeare olde, and begat Mathusalah: and led a godly conuersacion thre hundred yeares thereafter, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was thre hundred and fyue and thre score yeares. And for so moch as he luyed a godly life, God toke him awaye, & he was nomore sene.

Mathusalah was an hundred & seven and foure score yeare olde, & begat Lamech: and luyed thereafter seven hundred and two and foure score yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and nyne and tre score yeares, and so he dyed.

Lamech was an hundred and two and foure score yeare olde, and begat a sonne, & called him Noe, and sayde: This same shall cosorte vs in oure woikes, and in the sorowe of oure bondes vpon the earth, which the LORDE hath cursed. After this he luyed fyue hundred and fyue & nyentie yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was seven hundred seven and seuentie yeares, and so he dyed.

Noe was fyue hundred yeare olde, and begat Sem, Ham and Japhet.

The vi. Chapter.

So whan men beganne to multiplie vpon the earth, and had begot them daughters, the children of God sawe the daughters of men, that they were fayre, and toke vnto the wyues soch as they liked. Then sayde y^e LORDE: My spere shal not allwaye stryue with man, for he is but flesch also. I wil yet geue him respyte an hundred and twety yeares. There were giannes also in the world at that tyme. For whan the children of God had lyeu with the daughters of men, and begotten them children, y^e same (children) became mightie in the world, and men of renoune.

But whan the LORDE sawe y^e wickednes of man was increased vpon y^e earth, and that all y^e thought and imaginacion of their hert was but onely euell continually, it repented him, that he had made man vpon the earth, and he sorowed in his hert, and sayde: I wyll destroye man kynde which I haue made, from the earth: both man, best, worne, and foule vnder the heauen: for it repented me, that I haue made them. Neuer theles Noe founde grace in the sight of the LORDE.

This is y^e generacion of Noe. Noe was a righteous and perfecte ma, and led a godly life in his tyme, and begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham and Japhet. Noe withstandinge y^e earth was corrupte in y^e sight of God, and full of myschefe. Then God looked vpon y^e earth: and lo, it was corrupte: for all flesch had corrupte his waye vpon the earth.

Then sayde God vnto Noe: Then ende of all flesch is come before me, for the earth is full of myschefe before them. And lo, I wyll destroye them with the earth. Make the an Arcke of pyne tre, and make chambers in it, and pitch it within and without with pitch and make it after this fashion: The length shal be thre hundred cubites, the bredth fiftie cubites, and the heyghe thirtie cubites. A wyndow shalt thou make aboue of a cubyte greate: but the doer shalt thou set in the myddest in the syde of it: And the Arke shalt thou make with thre loftes one aboue another. For lo, I wyll bringe a floude of water vpon the earth, to destroye all flesh (wherin the breth of life is) vnder the heauē: All that is vpon earth, shal per. she.

D But with the wyll I make a coneuant, and thou shalt go in to the Arke with thy sonnes, with thy wyfe, and with thy sonnes wyues. And of all creatures what so euer flesh it be, thou shalt bringe into the Arke, euen a payre: the male and the female, that they maye lyue wth the: Of foules after their kynde, of bestes after their kynde, and of all maner womes of the earth after their kynde. Of euery one of these shal there a payre go in vnto the, that they maye lyue. And thou shalt take vnto the all maner of meate that maye be eaten, and shalt laye it vp in store by the, that it maye be meate for the and them. And Noe dyd accordinge to all that God commaunded him.

The VII. Chapter.

A And ^{a. Pet. 2. b} ^{Leuit. 11. a} I the LORD sayde vnto Noe: Go in to the Arke thou & thy whole house: for the haue I sene righteous before me at this tyme. Of all cleane bestes take vnto the seven and seven, the male and his female. And of vncleane bestes a payre, the male and his female. Like wyse of the foules vnder the heauen, seven and seven, the male and his female, that there maye beside left a lyue vpon the whole earth.

For yet after seven dayes, I wil sende raine vpon the earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes, and wyll destroye all maner of thynges that I haue made, from of the face of the earth.

And Noe dyd all that the LORD commaunded him. Sire hūdieth yeare olde was he, whan the water floude came vpon earth. And he wente in to the Arke, with his sonnes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues, for the waters of the floude. Of cleane bestes and of vncleane, of all fethered foules, & of all that crepeth vpon earth, wente in vnto him to the Arke by paires, a male and a female, as ^{mau. Luc.} the LORD commaunded him. And whan the seven dayes were past, the water floude came vpon the earth.

In the sixe hundredth yeare of Noes age, vpon the seventene daye of the seconde moneth, that same daye were all ^{me to pnc.} the fountaynes of the greate depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened, and there came a rayne vpon ^{me to pnc.} the earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes.

Vpon the selfe same daye wete Noe into the Arke, with Sem, Ham and Japhet his sonnes, and with his wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes, and all maner of bestes after their kynde, all maner of catell after their kynde, all maner of crepyng thinges (that crepe vpon the earth) after their kynde, and all maner of foules (what so euer coude flye & what so euer had fethers) after their kynde: These wente all vnto Noe in to the Arke by coopes, of all flesh in whom was the breth of life. And these were the male & the female of all maner of flesh, and wente in, accordinge as God commaunded him. And the LORD shut (the doer) vpon him.

Then came the water floude fourtie dayes vpon the earth, and the water increased, and bare vp the Arke, and lift it vp ouer the earth. Thus the water preuayled, and increased soire vpon the earth, so that the Arke wente vpon the waters. Reethe waters preuayled and increased soire vpon earth, that all the hye mountaynes vnder the whole heauen were couered. Systene cubytes hye preuayled the waters ouer the mountaynes, which were couered.

Then all flesh that crepte vpon earth, perished, both foules, catell, bestes, and all that moued vpon earth, and all men. What so euer had the breth of life vpon the drye land, dyed.

Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the earth, both man and beast, both womes and foules vnder the heauē: all these were destroyed from the earth. Sane Noe onely remayned, and they that were with him in the Arke. And the waters preuayled vpon the earth, an hundredth and fiftie dayes.

The VIII. Chapter.

A Then God remembered Noe and all the bestes, and all the catell that were with him in the Arke, and caused a wynde to come vpon the earth: and the waters ceased, and the fountaynes of the epe and the wyndowes of heauen were stoppe, and the rayne of heauē was forbydden, and the waters ranne styll awaye from the earth, and decreased after an hundredth and fiftie dayes.

Vpon the seuentene daye of the seuenth moneth rested the Arke vpon the mountaynes of Ararat. And the waters wete awaye and decreased vntill the tenth moneth: for the first daye of the tenth moneth, the toppes of the mountaynes appeared.

After fourtie dayes Noe opened the wyndow of the Arke which he had made, & sent forth a raven, which flew out, and came agayne, vntill the waters were dried vp vpon the earth.

Then sent he forth a doue from him, to wete, whether the waters were fallē vpon the earth. But when the doue coude fynde no resting place for hir fete, she came agayne vnto him in to the Arke, for the waters were yet vpon the face of all the earth. And he put out his hande, and toke her to him in to the Arke.

Then he abode yet seven dayes mo, & sent out the doue agayne out of the Arke: & she returned vnto him aboute the euen tyde: and beholde, she had broken of a leafe of an olyuetre, & bare it in hir nebb. Then Noe perceived, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. Nevertheless he taried yet seven other dayes, and sent forth the doue, which came nomore to him agayne.

In the sixe hundredth and one yeare of Noes age, vpon the first daye of the first moneth, the waters were dried vp vpon the earth. Then Noe toke of the hatches of the Arke, and sawe the face of the earth was drye. So vpon the seven and twentye daye of the seconde moneth the whole earth was drye.

Then spake God vnto Noe, and sayde: Go out of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, and thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. As for all the bestes that are with the, what so euer flesh it be (both foule & catell and all maner of womes that crepe vpon the earth) let them go out with the, and be occupied vpon the earth, growe and multiplye vpon the earth.

So Noe wente out, with his sonnes, and with his wife, and with his sonnes wyues. All the bestes also and all the womes, and all the foules, and all that crepte vpon the earth; wente out of the Arke, euery one vnto his life.

And Noe buylde an altare vnto the LORD, and toke of all maner of cleane bestes & of all maner of cleane foules, and offered brete sacrifices vpon the altare. And the LORD smel led the swete sauour, & sayde in his herte: I wyll hence forth curse the earth nomore for mans sake, for the ymaginacion of mans herte is euell, euen from the very yowth of him. Therfore from hence forth I wil nomore synne all that lyueth, as I haue done. The earth shall sowynge tyme and harvest, colde and heate Sommer and wynter, daye and night, as long as the earth endureth.

The IX. Chapter.

A And God blessed Noe and his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: Increase & multiplye, and fyll the earth. The feare also and drede of you be vpon all bestes of the earth, vpon all foules vnder the heauen, and vpon all that crepeth on the earth, and all fshes of the see be geuen in to youre hādes. All that moueth and hath life, be youre meate. Euen as the grene herbe, so haue I geue you all. Onely eate not the flesh with the bloude, wherin the soule is: For the bloude of you wherin youre soule is, wyll I requyre of the hande of all bestes: and the soule of man wyll I requyre of mans hande, yet euery mans soule of anothers hande.

He that sheddeth mans bloude, his bloude shal be shed by man agayne, for God ma de man after his owne liknesse. As for you, be ye fructifull, and increase, and be occupied vpon the earth, that ye maye multiplye therein.

Furthermore, God sayde vnto Noe and to his sonnes wth him: Beholde, I make my coneuant with you, and with youre sede after you, and with every lyuynge creature that is with you, both foule, catell, and all beastes vpon the earth with you, of all that is gone out of the Arke, what so ever beast of the earth it be: And thus I make my couenante with you, that hence forth all flesh shal not be destroyed with the waters of eny floude, and from hence forth there shall come no floude to destroye the earth.

And God sayde: This is the token of my couenante which I haue made betwene me and you, and all lyuynge creatures amonge you for euermore: My bowe will I set in the cloudes, and it shal be the token of my couenante betwene me and y^e earth: so that whā I brynge cloudes vpon the earth, the bowe shal appeare in the cloudes. And then wyll I thynke vpon my couenante betwixte me and you and all lyuynge creatures in all maner of flesh: so that from hence forth there shall nomore come eny floude of water to destroye all flesh. Therfore shall my bowe be in the cloudes, that I maye loke vpon it, and remembre the euerlastynge couenante, betwixte God and all lyuynge creatures in all flesh that is vpon earth. God sayde also vnto Noe: This is the toke of the couenante, which I haue made betwene me and all flesh vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noe which wente out of the Arke, are these: Sem, Ham and Japhet. As for Ham, he is the father of Canaan. These are Noes thre sonnes, of whom all londes were overspied.

Noe beganne to take hede vnto y^e tyllinge of the grounde, & planted a vyuard. And dranke of the wyne, and was dronken, and laye vncovered in his tente. Now when hā the father of Canaan sawe his fathers priuities, he tolde his two brethren without. The toke Sem and Japhet a mantell and put it vps both their shulders, and wente backward, and covered their fathers secretes: & their faces were turned asyde, y^e they shulde not se their fathers priuities.

So whan Noe awaked from his wyne, and perceaued what his yonger sonne had done vnto him, he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of seruantes be he vnto his brethren. He sayde moouer: Praise be the LORDE God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt. God increase Japhet, and let him dwell in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt.

And Noe lyued after the floude thre hundred & fiftie years, so y^e his whole age was ix hundred and fiftie years, and so he dyed.

The X. Chapter.

This is the generacion of the childre of Noe, Sem, Ham, and Japhet, & they begat children after the floude.

The children of Japhet are these: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Jauan, Tubal, Mesek and Thyas. The childre of Gomer are these: Ascanas, Riphat and Togarma. The children of Jauan are these: Elisa, Tharsis, Cethim and Dodanim: Of these are demed the Isles of y^e heithen in their countrees, eue ry one after his speach, kynred and people.

The childre of Ham are these: Chus, Misraim, Phut and Canaan. The children of Chus are these: Seba, Henila Sabtha, Keyma and Sabchecha.

The children of Keyma are these: Sheba and Dedā. Chus also begat Nemrod, which beganne to be mightie in the earth, and was a mightie hunter in the sight of the LORDE. Therof cometh the puerbe: This is a mightie hunter before the LORDE like as Nemrod. And the origenall of his kynngdome was Babel, Erech, Acad & Chalne in y^e londe of Synear. Out of that lode came Assur, and buylde Ninive, and y^e stretes of y^e cite, and Calah, and Kessen betwene Ninive & Calah: This is a greete cite. Mizraim begat Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtuhim, Pathrusim & Casluthim, from whence came the Philistynes and Caphtorims. Canaan also begat Sidon his eldest sonne, & Heth, Jebusi, Emon, Girgosi, Hiti, Arti, Sini, Arna-di, Zemari & Hamati: fro whence y^e kynreds of y^e Cananites are dispersed abroad. And y^e Coastes of y^e Cananites were fro Sidon forth thorow Gerar vnto Gasa, tyll thou comest vnto Sodoma, Gomora, Adama, Zeboim, & vnto Lasa. These are the children of Ham in their kynreds, tinges, londes & people. And Sem which is y^e father of all the children of Eber, & the elder brother of Japhet, begat childre also. And these are his children: Elā, Assur, Arphachad, Lud & Aram. The childre of Aram are these: Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas.

And Arphachad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. Eber begat two sonnes: the name of the one was Peleg, because that in his tyme the world was deuyled, and his brothers name was Jakteran. And Jakteran begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmapher, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Ditela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Henila & Jobab: All these are y^e childre of Jakteran. And their dwel linge was from Mesā, tyll thou come vnto Sephara mountayne of y^e east. These are y^e children of Sem in their generacions, tinges, londes and people.

This is now y^e generacion of y^e children of Noe in their kynredes & people. Of these were y^e people vpon earth spred a brode after y^e floude. The XI. Chapter.

When all the world had one conge & language, Now as they wente toward the East, they founde a playne in y^e londe of Synear, & there they dwelt, & saide one to another: Come on, let vs make bryck & burne it. And they toke bryck for stone, & slyme for mortar. And sayde: Come, let vs buylde a cite & a tower, whose toppe maye reach vnto heauē, y^e we maye make vs a name, afore we be scattered abroad in all londes. Then came y^e LORDE downe, to se y^e cite & tower, y^e y^e childre of mē had buylde. And y^e LORDE saide: Beholde, the people is one, & haue one maner of language and ge the all, & this haue they begonne to do, & wil not leaue of from all y^e they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs go downe, & cōfounde their conge eue there, y^e one vnderstonde not what another saith. Thus y^e LORDE scattered the frō thece in all lōdes, so y^e they left of to buylde the cite. Therfore is it called Babel, because the LORDE cōfounded there the language of all the world, and from thece scattered them abroad in to all londes.

These are y^e generacions of Sem. Sem was an hundred years olde, and begat Arphachad two years after the floude, and lyued therafter syue hundred years, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachad was fine & thirtie years olde, and begat Salah, and lyued therafter foure hundred and thre years, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Salah was thirtie years olde, and begat Eber, & lyued therafter foure hundred & thre years, & begat sonnes and daughters.

Eber was foure and thirtie years olde, & begat Peleg, and lyued therafter foure hundred and thirtie years, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Peleg was thirtie years olde, and begat Regu, and lyued therafter two hundred and nyene years, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Regu was two and thirtie years olde, and begat Serug, and lyued therafter two hundred and seven years, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug was thirtie years olde, and begat Nahor, and lyued therafter two hundred years, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Nahor was nyene and twente years olde, and begat Terah, and lyued therafter an hundred and nyentene years, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Terah was seuentie years olde, and begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

These are the generacions of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot, but Haran dyed before Terah his father in y^e londe where he was borne, at Vⁱ in Chaldea.

Then Abram and Nahor toke them wyues. Abrahams wyfe was called Sarai, & Nahors wyfe Milca the daughter of Haran, which was father of Milca and Yisca. But Sarai was baren, and had no childe.

Then toke Terah Abrahams sonne, & Lot his sonne Harans sonne, & Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sonne Abrahams wyfe, & caried them with him from Vⁱ in Chaldea, to go in to the lande of Canaan. And they came to Haran, & dwelt there. And Terah was two hundred & syue years olde, and dyed in Haran.

The XII. Chapter.

When y^e LORDE sayde vnto Abram: Get thee out of thy countre, and from thy kynred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a londe which I wil shew the. And I wil make of the a mightie people, and wyll blesse the, and make the a greete name, yee thou shalt be a very blessing. I wil blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the: and in the shal all the generacions of the earth be blessed.

Then wente Abram out, as the LORDE commaunded him, and Lot wente with him. Syue & seuentie years olde was Abrahā, whan he wente out of Haran. So Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, and Lot his brothers sonne, & all their goodes which they had gotten, and sonles which they begat in Harā, and departed to go in to y^e londe of Canaan. And whē they were come in to the same londe, he wente thorow, tyll he came vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the Okenroue of More: for y^e Cananites dwelt in y^e lode at y^e same tyme.

Then the LORDE appeared vnto Abram,

Gen. 12. 2 & sayde: This lande wil I geue vnto y fide. And there he buylded an altare vnto y LORDE, which appeared vnto him. The biake he vp fro thece, vnto a mountayne y laye on y east syde of the cite of Bethel, & pitched his tent: so y he had Bethel on the west side, and Ay on y east syde: & there buylded he an altare also vnto the LORDE, & called vpon the name of the LORDE. Afterwarde departed Abram farther, & toke his iourney southwarde. But there came a derth in the lande.

Gen. 20. 1 Then wente Abram downe in to Egipte to kepe himselfe there as a straunger, for the derth was sore in the lande. And whan he was come nye for to entre in to Egipte, he sayde vnto Sarai his wife: Beholde, I knowe y thou art a fayre woman to loke vpon. Now whan the Egiptians se the, they wil saye: She is his wife, and so shal they slaye me, and saue the alyne. Therefore (I pray y) saye thou art my sister, that I maye fare the better by reason of the, and that my soule maye lyue for thy sake.

Now whan he came in to Egipte, y Egiptians saue y woman, y she was very fair: & Pharaos prynces saue her also, & prayd her before him. Then was she brought in to Pharaos house, and Abram was well intreated for his sake: and he had shepe, oxen, and he Asses, seruantes, maydes, she Asses and Camels.

24. 43. 1 But y LORDE plagued Pharaos & his house w greute plagues, because of Sarai Abraams wife. Then Pharaos called Abra vnto him, and sayde: Why hast thou dealt thus w me? Wherfore toldest thou not me at the first, y she was thy wife? Why saydest thou then, that she was y sister? Wherfore I toke her to my wife. And now lo, there is y wife, take her, and go thy waye. He gaue his officers also a charge ouer him, to conuey him out, and his wife, and all that he had.

The XIII. Chapter.

Gen. 12. 2 1 So Abram departed out of Egipte, w his wife, & with all y he had, & Lot w him also, toward y south. Abram was very rich in catell, siluer & golde. And he wente on forth from the south vnto Bethel, vnto the place where his tent was at y first, betwene Bethel and Ay: euen vnto y place where he had made the altare before, & there he called vpon the name of the LORDE. Lot also which wente with him, had shepe, greute catell & tentes: so y the lande was not able to receaue them, that they might dwell together: for the substance of their riches was so greute, that they coude not dwell together. And there fell a strife betwene the herdmen of Abraams catell, and the herdmen of Lots catell. The Cananites also and the Phereistes dwelt at that tyme in the lande.

Then sayde Abram vnto Lot: Let there be no strife betwene me and the, and betwene my herdmen and thine, for we are brethre. Is not all the whole lande open before the? Departte fro me, I praye the. If thou wilt go to the left hande, I wil take the right: Or if thou wilt go to the right hande, I wil take the left. Then Lot lift vp his eyes, and behelde all the countre rounde aboute Jordā, that it was a plenteous countre of water. For before the LORDE destroyed Sodoma and Gomora, it was rounde aboute Jear, euen as the pleasaunt garden of the LORDE, and as the lande of Egipte.

Then Lot chose all the coastes of Jordā, and toke his iourney toward y East. And so the one brother departed from the other. Abram dwelt in the lande of Canaan, and Lot in the cities of the same coastes, and pitched his tent toward Sodome. But y men of Sodome were wicked, and synned exceedingly agaynst the LORDE.

Now whan Lot was departed from Abram, the LORDE saide vnto Abram: Lift vp thine eyes, and loke from the place where thou dwellest, northwarde, southwarde, eastwarde, and westwarde: for all the lande that thou seist, wyll I geue vnto the and to thy side for euer, and wyll make thy side as the dust of the earth: so that yf a man can nombre the dust of the earth, he shall nombre thy sede also. Arise, and go thorow the lande, in the length and bredth, for I wyll geue it vnto the.

So Abram remoued his tent, and wente and dwelt in y Okegrone of Mamre, which is in Ebron, and buylded there an altare vnto the LORDE.

The XIII. Chapter. And it chaunced in the tyme of Amraphel the kynge of Synear, Arioch

the kynge of Ellasar, Reboilaomer the kynge of Elam, & Thydeale the kynge of y heithen, That they made warre w Vera y kynge of Sodome, and w Birsa the kynge of Gomora, & with Sineab the kynge of Adama, & with Seimeaber the kynge of Zeboim, and with the kynge of Bela, which is called Zoar. These came all together in to the brode valley, where now the salt see is: for twolue yeares were they subiectes vnto kynge Reboilaomer, & in the thirtenth yeare they fell from him. Therfore in the fourtenth yeare came Reboilaomer, and the kynges y were with him, & smote the Gaiantes in Astaroth Barnaim, & Susim at Ham, & Emim in the felde of Ariathaim, and y hoities in their owne mount Seir vnto the playne of Pharan, which bordieth vps the wilbernes. And then they turned, & came to the well of iudgment (which is Cades) & smote all the countre of the Amalechites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazazon Thamar.

Then wente out the kynges of Sodome, & the kynge of Gomora, & the kynge of Adama, and the kynge of Zeboim, and the kynge of Bela (called Zoar) & prepared themselves to fyghe in the brode valley w Reboilaomer the kynge of Elam, & with Thydeale y kynge of the heithen, & with Amraphel y kynge of Synear, & with Arioch the kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges w fyue. And y brode valley had many synne pyttes. But the kynge of Sodoma and Gomora were put to flight, & fell there, & the residue fled vnto y mountaynes. Then toke they all the goodes at Sodoma and Gomora, & all their vytalles, & wente their waye. They toke Lot also Abraams brothers sonne, & his goodes (for he dwelt at Sodome) and departed.

Then came onethat had escaped, and tolde Abram the Aleant, which dwelt in the Okegrone of Mamre the Amoryte, which was the brother of Escol & Aner: for these were confederate with Abram.

Now whan Abram herde y his brother was taken, he harnessed his bonde seruantes borne in his owne house, the hundred & eightene, & folowed after them vntill Dan, & denyded the, & fell vps them by night w his seruantes, and smote the, and chased them awaye vnto Hoba, which lieth on y left hande of the cite of Damascos, and broughte a praye all the goodes, and also his brother Lot, and his goodes, y women also and the peepie. And as he came agayne from the slaughter of Reboilaomer & of the kynges that were with him, the kynge of Sodome wente to mete him in to the playne felde, which is called kynges dale.

But Melchisedech the kynge of Salem brought forth bred and wyne. And he beynge the priest of the most hye God, blessed him and sayde: Blessed be thou Abram vnto the most hye God possessor of heauen and earth. And praysed be God the hyest, which hath deliuered thine enemies in to thy handes. And Abram gaue him tythes of all.

Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abram: Geue me the soules, and take y goodes vnto thy self. But Abram sayde vnto the kynge of Sodome: I lift vp my hande vnto the LORDE the most hye God, possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyll not take of all that is thine, so moch as a threde or a shue lacher, lest thou shuldest saye: I haue made Abram ryche: Saue onely that which the yongemen haue spent, and the men Aner Escol and Mamre, that wente with me, let them take their parte.

The XV. Chapter.

It happened after these actes, y the woide of y LORDE came vnto Abram in a vysion, and sayde: Feare not Abram, I am thy shyld and thy excedinge greates rewarde. But Abram sayde: LORDE LORDE, what wilt thou geue me? I go childles, and the seruante of my house (this Eleasar of Damascos) hath a sonne. And Abram sayde morouer: Beholde, vnto me hast thou geuen no fede: and lo, the sonne of my house shal be myne heire. And beholde, the woide of the LORDE spake vnto him, and sai de: he shal not be thine heire, but one that shal come out of thine owne body, he shal be thine heire. And he bad him go forth, and sayde: Loke vp vnto heauen, and tell y starrs: Canst thou nombre them? And he sayde vnto him: Euen so shal thy sede be.

Abram beleued the LORDE, and y was counted vnto him for righteousnes. And he sayde vnto him: I am y LORDE, & y broughte the from y out of Chaldea, to geue y this lande to possesse it. But Abram sayde: LORDE LORDE, wherby shall I knowe, that I shall possesse it? And he sayde vnto him: Take a cow of thre yeare olde, and a she goate of thre yeare olde, and a ramme of thre yeare olde, and a turtill done, and a yonge pigeon. And he toke all these, and denyded them in the myddes, and layde the one parte ouer agaynst the other, but the soules denyded he not. And the soules fell vps the flesh, but Abram drewe them awaye.

Now whan the Sonne begonne to go

downe, there fell an hevy slepe vps Abiam. And lo, feare and greate darcknes fell vpon him. And he sayde vnto Abiam: knowe this of a suretye, that thy seide shalbe a strainger, in a londe that is not theurs. And they shal make bonde men of them, and intreate them euell foure hundred yeares. But the people whos they shal serue, wyl I iudge. Afterwarde shall they go forth with greate substaunce: and thou shalt departe vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buried in a good age. And after the fourth generacion they shall come hither agayne, for the wickednes of the Amorites is not yet full.

So whan the Sonne was downe, and it was wared darcke: Beholde, there smoked a fornaice, and a fyre biande wente betwene the partes. The same daye made the LORDE a couenaunt with Abiam, and sayde: Vnto thy seide wyl I geue this lode, from the water of Egipte, vnto the greate water Euphrates: the Kenytes, the Kenizites, the Admonites, the Hethtites, the Pherezites, the Giamrites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Gerzites, and the Jebusites.

The XVI. Chapter.

Sarai Abiams wife bare him no childen: but she had an handmayde an Egiptian, whose name was Agar, and sayde vnto Abiam: Beholde, the LORDE hath closed me, that I can not beare. So in (I praye the) vnto my mayde: peradventure I shalbe multiplied by her, more then by myself. And Abiam hearkened vnto the voyce of Sarai. Than Sarai Abiams wife toke Agar hir mayde the Egiptian after they had dwelt ten yeare in the londe of Canaan, and gaue her vnto hir husbände Abiam, to be his wife. And he wente in vnto Agar, and she conceived. Now whan she sawe she had conceived, she despyed hir mastresse.

B Then sayde Sarai vnto Abiam: I must suffre wronge for thy sake. I layde my mayde by the: but now because she seych, that she hath conceived, I must be despyed in his sight: the LORDE be iudge betwene me and the. And Abiam sayde vnto Sarai: Beholde, thy mayde is vnder thine auenture, do with her, as it pleasech the.

Now whan Sarai deale hardly w her, she fled from her. But the angell of the LORDE founde her besyde a well of water in the wilderness (enen by the well in the waye to Sur) and sayde vnto her: Agar Sarais maide, whence comest thou? and whither wylt thou go? She sayde: I fle from my mastresse Sarai. And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Returne to thy mastresse agayne, and submitte thyself vnder hir hande.

And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Beholde, I wil so encrease thy seide, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the angell of the LORDE sayde further vnto her: Beholde, thou art with childe, and shalt bringe forth a sonne, and shalt call his name Ismael, because the LORDE hath herde thy trouble. He shal be a wyldeman. His hande agaynst every man, and every mans hande agaynst him: and he shal dwell ouer agaynst all his brethren.

And she called the name of the LORDE that spake vnto her: Thou art the God that seist me. For she sayde: Of a suretye I haue sene the back partes of him that saue me. Therefore called she the well: The well of the liuinge that saue me. Which (well) is betwene Cades and Bared.

And Agar bare Abiam a sonne, and Abiam called his sonnes name which Agar bare him, Ismael. And Abiam was foure score yeare olde and sire, whan Agar bare him Ismael.

The XVII. Chapter.

Now whan Abiam was nyentye yeare olde and nyene, the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde vnto him: I am the allmyghtie God, walke before me, and be vncorrupte. And I wyl make my couenaunt betwene me and the, and wyl multiplye the exceedingly. Then fell Abiam vpon his face.

And God talked furthur with him, and sayde: Beholde, It is I, and haue my couenaunt with the, and thou shalt be a father of many people. Therefore shalt thou nomore be called Abiam, but thy name shal be Abraham: for I haue made the a father of many nations, and I wil multiplye the exceedingly, and wil make people of thee. Moreover I wil make my couenaunt betwene me and the,

and thy seide after the thorow out their posterities, that it maye be an everlastinge couenaunt, so that I wyl be the God of the, and of thy seide after the. And vnto the and to thy seide after the, wyl I geue the lande, wherein thou art a strainger: enen all the lande of Canaan for an everlastinge possession, and will be their God.

B And God sayde moreover vnto Abraham: Kepe my couenaunt then, thou and thy seide after the. This is my couenaunt which ye shal kepe betwene me and you, and thy seide after the thorow out their posterities. Every manchild that is amonge you, shalbe circumcyded: and ye shall circumcyde the foreskinne of yor flesh. This same shalbe a token of the couenaunt betwene me and you. Every manchild whan it is eight dayes olde, shalbe circycyded thorow out youre posterities: In like maner all household folkes borne at home, or bought, or eny other also that is a strainger and not of thy seide. Thus shall my couenaunt be in youre flesh for an everlastinge couenaunt. And yf there shalbe any manchild vncircumcided in the foreskinne of his flesh, his soule shalbe roted out from his people, because he hath broken my couenaunt.

C And God sayde vnto Abraham: Sarai thy wyfe shall nomore be called Sarai, but Sara shal be hir name: for I wyl blesse her, and geue the a sonne of her. I wyl blesse her, and people shall come of her, yee and kynnes of many people. Then fell Abraham vps his face, and laughed, and sayde in his heart: Shal a childe be borne vnto me that am an hundred yeare olde? And shall Sara be nyentye yeare olde, beare? And Abraham sayde vnto God: O that Israel might lyue in thy sight. Then sayde God: See even Sara thy wyfe shall beare the a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Isaac: for with him wil I make my everlastinge couenaunt, and with his seide after him. And as concernyng Ismael also, I haue herde thy request: Beholde, I haue blessed him, and will increase him, and multiplye him exceedingly. Twelue prynces shal be beget, and I wyl make a greates nacion of him.

D But my couenaunt wyl I make w Isaac, whom Sara shal beare vnto the, enen this tyme twelue moneth. And he left of talkyng with him, and God wente vp from Abraham. Than toke Abraham his sonne Ismael, and all the seruantes borne in his house, and all that were bought, (as many as were men children in his house,) and circumcy-ded the foreskinne of their flesh, enen the same daye, as God had sayde vnto him. And Abraham was nyentye yeare olde and nyne, whan he cut of the foreskinne of his flesh. As for Ismael, he was thirtene yeare olde, whan the foreskinne of his flesh was circumcyded. Enen vpon one daye were they all circumcyded: Abraham, and Ismael his sonne, and all the men in his house, (whether they were borne at home, or bought, or eny other strainger:) they were all circumcyded with him.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him in the Okegrope of Mamre, as he sat in his tent doore in the heate of y daie. And as he lift vp his eyes, and looked; beholde, there stode thre men ouer agaynst him. And whan he sawe them, he ranne to meete them from his tent doore, and bowed him self downe vpon the grounde, and sayde: LORDE, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy sight, go not by y seruante. There shalbe broughte you a litle water, and ye shall wash yor feet, and rest youre selues vnder the tre. And I wyl set you a moisel of bred, to comforte youre hertes withall, and then shall ye go youre wayes, for therfore are ye come to youre seruante. They sayde: do euen so as thou hast spoken.

Abraham wente a pace in to the tent to Sara, and sayde: Make haist, and mengle thre peckes of fyne meele, kneede it, and bake cakes. And he ranne to the bestes, and fet a calf that was tender and good, and gaue it vnto a yonge man, which made it ready at once. And he toke butter and mylke and of the calf that he had prepared, and set it before the, stode him self by chem vnder the tre, and they ate. Then saide they vnto him: where is Sara thy wyfe? He answered: within in y tent. Then sayde he: aboute this tyme twelue moneth, yf I lyue, I wyl come to the agayne, and Sara thy wyfe shal haue a sonne. And

As soon as the rule of yue. Sara herde that out of the tent dore, which was behynde his backe. And Abraham and Sara were both olde, & well stryken in age: so that it wente nomore with Sara after y manner of women: therfore laughed she with in hir self, and sayde: Now that I am olde & my lord olde also, shal I yet gene my self to lust?

Then sayde y LORDE vnto Abraham: Wherfore doth Sara laugh, and saye: Is this true in dede, that I shal beare, and yet am olde? Shulde my soch thinge be to harde for the LORDE? Aboute this tyme (yf I lyue) I wil come to the agayne, & Sara shal haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, and sayde: I laughed not, for she was afayed. But he sayde: It is not so, thou dydest laugh. Then the men stode vp from thence, and turned them towarde Sodome: and Abraham wente with them, to brynge them on their waye.

Then sayde the LORDE: How can I hyde f. om Abraham, y thinge that I wil do? seynge he shal be a greace and mightie people, and all y people vpo earth shal be blessed in him: for I knewe him that he wil co maunde his children and his householde after him, to kepe the waye of y LORDE, and to do after righte and conscience, that the LORDE maye bringe vpo Abraham what he hath promised him. And the LORDE sayde: There is a crye at Sodome and Gomorra, which is greace, & their synnes are exceedinge greuous: therfore wil I go downe & se, whether they haue done all together, a cordinge to that crye, which is come before me, or not, that I maye knowe. And the men turned their face, and were towarde Sodome. But Abraham stode still before y LORDE, and stepe vnto him, and sayde:

Wilt thou then destroye the righteous with the vngodly? Peradventure there maye be fiftie righteous within y cite: wilt thou destroye these, and not spare the place, for fiftie righteous sake that are therein? That be sarre fro the, y thou shuldest do this, and to slaye the righteous with the vngodly, and that the righteous shulde be as the vngodly. That be sarre from the. Shulde not the iudge of all the worlde do a cordinge to righte? And the LORDE sayde: Yf I fynde fiftie righteous at Sodome in the cite, I wil spare all the place for their sakes.

Abraham answered, and sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the LORDE, howbeit I am but dust and ashes. Peradventure there maye be fyue less then fiftie righteous therein: Wilt thou then destroye the whole cite because of those fyue? He sayde: yf I fynde fyue and fourtie therein, I will not destroye them.

And he proceeded further to speake vnto him, and sayde: Peradventure there might be fourtie founde therein. And he sayde: I wil do no thinge vnto them for those fourtyes sake. Abraham sayde: O let not my LORDE be angrie, that I speake yet more. Peradventure there might be thirtie founde therein. And he sayde: Yf I fynde thirtie therein, I will do no thinge vnto them. And he sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto my LORDE.

Peradventure there might be tene founde therein. He answered: I will not destroye them for those tentyes sake. And sayde: O let not my LORDE be angrie, that I speake yet once more. Peradventure there might be ten founde therein. He saide: I wil not destroye them for those ten sake.

And the LORDE wente his waye, when he had left talkynge with Abraham. And Abraham returned vnto his place.

The XIX. Chapter.

In the euynge came the two angels vnto Sodome. And Lot sat vnder the gate of the cite. And when he sawe them, he rose vp for to mete them, and bowed him self downe to the grounde vpon his face, & sayde: Se lordes, come in I praye you into youre seruantes house, and tarye all night: let youre fete be washsen, so maye ye ryse tomorrow by tymes, and go youre waye. Therheles they sayde: Lay, but we will hyde in the stretes all night. Then compelled he them fore: and they turned in vnto him, and came into his house. And he made them a feast, and baked swete cakes, and they ate.

But before they wente to rest, the men of the cite of Sodome came and compassed the house rounde aboute, yonge and olde, all the people from all quarters, and called Lot, and sayde vnto him: Where are the men that came vnto the to night? Bynge them out here vnto vs, that we maye knowe them.

And Lot wente out at the dore vnto the, and shut the dore after him, and sayde: O brethren, do not so wickedly. Beholde, I haue two daughters, which yet haue knowe no man: them wil I brynge out vnto you, do with them as it listeth you. Onely do no thinge vnto these men of God, fortherfore are they come vnder the shadowe of my rose. But they sayde: Come thou hither. Then sayde they: Camest not thou onely herin as a straunger, and wilt thou now be a iudge? Wel, we will deale worse with the the with them.

And they pressed sore vpon y man Lot. And when they ranne to, and wolde haue broken vp the dore, the men put out their hondes, and pulled Lot vnto them in to the house, and shut to the dore. And the men at y dore of the house were smytte with blyndnesse both small and greace, so that they coulde not fynde the dore.

And y men saide vnto Lot: Hast thou yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters? Who so ever belongeth vnto the in the cite, brynge him out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is greace before the LORDE, which hath sent vs to destroye them. Then wente Lot forth, and spake to his sonnes in lawe, which shulde haue married his daughters, and sayde: O stonde vp, and get you out of this place, for the LORDE wil destroye this cite. Therheles they toke it but for a sporte.

Now when the morninge arose, the angels caused Lot to speke hun, and sayde: Stonde vp, take thy wife & thy two daughters which are at hande, that thou also persthe not in the synne of this cite. But why he prolonged the tyme, the men caught him and his wife, and his two daughters by the hande (because the LORDE was mercifull vnto him,) and brought him forth, & set him withont the cite.

And when they had brought him out, they sayde: Save thy soule, and loke not behynde the, nether stonde thou in all this countre: Save thy self vpon the mountayne, that thou perishe not. Then sayde Lot vnto the: Oh no my LORDE, beholde, in as moche as thy seruante hath founde grace in thy sight, now make y mercy greace, which thou hast shewed vnto me, in that thou sauest my soule alyne. I can not saue my self vpon the mountayne. There might some myffortune fall vpon me, that I shulde dye. Beholde, he is a cite by, that I maye flye vnto, and it is a litle one: let me saue myself there in. Is it not a litle one, that my soule maye lyne?

Then sayde he vnto him: Beholde, I haue loved vpon the in this poynte also, that I will not overthrowe the cite, wherof thou hast spoken. Hast the, and saue thy self there: for I can do no thinge tyll then be comethither. Therfore is the cite called Zoar. And the Sonne was vp vpon the earth, when Lot came in to Zoar.

Then the LORDE caused brymstone and fyre to rayne downe from the LORDE out of heauen vpon Sodoma and Gomorra, and overthrew those cities, the whole region, and all that dwelt in the cities, and that that grew vpon the earth. And his wife loked behynde her, and was turned into a pillar of salt.

Abraham rose vp early in the morninge, and gat him vnto the place, where he had stonde before the LORDE, and turned his face towarde Sodoma and Gomorra, and all y londe of that countre, and loked. And beholde, there rose vp a smoke from y countre, as it had bene y smoke of a somace. For when God destroyed y cities of the region, he thought vpon Abraham, and conueyed Lot out of the cities which he overthrew, wherin Lot dwelt.

And Lot departed out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountaynes with both his daughters (for he was afayed to tary at Zoar) and so remayned he in a cave with both his daughters.

Then sayde y elder vnto the yonger: Our father is olde, and there is not a man more vpon earth, that can come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come therefore, let vs geue our father wyne to drynke, and lye with him, that we maye saue seide of our father. So they gaue their father wyne to drynke that same night. And the elder daughter wente in, and laye with hir father: and he perceaued it not, neither when she laye downe, ner when she rose vp.

On the morow the elder sayde vnto the yonger: Beholde, yesternight laye I with my father: let vs geue him wyne to drynke this night also: that thou mayest go in and lye with him, that we maye saue seide of our father. So they gaue their father wyne to drynke that might also: And the yonger arose like wyse, and laye with him: & he perceived it not, nether when she laye downe, nor when she rose vp.

Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, of whom come y Moabytes vnto this daye. And y yonger bare a sonne also, and called him the sonne Ammi, of whom come the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

The XX. Chapter.

AS for Abraham, he departed thence, into the south countre, and dwelt betwixte Cades and Sur, and was a straunger at Gerar, and sayde of Sara his wyfe: She is my sister. Then Abimelech the kinge of Gerar sent for her, and caused her be fet awaye.

But God came to Abimelech by night in a dreame, & sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art but a deed man, for the womans sake which thou hast taken, for she is a mans wyfe. Neuertheles Abimelech had not yet touched her, and sayde: LORDE, wilt thou sleie a righteous people? Sayde not he vnto me: she is my sister? Yee and sayde not she her self also: he is my brother? With a pure hert & with innocent handes hane I done this.

And God sayde vnto him in a dreame: I knowe that thou dydest it w a pure hert, and therefore I kepe the, that thou shuldest not synne agaynst me, nether hane I suffred the to touch her. Now therfore deliuer her to the man his wyfe ageyne, for he is a prophet: and let him pray for y, and thou shalt lyue. But and yf thou deliuer her not ageyne, be sure, that thou shalt dye the death, and all that is thine.

Then Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the mornyng, and called all his seruautes, and tolde all these thinges in their eares, and the men were sore afayed, and Abimelech called Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs? And what hane I offended y, that thou shuldest brynge on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne? Thou hast not dealt with vs, as a man shulde deale. And Abimelech saide morouer vnto Abraham: What sawest thou, y thou hast done this thinge?

Abraham sayde: I thought: Peraduenture there is no feare of God in this place, & they shall sleie me for my wifes sake, And of a trouth she is my sister, for she is my fathers daughter, but not my mothers daughter, and is become my wyfe. So whan God charged me to wadie out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: Shew this kyndnes vpon me, that, where soeuer we come, thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, seruautes and maydens, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and deliuered him Sara his wyfe agayne, and sayde: Beholde, my londe stondesth open before the, dwell where it liketh the. And vnto Sara he sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande syluer peniole, he shalbe vnto the a couerynge of the eyes, for all that are with the, and euery where, and a sure excuse.

As for Abraham, he prayed vnto God: Then God healed Abimelech, and his wyfe, and his maydens, so that they bare children. For afore the LORDE had closed all the matrices of Abimelechs house, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

The XXI. Chapter.

The LORDE also visited Sara, according as he had promysed: & dealt with her, even as he had sayde. And Sara was with childe, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, even in the tyme appointed, like as God had spoken vnto him afore. And Abraham called his sonne which was borne vnto him (whos Sara bare him) Isaac, and circumcised him the eight daye, like as God commanded him. An hundred years olde was Abraham, whan his sonne Isaac was borne vnto him.

And Sara sayde: God hath prepared a ioye for me, for who soeuer heareth of it, wyll reioyse with me. She sayde morouer: Who wolde haue saide vnto Abraham, that Sara shulde geue children sucke, and beare him a sonne in his olde age? And the childe grew, and was weened. And Abraham made a greate feast, in y daye whan Isaac was weened.

And Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egipcian (whom she had borne vnto Abraham) that he was a mocker, and sayde vnto Abraham: Cast out this bonde mayden and hir sonne, for this bonde maydens sonne shall not be heyre w my sonne Isaac. This worde displeased Abraham sore, because of his sonne.

Neuertheles God sayde vnto him: let it not displease the because of the childe and the hand mayde: What soeuer Sara hath sayde vnto the, folowe it, for in Isaac shall the seede be called vnto the. As for the bonde maydens sonne, I wyll make a people of him also, because he is of thy seede.

Then Abraham rose vp early in the mornyng, and toke bred and a botell with water, and put it vpon Agars shulders, and gaue her the childe, and sent her awaye. Then departed she, and wandred out of the waye in y wilderness beside Bersheba. Now whan the water in the botell was out, she layed the childe vnder a bush, and wente, and sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, a bowe shot of. For she sayde: I can not se the childe dye. And she sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, and lifte vp hir voyce, and wepte.

Then God herde the voyce of the childe, and the angell of God called vnto Agar out of heauen, and sayde vnto her: What ayleth the, Agar? Feare not, for God hath herde y voyce of the childe, where he lyeth. Arise and take the childe, and holde him by the hande, for I wyll make a greate people of him. And God opened hir eyes, that she sawe a well of water.

Then wente she and fylled y botell with water, and gaue y childe drynke. And God was with the childe, which grew vp, and dwelt in y wilderness, and became a conynge archer, and dwelt in y wilderness of Pharan, and his mother toke him a wyfe out of the londe of Egypite.

At the same tyme talked Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe capayne with Abraham, and sayde: God is with the in all that thou doest. Therefore sweare now vnto me by God, that thou wilt not hurt me, ner my children, ner my childers children: but that thou shalt shewe vnto me (and to the londe wher in thou art a straunger) the same kyndnesse that I haue done vnto the.

Then sayde Abraham: I wyll sweare. And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for the well of water, which Abimelechs seruautes had taken awaye by violence. Then answered Abimelech: I knewe not who dyd it, nether dydest thou tell me, and I haue not herde of it but this daye.

Then toke Abraham shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech, and they both made a bonde together. And Abraham see seven lambes by them selues. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Abraham: What meane those seven lambes, which thou hast set by them selues? He answered: seven lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they maye be wytnes vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Therefore is the place called Bersheba, because they sware there both together. And so they made the bonde at Bersheba.

Then rose Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe capayne, and departed agayne in to the londe of y philistynes. And Abraham planted trees at Bersheba, and called vpon the name of the LORDE y everlastinge God, and was a straunger in y londe of the philistynes a longe season.

The XXII. Chapter.

After these actes God tempted Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Abraham, And he answered: I am here. And he sayde: Take y sonne, this onely sonne of thine, ene Isaac whom thou lovest, and go thy waye in to the londe of Moia, & offre him there for a burnt offeringe, vpon a mountayne that I shal shewe the. Then Abraham stode vp by tymes in the mornyng, and sabled his Ass, and toke with him two yongemen, and his sonne Isaac, and cloue woodd for the burnt offeringe, gat him vp, and wente on vnto the place, wherof the LORDE had sayde vnto him.

Vpon the thirde daye Abraham lift vp his eyes, and sawe the place a farre of, and sayde vnto his yonge men: Tary ye here with the Asses for me and the childe, we wyll go yonder: and whan we haue worshipped, we wyll come to you againe. And Abraham toke the woodd to the burnt offeringe, and layed it vpon Isaac his sonne. As for him self, he toke the fyre and a knyfe in his hande, and wente on both together.

Then sayde Isaac vnto his father Abraham: My father. Abraham answered: here I am, my sonne. And he sayde: lo, here is fyre and woodd, but where is the shepe for the burnt offeringe? Abraham answered: My sonne, God shall prouyde him a shepe for the burnt offeringe. And they wente both together.

And whan they came to the place which

God shewed him, Abraham buylded there an altare, and layed the wood vpon it, and bande his sonne Isaac, layed him on the altare, aboue vpon the wood, and stretched out his hande, and toke the knyfe, to haue slayne his sonne.

C Then the angell of the LORDE called from heauen vnto him, and sayde: Abraham Abraham. He answered: here am I. He sayde: Laye not thy handes vpon the childe, & do nothinge vnto him: for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thine onely sonne for my sake. Then Abraham lift vp his eyes, and sawe behynde him a ramme, holde fast by the homes in the brieres, and wente, and toke the ramme, and offered him for a bient sacrifice, in steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the place. The LORDE shall prouyde. Therfore it is a common sayenge yet this daye: Vpon the mountayne shal the LORDE prouyde.

And the angell of the LORDE cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: I haue sworn by myne owne self (sayeth the LORDE) that for so much as thou hast done this, and hast not spared thine onely sonne, I wyll prospere and multiplye thy seede as the starres of heauen, and as the sonde vpon the see shore. And thy seede shall possesse the gates of his enemies: and in thy seede shal all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast hearkened vnto my voyce.

D So Abraham turned ageyne to the yonge men, and they gat vp, and wente together vnto Bersaba, and dwelt there.

After these actes it fortuned, that it was tolde Abraham: Beholde, Milca hath borne childien also vnto thy brother Lahor: namely, *hus & eldest, and *Bus his brother, and Kemnel, of whom came the Syrians: and Tesed, and Haso, and Pildas, and Jedlaph and Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. These eight dyd Milca beare vnto Lahor: Abrahams brother. And his concubine called Rehuma, bare also: namely, Theba, Sahan, Thahas, and Maacha.

The XXIII. Chapter.

S Ara was an hundred and sent and twentye yeare olde: so longe lyued she, and dyed in the head cite which is called Hebron, in the lande of Canaan. Then wente Abraham, to mourne and wepe for her. Afterwarde he stode vp from his coarfe, and talked with the Hethites, & sayde: I am a strainger and an indweller amonge you, geue me a possessor to bury in with you, that I maye bury my coarfe by me.

Then the Hethites answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: O heare lord, thou art a prynce of God amonge vs: bury thy dead in the best of oure sepulchres, there shall none of vs forbyd &, that thou shouldest not bury thy deed in his sepulchre. Then Abraham stode vp, and thanked the people of & londe: namely the Hethites.

And he talked with them, and sayde: If it be youre wyll that I bury my coarfe by me, heare me the, & speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar, that he maye geue me the dubble cane, which he hath in & ende of his felde. For a reasonable money let him geue it me, for a possession to burye in amonge you. For Ephron dwelt amonge the Hethites.

Then answered Ephron the Hethite vnto Abraham, that the Hethites might heare, before all that wente out and in at the gates of his cite, and sayde: To my lord, but heare me: As for the felde, and the cane also that is therein, I geue it the: and in the sight of my people I geue it the, to burye thy dead in.

Then Abraham thanked the people of the londe, and talked with Ephron, that the people of the londe might heare, and sayde: Heare me then, Because of me the money that I geue the for the felde, and so wyll I burye my deed there.

Ephron answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Heare me my lord: The felde is worth foure hundred Sycles of syluer: but what is that betwixte me and the? Burye thy deed. Abraham hearkened vnto Ephron, and weyed him the money which he had sayde, that the Hethites might heare: namely foure hundred syluer cycles of currant money amonge marchantes.

Thus Ephrons felde (where in the dubble cane is) which lyeth ouer before Mamre, even the felde and the cane, was made sure for Abrahams owne good, with all the trees of the felde also rounde aboute, in the sight of the Hethites, and of all that go out and in at the gates of his cite. Then Abraham buried Sara his wife in the dubble cane of the felde, that lyeth ouer before Mamre (that is, Hebron) in the londe of Canaan. So the felde and the cane therein was made sure of the Hethites vnto Abraham, for a possessor to bury in.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Abraham was olde and well stricken in age, and the LORDE had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldest seruaunt of his house, which had the rule of all his goodes: Laye thine hande vnder my thye, that I maye make the sweare by & LORDE the God of heauen and earth, that thou take no wife vnto my sonne amonge & daughters of & Cananites, (amonge whom I dwell) but that thou go in to my countrey, and to myne owne kynred, and brynge my sonne Isaac a wife.

The seruaunt sayde: What and the woman wyll not folowe me in to this countrey? shal I then cary thy sonne agayne in to yonder londe, where thou camest out of? Abraham sayde vnto him: Beware of that, that thou brynge not my sonne thither agayne. The LORDE, the God of heauen, which toke me from my fathers house and from the londe of my kynred, and that talked with me, and swore also vnto me, and sayde: Vnto & side wyll I geue this londe: Euen he shall sende his angell before the, that thou maiest brynge my sonne a wife from thence. But yf the woman wyll not folowe the, thou art discharged of this oath: onely brynge not my sonne thither agayne. Then & seruaunt layed his hande vnder his master Abrahams thye, and swore the same vnto him.

B So the seruaunt toke ten Camels of the Camels of his master and departed, and had w him of all maner of goodes of his master, and gat him vp, and departed vnto Mesopotamia, to the cite of Nahor. Then let he the Camels lye downe without before the cite besyde a well of water in the euenynge, aboue the tyme that the women used to go forth, and to drawe water. And he sayde:

O LORDE, thou God of my master Abraham, mete me to daye, and shew mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stonde here besyde the well of water, & the mens daughters of this cite wyll come forth to drawe water: Now yf there come a damsell, to whom I saye: bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke, and yf she saye: drynke, and I wyll geue & Camels drynke also: That yf same be she, whom thou hast prouyded for thy seruaunt Isaac: & that I maye knowe by & same that thou hast shewed mercy vpon my master.

And or ever he had left of speakeynge, beholde, Rebecca the daughter of Bethuel (which was the sonne of Milca, that was the wyfe of Lahor: Abrahams brother) came forth, and bare a pytcher vpon hir shulder, and she was a very fayre damsell of face, and yet a virgin, and vntowene of any man: She wente downe to the well, and fylled hir pitcher, and came vp agayne. Then ranne the seruaunt to mete her, and sayde: Let me drynke a litle water out of & pitcher. And she sayde: drynke syr.

And haistely let she downe the pitcher in hir hande, and gaue him drynke. And whan she had geuen him drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe for thy Camels also, tyll they haue drynke ynough. And she made haist, and poured out hir pitcher in to the trough, and ranne agayne to the well to drawe, and drew for all his Camels. The man marueyled at her, and helde his tonge, tyll he knewe whether the LORDE had prospered his journey or not.

Now whan the Camels had all drynken, he toke a golde earynge of half a Syckle weight, and two braceletes for hir handes, weynge ten Syckles of golde, and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? tell me. Is there rowme for vs in thy fathers house to lodge in? She sayde vnto him: I am the doughter of Bethuel, the sonne of Milca, whom she bare vnto Lahor. And sayde morouer vnto him: We haue plenty of litter and prouender, and rowme ynough to lodge in.

D Then the man bowed himself, and thanked the LORDE, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE the God of my master Abraham, which hath not withdrawen his mercy and his trouth from my master, for the LORDE hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde all this in hir mothers house. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ranne to the man without by the well syde: and that came by the reason that he sawe the earynges, and the braceletes vpon his sisters handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, that she sayde: thus spake the man vnto me.

And whan he came to the man, beholde, he stode by the Camels at the well syde. And he sayde: Come in & thou blessed of the LORDE, wherfore stondest thou without? I haue blessed the house, and made rowme for & Camels. So he brought the man in to & house, and vnbled the Camels, and gaue them litter and prouender, and water to wash his feet, and the mens that were with him, and set meate before him.

Thenethes he sayde: I wil not eate, tyll I haue fyrst tolde myne carade. They answered: Tell on. He sayde: I am Abrahams sernaunt, and the LORDE hath prospered my master richely, so þ he is become greace: and he hath geuen him shepe and oxen, syluer and golde, seruantes and maidens, Camels and Asses: yee and Sara my masters wife hath borne my master a sonne in hir olde age: vnto him hath he geuen all that he hath.

And my master hath taken an ooth of me and saide: Thou shalt not take a wife for my sonne amonge the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose lande I dwell, but go & waye to my fathers house and to myne owne kynred, and there take a wyfe for my sonne. But I sayde vnto my master: What and the woman wyl not folowe me: Then sayde he vnto me: The LORDE (before whom I walke) shall sende his angell with the, and prosper thy iourney, that thou mayest take a wife for my sonne of myne owne kynred, and of my fathers house. And so whan thou comest to my kynred, yf they geue her not vnto þ, thou shalt be discharged of myne ooth.

So I came this daye vnto the well of water, and sayde: O LORDE thou God of my master Abraham, If thou hast prospered my iourney that I go: Beholde, I stonde here by the well of water: Now yf there come forth a virgin to draw water, and I saye vnto her: geue me a litle water to drinke out of thy pitcher, and she saye vnto me: Drynke thou, and I wyll drawe water for thy Camels also: that the same be the womā, which the LORDE hath prouyded for my masters sonne. Now or euer I had spoken out these wordes in my hert, beholde, Rebecca cometh forth with a pitcher vpon hir shulder, and goeth downe to the well, and draweth.

Then sayde I: geue me a drynke. And immediately she toke downe the pitcher fro hir shulder, and sayde: drynke, and I wyll geue thy Camels drynke also. So I drinke, and she gaue the Camels also to drynke. And I axed her, and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? She answered: I am þ doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Nahor, whom Milca bare vnto him. Then layed I the earringes vpon hir face, and the bracelettes vpon hir handes, and bowed myself, and thanked the LORDE, and praysed the God of my master Abraham, which had brought me þ right waye, to take my masters brothers daughters vnto his sonne.

If ye be they then that shew mercy and faithfulness vnto my master, tell me: If not, yet tell me, that I maye turne me to þ right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, and sayde: This is come of the LORDE, therefore can we saye nothinge agaynst the, neither euell ner good. There is Rebecca before the, take her, and go thy waye, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wife, as the LORDE hath sayde. When Abrahams seruante herde these wordes, he bowed himself vnto the LORDE flat vpon the earth, and toke forth Jewels of syluer and golde, and rayment, and gaue them vnto Rebecca. But vnto hir brethren and the mother, he gaue spyces. Then he ate and dronke, and the men also that were with him, and tarried there all night.

But in the mornynge he arose, and sayde: Let me departe vnto my master. Nevertheless hir brother and hir mother sayde: Let the damsell tary with vs at the leest tenn dayes, and then shall she go. Then sayde he vnto them: holde me not, for the LORDE hath prospered my iourney: let me go, that I maye departe vnto my master. Then sayde they: let vs call the damsell, and are her, what she sayeth thereto. And they called Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Wilt thou go with this man?

And she answered: Yee I wyll go with him. So they let Rebecca their syster go with hir noyse and Abrahams seruante, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art oure syster, growe into many thousande tymes thousandes, and thy sede possesse the gates of his enemies.

So Rebecca gat hir vp to hir damself, and satt them vpon the Camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruante toke Rebecca, and departed.

As for Isaac, he was commynge from the well of þ linyng & seynge, for he dwelt in the south countre, and was gone forth to his meditations in the felde aboute the euen tyde. And he lift vp his eyes, and sawe, that there were Camels commynge. And Rebecca lift vp hir eyes, and sawe Isaac. Then lighted she of the Camell, and sayde vnto þ seruante: What man is this, that cometh agaynst vs in the felde? The seruante sayde: The same is my master.

Then toke she hir cloke, and put it aboute her. And the seruante tolde Isaac all the earande that he had done. Then Isaac brought her in to his mother Saras tent, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wife, and he loued her. So Isaac was comforted ouer his mother.

Abraham toke another wife called Retura, which bare him Sumram & Jafsan, Medan & Midian, Jesbat and Saab. Jafsan begat Seba and Dedan. The children of Dedan were Assurim, Latasim, and Lemnim. The children of Midian were Ephra, Ephra, Shanoah, Abida and Eldaa. All these are the children of Retura. And Abraham gaue all his goodes vnto Isaac: As for the children that he had of the concubynes, he gaue them giftes, and (whyle he yet lyued) he sent the awaye from his sonne Isaac, eastwarde in to the east countre.

This is the age of Abraham which he lyued: euen an hundred and syue and seuentye yere, and fell sicke and dyed in a good age, whan he was olde, & had lyued ynough and was gathered vnto his people. And his sonnes Isaac and Ismael buried him in the dubble caue in the felde of Ephron the sonne of Zoar the Hethite, which lyeth ouer before Mamre, in the felde that Abraham bought of the Hethites. There was Abraham buried with Sara his wife. And after the death of Abraham God blessed his sonne Isaac. And he dwelt by the well of the linyng and seynge.

This is the generation of Ismael Abraham some, whom Agar Saras mayde the Egipcian bare vnto him. And these are the names of Ismaels children, of whom their kynredes are named. The eldest sonne of Ismael, Nebaioth, Cedar, Abdeel, Mibsan, Misma, Dama, Misa, Zadar, Thema, Jethur, Naphis and Kedma. These are the children of Ismael with their names in their courtres and cities: twolue londeprynces. And this is the age of Ismael, euen an hundred and seven and thirtie yere, and he fell sicke and dyed, and was gathered vnto his people. He dwelt from Hevila vnto Surwardes Egypre, as men go to the Assirians. And he dyed in the presence of all his brethren.

This is the generation of Isaac the sonne of Abraham. Abraham begat Isaac. Isaac was fourety yere olde, whan he toke to wyfe Rebecca the doughter of Bethuel þ Syrian of Mesopotamia, & syster of Laban the Syrian.

Isaac besought the LORDE for his wyfe: (because she was baren) and the LORDE was intreated, and Rebecca his wyfe conceived. And the children stroue together in her wombe. Then sayde she: If it shulde go so with me, why am I then with childe? And she wente for to axe the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde vnto her: Two manner of folke are in thy wombe, and two manner of people shall be deuyled out of thy body, and the one nacion shall overcome the other, and the greater shall serue the lesse.

Now whan the tyme came that she shulde be deliuered, beholde, there were twyns in hir wombe. The first that came forth, was reed, all rough as an hybe, and they called him Esau. Anone thereafter came his brother forth, which helde the heele of Esau with his hande, and they called him Jacob. This score yere, olde was Isaac, whan they were borne. And whan the boies were growne vp, Esau became an hunter, & an husbunde man. As for Jacob, he was a symple man, and dwelt in the tentes. And Isaac loued Esau, because he ate of his venison. But Rebecca loued Jacob.

And Jacob bight a meace of meate. Then came Esau from the felde, and was weary, and sayde vnto Jacob: Let me proue of þ reed meace of meate, for I am fainte (therefore is he called Edom.) But Jacob sayde: Sell me this daye thy byrthright. Esau answered: Lo, I must dye neuerthelesse, what good then shall my byrthright do me? Jacob sayde: Then sweare vnto me euen this same daye. And he swore vnto him, and so he solde his byrthright vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gaue him bred and that meace of ryse. And he ate and dronke, and stode vp, and wente his waye. And so Esau regarded not his byrthright.

Here came a berth in the londe, passinge the other that was in Abrahams tyme. And Isaac wente to Gerar, vnto Abimelech the kynge of þ philistynes. Then the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde: Go not downe in to Egypre, but tary in the lande that I shall saye vnto the. Be thou a straüger in this lande, and I wil be with the and blesse the. For vnto the and thy sede wyll I geue all this londe, and wyll perfourme myne ooth that I sware to thy father Abraham. And I wyll multiplye thy sede as the starres of heauen, and vnto thy sede wyll I geue all this londe, and thow thy sede shall all nacions be blessed, because Abraham was obedient vnto my voys, and kepte myne ordinaunces, my commandementes, my statutes, and my lawes.

and 28. a

So Isaac dwelt at Gerar. And when the men of the same place asked him of his wife, he sayde: She is my sister. For he was afraid to saye: She is my wife, (thinkinge thus :) they might slaye me for Rebekkas sake, for she was beautifull to lōke vnto. Now when he had bene there a longe season, Abimelech the kynge of the Philistynes lōked out at a wyndow, and sawe Isaac sportinge with Rebekka his wife.

Then Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: Beholde, she is thy wyfe, why saydest thou then: She is my sister? Isaac answered him: I thought, I might peradventure have died because of her. Abimelech saide: Why hast thou then done this vnto vs? It coude lightly haue come to passe, that some of the people might haue lēen with thy wyfe, and so haddest thou brought synne vpon vs. The Abimelech commaunded all the people, and sayde: Who so toucheth this man or his wyfe, shal dye the death.

And Isaac sowed in that lōde, and sowed the same yere an hundred bushshels, for the LORDE blessed him. And he became a greute man, wente forth, and grew, tyll he was exceedinge greute, so that he had moche good in shepe and greute catell, and a greute housholde. Therefore had the Philistynes enuye at him, and stopped all the welles, that his fathers seruantes had dygged in the tyme of Abraham his father, and fylled them with earth. In so moche that Abimelech also himself sayde vnto him: Departe from vs, for thou art farre mightier then we.

Gen. 21. c

Then departed Isaac from thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And when he was satied, he caused to dygge vp the welles agayne, that they had dygged vp in his father Abrahams tyme, which the Philistynes had stoppe after the death of Abraham, and he called the after & same names that his father had named them withall.

Gen. 22. a

Isaacs seruantes also dygged in the valley, and there they founde a well of lyuing water. But the hyrdmen of Gerar stroue with Isaacs hyrdmen, and saide: The water is oures. Then called he the well Esēf, because they had done him wronge.

Then dygged they another well, and strove for that also: therfore called he it Sytena. So he gat him from thence, and dygged another well, for the which they stroue not: therfore he called it Rehoboth, and sayde: Now hath the LORDE made vs rowme, and lēten vs growe in the lōde. Afterwarde he departed thence vnto Bersēba.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him the same night, and sayde: I am the God of thy father Abraham, feare thou not, for I am with the, and wyll blesse the, and multiplye thy sede for my seruant Abrahams sake. Then buyded he an altare there, and called vpon the name of the LORDE, and pitched his tent there, and there his seruantes dygged a well.

And Abimelech wente vnto him from Gerar, and Abushach his frende, and Phicol his chiefe captaene. But Isaac sayde vnto them: Wherefore come ye to me? seynge ye hate me, and haue put me awaye from you? They sayde: We se with open eyes, that the LORDE is with the, therfore we denyed that there shulde be an ooth betwixte vs and the, and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou do vs no harme, like as we haue not hurt the, and as we haue done nothinge vnto the, but all good, and let the departe in peace.

As for the, thou art & blessed of the LORDE. Then Isaac made them a feast, and they ate and dronke. And on the morow they arose, and swore one to the other. And Isaac let them go, and they departed from him in peace.

The same daye came Isaacs seruantes, and tolde him of the well that they had digged, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde water. And he called it Saba. Therefore is & cite called Bersēba vnto this daye.

The XXVII. Chapter.

When Esau was fourty yere olde, he toke wyues: Judith the daughter of Beri the Hethite, and Basmath the daughter of Elon the Hethite: both these were disobedient vnto the sprite of Isaac and Rebekka.

And it came to passe when Isaac was olde, his eyes waxed dymme of sight, and he called Esau his greater sonne, and sayde vnto him: My sonne. He answered him: Here am I. And he sayde: Beholde, I am olde, and knowe not when I shal dye. Now therfore take thy geer, thy quyet and thy bowe, and get the forth to the felde, and take me some venyson, and make me meate (such as I lōue) and brynge it me herein, that I maye eat, & my soule maye blesse the, before I dye.

But Rebecca herde these wordes, that Isaac sayde vnto his sonne. And Esau wente his waye in to the felde, to hunt venyson, and to brynge it home. Then sayde Rebecca vnto Jacob hir sonne: beholde, I haue herde thy father talkinge with Esau thy brother, and sayenge: Brynge me venyson, and make me meate, that I maye eat, and blesse the before & LORDE, yer I dye. Now therfore my sonne, heare my voyce, what I commaunde the: Go thy waye to the flocke, and fetch me two good kyddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy father, such as he loneth: this shal thou brynge in vnto thy father, that he maye eat, that he maye blesse the before his death.

Nevertheless Jacob sayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my brother Esau is rough, and I am smooth: then might my father peradventure sele me, and I shulde seme vnto him as though I begged him, and so brynge a curse vpon me and not a blessinge. Then sayde his mother vnto him: That curse be vpon me my sonne, folowethen my voyce: go thy waye and fetch it me. So he wente his waye, and fetched it, and brought it vnto his mother.

Then his mother made meate, accordinge as his father lōued, and toke Esaus hir elder sonnes costly rayment (which she had with her in & house) and put them vpon Jacob hir younger sonne. But the kyddes stynnes put she aboute his handes, and where he was smooth aboute the neck: and so she put the meate with bred (as she had made it) in hir sonne Jacobs hande.

And he brought it in vnto his father, and sayde: My father. He answered: here am I, who art thou my sonne? Jacob sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne, I haue done as thou saydest vnto me: arysē, sit vp, and eat of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: My sonne, how hast thou founde it so soone? He answered: The LORDE & God broughte it to my hande.

Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob: Come neare my sonne, that I maye sele the, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. So Jacob wente vnto Isaac his father. And when he had felt him, he sayde: The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knew him not, for his handes were rough like as & handes of his brother Esau. And he blessed him.

And he sayde vnto him: art thou my sonne Esau? He answered: Yee I am. Then sayde he: Brynge me here then to eat of thy venyson my sonne, that my soule maye blesse the. Then he brought it him, and he ate: and he brought him wyne also, and he drank. And Isaac his father sayde vnto him: Come nye, and kysse me my sonne. So he came nye, and he kysed him.

that my heart

good.

Then smelled he the sauoure of his cloyces, and blessed him, and sayde: Beholde, the smell of my sonne is as & smell of the felde, which & LORDE hath blessed. God geue the of the dew of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earth, and plenteousnes of corne and wyne. Lactions be thy seruantes, and people fall downe at & fore. Be thou lorde ouer thy bretheren, and thy mothers children fall downe at thy fore. Cursed be he, that curseth the: and blessed be he, that blesseth the.

Heb. 11. d
Eccl. 5. b

Gen. 12. a

Now when Isaac had made an ende of blessinge, and Jacob was scace gone out from his father Isaac, his brother Esau came from his huntinge, and made meate also, and brought it vnto his father, and sayde vnto him: Arysē my father, and eat of & sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then answered him Isaac his father: Who art thou? He sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne. Then was Isaac exceedingly amased above measure, and saide: Who? Where is then the hunter that brought me, and I haue eaten of all afore thou earnest, and haue blessed him? And he shall be blessed still.

When Esau herde these wordes of his father, he cried lōde, and was exceedinge sorry, and sayde vnto his father: O blesse me also my father. But he sayde: Thy brother came with sottise, and hath taken thy blessinge awaye. Then sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermined me now two tymes. My byrth right hath he awaye, and beholde, now taketh he awaye my blessinge also.

And he sayde: Hast thou not kepte one blessinge for me? Isaac answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue made him lorde ouer &, and all his bretheren haue I made his seruantes. With come & wyne haue I pronyded him. What shal I do vnto the now my sonne? Esau sayde vnto his father: Hast thou not one blessinge more my father? O blesse me also my father.

And he lift vp his voyce, & wepte. Then Isaac his father answered and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou shalt haue a fat dwellinge vpon earth, & of & dew of heauen from aboue: with thy swerde shalt thou get thy lynynge, and shalt serue thy brother. And it shall come to passe, & thou shalt put of his yock, and plucke it from thy neck.

Heb. 12. c

And Esau bare euell wyll vnto Jacob, because of the blessinge that his father had blessed him withall, and sayde in his herte: The tyme wyll come shortly, that my father shall mourne, for I wil slaye my brother Jacob. The was it tolde Rebecca of these wordes of hir elder sonne, and she sent, and bad call for Jacob hir yonger sonne, and saide vnto him: Beholde, thy brother Esau threatenech the, that he wil slaye the. And now my sonne heare my voyce: Get the vp, and fflye vnto my brother Laban in Haran, and tary there with him a whyle, & till the furiousnes of thy brother be swaged, and till his wrath agaynst & be turned from the, and he forget what thou hast done vnto him. So wyll I then sende for the, and cause the be fetcht from thence. Why shulde I be robbed of you both in one daye?

And Rebecca sayde vnto Isaac: I am weery of my life, because of the daughters of Hech: If Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Hech, which are as the daughters of this land, what shall this life then profite me?

The XXVIII. Chapter.

Then called Isaac his sonne Jacob and blessed him, and charged him, & sayde vnto him: Take not a wife of the daughters of Canaan, but get the vp, and go in to Mesopotamia vnto the house of Bethuel thy mothers father, and take & there a wife of & daughters of Laban & mothers brother. And the Almighty God blessed the, and made the fructfull, and multiplye the, (that thou mayest be a multitude of people) and geue the the blessinge of Abraham vnto & & thy sede with the, that thou mayest possesse the lande, wherein thou art a stranger, which God gaue vnto Abraham. So Isaac let Jacob departe, that he might go in to Mesopotamia vnto Laban the sonne of Bethuel of Siria, & brother of Rebecca, his and Esaus mother.

Now when Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and let him departe in to Mesopotamia, that he might take a wife there: and &, as he blessed him, he charged him, & sayde: Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan, and that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone vnto Mesopotamia: seynge also that Isaac his father loved not gladly vpon the daughters of Canaan, he wente his waye vnto Ismael, and besyde the wyues that he had afore, he toke Mahaloth the daughter of Ismael (Abrahams sonne) the sister of Elabiorh, to wife.

As for Jacob, he departed from Bersaba, and wente vnto Haran and came to a place, where he taried all night: for the Sonne was downe. And he toke a stone of & place, & put it vnder his heade, and layed him downe in & same place to slepe. And he dreamed, and beholde, there stode vpon & earth, a ladder, whose toppe reached vnto the heauen. And beholde, the angels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, and the LORDE stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the LORDE God of thy father Abraham, and the God of Isaac: The lande & thou lyest vpon, wyl I geue vnto the, and to thy sede: and thy sede shall be as & dust of & earth. And thou shalt sprede forth toward the west, east, north, and south: and thou & the and thy sede shall all the kynteds vpon earth be blessed. And beholde, I am with &, and wyll kepe the where so ever thou goest, & wyl brynge the hither agayne in to this lande: for I wil not leaue the, till I haue made good, all that I haue promysed the.

Now when Jacob awaked from his slepe, he saide: Surely the LORDE is in this place, and I knew not. And he was a fraied, and sayde: How fearfull is this place: here is no thinge els but an house of God, & a gate vnto heauē. And Jacob arose early in the morninge, and toke the stone that he had layed vnder his heade, and set it vp, and poured oyle vpon it. And he called the place Bethel, but afore the cite was called Lns. And Jacob made a vowe, and sayde: If God wyl be with me, and kepe me in this iourney, & I go & geue me bried to eate, and clothinge to put on, and brynge me peaceably home agayne vnto my father: The shall the LORDE be my God, and this stone that I haue set vp, shall be an house of God: and all that thou gapest me, I wyl geue the the tenth therof.

The XXIX. Chapter.

Then Jacob gat him vp vpon his feet, and wence in to the east countre, & looked aboute him, and beholde, there was a well in the felde, and & flockes of shepe therby, for the flockes drinke of the well. And there laye a greate stone at the welles mouth, and thither they used to brynge the flockes, and to roule the stone from & mouth of the well, and to geue the shepe drynke, & so they put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren, wher be ye? They answered: we are of Haran. He sayde vnto them: Knowe ye Laban the sonne of Lahor? They answered: We knowe him well. He sayde: Is he in good health? They answered: he is in good health. And lo, there cometh his daughter Rachel with the shepe. He sayde: It is yet hye daye, & is not yet tyme to dryne in the carrell: geue the shepe to drynke, & go youre waye, & fede them. They answered: We can not, till all the flockes be brought together, and till we roule the stone from the welles mouth, & so geue the shepe drynke.

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel came with hir fathers shepe, for she kepte & shepe. When Jacob sawe Rachel & daughter of Laban his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban his mothers brother, he wote, & rouled the stone from the welles mouth, and gaue his mothers brother shepe to drynke, and kysed Rachel, lift vp his voyce, and wepte, and tolde her, & he was hir fathers brother, and & sonne of Rebecca. Then ranne she, and tolde her father.

Whā Laban herde of Jacob his sisters sonne, he ranne to mete him, and embraced him, and kysed him, and brought him in to his house. And so he tolde him all this matter. The sayde Laban vnto him: Wel, thou art my bone and my flesh. Abide with me a moneth longe. But after that saide he vnto Jacob: Because thou art my brother, shalt thou therfore serue me for nought? Tell me, what shall thy wages be. Laban had two daughters, the eldest was called Lea, & the yongest Rachel. And Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was bentyfull & well fauoured of face, and Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I will serue the seven yere, for Rachel thy yongest daughter. Laban answered: It is better that I geue her the, then vnto another: tary thou with me.

So Jacob serued seven yere for Rachel, and they semed vnto him but few dayes, he loued her so well. And Jacob saide vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shulde lye with her. The Laban had all the people of that place, and made a marriage. But at euē he toke his daughter Lea, and brought her in vnto him, and he layed with her. And Laban gaue Bilha his mayde vnto his daughter Lea to be hir mayde.

But on the morow, beholde, it was Lea. And he sayde vnto Laban: Why hast thou done this vnto me? haue not I serued & for Rachel? Why hast thou then begyled me? Laban answered: It is not the maner in our countre, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Holde out this weke, & I will geue the this also, for the seruyce & thou shalt do me yet seven yeres more. Jacob dyd so, & helde out & weke. Then gaue he him Rachel his daughter to wyfe. And Laban gaue Bilha his mayden vnto Rachel his daughter to be hir mayden. So he laye with Rachel also, & loued Rachel more the Lea, and serued him yet seven yeres more.

But when the LORDE sawe, that Lea was nothinge regarded, he made her fructfull, and Rachel baren. And Lea conceaued, and bare a sonne, whom she called Ruben, and sayde: The LORDE hath looked vpon my aduersite. Now wyll my husband loue me. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: The LORDE hath herde that I am despysed, and hath geue me this also, and she called him Symeon. She conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyll my husband kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne him thre sonnes, therefore called she his name Leui. She conceaued & fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyll I geue thanks vnto the LORDE, therefore called she him Iuda, and left bearynge.

The XXX. Chapter.

Then Rachel sawe that she bare no children vnto Jacob, she had enuye at hir sister, & saide vnto Jacob: Geue me childre also, or els I am but deed. But Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, & sayde: Am I then in Gods steade, which kepeth & fruct of & wombe from &? Nevertheless she sayde: Beholde, there is Bilha my mayden, lye with her, & she maye beare vpon my lappe, & that I maye be increased by her. And so she gaue him Bilha hir mayden to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilha conceived, and bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayde Rachel: God hath geuen sentence on my syde, and herde my voyce, and geue me a son ne, therefore called she him Dan. Bilha Rachels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare another sonne vnto Jacob. Then sayde Rachel: God hath turned it with me, and my sister, and I haue gotten the vpperhande. And she called him Nephtali.

Now when Lea sawe that she had lest bearynge, she toke Silpa hir mayde, and gaue her vnto Jacob to wyfe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then saide Lea: This is good lucke, & she called him Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Then sayde Lea: Well is me, for the doughters will call me blessed, and she called him Affer.

Ruben wente out in the tyme of y wheate harvest, and founde Mandragoras in the felde, and brought them home vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel vnto Lea: Geue me some of y sonnes Mandragoras. She answered: Hast thou not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husbände, but wilt take awaye my sonnes Mandragoras also? Rachel saide: Wel, let him lye with the this night for thy sonnes Mandragoras. Now when Jacob came home at even from the felde, Lea wente forth to meete him, and sayde: Thou shalt lye w me, for I haue boughte the for my sonnes Mandragoras.

And he slepte with her that night. And God herde Lea, and she conceaued, and bare Jacob the fifth sonne, & sayde: God hath rewarded me, because I gaue my mayden vnto my husbände, and she called him Issachar. Lea conceaued yet agayne, and bare Jacob the sixte sonne, and sayde: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbände dwell with me agayne, for I haue borne him sixe sonnes, & she called him Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, whom she called Dina.

Nevertheless God thought vpon Rachel, and herde her, and made her frutefull. Then she conceaued, and bare a sonne, and sayde: God hath taken awaye my rebuke, and she called him Joseph, and sayde: God geue me yet another sonne.

Now when Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde vnto Laban: Let me go, & departe in to my place and vnto myne owne lande: geue me my wyues and my children, (for the which I haue serued the) & I maye go: for thou knowest, what seruyce I haue done the. Laban sayde vnto him: Can I not fynde sauoure in thy sight? I perceaue, that God hath blessed me for thy sake. Appoynte thou the rewarde, & I shal geue the. But he saide vnto him: Thou knowest how I haue serued the, and what manner of catell thou hast vnder me. Thou haddest but litle afore I came hither, but now is it growne into a multitude, and the LORDE hath blessed y for my sake. And now when shall I loke to myne owne house also? he saide: What shal I then geue the?

Jacob sayde: Thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, but yf thou wilt do this for me & I saye, then wyll I fede and kepe thy shepe agayne. I wyll go thorow all thy flockes to daye, and separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be spotted and partye coloured, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. Now loke what shal be partie coloured and spotted amonge the kyddes, the same shal be my rewarde: so shal my righteousness testify with me to daye or to morow, when it cometh vnto my rewarde before the, so that, what so ever is not spotted and partye coloured amonge the kyddes, and blacke amonge the lambes, let that be theift with me.

Then sayde Laban: Beholde, let it be so as thou hast sayde. And that same daye he sundered out the speckled and partye coloured goates, and all the spotted and partye coloured kyddes (where there was eny whyte vpon them) and all that was blacke amonge the lambes, and put them vnder the hande of his children, and made rowme of thre dayes iourney wyde betwixte him and Jacob. So Jacob kepte the residue of Labans flocke.

But Jacob toke stanes of grene wyllies, hasell and of chesnottreas, and pyllid whyte streakes in them, and layed the stanes that he had pyllid, in the dryntinge trounges before the flocke, which came there to drynke, that they shulde conceaue, when they came to drynke. So the flockes conceaued ouer y stanes, and brought forth speckelde, spotted and partye coloured.

Then Jacob parted y lambes, and put them to the flocke vnto the spotted: and all that was blacke in Labans flocke, that put he vnto the spotted. And he made him a flocke of his owne, which he put not vnto Labans flocke. Nevertheless in the first buckyng tyme of the flockes, he layed the stanes in the dryntinge trounges before the eyes of the flockes, that they shulde conceaue ouer the stanes. But in the latter buckyng tyme he layed them not in. So the later were Labans, but the firstlinges were Jacobs.

Thus the man became exceedinge riche, so that he had many shepe, maydens & seruantes, Camels and Asses.

The XXXI. Chapter.

¶ Herde also of y wordes of Labans children, that they sayde: Jacob hath brought all y fathers good vnto him self, & of oure fathers good hath he gotten these riches. And Jacob behelde Labans countenance, & beholde, it was not toward him as yesterdays and yesterdays.

And the LORDE sayde vnto him: Departe agayne to thy fatherlande, and to thy kynred, I wyll be with the. Then sent Jacob and bad call Rachel and Lea in to the felde to his flockes, and sayde vnto them: I se youre fathers countenance, that it is not toward me like as yesterdays and yesterdays: but the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe, that I haue serued youre father with all my power.

And he hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not suffred him, to do me harme. As he sayde: The partye coloured shal be thy rewarde, then the whole flocke bare partye coloured. As he sayde: The speckelde shal be thy rewarde, then the whole flocke bare speckelde. Thus hath God with drawen youre fathers goodes from him, and geuen them vnto me. For when the buckyng tyme came, I life vpon myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, and beholde, the rammes leaped vpon the flocke that was speckelde, spotted, & partye coloured.

And the angel of God sayde vnto me in a dreame: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. He sayde: lift vp thine eyes, and beholde, the rammes leape vpon the speckelde, spotted, and partye coloured flocke: for I haue se ne all y Laban doth vnto the. I am y God at Bethel, where thou dydest anoynthe the stone, & maydest a vowethere vnto me. Get the vp now, & departe out of this lande, & go agayne in to the lande of thy kynred.

¶ Then answered Rachel and Lea, and sayde vnto him: As for vs, we haue no porcioner inheritance more in oure fathers house, & he hath cousted vs as straungers, for he hath solde vs, & spent vp of wages. Therefore hath God with drawen y fathers riches from him vnto vs & oure children. What so ever now God hath sayde vnto the, that do.

So Jacob gat vp, and set his children and wyues vpon Camels, and caried awaye all his catell and all his substance, that he had gotten at Mesopotamia, y he might come vnto Isaac his father in the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to chyppe his flocke, and Rachel stole hir fathers ymages. Thus dyd Jacob steale awaye y hert of Laban & Syuan, in y he tolde him not that he fled. So he fled, & all that was his, gat vp, and passed ouer the water, & wente straight toward the mount Gilead.

¶ Upon the thirde daye it was tolde Laban, that Jacob fled. And he toke his brethre vnto him, and folowed after him seven dayes iourney, and ouertoke him vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, & sayde vnto him: Bewarre, that thou speake no thinge to Jacob but good. And Laban drewe vnto Jacob. As for Jacob, he had pitched his tente vpon the mount. And Laban with his brethre pyched his tent also vpon the same mount Gilead.

¶ Then sayde Laban vnto Jacob: What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen awaye my hert, and caried awaye my doughters, as though they had bene taken captiue & y siverde? Wherefore kepest thou that secreete, that thou woldest flye, and hast stolen awaye from me, and toldest me not, that I might haue brought the on the waye with myrth, with synginge, with tabrettes and harpes: and hast not suffred me to kysse my children and doughters? Thou hast done foolishly, and so moch might I haue made, that I coude haue done you euell: but youre fathers God saide yesterdays vnto me: Bewarre, that thou speake no thinge vnto Jacob but good. And for so moch then as thou woldest nedes departe, and longedest sore after y fathers house, why hast thou stolen awaye my goddes?

¶ Jacob answered and sayde vnto Laban: I was a frayed, that thou shuldest haue taken awaye thy doughters from me: but loke by whom thou syndest thy goddes, let the same lye here before oure brethren. Sete that thine is by me, and take it awaye. (But he knew not, that Rachel had stolen them.) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent and in to Leas tent, and in to both the maydens tentes, and founde nothinge: and out of Leas tent he wente in to Rachels tent. Then toke Rachel the ymages, and layed them vnder the Camels strawe, and sat downe vpon them. But Laban searched the whole tent, and founde nothinge. Then sayde she vnto hir father: Be not angrie my lord, that I can not ryse vp vnto the: for it goeth w me after the maner of women. So he sought,

And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban, answered & sayde vnto him: What haue I trespassed or offended, & thou art so whoore vpon me? Thou hast searched all my houtholde stuff, & what hast thou founde of thy houtholde stuff? Laye it here before my brethren & thyne, & they maye iudge betwene vs both. Twentye yere haue I bene w the thy shepe & goates haue not bene vnfructfull, the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten: Loke what was to me of beastes, I brought it not vnto y, I was fayne to paie it my self: thou requyrest it of my hande, whether it were stolen fro me by daye or by night. On the daye yme the heate consumed me, and the frost on the night, and my slepe departed fro myne eyes.

Thus haue I serued twentye yere in thy house, fourtene yeres for thy daughters, & sixe for thy flocke, and ten tymes hast thou chaunged my rewarde: & yf the God of my father the God of Abraham, and the feare of Isaac had not bene on my syde, thou haddest latten me go awaye emptye. But God hath looked vpon myne aduersite and labour, and rebuted the yester daye.

Laban answered and sayde: The daughters are my daughters, & the children are my children, and the flockes are my flockes, & all that thou seist is myne. What can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or to their children whom they haue borne? Nowther fore come on, let vs make a conenant (I & thou) which maye be a wytnesse betwene me and the. Then toke Jacob a stone, & set it vp (for a piler or markstone) and sayde vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they toke the stones, and made an heape, & ate vpon the same heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahuatha, but Jacob called it Gilead: (either of them after the properties of his language.)

Then sayde Laban: This heape be wytnesse betwene me and the this daye (therefore is it called Gilead) and a testimony, for he sayde: The LORDE loke betwene me and y, whan we are departed y one from y other: yf thou were my daughters, or take ocher wyues vnto them. There is no mā with vs, but lo, God is the wytnesse betwene me and the. And Laban sayde morouer vnto Jacob: Beholde, this is the heape, and this is the markstone that I haue set vp betwixte me and the: the same heape be wytnesse, and the same markstone also be wytnesse, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heape & markstone vnto me, to do any har-

me. The God of Abraham, and the God of Mahor, and the God of their fathers, be iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob sware vnto him by the feare of his father Isaac. And Jacob offred an offeringe vpon the mount, and called his brethre to eate bled. And whan they had eaten, they taried vpon the mount all night. But vpon the morow Laban rose vp early, kysed his children & daughters, & blessed the, & departed, and came agayne vnto his place. As for Jacob, he wente on his iourney, & the angels of God met him. And whan he sawe them, he sayde: It is Gods hoost, & called the same place Mahanaim.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Jacob sent messangers before him to his brother Esau into the lande of Seir, of the felde of Edom, & commaunded the, & sayde: Saye thus vnto my lord Esau: Thy seruant Jacob standeth y this worde: I haue bene out w Laban, & haue bene hither to amonge straungers, & haue oren & Asses, shepe, seruantes & maydes, & haue sent forth to stywe it the my lord, & I might synde sauoure in thy sight.

The messangers came agayne vnto Jacob, and sayde: We came vnto thy brother Esau, & he commaundeth forth also agaynst the with foure hundred men. Then was Jacob sore a frayd, and wylt not what waye to turne himself, & denyded the people that was with him, and the shepe, and the oren, & the Camels in to two dioues, & sayde: If Esau come vpon the one dioue, and smyte it, the other shal escape.

Jacob sayde morouer: O God of my father Abraham, God of my father Isaac, LORDE thou that saydest vnto me: Departe agayne to thine owne londe and to thy kynred, and I wyl do the good: I am to litle for all the mercies and all the tructh that thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant (for I had no more but this staff whan I wente ouer this Jordan, and now am I becmetwo dioues) deliuer me from y hande of my brother, fro the hade of Esau, for I am a frayd of him, lest he come and smyte me the mother with the children. Thou saydest: I wyl do the good, and wyl make thy sede as the sonde of y see, which can not be nombred for multitude.

And there he taried that night, and toke of such as came to hande, a present vnto his brother Esau, two hundred she goates, twentye rammes and thutic mylke camels w their foales, fourtye kyne, ten bullockes, twentye she Asses with ten foales, and put them in the handes of his seruantes, every flock by them selues, & sayde vnto them: Go ye forth before me, & put a space betwixte one flocke after the other, and commaunded the first and sayde:

When my brother Esau meteth the, and aareth the: Whose art thou? & whyther goest thou? and whose are these that thou dyrest before the? Thou shalt saye: They be thy seruant Jacobs, which sendeth a present vnto his lord Esau, and commaundeth behynde vs him self.

Thus commaunded he the seconde also, and the thirde, and all them that folowed the flockes, and sayde: Like as I haue tolde you, so speake ye vnto Esau, whan ye mete him, and saye vnto him also: Beholde, y seruante Jacob is behynde vs. For he thought: I wyl reconyle him with the present that goeth before me, after warde wyl I se him my self, peradventure he shal receaue me to grace.

So the present wente before him, but he eard in the vnto the same night, and rose vp in y night, and toke his two wyues and the two maydens and his eleuen sonnes, and wente vnto the soorde of Jacob, toke them and caried them ouer the water, so that all that he had came ouer, and taried him self alone on this syde.

Then wrestled there a man with him vntill the breake of y daye. And whan he sawe y he might not overcome him, he touched the fenowe of his thye, and y fenowe of his thye shrank in wrestling with him. And he sayde: Let me go, for y daye breaketh on. But he answered: I will not let y go, except thou blesse me. He sayde: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayde: Thou shalt nomore be called Jacob, but Israel, for thou hast stryuen with God and with men, and hast preyayled. And Jacob apled him, & sayde: Tell me, what is y name? But he sayde: Why apest thou what my name is? And he blessed him there. And Jacob called the place Peniel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my soule is recovered. And as he came ouer fro peniel, y Some rose vpo him, & he halted vpon his thye. Therefore eate the children of Israel no vane vpon the fenow of y thye vnto this daye, because y vane vpon the fenow of Jacobs thye was touched.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Jacob lift vp his eyes, & sawe his brother Esau comynge with foure hundrith men, and he denyded his children vnto Lea vnto Rachel, and to both the maydes, and set the maydens with their children before, and Lea with hir child after, and Rachel with Joseph hynder most. And he wente before them, and bowed him self to the grounde seven tymes, tyll he came to his brother. But Esau ranne to mete him, and embraced him, and fell aboute his neck, & kysed him, and wepte, and lift vp his eyes, and sawe the wyues with the children, and sayde: What are these with the? He answered: They are the children, which God hath geuen vnto thy seruant. And the maydens came forth with their children, and dyd their obeyssaunce vnto him.

Lea came forth also with hir child, and kneeled vnto him. Afterwarde came Joseph and Rachel forth, and kneeled vnto him like wyfe. And he sayde: What meanest thou w all the dioue that I met? He answered: That I might synde grace in the sight of my lord. Esau sayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast. Jacob answered: Whay, but yf I haue founde grace in y sight, receaue my present of my hande (for I sawe thy face, as though I had sene the face of God) and be at one with me. Take this present in good worth, that I haue brought y, for God hath geuen it me, & I haue ynough of all thinges. So he compelled him to take it.

And he sayde: Let vs go on and take our iourney, I wyl go in thy company. But he sayde vnto him: My lord, thou knowest that I haue tender children by me, and small and greete catell also, which are yet but yong: yf they shulde be dryue ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wolde dye. Let my lord go on before his seruant, I wyl dryue after sayre and softly, (there after as the catell & the children can go,) tyll I come to my lord in Seir. Esau sayde: Yet wil I leave some of my people with the. He answered: What neede is it? Let me but onely synde grace in the sight of my lord.

So Esau departed agayne the same daye toward Seir, and Jacob toke his iourney toward Sucoth, and buylded him an house, and made tetes for his catell. Therfore is the place called Sucoth.

Afterwarde came Jacob peaceably vnto the cite of Sichem, which lyeth in y lande of Canaan, after that he was come agayne out of Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cite, and bought a pece of londe of the children of Hamor y father of Sichem for an hundred pens. There pitched he his tent, and there he set up an altare, and called upon the name of the mightie God of Israel.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Ana y daughter of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob, wente out to beholde the daughters of the londe. Whan Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Hemyte (which was lord of the lode) sawe her, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his hert hanged vpon her, and he loued y damsell, and talked louyngly with her, and spake to his father Hemor: Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob vnderstode, that Dina his daughter was defyled, and his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and Jacob helde his tonge tyll they came. Then Hemor the father of Sichem wente forth vnto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacobs sonnes from y felde. And whan they herde it, it grieved them, and they were very wroth, that he had wrought folly in Israel, and lye with Jacobs daughter: for so was not the vse to do.

B Then comened Hemor with the, and sayde: My sonne Sichem here longeth for your daughter, O geue hir him to wife: make frendshipe with vs, geue vs your daughters, and take ye oure daughters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you: I like what ye appoynte me, I will geue it: requyre the dowrye and gift of me hereby, I will geue it accordinge as ye will saye, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichem and Hemor his father (and spake disceatfully, because their sister Dina was defyled) and sayde vnto them: That can we not do, to geue oure sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were a shame vnto vs.

C Nevertheless we will consente vnto you, yf ye will be like vnto vs, and be circumcised as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you oure daughters, and take your daughters vnto vs, and dwell with you and be one people. But yf ye will not herten vnto vs, to be circumcised, then will we take oure daughter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne wel, and the yongeman desai de not to do the same, for he had lust to Jacobs doughter:

and he was holden in honoure above all in his fathers house. Then came Hemor and Sichem his sonne vnder y gate of cite, and comened with the citisens of the cite, and saide: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the lande and occupye: now is the londe brode of both the sydes, we will take their daughters vnto vs, and geue them oure daughters.

D But then will they consent vnto vs, to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men children amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their catell and goodes, and all that they haue, shall be ours, yf we consent vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herten vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne, as many as wente out and in at y gate of his cite, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (whan it was painefull to them) the two sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Levi Dinas brethren, toke every man his swerde, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hemor also and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke their sister Dina out of Sichems house, and wente their waye.

E Then came Jacobs sonnes euer the slayne, and spoyled the cite (because they had defyled their sister) and toke their shepe, oxen, Asse, and what so euer was in the cite and in the londe, and all maner of goodes: All their children and wyues toke they captiue, and spoyled all y was in the house.

And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon and Levi: Ye haue brought it so to passe, y I stynte before the inhabitants of this lande, y Canaanites and Pherecians, y I am but a small nombre: If they gather them selues now together against me, they shall slaye me, so shall I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Shalde they the deale with oure sister as with an whoore?

The XXXV. Chapter.

And God sayde vnto Jacob: Get thee vp, and go vnto Bethel, y dwell there, and make there an altare vnto the God, that appared vnto the, whan thou fleddest from thy brother Esau. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all y were with him: Put awaye from you y strange goddes, that are amonge you, and cleanse your selues, and chaunge your clothes, and let vs get vp, and go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God,

A which herde me in the tyme of my trouble, and hath bene with me in the waye that I haue gone.

B Then gaue they him all the straunge goddes that were vnder their handes, and their earynges, and he buried them vnder an Oke that stode besyde Sichem, y departed. And there came a feare of God vpon the cities that laye rounde aboute, so that they folowed not after y sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob vnto Lus in y lande of Canaan (which is called Bethel) and all the people that were with him, and there he buylded an altare, and called y place Bethel, because the LORDE appeared vnto him there, whan he fled from his brother. Then dyed Deborah Rebekas nurse, and was buried beneth Bethel vnder the Oke, and it was called the Oke of lamentacion.

C And God appeared agayne vnto Jacob, after that he was come out of Mesopotamia, and blessed him, y saide vnto him: Thou art called Jacob, neuertheles thou shalt no more be called Jacob, but Israel shall be y name. And so was he called Israel.

D And God sayde vnto him: I am the All mightie God, be fructifull and multiplye: people and a multitude of people shall come of the, and thynges shall come out of thy loynes: and the lande that I gaue vnto Abraham and Isaac, will I geue vnto the, y I will geue it vnto thy seds after the. So God departed from him, from y place where he talked with him. And Jacob set up a piler of stone, in the place where he talked with him, y poured drynt of thynges thereon, and poured oyle vpon it. And Jacob called y place where God talked with him, Bethel.

E And he departed from Bethel: and whan he was yet a filde brode from Ephrath, Rachel traueyled, y the byrth came harde vpon hir. But whan she had soch payne in traueylinge, y myd wife sayde vnto her: feare not, for thou shalt haue this sonne also. But as hir soule was departynge, y she must bye, he called hir Ben Oni: neuertheles his father called hi Ben Jamin. So Rachel died, y was buried in the waye towarde Ephrath, which now is called Bethlehe. And Jacob set up a piler vpon hir graue, there is Rachels grauestone vnto this daye. And Israel departed, and pitched his tent beyonde the tower of Eder.

F And it chaunced, that whan Israel dwelt in that londe, Ruben wente and laye with Bilha his fathers concubine, and that came to Israels eares.

And Jacob had twolue sonnes. The sonnes of Lea were these: Ruben Jacobs first borne sonne, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Isachar, y Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel were Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan, and Neptali. The sonnes of Silpa Leas mayde: Gad and Aser. These are y sonnes of Jacob, which were borne vnto him in Mesopotamia. And he came to his father Isaac to Mamre in to the head cite which is called Hebron, where in Abraham y Isaac were strangers. And Isaac was an hundred y foure score yere olde, y fell sicke, and dyed, y was gathered vnto his people, whan he was olde, y had lyued ynough: and his sonnes Esau y Jacob buried him.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

A This is the generacion of Esau, which is called Edom. Esau toke wyues of the daughters of Canaan. Ada the daughter of Esau the Hethite: y Ahalibama the daughter of Ana, the childe childe of Zibeon the Hemyte: And Basmath y Ismaels daughter, the sister of Nebaioth. And Ada bare Eliphaz vnto Esau. Basmath bare Reguel, Ahalibama bare Jera, Jaclan, y Boiah. These are the chyldre of Esau, y were borne vnto him in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues sonnes y daughters, and all the soules of his house, his substance, and all the catell with all the goodes that he had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and wente in to a countre awaye fro his brother Jacob: for their substance was so greute, that they coude not dwell together: and the londe wherein they were strangers, mighte not holde them because of their goodes. So Esau dwelt vpon mount Seir. And Esau is Edom.

B This is y generacion of Esau, of whos are come y Edomites vpon y mount Seir. And these are y names of the chyldre of Esau: Eliphaz y sonne of Ada Esaus wife: Reguel y sonne of Basmath Esaus wife: The sonnes of Eliphaz were these: Theman, Omar, Zepho, Gaetham y Renas. And y Thimna was a concubine of Eliphaz y sonne of Esau, and bare him Amalec. These are y chyldre of Ada Esaus wyfe.

The chyldre of Reguel are these: Naath Eserah, Samma, Nisa. These are the chyldre of Basmath Esaus wife.

The chyldre of Ahalibama Esaus wife, the daughter of Ana, that was the childe childe of Zibeon (which she bare vnto Esau) are these: Jera, Jaclan and Boiah.

an hundred pens. There pitched he his tent, and there he set up an altare, and called upon the name of the mighty God of Israel.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And y^e daughter of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob, wente out to ke- holde the daughters of the londe. Whan Sichem the sonne of Hemor the He- mite (which was lord of the lode) sawe her, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his hert hanged vpon her, and he loved y^e damsell, and talked louyngly with her, and spake to his father Hemor. Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob vnderstode, that Dina his daughter was defyled, and his sonnes were with the carrell in the felde, and Jacob helde his tonge tyll they came. Then Hemor the father of Sichem wente forth vnto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacobs sonnes from y^e felde. And when they herde it, it greued the men, and they were very wroth, that he had wrought folly in Israel, and Iken with Jacobs daughter: for so was not the vse to do.

B Then comened Hemor with th^e, and sayde: My sonne Sichems hert longeth for y^ere donghter, O geue hir him to wife: make frendshipe with vs, geue vs youre donghters, and take ye oure donghters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue youre possi- sions therin. And Sichem sayde vnto his fa- ther and brethren: Let me synde grace with you: loke what ye appoynte me, I will ge- me it: requyre the dowrye and gift of me har- dely, I will geue it accordinge as ye will are, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichem and Hemor his father (and spake disceatful- ly, because their sister Dina was defyled) & sayde vnto them: That can we not do, to ge- ue oure sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were a shame vnto vs.

C Nevertheless we will consente vnto you, yf ye wylte like vnto vs, and be circumci- ded as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you oure donghters, and take youre donghters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye wylt not herken vnto vs, to be circumcised, then wyl we take oure donghter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hemor and his son- ne wel, and the yongeman deside not to do the same, for he had lust to Jacobs dought-

ter: and he was holden in honoure aboue all in his fathers house. Then came Hemor and Sichem his sonne vnder y^e gate of cite, and comened with the citifens of the cite, and saide: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the lande and occupye: now is the londe brode of both the sydes, we wyl take their donghters vnto vs, and geue them oure donghters.

D But then wylt they consent vnto vs, to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men children amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their car- tell and goodes, and all that they haue, shal be ours, yf we consent vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened vnto Hemor and Si- chem his sonne, as many as wente out and in at y^e gate of his cite, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (whan it was pa- nefull to them) the two sonnes of Jacob Si- meon and Levi Dinas brethren, toke every man his swerde, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew He- mor also and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke their sister Di- na out of Sichems house, and wente their waye.

Then came Jacobs sonnes ouer the slay- ne, and spoyled the cite (because they had defyled their sister) and toke their shepe, oxen, Asses, and what so ener was in the ci- te and in the londe, and all maner of goodes: All their children and wyues toke they cap- tyue, and spoyled all y^e was in the houses.

And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon and Le- ui: Ye haue brought it so to passe, y^e I stynt before the inhabitants of this lande, y^e Ca- nanites and Pherefices, y^e I am but a small nombre: If they gather them selues now to- gether against me, they shal slaye me, so shal I be destroyed with my house. But they an- swered: Shalbe they the deale with oure sis- ter as with an whoore?

The XXXV. Chapter.

And God sayde vnto Jacob: Get the- up, and go vnto Bethel, y^e dwell the- re, and make there an altare vnto the God, that appared vnto the, whan thou fleddest from thy brother Esau. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all y^e we- re with him: Put awaye from you y^e stran- ge goddes, that are amonge you, and cleanse youre selues, and chaunge youre clothes, and let vs get vp, and go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God, which herde me in the tyme of my trouble, and hath bene with me in the waye that I haue gone.

B Then gaue they him all the strange god- des that were vnder their handes, and their earynges, and he buried them vnder an Oke that stode besyde Sichem, y^e departed. And there came a feare of God vpon the cities that laye rounde aboute, so that they folowed not after y^e sonnes of Jacob. So came Ja- cob vnto Lus in y^e lande of Canaan (which is called Bethel) and all the people that we- re with him, and there he buylded an altare, and called y^e place Bethel, because the LOR- DE appared vnto him there, whan he fled from his brother. Then dyed Debra Re- beccas nurse, and was buried beneath Bethel vnder the Oke, and it was called the Oke of lamentacion.

C And God appeared agayne vnto Jacob, after that he was come out of Mesopota- mia, and blessed him, y^e saide vnto him: Thou art called Jacob, neuertheles thou shalt no more be called Jacob, but Israel shal be y^e name. And so was he called Israel.

D And God sayde vnto him: I am the AL- mighty God, be frute full and multiplye: peo- ple and a multitude of people shal come of the, and kynnes shal come out of thy loy- nes: and the lande that I gaue vnto Abra- ham and Isaac, wylt I geue vnto the, y^e wylt geue it vnto thy seide after the. So God de- parted from him, from y^e place where he tal- ked wth him. And Jacob set vp a pillar of sto- ne, in the place where he talked with him, y^e poured drynt offerynges thereon, and poured oyle vpon it. And Jacob called y^e place whe- re God talked with him, Bethel.

D And he departed from Bethel: and whan he was yet a felde brode from Ephrath, Ra- chel traueyled, y^e the byrth came harde vpon hir. But whan she had soch payne in traue- lynge, y^e myd wife sayde vnto her: feare not, for thou shalt haue this sonne also. But as hir soule was departynge, y^e she must dye, she called him Ben Oni: neuertheles his fa- ther called hi Ben Jamin. So Rachel died, y^e was buried in the waye towarde Ephrath, which now is called Bethlehe. And Jacob set vp a pillar vpon hir grane, there is Ra- chels grauestone vnto this daye. And Israel departed, and pitched his tent beyonde the tower of Eder.

E And it chaunced, that when Israel dwelt in that londe, Ruben wente and laye with Bilha his fathers concubine, and that ca- me to Israels eares.

And Jacob had twolue sonnes. The son- nes of Lea were these: Ruben Jacobs first borne sonne, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Isachar, y^e Zabulo. The sonnes of Rachel, were Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Ra- ches mayde: Dan, and Nephtali. The sonnes of Silpa Leas mayde: Gad and Aser. The- se are y^e sonnes of Jacob, which were borne vnto him in Mesopotamia. And he came to his father Isaac to Mamre in to the head cite which is called Hebron, wherein Abra- ha y^e Isaac were strangers. And Isaac was an hundred y^e foure score yere olde, y^e fell sicke, and dyed, y^e was gathered vnto his peo- ple, whan he was olde, y^e had luyed ynough: and his sonnes Esau y^e Jacob buried him.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

This is the generacio of Esau, which is called Edom. Esau toke wyues of the daughters of Canaan. Ada the daughter of Elis the Hethite: y^e Ahalibama the daughter of Ana, the childe childe of Zi- beon the Hentye: And Basmath y^e Ismaels daughter, the sister of Nebaioth. And Ada bare Eliphaz vnto Esau. Basmath bare Reguel, Ahalibama bare Jons, Jaclam, y^e Korah. These are the childe of Esau, y^e we re borne vnto him in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues sonnes y^e dought- ters, and all the soules of his house, his sub- stance, and all the carrell with all the goo- des that he had gotten in the lande of Ca- naan, and wente in to a countre awaye fro his brother Jacob: for their substance was so greate, that they coude not dwell toge- ther: and the londe wherein they were stran- gers, might not holde them because of thes goodes. So Esau dwelt vpon mount Seir. And Esau is Edom.

This is y^e generacio of Esau, of wh^{ch} are come y^e Edomites vpon y^e mount Seir. And thes are y^e names of the childe of Esau: El- liphaz y^e sonne of Ada Esaus wife: Reguel y^e sonne of Basmath Esaus wife: The son- nes of Eliphaz were these: Theman, Omar, Zepho, Gaerham y^e Kenas. And Thimna was a concubine of Eliphaz y^e sonne of Es- au, and bare him Amaleck. These are y^e chil- dren of Ada Esaus wyfe.

The children of Ahalibama Esaus wife, the daughter of Ana, that was the childe childe of Zibeon (which she bare vnto Esau) are these: Jons, Jaclam and Korah.

E These are the prynces amonge the childre of Esau. The children of Eliphas the first sonne of Esau, were these: The pryncce Theman, & pryncce Omar, the pryncce Zepho, the pryncce Aenas, the pryncce Korah, the pryncce Gathian, the pryncce Amaleck. These are the prynces of Eliphas in the lade of Edom, and are the children of Adā.

And these are the children of Roguel Esaus sonne: & pryncce Nahath, & pryncce Serah, & pryncce Sama, & pryncce Misa. These are & prynces of Roguel in & londe of Edomites, & they are & children of Basmath Esaus wife. These are the children of Abalibama Esaus wife: The pryncce Jusa, & pryncce Jaclam, the pryncce Korah. These are the prynces of Abalibama, & daughter of Ana Esaus wife. These are & childre of Esau and their prynces. He is Edom. The children of Seir & Horite & dwelt in the londe, are these: Lothan, Sobal, Zibeon, Ana, Disan, Ezer & Disan. These are the prynces of the Horites, all children of Seir in the londe of Idumea. But & childre of Lothan were these: Hori, & Hemā, & Lothās sister was called Thimna.

The children of Sobal were these: Alua, Manahat, Ebal, Sepho & Onā. The childre of Zibeon were: Lia & Ana. This is the same Ana & sode Mules in & wyldernes, whā he kepte his fathers Zibeons Asses. The childre of Ana were: Disan, & Abalibama, & is & daughter of Ana. The childre of Disan were: Hemdan, Esban, Jethā & Charan. The children of Ezer were: Bilhan, Seana, & Acan. The children of Disan were: Oz & Aran.

These are & pñces of & Horites: The pryncce Lothan, & pryncce Sobal, & pryncce Zibeon, & pryncce Ana, & pryncce Disan, & pryncce Ezer, & pryncce Disan. These are the prynces of the Horites, which ruled in & londe of Seir.

The kynge that reigned in the londe of Idumea (before the childre of Israel had any kynge) are these: Bela & sonne of Beor was kynge in Idumea, & & name of his cite was Dinhaba. And whā Bela died, Jobab & sonne of Serah of Bosra was kynge in his steade. When Jobab dyed, Husam out of & lode of the Themanites was kynge in his steade. Whan Husam dyed, Hadad & sonne of Bedad (which slew & Madianites in & Moabites felde) was kynge in his steade, & the name of his cite was Auith. Whan Hadad dyed, Samla of Masra was kynge in his steade. Whā Samla died, Saul of Rehoboth by & water syde, was kynge in his steade. Whan Saul dyed, Baal Hanā the sonne of Achbor was kynge in his steade. Whā Baal Hanā the sonne of Achbor dyed, Hadad was kynge in his steade, & the name of his cite was Pagu, & his wifes name was Mehet Abael, the daughter of Maad, the daughter of Mesa hab. Thus are the pñces of Esau called in their kynreds, places & names: The pryncce Thymna, & pryncce Alua, & pryncce Jecheth, the pryncce Abalibama, the pryncce Ela, the pryncce Pynon, the pryncce Aenas, & pryncce Theman, & pryncce Mibzar, the pryncce Magdiel, & pryncce Ira. These are the prynces in Idumea, like as they dwelt in & lade of their possessions. And Esau is & father of & Edomites.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

Jacob dwelt in & lande, wherin his father was a stranger, namely in the lade of Canaā. And these are & generacions of Jacob. Joseph was sentene years olde, whā he became a keeper of the cattell & his brethren, & the lad was w the children of Bilha & Silpa his fathers wyues, and tolde their father of & euell reporte & was of the. Israel loued Joseph more the all his childre because he had begottē him in his olde age, and he made him a cote of many coloures.

Now whā his brethre sawe, & his father loued him more the all his brethre, they had euell wyll at him, & coude not speake a frendly worde vnto hi. Joseph also had once a dreame, and tolde his brethre therof. The hate they him & more, for he sayde: Heare I praye you what I dreamed. We thought we were byndinge sheeces vpon & felde, & my shefe arose, and stode vp, and your sheeces rounde aboute made obeysaunce vnto my shefe.

Then sayde his brethre vnto him: Shalt thou be & kynge, and haue domyniō ouer vs? And they hated him yet & more, because of his dreame, & his wordes. And he had yet another dreame, which he tolde his brethre, & saide: Beholde, I had yet another dreame: We thought & Sonne & & Moone & eleuen starrs made obeysaunce to me. And whā this was tolde his father and his brethre, his father reprovēd him, & sayde vnto him: What manner of dreame is this, & thou hast dreamed: Shall I & thy mother, & thy brethren come & fall before & vpon the grounde? And his brethre had enuie at him. But his father marked this sayenge.

Now whā his brethren were gone south to kepe their fathers cattell in Sichē, Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Do not & brethren kepe the cattell in Sichem: Come, I wil sende the vnto the. He answered: Here am I. And he sayde: Go thy waye, and loke whether it be well w thy brethren and with & cattell, and byngeme worde agayne how it is. And he sent him out of the valley of Hebron, to go vnto Sichem.

Then a certayne man founde him, wanginge out of his waye in the felde, which ased him, and sayde: Whom sekest thou? He answered: I see my brethren: tell me I pray the where they kepe. The man sayde: They are gone from hence, for I herde them saye: let vs go vnto Dothan. Then folowed Joseph after his brethren, and founde them at Dothan.

Now whan they sawe him a fatte of, asore he came at the, they deuysed to sleve him, and sayde one to another: Lo, there cometh the dreamer, & come on, and let vs sleve him, & cast him in a pytt, and saye: a wicked beast hath deuoured him: the shal it besent, what his dreames are.

When Ruben herde that, he wolde haue deuynerd him out of their handes, & sayde: Let vs not sleve a soule. Ruben sayde moreover vnto him: Shed no bloude, but cast him into this pytt & is in the wyldernes, & laye ye no hādes vpon him. (He wolde haue deuyned him out of their hādes, & he might haue broughte him agayne vnto his father.)

Whan Joseph now came to his brethre, they stryped him out of his cote, that partye coloured cote which he had vpon him, & toke him and cast him in to a pytt. But the same pytt was emptye, and no water in it, & they sat them downe to eate. In the meane season they lifte vp their eyes, and sawe a company of Ismaelites comynge from Gilead, with their camels, which bare spices, balm, and myrr, and were goinge downe into Egypte.

Then saide Juda vnto his brethre: what helpe it vs, that we sleve oure brother, and hyde his bloude? Come, let vs sell him vnto the Ismaelites, that oure handes be not defyled vpon him, for he is oure brother, oure flesch and bloude. And they hearkened vnto him.

And as the Madianites marchant men wente by, they drew Joseph out of the pytt, and solde him vnto the Ismaelites (for twetye syluer pens) which broughte him in to Egypte.

Now whan Ruben came agayne vnto the pytt, & founde not Joseph therein, he rent his clothes, and came agayne to his brethre and sayde: The lad is not yonder, whycher shal I go? Then toke they Josephs cote & slewe a goate, and dypped the cote in & bloude, and sent awaye that partye coloured cote, and caused it be brought vnto their father and sayde: This haue we founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coate, or no.

But he knewe it, and sayde: It is my sonnes coate, & a wicked beast hath deuoured him, a raryshinge beast hath raryshed Joseph. And Jacob rent his clothes, and put a sackcloth aboute his loynes, & mourned for his sonne a longe season. And all his sonnes & daughters came vnto him to comforte him. But he wolde not be comforted, & saide: With sorowe wil I go downe in to the grave vnto my sonne. And his father wepte for him. But the Madianites solde him in Egypte vnto Potiphar Pharaos chiefe Marshall.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

Joseph turned at the same time, & Juda wente downe fro his brethren, & gat him to a man called Hyra at Odolam. And there Juda sawe a mā of Canaā daughter called Sua, and toke her. And whā he had lye with her, she conceived and bare a sonne, whom she called Er.

And she conceived agayne, & bare a sonne, whā she called Onā. She proceeded yet further, & bare a sonne, whā she called Sela. And whā she had borne him, she left of bearinge.

And Juda gaue his first sonne Er a wiffe, whose name was Thamar. But he was wicked before the LORD, therefore the LORD slew him. Then sayde Juda vnto his sonne Onan: So lie with thy brothers wiffe, and multiplye thyself with her, that thou mayest raise vp sede vnto thy brother. But when Onan knewe that the sede shulde not be his owne, whan he laye with his brothers wiffe, he let it fall vpon the earth and destroyed it, & he shulde not geue sede vnto his brother. This thinge that he dyd displeased the LORD sore, and he slewe him also.

Then sayde Judas vnto Thamar his sonnes wiffe. Remayne a wyddow in thy fathers house, tyll my sonne Sela be growne: for he thought: peradventure he might byc also like as his brethren. So Thamar wente hir waye, and remained in hir fathers house. Now whā many dayes were past, & doughter of Sūa Judas wife dyed. And whan Judas had lest mourninge, he wente vp vnto Thymnath to clyppe his shepe with his shepherde hyra of Odollam.

E Then was it tolde Thamar: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp vnto Thymnath, to clyppe his shepe. Then put she of 3 wyddowes garmentes that she had vpon her, covered and dysgyfied hir self, & sat hir downe without the porte by the waye syde towards Thymnath. For she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto him to wife.

Now whan Judas sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoore, for she had covered hir face: and he gat him to her in the waye, and saide: I praye the let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. She answered: What wilt thou geue me, that thou mayest lye with me? he sayde: I wil sende the a kydd from the flocke. She answered: Geue me a pledge then, tyll thou sende it me. he sayde: What pledge wilt thou that I geue the?

D She answered: Thy signet, and thy bracelet, and thy staff that thou hast in thy hand. Then he gaue it her, and laye with her, and she was with childe of him. And she gat hir vp, and wente hir waye, and layed of hir cloke, and put on hir wyddowes garmentes agayne.

Judas sent the kydd by his shepherde of Odolla, to fetch the pledge agayne from the woman, and he founde her not. Then axed he the men of the same place, & sayde: Where is the whoore that was without in the waye? They answered: There hath no whoore bene here. And he came agayne vnto Judas, and saide: I haue not founde her, morouer 3 men of the same place saide: that there hath no whoore bene there. Judas sayde: Let her take it vnto her, lest we happily be shamed, for I haue sent the kydd, and thou hast not founde her.

E After thre monethes it was tolde Judas: Thamar thy doughter in lawe hath plaied the whoore: and beholde, by whoideme is she gotten with childe. Judas sayde: brynge her forth, that she maye be brent. And whan she was brought forth, she sent vnto hir father in lawe, and sayde: By the man that I haue these, am I with childe. And she sayde: Knowest thou whose is this signet, this bracelet & this staff? Judas knewe the, & sayde: She is more righteous than I, for I gaue hir not my sonne Sela: But he laye nomore with her. Whan the tyme came that she shoulde be deliuered, there were two twyns founde in hir wombe. And as she was now in translynge, the one put out his hande. Then the midwife toke and boude a reed threde aboute it, and saide: This shal come out first. But whan he plucked in his hande agayne, his brother came forth. And she sayde: Wherefore is there a rent mayde for thy sake? And he was called Phares. Afterwarde came his brother forth, which had 3 reed threde aboute his hande, and he was called Zarah.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

Joseph was brought downe in to Egypte, & Potiphar an Egipcian Pharaos chiefe marshall bought him of 3 Inmaelites, & brought him downe. And the LORD was with Joseph, in so much that he became a lufte man, & was in his master Egipcians house. And his master sawe that the LORD was with him: for what so ever he dyd, the LORD made it to prosper in his hande: so that he founde fauour in his masters sight, & was his seruant. He made him ruler of his house, and put all that he had, vnder his hande. And from the tyme forth that he had made him ruler of his house and all his goodes, the LORD blessed the Egipcians house for Josephs sake: and there was nothyng but the very blessing of the LORD in all that he had in his house & in the felde, therefore left he all that he had, in Josephs hande. And medled with nothyng himself, save onely the bred that he ate. And Joseph was fayre of bewtye, and well fauoured of face.

And it fortuneth after these actes, that his masters wife cast hir eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and saide vnto her: Beholde, my master knoweth not what is in my house, and all that he hath, that hath he put vnder my hande. And there is no man so greute in the house as I, and he hath kepte nothyng from me, excepte thee: for thou art his wife. How shoulde I then do so greute euell, and synne agaynst God? But she spake such wordes vnto Joseph daylie. Nevertheless he hertened not vnto her, to slepe by her, or to be in her company.

It fortuneth vpon a tyme, that Joseph wente in to the house to do his busynesse, and there was none of 3 folkes of the house the rebby. And she caught him by his garment, & sayde: Slepe with me. But he left the garment in hir hande, and fled, and gat him out of the house.

Now whā she sawe that he had lest his garment in hir hande, and fled out, she called the folkes in the house, and sayde vnto the: Lo, he hath brought vs in the hebrue, to do vs shame. He came in here vnto me, to slepe by me: but I cried with loude voyce. And whan he herde that I made a noyse & cried, he lest his garment here by me, and fled, and ranne out.

And she layed vp his garment by her, tyll his master came home, and tolde him even the same wordes, and sayde: The hebrue seruant whom thou broughtest here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to do me shame. But whan I made a noyse and cried, he lest his garment here by me, and fled out. Whan his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde him, and sayde: Thus hath the hebrue seruant done vnto me, he was very wroth.

E Then his master toke him, and put him in the prison, wherein the kinges prisoners laie. And there he laye in prison. But the LORD was with him, and had mercy vpon him, & caused him to fynde fauour in the sight of the officer of the prison, so that he committed all the prisoners of the prison vnto his handes: that what so ever were done, might be done by him. For the officer of the prison sawe, that the LORD was with him in all that he was vnder his handes, and that what so ever he dyd, the LORD made it to come prosperously to passe.

The XL. Chapter.

It was fortuneth after this, that 3 kynge of Egypes chiefe butlar and 3 chiefe baker offended their loide the kynge of Egypes. And pharao was angrie with them, & caused them be put in prison in the chiefe marshalls house, where Joseph laye prisoner. And the chiefe marshall put Joseph vnto them, that he might serue them. And so they were in prison for a season.

And they dreamed, both the butlar & the baker in one night, every mā his owne dreame, and every dreame had his interpretaciō. Now in the morninge whan Joseph came in vnto them, and sawe that they looked sadly, he axed them and sayde: Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayde: Interpretinge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

B Then the chiefe butlar tolde Joseph his dreame, and saide vnto him: I dreamed that there was a vyne before me, which had thre braunches, and it lubbeth, grewe and bare blossoms, and the grapes therof were ripe. And I had pharaos cuppe in my hande, & toke the grapes and wronge the in to 3 cuppe, and gaue pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph sayde: This is the interpretaciō: The thre braunches are thre dayes, and ouer thre dayes shall pharao take the, and putt the in thine office agayne, that thou mayest geue him the cuppe in his hande after the olde maner, whā thou wast his butlar. But whan thou art in thy prosperite, thynke vpon me, and shewe me thyndnesse, that thou mayest certifie pharao of me, that he maie bringe me out of this house: for I was pruely carried out of the lands of the hebrues, and here also haue I done nothyng, that they shulde haue put me in this dongeon.

Whan the chiefe baker sawe, that the interpretaciō was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed, that I bare thre wyker baskets vpon my heade, and in 3 vppermost basket all maner of bake meates vnto pharao, and the foules are out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered, and sayde: This is the interpretaciō: The thre baskets are thre dayes, and after thre dayes shall pharao take the, and hange the vpon the galowe, and the foules shal eat thy flesh from of 3.

And vpon the thirde daye it came to passe, that pharao helde his byrth daye, and made a feast vnto all his seruantes, and toke the chiefe butlar and the chiefe baker before all his seruantes, and restored the chiefe butlar to his butlarshipe agayne, so that he reached the cuppe in to pharaos hande. Also for the chiefe baker, he caused him be hanged like as Joseph had interpreted vnto him. Nevertheless the chiefe butlar thoughte not on Joseph, but forgat him.

The XLI. Chapter.

It was after two yeaeres pharao had a dreame, how that he stode by a water syde: and beholde, out of the water there came seuen goodly kyne, and fatfleshed, and wente feedinge in the medowe. After these he sawe other seuen kyne come out of the water, which were euell fauoured and leane fleshed, and wente by the kyne vpon 3 water syde: and the euell fauoured kyne ate vp the seuen goodly and fat kyne. Then pharao awaked.

And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And he sawe that seuen eares of corne grewe vpon one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde he sawe seuen thynne and blasted eares come up, and the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven greate and full eares. Then Pharaos awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And whan it was daye, his spiere was troubled, and he sente out, & caused to call all the soothsayers in Egypte & all the wyse men, and tolde them his dreame. But there was none, that coude tell pharaos the interpretation of it.

B Then spake the chiefe butlar vnto pharaos, and saide: This daye do I remembre my sawe. Whan Pharaos was angrie with his seruantes, and put me in prison with the chiefe baker in the chiefe marshalls house, we dreamed both in one night euery mā his dreame, hauinge his owne interpretation. Then was there with vs a yonge man an hebreue, the chiefe marshalls seruant, vnto whom we tolde it, and he declared our dreames vnto vs, vnto euery mā accordinge to his dreame. And as he declared it vnto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restored vnto myne office, and he was hanged.

Then Pharaos sent and called for Joseph and they let him out of the doungeon. And he let himself be shauen, and chaunged his clothes, and came in vnto Pharaos. Then said Pharaos vnto him: I haue dreamed a dreame, and there is no man that can interpret it: but I haue herde tell of the, that whā thou hearest a dreame, thou declarest it. Joseph answered Pharaos, and sayde: God shall geue Pharaos a prosperous answer, yee well without me.

C Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed that I stode by a water syde, and beholde, out of the water there came seven kyne, fat-fleshed and goodly, and wente feeding in the meadowe. And after them I sawe ocher seven kyne come out, thynne, euell fauoured, and leenfleshed. So euell fauoured sawe I neuer in all the lande of Egypte. And the seven leene and euell fauoured kyne, ate vp the seven first fat kyne. And whan they had eate them vp, a man coude not perceaue that they had eaten them, & were as euell fauoured as they were afore. Then I awaked.

And I sawe agayne in my dreame seven eares of come, growinge vps one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde there spronge vp seven withered eares, thynne and blasted, and the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven good eares. And I haue shewed it vnto my soothsayers, but they can tell me nothinge therof.

D Joseph answered Pharaos: Both Pharaos dreames are one. God sheweth pharaos what he wil do. The seven good kyne are seven yeares, and the seven good eares are seven yeares also. It is one dreame. The seven leene and euell fauoured kyne, that came up after them, are seven yeares. And the seven thynne and blasted eares, shalbe seven yeares of dert. This is now the thinge which I tolde Pharaos, that God sheweth Pharaos, what he wyll do.

Beholde, there shal come seven yeares & greate plenteousnes in the whole lande of Egypte, and after the same there shal come seven yeares of dert, so that all this plenteousnes shalbe forgotten in the lande of Egypte: and the dert shal consume the lande, so that the plenteousnes shal not be perceaued in the lande, because of the dert that cometh thereafter, for it shal be very greate. Where as Pharaos dreamed the seconde kyne, it signifyeth that this thinge is surely prepared of God, and that God wil shortly bringe the same to passe.

Let Pharaos now prouyde for a man of understandinge & wysdome, whom he maye set ouer the lande of Egypte, and se that he ordene officers in the lande, and take the fift (parte) of the lande of Egypte in the seven plenteous yeares, and gather all the foode that shal come of the plenteous yeares, that they maye laye vp come vnder Pharaos power for sustenance in the cities, and kepe it, & there maye be foode founde prepared for the lande in the seven deare yeares, & which shal come vpon the lande of Egypte, that the lande be not destroyed of hunger. The sayenge pleased Pharaos well and all his seruantes. And Pharaos sayde vnto his seruantes: How might we fynde such a man, in whom is the spiere of God? And sayde vnto Joseph: For so moch as God hath shewed & all this, there is none of such understandinge & wysdome as thou.

Thou shalt be ouer my house, and accordinge vnto thy worde shal all my people obeye: onely in the kynges seate wyll I be more then thou. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue set the ouer the whole lande of Egypte. And he toke of his ringe from his hande, and gaue it Joseph in his hande, and clothed him with whyte sylke, and honged a chayne of golde aboute his neck, and made him ryde vps the seconde charet: and caused it be proclaimed before him, that men shulde bowe their knes vnto him, as to him whos Pharaos had set ouer the whole lande of Egypte.

And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaos without thy wyll shal no man mo re his hande or his fore in all the lande of Egypte. And he called him: Zaphnath Paena, & gaue him a wife, euen Asnath the daughter of Potiphar the prest of On. So Joseph wente out, for to visyte the lande of Egypte. (And he was thirtie yeare olde, whan he stode before Pharaos.) And he departed from Pharaos, and wente thorow all the lande of Egypte.

And the londe byd so those seven plenteous yeares, and they gathered all the foode of the seven yeares that were in the lande of Egypte, & layed it in the cities. Like what foode grewe in the selde rounde aboute euery cite, they put it therein. So Joseph layed vp the come in store, and that moch above measure, as the sende of the see: in so moch he leste of nombryng of it, for it coude not be nombred.

G And vnto Joseph there were borne two somes (before the dert came) whom Asnath the daughter of Potiphar prest of On bare vnto him. And the first called he Manasses: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to forget all my laboure, and all my fathers house. The seconde called he Ephraim: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

Now whan the seven plenteous yeares were ended in Egypte, then beganne the seven deare yeares to come, wherof Joseph had sayde. And there was dert in all landes, but in all the lande of Egypte there was foode. Now whan the lande of Egypte beganne to suffre hunger also, the people cryed vnto Pharaos for bread. But Pharaos sayde vnto all the Egyptians: Go vnto Joseph, what he sayeth vnto you, & doo. So whan there was dert in all the lande, Joseph opened all the was by him, & sold vnto the Egyptians. Thus the dert was mayled in the lande, & all countrees came to Egypte to bye at Joseph: for the dert was mightie in all landes.

The XLII. Chapter.

B Whan Jacob sawe that there was moch come in Egypte, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Why gape ye? Beholde, I heare that there is moch come in Egypte, go downe & bye vs come, & we maie lyue, & not dye. So Josephs ten brethren wente downe to bye come in Egypte. As for Beniamyn Josephs brother, Jacob wolde not let him go to his brethren, for he sayde: Some mysfortune might happen vnto him. So the child of Israel came to bye come, amonge ether he came to them: for there was dert also in the lande of Canaan. But Joseph was gouernoure in the lande, and solde come vnto all the people in the lande.

Now whā his brethren came to him, they fell downe to the grounde before him vpon their faces. And he sawe them, & knewe the, and helde him self straunge toward them, and talked roughly with them, and saide vnto them: Whence come ye? They sayde: Out of the lande of Canaan to bye vytayle. He knewe the, though he knewe them, yet knewe they not him. And Joseph thought vpon the dreames that he had dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: Ye are spyes, and are come to se wher the lande is open.

They answered him: To my lord, thy seruantes are come to bye vytayle: we are all one mans sonnes, we are vsfayned, and thy seruantes were neuer spyes. He sayde vnto the: No, but ye are come to se where the lande is open. They answered him: We thy seruantes are twelue brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan, and the yongest is with our father: as for one, he is awaye.

Joseph sayde vnto them: This is it that I sayde vnto you: spyes are ye. Here by wyll I proue you: By the life of Pharaos ye shall not get hence, excepte youre yongest brether come hither. Sende awaye one of you to fetch youre brother, but ye shalbe in prison. Thus wyll I trye out your wordes, whether ye go aboute to truthe or not: for els, by the life of Pharaos ye are spyes. And he put the together in ward the dayes longe.

Vpon the thirde daye he sayde vnto the: If ye wil lyue, the dert shal, for I feare Gods. If ye be vsfayned, let one of youre brethren lye bounde in you: & present: but go ye youre waye, and cary home the necessary foode, & bringe me youre yongest brother, so wyll I beleue youre wordes, that ye shall not dye. And so they dyd.

And they sayde one to another: This haue we deserued against our brother, in that we sawe the anguysh of his soule, whan he besought vs, and we wolde not heare him: therefore cometh now this trouble vpon vs. Ruben answered them, and saide: Tolde not I you & same, whan I sayde: O synne not agaynst your lad, but ye wolde not heare. Now is his bloude requyred. But they knewe not that Joseph understode it, for he spake vnto the by an interpreter. And he turned him from them, and wepte. Now whan he had turned him to them agayne, and talked to them, he toke Symon from amonge them, & bound him before their eyes, and commaund ded to sell their sackes to come, and to put every mans money in his sack, and to geue every one his expenses by the waye. And so was it done vnto them.

D And they laded their come vpon their Asses, and departed thence. But when one opened his sack to geue his Asses prouender in the Iune, he spied his money in his sack mouth, and sayde vnto his brethren: My money is restored me agayne: lo, it is in my sack. Then their hertes fayled them, and they were afrayed amonge them selues, and sayde: Wherfore hath God done this vnto vs?

Now when they came home to Jacob their father in the lande of Canaan, they tolde him all that had happened vnto them, and sayde: The man that is lord of the lande, spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies of the countrie. And when we answered: we are vnfayned, and were neuer spies, but are twelue brethren the sonnes of oure father: one is awaye, and the yongest is yet this daye with oure father in the lande of Canaan, he sayde: hereby wyl I marke, that ye are vnfayned: Leave one of youre brethren with me, and take foode necessary for youre houses, and go youre waye, and brynge youre yongest brother vnto me: so shal I knowe that ye are no spies, but vnfayned: the shal I deliuer you youre brother also, and ye maye occupie in the lande.

E And when they opened their sackes, every man founde his boundell of money in his sacke. And when they and their father sawe, that it was the bundels of their money, they were afrayed.

Then sayde Jacob their father: Ye haue robbed me of my children. Joseph is awaye, Simeon is awaye, and ye will take Ben Jamin awaye: It goeth all ouer me. Ruben answered his father and sayde: If I brynge him not to the agayne, then slaye my two sonnes: deliuer him but in to my hande, I wyl brynge him agayne vnto the. He sayde: my sonne shal not go downe with you: for his brother is deed, and he is left alone. If any myffortune shulde happen vnto him by the waye & ye go, ye shulde brynge my graye haye with you downe vnto the graue.

The XLIII. Chapter.

A Ve the deth oppressed of lande. And when all the vytales that they had brought out of Egipte were spent, Jacob their father sayde vnto them: Go agayne, and bye vs a litle foode.

The Iuda answered him, and sayde: The man swaie vnto vs, and sayde: ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you. If so be now that thou wilt sende oure brother with vs, we wil go downe, and bye the foode. But if thou wilt not sende him, we wyl not go downe. For the man sayde vnto vs: Ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you.

Israel sayde: Wherfore haue ye done this euill vnto me, to tell & man, that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The man enquired so strately of vs and of oure kynrede, and sayde: Is youre father yet a lyue? haue ye yet a brother? Then tolde we him, as he axed vs. How coulde we knowe, that he wolde saye: brynge youre brother downe with you? Then sayde Iuda vnto Israel his father: Let the lad go with me, that we maye get vs up and take oure iourney, and lyue, and not dye, both we and thou, and oure childre. I wyl be suertye for him, of my hande: shalt thou requyre him. If I brynge him not vnto the agayne, and set him before thine eyes, I wil beare & blame my life longe. For if we had not made this tarienge, we had now bene come agayne twyse.

Then sayde Israel their father vnto the: If it must nedes be so, then do this: take of the best frutes of the lande in youre sackes, and brynge the man a present: a curteij balm, and hony, and spyes, and myrr, and dates, and almondes. Take other money with you also, and the money that was brought agayne in youre sacke mouthes, cary it agayne with you: peradventure it was an oversight. And take youre brother, get you up, and go agayne vnto the man. The Allmightie God geue you mercy in the sight of & man, that he maye let you haue youre other brother, and Ben Jamin. As for me, I must be as one, that is robbed of his children.

Then they toke the present, and other money with them, and Ben Jamin, gat the up, and wente in to Egipte, and stode before Joseph. Then Joseph behelde them with Ben Jamin, and sayde vnto the ruler of his house: Brynge these men in, and sle, and make ready, for they shal dyne with me at noone. And the man dyd as Joseph had him, and brought the men in to Josephs house.

When they were brought in to Josephs house, they were afrayed, and sayde: We are brought hither because of the money, that came agayne in oure sackes at the first, to paye a quarell with vs, and to laye somet hynge to oure charge, and to take vs for bonde seruantes with oure Asses.

Therefore came they to & man, that was ruler of Josephs house, and talked with him at the doore, and sayde: Syr, we came downe at the first to bye foode, and when we came in the Iune, and opened oure sackes, beholde, every mans money was in his sack mouth with full weight: therfore haue we brought it with vs agayne, and haue brought other money with vs also, to bye foode: but we can not tell, who put oure money in oure sackes.

He sayde: Be content, feare you not, youre God euen & God of youre fathers hath geue you & treasure in youre sackes, I had your money. And he brought forth Simeon vnto them, and led them in to Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash their fere, and gaue their Asses prouender.

E And they made readye & present, agaynst Joseph came at noone: for they herde, & they shulde dyne there. Now when Joseph wente in to the house, they brought him home & present that they had, and fell downe to the ground before him. But he welcomed them courteously, and sayde: Is youre father, (that olde man which ye tolde me of) in good health? Is he yet a lyue? They answered: Thy seruant oure father is in good health, and is yet a lyue. And they bowed them selues, and fell downe before him.

And he lift up his eyes, and sawe his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and said: Is this youre yongest brother, that ye tolde me of? And he sayde morouer: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made haist for the grounde of his birt was kyndled toward his brother, and sought how he might wepe, and wente in to his chamber, and wepte there.

S And when he had washed his face, he wente out, and refrayned him self, and sayde: set bried (on the table.) And they brought vnto him by him self, and vnto them by the selues, and to the Egiptians also that ate with them, by them selues. (For the Egiptians darre not eate bried with the Ebines, that is an abhominacion vnto them.) And they were set ouer agaynst him, the first borne accordinge to his first byrth, and the yongest after his youth. They marueled at it amonge them selues, and there were brought them sundrye meates from his table. But Ben Jamins parte was fyue tymes more then the other. And they dronke, and were merry with him.

The XLIII. Chapter.

A Vnto Joseph commaunded the ruler of his house, and sayde: Syll the mens sackes with foode, as much as they maye carye, and put every mans money in his sacke mouth, and put my syluer cuppe in the sack mouth of the yongest with the money for & vytales. He dyd as Joseph had sayde. And on the morow when it was daye, they let & men go with their Asses.

But when they were out of the cite, and not come farre, Joseph sayde to the ruler of his house: Up, and folowe after the me, and when thou ouertakest them, saie vnto them: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? Is not that it, that my lord dynterch out of, and that he prophecieth withall? It is euell done of you, that ye haue done.

B And when he had ouertaken them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. They answered him: Wherfore saierth my lord soch wordes? God forbid, that thy seruantes shulde do any soch thinge: Beholde, the money that we founde in oure sackes mouthes, that brought we vnto the agayne, out of the lande of Canaan: how shulde we then haue stolen either syluer or golde out of thy lordes house? Loke by whom it shall be founde amonge thy seruantes, let him dye: yet and we also wyl be my lordes bondmen. He sayde: let it so be, as ye haue spoken. Loke by whom it shall be founde, let him be my seruant, but ye shalbe harmlesse.

And they made haist, and toke downe every man his sack to the grounde, and every man opened his sack: And he searched & beganne at the greatest vnto the yongest, and the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then rente they their clothes, and every man lade the burchen vpon his Ass, and wente agayne vnto the cite. And Iuda wente with his brethren vnto Josephs house (for he was there yet) and they fell before him on the grounde. Joseph sayde vnto them: What manner of dede is this, that ye haue done? A newe ye not, that soch a man as I am, can prophecy?

C Iuda sayde: What shall we saye vnto my lord: or how shal we speake? and what excuse shal we make? God hath founde out & wickednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, we and he, by whom the cuppe is founde, are my lordes seruantes. But he sayde: God forbid that I shulde do so. The man by whom the cuppe is founde, shall by my seruant, but go ye up in peace vnto youre father.

Then stepte Iuda vnto him, and sayde: My lord, let thy seruant speake one worde in thine eares my lord, be not displeased at ¶ seruaunt also, for thou art ent as pharao. My lord axed his seruauntes, and sayde: Have ye yet a father or brother? Then answered we: We have a father, which is olde, and a yonge lad begotten in his age, and his brother is deed, & he is left alone of his mother, and his father loveth him.

D Then saydest thou: Brynge him downe unto me, and I will se him. But we answered my lord: The lad can not come from his father, yf he shulde come from him, he were but a deed man. Then saydest thou unto thy seruauntes: If youre yongest brother come not hither with you, ye shall se my face no more. Then wente we vp unto thy seruaunt my father, and tolde him my lordes wordes. Then sayde our father: Go youre waye agayne, and bye vs a litle foode. But we sayde: We can not go downe, excepte our yongest brother be with vs, then wyll we go downe: for we darre not lode the man in the face, yf our yongest brother be not with vs. Then sayde thy seruaunt my father unto us: Ye knowe that my wife bare me two formes, one wente out from me, and I sayde: he is come in peces. If ye take this from me also, and my myffortune happē him, then shall ye brynge my gray heer with sorowe downe unto the graue.

E If I now come home unto my father, & the lad be not with me (seyng his soule hangeth by the soule of this) then shall it come to passe, that yf he se not the lad there, he shal dye. So shal we thy seruauntes brynge the gray heer of thy seruaunt our father with sorowe downe to the graue. For I thy seruaunt became suertye for the lad unto my father, and sayde: yf I brynge him not agayne, I will beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Therfore let thy seruaunt byde here in steade of þe lad, to be my lordes bonde man, and let the lad go vp with his brethien. For how can I go vp unto my father, yf the lad be not with me? Then shulde I se the mysery that shulde happen unto my father.

The XLV. Chapter.

A Then coude not Joseph refrayne him self before all them that stode aboute him: and he commaunded every man to go out from him, and there stode no man by him, whan Joseph vttered him self unto his brethien. And he wepte loud, so that þe Egyptians and pharao householdes herde it. And he sayde unto his brethien: I am Joseph, is my father yet alyue? And his brethien coulde not answer him, they were so abulshed before his face. But he sayde: Come nye unto me. And they came nye. And he sayde: I am Joseph youre brother: whom ye solde in to Egypte. And now were not you re selues, & thinke not þe there is eny wrath, because ye solde me hither: For God sent me hither before you, for y^e lyues sake. For these are now two yeaeres, that I derth hath bene in the lande, and there are yet fyue yeaeres behynde, wherein there shalbe no plowinge ne harvest.

But God sent me hither before you, þe might let you ramayne vpon earth, and to save youre lyues by a greate deluyraunce. And now, it was not yet then that sent me hither, but God which hath made me a father unto pharao, & lorde ouer all his house, and a prync in the whole lande of Egypte. Haist you therfore, and go vp unto my father, and saye unto him: Thy sonne Joseph sendeth the this worde: God hath made me lorde in all Egypte, come downe unto me, to ryte not, thou shalt dwel in the lande of Gosen, and be with me, thou and thy children, and thy childers childre, thy small and greate catell, and all that thou hast. There wyll I make prouision for the (for there are yet fyue yeaeres of derth) that thou perishe not in thine house, and all that is thine. Beholde, youre eyes and the eyes of my brother Ben Jamin se, that I myne owne self speake vnto you by mouth. Shewe my father all my worship in Egypte, and all that ye haue seene: haist you, and come downe hither with my father.

And he fell aboute his brother Ben Jamins neck, and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte vpon his neck also. And he kyssed all his brethien, and wepte vpon them. And afterwarde talked his brethien wth him. And this tidinges came in to pharao house: Josephs brethien are come, which pleased pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

And pharao spake vnto Joseph: Saye vnto thy brethien: Do thus, lade youre bestes, go youre waye, and whan ye come in to the lande of Canaan, take youre father and youre householdes, and come vnto me, I wyll geue you of the goodes in the lande of Egypte, so that ye shall eate the farr in the lande. And he commaunded them, Do thus, Take you charrettes out of y^e lande of Egypte for youre children and wyues, and brynge youre father, and come, and regarde not youre household stuff: for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shalbe yours.

The children of Israel dyd so, and Joseph gaue the charrettes accordyng to pha-

raos commaundement, and expenses by the waye, and gaue them all, vnto every one a chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue the hundred syluer pens, and fyue chaunge of rayment. As for his father, he sent him ten Asses laden with goodes out of Egypte, and ten Asses with come and bried, and vytayles for his father by þe waye. So he sent awaye his brethien, and sayde vnto them: Stryue not by the waye.

E Thus they departed out of Egypte, and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy sonne Joseph is yet alyue, and is a lorde in all the lande of Egypte. But his hert waued, for he belued them not. The tolde they him all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them. And whan he sawe y^e charrettes that Joseph had sent to fetch him, his sperte reuyned, & he sayde: I haue ynough, that my sonne Joseph is yet a liue I wil go, and se him, before I dye.

The XLVI. Chapter.

Israc toke his iourney with all that he had. And whan he came to Bersaba, he offred offerynges vnto y^e God of his father Isaac. And God spake vnto him in a vision by night: Jacob Jacob. He sayde: here am I. And he saide: I am y^e mightie God of thy father, be not afrayed to go in to Egypte, for there wyl I make a greate people of the. I wyl go downe with the, & wil brynge the vp also. And Joseph shal laye his hande vpon thine eyes.

Then Jacob gat him vp from Bersaba, and y^e children of Israel caried Jacob their father with their children and wyues vpon the charrettes that pharao had sent to cary him. And they toke their catell & substance which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and so came in to Egypte: Jacob & all his fede with him, his children & his childers children with him, his daughters, and the daughters of his children, & all his fede.

B These are y^e names of the children of Israd, which came in to Egypte, Jacob & his sonnes. The first borne sonne of Jacob: Ruben. The children of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezon and Charni. The children of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jothim, Zohar and Saul the sonne of the Cananitish woman. The childre of Levi: Gerson, Cahath & Merari. The childre of Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, phares & Serah. But Er and Onan dyed in the lande of Canaan. The childre of phares: Hestron and Hamul. The children of Isachar: Thola, Phua, Job & Semron. The children of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jaheel. These are the childre of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia with his daughter Dina. These all together with sonnes & daughters make the thirtie soules.

The childre of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Suni, Ebon, Eri, Arodi and Archi. The childre of Asser: Jemina, Jesua, Jesui, Dina & Sera their sister. The children of Dina: Heber and Malchiel. These are the children of Silpa, whom Laban gaue vnto Lea his daughter, and she bare vnto Jacob these sixtene soules.

The childre of Rachel Jacobs wife: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph in y^e lande of Egypte were borne Manasses and Ephraim, whom Asnath the daughter of Potiphar priest of On bare vnto him. The children of Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Asher, Gera, Naama, Ehi, Ros, Nupim, Hupim and Ard. These are the children of Rachel, which were borne vnto Jacob, fourtene soules altogether.

The children of Dan: Husim. The childre of Naphtali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jazer, Sillem. These are the children of Bilha, whom Laban gaue vnto his daughter Rachel, & she bare Jacob these seven soules. All the soules y^e came wth Jacob in to Egypte, which proceeded out of his loynes (besyde the wyues of his childre) are altogether sixe & thirtie soules. And Josephs childre which were borne vnto him in Egypte, were two soules: so that all the soules of the house of Jacob which came in to Egypte, were seuentye.

And he sent Juda before him vnto Joseph, to shew him the waye to Gosen, & they came in to the lande of Gosen. Then Joseph bended his charrett fast, and wente vp to meete Israel his father vnto Gosen. And whan he sawe him, he fell aboute his neck, & wepte sore vpon his neck. Then sayde Israel vnto Joseph: Now am I content to dye, for so much as I haue seene thy face, that thou art yet alyue.

Joseph sayde vnto his brethien, & to his fathers house: I will go vp, & tell pharao, & saye vnto him: My brethien and my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are keepers of catell (for they are men that deale with catell) their small & greate catell, and all that they haue, haue they brought with them. Now yf pharao call you, and saye: what is youre occupacō? then ye shal saye: Thy seruauntes are men y^e haue dealt wth catell from oure youth vp hyther to, both we & oure fathers, that ye maye dwell in the lande of Gosen: for the Egipcians abhorre all keepers of catell.

The XLVII. Chapter.

When came Joseph, and tolde pharao: My father and my brethren, their small and greates catell, and all that they have, are come out of the lande of Canaan: and beholde, they are in the lande of Gosen. And he toke syue of his brethren, and presented them vnto pharao. Then sayde pharao vnto his brethren: What is youre occupation? They answered: Thy seruantes are keepers of catell, we and oure fathers also. And they sayde moier vnto pharao: We are come to dwell with you in the lande, for our seruantes haue no pasture for their catell, so fore both the dertth oppresse the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let our seruantes dwell in the lande of Gosen.

Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: Thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the: the lande of Egypte is open before the, let them dwell in the best place of the lande, and se that they dwell even in the lande of Gosen. And yf thou knowest that there be men of a citty to amoge the, make the rulers of my catell.

Joseph brought in Jacob his father also, and set him before pharao. And Jacob thanked pharao. But pharao ased Jacob: How olde art thou? Jacob sayde: The tyme of my pylgremage is an hūdieth and thirtie yeares: litle and euell is the tyme of my pylgremage, and attaymeth not vnto the tyme of my fathers in their pylgremages. And Jacob thanked pharao, and wete out from him.

So Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them a possession in the lande of Egypte, euen in the best place of the lande, namely, in the lande of Raemes, as pharao commaunded. And he made prouysion for his father and his brethren, and all his fathers house with bried, euen as yonge children.

There was no bried in all the lande, for the dertth was very sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan were famished by reason of the dertth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in Egypte and Canaan, for that cometh that they bought. And he layed up all the money in pharao house.

Now when money fayled in the lande of Egypte and Canaan, all the Egipcians came vnto Joseph, and sayde: Gene vs bried. Why suffrest thou vs to dye before thee, because we are without money? Joseph sayde: Brynge hit ther youre catell, so wil I geue you for youre catell, seynge ye are without money. Then brought they their catell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bried for their horses, shepe, oxen and asses. So he fed them with bried a yere, for all their catell.

When a yere was ended, they came vnto him the next yere, and sayde vnto him: We wil not hyde it from thy lord, for not onely the money, but all the catell also is spent vnto thy lord: and there is no thinge left more for thy lord, but onely our body and our lande. Wherefore suffrest thou both vs to dye, and our lande? Take vs and our lande for bried, that we and our lande maye be bonde vnto pharao: geue vs seide, that we maye lyue and not dye, and that the lande become not a wilderness.

So Joseph toke all the lande of Egypte in for pharao: for the Egipcians sold every man his lande, because the dertth was so mighty vpon them: and so the lande became pharao, with the people that went out and in at his cities, from one syde of Egypte vnto the other, excepte the prestes lande, that toke he not in: for it was ordened of pharao for the prestes, that they shulde eate that which was appoynted them, which he gaue them, therfore they neded not to sell their lande.

Then sayde Joseph vnto the people: Beholde, I haue taken possession of you and youre lande this daye for pharao. Beholde, there haue ye seide, for the lande, and of the come ye shall geue the fift part vnto pharao: foure partes shalbe youre, to some the lande for youre sustentance, and for youre houses and children.

They sayde: Let vs but lyue, and fynde grace before the oure lord, we wil gladly be pharaoes seruantes: So Joseph made the a lawe vnto this daye ouer the Egipcians lande, to geue pharao the fift part, excepte the prestes lande, which was not bonde vnto pharao.

So Israel dwelt in Egypte in the lande of Gosen, and had it in possession, and grew and multiplied exceedingly. And Jacob lyued seuentene yere in the lande of Egypte, so that his whole age was an hūdieth and seuen and foure yeares.

Now when the tyme came that Israel shulde dye, he called Joseph his sonne, and sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, then laye thine honde vnder my cheye, and thou shalt shewe mercy and faithfulness vpon me, and not burye me in Egypte, but I will lye by my fathers, and thou shalt carrye me out of Egypte, and burye me in their buryall. He sayde: I wil do as thou hast sayde. But he sayde: Then sweare vnto me. And he swore vnto him. Then Israel bowed himself toward the bed heade.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

Behold this it was tolde Joseph: Behold, my father is sicke. And he toke with him his two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob: behold, my sonne Joseph cometh vnto me. And Israel toke a courage vnto him, and sat vp vpon his bed, and sayde vnto Joseph: The Almightye God appeared vnto me at Las in the lande of Canaan, and blessed me, and sayde vnto me: Beholde, I wil cause thee to growe and increase, and I wil make a multitude of people of thee, and I wil geue this lande vnto thee for a possession after thee, for an everlasting possession. Therfore shal now thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim (which were borne vnto the in Egypte, before I came hither vnto thee) be myne, like as Ruben and Simeon. As for those that thou begettest after the, they shal be thine owne. But these shal be named with the names of their brethren in their inheritance.

And when I came out of Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed by me in the lande of Canaan, by the waye, when there was yet but a felde bried vnto Ephraim: and I buryed her in the waye toward Ephraim, which now is called Bethleem.

And Israel looked vpon Josephs sonnes, and sayde: What are these? Joseph answered: They are my sonnes, which God hath geuen me here. He sayde: Brynge the hither to me, that I maye blesse the. (For Israels eyes were heuy for age, and he coude not well se.) And he brought the vnto him. So he kysed them, and embraced the, and sayde vnto Joseph: Beholde, I haue seene my face, which I thought not: for God hath caused me to se yf seide also. And Joseph toke them from his lappe, and they fell downe to the grounde vpon their face.

Then Joseph toke them both, Ephraim in his right hande toward Israels left hande, and Manasses in his left hande toward Israels right hande, and brought the vnto him. But Israel stretched out his right hande, and layed it vpon the heade of Ephraim, and yogest, and his left hande vpon Manasses heade, and did so wytingly to his handes, for Manasses was the first borne. And he blessed Joseph, and sayde: The God before whome my fathers Abrahā and Isaac haue walked: the God that hath fed me my lyfe longe vnto this daye: the angell which hath deliuered me fro all euell, blesse these laddes, that they maye be called after my name, and after the name of my fathers Abrahā and Isaac, that they maye growe and multiplie vpon earth. But when Joseph sawe that his father layed his right hande vpon Ephraims heade, it displeased him, and he lifte vp his fathers hande, to remoue it fro Ephraims heade vnto the heade of Manasses, and sayde vnto him: Not so my father, this is the first borne, laye thy right hande vpon his heade. Neuertheles his father wolde not, and sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well, this shall be a people also, and shal be greater: but his yonger brother shal be greater than he, and his sede shal be full of people. So he blessed them the same daye, and sayde: In the daye that I shal be sayde: God set the as Ephraim and Manasses. And so he set Ephraim aboue Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Beholde, I dye, and God shall be with you, and brynge you agayne in to the lande of youre fathers. I haue geuen the a peece of lande, without brethren, which I gat with my swerde, and my bowe out of the hande of the Amorites.

The XLIX. Chapter.

Ald Jacob called his sonnes, and sayde: Gather you, that I maye tell you, what shal happen vnto you in the last tyme. Come together, and heare ye childre of Jacob: then vnto Israel youre father.

Rabbi my first sonne, thou art my power, and the begynnyng of my strength, these in gouernance, and these in amercies. Thou passest forth swiftly as a water. Thou shalt not be the cheifest. For thou hast clymmed vp vpon thy fathers bed, euen than defyledest thou my couch with goynge vp.

Symeon and Levi brethren, their deedly weapons are perious instruments. In to their secretes come not my soules, and my worship be not ioyned with their congregation: for in their wrath they slew a man, and in their selfwyll they honghen an oxe. Cursed be their wrath, because it is so fierce: and their indignacion, because it is so rigorous. I wil deuoyde them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

B *Juda, thou art he. Thy brethren shall prayse thee: for thy hande shall be in thine enemies neck: thy fathers children shall stoupe vnto thee. *Juda is a yonge lyon, thou art come vp hye my sonne, fro the spoyle. *He kneled downe and conched himself as a lyon, as a lionesse: who wil rayse him vp? The cepter shall not be remoued fro Juda, ner a matter fro his fete, tyll the Worthye come, and vnto him shall the people fall. He shall bynde his foale vnto the vyne, and his Asses colte to a noble braunch. He shall wash his garment in wyne, and his mantell in the bloude of grapes: his eyes are rounder then wyne, and his teeth whyter then mylk.

C Zabulon shall dwell in the haueyn of the see, and in the porte of shippes, and shall border vpon Sydon.

Isachar shall be a stronge Ass, & laye him downe betwixte y borders. And he saw rest, that it was good, and the lande, that it was pleasant. And bowed downe his shulder to beare, and became a seruante vnto trybute.

D Dan shall be iudge in his people, as well as a trybe in Israel. Dan shall be a serpent in the waye, and an edder in the path, and bite the horse in the heles, that his ryder maye fall backward. ORDE I loke for thy saluacion.

As for Gad, a wapened hoost of men shall fall violently vpon him, but he shall hurte them in the hele.

Of Asser cometh his fat bier, and he shall geue delicacies vnto kynge.

Nephtali is a swift hynde, and getteth goodly wordes.

D The frutefull sonne Joseph, that flourisheth sonne to lye vpon, the daughters go vpo the wall. And though the shoters angered him, strone with him, and hated him, yet his bowe bode fast, and the armes of his hande were made stryde by the handes of a myghtie in Jacob. Of him are come heremen & stonies in Israel. Of y fathers God art thou helpe, & of the Almyghtie art thou blessed, w blessinges of heauen from aboue, with blessinges of a depe y lych vnder, with blessinges of brestes & wombes. The blessinges promised vnto thy father and my fore elders go mightely, after the desyre of the best in the worlde: these shall light on Josephs heade, and on the toppes of his heade, that was separate from his brethren.

Ben Jamin, a ranyshinge wolfe. In the mourninge shall he deuoure the praye, but in the enenyng he shall deuoyde the spoyle.

All these are the twelue trybes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake vnto them, whan he blessed them, every one with a sundrye blessinge.

And he commaunded them, and sayde vnto them: I shall be gathered vnto my people, & burye me with my fathers in y caue which is in the felde of Ephron the Hethite, in the dubble caue that lyeth ouer against Mamre in y lande of Canaan, which Abrahā bought with the felde, of Ephron the Hethite for a possession to burye in. There buried they Abrahā & Sara his wife, there buried they Isaac also & Rebecca his wife: & their buried I Lea, in the good of the felde & of the caue therein, which was bought of the Hethites.

And whan Jacob had ended this commaundement vnto his children, he plucked his fete together vpon the bed, and died, and was gathered vnto his people. The fell Joseph vpon his fathers face, and wepte, and kysed him.

The l. Chapter.

AND Joseph commaunded his seruantes & phisicians, to embawme his father. And the phisicians embawmed Israel, tyll fourtye dayes were ended (for so longe endured the dayes of embawminge, & the Egipcians bewayled him seuentye dayes.

Now whan the mourninge dayes were ended, Joseph spake vnto Pharaos householde, & sayde: If I haue founde fauor in youre sight, the speake vnto Pharao and saie: My father hath taken an ooch of me, & sayde: Beholde, I dye, burye me in myne owne graue, which I dygged for myself in the lade of Canaan. Therefore wyl I now go vp, and burye my father, and come agayne. Pharao saide: Go thy waye vp, and burye thy father, accordinge as thou hast sworne vnto him.

So Joseph wete vp, to burye his father. And there wete w him all Pharaos seruantes & were the elders of his courte, and all y elders of the lande of Egypte, & all Josephs householde, and his brethren, and his fathers householde. Onely their children, shepe & oxen left they in y lade of Gosen, & toke their iourney vp with him, vpo charettes and horses, and the company was exceedinge greete.

Now whan these came to the playne of Atrad y lych beyonde Jordane, they made there a very greete and bytter lamentacion, & he mourned for his father seue dayes. And whā the people in the lande (the Cananites) sawe the mourninge in the playne of Atrad, they sayde: The Egipcians make there greete lamentacion. Therefore is the place called: The lamentacion of the Egipcians, which lyeth beyonde Jordane.

And his children dyd as he had commaunded them, and caried him to y lande of Canaan, and buried him in y dubble caue, that Abrahā bought with the felde for a possession to burye in, of Ephron y Hethite ouer agaynst Mamre. So Joseph toke his iourney agayne in to Egypte with his brethren, and with all chost that wente vp with him to burye his father, whan they had buried him.

C But Josephs brethren were a frayd, whā their father was dead, and sayde: Joseph mighte happily haue indignacion at vs, and recompense vs all the euill that we dyd vnto him, therefore let they saye vnto him: Thy father commaunded before his death, and sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto Joseph: O for geue thy brethren the offence and their synne, that they dyd so euill vnto the. O for geue now this trespass of vs the seruantes of thy fathers God. But Joseph wepte, whan they spake so vnto him.

And his brethren wente, and fell downe before him, and sayde: Beholde, here are we thy seruantes. Joseph sayde vnto the: Feare ye not, for I am vnder God. I thought euill ouer me, but God hath turned it vnto good, to do as it is come to passe this daye, for the sauynge of much people. Therefore be not ye now a frayd, I wyl care for you and youre children. And he comforted them, and spake louyngly vnto them.

Thus dwelt Joseph in Egypte with his fathers house, and lyued an hundred and ten yere, and Iawe Ephraims children, vnto y thirde generacion: In like maner the children of Machir the sonne of Manasses, begat children also vpon Josephs lappe.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye, and God wyl vyset you, and brynge you out of this lande, to the lande that he swore vnto Abrahā, Isaac and Jacob. Therefore take ye an ooch of the childre of Israel, and sayde: Whan God shall vyset you, the cary my bones fro hence. So Joseph dyed, whā he was an hundred and ten yere olde, and they embawmed him, & layed him in a chest in Egypte.

The ii. booke of Moyses.

The first Chapter.

These are 3 names of the childre of Israel, that came with Jacob in to Egypte: eue-ry one came in to his house, Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Nephthali, Gad and Aser. And of all the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob, there were seuentie.

As for Joseph, he was in Egypte all ready. Now whan Joseph was deed, and all his biethren, and all they that lyued at that tyme, the childre of Israel grewe, and increased, and multiplied, and became exceedinge mightie, so the lande was full of them.

Then came there a new kynge ouer Egypte, which knewe nothyng of Joseph, and sayde vnto his people: Beholde, the people of the childre of Israel are many, & mightier then we: Vp, let vs deale wysely with them, & there be not so many of them. For yf there shulde ryse vp eny warre agaynst vs, they might ioyne them selues also vnto our enemies, and ouercome vs, & so get them out of the lande.

And he set workes masters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burthens. (For they buylded the cities Phiton and Raensises, for treasures vnto Pharaos.) But the more they vexed them, the more they multiplied and grew.

Then had they indignacion at the childre of Israel, and the Egyptians compelled the childre of Israel without mercede to do seruyce, and made their lyues bytter vnto them with greuous laboure in claye and bricke, and with all manner of bondage in the felde, and with all manner of laboure, which they layed vpon them without mercy.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwynes of the Hebrewewomen. (Of the which one was called Siphia, and the other Pua:) Whan ye helpe the women of the Hebrewes, and se vpon the stole, that it is a sonne, then slay him: but yf it be a daughter, let her lyue. Nevertheless the mydwynes feared God, & dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them, but let the childre lyue.

Then the kynge of Egypte called the mydwynes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye this, that ye let the childre lyue? The mydwynes answered pharaos: The women of the Hebrewes are not as the women of Egypte, for they are sturdy women: or euer the mydwynes come at them, they are deliuered.

Therefore God deale well with the mydwynes. And the people multiplied, and became exceedinge mightie. And for so much as the mydwynes feared God, he made them houses. Then pharaos commaunded all his people and sayde: All the sonnes that are borne, cast in to the water, but let all the daughters lyue.

The II. Chapter.

And there wente forth a man of the house of Levi, and toke a daughter of Levi. And the wife conceaued and bare a sonne. And whan she sawe that it was a proper childe, she hyd him thre monethes. And whan she coude hyde him no longer, she toke an Arke of reedes, and dawbed it ouer with sylme and pitch, and layed the childe therein, and set it amonge the reedes by the waters brynke. But his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wolde come of him.

And pharaos daughter came downe, to wash herself in the water: And hir maydens walked by the water syde: and whan she sawe the Arke amonge the reedes, she sent one of hir maydens, and caused it to be fette. And whan she opened it, she sawe a childe: and beholde the babe wepte. Then had she pytie vpon it, and sayde: It is one of the Hebrewes childre.

Then sayde his sister vnto pharaos daughter: Eshal I go, and call the a nurse of the Hebrewes women, to nurse the childe? pharaos daughter sayde vnto her: Go thy waye. The mayde wente, and called the childe's mother. Then sayde pharaos daughter vnto her: Take this childe, and nurse it for me, I wyll geue thee thy rewarde. The woman toke the childe, and nursed it.

And whan the childe was growne, she brought it vnto pharaos daughter, and it became hir sonne, and she called him Moyses. For she sayde: I toke him out of the water. Vpon a tyme whan Moyses was greete, he wente forth vnto his biethren, and looked vpon their burthens, and sawe, that an Egyptian smote one of his biethren a Hebrew. And he loved rounde aboute him: and whan he sawe that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and buried him in the sonde.

The next daye he wente forth also, and sawe two men of the Hebrewes stry-ynge together, and sayde to the vngodly: Wherfore synest thou thy neighbour? But he sayde: Who made the a ruler or iudge ouer vs? Wilt thou slaye me also, as thou slewest the Egipcian? The was Moses a frayd, and sayde: How is this knowne? And Pharaos herde of it, and sought for Moses, to slaye him. But Moses fled from Pharaos, and kept him in the lande of Madian, and sat him downe by a wells syde.

The priest Madian had seven daughters, which came to drawe water, and fylled the troughes, to geue their fathers shepe to drinke. Then came the shepherdes, and droue the awaye. But Moses gat him vp, and helped them, and gave their shepe to drinke. And whan they came to Reguel their father, he saide: How came ye so soone to daie? They sayde: A man of Egipce deliuered vs from shepherdes, and drew vnto vs, and gave the shepe to drinke. He sayde vnto his daughters: Where is he? Wherfore let ye the man go, that ye called him not to eate with vs?

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gave Moses his daughter Zippora, which bare him a sonne, and he called him Gerson, for he sayde: I am become a stranger in a strange lande. And she bare him yet a sonne, whom he called Eliezer, and sayde: The God of my father is my helper, and hath deliuered me from Pharaos hande.

But after this in processe of tyme, the kynge of Egipce dyed. And the childre of Israel sighd ouer their laboure, and cried. And their crye ouer their laboure, came before God. And God herde their cōplaynte, and remēbred his couenant with Abraham Isaac and Jacob. And God looked vpon the childre of Israel, and God knew it.

The iii. Chapter.

Moses kept the shepe of Jethro his father in lawe priest of Madian, and droue the shepe on the backsyde of the wyldernes, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angell of the LORD appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the bush. And he sawe that the bush brennt with fyre, and yet was not consumed, and saide: I wil go hence, and se this greates sight, why the bush is not brennt.

Act. 7. d

Ios. 5. d

Whan the LORD sawe, that he wente his waye to se, God called vnto him out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered: Here am I. He sayde: Come not hither, put thy shues of thy fete, for the place where vpon thou standest, is an hely groun de. And he sayde moouer: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses covered his face, for he was afrayed to look vpon God.

And the LORD sayde: I have sene the trouble of my people in Egipce: and I have heard their crye ouer those that oppresse them. I knowe their sorrowe, and am come downe to deliuer them from the power of the Egipcians, and to carye them out of that lande, in to a good and wyde lande, even in to a lande that floweth with mylke and hony: namely, vnto the place of the Cananites, the Hittites, Amourites, Pherecites, Heneues, Jebusites, for so much now as the cōplaynte of the childre of Israel is come before me, I have sene their oppression wherewith the Egipcians oppresse them: So now I waye therfore, I wil sende the vnto Pharaos, that thou mayest brynge my people the childre of Israel out of Egipce. Moses sayde vnto God: Who am I, that I shulde go vnto Pharaos, and brynge the childre of Israel out of Egipce?

He sayde: I will be with the: and this shall be the token, that I haue sene the. Whan thou hast brought my people out of Egipce, ye shal serue God vpon this mountayne. Moses sayde vnto God: Beholde, whan I come to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: The God of youre fathers hath sene me vnto you, and they saye vnto me: What is his name? what shal I saye vnto them? God saide vnto Moses: I will be what I will be. And he sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the childre of Israel: I wil be hath sent me vnto you. And God sayde moouer vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the childre of Israel: The LORD God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you, this is my name for euer, and my memoriall from childe to childe. Go thy waye therfore, and gather the elders of Israel together, and saye vnto them: The LORD God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue visited you, and sene what is done vnto you in Egipce, and haue sayde: I wil brynge you out of the trouble of Egipce, in to a lande of Cananites, Hittites, Amourites, Pherecites, Heneues, Jebusites: in to a lode that floweth with mylke and hony. And if they heare thy voyce, then shalt thou and the elders of Israel go in to the kynge of Egipce, and saye vnto him: The LORD God of the Hebrewes hath called vs: Let vs go now therfore the dayes iourney in the wyldernes, that we maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD our God.

But I knowe, that the kynge of Egipce wil not let you go, but thou shalt a mightie haue. For I wil stretch out myne hande, and synce Egipce with all maner of wonders which I wil do thern: after that shal he let you go. And I wil geue this people fanoure in the sight of the Egipcians: so that whan ye go forth, ye shal not go forth empty: but every wife shall borrowe of hir neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in hir house, Jewels of siluer and golde and rayment: those shal ye put vpon youre sonnes and daughters, and spoyle the Egipcians.

The iii. Chapter.

Moses answered, and sayde: Beholde, they shall not beleue me, nor heare my voyce, but shal saye: The LORD hath not appeared vnto the. The LORD sayde vnto him: What is that, that thou hast in thine hande? He saide a staffe. He sayde: Cast it from the vpon the grounde. And he cast it fro him: then was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled fro it. But the LORD saide vnto him: Stretch forth thine hande, and take it by the tayle. Then stretched he forth his hande, and took it, and it became a staffe agayne in his hande. Therfore shal they beleue that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the LORD sayde furthermore vnto him: Thurst thine hande in to y bosome. And he thrust it in to his bosome, and took it out: behold, the was it leper like snowe. And he saide: Put it in to y bosome agayne. And he put it agayne in to his bosome, and took it out: behold, the was it turned agayne as his flesh. If they wil not beleue the, nor heare thy voyce of the first token, yet shal they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But if they wil not beleue these two tokens, nor heare thy voyce, then take of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye lande: so shall the same water that thou hast take out of y ryuer, be turned vnto bloude vnto y drye lande.

But Moses sayde vnto the LORD: Oh my LORD, I am a man that is not eloquer, from yesterdaye to yesterdaye, and sence the tyme that thou hast spok vnto thy seruants: for I haue a slowe speach, and a slowe tounge. The LORD sayde vnto him: Who hath made the mouth of man? Or who hath made the deeme, or the deaf, or the seynge, or the blinde? haue not I the LORD done it? So now thy waye therfore, I wil be with thy mouth, and teach the what thou shalt saye.

But Moses sayde: My LORD, sende whom thou wilt sende. Then was the LORD very angrie at Moses, and saide: Do not I knowe then, that thy brother Aaron the Leuite is well speken? And beholde, he shal go forth to meete thee: and whan he seyth the, he shal reioyse from his hert. Thou shalt speake vnto him, and put the wordes in his mouth: and I wil be with thy mouth, and teach you what ye shall doo: and he shal speake vnto the people for the. He shal be thy mouth, and thou shalt be his God. And take in thine hande this staffe, wherewith thou shalt do tokens.

Exod. 4. e

Moses wote, and came agayne vnto Jethro his father in lawe, and sayde vnto him: Let me go (I praye the) that I maye turne agayne vnto my brethren, which are in Egipce, and se whether they be yet alyue. Jethro sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace. The LORD sayde also vnto him in Madian: Go thy waye, turne agayne in to Egipce, for I me are dead, that sought after thy life. So Moses took his wife, and his sonnes, and caried them vpon an Ass, and wente agayne in to the lande of Egipce, and took the staffe of God in his hande. And the LORD saide vnto Moses: When thou comest agayne in to Egipce, se thou to all the wonders (before Pharaos) which I haue put in y hande. But I wil harden his hert, that he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt saie vnto Pharaos: Thus sayeth the LORD: Israel is my firstborne sonne, and I saye vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me: If thou wilt not let him go, then wil I slaye thy firstborne sonne.

2. Ios. 2. a

And as he was by the waye in the Iune, the LORD met him, and wolde haue slayne him. Then took Zippora a stone, and circumcyded the foreskynne of hir sonne, and touched his fete, and sayde: A bloody brydegrome art thou vnto me. The let he him go. But she sayde: A bloody brydegrome, because of the circumcision.

And the LORD sayde vnto Aaron: Go meete Moses in the wyldernes. And he wote, and met him on the mount of God, and kysed him. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the LORD, which had sent him: and all the tokens that he had charged him withall. And they wote, and gathered all the elders of the childre of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes, that the LORD had spok vnto Moses: and dyd the tokens before the people, and the people beleued. And whan they herde that the LORDE visited the children of Israel, and looked upon their trouble, they bowed themselves, and worshipped.

The V. Chapter.

Afterward wente Moses & Aaron, & spake vnto Pharaos: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: let my people go, & they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wilderness. Pharaos answered: What felowe is the LORDE, that I must heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the LORDE, nether wil I let Israel go.

They sayde: The God of the Hebrewes hath called vs. Let vs go nowtherfore three dayes iourney in the wilderness, & do sacrifice vnto the LORDE God, & there happen not vnto vs pestilence or swerde. The sayte & kynge of Egypte vnto the: Why make ye & people (thou Moses & Aaron) to leaue their worke? Get you hence to y^r labour. Pharaos said moreover: Beholde, & people are to many in & lande, and yet wil ye byd them cease from their labour.

B The same daye therfore dyd Pharaos commaunde the workmasters of the people, and their officers, and sayde: Ye shal not gather and geue the people eny more strawe, to turne bryck, as yesterdays and yesterydays. Let them go, and gather them strawe them selues. And the nombre of the brycke which they made yesterdays & yesterydays, shall ye laye vpon them neuertheles, and mynyshe nothinge therof: for they are yble. Therfore crye they and saye: We wil go, and do sacrifice vnto oure God. Let the men be keppe doone wth labour, & they maye haue to do, & not to turne them selues to false wordes.

Then wente the workmasters of the people & their officers out, & spake vnto the people: Thus sayeth Pharaos: There shall no strawe be geuen you, go youre waye youre selues, and get you strawe, where ye can fynde it. But of youre labo^r there shall nothinge be mynyshe. Then were the people scattered in all & lande of Egypte, to gather stubble, that they mighte haue strawe.

C And the workmasters haistied them forward, & sayde: Fulfill y^r daye worke, like as whan ye had strawe. And the officers of & children of Israel, whom Pharaos workmasters had set ouer them, were beaten, & it was saide vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled y^r appoynted daye worke to daye and yesterdays, like as in tymes past?

Then wente the officers of the children of Israel, & cōplayned vnto Pharaos: Wherfore wilt thou deale thus wth thy seruantes?

Thy seruantes haue no strawe geuen the, & yet must we make the brycke that are appoynted vs. And beholde, thy seruantes are beaten, & thy people are euell intreated. Pharaos sayde: Ye are yble, yble are ye, therfore saye ye: we wil go, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Go now y^r waye therfore, & worke: there shall no strawe be geuen you, but the nombre of brycke shal ye deliuer.

Then sawe the officers of the children of Israel, & it was not amended, for it was sayde: ye shal mynyshe nothinge of the daye worke of the brycke. And whan Moses & Aaron wente from Pharaos, they came forth to meete them, & sayde vnto them: The LORDE loke vpon you, & iudge it, for ye haue made the seruour of vs to stynte before Pharaos and his seruantes, and haue geuen them a swerde in their handes, to slaye vs.

But Moses came agayne vnto the LORDE, and sayde: LORDE, wherfore dealest thou so euell wth this people? Wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence the tyme that I wente in vnto Pharaos, to speake vnto him in thy name, he hath dealt euell wth this people, and thou hast not deliuered & people. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Now shalt thou se, what I will do vnto Pharaos, for thou & a mightie hande must he let them go, thou & a mightie hande must he dryue them from him out of his lande.

The VI. Chapter.

And God spake vnto Moses, & sayde: I vnto him: I am & LORDE, & I appeared vnto Abraham, Isaac & Jacob, an Allmightie God: but my name, LORDE, haue I not shewed vnto them: My couenaunt also haue I made wth them, that I wil geue them the lande of Canaan, the lande of their pilgrimage, wherin they haue bene strangers. Moreover I haue herde the cōplaynte of the children of Israel, whom & Egyptians oppresse wth labour, and haue remembered my couenaunt.

Therfore saye vnto the childre of Israel: I am the LORDE, & wil brynge you out from y^r burthens in Egypte, & wil rydd you from youre labour, and wil deliuer you thowow stretched out arme & greete iudgements, and will receaue you for my people, & will be y^r God: so that ye shal knowe, that I the LORDE am y^r God, which brynge you out from the burthen of Egypte, and wil brynge you into the lande, ouer the which I haue lift vp my hande, to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & same wil I geue vnto you for a possession. I the LORDE.

B Moses tolde this vnto the childre of Israel. But they hearkened not vnto him, for very angurish of sperte, & for sore labour. The spake the LORDE vnto Moses, & sayde: Go thy waye, & speake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & he let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. But Moses spake before & LORDE, & sayde: Beholde, & childre of Israel hearken not vnto me, how shulde Pharaos the heare me? And I am also of vncircumcised lippes.

So the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & gaue the a commaundement vnto the childre of Israel, & vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & they shulde brynge the childre of Israel out of Egypte.

These are & heades of the house of their fathers. The children of Ruben the first sonne of Israel, are these: Hanoch, Pallu, Hesron, Charmi: These are the generations of Ruben.

The children of Simeon are these: Jemuel, Jamin, Obad, Jachin, Zophar, and Saul the sonne of the Cananitishe woman: These are the generations of Symeon.

These are the names of the childre of Leui in their generacions: Gerson, Kahath and Merari: Leui was an hundred and seven & thirtie yeare olde. The children of Gerson are these: Libni and Semei in their generacions. The childre of Kahath are these: Amram, Jexar, Hebion, Osiel. Kahath was an hundred & thie & thirtie yeare olde. The childre of Merari are these: Mabeli and Musi. These are & generacions of Leui in their tymes.

And Amram toke his vncles daughter Jochebed to wife, which bare him Aaron & Moses. Amram was an C & viij. & thirtie yeare olde. The childre of Jexar are these: Korah, Nepheg, Sichri. The childre of Osiel are these: Misael, Elaphan, Sichui.

Aaron toke Elizabeth & daughter of Ami nadab Labassons sisters to wife, which bare him Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar, Ichamar.

The childre of Korah are these: Assir, Elkana, & Abiassaph. These are & generacions of & Korahites. Eleasar Aarons sonne toke one of the daughters of Putiel to wife, which bare him Phineas. These are the heades amonge the fathers of the generations of the Leuites.

This is & Aaron & Moses, vnto whom & LORDE sayde: Bynge & childre of Israel out of the lande of Egypte wth their armies. It is they (namely Moses & Aaron) & spake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & they might brynge the childre of Israel out of Egypte. The same daie spake & LORDE vnto Moses in & lande of Egypte, & sayde: I am & LORDE, speake thou vnto Pharaos & kynge of Egypte, all & I saye vnto &. And he answered before & LORDE: Beholde, I am of vncircumcised lippes, how shall Pharaos the heare me? The VII. Chapter.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I haue made the a God ouer Pharaos, & Aarons & brother shal be & piophet. Thou shalt speake all & I comaunde &: but Aaron & brother shal speake vnto Pharaos, & he maye let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. Neuertheles I wil harden Pharaos hert, & I maye multiplye my tokens & wonders in the lande of Egypte. And Pharaos shal not heare you, & I maye shewe my hande in Egypte, & brynge myne armyes, euen my people the childre of Israel out of & lande of Egypte, by greete iudgements. And & Egyptians shal knowe, & I am the LORDE, whan I shal stretch out my hande vpon Egypte, and brynge the childre of Israel out from amonge them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Moses was fourescore yeare olde, & Aaron the & foure score yeare olde, whan they spake vnto Pharaos. And & LORDE sayde vnto Moses & Aaron: Whan Pharaos saye: vnto you: Shew youre wonders, then shalt thou saye vnto Aaron: Take thy staff, and cast it before Pharaos, & it shal turne to a serpent.

Then were Moses & Aaron in vnto Pharaos, & dyd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Aaron cast his staff before Pharaos & before his seruantes, & it turned to a serpēt. Then Pharaos called for & wyse men & Sorcerers. And the Sorcerers of Egypte also dyd like wyse wth their Sorceries, and euery one cast his staff before him, & they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staff deuoured their stauces. So Pharaos hert was hardened, and he hearkened not vnto them, euen as the LORDE had sayde.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: The hart of Pharaos is hardened, he refuseth to let & people go. Get & vnto Pharaos in the momynge, beholde, he shal come vnto & water, mete theu him vpo the waters brynke, & take & staff which turned to a serpēt, in thine hande, & saye vnto him: The LORDE God of the Hebrewes hath sent me vnto the, & sendeth & wordes: Let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wilderness: but hither to thou woldest not heare.

Therefore thus ſayeth the LORD: whereby ſhalt thou knowe, & I am I LORD. Behold, & the ſtaff & I haue in my hande, wil I ſmyte the water which is in the ryuer, & it ſhall be turned in to bloude: ſo that the fiſhes in the ryuer ſhall dye, & the ryuer ſhall ſtynke: & it ſhall greue the Egipcians to drynke of the water of the ryuer.

D And I LORD ſpake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Take the ſtaff, & ſtretch out thine hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their ryuers & brookes & pondeſ, & ouer all water poles, & they maye be turned to bloude, & that there maye be bloude in all the lande of Egypte, both in veſſels of woodd and ſtone.

Pal. 77. 3 Moſes & Aaron dyd as I LORD commaunded them, & liſt up the ſtaff, & ſmote the water & was in the ryuer, beſore Pharaos & his ſeruauntes, & all the water in the ryuer was turned in to bloude, & the fiſh in the ryuer dyed, & the ryuer ſtante, ſo that the Egipcians coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer, & there was bloude in all the lande of Egypte. And the Sorcerers alſo of Egypte, dyd likewiſe with their Sorceries. But Pharaos hert was hardened, & he hertened not vnto the LORD, like as the LORD had ſayde. And Pharaos turned himſelf, & wente home, & ſet nor his hert there on. All the Egipcians dygged roude aboute the ryuer, for water to drynke: for they coulde not drynke of the water out of the ryuer. And this endured ſeven dayes longe, that the LORD ſmote the ryuer.

The viij. Chapter.

A The LORD ſayde vnto Moſes: Go the waye to Pharaos, & ſpeake vnto him: Thus ſaith the LORD: Let my people go, & they maye ſerue me: If thou wilt not let the go, beholde, I wil ſmyte all the borders of the ſelde with frogges, ſo that the ryuer ſhall ſtraule with frogges: theſe ſhall clymme vp, & come in to thine houſe, in to the chamber, where thou ſleepeſt, vpon thy bed, and in to the houſes of thy ſeruauntes, amonge thy people, in to thine ouens, and vpon thy dowe: and the frogges ſhall come vp vpon the, and vpon thy people, and vpon all thy ſeruauntes.

B And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch forth thine hande with thy ſtaff ouer the ſtreames, & ryuers, & pondeſ, and let frogges come vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron ſtretched his hande ouer the waters in Egypte, & there came vp frogges, ſo that the lande of Egypte was covered.

The Sorcerers alſo dyd likewiſe, with their Sorceries, & cauſed frogges to come vpon the lande of Egypte. The called Pharaos for Moſes & Aaron, & ſayde: Praye the LORD for me, & he maye take awaye the frogges from me & from my people, & I wil let the people go, & they maye do ſacrifice vnto the LORD.

Moſes ſayde: Haue thou the hono^r before me, & appoynte me, what I ſhal praye for the, for thy ſeruauntes and for thy people: & the frogges maye be dryuen awaye from the & from thy houſe, & remayne onely in the ryuer. He ſayde: Tomorrow. He ſayde: Even as thou haſt ſayde, & thou mayeſt knowe, & there is none like vnto the LORD & God: And the frogges ſhall be taken from the, & from thy houſe, from thy ſeruauntes, & from thy people, & remayne onely in the ryuer.

So Moſes & Aaron wente from Pharaos, & Moſes cried vnto the LORD for the appoyntment ouer the frogges, which he had promyſed vnto Pharaos. And I LORD dyd as Moſes ſayde. And the frogges dyed in the houſes, in the courtes, & vpon the felde: & they gathered the together, here an heape, & there an heape, & the lande ſtante of them. But when Pharaos ſawe that he had gotten bieth, his hert was hardened, and he hertened not vnto the LORD, euen as the LORD had ſayde.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch out thy ſtaff, & ſmyte the duſt vpon the earth: & there maye be liſe in the whole lode of Egypte. They dyd ſo. And Aaron ſtretched out his hande with his ſtaff, & ſmote the duſt vpon the earth, & there were liſe vpon men and vpon catell: All the duſt of the lande was turned vnto liſe in all the lande of Egypte.

The Sorcerers alſo aſſayde likewiſe with their Sorceries, & they might bringe forth liſe, but they coulde not. And the liſe were vpon men & catell. Then ſayde I Sorcerers vnto Pharaos: It is the finger of God. But Pharaos hert was hardened, & he hertened not vnto the LORD, euen as the LORD had ſayde.

And I LORD ſaide vnto Moſes: Get vp tomorrow by tymes, & ſtonde beſore Pharaos: beholde, he wil go vnto the water, & ſpeake thou vnto him: Thus ſaith I LORD: Let my people go, & they maye ſerue me: yf not, beholde, I wil cauſe cruell wormes (or flies) to come vpon the, thy ſeruauntes, & people, & thy houſe, ſo that all the Egipcians houſes, & the felde, and what thereon is ſhall be full of cruell wormes: & the ſame daye wil I ſeparate the lande of Geſen, wherein my people are, ſo that no cruell worme ſhalbe there, that thou mayeſt knowe, that I am I LORD in the myddelt of the earth. And I wil ſet a diſcrepance betwene my people and thyne.

Tomorrow ſhal this token come to paſſe.

And the LORD dyd ſo. And there came perious cruell wormes in to Pharaos houſe, in to his ſeruauntes houſes, & vpon all the lande of Egypte: and the lande was marred with noyſome wormes.

S The called Pharaos for Moſes & Aaron, & ſayde: Go the waye, & do ſacrifice vnto the God in the lande. Moſes ſayde: It is not meete, & we ſhulde ſo do, ſo ſhulde we offer & abomination of the Egipcians vnto the LORD & God. Beholde, yf we ſhulde offer the abomination of the Egipcians beſore their eyes, ſhulde they not ſtone vs: Thie dayes journeye wil we go in the wyldernes, and do ſacrifice vnto the LORD oure God: like as he hath ſayde vnto vs.

Pharaos ſayde: I wil let you go, & ye maie do ſacrifice vnto the LORD & God in the wyldernes (onely & ye go no farther) & praye for me. Moſes ſayde: Beholde, when I am come forth from the, I wil praye vnto the LORD, & the cruell wormes maye be taken from Pharaos, & from his ſeruauntes, & from his people, euen tomorrow: onely diſceane me nomore, that thou woldeſt not let the people go to do ſacrifice vnto the LORD.

And Moſes wente out from Pharaos, and prayed vnto the LORD. And the LORD dyd as Moſes ſayde, & took awaye the cruell wormes from Pharaos, from his ſeruauntes, and from his people, ſo that there remayned not one. But Pharaos hardened his hert euen then alſo, and let not the people go.

The ix. Chapter.

A The LORD ſayde vnto Moſes: Go in to Pharaos, and ſpeake vnto him: Thus ſaith the LORD God of the Hebrewes: let my people go, & they maye ſerue me. If thou wilt not, but holde them longer, beholde, the hande of the LORD ſhal be vpon thy catell in the felde, vpon horſes, vpon Aſſes, vpon Camels, vpon oxen, vpon ſhepe with a very ſore peſtilence. And I LORD ſhal make a diuſion betwene the catell of the Iſraelites & the Egipcians, ſo that there ſhal nothinge dye of all that the children of Iſrael haue. And I LORD appoynted a tyme, and ſayde: Tomorrow ſhal the LORD do this vpon earth.

B And the LORD dyd the ſame on the morrow. And there dyed of all maner of catell of the Egipcians: but of the catell of the children of Iſrael there dyed not one. And Pharaos ſent thither, & beholde, there was not one of the catell of Iſrael deed. But Pharaos hert was hardened, ſo that he let not the people go. Then ſayde I LORD vnto Moſes & Aaron: Take youre handes full of aſſhes out of the ſomace, & let Moſes ſpientle it toward heauen beſore Pharaos, that it maye be duſt in all the lande of Egypte, & that there maye be ſores & blaynes vpon men & vpon catell in all the lande of Egypte.

And they toke aſſhes out of the ſomace, & ſtode beſore Pharaos, & Moſes ſpientled it toward heauen. Then were there ſores and blaynes vpon men & vpon catell, ſo that the Sorcerers might not ſtode beſore Moſes by reaſon of the ſores. For there were ſores vpon the Sorcerers as well as vpon all the Egipcians. But the LORD hardened Pharaos hert, ſo that he hertened not vnto them, euen as the LORD had ſayde vnto Moſes.

Then ſayde the LORD vnto Moſes: Get the vp tomorrow by tymes, & ſtonde beſore Pharaos, & ſpeake vnto him: Thus ſaith I LORD God of the Hebrewes: let my people go, & they maye ſerue me, els wyll I at this tyme ſende all my plagues in to thine hert, & vpon thy ſeruauntes & vpon thy people: that thou mayeſt knowe, & there is none like me in all landes. For I wil now ſtretch out my hande, & ſmyte the & thy people with peſtilence, ſo that thou ſhalt be rored out from the earth. Yet haue I ſtored & vp for this cauſe, euen to ſhew my power vpon the, and that my name might be declared in all landes.

Thou holdeſt my people yet, & wilt not let them go, beholde, tomorrow aboute this tyme wyll I cauſe a mightie greate hayle to rayne, ſuch as hath not bene in the lande of Egypte, ſence the tyme that it was grounded, hither to. And now ſende thou, & ſaue thy catell, & all that thou haſt in the felde: for all men & catell that ſhalbe founde in the felde, & not brought in to the houſes, yf the hayle fall vpon them, they ſhall dye. Now who ſo feared the worde of the LORD amonge Pharaos ſeruauntes, cauſed his ſeruauntes & catell to flye in to the houſes: but loke whoſe hertes regarded not the worde of the LORD, left their ſeruauntes and catell in the felde.

Then ſayde the LORD vnto Moſes: Stretch out thy hande toward heauen, that it maye hayle vpon all the lande of Egypte, vpon men, vpon catell, & vpon all herbes of the felde in the lande of Egypte. So Moſes ſtretched out his ſtaff toward heauen, and the LORD cauſed it to thunder & hayle, ſo that the ſyeranne alonge vpon the earth. Thus the LORD hayled & rayned vpon the lande of Egypte, ſo that the hayle & ſyer wente ſo horribly together, as neuer was in all the la-be of Egypte, sene the tyme that there were people therein. And the hayle smote the whole lande of Egypte, all that was vpon y^e felde, both men & catell, & smote all the herbes vpon the felde, & brake all the trees vpon y^e felde, save onely in the lande of Gosen, where the childre of Israel were, there it hayled not. Then sent pharao & called for Moses & Aaron, & sayde vnto them: Now haue I synned, & the LORD is righteous, but I & my people are vngodly. Let praye ye vnto the LORD, that the thonder & hayle of God maye cease, then wyl I let you go, that ye shal carry here no longer. Moses sayde vnto him: Whan I am come out of the cite, I wyl stretch out myne handes vnto the LORD, so shal the thonder cease, & there shal be no more hayle: that thou mayest knowe, that the earth is the LORDS. But I knowe, & both thou & thy seruantes feare not yet the LORD God. Thus the flay and the barlye were smytten: for the barlye was shot vp, & y^e flay was bonlled: but the wheate and y^e rye were not smytten, for they were late sowne.

So Moses wente from pharao out of y^e cite, & stretched out his handes vnto y^e LORD. And y^e thonder & the hayle ceased, & the rayne dropped not vpon the earth. But whan pharao sawe y^e the rayne & thonder & hayle ceased, he synned agayne, and hardened his hert, he & his seruantes. So pharao here was hardened, & he let not the childre of Israel go, eue as the LORD had sayde by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

¶ And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Go in vnto pharao, for I haue hardened his hert & the hertes of his seruantes, & I might do these my tokens amonge the, & that thou mightest shewe it in the eares of thy childre & of thy childers childre, what I haue done in Egypte, and how I haue shewed my tokens amonge the, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORD.

So Moses & Aaron wente in vnto pharao, & spake vnto him: Thus sayeth y^e LORD God of the hebrewes: How longe refuset thou to submyt thy self vnto me, to let my people go, & they maye serue me? If thou wilt not let my people go, beholde, tomorrow wil I cause greschoppers to come vpon all places, & they maye cover the lande, so y^e the lande can not be sene, & they shal eat vp y^e is left yon & was deliuered fro the hayle: & shal eat vp all y^e grene trees vpon the felde, & shal fylle thy house, all y^e seruantes houses, & all the Egyptians houses: soch as y^e fathers & y^e fathers fathers haue not sene, sene

the tyme & they were vpon earth vnto this daye. And he turned him, & wente out from pharao. Then sayde pharaoos seruantes vnto him: How longe shall we be snared after this maner? Let the men go, that they maye serue y^e LORD their God. Knowest thou not yet, & Egypte is destroyed? Moses & Aaron were brought agayne to pharao, which sayde vnto them: Go y^e waye, & serue y^e LORD y^e God. But who are they & shal go? Moses sayde: We wil go wth yonger & olde, wth sonnes and doughters, with shepe and oxen: for we haue a feast of the LORD. He sayde vnto the: Let it be so, the LORD be with you: Shulde I let you go & y^e childre also? loke that ye haue not some myschefe in hande. Not so, but go ye that are men, and serue the LORD, for that was youre desyre. And they thrust them out from pharao.

¶ The sayde y^e LORD vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande ouer y^e lande of Egypte, for the greschoppers, & they maye come vpon y^e lande of Egypte, & eat vp all the herbes in the lande, w^{ch} all y^e escaped the hayle. Moses stretched out his staffe ouer y^e lande of Egypte, & the LORD broughte an east wynde in to the lande all y^e daye & all y^e night, & in the mornynge, the east wynde broughte the greschoppers. And they came ouer the whole lande of Egypte, and lighted in all places of Egypte, so exceeding many, that before tyme there were neuer soch, nether shal be here after: for they couered the lande, and made it darcke. And they ate vp all the herbes in y^e lande, & all the frutes vpon the trees which remayned from y^e hayle, & left no grene thinge behinde in the trees & herbes vpon the felde in all the lande of Egypte.

¶ Then pharao called for Moses & Aaron in all y^e haist, & sayde: I haue synned agaynst the LORD y^e God, & agaynst you: forgeue me my synne this once also, & praye the LORD y^e God, & he maye take awaye fro me this death onely. And he wote out from pharao, & prayed vnto the LORD. The LORD turned a marvelous stroge west wynde, and toke vp the greschoppers, & cast them in to the reed see, so that there was not one left in all the quarters of Egypte. But the LORD hardened pharaoos hert, that he let not the childre of Israel go. The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande toward heauen, that it be so darcke in the lande of Egypte, & it maye be felt. And Moses stretched out his hande toward heauen, the was there a thicke darcknesse in all the lande of Egypte thre dayes, so y^e in thre dayes no man sawe another, nor rose vp from y^e place where he was. But wth the childre of Israel there was light in their dwellinges. Then pharao called for Moses, & sayde: Go y^e waye & serue the LORD: onely leaue y^e shepe & y^e oxen here: let y^e childre go wth you also. Moses sayde: Thou must geue vs offringes and biento offeringes, that we maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD y^e God. Our catell shal go wth vs, and there shal not one hooffe be left behynde: for we must take therof for the seruaice of the LORD y^e God. Moreover we knowe not wherewithall we shal serue y^e LORD, tyll we come thither. But the LORD hardened pharaoos hert, & he wolde not let them go. And pharao sayde vnto him: Get the hence from me, & beware, that thou come no more in my sight: for loke what daie so euer thou comest in my sight, thou shalt dye. Moses answered: Eue as thou hast sayde, I wil come no more in thy sight. The XL Chapter.

¶ And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: I wil yet bringe a plage vpon pharao and Egypte: after y^e shal he let you go from hence, & shal not onely let all go, but also dryne you hence. Therfore saye now vnto the people, & everyman borrowe of his neyghboare, & every woman of his neyghbourresse, Jewels of syluer & golde: for the LORD shal geue the people saub in the sight of y^e Egyptians. And Moses was a very greute man in the lande of Egypte, in y^e sight of pharaoos seruantes, & in the sight of the people.

¶ And Moses sayde: Thus sayeth the LORD: At mydnight wil I go out in the lande of Egypte, & all y^e first borne in the lande of Egypte shal dye: from pharaoos first sonne (y^e stretch vpon his seate) vnto the first sonne of the mayde seruante which is behynde y^e myll: & all the first borne amonge the catell: & there shal be a greute crie in all the lande of Egypte, soch as neuer was, ner shal be. But amonge all the childre of Israel there shall not a dogge quatch wth his tonge, fre men vnto catell, y^e ye maye knowe, how y^e the LORD hath put a differēce betwixte Egypte & Israel. The shal all these thy seruantes come downe vnto me, & salat my sore, & saye: Get the out, thou & all the people that are vnder the. After that wyl I departe. And he wote fro pharao wth a wroth full displeasure. The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Pharaoos hert neth not vnto you, y^e many wordes maye be done in y^e lande of Egypte. And Moses & Aaron dyd all these wordes before pharao: but y^e LORD hardened his hert, & he wolde not let y^e childre of Israel go out of his lande.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ The LORD sayde vnto Moses & Aaron in the lande of Egypte: This moneth shal be with you y^e first moneth, & at it ye shal be gyne the monethes of the year. Speake ye vnto all the congregacion of Israel, & saye: Vpon y^e tenth daye of this moneth let every one take a labe (or a lymb) where a household is, to every house a labe. But yf the household be to few for a lambe, the let him & his neyghboare & is next vnto his house, take it accordinge to the nombre of y^e soules, and counte to the lambe, what every man maye eat. But it shal be a lambe without blemish, a male, & of a yeare olde. From amonge the lambes & goates shal ye take it.

And ye shal kepe it vnto y^e fourtene dayes of the moneth. And every man of the congregacion of Israel shal slaye it aboute the eueninge. And they shal take of his bloude, and stryke it on both the syde postes of the doore, and on the vpperdore post of the house, that they eate it in. And so shal they eate flesch y^e same night, roasted at the fyre, & vniuened bled, and shal eate it with sowe sawse. Ye shal not eate it rawe, ner sodden with water, but onely roasted at the fyre, his heade wth his feete and pertenance. And ye shal leaue no chynge of it ouer vntyll the mornynge: but yf eny thinge be left ouer vntyll the mornynge, ye shal burne it with fyre.

Of this maner shal ye eate it: Ye shal be gvyded aboute youre loymes, and haue youre shues vpon youre feete, and stanes in y^e handes, and ye shal eate it with haist: for it is y^e LORDS passeouer. For in the same night wil I go thorow the lande of Egypte, & smyte all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, from men vnto catell, & vpon all the goddes of Egypte wyl I do execution. Euen I the LORD. And the bloude shal be youre token, vpon the houses wherin ye are: & whan I se the bloude, I maye passe ouer, and that the plage happen not vnto you, to destroye you, whan I smyte the lande of Egypte.

E And this daye shall ye haue for a remembrance, and ye shall kepe it holy for a feaste vnto the LORDE, ye & all youre posterities, for a perpetuall custome. Seuen dayes shall ye eate vneleuened bred: namely, vpon the first daie shall ye leaue of with leuened bred in youre houses. Who so euer eateth leuened bred from the first daye vnto & seventh that soule shall be rooted out from Israel. The first daye shall be called holy amonge you, and the seventh also. No maner of worke shall ye do therein, save what belongeth to the meate for all maner of soules, that onely maye ye do for you. And kepe you to leuened bred.

For euen vpon that same daye wil I bringe youre armies out of the lande of Egypte, therfore shall ye and all youre posterities kepe this daye for a perpetuall custome. Vpon the fourtene daye of the first moneth, at euen, shall ye eate vneleuened bred, vnto the one and twente daye of the moneth, at euen: so that there be no leuened bred founde in youre houses seuen dayes. For who so euer eateth leuened bred, that soule shall be rooted out from the congregacion of Israel, whether it be a stranger or borne in the lande. Therfore eate no leuened bred, but onely vneleuened bred in all youre dwellinges.

D And Moses called all the Elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out, and take to every household a shepe, and kyll passeouer vnto the LORDE: and take a bunch of ysaie, and dyppe it in the blode in the basen, and stryke it vpon the vpperposte and vpon the two syde postes, and none of you go out at the doore of his house vntyll & moonyng, for the LORDE wyll go aboute and plage the Egyptians. And whan he seyth the blode vps the vpperposte, and vpon the two syde postes, he wyl passe ouer by the doore, and not suffre the destroyer to come in to youre houses to plage. Therfore kepe this custome for the and thy children for euer.

And whan ye be come into & lande that the LORDE shall geue you, (as he hath sayde) then kepe this seruyce. And whan youre children saye vnto you: What seruyce is this, that ye haue? Ye shall saye: It is the sacrifice of the LORDES passeouer, which passed ouer by the children of Israel in Egypte, whan he plagued the Egyptians, and saved oure houses. Then the people bowed them selves, and worshipped. And the children of Israel wene and dyd, as the LORDE had commanded Moses and Aaron.

And at mydnight the LORDE smote all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte: from Pharaos first sonne (which sat vpon his seate) vntyll the first sonne of the prisoner that was in the prison, and all the firstborne of the cattell. Then Pharaos arose & same night, and all his seruantes, and all the Egyptians, & there was a greete crye in Egypte: for there was no house wherein there was not one deed.

And he called for Moses and Aaron in & night, and sayde: Get you vp, and departe out fro my people, ye and the children of Israel: go youre waye, and serue the LORDE, as ye haue sayde: and take youre shepe and youre oxen with you, as ye haue sayde, and departe, and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were farsee vpon the people, to dryue them haistely out of the lande, for they said: we are all but deed.

And the people toke the rawe dowe, before it was leuened (for their foode) bounde in their cloches vpon their shuldres. And the children of Israel had done as Moses sayde, and borrowed Jewels of syluer and golde, and cloches of the Egyptians: the LORDE also had geuen the people fauoure in the sight of the Egyptians, that they lent them, and so they spoyled the Egyptians.

Thus & children of Israel toke their iourney from Raamses to Suchoth, a fire hundred thousande men of fore, besyde childre. There wente with them also moch cems people, and shepe, and oxen, and exceedinge many cattell.

And of the rawe dowe that they broughte out of Egypte, they baked vneleuened cakes: for it was not leuened, in so moch as they were thurst out of Egypte, and coude not carry: nether had they prepared them any other meate.

The tyme & the children of Israel dwelt in Egypte, is foure hundred and thirtie yeres. Whan the same were ended, the whole hoost of the LORDE wente out of the lande of Egypte in one daye. Therfore shall this might be kepte vnto the LORDE, because he brought them out of the lande of Egypte: And the children of Israel shall kepe it vnto the LORDE, they and their posterities.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the maner of the keepyng of passeouer: There shall no stranger eate of it. But who so is a boughte seruante let him be circumcysed, & then eate therof. A stranger get and an hyred seruante shall not eate of it. In one house shall it be eate. Ye shall cary none of his flesh out of the house, and ye shall not breake a bone of him. The whole congregacion of Israel shall do it.

But yf there dwell a stranger with the, & wil holde passeouer vnto the LORDE, let him circumcysse every one that is male, and then let him first come, and do it, and be as one that is borne in the lande: for there shall no vncircumcysed eate therof. One maner of lawe be vnto him & is borne in the lande, & vnto the stranger & dwelleth amonge you. And all the childre of Israel dyd as the LORDE commanded Moses & Aaron. So vps one daye the LORDE brought the childre of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armyes.

The XIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Sanctifie vnto me every firstborne, & breake all maner of Matrices amonge the childre of Israel, both of men & cattell: for they are myne. Then sayde Moses vnto & people: Thinke vps this daye, in the which ye are gone out of Egypte from the house of bondage, how & & LORDE broughte you out fro thence with a mightie hande. Therfore shall ye eate no sowe dowe. This daye are ye gone out, in & moneth of Abib.

Now & & LORDE hath broughte & into & lande of & Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Hittites & Jebusites, which he swaie vnto & fathers to geue & (euen a lande that floweth with mylke & hony) when shall thou kepe this seruyce in this moneth. Seue dayes shall thou eate vneleuened bred, & vpon the seventh daye is the LORDES feaste: therfore shall thou eate vneleuened bred seue dayes, that there be no sowe dowe, ner sowed bred sene in all thy quarters.

B And thou shalt tell thy sonne at the same tyme, & saye: Because of that, which & LORDE dyd for me, whan I departed out of Egypte. Therfore shall it be a signe vnto & in thine hande, and a token of remembrance as before thine eyes, that the lawe of & LORDE maye be in thy mouth, how that & LORDE brought the out of Egypte with a mightie hande: Therfore kepe this maner yearly in his tyme.

Whan the LORDE now hath brought & into & lande of the Cananites (as he hath sworne vnto the and thy fathers) and hath geuen it the, then shall thou sunder out vnto the LORDE all that breake the Matrice, and firstborne amonge thy cattell, such as is male. The firstborne of the Asses shalt thou bye out with a shepe: but yf thou redeme it not, then breake his neck. All the firstborne of ruen amonge thy children shalt thou redeme.

And whan thy childre aske the to daie or tomorrow: What is this? Thou shalt saye vnto him: The LORDE brought vs out of Egypte from the house of bondage with a mightie hande: for whan Pharaos was loth to let vs go, the LORDE slew all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte, from the firstborne of men vnto & firstborne of the cattell: therfore offer I vnto the LORDE all that breake & Matrice, beyng a male, and & firstborne of my children I redeme. And this shall be a signe vnto the in thine hande, and a token to thinke vpon before thine eyes, how that the LORDE brought vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande.

Now whan Pharaos had let & people go, God led them not the waye thorow the lande of the Philistynes, which was & nexte: for he thought: The people might repen, whan they se warre, and so turne in agayne into Egypte. Therfore led he the people aboute, euen the waye thorow the wyldernes by & reed see. And the childre of Israel wente harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke Josephs bones with him, for he toke an oath of the children of Israel, and sayde: God wyll surely visyte you, therfore cary awaye my bones with you from hence.

So they toke their iourney fro Suchoth, & pitched their tentes in Etham in & edge of the wyldernes. And & LORDE wete before the by daye in a piler of a cloude, to lede the & right waye: and by night in a piler of fyre, that he might shewe the light to walke both by daie and night. The piler of the cloude departed neuer from the people by daye, and the piler of fyre departed not from the by night.

The XIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and byd them that they turne aboute, & pitch their tentes before the valley of Jyrioth, betwixte Migdol & the see toward Baal Zephth, and there pitch & tent right ouer by the see. For Pharaos shall saye of the children of Israel: They can not tell how to get out of the lande, the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his heart, & he shall folowe after them, & I wil geue me honoure vpon Pharaos, and vpon all his power. And & Egyptians shall knowe, & I am the LORDE. And they dyd so.

B And whan it was tolde þe King of Egypte, þe þe people fled, his hert z his seruantes were turned agaynst þe people, z saide: Why haue we done this, that we haue let Israel go, þe they shalbe not serue vs: And he bounde his charettes fast, and toke his people w him, and toke six hundred chossen charettes, and the other charettes besyde that were in Egypte, and the captaynes ouer all his: for the LORDE hardened þe hert of pharaos kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the children of Israel. And the children of Israel wente out with an hie hande.

C And the Egyptians folowed after the, z overtoke them (where they had pitched by þe see) with houses and charettes, and horsmen, and with his power, in the valley of Syath towards Baal Zephon. And whan pharaos came nye them, the children of Israel lift vp their eyes, and beholde, þe Egyptians wente behynde the, and they were sore afraied, and cried vnto the LORDE.

And sayde vnto Moses: Were there no graues in Egypte, þe thou hast brought vs awaye to dye in the wyldernes? Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast caried vs out of Egypte? Is not this it, that we sayde vnto the in Egypte? Leane of, z let vs serue the Egyptians: for it were better for vs to serue the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernes? Moses sayde vnto the people: Feare you not, sponde styll, and beholde, what a saluacion the LORDE shall shewe vpon you this daye: for these Egyptians whom ye se this daye, shall ye neuer se more for ever: the LORDE shal fight for you, onely quyet your selues.

D The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wherfore criest thou vnto me? Speake vnto þe children of Israel, þe they go forwarde. But lift thou vp þe staff, z stretch out thine hande ouer þe see, z parte it asunder, þe the children of Israel maye go in thorow þe myddest of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I wyll harden þe hert of the Egyptians, þe they shall folowe after you. Thus wyl I get me honoure vpon pharaos, z vpon all his power, vps his charettes and horsmen: and the Egyptians shal knowe, that I am þe LORDE, whan I haue gotten me hono vpon pharaos, vpon his charettes, and vpon his horsmen.

Then the angell of God þe wente before the armies of Israel, remoued, and gat him behynde them: and the cloude piler remoued also from before them, and stode behynde the and came betwixte the armies of the Egip clans and the armies of Israel. It was a darcke cloude, and gaue light that night, so that all the night longe these and they coude not come together.

Whan Moses now stretched forth his hande ouer þe see, the LORDE caused it to passe awaye thorow a myghtie eastwynde all that night, and made the see drye, and þe water dryed it self a sunder. And the children of Israel wente in thorow the myddest of þe see vpon the drye grounde: and þe water was vnto them as a wall, vpon their ryghte hande z vps their lefte. And þe Egyptians folowed, z wente in after the, all pharaos houses, z charettes, z horsmen, eue in to þe myddest of þe see.

Now whan the momyng came, the LORDE looked vps the armies of the Egyptians out the piler of fire and þe cloude, z troubled their armies, and smote the wheles from their charettes, z overthrew them w a storme. Then sayde the Egyptians: Let vs flye from Israel, the LORDE sighteth for the agaynst the Egyptians.

But þe LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande ouer the see, that þe water maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon their charettes, and horsmen. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the see, and the see came agayne before daye in his course and strength, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. Thus the LORDE overthrew them in the myddest of the see, so that the water came agayne, and covered þe charettes and horsmen, and all pharaos power which folowed after them in to the see, so that there remayned not one of them. But the children of Israel wente drye thorow þe myddest of the see, and the water was vnto them as a wall vpon their ryghte hande and vpon their lefte.

Thus the LORDE delyuered Israel in þe daye from the hande of the Egyptians. And they sawe the Egyptians deed vpon þe see styll, and the greete hande þe the LORDE had shewed vpon the Egyptians. And þe people feared þe LORDE, and beleued him, and his seruante Moses.

The XV. Chapter.

A Then sange Moses and the children of Israel this songe vnto the LORDE, and sayde:

I will syng vnto þe LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, horse z charet hath he ouerthrowne in the see.

The LORDE is my strength, and my son ge, and is become my saluacion.

This is my God, I wil magnifie him: he is my fathers God, I wil exalte him.

The LORDE is the ryghte man of warre, LORDE is his name. The charettes of pharaos z his power, hath he cast in to the see.

His chossen capteynes are drowned in the reed see, þe depe hath covered them: they fell to the grounde as a stone.

Thy ryghte hande (O LORDE) is glorious in power: thy ryghte hande (O LORDE) hath smytten the enemies.

And with thy greete glory thou hast destroyed thine aduersaries: thou sentest out thy wrath, z it consumed them, euen as stubble.

In the berych of thy wrath the waters full together, the floudes wente vpon a heape: the depes plomped together in þe myddest of the see.

B The enemy thought: I will folowe vpon them, and overtake them, and deuoyde I spoyle, and coole my mynde vpon them.

I wil drawe out my swerde, and my hande shal destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy wynde, the see covered them, and they sank as leede in the myghtie waters.

LORDE, who is like vnto the amonge y goddesses? Who is so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and doinge wonders?

Whan thou stretchedest out thy ryghte hande, the earth swallowed them vp.

Thou of thy very mercy hast led this people, whom thou hast delyuered, and with thy strength thou hast brought them vnto the dwellynge of thy Sanctuary.

Whan þe nations herde this, they ragged, shewe came vpon the philistynes.

Then were þe prynces of Edom afraied, tremblinge came vps y myghtie of Moab, all the indwellers of Canaan waxed saynte harted.

C Let feare and drede fall vpon them thorow thy greete arme, that they maye be as styll as a stone, tyll thy people (O LORDE) be gone thorow, tyll þe people whom thou hast gotten, be gone thorow.

Drynge them in, and plante them vpon the mountayne of thy inheritaunce, vnto þe place that thou hast made for thine owne dwellyngemen to þe temple (O LORDE) which thy handes haue prepared.

The LORDE shal be kynge for ever z ener. For pharaos roente in to the see with horses, and charettes, and horsmen, and the LORDE made the see fall agayne vpon them.

But the children of Israel wite drye thorow the myddest of the see.

And Miriam the prophetisse, Aarons sister, toke a tymbiell in hir hande, and all the women folowed out after her with tymbells in a daunse. And Miriam sange before the: O let vs syng vnto the LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, man and horse hath he ouerthrowne in the see.

Ex. 15. a

Moses caused the children of Israel to be parte out from the reed see, vnto the wyldernes of Sur, z they wente thre dayes in þe wyldernes, þe they founde no water. Then came they to Marath, but they coude not drinke þe water for bytternes, for it was very bytter. Therfore was it called Marath, (þe is bytternes.) Then þe people murmured agaynst Moses, z sayde: What shal we drynte? And Moses cried vnto þe LORDE, which shewed him a cresshe: he put in þe water, the was it sweete.

The XVI. Chapter.

A And they came vnto Elim, where there were twelue welles of water, and seuentie palme trees, and there they pitched by þe water syde. From Elim they toke their iourney, and the whole congregacion of the children of Israel came in to the wyldernes of Sin (which lyeth betwene Elim and Sinai) vpon the fyftene daye of the secomde moneth, after that they were departed out of the londe of Egypte. And þe whole multitude of the children of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in þe wyldernes, and saide vnto them: Wolde God we had dyed in the londe of Egypte by the hande of the LORDE, whan we sae by þe flesh potes, and had had ynough to eate: for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernes, to cause this whole multitude dye of hunger.

Num. 11. a

The sayde þe LORDE vnto Moses beholde

I wyl rayne you bried from heauen, and let the people go out, and gather daylie, what they nede, that I maye proue whether they walke in my lawe or not. But vpon the sixte daye they shal prepare the selues, that they maye bringe in twyse as much as they gather daylie.

Moses and Aaron saide vnto all the children of Israel: At euen ye shall knowe, that the LORDE hath brought you out of the lode of Egypte, and in the morninge shall ye see the glory of the LORDE: for he hath herde youre grudginges agaynst the LORDE. For what are we, that ye grudge agaynst vs?

Moses sayde morouer: At euen shall the LORDE geue you flesh to eate, and in the morninge bried ynough: because the LORDE hath herde youre grudginges, that ye haue grugged agaynst him. For what are we? Your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of the children of Israel: Come forth before the LORDE, for he hath herde youre murmurings.

And whyle Aaron spake thus vnto the whole congegacion of the childre of Israel, they turned them toward the wyldernes: and beholde, the glory of the LORDE appeared in a cloude, and the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I haue herde the murmuringe of the children of Israel. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue flesh to eate, and in the morninge shal ye be fylled with bried, and ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE youre God.

And at euen the quayles came vp, and covered the tentes: and in the morninge the dew laye rounde aboute the tentes. And whan the dew was falle, beholde, there laye a thynge in the wyldernes, thynne and small, as the hoiefrost vpon the grounde.

What is this?

And whan the children of Israel sawe it, they saide one to another: This is Ma. For they wyl not what it was. But Moses sayde vnto them: It is the bried that the LORDE hath geue you to eate. This is it that the LOR

DE hath commaunded: Every one gather for himself as much as he eateth, and take a Gomer for every heade, accordinge to the nombre of the soules in his tente.

And the children of Israel dyd so, and gathered some more, some lesse. But whan it was measured out with the Gomer, he that gathered much, had not the more: and he that gathered litle, wanted nothinge, but every one gathered for himself, as much as he ate. And Moses sayde vnto them: Let no man leaue ought thereof vntill the morninge. But they hartened not vnto Moses. And some left of it vntill the morninge. Then waxed it full of wormes and stank. And Moses was angrie at them.

And every morninge they gathered for them selues, as much as every one ate: but as soone as it was whote of the Sonne, it melted awaye. And vpon the sixte daye they gathered twyse as much of bried, two Gomers for one. And all the rulers of the congregacion came in, and tolde Moses. And he sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath sayde: Tomorrow is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the LORDE: loke what ye wil bake, that baketh, and what ye wyl seeth, that seeth, and that remaineth ouer, let it remaine, for it maye be kepte vntill the morninge. And they let it remaine vntill the morow, as Moses commaunded. Then stank it not, neither was there any worme therein. The sayde Moses: Eate that to daye, for to daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE, to daye shal ye fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes shal ye gather it, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath, wher in there shal be none.

But vpon the seventh daye there wente out some of the people to gather, and founde nothinge. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: How longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundementes and lawes? Beholde, the LORDE hath geuen you the Sabbath, therefore vpon the sixte daye he geueth you bried for two dayes: therefore let every man now byde at home, and nomango forth of his place vpon the seventh daye.

So the people rested vpon the seventh daye. And the house of Israel called it Man, and it was like Coriander seede, and whyte, and had a taist like symnels with hony.

And Moses sayde: This is it that the LORDE hath commaunded: Fill a Gomer thereof to be kepte for youre posterities, for they maye see the bried, wherewith I fed you, whan I brought you out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take a cruse, and put a Gomer full of Man therein, and laye it vp before the LORDE, to be kepte for youre posterities, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. So Aaron layed it vp there for a testimony to be kepte.

And the children of Israel ate man fourtye yeres, vntill they came vnto a lande, wher people dwelt: vntill they came to the borders of the lande of Canaan ate they Man. A Gomer is the tenth parte of an Ephah.

The xvii. Chapter.

And the whole multitude of the children of Israel were on their iourneys out of the wyldernes of Sin (as the LORDE commaunded the) pitched in Raphidim. Then had the people no water to drynke. And they chode w Moses, and sayde: Geue vs water, for we maye drynte. Moses sayde vnto the: Why chyd ye me? Wherfore tēp te ye the LORDE? But whan the people thysited there for water, they murmured agaynst Moses, and sayde: Wherfore hast thou caused vs to come out of Egypte: to let vs, oure children, and oure catell dye of hongre?

Moses cried vnto the LORDE, and sayde: What shal I do w this people? They are all most ready to stone me. The LORDE saide vnto him: Go before the people, and take some of the elders of Israel with the, and take in thine hande thy staff, wherewith thou smorest the water, and go thy waye. Beholde, I wyl stonde there before the vpon a rock in Horeb, there shalt thou smyte the rocke, so shall there water runne out, that the people maye drynte. Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel. Then was that place called Massa Meriba, because of the chydunge of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORDE, and sayde: Is the LORDE amonge vs, or not?

Then came Amalek, and fought agaynst Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: Chose vs out men, go out, and fighe agaynst Amalek, tomorrow wil I stonde vpon the toppe of the hyll, and haue the staff of God in my hande. And Josua dyd as Moses bade him, and fought agaynst Amalek. Moses and Aaron and Hur wente vnto the toppe of the hyll. And whan Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the victory: but whan he let downe his hande, Amalek had the victory.

But Moses handes were hery, therefore toke they a stone, and layed it vnder him, that he might syt vpon it. And Aaron and Hur stayed vpon his handes, the one vpon the one syde, and the other vpon the other syde. So his handes were stedfast vnto the Sonne wente downe. And Josua discomfited Amalek, and his people thorow the edge of the swerde.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wryte this for a remembraunce in a booke, and comyete it vnto the eares of Josua: for I wyl rote out Amalek from vnder heauen, so that he shal nomore be remimbred. And Moses buylded an altare vnto the LORDE, and called it: The LORDE Nissi, for he sayde: The battayll of the LORDE shalbe agaynst Amalek thorow an hande vnder the defence of God from childe to childe.

The xviii. Chapter.

And whan Jerhio the prest in Madian Moses father in lawe herde of all the God had done w Moses and his people of Israel, how the LORDE had brought Israel out of Egypte, he toke Zippora Moses wife, whom he had sent backe, with her two sonnes. The one was called Gerson, for he saide: I am become a straunger in a strange lande. And the other was called Eliafer, for he sayde: The God of my fathers hath bene my helpe, and hath deliuered me from pharaos swerde.

Now whan Jerhio Moses father in lawe, and his sonnes and his wife came vnto him in the wyldernes by the mount of God, wher he had pitched his tent, he sent word vnto Moses: I Jerhio thy father in lawe am come vnto the, and thy wife and both hir children with her. Then wente Moses forth to mete him, and dyd obeysaunce vnto him, and kysed him. And whan they had saluted ech other, they wente in to the tente.

Then Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the LORDE had done vnto pharaos and the Egipcians for Israels sake, and all the tranayle that had happened them by the waye, and how the LORDE had deliuered them. Jerhio reioysed ouer all the goodes that the LORDE had done for Israel, for he had deliuered them from the hande of the Egipcians. And Jerhio sayde: Praise be to the LORDE, which hath deliuered you from the hande of the Egipcians and of Pharaoh, (and) that knoweth how to deliuer his people from the Egipcians hande. Now I knowe, that the LORDE is greater the all goddes, because they dealt proudly to them. And Jethro toke brentofferynge, and offered vnto God. Then came Aaron and all the elders of Israel to eate bread with Moses father in lawe before God.

C On the next morow sat Moses to iudge the people, and the people stode rounde aboute Moses from the morninge vntill y even. But whan his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd with the people, he sayde: What is this, that thou doest with the people? Whether fortest thou alone, and all the people stonde rounde aboute from the morninge vntill the euen? Moses answered him: The people come to me, & are counsell at God: for whan they haue any thinge to do, they come vnto me, that I maye iudge betwixte every one & his neighbour, and shewe them the statutes of God, and his lawes.

This father in lawe sayde vnto him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou weerist thy self, and the people that is with the. This busynesse is to sore for the, thou canst not persourne it alone. But hearken vnto my voyce, I will geue the counsell, and God shall be with the. Be thou vnto the people to God warde, and bringe the causes before God, and prouide them with statutes and lawes, that thou mayest shewe the waie wherein they shulde walke, and the workes that they shulde do.

But loke out amonge all the people, for honest men, that feare God, soch as are true, & hate couetousnes: make these rulers ouer them, some ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten, that they maye allwaye iudge the people. But where there is any greate matter, that they bringe the same vnto the, and iudge the small causes them selues: so shall it be lighter for the, yf they beare the burthen with the. If thou shalt do this, then mayest thou endure the thinge that God chargeth the withall, and all this people maye go peaceably vnto their place.

Moses hearkened vnto the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he sayde. And he chose honest men out of all Israel, and made them heades ouer the people, some ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten, that they might allwaye iudge the people. As for soch causes as were herbe, they brought them vnto Moses, and iudged the small matters them selues. So Moses let his father in lawe departe into his owne londe.

The XIX. Chapter.

In the thirde moneth after that the children of Israel were gone out of the londe of Egypte, they came the same daye into the wyldernes of Sinai (for they were departed from Raphidim, and wolde into the wyldernes of Sinai) and there they pitched in the wyldernes ouer against the mount. And Moses wente vp vnto God.

And the LORDE called vnto him out of the mount, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel: Ye haue sene what I haue done vnto the Egipcians, and how I haue borne you vpon Eagles wynges, & broughte you vnto my self. If ye will hearken now vnto my voyce, and kepe my couenant, ye shall be myne owne before all people: for he whole earth is myne: and ye shall be vnto me a priestly kingdome, and an holy people. These are the wordes that thou shalt saye vnto the children of Israel.

Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layed before them all these wordes, that the LORDE had commaunded. And all the people answered together, and sayde: All that the LORDE hath sayde, will we do.

And Moses tolde the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I will come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people maye heare my wordes, which I speake vnto the, and beleue the for euer. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE.

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifie the to daye and tomorrow, & they maye wash their clothes, and be ready agaynst the thirde daye: for vpon the thirde daye shall the LORDE come downe vpon mount Sinai before all the people. And set markes rounde aboute the people, and saye vnto them: Bewarre, that ye go not vp into the mount, ner touch the border of it. For whoso euer toucheth the mount, shal dye by death. There shal no hande touch it, but he shall either be stoned, or shot therewith: whether it be best for man, it shal not be. Whan the home bleweth, then shal they come vp vnto the mount.

C Moses wente downe from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them. And they washed their clothes. And he sayde vnto them: Be ready agaynst the thirde daye, and no man come at his wife.

Now whan the thirde daye came (and it was early) it beganne to thonder and lighten, and there was a thicke cloude vpon the mount, and a noyse of a trompet exceeding mightie. And the people that were in the tentes, were a frayde. And Moses broughte the people out of the tentes to mete to God, and they stode vnder the mount.

But all mount Sinai smoked, because the LORDE came downe vnto it with fyre. And the smoke therof wente vp as the smoke of a furnace, so that the whole mount was exceeding terrible. And the noyse of the trompet wote out, and was mightie. Moses spake, & God answered him loude. Now whan the LORDE was come downe vpon mount Sinai, euen vpon the toppe of it, he called Moses vp vnto the toppe of the mount. And Moses wente vp.

D Then sayde the LORDE vnto him: Go downe, and charge the people, & they preasse not vnto the LORDE to se him, and so many of them perishe. The rulers also that comenye vnto the LORDE, shal sanctifie them selues, lest the LORDE smyte the. But Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: The people can not come vp vpon mount Sinai, for thou hast charged vs, & sayde: Set markes aboute the mount, and sanctifie it.

The LORDE sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, get the downe, Thou and Aaron with the shalt come vp: but the rulers and the people shal not preasse to come vp vnto the LORDE, lest he smyte the. And Moses wente downe to the people, and tolde them.

The XX. Chapter.

In the LORDE spake all these wordes, and sayde: I am the LORDE thy God, which haue brought the out of the londe of Egypte from the house of bondage.

Thou shalt haue none other Goddes in my sight. Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage ner any similitude, nerher of it that is aboue in heauen, ner of it that is beneth vpon earth, ner of it that is in the water vnder the earth. Worshippe them not, and serue them not: for I the LORDE thy God am a gelouse God, visitinge the synne of the fathers vpon the children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacion, of them that hate me: And thou shalt kepe my commaundmentes, that I loue me, and kepe my commaundmentes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the LORDE thy God in vayne. For the LORDE shal not holde him vngilty, that taketh his name in vayne.

Remember the Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifie it. Sixe dayes shalt thou labour, and do all thy worke: But vpon the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE thy God: thou shalt do no maner worke in it, ne ther thou, ner thy sonne, ner thy daughter, ner thy seruant, ner thy mayde, ner thy cattell, ner thy straunger that is within thy gates. For in sixe dayes the LORDE made heauen and earth, and the see, and all that therin is, and rested vpon the seuenth daye: therefore the LORDE blessed the seuenth daye, & halowed it.

Honoure thy father and thy mother, that thou mayest lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE thy God shal geue the.

Thou shalt not kyll.

Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt beare no false wytnesse agaynst thy neighbour.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neighbours house.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neighbours wife, ner his seruante, ner his mayde, ner his oxe, ner his Ass, ner all that thy neighbour hath.

And all the people sawe the thonder and the lighteninge, and the noyse of the trompet, and how it at the mountayne smoked, and were a frayde, and stoffered, & stode as farre of, and sayde vnto Moses: Talker thou with vs, we wil heare: and let not God talke with vs, we might els dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: Be not a frayde, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be before youre eyes, & ye synne not.

And the people stode as farre of. But Moses gat him into the darcke cloude, where in God was. And the LORD spake unto him: Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel: Ye have seen, that I have talked with you from heaven: therefore shall ye make nothing with me: goddes of syluer and golde shall ye not make you.

Make me an altare of earth, wher upon thou mayest offer y burntofferings, & peaceofferings, thy shepe and thine oxen. For loke in what place so ever I make y remembrance of my name, there wil I come unto the, and blesse the.

And yf thou wilt make me an altare of stone, thou shalt not make it of hewen stone: For yf thou lift up thy sole upon it, thou shalt inhallowe it. Moreover thou shalt not go up upon steppes unto myne altare, that thy shame be not discovered before it.

The XXI. Chapter.

These are the lawes, that thou shalt laye before them. Yf thou bye a seruaunt that is an Hebrue, he shall serue the sixe yeares, in the seventh yeare shall he go out fre and lowse. Yf he came alone, then shall he go out alone also: but yf he came married, then shall his wife go out with him. Yf his master haue geue him a wife, & she haue borne him sonnes or daughters, the shall the wife and y children be the masters, but he shall go out alone. Nevertheless yf the seruaunt saye: I loue my master, and my wife and children, I wil not go out fre: then let his master brynge him before the Goddes, and holde him to the dore or post, and bore him thorow the eare with a botkin, and let him be his seruaunt for ever.

Yf a man sell his daughter to be an hand mayde, then shall she not go out as the men seruautes. But yf she please not hir master, and he haue not married her, then shall he let her go fre: but to sell her vnto a straunge people he hath no auerite, for so moch as he hath despysed her. Yf he promyse her vnto his sonne, they shall he do vnto her after the lawe of daughters. But yf he geue him another wife, then shall he mynyshe nothinge of hir foode, rayment, and deweye of marriage. Yf he do not these chee, then shall she go out fre, and paye nothinge.

Yf that smyteth a man that he dye, shall dye the death. Yf he haue not layed wayte for him, but God let him fall in his hande vnawares, then wil I appoynte the a place, where he shall lye vnto. But yf a man presume vpon his neighbour, and slaye him with disceate, then shalt thou take the same from myne altare, that he maye be slayne. Who so smyteth his father or mother, shall dye the death.

Yf that stealeth a man, and selleth him, so that he be founde by him, the same shall dye the death.

Who so curseth father and mother, shall dye the death. Yf men stryue together and one smyte another with a stone, or with his fist, so that he dye not, but lyeth in bedd: yf he crye, and go forth vpon his staff, the shall he that smote him, be vngiltie: saue that he shall paye the losse of his tyme, and geue y money for healyng him.

Yf that smyteth his seruaunt or mayde with a staff, that he dye vnder his hande, the same shall suffre vengeance therfore. But yf he endure a daye or two, then shall he suffre no vengeance therfore, for it is his money.

Yf men stryue, and bytt a woman with childe, so that y frute departe from her, and no harme happen vnto her, then shall he be punished for mooney, as moch as the womans husbände layeth to his charge, and he shall geue it, accordinge to the appoyntment of the dayes men. But yf there come harme vnto her there thorow, then shall he paye soule for soule, eye for eye, toth for toth, hande for hande, fote for fote, burnyng for burnyng, wounde for wounde, strype for strype.

Yf a man smyte his seruaunt or his mayde in the eye, and destroye it, he shall let them go fre and lowse for the eye sake. In like manner yf he smyte out a tothe of his seruaunt or mayde, he shall let them go fre and lowse for the tothes sake.

Yf an ore goore a man or a woman, that he dye, then shall that ore be stoned, and his flesh not eaten: so is the master of the ore vngiltie. But yf the ore haue bene used to push in tymes past, & it hath bene tolde his master, and he hath not kepte him, and besydes that slayeth a man or a woman, then shall y ore be stoned, and his master shall dye. But yf there be money set vpon him, then, loke what is put vpon him, that shall he geue, to deliuer his soule. Likewise shall he be dealt withall, yf he goore a sonne or a daughter. But yf he goore a seruaunt or a mayde, then shall he geue their master thirtie syluer Sycles: and the ore shall be stoned.

Yf a man open a well, or dygge a pytt, and couer it not, and there fall an ore or Ass therin, then shall the owner of the pytt make it good with money, and restore it vnto his master: but the deed carcase shall be his owne.

Yf one mans ore goore another, that he dye, then shall they sell the lynyng ore, and deweye the money, and the deed carcase shall they deweye also. But yf it be knowne, that the ore haue bene used to goore afore, then shall he paye his ore for the other, & the deed carcase shall be his owne.

The XXII. Chapter.

If a man steale an ore or shepe, and slaye it, or sell it, he shall restore fyue oxen for an ore, and foure shepe for a shepe.

Yf a thefe be taken breakinge in, & vpon that he smyteth that he dye, then shall not he that smote him, be giltye of his bloude. But yf the sonne be gone up vpon him, then hath he committed manslaughter, and he shall dye.

A thefe shall make restitution. Yf he haue nothig, the let him be solde for his theft. But yf y theft be founde by him alyne (from the ore vnto the Ass or shepe) then shall he restore dubble.

Yf a man hurte a felde or vynyarde, so y he let his catell do harme in another mans felde, the same shall make restitution even of the best of his owne felde and vynyarde.

Yf a fyre come out, and take holde of y thornes, so that the sheenes be consumed, or the coune that stoneth yet vpon the felde, he that kyndled the fyre shall make restitution.

Yf a man deliuer his neighbour money or vessels to kepe, and it be stollen from him out of his house: yf the thefe be founde, he shall restore dubble. But yf the thefe be not founde, then shall the good man of the house be brought before the Goddes (and shall sweare) that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good.

Yf one accuse another in any manner of trespass, whether it be for ore, or Ass, or shepe, or rayment, what so euer it be that is lost: then shall both their causes come before the Goddes: Loke whom the Goddes condemne, the same shall restore dubble vnto his neighbour.

Yf a man deliuer vnto his neighbour an Ass, or ore or shepe, or any manner of catell to kepe, and it dye, or be hurte, or dryen awaye that no man se it, then shall there an ooth of the LORD go betwene them, that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good: and the owner of y good shall accepte it, so that the other shall not make it good. Yf a thefe steale it from him, then shall he make restitution vnto the owner thereof. But yf it be rauysed (of beastes) then shall he brynge recorde therof, and not make it good.

Yf a man borrowe ought of his neighbour, and it be hurte, or dye, so that the owner thereof be not by, then shall he make it good. But yf the owner thereof be by, then shall he not make it good, yf he hyed it for his money.

Yf a man begyle a mayde, that is not yet spoused, and lye with her, the same shall geue her hir dowry, and take her to his wife. But yf hir father refuse to geue her vnto him, the shall he weye there the money, accordinge to the dowry of virgins.

Thou shalt not suffre a witch to lyne. Who so lyeth w a beest, shall dye the death. Who so offereth to any goddes, saue vnto the LORD onely, let him dye without redemption.

Thou shalt not vexe ner oppresse a straunger, for ye youre selues were strangers also in the londe of Egypte.

Ye shall trouble no wyddowe ner fatherlesse childe. Yf thou shalt trouble them, they shall crye vnto me, and I shall heare their crye: then shall my wrath waxe whore, so y I shall slei you with the swerde, and youre wyues shall be wedowes, and youre children fatherlesse.

Yf thou lende money vnto my people that is poore by the, thou shalt not be haue thyself as an vsurer vnto him, neither shalt thou oppresse him with vsury.

Yf thou take a garment of thy neighbour to pledge, thou shalt geue it him agayne before the Sonne go downe: for his rayment is his onely conyng of his synne: wher in he slepeth. But yf he shall crye vnto me, I will heare him: for I am mercifull.

Thou shalt not speake euill of the Goddes, and the ruler of thy people shall thou not blasphem.

Thy due and moist frutes shalt thou not kepe backe. Thy first sonne shalt thou geue vnto me. So shalt thou do also with thine oxen and shepe. Seven dayes let it be with the dame: vpon the eight dayes shalt thou geue it vnto me. Ye shall be holy people before me. Therefore shall ye eate no flesh, that is tome of beestes in the felde, but cast it vnto the dogges.

Deu. 17. a Thou shalt not take gyses: for gyses blinden euen them y are sharpe of sight, z wraust the righteous causes.

Re shall not oppresse a straunger, for ye knowe the hert of straungers, for so much as ye youre selues also haue bene straungers in the londe of Egipte.

Exo. 23. a Sixe yeares shalt thou sowe thy londe, and gather in the frute therof: In the seventh yeare shalt thou let it rest and lye still, that the poore amonge thy people maye eate therof: and lye what remaineth ouer, let y beestes of the felde eate it. Thus shalt thou do also with thy vynyarde and olyue trees.

Exo. 23. b Sixe dayes shalt thou do thy worke, but vpon the seventh daye thou shalt kepe holy daye, that thine ore and Assse maye rest, and that the sonne of thy handmayden and the straunger maye refresh them selues.

All that I haue sayde vnto you, that kepe. And as for the names of other goddes, ye shall not remembre them, and out of your mouthes shal they not be herde.

Exo. 23. a Thre tymes in the yeare shalt thou kepe feast vnto me: namely the feast of vnleued bried shalt thou kepe, that thou eate vnleued bried seven dayes (like as I commaunded y in the tyme of y moneth Abib, for in the same wentest thou out of Egipte. But appeare not emptye before me.) And y feast whan thou first reapest thy labours, y thou hast sownen vpon the felde. And the feast of ingathering in the ende of y yeare, whan thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the felde. Thre tymes in the yeare shalt euery male that thou hast appeare before the LORDE the Gouvernoure.

Deu. 16. b Thou shalt not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with sowre dowe, and the fat of my feast shal not remayne till the mornynge.

The first of the first frutes of thy felde shalt thou brynge in to the house of the LORDE thy God. And shalt not sech a tyde, whyle it is in his mothers mylke.

Beholde, I sende an angell before the, to kepe the in the waye, and to brynge the vnto the place, that I haue prepared. Therefore be warre of his face, and herken vnto his voyce, and anger him not, for he shall not spare youre mysdoedes, z my name is in him. But yf thou shalt herken vnto his voyce, and do all that I shal tell the, then wyl I be enemy vnto thy enemies, and aduersary vnto thy aduersaries.

Now whā myne angell goeth before the, z bryngeth the vnto y Amorites, Hethites, Phereites, Cananites, Heneites z Jebusites, z I shall haue destroyed them: then shalt thou not worshipec their goddes, ner serue them, nether shalt thou do as they do, but shalt ouerthrowe their goddes, z breake the downe. But y LORDE yd God shal ye serue, so shal he blesse thy bred z thy water, and I wyl remoue all sicknesse from the.

There shalbe nothinge barren ner vnfructfull in thy londe, and I wil fulfill the nombre of thy dayes. I wil sende my scare before the, and sle all the people wherethou comest, z will make all thine enemies to turne their backes vps the. I wyl sende homettes before y, and dryue out the Heneytes, Cananites and Hethytes before the.

In one yeare wyl I not cast the out before the, y the londe become not waiste, z wylde beastes multiply agaynst y: By litle z litle wyl I dryue them out before the, tyll thou growe, z haue the londe in possession. And I wil set the borders of thy londe, euen from the reed see vnto y see of the Philistynes, z from the wysdanes vnto the water. For I wil deliuer the indwellers of the londe in to thine hande, y thou shalt dryue them out before the. Thou shalt make no couenaunt with them ner with their goddes, but let the not dwell in thy lande, that they make the not synne ageynst me. For yf thou serue their goddes, it wil surely be thy decaye.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And he sayde vnto Moses: Come vp vnto the LORDE then z Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the senetie elders of Israel, z worshipec a farre of. But let Moses onely come nye vnto the LORDE, and let not them come nye, and let not the people also come vp with him.

Moses came and tolde the people all the wordes of the LORDE, z all the lawes. Then answered all the people with one voyce, and sayde: All y wordes that the LORDE hath sayde, wyl we do.

Then wrote Moses all the wordes of y LORDE, z gat him vp by tymes in the mornynge, z buylded an altare vnder y mount with twolue pilers, acordyng to the twolue trybes of Israel: z sent twolue yonge mē of the children of Israel, to offre burnt offerynges, and peace offerynges theron of bullockes vnto the LORDE.

And Moses toke the half parte of the bloude, and put it in a basen, the other half sprentled he vpon the altare: z toke the boke of y couenaunt, z cried in the eares of the people. And whan they had sayde: All y the LORDE hath sayde, wyl we do, z herken vnto him: Moses toke the bloude, z sprentled it vpon the people, z sayde: Beholde, this is y bloude of the couenaunt that the LORDE maketh w you vpon all these wordes.

Then wente Moses z Aaron, Nadab z Abihu, z the senetie elders of Israel vp, z sawe y God of Israel. Under his feet it was like a stone worke of Saphyre, z as the fashion of heane, whā it is cleare, z he put not his hade vps the principall of Israel. And whan they had sene God, they were zbronte.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Come vp vnto me vpon the mount, z remaine there, y I maye geue the cables of stone, z y lawe z commaundementes y I haue wrytten, which thou shalt teach the. Then Moses gat him vp z his mynister Josua, z wente vp into the mount of God, z sayde vnto the elders: Tary ye here, tyll we come to you agayne: beholde, Aaron and Hur are with you, yf eny mā haue a matter to do, let him brynge it vnto them.

Now whā Moses came vp in to y mount, a cloude conered y mount: z the glory of y LORDE abode vpon mount Sinai, z conered it w the cloude sere dayes, z vpon the seventh daye he called Moses out of y cloude. And y fashion of y glory of y LORDE was like a cōsumynge fyre vpon the toppe of y mount in the sight of the children of Israel. And Moses wente in to the myddest of the cloude, and ascended vp in to the mount, and abode vpon the mount fourty dayes z fourtye nyghtes.

The XXV. Chapter.

And y LORDE talked w Moses z ayde: Speake vnto y childre of Israel, y they geue me an heue offerynge, z take the some of everyman, that hath a fre wyllynge hert thereto. And this is the heue offerynge that ye shal take of them: Golde, syluer, brasse, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte twyned sylke, goates hayre, reed slaynes of rammes, doo slaynes, Syre tre, oyle for lampes, spryces for the anoyntynge oyle, and for swete incense. Onix stones and set stones for the ouerboddy cote and for the brestlappe.

And they shall make me a Sanctuary, that I maie dwell amonge them. Like as I shal shewe y a patrone of the habitation, and of all the ornamentes therof, so shall ye make it.

Make an Arke of Syre tre two cubytes z a half longe, a cubyte z a half brode, and a cubyte z an half hye: this shalt thou ouerleye with pure golde within and without, z make an hye vps it a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast foure rynges of golde, z put them in the foure corners of it, so that two rynges be vpon the one syde, and two vpon the other syde. And make stanes of Syre tre, and ouerlaye them with golde, and put them in the rynges alonge by the sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall: and they shal abyde still in the rynges, z not be takē out. And in y Arke thou shalt laye the wytnesse, that I wyl geue the. Thou shalt make a Mercysate also of pure golde, two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte z a half brode.

And thou shalt make two Cherubyns of beaten golde vps both y endes of the Mercysate, y the one Cherub maye be vpon the one ende, z the other vpon the other ende, z so to be two Cherubyns vpon the endes of the Mercysate. And the Cherubyns shal spiede out their wynges ouer an hye, y they maye couer y Mercysate w their wynges: z y either of their faces maye be righte ouer one agaynst another, and their faces shal loke vnto the Mercysate.

And thou shalt set y Mercysate aboue y vpon the Arke. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the wytnesse, y I shal geue the. From y place wyl I testifie vnto y, and talke with the, namely, from y Mercysate (betwyxe the two Cherubyns) which is vpon the Arke of wytnesse, of all that I wyl cōmaunde y vnto the children of Israel.

Thou shalt make a table also of Syre tre, two cubites longe, and one cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlaye it with pure golde, and make a crowne of golde rounde aboute it, and an whope of an hāde briede hye, and a crowne of golde vnto y whope rounde aboute.

And vnto it thou shalt make foure rynges of golde, on the foure cornes in the foure fete of it: harde vnder the whope shall 3 rynges be, to put in stauess and to beare the table wth all: and thou shalt make the stauess of fyre tre, & overlaye them with golde, & the table maye be boune therewith.

Thou shalt make also his disshes, spoones, portes, and flat peces of pure golde, to poure out and in. And vpon the table thou shalt allwaye set shewbred before me.

D Moreover thou shalt make a candellsticke of fyne beaten golde, where vpon shall be the shaft with braunches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Sixe braunches shall proceade out of the sydes of the candellsticke, out of euery syde thre braunches. Every braunch shall haue thre cuppes, (like allmondes) thre knoppes, and thre floures. These shall be the fyre braunches of the candillsticke. But the shaft of the candillsticke it self shall haue foure cuppes, knoppes and floures, and allwaie a knoppe vnder two braunches, of the fyre that proceade out of the candillsticke. For both the knoppes and braunches shall proceade out of the shaft, all one pece of fyne beaten golde.

And thou shalt make seven lampes abouethere on, that they maye geue lighte one ouer agaynst another, and snuffers and outquenchers of pure golde. Out of an hundred pounde weight of pure golde shalt thou make it, with all this apparell. And se that thou make it after the patrone that thou hast sene in the mount.

The XXVI. Chapter.

A The habitacion shalt thou make of ten curteynes, of whyte twyned sylke, of yalowe sylke, of scarlet and purple. Cherubyns shalt thou make thereon of broderd worke. The length of one curteyne shall be eight and twentye cubytes & briedth foure cubytes: and all the ten shall be like, and shall be coupled fyue and fyue together, one vnto the other. And thou shalt make loopes of yalowe sylke by the edge of euery curteyne, where they shall be coupled together, that there maye be ener two and two fastened together vpon their edges: fiftie loopes vpon euery curteyne, that one maye fasten the other together. And thou shalt make fiftie buttons of golde, wherewith the curteynes maye be coupled together, one to the other, that it maye be one couerynge.

B Thou shalt make a coueringe also of goats heyer for a tence ouer the habitacion, of eleven curteynes. The length of one curteyne shall be thirtie cubytes, the briedth foure cubytes. And all the eleven shall be alike greete: fyue shalt thou couple together by the selues, & fyue also by them selues, & thou mayest dabble the fyfte curteyne in the fore front of the Tabernacle. And vpon euery curteyne thou shalt make fiftie loopes vpon the edges of them, that they maye be coupled together by the edges. And fiftie buttons of brasie shalt thou make, and put the buttons in to the loopes, that the tent maye be coupled together, and be one couerynge.

As for the remnant of the curteynes of the tence, thou shalt let the halfe parte hang ouer behynde & ette, vpon both the sydes a cubyte longe, & the residue maye be vpon the sydes of the Tabernacle, & couer it vpon both the sydes.

Besides this couerynge thou shalt make a couerynge of reed steynes of rammes. And aboue this a coueringe of doo steynes.

Thou shalt make bordes also for the habitacion, of fyre tre, which shall stonde: one boide shall be ten cubytes longe, & a cubyte & a half brode. Two fete shall one boide haue, that one maye be set by the other.

Thus shalt thou make all the bordes for 3 Tabernacle: Twentye of them shall stonde toward the south, which shall haue fourtye sockettes of syluer vnder them, two sockettes vnder euery boide for his two fete.

Likewise vpon the other syde toward the north there shall stonde twentye bordes also, and fourtye sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery boide.

But behynde the habitacion toward 3 west thou shalt make fyre bordes, and two bordes mo for the two corners of the habitacion, that euery one of them both maye be coupled from vnder vp with his corner boide, and aboue vpon the heade to come euent together with a clape: so that there be eight bordes with their syluer sockettes, wher of there shall be sixtene, two vnder euery boide.

And thou shalt make barres of fyre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes vpon the other syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes behynde 3 Tabernacle toward the west. And the barres shalt thou shute thorow 3 myddest of the bordes, and fasten alle together from 3 one corner to 3 other. And thou shalt overlaye the bordes wth golde, and make their rynges of golde, that the barres maye be put therein. And the barres shalt thou overlaye with golde, and so shalt thou set vp the Tabernacle, accordinge to 3 fashion as thou hast sene vpon 3 mount.

3 And thou shalt make a vayle of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke. And Cherubyns shalt thou make thereon of broderd worke, and shalt hang it vpon foure pilers of fyre tre which are overlayed with golde, hauynge knoppes of golde, and foure sockettes of syluer. And the vayle shalt thou fasten with buttons, and set the Arke of wytnesse within the vayle, that it maye be vnto you a difference betwixte the holy and the Most holy.

6 And thou shalt set the Mercyseate vpon the Arke of wytnesse in the Most holy. But set the table without the vayle, and the candillsticke ouer agaynst 3 table vpon 3 south syde of the Tabernacle, that the table maie stonde on the north syde.

And in the dore of the Tabernacle thou shalt make an hanginge, of yalowe sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. And for the same hanginge thou shalt make fyue pilers of fyre tre, overlaid with golde, with knoppes of golde. And shalt cast fyue sockettes of brasie for them.

The XXVII. Chapter.

A And thou shalt make an altare of fyre tre, fyue cubytes longe & brode, & it maye be foure square, & thre cubytes hye: thou shalt make hornes vpon the foure cornes of it, & shalt ouer laye it with brasie. Make ashpans, shouels, basens, fleshyotes, colepans. All 3 apparell therof shalt thou make of brasie. Thou shalt make a gredyon also like a nett, of brasie, & foure brasen rynges vpon the foure corners of it: from vnder vp aboute the altare shalt thou make it, so that the gredyon reach vnto 3 myddest of the altare. Thou shalt make stauess also for the altare, of fyre tre, overlaid with golde, and shalt put the stauess in the rynges, that the stauess maye be on both the sydes of 3 altare, to beare it withall. And holowe with bordes shalt thou make it, like as it is shewed the in the mount.

B And to 3 habitacion thou shalt make a court, an hanginge of whyte twyned sylke: vpon 3 one syde an C. cubytes longe toward the south, & xx. pilers vpon xx. brasen sockettes, & the knoppes wth their whopes of syluer. Likewise vpon 3 north syde there shall be an hanginge of an C. cubytes longe, twenty pilers vpon twenty brasen sockettes, and their knoppes wth their whopes of syluer.

But vpon the west syde the briedth of 3 court shall haue an hanginge of fiftie cubi-tes longe, & ten pilers vpon ten sockettes. Vpon the east syde also shall the briedth of the court haue fiftie cubytes, so that the hanginge haue vpon one syde fyftene cubytes, and thre pilers vpon thre sockettes: And vpon 3 other syde fyftene cubytes also, and thre pilers vpon thre sockettes.

And in the court gate there shall be an hanginge twenty cubytes brode, of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, wrought with needle worke, and foure pilers vpon their foure sockettes. All the pilers rounde aboute the court shall haue syluer whopes, & syluer knoppes, & sockettes of brasie. And the length of 3 court shall be an hundred cubytes, the briedth fiftie cubytes, the heygth fyue cubytes, of whyte twyned sylke and 3 sockettes therof shall be of brasie. All 3 vessels also of the habitacion to all maner seruyce, and all the nales of it, and all the nales of the court shall be of brasie.

Commande 3 children of Israel, & they bringe vnto 3 the most cleare & pure oyle olue beaten, to geue lighte, & it maye allwaye be put in the lampes in the Tabernacle of wytnesse without the vayle, that hangeth before the wytnesse. And Aarō and his sonnes shall dresse it from the euerynge vntyll 3 momynge before the LORDE. This shall be vnto you a perpetuall custome for youre posterities amonge the children of Israel.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

A And thou shalt take vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sonnes frō amonge the children of Israel, that he maye be my prest: namely Aaron & his sonnes Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar: & thou shalt make holy clothes for Aarō & his brother, honorable and glorious, & shalt speake vnto all them that are wise of hert, whom I haue fylled with the spere of wysdome, that they make garmentes to Aaron for his consecration, that he maye be my prest.

These are 3 garmentes which they shall make: a brestlappe, an ouerboddy cote, a tunicle, an albe, a mytter and a girdell. Thus shalt they make holy garmentes for 3 brother Aarō and his sonnes, that he maye be my prest. They shall take thereto golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

The ouerboddy cote shall they make of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke of broderd worke, that it maye be fastened together vpon both the sydes by 3 edges therof. And his gyrdell vpon it shall be of 3 same woman shippe & stuff, men of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned syll. And thou shalt take two Onix stones, and grave in them the names of the children of Israel. Syre names upon the one stone, and the six other names upon the other stone according to the order of their age. This shalt thou do by the stonegraver that grave signettes, so that 3 stones with the names of the children of Israel to be set rounde aboute with golde: and thou shalt put them upon the two shulders of the overbody cote, that that they maye be stones of remembrance for the children of Israel, that Aaron maye beare their names upon both his shulders before the LORDE for a remembrance.

C Thou shalt make bores of golde also, and two wrethe cheynes of pure golde, and shalt fasten them unto the bores.

The breslapppe of iudgment shalt thou make of broderd worke, even after the worke of the overbody cote: of golde, yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. Soure square shall it be and dubble, an hande bredth longe, and an hande bredth brede. And thou shalt fill it with soure rowes full of stones. Let the first rowe be a Sardis, a Topas, and a Smaragde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, and a Dyanionde. The thirde: a Ligurius, an Achatt, and an Amethyst. The fourth: a Turcas, an Omix, and a Jaspis. In golde shall they be sett in all the rowes, and shall stonde according to 3 twolue names of the children of Israel, graven of the stonegravers, every one with his name according to the twolue trybes.

D And upon the breslapppe thou shalt make wrethen cheynes by 3 corners of pure golde, and two golde rynges, so, that thou faste the same two rynges unto two edges of the breslapppe, and put the two wrethe cheynes of golde in the same two rynges, that are in two edges of the breslapppe. But the two endes of 3 two wrethen cheynes shalt thou fasten in the two bores upon the overbody cote one over agaynst another.

And thou shalt make two other rynges of golde, and fasten them unto 3 other two edges of 3 breslapppe, namely to 3 borders therof, wherwith it maye hange on the insyde upon the overbody cote. And yet shalt thou make two rynges of golde, and fasten them upon the two edges beneth to the overbody cote, upon the outsyde one over agaynst another, where the overbody cote is ynneth together. And the breslapppe shall be fastened by his rynges unto the rynges of the overbody cote with a yalow lace, that is maye lye close upon the overbody cote, and that the breslapppe be not loswed from the overbody cote.

Thus shall Aaron beare the names of the children of Israel in 3 breslapppe of iudgment upon his hert, when he goeth into the Sanctuary, for a remembrance before the LORDE allwaye. And in the breslapppe of iudgment thou shalt put light and perfectnesse, that they be upon Aarons hert, when he goeth in before the LORDE, and that he maye beare the iudgment of the children of Israel upon his hert before the LORDE allwaye.

Thou shalt make the tuncle also to the overbody cote all of yalow sylke, and above in the myddest there shall be an hole, and a bonde folden together rounde aboute the hole, that it rente not. And beneth upon the hemme thou shalt make pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple rounde aboute, and belles of golde betwixte the same rounde aboute: that there be ever a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemme of the same tuncle. And Aaron shall have it upon him when he ministrereth, that the soude thereof maye be herde, when he goeth out and in at the Sanctuary before the LORDE, that he dye not.

Thou shalt make a foreheade plate also of pure golde, and grave therein (after the workmanship of the stonegraver) the holy names of the LORDE, 2 with a yalow lace shalt thou fasten it unto the fore fronte of the myter upon Aarons foreheade, 3 Aaron maye so beare 3 synne of the holy thinges, which the childre of Israel halowe in all their gyses and Sanctuary. And it shall be allwaye upon his foreheade, that he maye reconcyle them before the LORDE.

Thou shalt make an albe also of whyte sylke, and a myter of whyte sylke, and a gyrdle of medleworke.

And for Aarons sonnes thou shalt make cotes, gyrdles and bonetes, honorable and glorious, and shalt put them upon thy brother Aaron and his sonnes, and shalt anoynte them, and fyll their handes, and consecrate them, that they maye be my prestes. And thou shalt make them lymmen breeches, to couer the flesh of their privities, from the loynes unto the thyes. And Aaron and his sonnes shall have them on, when they go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or go unto the altare to minister in the holy, that they beare not their synne, and dye. This shalbe a perpetual custome for him, and his sede after him.

The XXIX. Chapter.

A This is it also, that thou shalt do unto them, that they maye be consecrated prestes unto me. Take a yonge bullocke, and two rammes without blemish, unleuended bled, 2 unleuended cakes myrre w oyle, and wafers of swete bred tempered w oyle: Of wheate flour shalt thou make them all, and put them in a maunde, 2 brynge them in the maunde, with the bullocke 2 two rammes.

And thou shalt brynge Aaron 2 his sonnes unto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, 2 wash them w water, 2 take the garments, and put upon Aaron the albe and the tuncle, 2 the overbody cote, 2 the breslapppe of overbody cote, 2 shalt gyde him on the out syde upon the overbody cote, and set the myter upon his heade, and the holy crowne upon the myter: and shalt take the anoynteinge oyle, and poure it upon his heade, and anoynte him.

B Thou shalt brynge forth his sonnes also, 2 put the albes upon them, and gyde both Aaron 2 them with gyrdles, 2 set the bonetes upon their heades, that they maye have the presthode for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fyll the hâdes of Aaron and his sonnes, and brynge forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron and his sonnes shall laye their hâdes upon the heade of the bullocke, and thou shalt sleie the bullocke before the LORDE, at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it upon the hoines of the altare with thy synger, and poure all the other bloude upon the botome of the altare.

And thou shalt take all the fat that cometh the bowels and the nett upon the lever, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is aboute them, and burne them upon the altare. But the bullockes flesch, slaynne and donge, shalt thou burne with fyre without the hoost: for it is a synneofferynge.

C The one ramme shalt thou take also, and Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes upon his heade. Then shalt thou sleie him, and take of his bloude, and sprenkle it upon the altare rounde aboute. But the ramme shalt thou denyde in peces, and wash his bowels and his legges, and laye them upon the peces and the heade, and burne the whole ramme upon the altare: for it is a burntofferynge, and a swete sauoure of the sacrifice unto the LORDE.

As for the other ramme, thou shalt take him, and Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes upon his heade, and thou shalt sleie him, and take of his bloude, and put it upon the cyppe of the right eare of Aaron and his sonnes, and upon 3 thembe of their right handes, and upon the greete too of their right fete, and thou shalt sprenkle the bloude upon the altare rounde aboute, and shalt take of the bloude upon the altare and the anoynteinge oyle, and sprenkle it upon Aaron and his vestymentes, upon his sonnes and their vestymentes. So shall he and his clothes, his sonnes and their clothes be consecrated.

Then shalt thou take the fat of the ramme, the rompe, and the fatt that couereth 3 bowels, the net upon the lever, and the two kydneyes with the fatt that is aboute them, and the right shulder (for it is a ramme of consecracion) and a symnel of bred, and an oyled cake, and a wafer out of the maunde of the unleuended bred, that stouderth before the LORDE, and put all in to the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waue it unto the LORDE. The take it out of their handes, and burne it upon the altare for a burntofferynge, to be a swete sauoure unto 3 LORDE. For it is the LORDES sacrifice.

And thou shalt take the brest of the ramme of Aarons consecracion, 2 shalt waue it before 3 LORDE, 3 shall be his parte. And thus shalt thou halowe 3 Wauebrest 2 3 Heueshulder (3 are wauned 2 heaved) of 3 rammes of the consecracion of Aaron 2 his sonnes: And it shall be a perpetuall custome for Aaron and his sonnes of 3 children of Israel: for it is an heueoffrynge, and the heueoffrynge shall be the LORDES dewtye of the children of Israel, in their deade offrynges and heueoffrynges which they do unto the LORDE.

And the holy garments of Aaron shall his sonnes have after him, that they maye be anoynted therein, 2 3 their handes maye be fylled. Like which of his sonnes shall be priste in his steade, the same shall put them on sene dayes, that he maye go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to minister in the Sanctuary.

But the ramme of consecracion shalt thou take, and seeth his flesh in an holy place. And Aaron with his sonnes shall eat the flesh of the same ramme with the bred in the maunde, at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: for there is an atteneement made therewith, to fyll their handes, that they maye be consecrated. A stranger shal not eate therof, for it is holy.

But yf eny of the flesh of the consecration, and of the bread remaine vntyll the morninge, thou shalt burne it with fyre, and not let it be eaten, for it is holy. And thus shalt thou do with Aaron and his sonnes all that I haue commaunded. Seven dayes shalt thou fyll their handes, and offer a bullocke daylie for a synne offeringe, because of them y shall be reconciled. And thou shalt halowe the altare, whan thou reconcylest it: and shalt anoynte it, that it maye be consecrated. Seven dayes shalt thou reconcyle the altare, and consecrate it, that it maye be an altare of the Most holy. Who so wyll touch the altare, must be consecrated.

1. Par. 17.6

And this shalt thou do with the altare: Two lambes of one yeare olde shalt thou offer every daye vpon it: the one lambe in the morninge, and the other at euen. And to one lambe a tenth deale of wheate flour, mingled with y fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and y fourth parte of an hin of wine for a drynt offeringe. With the other lambe at euen shalt thou do like as with y meate offeringe and drynt offeringe in the morninge, for a sweete sauoure of sacrifice vnto y LORDE. This is the daylie burnt offeringe amonge youre posterities, at the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE, where I will proteste vnto you, and talke with the. There wil I proteste vnto the children of Israel, and be sanctified in my glory, and wil halowe the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and consecrate Aaron and his sonnes, to be my prestes. And I wil dwell amonge the children of Israel, and wil be their God: so y they shal knowe, how that I am the LORDE their God, which brought them out of the lande of Egypte, that I might dwell amonge them, euen I the LORDE their God.

The XXX. Chapter.

Thou shalt make also an incense altare to burne incense, of fyue tre, a cubyte longe and brode, eauen foure squared, and two cubytes hye with his hornes, and shalt overlaye it with pure golde, the rose and the walles of it rounde aboute, and the hornes therof, and a crowne of golde shalt thou make rounde aboute it, and two golde ringes on ether syde vnder the crowne, that they remaie be staues put therein, to beare it with all.

The staues shalt thou make of fyue tre also, and overlaye the with golde: and shalt set it before the doyle, that hangeth before the Arke of wytnesse, and before the Mercy seate y is vpon the wytnesse, from whence I wil proteste vnto the. And Aaron shalt burne sweete incense thereon euery morninge, whan he dresseth the lampes. In like maner whan he lighteth the lampes at euen, he shall burne such incense also. This shal be the daylie incense before the LORDE amonge youre posterities.

Ye shall put no straunge incense therein, neither burnt offeringe, nor meate offeringe, neither drynt offeringe thereon. And vpon y hornes of it shalt Aaron reconcyle once in a yeare, with y bloude of the synne offeringe, which they shal offer that are reconcyled. This shal be done amonge youre posterities, for this is the most holy vnto the LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Whan thou nombrest the heades of the children of Israel, then shal every one geue vnto the LORDE the reconcylinge of his soule, y there happenot a plague vnto them, whan they are nombred. Every one that is tolde in the nombre, shall geue half a Syckle, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary: one Syckle is worth twentye Geras. This half Syckle shal be y LORDES heue offeringe. Who so is in the nombre from twenty yeare and above, shal geue this heue offeringe vnto y LORDE. The riche shal not geue more, and the poore shal not geue lesse in the half Syckle, which is geuen vnto the LORDE to be an heue offeringe for the reconcylinge of their soules.

And this money of reconcylinge shalt thou take of the children of Israel, and put it to the Gods seruyce of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel before the LORDE, that he maye let himself be reconcyled ouer their soules.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Thou shalt make a brasen laver also with a fote of brasse to wash, and shalt set it betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and y altare, and put water therein, that Aaron and his sonnes maye wash their handes and feet therout, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or to the altare, to mynistrer vnto the LORDE with offeringe incense, y they dye not. This shalbe a perpetual custome for him and his seide amonge their posterities.

And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take vnto the spices of the best, fyue hundred Syckles of Myrrour, and of Cynamon half so much, euen two hundred and fiftie, and of Balmus two hundred and fiftye, and of Cassia fyue hundred (after the Syckle of the Sanctuary) and an hin of oyle olyue, and make an holy anoyntinge oyle, after the craft of the Apotecary.

D And there wylt thou anoynte the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the Arke of wytnesse, the table with all his apparell, y candilstick with his apparell, the altare of incense, the altare of burnt offeringes with all his apparell, and the laver with his fote: and thus shalt thou consecrate them, that they maye be most holy: for who so wil touch the, must be consecrated. Thou shalt anoynte Aaron also, and his sonnes, and consecrate them to be my prestes.

And thou shalt speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: This oyle shalbe an holy oymment vnto me amonge y posterities: It shal not be poured vpon mans body, neither shalt thou make eny such like it, for it is holy: therefore shal it be holy vnto you. Who so maketh eny such like, or geueth a straunger therof, the same shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take vnto the spices: Balme, Stacte, Galban, and pure franscencense, of one as moch as of another, and make incense therof (after the craft of the Apotecary) myngled together, that it maye be pure and holy. And thou shalt beate it to powder, and shalt put of the same before the wytnesse in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, from whence I wil proteste vnto the, but it shalbe holy vnto the for the LORDE. Who so maketh such to cense therwith, shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: I haue called by name Bezaleel the sonne of Uri y sonne of Hur, of y trybe of Juda, and haue fylled him with y spiete of God, with wysdome and vnderstondynge and knowlege, and to worke with all maner of comynge worke, in golde, syluer, brasse, to graue stones comyngly, and to set them, to carue well in tymbre, and to make all maner worke. And beholde, I haue geuen him Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, to be his companion, and haue geuen wysdome in to the hertes of all that are wyse, that they shal make all that of incense, the altare of burnt offeringes with all his apparell, the laver with his fote, the mynistringe vestmentes of Aaron y prest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to serue like prestes, the anoyntinge oyle, and the incense of spices for y Sanctuary. All that I haue commaunded the, shal they make.

I haue commaunded the: the Tabernacle of wytnesse, the Arke of wytnesse, the Mercy seate thereon, and all the ornaments of y Tabernacle: the table and his apparell, the candilstick and all his apparell, the altare

And the LORDE talked vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: Kepe my Sabbath, for it is a token betwene me and you, and youre posterities, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORDE which haloweth you: therefore kepe my Sabbath, for it shalbe holy vnto you. Who so vnhaloweth it, shal dye the death: for who so doth eny worke therein, shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

Sixe dayes shall men worke, but vpon the seventh daye is the Sabbath: the holy rest of the LORDE. Who so doth eny worke vpon the Sabbath daye, shal dye the death.

Therefore shal the childre of Israel kepe the Sabbath, that they maye kepe it also amonge their posterities for an everlastinge covenant. An everlastinge token is it betwixte me and the childre of Israel. For in sixe dayes made the LORDE heauē and earth, but vpon y seventh daye he rested, and was refreshed.

And whan the LORDE had made an ende of talkinge with Moses vpon the mount Sinai, he gaue him two tables of wytnesse, which were of stone, and wyrtten with the synger of God.

The XXXII. Chapter.

When the people sawe that Moses made lōge taryenge to come downe fro the mount, they gathered the together agaynst Aaron, and sayde vnto him: Up, and make vs goddes, to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this man Moses, that brought vs out of Egypte. wynes, of yo^r sonnes, z of yo^r daughters, z brynge them vnto me. Then all the people plucked of their golden earynges from their eares, z brought them vnto Aaron. And he toke them of their handes, z fashioned it wth a grauer. And they made a molten calfe, and sayde: These are thy goddes (O Israel) that broughte the out of the lande of Egypte.

B Whan Aaron sawe that, he buylded an altare before him, and caused it be proclaimed, and sayde: Tomorrow is the LORDES feast. And they arose vp early in the mornynge, and offred burnt offerynges, and broughte dead offerynges also: Then the people sat them downe to eate and drynke, z rose vp to playe.

But the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Go get the downe, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte, haue married all: they are soone gone out of the waie, which I commaunded them. And the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I see, that it is a styffnecked people, and now suffre me, that my wrath maye waxe whote ouer them, z that I maye consume them, so wil I make a greates people of the.

But Moses besought the LORD E his God, z sayde: Oh LORD E, wherfore wilt thou wrath waxe whote ouer thy people, whom thou hast broughte out of the lande of Egypte wth greates power z a mightie haide: Wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake, z saye: He hath broughte the for their myschefe, to slaye them in the mountaynes, and to destroye the utterly from the earth: Turne the from the fearcenesse of y^e wrath, z be gracious ouer the wickednesse of thy people. Remembre thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac, and Israel.

D vnto wh^o thou swarest by thyne owne self, and saydest: I wil multiplie youre sede as the starres of heauen, and all the lande that I haue promysed you, wil I geue vnto youre sede, z they shall inheret it for euer. Thus the LORD E repented of the euell, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people.

Moses turned him, z wente downe from the mount, and in his hande he had the two tables of wytnesse, which were wyrtten vpon both the sydes, and were Gods worke, z the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God therein. Now whan Josua herde the noyse of y^e people, as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: This is a noyse of warre in the hoost. He answered: It is not a noyse of them that haue the victory, and of them that haue the worse, but I heare a noyse of synginge at a daunse.

Whan he came nye vnto the hoost, and sawe the calfe, and the daunsynge, he was moued with wrath, and cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them beneth the mount. And he toke the calfe that they had made, and brent it with fyre, and stamped it vnto poulder, and strowed it in the water, z gaue it vnto the children of Israel to drynke, z sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast broughte so greates a synne vpon them?

Aaron sayde: Let not the wrath of my lord waxe fierce: thou knowest, that this is a wicked people. They sayde vnto me: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this man Moses, y^e brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. I sayde vnto them: Who so hath golde, let him plucke it of, and geue it me: and I cast it in the fyre, therof came this calfe.

Now whan Moses sawe, that the people were naked: for Aaron, whan he set them vp, made them naked to their shame: he wete in to the gate of the hoost, and sayde: who so belongeth vnto the LORD E, let him come hither vnto me. Then all the children of Levi gathered them selues vnto him, and he sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORD E the God of Israel: Every man put his swerde by his syde, and go thorow in and out from one gate to another in the hoost, and slaye every man his brother, frende, z neighbour.

The children of Levi dyd, as Moses sayde vnto them. And there fell of the people the same daye thre thousande men. The sayde Moses: Consecrate youre handes this daie vnto the LORD E, every man vpon his sonne and brother, that the prayse maye be geuen ouer you this daie.

On the morow Moses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue done a greates synne. Now I wil go vp vnto the LORD E, yf peradventure I maye make an attonement for youre synnes.

Now whan Moses came agayne vnto y^e LORD E, he saide: Oh this people haue done a greates synne, z haue made them goddes of golde. Now for geue them their synne: yf not, the wyl wpe me out of y^e booke, that thou hast wyrtten. The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: What is him that synneth against me, wil I wpe out of my booke. So thou y maye therefore, and brynge y^e people thither as I haue sayde vnto the, Beholde, myne angell shall go before the. But in the daie of my visitacion I wyll vysee their synnes vpon them. So the LORD E plagued the people, because they made y^e calfe which Aaron made.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Go, departe hence, thou and the people, whom thou hast broughte out of the lande of Egypte, vnto y^e lande that I swaie vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sayde: vnto y^e sede wil I geue it, and I wil sende an angell before the (and cast out the Cananites, Amosites, Hethites, Phereites, Hewites and Jebusites) in to the lande that floweth with mylke and hony, for I wyll not go vp with the: for thou art an hardened people, I might consume the by the waye. Whan the people herde this euell tydinges, they sorowed, and no man put on his best rayment.

And y^e LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Speake vnto the children of Israel: Ye are a styffnecked people, I must once come sodenly vpon the, and make an ende of the. And now put of thy goodly aray from the, y^e I maie knowe what to do vnto the. So the children of Israel laied their goodly aray from the, even before the mount Horeb.

Moses toke the Tabernacle, z pitched it without a farte of from y^e hoost, and called it the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And who so ever wolde aske ny question at the LORD E, wente out vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the hoost. And whan Moses wente out vnto the Tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode every one in his tent dore, and looked after Moses, tyll he was gone in to the Tabernacle. And whan Moses entred in to the Tabernacle, the cloudy pyler came downe, and stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people sawe the cloudy piler stonde in the dore of the Tabernacle, and rose vp, and worshiped, every one in his tent dore.

And the LORD E spake vnto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And whan he turned agayne to the hoost, y^e yonge man Josua y^e sonne of Nun his minister, departed not out of y^e Tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the LORD E: Beholde, thou saydest vnto me: Brynge y^e people vp, and lettest me not knowe, whom thou wilt sende to me, z yet hast thou sayde: I knowe the by name, and thou hast founde grace in my sight. Let me knowe thy waye therefore, wherby I maye be certified, y^e I fynde grace in thy sight: And consyde yet, that this people is thy people.

He sayde: My presence shal go before the, there with wyll I lede the. But he sayde vnto him: If thy presence go not, then cary vs not vp from hence: for wherby shal it be knowne, y^e I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sight, but in y^e thou goest with vs: that I z thy people maye haue some p^reminence before all people that are vpon the face of the earth. The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I wyll do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my sight, and I knowe the by name.

He sayde: Oh let meth^e see thy glory. And he sayde: I wil cause all my good go ouer be fore thy face, and wyll let the name of y^e LORD E be called vpon before the. And I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue compassion, on whom I haue compassion. And he sayde morouer: Thou mayest not see my face, for there shall no man lyue, y^e seyth me. And y^e LORD E sayde farthermore: beholde, there is a place by me, there shalt thou stode vpon the rocke. Now whan my glory goeth forth, I wil put y^e in a clyffe of y^e rocke, z my hande shal holde styll vpon the, tyll I be passed by. And whan I take awaye myne hande from the, thou shalt see my back partes, but my face shal not be sene.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I shewe the two tables of stone, like as y^e first were, that I maye wyte in them the wordes, y^e were in the first tables, which thou brakest: and be ready in the mornynge, that thou mayest come vp early vnto mount Sinai, and stonde me vpon the toppe of the mount. And let no man come vp with the, that there be no man sene thorow out all y^e mount: and let nether shepe ner oxen fede before the mount.

Deu. 10. a

And Moses hewed two tables of stone, like as the first were, z arose early in the mornynge, z wrote vp vnto mount Sinai, as y^e LORD E comaunded him, z toke y^e two tables of stone in his haide. The came the LORD E downe in a cloude. And there he stepte vnto him, z called vpon y^e name of y^e LORD E. And whan y^e LORD E passed by before his face, he cryed: LORD E LORD E, God, mercifull z gracious, z longe sufferinge, and of greates mercy and trouth, thou that kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forgettest wickednes, trespass and synne (before whom there is no man innocent) thou that visitest the wickednesse of the fathers vpon y children and chylidren, vnto the thirde and fourth generacion.

B And Moses bowed him self downe vnto the earth, and worshiped him, and saide: LORDE, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight, the let the LORDE go with vs (for it is an hard necked people) that thou mayest haue mercy vpon oure wickednesse and synnes, and let vs be thine inheritaunce.

And he sayde: Beholde, I make a covenant before all y people, z wil do wonders, soch as haue not bene done in all londes, and amonge all people. And all y people amonge whom thou art, shal se y worke of y LORDE, for a terryble thinge shal it be, y I wil do w the. Kepe that I commaunde y this daye. Beholde, I wil cast out before the: y Amorytes, Cananites, Hethites, Pherecites, Hemytes and Jebusites. Bewarre, that thou make no covenant with the indwellers of the lande y thou comest in to, lest they be cause of y ruine in the myddest of the: but their alters shalt thou ouerthrowe, z breake downe their goddes, and rote out their groaves: for thou shalt worshipec no other god. For y LORDE is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest (yf thou make any agreement with the indwellers of the londe, and whan they go a whoringe after their goddes, and do sacrifice vnto their goddes) they call y, and thou eate of their sacrifice, and lest thou take of their daughters vnto thy somes to wyues, and the same go a whoringe after their goddes, z make thy somes go a whoringe after their goddes also.

C Thou shalt make y no goddes of metall. The feast of swete bried shalt thou kepe. Seuen dayes shalt thou eate vntuned bried, like as I commaunded the in the tyme of the moneth Abib: for in the moneth Abib thou wentest out of Egipte. All y first breake the Matrit, is myne, soch as shal be male amonge y catell, y breake the Matrit, whether it be ore or shepe. But the first of thyne Affe shalt thou bye out w a shepe: yf thou rede me it not, then breake his necke. All the first borne of thy children shalt thou redeme.

And se that no man appeare before me in pyce.

Sixe dayes shalt thou labo, vpon y seventh daye shalt thou rest both from plowinge and reapyng. The feast of weekes shalt thou kepe with the firstlinges of the wheate harvest: and the feast of yngaderyng at y yeares ende. Thyse in a yeare shal all y men chylidren appeare before the Governoure, even the LORDE and God of Israel.

Whan I shal cast out the Hethen before the, z enlarge y borders, there shal no man desyre thy lode: for so moch as thou goest vpon the tymes in the yeare, to appeare before y LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not offer the bloude of my sacrifice w leuened bried. And the offeringe of the Easter feast shal not remayne ouer night vntill the morninge. The firstlinges of y first frutes of thy lode shalt thou bryng in to the house of the LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not seith a kydd, why le it is yet in his mothers mylke.

And the LORDE saide vnto Moses: write these wordes, for because of these wordes haue I made a covenant with the z with Israel. And he was there with the LORDE fourtye dayes and fourtye nightes, and ate no bried, and dranke no water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the covenant, even ten verses.

Now whā Moses came downe fro mount Sinai, he had the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, z wyst not y the slynnne of his face shyned, because he had talked with him. And whā Aaron z all the chylidren of Israel sawe y the slynnne of his face shyned, they were a frayd to come nye him. The LORDE called them. And they returned vnto him, both Aaron z all the chiefe of the cōgregation. And he talked w them. Afterwarde came all the chylidren of Israel vnto him. And he commaunded the, all y the LORDE had sayde vnto him vpon the mount Sinai. Now whan he had made an ende of talke w the, he put a conerynge vpon his face. And whan he wote in before y LORDE to talke w him, he toke y conerynge of, till he wote out agayne. And whan he came forth z spake w the chylidren of Israel what was commaunded him, the chylidren of Israel sawe his face, how y the slynnne of his face shyned: so he put the conerynge vpon his face agayne, tyll he wente in agayne to talke with him.

The XXXV. Chapter.

Moses gathered all the cōgregation of y chylidren of Israel together, and sayde vnto them: This is it, y the LORDE hath commaunded you to do: Six dayes shall ye worke, but the seventh daye shall ye kepe holy: a Sabbath of the LORDES rest. Who so ever doeth eny worke therein, shall dye. Ye shal kyndle no fyre vpon the Sabbath daye in all youre dwellinges.

And Moses sayde vnto y whole congregation of the chylidren of Israel: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded: Geue from amonge you heue offeringes vnto y LORDE, so that every one bryng the LORDES heue offeringe with a fre hert: golde, syluer, brasse, yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, and goates hayre, reed slynnnes of rammes, doo slynnnes, and fyre tre, oyle for the lampes, and spyces for the andyntyng oyle and for swete incense. Onix stones, and stones to be set in y ouerboddy cote, and for the brestlappe.

B And who so is wyse of hert amonge you, let him come, z make what the LORDE hath commaunded: namely, the habitacion with the tent z conerynge therof, the rynges, bordes, barres, pilers z sokettes: The Arke w the staves therof, the Mercysate z the wayle: the table with his staves z all his apparell: z the shewbred: The cādylstick of light and his apparell, and his lampes, z the oyle for the lightes: The altare of incense with his staves: The andyntyng oyle and spyces for incense: The hangyng before y Tabernacle doire: The alter of burnt offeringes with his brassen gredyren, staves and all his apparell: The laner with his fote: The hangynges of the court, with the pilers and sokettes therof, z the hangyng of the courte doire: The nales of the habitacion and of y courte with their coardes: The mynistringe garments for the seruyce in the holy, y holy vestimentes of Aaron the prest w the vestimentes of his sonnes for y prestes office.

C Then wente all the congregacion of the chylidren of Israel out fro Moses, z every one brought the gife of his hert: z all that they wolde of fre will, the same brought they for an heue offeringe vnto the LORDE for y worke of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, z for all the seruyce therof, z for the holy vestimentes. Both men z women that were of a wyllyng hert, brought braceletes, earynges, rynges z gydels, and all maner Jewels of golde: Every man also brought golde for waue offeringes vnto the LORDE.

And who so ever foude by him yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, goates hayre, reed slynnnes of rammes, and doo slynnnes, brought it. And who so ever houe vpon syluer z brasse, brought it for y heue offeringe vnto the LORDE. And who so ever founde fyre tre by him, brought it for all maner of worke of the Gods seruyce. And soch women as were wyse herted, spanne with their hādes, and brought their sponne worke of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke. And soch women as had hie vnderstandinge in wysdome, spanne goates hayre.

As for y prynces, they brought Onix stones, and set stones, for y ouerboddy coate, and for the brestlappe, and spyces, and oyle for y lightes, and for the andyntyng oyle, and for swete incense. Thus the chylidren of Israel brought fre wyllyng offeringes, both man and weme, for all maner of worke, that the LORDE had commaunded by Moses, to be made.

And Moses saide vnto the chylidren of Israel: Beholde, y LORDE hath called by name Bezaleel y sonne of Uri, y sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, z hath fylled him w the spire of God, that he maye haue wysdome, vnderstandinge, z knowlege for all maner of worke, to worke connyngly in golde, syluer z brasse, to graue precious stones z to set them, to carue in wodd, to make all maner of connyng workes, and hath geue instruction in his hert, both him and Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of y trybe of Dan. These hath he fylled w wysdome of hert, to make all maner of worke, to carue, to broder, to worke with needle worke, with yalow sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, and with weenyng to make all maner of worke, and to deuise connyng workes.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

Then wrought Bezaleel z Ahaliab z all the wyse herted men, vnto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome z vnderstandinge to knowe, how they shulde make all maner worke for the seruyce of the Sanctuary, acordinge vnto all y the LORDE commaunded. And Moses called for Bezaleel z Ahaliab, z all the wyse herted men, vnto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome in their hertes, namely, all soch as wyllyngly offred them selues there, z came to labour in the worke. And they receaued of Moses all the heue offeringes, that the chylidren of Israel had brought for the worke of the seruyce of the Sanctuary, that it might be made: z every morninge brought they their wyllyng offeringes vnto him.

B Then came all the wyse men y wrought in the worke of the Sanctuary, every one fro his worke that he made, z sayde vnto Moses: The people bryngeth to moch, more the nede is for the worke of this seruice, which the LORDE hath commaunded to make. The commaunded Moses, that it shulde be proclaimed thorow out the hoost: No man bryng more to the heue offeringe of the Sanctuary. Then were the people forbydden to bryng: for there was stuff ynough for all maner of worke, that was to be made, and to moche.

Exo. 26. a So all þe wyse herted men amonge the þe wrought in þe worke of the habitation, made ten curtaynes of whyte twyned sylke, yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, with Cherubyns of broderd worke. The length of one curtayne was eight and twenty cubites, and the bredth foure cubites, and were all of one measure: and he coupled the curtaynes fyne and fyne together one to the other.

C And made yallow loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, where they shulde be coupled together: fiftie loupes vpon every curtayne, wherby one might be coupled to another. And made fiftie buttens of golde, and with the buttens he coupled the curtaynes together one to the other, that it might be one couerynge.

Exo. 26. b And he made xi. curtaynes of goates hayre (for the tent over the habitation) of thirtie cubytes longe, and foure cubytes brode, all of one measure, and coupled fyne together by them selues, and sixe by them selues, and made fiftie loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, wherby they might be coupled together, and made fiftie buttens of brasie, to couple þe tent together withall. And made ouer þe tent a couerynge of reed sleynnes of rammes, and ouer that a couerynge of doo sleynnes.

Exo. 26. c D And made stondinge bordes for the habitation, of fyre tre, euery one ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, and two fete vnto euery one, wherby one might be ioyned to another: that on the south syde there stode twentye of the same bordes: and made fourtye syluer sockettes there vnder, vnder euery boide two sockettes for his two fete. In like maner for the other syde of the habitation toward the north, he made twentye bordes also with fourtye syluer sockettes, vnder euery boide two sockettes: But behynde the habitation vpon the west syde, he made sixe bordes, and two other for the corners of the habitation behynde, that either of them both might be ioyned with his corner boide from vnder vp, and aboue vpon the heade to come together with a clampe: so that there were eight bordes, and sixtene sockettes of syluer, vnder euery one two sockettes.

E And he made barres of fyre tre, fyne for the bordes vpon the one syde of the habitation, and fyne vpon the other syde, and fyne behynde toward the west: and made the barres to shute thorow the bordes, from the one ende to the other, and euery layde the bordes with golde. But their rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlayde þe barres with golde.

And made Cherubyns vpon the hangynge with broderd worke, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. And made for the same, foure pilers of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with golde, and their knoppes of golde, and cast foure sockettes of syluer for them.

And made an hanginge in the Tabernacle dore, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, of needle worke, and fyue pilers therto with their knoppes (and ouerlayed their knoppes and whoopes with golde) and fyue sockettes of brasie therto.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

And Bezaleel made the Arke of fyre tre, two cubites and a half lōge, a cubyte and a half brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde vnto it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde to the foure corners of it, vpon euery syde two. And made staves of fyre tre, and ouerlayed the with golde, and put them in the rynges a longe by þe sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall.

And he made þe Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, and made two Cherubyns of fyne beaten golde vpon the two endes of the Mercyseate: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpon the other ende: and the Cherubyns spredde out their wynges aboue an hye, and covered þe Mercyseate therewith: and their faces stode one ouer agaynst the other, and looked vnto the Mercyseate.

And he made þe table, of fyre tre, two cubytes longe, a cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made vnto it an whoope of an hande bredth hye, and made a crowne of golde rounde aboute the whoope. And for it he cast foure golde rynges, and put them in the foure comers by the fete harde by the whoope, that the staves might be therein, to beare the table withall: and made the staves of fyre tre, and ouerlayed the with golde, to beare the staves withall. And the vessels vpon the table made he also of fyne golde: the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes, to poure in and out withall.

And he made the candillsticke of fyne bea

Exo. 27. a ten golde, where vpon was the shaft with brasie ches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Sixe braunches proceeded out of þe sydes therof, vpon either syde thre braunches: vpon euery braunch were thre cuppes like allmōdes, with knoppes and floures. Vpon the candillsticke self were foure cuppes with knoppes and floures, vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. The knoppes and braunches therof proceeded out of it, and were all one peece of fyne beaten golde. And he made the seven lampes with their snuffers and outquenchers of pure golde. Of an hūdieth weight of golde made he it, and all the apparell therof.

D He made also the altare of incense, of fyre tre, a cubyte longe and brode, euen foure squared, and two cubytes hye with the hornes of it, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, the toppe and the sydes of it rounde aboute, and the hornes therof, and made a crowne vnto it rounde aboute of pure golde, and two golde rynges vnder the crowne on both the sydes, to put the staves therein, and to beare it withall: but the staves made he of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with golde.

And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the incense of pure spices, after þe craue of the Apotecary.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

Exo. 27. b And he made the altare of burnt offerynges made he of fyre tre, fyue cubytes lōge and brode, euen foure squared, and thre cubites hye. And made foure hornes, which proceeded out of the foure corners therof, and ouerlayed it with brasie. And he made all maner of vessels for the altare, cauldrons, shouels, basens, fleshokes, and colepannes all of brasie. And vnto the altare he made a brasen gredyron of net worke rounde aboute, from vnder vp vnto the myddest of the altare, and cast foure rynges in the foure corners of the brasen gredyron, for the staves: which he made of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with brasie, and put them in the rynges by the sydes of the altare, to beare it withall, and made it holowe with bordes.

And he made the Lauer of brasie, and his fore also of brasie vpon the place of þe hooff, that laye before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse.

B And he made the courte on þe south syde, hangynge an hūdieth cubytes longe, of whyte twyned sylke, with the twentye pilers therof, and twentye sockettes of brasie: but the knoppes and whoopes of syluer. In like maner vpon the north syde an hūdieth cubytes with twentye pilers, and twentye so-ckettes of brasie, but their knoppes and whoopes of syluer. Vpon the west syde fiftie cubytes with ten pilers and ten sockettes, but their knoppes and whoopes of syluer. Vpon the east syde fiftie cubytes. Sixtene cubytes vpon either syde of the courte dore, with thre pilers and thre sockettes: So that all the hangynge of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, and the sockettes of the pilers were of brasie, and their knoppes and whoopes of syluer: their heades were ouerlayed with syluer, and all the pilers of the courte were whooped aboute with syluer.

C And the hangynge in þe courte gate made he with needle worke, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, twentye cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes hye, after the measure of the hangynge of the courte: foure pilers also therto, and foure sockettes of brasie, and their knoppes of syluer, and their heades ouerlayed, and their whoopes of syluer. And all the nales of the habitation and of the courte rounde aboute, were of brasie.

This is now the summe of the habitation of wytnesse (which was counted at the commaundement of Moses to þe Gods seruaunt of the Leuites vnder the hāde of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the priest) which Bezaleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda made, all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And to him Ahaliab þe sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a conynge grauer, to worke needle worke, with yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

Exo. 28. a D All the golde þe was wrought in all this worke of the Sanctuary (which was geuen to the Waue offerynge) is nyne and twenty hūdieth weight, seven hūdieth and thirtie Sycles, after þe Cycle of þe Sanctuary. The syluer þe came of the congregacion, was fyue score hūdieth weight, a thousande, seven hūdieth, fyue and seuentye Sycles, after þe Cycle of the Sanctuary: so many heades so many half Sycles, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary, of all that were nombred from twentye yere olde and aboue, euen sixe hūdieth thousande, thre thousande, fyue hūdieth and fiftie.

Of the fyue score hūdieth weight of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the Sanctuary, and the sockettes of the wayle, an hūdieth sockettes of the fyue score hūdieth weight, an hūdieth weight to euery sockette. Of the thousande, seven hūdieth and fyue and seuentye Sycles were made the knoppes of the pilers (and their heades ouerlayed) and their whoopes.

As for the Waue offeringe of brasse, it was seuentye hundieth weight, two thousande and foure hundieth Syces: Wherof we remade the sokettes in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyon thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sokettes of the courtte rounde aboute, and the sokettes of the courtte gate, all of yales of the habitation, and all of yales of the courtte rounde aboute.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

Of the yalowe sylke, scarlet, and purple, they made Arons mynistringe vestimentes, to do seruyce in the Sanctuary, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the ouerbody cote, of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, and beet the golde in to thinne plates, and cut it in to wyres, that it might be wrought amonge the yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, and made it so, that the ouerbody cote came together by the edges on both the sydes. And his gyrdel was after the same craft and worke: ent of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte twyned sylke, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they wrought two Onix stones, set rounde aboute with golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the childre of Israel: and fastened them vpon the shulders of the ouerbody cote, that they might be stones of remembraunce vnto the childre of Israel, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they made the breslappes after the craft and worke of the ouerbody cote: of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, so that it was foure square and double, an hande bredth longe and brode, and fylled it with foure rowes of stones. The first rowe was a Sardis, a Topas, and a Sma ragde. The secōde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, a Dyamonde. The thirde: a Ligure, a Achat, and an Amatis. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with golde in all the rowes. And the stones stode after the twolue names of the childre of Israel, grauen by the stone grauer, every one with his name, accordinge to the twolue trybes.

And vpon the breslappes they made wythen cheynes of pure golde, and two hokes of golde, and two golderynges, and fastened the two ruynges vpon the two edges of the breslappes: and two wythen cheynes put they in the two ruynges vpon the corners of the breslappes. But the two endes of the wythen cheynes put they to the two hokes, and fastened them vpon the corners of the ouerbody cote, one euer agaynst another.

And they made two other ruynges of golde, and fastened them to the other two corners of the breslappes by the edge of it, that it mighte hange vpon the out syde of the ouerbody cote. And they made yet two other golderynges, which they put beneth vpon the two corners of the ouerbody cote, one euer agaynst another, where the ouerbody cote ioyneth together, that the breslappes might be fastened by his ruynges vnto the ruynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, that it mighte lye close vpon the ouerbody cote, and not be lonsed from the ouerbody cote, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the tuncle vnto the ouerbody cote, wrought all of yalow sylke, and the hole therof above in the myddest, and a bonde fold together rounde aboute the hole, that it shulde not reme. And beneth vpon the hemme of it, they made pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke: and they made belles of pure golde, which they put betwixte the pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the hemme of the tuncle, a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute, to do seruyce in, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they made albes also wrought of whyte sylke for Aaron and his somes, and mytter of whyte sylke, and the goodly bonettes of whyte sylke, and breeches of twyned whyte linnen, and the girdle of needle worke euen of whyte twyned sylke, yalow sylke, scarlet, and purple, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

They made the foreheade plate also to the holy crowne, of pure golde, and wrote therein with grauen worke the holynes of the LOR

DE, and fastened a yalowe lace theron, to tye it vnto the mytter above, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

Thus the whole worke of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, was synished. And the childre of Israel dyd all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, and brought the habitation vnto Moses: the Tabernacle and all the apparell therof, the buttons, bordes, barres, pilers, sokettes, the couerynge of reedshymmes of rammes, the couerynge of dooshymmes, and the vayle, and Arke of wytnesse with the staves therof, the Mercysate, the table and all his apparell, and the shewbried, the candilstick, and the lampes prepared, and all his apparell, and oyle for the lightes, the golden altare, the anoyntinge oyle and incense, the hangin ge in the Tabernacle dore, the brasen altare, and his brasen gredyon with his staves, and all his apparell, and laner with his foote, the hangynges of the courtte to the pilers and sokettes therof, and hangynges in the courtte gate with his pilers and nales, and all the ordynaunce for the seruyce of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and mynistringe vestimentes of Aaron the prest, to do seruyce in the Sanctuary, and the garnitures of his somes, and they mighte execute the prestes office. Accordinge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, and so dyd the childre of Israel in all this seruyce. And Moses sawe all the worke, and they dyd as the LORDE had commaunded, and he blessed them.

The XL. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: In the first daye of the first moneth shalt thou set up the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shalt put the Arke of wytnesse therein, and hange the vayle before the Arke. And thou shalt bringe in the table, and garnish it, and bringe in the candilstick, and put the lampes theron. And the golden altare of incense shalt thou set before the Arke of wytnesse, and hange vpon the hangynges in the dore of the habitation. But the altare of burnt offeringe ges shalt thou set before the doore of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & the lauer betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therin, & set the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hanginge in the courte gate.

B And thou shalt take the anyntynge oyle, and anynt the habitation and all that is there in, and shalt consecrate it, and all y apparel therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anynt the altare of burntofferynge and all his vessels, and consecrate it, that it maye be most holy. The lauer also & his fote shalt thou anynt & consecrate.

Exo. 29. 2 And thou shalt brynge Aaron & his sonnes vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and wash them with water, & put the holy vestimentes vpon Aaron, and anynt him, and consecrate him, that he maye be my prest. And thou shalt brynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and anynt them, as thou hast anynted their father, & they maye be my prestes. And this anyntinge shall they haue for an euerlastinge presthode amonge their posterities. And Moses dyd all as the LORDE commaunded him.

C Thus was the Tabernacle set vp in the seconde yeare vpon the first daye of the first moneth. And whan Moses reared it vp, he fastened y skettes and the bordes, and barres, and set vp the pilers, and spied out the tent ouer the habitation, and put the conerynge of the tent aboue an hye, as the LORDE commaunded him. And he toke the wytnesse, and layed it in the Arke, and put y staves in the Arke, and set the Mercysate aboue vpon the Arke, and brought the Arke in to the habitation, and hanged the vayle before the Arke of wytnesse, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he set the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, in the corner of the habitation vpon the north syde without the vayle, and prepared bred theron before y LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him.

D And he set in the candilsticke also, euen ouer agaynst the table, in the corner of the habitation vpon the south syde, and put the lampes theron before y LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him. And the golden altare set he in also before the vayle, and burnt swete incense theron, as the LORDE commaunded him. And hanged vp the hanginge in the Tabernacle doore. As for the altare of burntofferynge, he set it before the doore of the habitation of y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and offred burntofferynge and meate offerynge theron, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And the Lauer set he betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and y altare, and put water therin to wash withall. And Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their hādes and sete ther at: for they ought to wash the, when they wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or whan they wente vnto the altare, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he set vp the courte rounde aboute the habitation and the altare, and hanged vp y hanginge in y courte gate. Thus Moses fynished the whole worke.

Then a cloude covered y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitation. And Moses coulde not go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whyle the cloude abode theron, and the glory of y LORDE fylled the habitation.

And whan the cloude remoued from the habitation, then wente the children of Israel forth, as oft as they toke their iourney. But yf the cloude remoued not, then toke not they their iourney, tyll the daie that it remoued: for in the daye tyme was the cloude of the LORDE vpon the habitation, & in the night season was fyre therin, in y sight of all y house of Israel, in all their iourneis.

Chap. xxvi. Swere & lowynge promyses of God for all soch, as wyl kep his commaundement: Agayne, & Maruelous foreplages are threatened vnto them, that wyl not harken to his worde.

Chap. xxvii. Of vowes, and of the fre yeare. Of redemyng or lowynge out agayne of catell or londe, that a man promyseth, voweth or dedicateth vnto the LORDE.

The first Chapter.

And the LORDE called Moses, and spake vnto him out of y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and sayde: Speake vnto y childre of Israel, & saie vnto them: Who so euer amonge you wyl brynge an offeringe vnto the LORDE, let him brynge it of y catell, euen of the oxen, & of the shepe.

If he wyl brynge a burntofferynge of y oxen or greate catell, he let him offre a male without blemyshe, before y doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to reconyle him self before the LORDE, & let him laye his hande vpon the heave of the burntofferynge, then shal he be reconcyled, so y God shalbe mercifull vnto him.

And he shall kyll the yonge ore before y LORDE: and y prestes Aarons sonnes shal brynge the bloude, and sprentle it rounde aboute vpon the altare, that is before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the slayne shalbe slayne from of the burntofferynge, and it shalbe hewen in peces. And the sonnes of Aaron the prest shal make a fyre vpon the altare, and laye wod aboue theron: and y peces, the heade, and the fatt shal they laye vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon y fyre on the altare. But y bowels & legges shal be washsen with water, and the prest shal burne altogether vpon the altare for a burntacrifice: this is an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

If he wyl offre a burntacrifice of the small catell, that is, of the lambes or goates, then let him offre a male without a blemyshe. And he shall kyll it before the LORDE, euen at the corner of the altare on the north syde before y LORDE. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shal sprentle his bloude rounde aboute vpon y altare, and it shal be hewen in peces. And the prest shal laye them with the heade and the fatt, vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels and y legges shal be wasshen with water. And y prest shal offre it altogether, and burne it vpon y altare for a burnesacrifice. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D But yf he wil offre a burnesacrifice of y foules vnto the LORDE, then let him offre it of the turtill doves or of y yonge pigeons. And the prest shal brynge it vnto the altare, and wyng the neck of it a sunder, that it maye be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it rume out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the fethers shalbe cast vpon the heape of asshes besyde the altare towarde the east, and he shall deuyde the wynges of it, but not breake the cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, euen vpon the wodd that lyeth vps the fyre, for a burnesacrifice. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

The II. Chapter.

Whan a soule wyll offre a meatofferinge vnto the LORDE, then shal it be of fyne floure, and he shal poure oyle vpon it, and put frankencense thereon, z so brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the prestes. Then shal one of them take his handfull of the same floure, and oyle with all the frankencense, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for y remnant of the meatofferinge, it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe y most holy of the offeringes of the LORDE.

Leui. 10. d

B But yf he wyll brynge a meatofferinge of that which is baken in the oven, then let him take swete cakes of wheate, mixte with oyle, and unleueded wafers anoynted with oyle. Where theles yf thy meatofferinge be enythinge of that which is fryed in the panne, then shal it be of fyne swete floure myrte with oyle: And thou shalt cut it in peces, z poure oyle thereon: so is it a meatofferinge. But yf thy meatofferinge be oughe broyled on the gredyon, then shalt thou make it of fyne floure with oyle. And the meatofferinge that thou wilt make of soch thinges for the LORDE, shalt thou brynge vnto y prest, which shal brynge it vnto the altare, z shal heue vp the same meatofferinge for a remembrance, and burne it vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for the remnant, it shal be Aarons and his sonnes. This shal be the most holy of the offeringes of the LORDE.

All the meatofferynges that ye wil offre vnto the LORDE, shal ye make without lea. For there shal no leue nor hony be burne for an offeringe vnto the LORDE. But for the offeringe of the firstlinges shal ye offer the vnto the LORDE. Where theles they shal come vpon no altare for a swete sauoure.

All thy meatofferynges shalt thou sak. And thy meatofferynge shal neuer be with out y salt of the couenaunt of thy God: for in all thy offeringes shalt thou offre salt.

But yf thou wilt offre a meatofferynge of the first frutes vnto y LORDE, then shalt thou drye that which is grene, by the fyre, z beate it small, and so offre the meatofferynge of thy first frutes. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye frankencense thereon, so is it a meatofferynge. And then shall the prest beate it, and burne of the oyle with all the frankencense for a remembrance. This is an offeringe vnto the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

Whan yf his offeringe be a deedofferinge of greate catell (whether it be ore or come) then shal he offre soch as is without blemish before the LORDE, z shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prestes Aarons sonnes, shall sprentle the bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and shal offre of y deedofferynge vnto the LORDE: namely, all the fat that is within, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vps the kydneyes also. And Aarons sonnes shal burne it vpon the altare for a burntofferynge, euen vpon the wodd that lyeth on the fyre. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

If his deedofferynge be of small catell, whether it be male or female, it shal be without blemish: If it be a lambe, then shal he brynge it before the LORDE, z shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and sleve it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shal sprentle his bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and so offre of the deedofferynge vnto the LORDE: namely, the fat of it, all the rompe with the backe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, with all y fat that is within, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, z the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also. And the prest shal burne it vpon the altare, for y meate of the offeringe vnto y LORDE.

But yf his offeringe be a goate, and bryng it before the LORDE, he shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shal sprentle the bloude rounde aboute vps the altare, z shal offer therof a sacrifice vnto the LORDE: namely, the fat y conereth the bowels, and all the fat y is within, the two kydneyes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, z the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes. And the prest shal burne it vps the altare, for the meate of the sacrifice to a swete sauoure.

All the fatt is the LORDES. Let this be a perpetuall lawe amonge yd posterities in all youre dwellynges, that ye eate no fatt, ner bloude.

The III. Chapter.

When the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: Whan a soule synneth thorow ignorance in any commaundment of the LORDE, which he ought not to do: As namely, yf a prest which is anoynted, synne, that he make the people do amysse, he shall brynge for y synne that he hath done, a yonge bullocke without blemish vnto the LORDE for a synofferynge. And the bullocke shal he brynge to the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE, z laie his hande vps his heade, z kyll him before y LORDE. And y prest y is anoynted, shal take of his bloude, z brynge it into the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall dyppe his synger in to the bloude, z sprentle therewith seuen tymes before the LORDE, towarde the vayne of y holy. And he shal put of the same bloude vpon the homes of the altare of incense, y stondeth before y LORDE in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: z all the bloude of the bullocke shal he poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings, y stondeth at the entrin ge in of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. And all the fat of the synofferynge shal he heue vp: namely, the fat y conereth the bowels, z all the fat y is within, y two kydneyes with the fatt that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also (like as he heueth it from the ore in the deedofferynge) and shal burne it vpon the altare of burntofferings. But the sleyme of the bullocke, and all the fleshy, with the heade z legges, z the bowels and the donge, shal he carry altogether out of the hoost, in to a cleane place, where y asshes are poured out, z shal burne it vpon wodd with fyre.

Whan the whole congregacion of Israel synneth thorow ignorance, z the dede be hyd from their eyes, so y they do ought agaynst

eny of the commaundementes of the LORDE, which they shulde not do, z come afterwarde to the knowlege of the synne that they haue done, they shal brynge y yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and set him before y dore of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Elders of the congregacion shal laye their handes vpon his heade before the LORDE, z kyll y bullocke before the LORDE. And y prest y is anoynted shal brynge of y bullockes bloude in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, z dyppe ther in with his synger, and sprentle therewith seuen tymes before the LORDE, eue before the vayne of the holy. And shal put of the bloude vpon the homes of the altare, y stondeth before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: z all y other bloude shal he poure vps the botome of y altare of burntofferings, y stondeth before the dore of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. But all his fatt shal he heue vp, z burne it vps the altare: z shal do with this bullocke, as he dyd with y bullocke of the synofferynge: Thus the prest shal make an attonement for them, z it shal be foregouen them. And the bullocke shal he brynge without the hoost, and burne him, as he brennt y first bullocke. This shalbe y synofferynge of the congregacion.

Whan a pryncce synneth, z doth agaynst the commaundement of the LORDE his God, y he ought not to do, z offendeth ignorantly, z cometh to the knowlege of his synne y he hath done, he shal brynge for his offeringe an he goate without blemish, z laye his hande vps the goates heade, z slaye him in y place where y burntofferings are slayne before y LORDE. The shal y prest take of y bloude of y synofferynge w his synger, and put it vpon the altare of burntofferings, z poure the eether bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings. But all the fatt of it shal he burne vps the altare, like as the fatt of the healt offeringe. And so the prest shal make an attonement for his synne, and it shal be foregouen him.

Whan a soule of y comon people synneth ignorantly, doinge eny thinge agaynst the commaundement of the LORDE, y he ought not to do, z so offendeth, z cometh to y knowlege of the synne y he hath done, he shal brynge for his offeringe a she goate without blemish, for the synne y he hath done, and shal laye his hande vpon the heade of the synofferynge, z slaye it in the place of the burntofferings. And the prest shal take of the bloude w his synger, z put it vpon the homes of y altare of burntofferings, z poure all the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. But all the fat of it shal he take awaye, like as he taketh awaye the fat of the deuo-offerynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. And so shal the prest make an attonement for him, and it shal be forgiven him.

But yf he brynge a lambe for a synofferynge, then let him brynge a female without blemish, and laye his hande vpon the head of the synofferynge, & kyll it for a synofferynge, in the place where the burntofferings are slayne. And the prest shal take of the bloude wth his synger, & put it vpon the hornes of the altare of burntofferings, & poure all the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. But all the fat therof shal he take fro it, like as he dyd the fat of the lambe of the healthofferynge, & shal burne it vpon the altare for the LORDES sacrifice. And so yf prest shal make an attonement for the synner that he hath done, and it shal be forgiven him.

The V. Chapter.

Whan a soule synneth, & he heare a cursyng, and is wytnesse therof, or hath sene it, or knowe it, & telleth it not, he is giltye of a trespass. Or whan a soule toucheth any vncleane thinge, whether it be of a rion of an vncleane beast, or catell, or worme, & was not aware of it, he is vncleane, and hath offended. Or whan he toucheth an vncleane man (what vncleanness so euer a man is defyled withall) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde cometh to the knowledge therof, yf same hath offended. Or whan a soule sweareth, so yf he pronounceth wth his mouth to do euell or good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth wth an ooth) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde cometh to the knowledge therof, he hath offended in one of these.

Now whan it so is, yf he hath offended in one of these, & is enformed therof, what he hath synned, he shal bringe vnto the LORDE for his trespass of this his synne yf he hath done, a female from the flocke, either a yewe or a she goate for a synofferynge: so shal the prest make an attonement for him concerning his synne. But yf he be not able to brynge a shepe, then let him brynge vnto the LORDE for his offence that he hath done, two turtill doves or two yonge pigeons: one for a synofferynge, the other for a burntofferunge, and brynge them to the prest: Which shal make the first a synofferynge, and first wrynge the neck of it, so that he plucke it not cleane of, and sprenkle with the bloude vpon the sydes of the altare, and let the residue of the bloude blede out vpon the botome of the altare: This is the synofferynge. As for the other, he shal make it a burntofferunge, after the maner therof. And thus shal the prest make an attonement for him concerning the synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. But yf he be not able to brynge two turtill doves or two yonge pigeons, then let him brynge his offerunge for his synne, a tenth deale of an Ephra of syne floure for a synofferynge. But he shal put no oyle theron, ner laye frankincense vpon it, for it is a synofferynge. And he shal brynge it vnto the prest, & yf prest shal take his hand full of it for a remembraunce, and burne it vpon the altare for an offerunge vnto the LORDE. This is a synofferynge. And so shal the prest make an attonement for him, concerning his synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. And the remnant shal be the prestes, like a meatofferynge.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: If a soule trespass, so yf thorow ignorance he offendeth in any thinge yf is halowed vnto the LORDE, he shal brynge his trespassofferynge vnto the LORDE, euen a ramme from the flocke without blemish, worth two Syckles of syluer, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, for a trespassofferynge: and so he what he hath offended in the halowed thinge, he shal make restitution, & geue the fifth parte more thereto. And he shal deliuer it vnto the prest, which shal make an attonement for him wth the ramme of the trespassofferynge, & it shal be forgiven him.

Whan a soule synneth, and doeth oughte agaynst any commaundment of the LORDE, yf he shulde not do, & is informed therof, he hath trespassed, & is giltye of the synne. And he shal brynge from the flocke a ramme without blemish, which is worth a trespassofferynge vnto the prest, which shal make an attonement for him concerning his ignorance which he dyd, and was not aware, and it shal be forgiven him. This is the trespassofferynge, because he trespassed agaynst the LORDE.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Whan a soule synneth, & trespasseth agaynst the LORDE, so that he denyeth vnto his neighbour that which he gaue him to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande, or that he hath violently taken awaye, or gotten vnrightheously, or founde that was lost, and denyeth it with a false ooth, what so euer it be, wherein a man synneth agaynst his neighbour. Now whan it cometh so to passe, that he synneth after this maner, & trespasseth, he shal restore agayne that he toke violently awaye, or gat wrongeously, or that was geuen him to kepe, or that he hath founde, or what so euer it be aboute yf which he hath sworne falsely, he shal restore it agayne whole altogether, and geue the fifth parte more thereto, euen to him that it belonged vnto, the same daye that he geueth his trespassofferynge. But for his trespass he shal brynge for the LORDE (euen vnto the prest) a ramme from the flocke without blemish, that is worth a trespassofferynge. Then shal the prest make an attonement for him before the LORDE, and all that he hath synned in, shal be forgiven him.

The VI. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the burntofferunge. The burntofferunge shal burne vpon the altare all night vntill the mornynge. But the fyre of the altare onely shal burne theron. And yf prest shal put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his flesh, and shal take vp the asshes, that the fyre of the burntofferunge vpon the altare hath made, and shal poure them besyde the altare. Then shal he put of his rayment, and put on other rayment, and carry out the asshes without the hoost, into a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shal burne, and neuer go out. The prest shal kyndle wode theron euery mornynge, and dreffe the burntofferunge vpon it, and burne the fat of the deuo-offerynges theron. The fyre shal euer burne vpon the altare, and neuer go out.

And this is the lawe of the meatofferynge, which Aarons sonnes shal offre before the LORDE vpon the altare. One of them shal haue his handfull of syne floure of the meatofferynge, and of the oyle, and all the frankincense that lyeth vpon the meatofferynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure a remembraunce vnto the LORDE. As for the remnant, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate it, and vncleanned shal they eate it in the holy place, namely, in the courte of the Tabernacle of witness. With leue shal they not take their porcion, which I haue geuen them of my offerunges. It shal be vnto them most holy, as the synofferynge and trespassofferynge. All the males amonge the children of Aaron shal eate of it. Let this be a perpetuall lawe for youre posterities in the sacrifices of the LORDE.

No man shal touch it, excepte he be consecrated.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: This shal be the offerunge of Aaron and of his sonnes, which they shal offre vnto the LORDE in the daie of their anoyntinge. The tenth parte of an Ephra of syne floure for a meatofferynge daylie, the one half parte in the mornynge, the other half parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shal thou make it, and brynge it fryed, and in peeces shal thou offer it for the swete sauoure of the LORDE. And the prest which amonge his sonnes shal be anoynted in his steade, shal do this. This is a perpetuall dewtye vnto the LORDE. It shal be burne altogether: for all the meatofferunges of the prest shal be consumed with the fyre, and not be eaten.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synofferynge. In the place where thou slayest yf burnt offerunge, shal thou slay the synofferynge also before the LORDE. This is most holy.

The prest that offereth the synofferynge, shal eate it in the holy place, in the courte of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shal touch yf flesh therof, excepte he be halowed. And yf any garment be sprentled with the bloude of it, it shal be washed in the holy place. And the earthe pot that it is sodden in, shal be broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shal be scoured, and rased with water. All yf males amonge the prestes shal eate therof, for it is most holy. Notwithstandinge all yf synofferynge whose bloude is brought in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse to make an attonement, shal not be eaten, but burnt with fyre.

The VII. Chapter.

And this is the lawe of the trespassofferynge, and it shal be most holy. In the place where the burntofferunge is slayne, shal the trespassofferynge be slayne also, & there shal of his bloude be sprentled rounde aboute vpon the altare. And all his fat shal be offered: the rompe and the fat yf couereth the bowels, the two kydneyes with the fat yf is theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also. And the prest shal burne it vpon the altare for an offerunge vnto the LORDE. This is a trespassofferynge.

All the males amonge the prestes shal eate it in the holy place, for it is most holy: euen as the synofferynge, so shal the trespassofferynge.

ferynge be also, they shall both haue one lawe: and it shal be the prestes, that reconceyth ther wth. Loke which prest offereth eny mans burnt offeringe, the sleyme of the same burnt offeringe that he hath offered, shal be his. And every meat offeringe that is bakten in the oven, rested vpon the greddyron, or fryed in the panne, shal be the prestes & offereth it. And every meat offeringe & is myngled with oyle, or drye, shal belonge vnto all Aaron sonnes, vnto one as well as another.

B And this is & lawe of the health offeringe, that is offered vnto the LORDE. If they wyll offre a sacrifice of thanksgyvinge, then shal they offre unleuened cakes mingled with oyle, and swete wafers straked ouer with oyle, and fryed cakes of fyne flour mingled with oyle. This offeringe also shal they brynge vpon a cake of leuened bred, to the thank offeringe of his health offeringe: and of them all he shal offre one for an heue offeringe vnto the LORDE. And it shal be the prestes, that sprentleth the bloude of the health offeringe. And the flesh of the thank offeringe in his health offeringes, shal be eaten the same daye that it is offered, and there shall nothinge be left ouer vntyll the morninge.

Leui. 19. b And whether it be a vowe or a fre wyl offeringe, it shal be eaten the same daye that it is offered: yf oughte be left ouer vntyll the morninge, yet maye it be eaten. But loke what remaineth vnto y^e thirde daye of the flesh that is offered, it shal be brent with the fyre. And yf eny man vpon the thirde daie eate of y^e offered flesh of his health offeringe, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Whether shall it be rekened vnto him, but it shal be refused. And loke which sonle eateth therof, the same is gilty of a mysdede.

C And the flesh that toucheth eny vncleane thinge, shal not be eaten, but burnt with the fyre. But who so euer is cleane of body, shal eate of the flesh: and the soule that eateth of & flesh of y^e health offeringe which belongeth vnto the LORDE, his vncleannes be vpon him, and he shal be roted out from amonge his people.

And when a soule toucheth eny vncleane thinge, whether it be an vncleane man, catell, or eny other abhominacion that is, and eateth of the flesh of the burnt offeringe, that belongeth vnto the LORDE, the same shal be roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORDE talketh with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye: Ye shall eate no fat of oxen, lambes, and goates: neuerthelesse the fat of it that dyeth alone, and of such as is come of wyld beasts, that maye ye occupye to all maner of vyses, but ye shall not eate it.

For who so euer eateth the fat of & beest that is geuen vnto the LORDE for an offeringe, the same soule shal be roted out from his people. Moreover, ye shall eate no bloude, nether of catell, ner of foules, where so euer ye dwell. What soule eateth eny bloude, the same shall be roted out from his people.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Who so wyll offre his health offeringe vnto the LORDE, the same shall also brynge with all, that belongeth vnto & health offeringe for the LORDE. But he shall brynge it with his hande for the offeringe of the LORDE: namely the fat vpon the brest shall he brynge, with the brest, to be a Wave offeringe before the LORDE. And the prest shall burne the fat vpon the altare, and the brest shal be Arons and his sonnes.

And the right shulder shal they geue vnto the prest for a gift of their health offeringes. And loke which of Arons sonnes offereth the bloude of the health offeringes, and the fat, the same shall haue the right shulder for his parte. For the Wavebrest and the heueshulder haue I taken of the children of Israel, and of their health offeringes, and haue geuen them vnto Aaron the prest and vnto his sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye.

This is the anoyntinge of Aaron and of his sonnes, of the offeringes of the LORDE, in the daye whan Moses presented them to be prestes vnto the LORDE, what tyme as the LORDE commaunded (in the daye whan he anoynted them) to be geuen them of the children of Israel for a perpetuall dewtye, and vnto all their posterities. And this is the lawe of the burnt offeringe, of the meat offeringe, of the syn offeringe, of the trespass offeringe, of the offeringe of consecracion, and of the health offeringes, which the LORDE commaunded Moses vpon mount Sinai, in the daye whan he gaue him in commandement vnto the children of Israel, to offre their offeringes vnto & LORDE in the wyldernes of Sinai.

The VIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Take Aaron and his sonnes wth him, & their vestimentes, & the anoyntinge oyle, & a bullocke for a syn offeringe, two rammes, and a maunde with unleuened bred, and call the whole congregacion together, before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Moses dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, and gathered the congregacion together vnto the doore of & Tabernacle of wytnesse, and sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.

B And he toke Aaron and his sonnes, and washed them with water, and put the albe vps^{on} him, and girde him with the girdell, and put vpon him the yalowe tunicle, and put the overbody cote vpon him, and girde him vpon the overbody cote, & put the brest lappetheron, and in & brest lappe light and perfectnesse. And set the mycer vpon his heade. And vpon the mycer euen aboue his fore heade, put he a plate of golde on the holy crowne: as & LORDE commaunded Moses.

Exo. 28. d And Moses toke the anoyntinge oyle, & anoynted the habitation, and all that was therein, and consecrated it, and sprentled therewith seue tymes vpon the altare, and anoynted the altare with all his vessels, the lauer with his fore, that it might be consecrated: and poured the anoyntinge oyle vpon Arons heade, and anoynted him, & he might be consecrated.

C And he brought Arons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and girde them with the girdle, and put bonettes vpon their heades, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he caused brynge a bullocke for a syn offeringe. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was he slayne. And Moses toke of the bloude, & put it vpon the homes of the altare rounde aboute with his synger, and purified the altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare, and consecrated it, that he might reconceyle it. And toke all the fat vps^{on} the bowels, the nett vpon the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fat thereon, and burned it vpon the altare. But the bullocke wth his sleyme, flesh, & donge, burned he with fyre without the hoost, as the LORDE commaunded him. Exo. 29.

And he brought a ramme for a burnt offeringe. And Aaron wth his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, & then was he slayne. And Moses sprentled of y^e bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, hewed the ramme in peces, and burnt the heade, the peces, and the fatt. And washed the bowels and the legges with water, and so burnt & whole ramme vps^{on} the altare. This was a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifice vnto the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him. Exo. 29.

He brought also the other ramme of the offeringe of the consecracion. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was it slayne. And Moses toke of his bloude, and put it vpon the tynpe of Arons right eare, and vpon the thumb of his right hande, and vpon the greates toe of his right fore.

And he brought Arons sonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the tynpe of the right eare of them, and vpon & thombes of their righte handes, and vpon the greates toes of their righte fete, and poured the resydue of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute. And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the nett vpon the leuer, the two kydneys with the fat thereon, and the righte shulder. And out of the maunde of unleuened bred before the LORDE, he toke an unleuened cake, and a cake of oyled bred, and a wafer, and layed them vps^{on} the fat, and vpon the right shulder, and put altogether vpon the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waied it for a Wave offeringe before the LORDE. Exo. 29.

And afterwarde toke he all agayne from their hondes, and burned them on the altare, euen vpon the burnt offeringe: for it is an offeringe of consecracion for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifice vnto & LORDE. And Moses toke the brest, and waied it a Wave offeringe before the LORDE, of the ramme of the offeringe of consecracion: the same was Moses parte, as the LORDE commaunded Exo. 29.

Moses. And Moses toke of 3 anoyntinge oyle, & of the bloude vpon the altare, & sprenkled it vpon Aaron & his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes & vpon their vestimentes, and so consecrated Aaron & his vestimentes, his sonnes and their vestimentes with him.

G And he sayde vnto Aaron & his sonnes: Seeth 3 flesh before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & there eate it, & the bried in 3 maunde of the consecration offeringes, as it is comaunded me, & sayde: Aaron & his sonnes shall eate it. As for 3 which remaineth of the flesh & bried, ye shall burne it with fyre. And in seuen dayes shall ye not departe from y^e dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, vntyll the daye, 3 the dayes of y^e consecration offeringes be at an ende: for seuen dayes must y^e handes be consecrated, as it is come to passe this daye: The LORDE hath comaunded to do it, that ye might be reconcyled. And ye shall cary before the Tabernacle of wytnesse daye and night seuen dayes longe, & shall kepe y^e watch of y^e LORDE, that ye dye not, for thus am I comaunded. And Aaron with his sonnes dyd all, that 3 LORDE comaunded by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

A And vpon the eight daye Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the Elders in Israel, and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vnto the a yonge calfe for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burnt offeringe, both without blemyshe, and bryng them before the LORDE, and speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Take an he goate for a synofferynge: and a calf, and a shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemyshe for a burnt offeringe: and an ore and a ramme for an healt offeringe, that we maye offre before the LORDE: and a meat offeringe myngled with oyle. For to daye shall the LORDE appeare vnto you.

B And they toke what Moses commaunded before y^e dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the whole congregacion came nye, and stode before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE comaunded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glory of 3 LORDE appeare vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto 3 altare, and offre thy synofferynge and thy burnt offeringe, and make an attonement for the and for the people. Then offre the peoples offeringe, and reconcile them also, as the LORDE hath comaunded.

and 7. d

Leui. 4. a

And Aaron wente vnto the altare, and slewe 3 calfe for his synofferynge, & his son

nes brought the bloude vnto him. And he dypte his synger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare, and poured 3 bloude vpon y^e botome of the altare. As for the fat and the kydneyes & the net vpon the leuer of the synofferynge, he burnt the vpon the altare, as the LORDE comaunded Moses. The flesh also and the hyde burnt he wth fyre without the hoost.

Afterwarde he slewe the burnt offeringe, and Aarons sonnes brought the bloude vnto him, & he sprentled it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And they brought him the burnt offeringe in peces, & the heade: & he burnt it vpon the altare. And he washed the bowels and the legges, and burnt them aboue vpon the burnt offeringe on the altare.

Then brought he the offeringe of the people, and toke the goate, that synofferynge of the people, and slewe it, and made a synofferynge therof, as of the fyrst. And brought the burnt offeringe, and dyd as the lawe is: and brought the meat offeringe, and toke his handfull, and burnt it vpon the altare, besyde the burnt offeringe of the moynynge.

Afterwarde slewe he the ore and the ramme for the healt offeringe of the people. And his sonnes brought him the bloude, which he sprentled vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the fat of the ore & of the ramme, the rompe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, & the kydneyes, & the net vpon the leuer, all soch fat laied they vpon the brest, and burnt the fat vpon the altare. But the brest and the right shulder waied Aaron for a Waue offeringe before the LORDE, as the LORDE comaunded Moses.

And Aaron lift up his hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the worke of the synofferynge, burnt offeringe, and healt offeringe. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And whan they came out agayne, they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE vnto all the people. For there came a fyre from the LORDE, and vpon the altare it consumed the burnt offeringe and the fat. Whan all the people sawe that, they reioysed, and fell vpon their faces.

The X. Chapter.

A And 3 sonnes of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, toke ether of the his censoure, & put fyre therin, & layed incense vpon it, and brought straunge fyre before the LORDE, which he comaunded them not. Then wente there out a fyre from 3 LORDE, and consumed them, so that they dyed before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron: This is it, that the LORDE sayde: I wil be sanctified vpoⁿ them that come nye me, and before all the people wil I be glorified. And Aaron helde his peace.

B Moses called Misael and Elzaphan the sonnes of Vsiel Aarons vnkle, and sayde vnto them: Go ye, and cary youre brethens out of the Sanctuary, without the hoost. And they wente, and caried them forth in their albes without the hoost, as Moses sayde.

Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron & to his sonnes Eleasar and Jehamar: Ye shall not vncouer youre heades, ner rente y^e clothes, that ye dye not, and the wrath come vpon the whole congregacion: Let youre brethens of the whole house of Israel bewepe this burnynge, which the LORDE hath done. As for you, ye shall not go out from the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntinge oyle of the LORDE is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.

The LORDE spake vnto Aaron, & sayde: Thou & thy sonnes whiche shall drynke no wyne ner stronge drynke, whan ye go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all y^e posterities: y^e ye maye haue knowlege to discerne, what is holy and vnholy, what is cleane & vncleane: & that ye maye teach the children of Israel all the lawes, which the LORDE hath spoken vnto you by Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleasar and Jehamar his sonnes that were left: Take the remnaunt of the meat offeringe in the sacrifices of 3 LORDE, and eate it without leuen besyde the altare, for it is most holy, euen in the holy place shall ye eate it. For it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye in the sacrifices of the LORDE: for thus am I comaunded. But the Wauebrest and the heueshulder shalt thou eate, and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the in a cleane place. For this dutye is geuen vnto the and thy children in the dead offeringes of the children of Israel. For the heueshulder and the Wauebrest to the offeringes of the fat, shall be brought in, that they maye be waied for a Waue offeringe before the LORDE. Therefore is it thine and thy childrens for a perpetuall dutye, as the LORDE comaunded.

And Moses sought for the goate of the synofferynge, and founde it burnt. And he was angrie at Eleasar and Jehamar 3 sonnes of Aaron, which were left alyue, and sayde: Wherefore haue ye not eaten the synofferynge in the holy place: for it is most holy, & he hath geuen it you, that ye might beare y^e synne of the congregacion, to make a gremet for them before the LORDE. Beholde, the bloude of it came not in to the Sanctuary: Ye shulde haue eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was comaunded.

Aaron sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, this daye haue they offred their synofferynge & their burnt offeringe before 3 LORDE. And it is chaunced me after this maner. And shulde I eate of the synofferynge to daye, & be merry before the LORDE? Whan Moses herde that, he was content.

The XI. Chapter.

A And 3 LORDE talked wth Moses & Aaron & sayde: Speake vnto 3 childre of Israel, and saye: These are the beestes which ye shall eate amonge all 3 beestes vpoⁿ earth: What so ever hath hofse, & deuyneth it in to two clawes, & cheweth cud amonge the beestes, that shall ye eate. But loke what cheweth cud & hath hofse, & deuyneth it not, as the Camell, the same is vncleane vnto you, & ye shall not eate it. The Conyes chewe cud, but they deuyneth not the hofse in to two clawes, therefore are they vncleane vnto you. The Hare cheweth cud also, but deuyneth not 3 hofse in to two clawes, therefore is he vncleane vnto you. And the Swyne deuyneth 3 hofse in to two clawes, but cheweth not the cud, therefore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shall ye not eate, ner touch their carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

Act. 10. b

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: What so ever hath fynnes and scales in the waters, fies & ryuers, that shall ye eate. But what so ever hath not fynnes and scales in the fies and ryuers, amonge all 3 moue in the waters, & of all that lyue in the waters, it shall be an abhominacion vnto you, so that ye eate not of their flesh, and that ye abhorre their carcases. For all that haue not synnes, & scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.

And these shall ye abhorre amonge & foules, so that ye eate them not: The Aegle, the Goshauke, the Cormorant, the Vultur, & Aye, and all his kynde, and all Hauens & their kynde: the Estrich, & Nightheron, the Cocow, the Sparow hawke with his kynde, the litle Oule, the Scorde, the grete Oule, & Backe, the Pellycane, the Swanne, the Pye, the Heron, & Jaye with his kynde, the Lap wyng, and & Swalowe. And what so ever crepeth amonge the foules, and goeth vpon foure fete, shall be an abhominacion vnto you. Yet these shall ye eate of the foules that crepe and go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue no knynges aboue vpon & legges, to hope withall vpon earth. Of these maye ye eate, as there is the Arde with his kynde, and the Selaam with his kynde, & the Hargol with his kynde, & the Hagab with his kynde. But what so ever els hath foure fete amonge the foules, it shall be an abhominacion vnto you, and ye shall eate it for vncleane. Who so ever toucheth the carcase of soch, shall be vncleane vntill & euem and who so ever beareth the carcase of any of these, shall wash his clothes, and shall be vncleane vntill the euen.

Therefore euery beest that hath hofse, and deuyleth it not in to two clawes, & chereyth not cud, shall be vncleane vnto you. Who so ever toucheth soch, shall be vncleane. And what so ever goeth vpon handes amonge & beestes that go vpon foure fete, shall be vncleane vnto you. Who so ever toucheth the carcases of the, shall be vncleane vntill the euen. And he & beareth their carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen: For soch are vncleane vnto you.

These shall be vncleane vnto you also, amonge the beestes that crepe vpon earth: & Wesell, the Mouse, the Tode, euery one with his kynde, the Hedgehogge, the Scellio, the Lacerte, the Snale, and the Moule, these are vncleane vnto you amonge all that crepe. Who so ever toucheth the deed carcase of the, shall be vncleane vntill the euen. And what so ever any soch deed carcase falleth vpon, it shall be vncleane, what so ever vessell of wood it be, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge. And euery vessell that any thinge is occupied withall, shall be put in the water, and is vncleane vntill the euen, and then shall it be cleane. All maner of earthen vessell that any soch carcase falleth in to, shall all be vncleane ne that therein is, & ye shall breake it. All meate which is eate, that any soch water cometh in to, is vncleane: & all maner of drynke that is dronke in all maner of soch vessell, is vncleane. And what so ever any soch carcase falleth vpon, it shall be vncleane, whether it be ouen or tette, so shall it be broke, for it is vncleane, and shall be vncleane vnto you: Neuertheles the fountaynes, welles, & poundes of water are cleane. But who so ever toucheth their carcases, is vncleane.

And though the deed carcase of any soch fell vpon the fede that is soune, yet is it cleane. But whan there is water poured vpon the fede, and afterwarde any soch deed carcase falleth thereon, then shall it be vncleane vnto you.

Whan a beest dyeth that ye maye eate, he that toucheth the deed carcase therof, is vncleane vntill the euen. Who so eateth of any soch carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen. Likewise he that beareth any soch carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

What so ever crepeth vpon earth, shall be an abhominacion vnto you, and shall not be eaten. And what so ever crepeth vpon & bely, or all that goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that crepeth vpon earth, shall ye not eate, for it shall be an abhominacion vnto you. Make not youre soules abhominable, and defyle you not in them, to stayne you re selues: for I am the LORDE youre God. Therefore shall ye sanctifie youre selues, that ye maye be holy, for I am holy. And ye shall not defyle youre selues on any maner of crepyng beest, that crepeth vpon earth: for I am the LORDE, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt, that I might be youre God: therefore shall ye be holy, for I am holy.

This is the lawe ouer & beestes and foules, & all maner of soules of crepyng beestes in the waters, and all maner of soules & crepe vpon earth: that ye maie knowe to discern what is vncleane & cleane, and what maner of beestes are to be eaten, and which are not to be eaten.

The XII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Whan a woman hath conceived, and beareth a manchild, she shall be vncleane seven dayes, so longe as she suffreth hir disease, and in & eight dayes shall & flesh of his foreskynne be cut away. And she shall byde at home thre and thirtie dayes in & blonde of hir purifieng, she shall touch no heuyl thinge, ner come in to & Sacuary, tyll the daies of hir purifieng be out. But yf she beare a maydechilde, she shall be vncleane two weekes, so longe as she suffreth hir disease, and sitte and thre score daies shall she byde at home in the blonde of hir purifieng.

And whan the dayes of hir purifieng are out, for the sonne or for the daughter, she shall bringe a lambe of one yeare olde for a burnt offeringe, and a yonge pigeon or a tur till done for a synofferyng to the doore of & Tabernacle of wytnesse vnto & prest, which shall offre it before the LORDE, and make an attonement for her, and so shall she be clenfed from hir blondysse. This is the lawe for her that beareth a manchild or maydechilde.

But yf she be not able to bringe a shepe, then let hir take two turtill doves, or two yonge pigeons, the one for a burnt offeringe, the other for a synofferyng, then shall the prest make an attonement for her, so that she shall be cleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

And & LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Whan there ryseth vpon any thinge in the skynne of a mans flesh, whether it be a scabbe or a glisteryng whyte (as though there wolde be a leprosy in & skynne of his flesh) he shall be brought vnto Aaron the prest, or to one of his sonnes amonge & prestes. And whan the prest seyth the plage vpon the skynne of the flesh, that the hayres are turned to whyte, and it seme deper in that place then the other skynne of his flesh, then is it surely a leprosy, therefore shall the prest lye vpon him, and iudge him vncleane.

But whan there is any whyte plecte in the skynne of his flesh, and yet seme no deper then the other skynne of the flesh, and the hayres be not turned to whyte, the prest shall shut him vp seven dayes, and on & seventh daye lye vpon him: yf the plage seme vnto him as afore, & hath frette no deper in the skynne, then shall the prest shut him vp yet seven dayes mo. And whan he loketh on him agayne vpon the seventh daye, and fyndeth, that the plage be darkish, and hath frette no deper in the skynne, the prest shall iudge him cleane, for it is but a skynne, and he shall wash his clothes, & then is he cleane.

But whan the scabbe fretteth farther in the skynne (after that he is sene of the prest, and iudged cleane) and he be now sene of the prest agayne: whan the prest seyth the, & the scabbe hath frette farther in the skynne, he shall iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a leprosy.

Whan a plage of leprosy is vpon a man, he shall be brought vnto the prest. Whan he seyth and fyndeth, that there is whyte risen vpon in the skynne, and the hayre turned vnto whyte, and there be rawe flesh in the sore, the is it surely an olde leprosy in & skynne of his flesh, therefore shall the prest iudge him vncleane, and nat shut him vp, for he is vncleane already.

But whan the leprosy breaketh out in the skynne, and couereth the whole skynne, from the heade vnto the soles, all that the prest can se, so whan the prest loketh vpon it, and fyndeth, that & leprosy hath couered all the flesh, he shall iudge him cleane, for so moch as it is turned all in to whyte vpon him, for he is cleane.

Notwithstandinge yf there be rawe flesh there, in the daye whan he is loket vpon, the is he vncleane. And whan the prest seyth & rawe flesh, he shall iudge him vncleane, for he is vncleane, & it is surely a leprosy. But yf the rawe flesh chaunge agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then shall he come vnto the prest. And whan the prest loketh vpon him, and fyndeth, that the plage is turned to whyte, he shall iudge him cleane, for he is cleane.

Whan there is a byle in the skynne of any mans flesh, and healeth agayne, and afterwarde in the same place there arys vpon any whyte thinge, or a glisteryng whyte som what reddysh, he shall be sene of the prest. So whan the prest seyth, that it appeareth to be lower then the other skynne, and the hayre turned to whyte, then shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosy broken out of the byle. But yf the prest se and fynde, that the hayres are not whyte, and it not lower then the other skynne, and is darkish, he shall shut him vp seven dayes. If it hath frette farther in the skynne, then shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosy. But yf the glisteryng whyte abyde still, and freate no farther, the is it but a prynte of the byle, and the prest shall iudge him cleane.

Whan the skynne of any mans flesh is hurt with fyre, and the prynte of the burninge be reddysh or whyte, and the prest loketh vpon him, and fyndeth the hayre turned to whyte vpon the mark of the burnyng, & it apeare deper then the other skynne, the is there surely a leprosy brokē out of þe prynte of y burnyng: therfore shal y prest iudge hi vncleane, for it is a plague of leprosy. But yf the prest se and fynde, that þe haye vpon the prynte of the burnyng is not turned vnto whyte, z is no lower then the other slayne, and is darkish also, he shall shut him vp seven dayes.

And vpon the seventh daye he shall loke vpon him: yf it hath frett farther in y slayne, then shal he iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But yf it stode styll vpon the mark of the burnyng, and frett no farther in the slayne, and is darkish, then is it a sore in y mark of the burnyng, z the prest shal iudge him cleane, for it is but the prynte of the burnyng.

¶ Whan a man or woman is slayne vpon the heade or beere, and the prest seyth the mark, and fyndeth that it appeareth deper then the other slayne, and the haye be the re golde and thynne, then shal he iudge him vncleane: for it is a slayse of leprosy of the heade or of the beere. But yf the prest se that þe slayse apeare no deper the the slayne, and that the haye is not of a pale colour, he shall shut him vp seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he lokeþ, and fyndeth, that the slayse hath frett no farther, and there be no golden haye there, and that the slayse appeare no deper then the other slayne, then let him be shawen: but so that he shawe not of the scabbe, and the prest shall shut him vp yet seven dayes moe. And vpon the seventh daye whā he lokeþ, and fyndeth that the slayse hath frett no farther in the slayne, and that it apeareth no deper then the other slayne, then shall the prest iudge him cleane. And he shall wash his clothes, for he is cleane. But yf the scabbe create farther in the slayne (after þe he is iudged cleane) and the prest lokeþ, and fyndeth, that þe scabbe hath frett farther in the slayne, then shal he seke nomeze for golden hayes, for he is vncleane. ¶ Neuerthelesse yf he se that the scabbe stondeth styll, z that pale hayes are there rysen vp, then is þe scabbe hole, and he is cleane, therfore shall þe prest iudge him to be cleane.

¶ Whā there is eny glisteringe whyte vpon y slayne of the flesh of a man or woman, and the prest seyth there that the glisteringe whyte vanysheth: then is it but a whyte scabbe rysen vp in y slayne, z he is cleane.

¶ Whan the hayes fall out of the heade of a man or a woman, so that he is balde, the same is cleane. ¶ If they fall out of his fore hea-de, then is he fore heade balde z cleane. But yf there be a whyte reedish sore in the balde heade, or balde fore heade, then is there a leprosy rysen vp in the balde heade or balde fore heade: therfore shal y prest loke vpon him. And whan he fyndeth the whyte reedish sore rysen vp in his balde heade or balde fore heade, then shal þe slayne of the flesh be as leporous, therfore is he a leporous man and vncleane. And the prest shall iudge him vncleane, because of y same sore vpon his heade.

¶ Who so now is leporous, his clothes shal be rent, and the heade bare, z the lippes mofled, and shall in eny wyse be called vncleane. And as longe as the sore is vpon him, he shall be vncleane, dwell alone, and haue his dwellinge without the hoost.

¶ Whan the plague of leprosy is in a clothe, whether it be wollen or linnen, in the warpe or west, whether it be linnen or wollen, or in a slayne, or in eny maner thyng that is made of slayne. And whan þe plague is pale or reedish in the clothe or slayne, either in the warpe or west, or in eny maner thyng that is made of slayne, the same is surely the plague of leprosy, therfore shall the prest loke vpon it. And whan he seyth the plague, he shall shut it vp seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he seyth that y plague hath frett farther in the clothe, in the warpe or west, in a slayne or in eny maner thyng that is made of slayne, then is it a frettinge plague of leprosy, and is vncleane. And the clothe shal be burnt, either warpe or west, whether it be wollen or linnē, or eny thyng made of slayne, wherein is eny soch plague. For it is a plague of leprosy, and shal be burnt wth fyre.

¶ But yf the prest se that the plague hath frett no farther in y clothe, either in the warpe or west, or eny thyng made of slayne, then shal he commaunde to wash the thyng that the plague is in, and shall shut it vp other seven dayes. And whan the prest seyth (after that the plague is washsen) þe plague is not chaūged before his eyes, and hath frett no farther also, yet is it vncleane, z shal be burnt wth fyre: for it is depe frett inwarde, and hath made slayse. ¶ Neuertheles whan the prest seyth that the prynte is vanyshed after the washyng of it, then shall he rente it out of the clothe, and of the slayne, out of the warpe or west. But yf it appeare eny more in the clothe (either in the warpe, or in the west) or eny maner thyng made of slayne, then is it a waxyng plague: and wth fyre shal it be burnt that eny soch plague is in. As for the clothe, either warpe or west, or eny maner thyng made of slayne that is washsen, and the plague be departed from it, it shal be washsen once agayne, z then is it cleane.

¶ This is the lawe ouer the plague of leprosy in clothes, whether they be wollen or linnē (ether in the warpe or in the west) and in eny maner of thyng made of slayne, to iudge them cleane or vncleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: This is the lawe ouer y leper, whan he shal be clenfed. ¶ He shall come vnto y prest, and the prest shal go out of the hoost, and loke how the plague of leprosy is healed vpon the leper. And he shall commaunde him that is to be clenfed, to take two luyng bydes, which are cleane, and Cedar wodd, and purple woll, and ysoper, and shall commaunde the one byde to be tyllid in an earthen vessell ouer sprynginge water. And he shall take the luyng byde with the Cedar wodd, the purple woll, and ysopo, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slaine byde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprentle it seven tymes vpon him that must be clenfed from y leprosy. And so clense him, and let the luyng byde flye at libertye in to the felde.

¶ But he that is clenfed, shal wash his clothes, and shawe of all his haye, and bathe him self with water, so is he cleane. Afterwarde let him go in to the hoost, yet shall he tarye without his tent seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye shal he shawe of all y haye vpon his heade, vpon his beere, vpon his browes, so that all the haye be shawen of, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his flesh in water, then is he cleane.

¶ And vpon the eithe daye shal he take two lambes without blemyshe, and a shepe of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tenth deales of fyne floure for a meatofferyng, myngled with oyle, z a Logg of oyle. The prest shall presente him that is clenfed and these thynges before the LORDE, before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shal take y one lambe, and offre it for trespass offeryng, with the Logg of oyle, z shall waue them, before y LORDE, and afterwarde slaye the lambe, where the synofferyng and burnt offeryng are slayne, namely, in the holy place. For as the synofferyng, so is the trespass offeryng the prestes also, for it is most holy.

and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the grete too of his right fore. Afterwarde shal he take of the oyle out of the Logg, and poure it in to his awne lefte hande, and dyppe his right synger in the oyle that is in his lefte hande, and sprentle the oyle with his synger seven tymes before the LORDE. As for the remnant of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the tyype of the right eare of him that is clenfed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, z vpon the grete too of his right fore, even aboue vpon the bloude of the trespass offeryng. But the remnant of the oyle in his hande, shall he poure vpon the heade of him that is clenfed, and make an attonement for him before the LORDE. And he shall make the synofferyng, and reconyle him that is clenfed, because of his vncleannesse. And afterwarde shal he sleie the burnt offeryng, and shal offre it vpon the altare with the meat offeryng, and make an attonement for him, z than is he cleane.

¶ But yf he be poore, and getteth not so much with his hande, then let him take one lambe for a trespass offeryng to waue it, to make an attonement for him, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferyng, and a Logg of oyle, z two turtill done, or two yonge pigeons which he is able to get with his hande, let the one be a synofferyng, the other a burnt offeryng: and let him bryng them vpon the eithe daye of his clensyng vnto the prest before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE.

¶ Then shall the prest take the lambe for the synofferyng, and the Logg of oyle, and shall waue them all before the LORDE, and sleie the lambe of the trespass offeryng: and take of y bloude of the same trespass offeryng, and put it vpon the tyype of the right eare of him that is clenfed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the grete too of his right fore, and poure of the oyle in to his awne lefte hande, and with his right synger sprentle the oyle that is in his lefte hande, seven tymes before the LORDE.

for him before the LORD. And afterwarde of the one of the turtill bones or yonge pigeons (acordinge as his handes are able to get) he shal make a synofferynge, of y other a burntofferynge, with the meatofferynge: and so shal the prest make an attoument for him that is clenfed before the LORD.

Let this be the lawe for the leper, which is not able with his hande to get, that belongeth vnto his clensynge.

S And the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Whan ye are come in to the lande of Canaan, which I geue you to possesse: and yf there happen a plage of leprosy in any house of youre possession, then shal he that oweth the house, come and tell the prest, and saye: Methynke there is as it were a plage of leprosy in my house. Then shal the prest commaunde to rydde all thynge out of the house or euer the prest go in to se y plage, lest all that is in the house be made vncleane. Afterwarde shal y prest go in, to se the plage.

Now whan he loketh, and fyndeth, y the re be holowe strakes yalow or reedish in the walles of the house, z they seme to be lower then the wall besyde, then shal he go out at the doore of the house, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he cometh, and seyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the walles of the house, the shal he commaunde to breake out the stones wherin the plage is, z to cast the in a foule place without the cite, z the house to be scraped within rounde aboute, and the dust y is scraped of, to be poured without y cite in an vncleane place, z to take other stones, and put them in the place of the other, and to take other playster, and playster the house.

G Whan the plage then cometh agayne, and breaketh forth in the house, after y the stones are broke out, the playster scraped of, and the house playsterd of the new, the shal the prest go in: and whan he seyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the house, then is there surely a frettinge leprosy in the house, and it is vncleane: therfore shal the house be broken downe, both the stones, and y tymber and all the dust of the house, and shal be caried out of the cite in to an vncleane place. And who so goeth in to the house, whyle it is shut vp, is vncleane vntyll y enen. And he y lyeth therein, or eateth therein, shal wash his clothes.

But yf the prest se (whā he goeth in) that this plage hath fretten farther in the house, after that the house is new playsterd, the shal he indge it to be cleane, for the plage is healed. And to a synofferynge for the house, he shal take two bydes, Cedar wodd, z purple wolle, and ysop, and slaye the one byde in an erthen vessell vpon sprynginge water, and shal take the Cedar wodd, the purple wolle, the ysop, and the lyninge byde, z dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprentle the house with all seue tymes: and so shal he purifie the house with the bloude of the byde, with the springinge water, with the lyninge byde, with the Cedar wodd, with the ysop, and with the purple wolle. And the lyninge byde shal he let flye at libertye out of the towne in to the felde, z make an attoument for the house, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer all maner plages of leprosy z styryse, ouer y leprosy of clothes and of houses, ouer sores, scabbes, and glisterynge whyte, that it maye be knowne, whan eny thinge is vncleane or cleane. This is y lawe of leprosy.

The XV. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saie vnto him: Whan a man hath a runnyng yssue from out of his flesh, y same is vncleane: but this is he vncleane by the reason of this yssue, whan his flesh is fretten of y yssue or wounde. Eueri red where on he lyeth, z what so euer he syttech vpon, shalbe vncleane.

And he that toucheth his bed shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen.

And he y syttech where he sat, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. Who so toucheth his flesh, shal wash his clothes, z bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. Whan he syttech vpon him that is cleane, y same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, z be vncleane vntyll the enen.

And the saddell and what so euer he rydeth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth eny thinge that hath bene vnder him, shalbe vncleane vntyll the enen. And who so beareth eny soch, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. And whom so euer he toucheth, and washeth not his handes first, the same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. Whan he toucheth an erthen vessell, it shal be broken: but the treen vessell shal be ransed w water. And whā he is cleane of his yssue, he shal nombre vij. dayes, after y he is made cleane, z wash his clothes, z bathe him self w sprynginge water, the is he cleane. And vpon the eight daye shal he take two turtill bones or two yonge pigeons, and bryng them before the LORD before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attoument for him before the LORD, as concernynge his yssue.

C Whan a mans sede departeth from him in slepe, the same shal bathe all his flesh w water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. And all clothes, and enery styngme that is stained with soch sede, shal he wash with water, z be vncleane vntyll the enen. A woman, by whom soch one lyeth, shal bathe hir self w water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen.

Whan a woman hath the bloude yssue of hir flesh, she shalbe put a parte vij. daies in to a sundrie place. Who so euer toucheth her, shal be vncleane vntyll the enen. And all that she lyeth vpon (as longe as she is put a parte) shalbe vncleane. And that she syttech vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth hir bed, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen. And who so euer toucheth eny maner thinge that she hath sytten vpon, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the enen.

D And yf a man lye with her (whyle she is put a parte) he shalbe vncleane seuen dayes, and the bed that he laye vpon, shalbe vncleane.

But whan a woman hath hir bloude yssue a longe season, not onely at the tyme of hir naturall course, but also out of the tyme of hir naturall course, then shal she be vncleane so longe as she hath the yssue: eue as she is at the tyme whan she is put a parte, so shal she be vncleane here also. What so euer she lyeth vpon all the tyme of hir yssue, shalbe as hir bed, whan she is put a parte. And all that she syttech vpon, shalbe vncleane, as is hir vnclemesse, whan she is put a parte. Who so euer toucheth eny of them, shal be vncleane, and shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, z be vncleane vntyll the enen.

E But yf she be cleane of hir yssue, the shal she nombre seuen dayes, afterwarde shal she be cleane: and vpon the eight daye shal

she take two turtill bones, or two yonge pigeons, and bryng them vnto the prest before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attoument for her before the LORD, as concernynge the yssue of hir vnclemesse.

Thus shal ye se that the childre of Israel kepe them selues from their vnclemesse, that they dye not in their vnclemesse, whan they defyle my habitacion, which is amōge you.

This is the lawe ouer him that hath a runnyng sore, z him whose sede departeth from him in slepe, so that he is vncleane ther of. And ouer her that hath hir bloude yssue, and who so euer hath a runnyng sore, whether it be man or woman, and whan a man lyeth with her that is vncleane.

The XVI. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses (after that Aarons two sonnes were deyd, whan they offered before the LORD) z sayde: Speake vnto Aaron thy brother, y he go not at all tymes in to y innermer Sanctuary, within the vail before the Mercyseate, which is vpon the Arke, y he dye not: for I wyll appeare in a cloude vpon y Mercyseate. But herewithall shal he go in, euen with a yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and with a ramme for a burntofferynge, and shal put on the holy linnen albe, and haue linnen breeches vpon his flesh, and gyrd him with a lynnē girdell, and haue the linnen myter vpon his heade.

For these are y holy garmentes: z he shal bathe his flesh with water, z put them on: z of the cōgregacion of the childre of Israel he shal take two he goates for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burntofferynge.

And Aaron shal bryng the bullocke his owne synofferynge, and make an attoument for himself and his house: and afterwarde shal he take the two goates, and present them before the LORD, euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shal cast lottes ouer the two goates: the lot of the one goate for the LORD, and the other for the fre goate. And the goate that y LORDES lot fell vpon, shal he offre for a synofferynge. But the goate, that the fre goates lot fell vpon, shal he present alyue before y LORD, to make an attoument for him, and to let the fre goate go into y wyldernes. And so shal he bryng the bullocke of his synofferynge, and make an attoument for him and his household, and shal kyl him.

The xviij. Chap.

And he shall take a censor full of coales from the altare that stondech before the LORDE, and his handfull of beaten incense, and brynge them in within 3 wayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before 3 LORDE, that the cloude of the incense maye couer the Mercyseate, which is vpon the witnessse, that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and sprentle it with his synger towarde the Mercyseate on the foresyde. Seven tymes shall he sprentle of the bloude thus with his synger before the Mercyseate. The shal he kyll the goate which is the peoples synofferynge, z brynge in of his bloude within the wayle, z shall do with his bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and sprentle therewith also on the foresyde towarde the Mercyseate, and so shal he reconcytle the Sanctuary from the vncleynesse of the chyldre of Israel, and frs their trespasses in all their synnes. Thus shal he do vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse, which is the habitacion with them amonge their vncleynesses.

No man shalbe in the Tabernacle of witnessse, whan he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, vntyll he go out: and so shal he make an attonement for him self and his house, and for the whole congregacion of Israel. And whā he goeth forth vnto the altare that stondech before the LORDE, he shal reconcytle, and shal take of 3 bullockes bloude, and of the goates bloude, z put it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute. And with his synger shal he sprentle of the bloude thereon seven tymes, and halowe it, and consecrate it from the vncleynesse of the chyldren of Israel.

And whan he hath made an ende of reconcylinge the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witnessse, and the altare, he shal burnge the lynynge goate.

The shal Aaron laie both his hādes vps 3 heade of him, z confesse ouer him all the mysdedes of 3 chyldre of Israel, z all their trespasses in their synnes, z shal laie the vps 3 heade of the goate, z by someman 3 is at hande, shal he let him runne in to the wyldernes: 3 the goate maye so beare all their mysdedes vpon him in to 3 wylderneesse, and he shal leaue him in the wylderneesse.

And Aaron shal go in to the Tabernacle of witnessse, and put of the linnen clothes, which he put on whā he wente in to 3 Sanctuary, and shal leaue them there, and bathe his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his awne rayment.

And he shal go forth, and make his burnt offeringe, and the burnt offeringe of the people, and make an attonement both for himself and for the people, and burne the fat of the synofferynge vpon the albare. But he 3 caried out the fyre goate, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, z then come in to the hoost.

The bullocke of the synofferynge, and 3 goate of the synofferynge (whose bloude was brought in to the Sanctuary to make an attonement) shalbe caried out of 3 hoost, z brennt with fyre, both their synnes, flesh, and donge. And he that burneth them, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and then come in to the hoost.

And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto you: Vpon the tenth daye of the seventh moneth shal ye humble youre soules, and do no worke, whether it be one of youre selues, or a straunger amonge you. For in this daye is youre attonement made, that ye maye be clesed from all youre synnes before the LORDE: therfore shal it be a fre Sabbath vnto you, and ye shal humble youre soules. Let this be a perpetuall lawe.

But the priest that is anoynted, and whose hande was fylled to be priest in his fathers steade, shal make this attonement, and shal put on the linnen clothes, namely the holy vestimētes, so shal he reconcytle the holy Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altare, and 3 prestes, and all the people of the congregacion. This shal be a perpetuall lawe vnto you, that ye reconcytle 3 chyldren of Israel from all their synnes once a yeaere. And Moses dyd, as the LORDE commaunded him.

The XVII. Chapter.

And 3 LORDE talked with Moses, z sayde: Speake vnto Aaron z his sonnes, z to all 3 chyldre of Israel, z saye vnto them: This is it that 3 LORDE hath commaunded: What so ever he be of 3 house of Israel, 3 kylleth an oxe, or lābe, or goate in the hoost, or out of the hoost, and bryngeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be brought vnto the LORDE for an offeringe before the habitacion of 3 LORDE, the same shal be giltye of bloude, as though he had shed bloude, and soch a man shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

Therfore shall the chyldren of Israel brynge their offeringes (that they wyll effie vpon the wyde felde) before the LORDE, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, vnto the priest, z there offre their health offeringes vnto the LORDE. And the priest shal sprentle the bloude vpon the altare of the LORDE before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE: and they shal offre their offeringes nomore vnto denels, with whom they go a whoringe. This shal be a perpetuall lawe vnto them amonge their posterities.

Therfore shal the son saye vnto the: What man so ever he be of the house of Israel, or a straunger also that is amonge you, which offereth a burnt offeringe or any other offeringe, and bringeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse to offre it vnto the LORDE, he shal be roted out from amonge his people.

And what man so ever it be (either of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) that eateth any maner of bloude, agaynst him wyll I set my face, and wil rote him out from amonge his people: for the soule of 3 body is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it you for the altare, that youre soules maye be reconcyled therewith: for the bloude that is in the soule maketh attonement. Therfore haue I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: No soule amonge you shall eate bloude, nor any straunger that dwelleth amonge you.

And what man so ever it be amonge you (whether he be of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) that at the huntynge eateth a beest or foule which maye be eaten, he shal poure out the bloude of the same, z couer it with earth: for all flesh lyueth in the bloude.

And I haue sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: Ye shall eate the bloude of no body: for the life of all flesh is in his bloude. Who so ever eateth it, shalbe roted out. And what so ever soule eateth that which dyed alone, or 3 was come of wyld beestes (whether he be one of youre selues or a straunger) the same shal wash his clothes, and bathe himself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wash not his clothes, nor bathe him self, then shal he beare his synne.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked w Moses, z said: Speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, z saye vnto them: I am the LORDE youre God. Ye shall not do after 3 workes of the lande of Egypte, wherin ye dwelt: neither after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, in to the which I will brynge you. Ye shal not walke after their customes, but after my lawes shall ye do, z my statutes shall ye kepe, that ye maye walke therein: for I am the LORDE youre God. Therfore shal ye kepe my statutes and my lawes. For the man that doth the same, shal liue therein, for I am the LORDE.

No mā shal come at his nexte kynswoman, to vncouer hir preuytie: for I am 3 LORDE.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 father z of 3 mother. It is thy mother, therfore shal thou not vncouer hir preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 fathers wife, for it is 3 fathers preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy sister, which is the doughter of 3 father or of 3 mother, whether she be boine at home or without.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy sonnes doughter, or of thy doughters doughter, for it is thine awne preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 fathers wiues doughter, which is boine vnto him, and is thy sister.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy fathers sister, for it is thy fathers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy mothers sister, for it is 3 mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy fathers brother, to take his wife, for she is thine awnte.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 doughter in lawe, for she is 3 sonnes wife, therfore shal thou not vncouer hir preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy brothers wife, for it is thy brothers preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy wife and of hir doughter also, nether shalt thou take hir sonnes doughter or hir doughters doughter, to vncouer their preuyties, for they are hir nexte kynswomen. And it is wickednesse.

Thou shalt not take a wife and hir sister also, to vncouer hir preuytie, whyle she is yet alyue.

Thou shalt not go vnto a woman to vncouer hir preuytie, so longe as she hath hir disease in hir vncleynesse.

Thou shalt not lye with thy neighbours wife to medle with her, for to defyle thy self withall.

Thou shalt not gene of thy seede also, to be burnt vnto Moloch, lest thou vnhalowe the name of thy God, for I am the LORDE.

 Thou shalt not lye with mankynde as with womankynde, for it is abhominacion.
 Thou shalt lye with no maner of beest, to defyle thyself therewith. And no woman shall have to do with a beest, for it is abhominacion.
 Re shall defyle youre selues in none of the se thinges. For if heithen (whom I wil cast out before you) haue stayned them selues in all these, and the lande is defyled there thro-row. And their wickednesse wil I vyset vpon them, so that the lande shall spue out the in-dwellers therof. Therfore kepe ye my statutes and lawes, and do not one of these abho-minacions, nether one of youre awne selues ner the straunger amonge you (for all soch abhominacions haue I people of this lode done which were before you, and haue defyled
 the lande) that the lande spue not you out also, whan ye haue defyled it, as it spewed out the heythē, that were there before you. For who so ever commytte these abhominacions, the same soules shalbe roted out from amonge their people. Therfore kepe ye my statutes, that ye do not after I abhominable customes, which were before you, that ye be not defyled therewith: For I am the LORDE youre God.

The XIX. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses,
 and sayde: Speake to the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Ye shall be holy, for I am holy, even the LORDE youre God. Ke-pe my holy dayes: for I am the LORDE youre God. Ye shall not turne youre selues vnto Idols, and ye shall make you no goddes of me-tall: for I am the LORDE youre God.

And whan ye wyll offere healehofferyn-ges vnto the LORDE, then shall ye offere the,
 that he maye be mercifull vnto you, and ye shall eate them the same daye that ye of-fre them, and on the morow: what so ever is left on the thirde daye, shall be burne with fy-re. But if any man eate therof vpon the thirde daye, then is he unholy, and shall not be accepted, and the same eater shall beare his synne, because he hath vnhallowed the Sanctuary of the LORDE: and soch a soule shall be roted out from amonge his people.

Whan thou reapest thy londe, thou shalt not reape downe the vttermost borders of it rounde aboute, ner gather it all cleane vp.
 Euen so likewise thou shalt not plucke thy vynyarde cleane also, ner gather up the grapes that are fallen downe, but shalt leaue them for y poore and strangers: for I am the LORDE youre God.

 Ye shall not steale, nether lye, ner deale falsely one with another.
 Ye shall not sweare falsely by my name, and so to vnhallowe the name of thy God: for
 I am the LORDE.
 Thou shalt do y neighbour no wronge, ner robbe him. The workmas laboure shall not byde with the vntyll the mornynge.
 Thou shalt not curse the deaf. Thou shalt put no stomblyng blocke before y blind man, but shalt feare thy God: for I am the LORDE.
 Ye shall not deale wrongeously in iudgment, nether shall ye accepte the personne of the poore, ner honoure the personne of the greute, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour righteously.
 Thou shalt let no preny accuser go amonge
 y people. Nether shalt thou stonde agaynst y neighbours bloude: for I am y LORDE.
 Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart, but shalt tell y neighbour his faute, that thou beare not synne for his sake.
 Thou shalt not auenge thy self, ner beare
 enill will agaynst the childre of thy people.
 Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, as thy self: for I am the LORDE.
 My statutes shall ye kepe, that thou let not y cattell gender with beestes of another kynde: nether sowe thy selde with myngled seede. And let no garment come vpon the, y is mixte with wollen and linnen.
 Whan a man lyeth with a woman, and hath to do with her, which is a bonde woman, and hath benemedled withall of another man, but not lawfully, ner hath opeyned fredome, it shall be punished, but they shall not suffere death, because she was not fre.
 But he shall brynge for his trespass vnto y LORDE: and before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse a ramme for a trespass of-ferynge: and the prest shall make an atton-ment for him with the trespass offerynge before the LORDE, concernynge the synne that he hath done: so shall God be merci-full vnto him, as concernynge his synne which he hath done.
 What tyme as ye are come into the lon-de, and plante all maner trees wherof men eate, ye shall circumsise the foresynne of the same with their frutes: thre yeares shall ye holde them for vncircumcised, so that ye eate them not: but in the fourth yeare shall all their frutes be holy and praysed vnto y LORDE. In the fift yeare shall ye eate the frutes, and gather them in: for I am y LOR-DE youre God.

 Ye shall eate nothyng of bloude. Ye shall not regarde y foules cryenge, ner chose out dayes.
 Ye shall haue no crownes vpon youre hea-de, nether shalt thou clippe thy beerde clea-ne off.
 Ye shall rente out no markes in youre body (for eny that is deed) ner make lettres vpon
 you: for I am the LORDE.
 Thou shalt not holde thy daughter to whoredome, that the lande fall not to who-dome, and waxe full of wickednesse.
 Kepe my holy dayes, and stonde in awe of my Sanctuary: for I am the LORDE.
 Ye shall not turne y selues to y sooth-sayers, and are nothyng at the expounders of tokes, that ye be not defyled by them: for
 I am the LORDE youre God.
 Thou shalt ryse vp before a graye heade, and shalt genereuerence vnto the aged. For thou shalt feare God: for I am y LORDE.
 Whan there dwelleth a straunger amonge
 ge you in youre londe, ye shall not vex him.
 He shall dwell with you, euen as one that is at home amonge you, and thou shalt loue him as y self: for ye youre selues also were straun-gers in the lande of Egypte. I am the LOR-DE youre God.
 Ye shall not deale wrongeously in iudgment, with meteyarde, with weight, with measure: A true balauce, a true weight, a true epha, a true hin shall be amonge you. For I am the LORDE youre God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypte, that ye shul-de kepe and do all my statutes and lawes: for
 I am the LORDE.

The XX. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses,
 and sayde: Tell the children of Israel:
 Who so ever he be amonge the children of Israel, (or eny straunger that dwelleth in Israel) which geueth of his seide vnto Moloch, the same shall dye the death: the people of the lande shall stone him, and I will set my face agaynst that man, and will rote him out from amonge his people, because he hath geuen of his seide vnto Moloch, and defiled my Sanctuary, and vnhallowed my holy name. And though the people of the lande loken thow the syngers vpon that man, which hath geuen of his seide vnto Moloch, so that they put him not to death, yet wil I set my face agaynst the same man, and agaynst his generacion: And him, and all that go a-whoringe with him after Moloch, wil I rote out from amonge their people.

 If eny soule turne him to y soothsayers and expounders of tokes, so that he goeth a whoringe after them, I wil set my face a-gaynst the same soule, and wil rote him out from amonge his people. Sanctifie youre selues therfore, and be holy: for I am holy euen youre God. And kepe ye my statutes, and do them: for I am y LORDE that sanctifieth you.
 Who so ever curseth his father or his mother, shall dye the death: his bloude be vpon him, because he hath cursed his father or mother.
 He that breaketh wedlocke with eny mas wife, shall dye the death (both the adnouterer and y adnouteresse) because he hath broken wedlocke with his neighbours wife.
 If eny man lye with his fathers wife, so y he vncouer his fathers preuyte, they shall both dye the death: their bloude be vpon the.
 If eny man lye with his daughter in lawe,
 they shall dye both of them, for they haue wroughte abhominacion: their bloude be vpon them.
 If eny man lye with the mankynde, as with womankynde, they haue wroughte ab-hominacion, and shall both dye the death: their bloude be vpon them.
 If eny man take a wyfe, and hir mother thereto, the same hath wroughte wickednes:
 he shall be burne with fyre, and so shall they also, that there be no wickednes amonge you.
 If eny man lye with a beest, he shall dye
 the death, and the beest shall be slayne.
 If a woman nidle with a beest, so y she haue to do with it, thou shalt put her to death, and the beest also, they shall dye the death:
 their bloude be vpon them.
 If eny man take his sister, his fathers daughter, or his mothers daughter, and se hir preuyte, and she agayne se his secretes, it is a wicked thinge. They shall be roted out in the sight of their people. For he hath vncouered his sisters preuyte, he shall beare his synne.
 If a man lye with a woman in the tyme of hir sicknesse, and vncouer hir secretes, and open up hir founteyne, and she vncouer the founteyne of hir bloude, they shall both be roted out from amonge their people.
 Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy mothers sister, and of thy fathers sisters:
 for soch one hath vncouered his nerte kynswoman, and they shall beare their synne.
 If eny man lye with his vncles wyfe, the same hath vncouered the preuytie of his vn-cle

cle: they shal beare their synne, without children shal they dye.

If any man take his brothers wyfe, & is an uncleane thinge: they shalbe without children, because he hath uncovered his brothers secretes.

D So kepe now all my statutes & my lawes, & do them, & the lode whither I brynge you to dwell therein, spewe you not out. And walke not ye in y statutes of the heithen, which I shal cast out before you. For all soch thinges have they done, & I have abhorred the.

But I saye unto you: Ye shall possesse their londe. For I wyll geue you to inheritaunce a lode, that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the LORDE youre God, which have separated you from the nacions, that ye also shulde separate the cleane bestes fro the uncleane, and the uncleane soules from the cleane: & not to defyle youre soules upon bestes, upon soules & upon all that creepeth on the ground: which I have separated unto you, that they shulde be uncleane. Therefore shall ye be holy unto me: for I the LORDE am holy, which have separated you fro the nacions, that ye shulde be myne.

And the LORDE sayde unto Moses: Speake to y prestes & sonnes of Aaron, & saye unto the: A prest shal defyle him self vpon no soule of his people, but vpon his nexte kynne & belongeth unto him: as vpon his mother, vpon his father, vpon his sonne, vpon his daughter, vpon his brother, & vpon his sister, which is yet a virgin, & hath bene no mans wife (which belongeth unto him) vpon her maie he defyle himself. Moreover he shal not defyle him self vpon any ruler in his people, to unhalowe him self.

Leu. 19. f
Ex. 44. c
He shall make no crowne also vpon his heade, ner shawe of his beard, nether shall they cut out any markes in their fleshe. They shalbe holy unto their God, and not unhalowe y name of their God: for they offre the sacrifice of the LORDE, the bled of their God, therfore shal they be holy.

1. Tim. 3. a
They shal take no whore, ner one that is defyled, or y is put awaye from hir husband, for he is holy unto his God: therfore shal he sanctifie him self, for he offreth the bled of thy God. He shal be holy unto the, for I am holy, even the LORDE that sanctifieth you.

If a prestes daughter fall to whoringe, she shalbe burnt with fyre, for she hath shamed hir father. He that is hye puffed amonge his brethren, vpon whose heade the anoyntinge oyle is poured, and his hande fylled (y he might be arayed with the vestimentes) shal not uncover his heade, ner cut his clothes, & shal come at no deed, & shal defyle him self nether vpon father ner mother. He shall not go out of the Sanctuary, that he unhalowe not the Sanctuary of his God. For y crowne of the anoyntinge oyle of his God is vpon him, for I am the LORDE.

A virgin shal he take to wife, but no widow, ner deuorced, ner defyled, ner whore, but a virgin of his awne people shal he take to wife, y he unhalowe not his seide amonge his people. For I am y LORDE, which sanctifie him.

And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake unto Aaron, & saie: If there be a blemish vpon any of y seide in y generations, the same shal not preasse to offre the bled of his God: For who so ever hath a blemish vpon him, shal not come nere, whether he be blynde, lame, with an euell fauoured nose, or any mysshappen membre, or y hath a broken fore or hande, or is crooked backed, or hath any blemish in the eye, or is gleyd, or is slayd vpon the scaulde, or hath his stones broken.

Who so ever now of the seide of Aaron y prest hath any blemish vpon him, shal not come nye to offre y sacrifice of the LORDE. For he hath a deformyte. Therefore shal he not preasse vnto the bled of his God, to offre it. Notwithstandinge he shal eate of the bled of his God, both of the holy, & of y most holy: but he shal not go in to y vayne, ner come nye the altare (for so moch as he hath a blemish vpon him) y he unhalowe not my Sanctuary. Ex. 28. b
And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake unto Aaron, & his sonnes, & they absteyne from y halowed thinges of the childre of Israel, which they have halowed vnto me, & y they unhalowe not my holy name: for I am y LORDE. Saie now vnto them & their posterities: Who so ever he be of y seide, y cometh nye vnto the holy thinges, which the childre of Israel halowe vnto the LORDE, & so defyleth him self vpon the same, his soule shal perishe before my face: for I am the LORDE.

Who so ever of the seide of Aaron is a leper, or hath a runnyng yssue, shal not eate of the holy thinges, tyll he be cleansed. Who so toucheth any uncleane thinge, or whose seide departeth from him by night, or who so toucheth any womne that is uncleane vnto him, or a ma y is uncleane vnto him, & what so ever defyleth hi, loke what soule toucheth any soch, is uncleane vntill the euen, & shal not eate of the holy thinges, but shal first bath his flesh with water. And wha y Sonne is gone downe, and he cleane, then maye he eate therof, for it is his foode. Loke what dyeth alone, or is rent of wyld beestes, shal he not eate, y he be not uncleane theron: for I am y LORDE. Therefore shal they kepe my lawes, & they lade not synne vpon them, & dye therein, whan they unhalowe them selues in it. For I am y LORDE, y halowe them.

A stranger shal not eate of the holy thinges, ner an housholde gyst of the prestes, ner an hyed seruaut. But yf y prest bye a soule for his money, y same maye eate therof. And loke who is borne in his house, maye eate of his bled also. Nevertheless yf the prestes daughter be a strangers wife, she shal not eate of the heue offerings of holynes. C
And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake unto Aaron & his sonnes, & to all y childre of Israel: What so ever Israelite or stranger in Israel wyll do his offeringe, whether it be their vowe, or of fre wyl, that they wyll offre a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, to reconyle them selues, it shal be a male, and without blemish, of the oxen, or lambes or goates. What so ever hath any blemish, shal they not offre, for they shal synne no fauoure therewith.

And who so wyl offre an healt offeringe vnto the LORDE to separate out a vowe, or of fre wyl, oxen or shepe, it shalbe without blemish, y it maye be accepted. It shal haue no deformite. If it be blynde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or slayr vye, or scabbed, they shal offre none soch vnto the LOR

DE, ner put an offeringe of any soch vpon the altare of the LORDE.

An ore or shepe y hath mysshappen membres, or no rompe, mayest thou offre of a fre wyl: but to a vowe it maye not be accepted. Thou shalt offre also vnto the LORDE no thinge y is bruised, or broken, or rent, or cutt out, & ye shal do no soch in youre londe. Moreover ye shal offre no bled vnto youre God of a strangers hande: for it is marred of him, and he hath a deformite, therfore shal it not be accepted for you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & saye: Wha an ore, or lake, or goate is brought forth, it shal be seven dayes with the dame, and vpon the eighth daye & thereafter it maie be offered vnto the LORDE, the is it accepted. Whether it be ore or lambe, it shal not be slayne with his yonge in one daye.

But wha ye wil offre a chato offeringe vnto the LORDE y it maye be accepted, ye shal eate it the same daye, & kepe nothinge ouer vntill the morninge: for I am the LORDE. Therefore kepe now my commandmentes, and do them: for I am the LORDE, y ye unhalowe not my holy name, & that I maye be halowed amonge the children of Israel. For I am he that halowe you, eue y LORDE, which brought you out of y lode of Egipte, y I might be y God: Euen y y LORDE.

The XXIII. Chapter.

U. 10. b
Ex. 28. b
And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto y childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: These are y feastes of the LORDE, which ye shal call holy dayes. Sixe dayes shal ye worke, but the seventh daie is the rest of the Sabbath, and shalbe called holy. Ye shal do no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the LORDE, where so ever ye dwell.

These are the feastes of the LORDE, y are called holy, which ye shal call youre feastes: Upon y fourtunedaye of y first moneth at euen, is the LORDES Easter. And vpon y fiftene daye of the same moneth is the feast of unleuened bled of the LORDE. Then shal ye eate unleuened bled seven dayes.

The first daie shalbe called holy amonge you, ye shal do no worke of bondage therein, & seven daies shal ye offre vnto y LORDE. The seventh daie shalbe called holy likewise, wher in ye shal do no worke of bondage also.

And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, & saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande y I shal geue you, and reape downe youre harvest, ye shal brynge a shefe of the first frutes of your harvest unto the priest, the shall the sheaf be waved before the LORD, that ye may be accepted: but this shall the priest do the next day after the Sabbath. And the same day that ye shall wave the sheaf, shall ye offer a burnt offering unto the LORD, of a lamb which is without blemish, and of one year old, with the meat offering, two tenth deals of fine flour mingled with oyle, for an offering of a sweet savour unto the LORD: and the drynt offering also, even the fourth parte of an hin of wyne.

And ye shall eat neither bread, nor cakes, ner surmentye (of new corne) tyll the same daye that ye bringe an offering unto your God. This shall be a lawe unto your posterities, where so ever ye dwell.

Then shall ye number from the next daye after the Sabbath, when ye brought the wave sheaf, seven whole weekes, untill the next daye after the seventh week, namely, fiftie daies, shall ye number, and offer new meat offerings unto the LORD. And out of all your dwellings shall ye offer, namely, two wave loaves of two tenth deals of fine flour leavened, and baken for the first frutes unto the LORD. And with your bread ye shall bringe seven lambs of one year old without blemish, and a yonge bullocke, and two rammes: this shall be the LORDS burnt offering, meat offering, and drynt offering. This is a sacrifice of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

Mozoner ye shall offer an he goate for a syn offering, and two lambs of a year old for an healt offering. And the priest shall wave it upon the bread of the first frutes before the LORD with the two lambs. And they shall be holy unto the LORD, and shall be the prestes. And this daye shall ye proclaim, for it shall be called holy amonge you: no servyle worke shall ye do therein. A perpetuall lawe shall it be amonge your posterities, where so ever ye dwell.

When ye reape downe the harvest of your land, ye shall not cut it cleane downe upon the felde, ner gather up all, but shall leave it for the poore and straungers. I am the LORD your God.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake unto the children of Israel, and saye: Upon the first daye of the seventh month shall ye have the holy rest of the remembrance of blowing, wherein ye shall do no servyle worke, and ye shall offer sacrifice unto the LORD.

And the LORD spake unto Moses, and sayde: Upon the tenth daye in this seventh month is the daye of reconcyling, which shall be an holy convocation to you. Ye shall humble your selves therein, and offer unto the LORD, and shall do no servyle worke in this daye: for it is the daye of attonement, that ye may be reconcyled before the LORD your God. For what soule so ever humbleth not himself upon this daye, the same shall be rote out from amonge his people. And what soule so ever doeth any worke this daye, the same wil I destroye from amonge his people: therefore shall ye do no worke. This shall be a perpetuall lawe unto your posterities, where so ever ye dwell. It is the rest of your Sabbath, that ye may humble your selves. Upon the nyenth daye of the month also, shall ye kepe this holy daye from the even forth untill the even agayne.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Upon the fiftene daye of the seventh month, is the feast of Tabernacles seven dayes unto the LORD. The first daye shall be an holy convocation: no servyle worke shall ye do therein. Seven dayes shall ye offer unto the LORD. The eight daye shall be an holy convocation unto you also, and ye shall offer unto the LORD: for it is the daye of gathering together: no servyle worke shall ye do therein.

These are the holy daies of the LORD, which ye shall proclame and holde for holy convocations, that ye may offer unto the LORD burnt offerings, meat offerings, drynt offerings and other offerings, every one according to his daye, besyde the Sabbathes of the LORD, and your giftes, and vowes, and frewyl offerings, that ye offer unto the LORD.

So upon the fiftene daye of the seventh month, when ye have brought in the increase of the land, ye shall kepe the LORDS feast seven dayes longe. The first daye shall be kepte holy daye, and the eight daye shall be kepte holy daye also. And upon the first daye ye shall take of goodly frutesfull trees, boughes of palme trees, and bowes of thicket trees, and Wyllies of the brooke, and seven dayes shall ye be merry before the LORD your God: and thus shall ye kepe the feast unto the LORD seven dayes in the year. This shall be a perpetuall lawe amonge your posterities, that they kepe holy daye thus in the seventh month. Seven dayes shall ye dwell in booths. Who so ever is an Israelite borne, shall dwell in booths, that they which come after you, may knowe, how that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God. And Moses tolde the children of Israel these holy daies of the LORD.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And the LORD spake unto Moses, and sayde: Comaunde the children of Israel, that they bringe pure oyle olyue beaten for lightes, that it maye be allwaye put in the lampes, without before the vayne of witness in the Tabernacle of witness. And Aaron shall drie it allwaye at even in the morninge before the LORD. Let this be a perpetuall lawe unto your posterities. The lampes shall be drie upon the pure candlestick before the LORD perpetuallly.

And thou shalt take fine flour, and baken twelve cakes thereof: two tenth deals shall every cake have, and thou shalt laye them fire on a rowe upon the pure table before the LORD. And upon the same shalt thou laye pure frankincense, that it maye be bread of remembrance for an offering unto the LORD. Every Sabbath shall he prepare the before the LORD allwaye, and receive them of the children of Israel for an everlasting covenant. And they shall be Aarons and his sonnes, which shall care them in the holy place, for this is his most holy of the offerings of the LORD for a perpetuall dewtye.

And there wente out an Israelish womans sonne, which was the childe of a man of Egypt (amonge the children of Israel) and stroue in his hoost with a man of Israel, and named the name of God blasphemously, and cursed. Then brought they him unto Moses. His mothers name was Selomith, the daughter of Dibui, of the trybe of Dan. And they put him in prison, tyll they were informed by the mouth of the LORD.

And the LORD spake unto Moses, and sayde: Bring him that cursed, out of the hoost, and let all the that herde it, laye their hands upon his heade, and let the whole congregacion stone him. And saye unto the childre of Israel, Who so ever blasphemeth his God, shall beare his synne: and he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall dye the death. The whole congregacion shall stone him. As the straunger, so shall he of the household be also. If he blaspheme the name, he shall dye.

He that slayeth a man, shall dye the death. But he that slayeth a beast, shall paye for it, soule for soule. And he that maymeth his neighbour, it shall be done unto him, even as he hath done: broke for broke, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: even as he hath maymed a man, so shall it be done unto him agayne, so that, who so slayeth a beast, shall paye for it: But he that slayeth a man, shall dye. There shall be one maner of lawe amonge you, to the stranger as to one of your selves: for I am the LORD your God.

Moses tolde the children of Israel. And they brought him that had cursed, out of the hoost, and stoned him. Thus dyd the childre of Israel as the LORD comaunded Moses.

The XXV. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Moses upon mount Sinai, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye unto them: When ye come in to the land, I shall give you, the land shall rest unto the LORD, so that thou shalt have sowe thy felde sixe yeares, and sixe yeares cut thy vines, and gather in the frutes. But in the seventh yeare the land shall have his Sabbath of rest for a Sabbath unto the LORD, wherein thou shalt not sowe thy felde, ner cut thy vines.

Like what groweth of it self after thy harvest, thou shalt not reape it. And the grapes that growe without thy labour, shalt thou not gather, for so much as it is the year of the landes rest: But the rest of the land shalt thou kepe for this intent, that thou mayest eat thereof, thy servaunte, thy mayde, thy byrlinge, thy guest, thy straunger with thee, thy catell, and the bestes in thy land. All the increase shall be meate.

And thou shalt number seven of these years Sabbathes, that seven yeares maye be tolde seven tymes, and so the tyme of the seven years Sabbathes make nyne and fourtye years. Then shalt thou let the blast of the horne go thorow all your land, upon the tenth daye of the seventh month, even in the daye of attonement. And ye shall halowe the fiftieth yeare, and shall call it a fre yeare in the londe, for all them that dwell therein: for it is the yeare of Jubilee. Then shall every one amonge you come agayne to his possession and to his kynred: for the fiftieth yeare is y^e yeare of Jubilee. Ye shal not sowe ner reape it that groweth of it self, ner gather the grapes, that growe without labour. For the yeare of Jubilee shall be holy amonge you. But loke what the felde beareth, that shall ye eate. This is the yeare of Jubilee, wherein ye shal come againe every man to his owne.

C Now whan thou sellest ought unto thy neyghboure, or byest any thinge of him, there shal none of you oppresse his brother: but accordinge to the nombre of the yeare of Jubilee shalt thou bye it of him: and accordinge to the nombre of the yeares of increase shall he sell it unto the. Accordinge to the multitude of the yeares shalt thou raise the pryce, and accordinge to the fewnesse of the yeares shalt thou mynish the pryce: for he shall sell it unto the accordinge to the nombre of the increase. Therefore let no man defraude his neyghboure, but feare y^e God. For I am the LORDE youre God. Wherefore do after my statutes, and kepe my lawes, so y^e ye do them that ye maye dwell safe in the londe. For the londe shal geue you hir frute, so that ye shal haue ynough to eate, and dwell safe therein.

And yf ye wolde saye: What shall we eate in the seventh yeare, in as moch as we shal not sowe, ner gather in oure increase? I wyll sende my blessinge vpon you in the sixte yeare, that it shal brynge forth frute for thre yeares: so that ye shal sowe in y^e eight yeare, and eate of the olde frute vntyll the nyenth yeare, that ye maye eate of the olde tyll new frutes come agayne. Therefore shall ye not sell the londe for ever, for the lode is myne. And ye are straungers and indwellers before me. And in all youre lande shall ye geue the lode to louse.

Nu. 35. c
Exo. 35. a
Ruth. 4. a

Whan thy brother waxeth poore, and selleth y^e his possession, and his nexte kynsmā cometh to him, y^e he maye redeme it: then shall he redeme that his brother solde. But whan a man hath none to redeme it, and can get so moch with his hande as to redeme oⁿe parte, then shall it be rekened how many yeares it hath bene solde, and the remnaunt shal be restored vnto him to whom he solde it, y^e he maye come agayne to his possession. But yf his hande can not get so moch, as to haue one parte agayne, the shal it y^e he solde be styll in the hande of the byer vntyll y^e yeare of Jubilee: In y^e same shal it go out, and returne to his owner agayne.

He that selleth a dwellinge house within the walles of the cite, hath an whole year respyte to louse it out agayne: that shal be the tyme, wherein he maye redeme it. But yf he redeme it not a fore the whole yeare be out, then shal he that bought it, and his successors kepe it for ever, and it shal not go out louse in the yeare of Jubilee. Nevertheless yf it be an house in a vyllage that hath no wall aboute it, it shal be counted like vnto the felde of the countrie, and maye be redemed and shal go out fre in the yeare of Jubilee.

The cities of the Leuites, and the houses in the cities that their possession is in, maye allwaye be redemed. Who so purchaseth ought of the Leuites, shal leave it in the yeare of Jubilee, whether it be house or cite that he hath had in possession. For the houses in the cities of the Leuites are their possession amonge the children of Israel. But the felde before their cities shal not be solde, for it is their awne for ever.

Whan thy brother waxeth poore, and falleth in decaye besyde the, thou shalt receaue him as a straunger, or guest, that he maye lyue by the: and thou shalt take no vsury of him, ner more then thou hast geue, but shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue besydes the. For thou shalt not lende him y^e money vpon vsury, ner delyuer him thy meate vpon vantage. For I am the LORDE y^e God, which haue broughte you out of the lode of Egypte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be youre God.

Whan thy brother waxeth poore besyde the, and selleth himself vnto the, thou shalt not holde him as a bode mā: but as an hyred seruaunte and as a sojourner shall he be wth the, and serue the vntyll y^e yeare of Jubilee. Then shal he departe louse from the, and his childre with him, and shal returne to his awne kynred, and to his fathers possession: for they are my seruantes, whom I broughte out of the londe of Egypte. Therefore shal they not be solde like bondmen. And thou shalt not raigne ouer them with crueltie, but shalt feare thy God. But yf thou wilt haue bode seruantes and maydens, thou shalt bye them of the heithen, that are rounde aboute you: of the children of the sojourners and straungers amonge you, and of their generacions with you, and that are borne in youre londe, the same shal ye haue for bonde seruantes, and shal possesse them, and youre children after you for an everlastinge possession, these shal be y^e bondmen. But ouer youre brethren the children of Israel, there shall none of you raigne ouer another with crueltie.

C Whan a straunger or sojourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother waxeth poore besyde him, and selleth him self vnto y^e straunger or sojourner by the, or to any of his kynne, then shall he haue right (a fter that he is solde) to be redemed agayne. And any of his brethren maye louse him out: or his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any other kynsmā of his kynred: Or yf his awne hande getteth so moch, he shal louse him self out, and shal reken with him that bought him, from y^e yeare that he solde him self, vntyll the yeare of Jubilee. And y^e money shal be counted accordinge to the nombre of the yeares that he was solde, and his wages of the whole tyme shal be rekened withall.

If there be yet many yeares vnto y^e yeare of Jubilee, then shal he (accordinge to the same) geue the more for his delyueraunce, thereafter as he is solde. If there remayne but few yeares vnto the yeare of Jubilee, then shall he geue agayne thereafter for his redemption. And his wages from yeare to yeare shal he reken withall, and thou shalt not let the other raigne cruelly ouer him in y^e sight. But yf he bye not him self out after this maner, then shal he go out fre in the yeare of Jubilee, and his childre with him: for the childre of Israel are my seruantes, which I haue brought out of the londe of Egypte. I am the LORDE youre God.

Ye shall make you no Idols ner ymage, and ye shal reate you vpon no piler, ner set vpon any markstone in youre londe, to bowe youre selues thereto. For I am the LORDE youre God. Repeme my Sabbathes, and stonde in awe of my Sanctuary. I am the LORDE.

The XXVI. Chapter.

Yf ye wyll walke now in my statutes, and kepe my commandementes and do them, the wyll I geue you raine in due season, and y^e londe shal geue hir increase, and the trees of y^e felde shal brynge forth their frute. And the threshinge tyme shall reache vnto the wyne harvest, and the wyne harvest shal reache vnto the sowynge tyme. And ye shall eate y^e bred in plenteousnes, and shal dwell safe in youre londe. I wil geue peace in youre londe, so that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afraied. I wyll ryd euell beestes out of youre londe, and there shall no swerde go thorow youre londe.

Ye shal chase youre enemies, and they shal fall into y^e swerde before you. Y^e yue of you shal chase an hundred: and an hundred of you shal chase ten thousande. For youre enemies shall fall in to the swerde before you. And I wyll turne me vnto you, and wyll canse you to growe and increase, and wyll set vpon my couenaunt with you. And ye shal eate of the olde store, and shall let go the olde for plenteousnesse of the new. I wil haue my dwellinge amonge you, and my soule shall not refuse you. And I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be youre God, and ye shal be my people. For I am the LORDE youre God, which broughte you out of the londe of Egypte, that ye shulde not be their bondmen. And I haue brok the cepter of youre yocke, and caused you to go vpon right.

Exo. 19. c
2. Cor. 6. c

But yf ye wil not harken vnto me, ner do all these commaundementes, and wyll despyse my statutes, and yf youre soules refuse my lawes, y^e ye wyll not do all my commandementes, and shal let my couenaunt stonde, then wyll I do this agayne vnto you. I wyll visyte you shortly with swellnges and fevers, which shal destroye y^e eyes, and consume awaye y^e bert. Ye shal sowe youre seede in vayne, and youre enemies shal eate it vp.

And I wyll set my face agaynst you, and ye shal be slayne before youre enemies. And they that hate you, shal haue dominion ouer you. And ye shall flye, whā no man chaseth you.

Pro. 28. a

But yf ye wyll not harken vnto me for all this, then wyll I make it yet seven tymes more, to punyssh you for youre synnes, that I maye breake y^e pryde of youre strength, and wyll make youre heauenlye yon, and youre earth as brasse: and youre trauaile and labo^r shal be but lost, so that youre londe shal not geue hir increase, and the trees in the londe shal not brynge forth their frute.

If ye walke yet agaynst me, and wyll not harken vnto me, then wyll I make it yet seven tymes more, to punyssh you because of youre synnes: and wyll sende wyld beestes amonge you, which shal robbe you, and destroe youre catell, and make you fewer, and youre hye waye shal become waste.

But yf ye wyll not yet be reformed here withall, and wyll walke contrary vnto me, then wyll I walke contrary vnto you also, and wyll punyssh you yet seven tymes for youre synnes. And I wyll brynge vpon you a swerde of vengeance, which shal auenge my Testament. And though ye gather you together in to youre cities, yet wyll I sende the pestilence amonge you, and wyll delyuer you in to the handes of youre enemies. For I wil destroe youre prouysion of bred, so y^e ten women shal take youre bred in one men, and youre bried shal be deliuered out by weight. And whan ye eate, ye shall not haue ynough.

Ef ye wyl not yet for all this harten vnto me, & wyl walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I also walke contrary vnto you in wrath full displeasure, and wyl punyssh you sevenfold because of youre synnes, so that ye shal eate the flesh of youre sonnes and daughters. And I wyl destroye youre hye altares, and rote out youre ymages, and wyl cast youre bodies vpon the bodies of youre Idols, and my soule shall abhorre you. And youre cities wyl I make waist, and brynge youre churches to naught, and wyl not smell youre swete odoures.

Thus wyl I make the londe desolate, so that youre enemies shall dwell therein, and make it waist: but you wyl I scatter amonge the heithen, and drawe out the swerde after you, so that youre londe shal be waist, & youre cities desolate.

Then shall the londe reioyse in hir Sabbathes, as longe as it lyeth waist, and ye be in the enemies londe. And then shal the londe kepe holy daye, and reioyse in hir rest, as longe as it lyeth waist, because it conde not rest in youre Sabbathes, whan ye dwelt therein.

And as for them that remayne of you, I wyl make them saynte harted in the londe of their enemies, so that a shakynge leaf shall chace them. And they shall flye from it, as though a swerde persecuted them, and shal fall noman folowynge vpon them. And they shall fall one vpon another (as it were before the swerde) and noman yet chacynge them. And ye shall not be so bolde, as to withstonde youre enemies, and shal perishe amonge the heithen, and the londe of youre enemies shal eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pyne awaye in their mysdede, even in the enemies londe, and in the mysdedes of their fathers shall they consume awaye. Then shall they knowlege their mysdedes, and the mysdedes of their fathers in the trespase, wherewith they haue trespassed agaynst me, and walked contrary vnto me. Therefore wyl I also walke contrary vnto the, and wyl brynge them in to the enemies londe.

Then shall their vncircumcysed herte be tamed. And then shall they ende their mysdedes. And I shal thinke vpon my couenaunt with Jacob, and vpon my couenaunt with Isaac, and vpon my couenaunt with Abraham, and wyl thynke vpon the lode. As for the londe, whan it shalbe left of them, it shal reioyse in hir Sabbathes, even then, whan it lyeth waist, and they sylle it not. And they shall make attonement for their mysdedes, because they despyed my lawes, & their soles refused my statutes. Moreover I haue so refused them, that they shoulde be in the enemies londe: neither haue I so utterly abhored them, that I wolde brynge them to naught, and breake my couenaunt wth them: for I am the LORD their God. And for their sake I wyl remembre my first couenaunt, whan I broughed them out of the londe of Egypte in the sight of the heithen, & I might be their God. Euen I the LORD.

These are the ordinances, statutes and lawes, which the LORD made betwixte him and the children of Israel vpon mount Sinai, by the hande of Moses.

The XXVII. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, & saye vnto them: If any man make a speciall vowe vnto the LORD, so that he prysse a soule, then shal this be the valuation: A man of twentye yeare olde vnto the thre score yeare, shal thou set as fiftie syluer Syckles, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary: but a woman at thirtie Syckles. If it be fyue yeare olde vnto twentye yeare, then shalst set it at twentye Syckles, whan it is a man childe: but a woman at ten Syckles. If it be a moneth olde vnto fyue yeare, thou shalt set it at fyue Syckles of syluer, whan it is a man childe: but a woman at thre Syckles. If he be thre score yeare olde and aboue, the shalst thou set him at fiftene Syckles whan it is a man, & at ten Syckles whan it is a woman. If he be to poore so to be set, the let him present himself to the prest, & the prest shal value him. Nevertheless he shal value him, accordinge as he haue of him that vowed, is able to get. But if it be a beest, he maye be offred vnto the LORD, all that is offred vnto the LORD of lode, is holy: it shal not be altered ner chaunged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. If any man chaunge it, one beest for another, then shal they both be holy vnto the LORD. But if the beest be vnclene, which maye not be offred vnto the LORD, the shal it be set, before the prest, and the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad, & it shal stonde at the prestes valyng. But if any man wil bye it out, he shal geue the fiftie part more, to that it was set at.

Whan any man sanctifieth his house vnto the LORD for the Sanctuary, the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the prest valuethe it, so shal it stonde. But if he sanctified it, wyl redeme it, he shal geue the fiftie parte of syluer thereto, aboue that it was set at: So shal it be his.

If any man halowe a pece of lode of his heritage vnto the LORD, it shalbe set accordinge to the value thereof. If it beare an homer of barleye, it shalbe valued at fiftie Syckles of syluer. But if he halowe his londe immediately from the yeare of Jubilee forth, then shal it be set accordinge to the value thereof. If he haue halowed it after the yeare of Jubilee, then shal the prest reke it, accordinge to the yeares he remayne vnto the yeare of Jubilee, & thereafter shal he set it the lower.

But if he sanctified the londe, wyl redeme it agayne, then shal he geue the fiftie parte of syluer thereto, aboue that it was set at: So shal it be his. If he wil not lowse it out, but selleth it vnto another, then shal he redeme it no more: but the same londe whan it goeth out fre in the yeare of Jubilee, shal be holy vnto the LORD, as a dedicated felde, and shalbe the prestes inheritance.

If any man halowe vnto the LORD a felde, which he hath bought, and is not his inheritance, then shal the prest reke it, what it is worth vnto the yeare of Jubilee, & the same daye shal he geue the pryce that it is set at, vnto the LORD for the Sanctuary. But in the yeare of Jubilee it shal returne vnto him that bought it, & it maye be his inheritance in the londe. All maner of prysynge shalbe made accordinge to the Cycle of the Sanctuary. One Cycle maketh xx. Yeres.

The first borne amonge the cattell (which belongeth vnto the LORD) shal no man sanctifie vnto the LORD, whether it be ox or shepe, for it is the LORDES all ready. But if there be any vnclene thinge vpon the beest, the shal it be lowsed out thereafter as it is worth, and the fiftie parte shalbe geuen more thereto. If he wil not redeme it, the let it be solde, as it is worth.

There shall no dedicated thinge be solde ner bought out, if any man dedicateth vnto the LORD, of all that is his good, whether it be man, cattell or lode. For every dedicated thinge, is most holy vnto the LORD. There shal no dedicated thinge of man be bought out, but shal dye the death. All the tythes in the londe, both of the seide of the londe, & of the frutes of the trees, are the LORDES, & shal be holy vnto the LORD. But if any man wil redeme his tythes, he shal geue the fiftie parte more thereto. And all the tythes of oxen & shepe, & that goeth vnder the rod, the same is an holy tythe vnto the LORD. It shal not beared whether it be good or bad, neither shall it be chaunged. But if any man chaunge it, then both it & that it was chaunged withall, shal be holy, & not redemed.

The first Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the wyldernes of Sinai, in the Tabernacle of witness, the first daye of the secōde moneth in the secōde yeare, whā they were gone out of

Exo. 10. b the lade of Egypte, and sayde: Take the summe of the whole congregacion of the children of Israel, after their kynredes & their fathers houses, with the nombre of the names, all that are males, heade by heade, fō twentye yeare and aboue, as many as are able to go forth in to the warre in Israel. And ye shal nombre them acordinge to their armyes chō and Aaron, and of every trybe ye shal take vnto you one captayne ouer his fathers house.

These are the names of the captaynes that shal stonde with you. Of Ruben, Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. Of Simeon, Soluniel the sonne of Zuri Sabai. Of Iuda, Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. Of Issachar, Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar. Of Zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon. Amonge the children of Joseph: Of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud. Of Manasse, Gemaliel the sonne of Pedazar. Of Ben Jamin, Abidam the sonne of Gedoni. Of Dan, Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sabai. Of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ochiam. Of Gad, Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Of Nephthali, Ahira the sonne of Enan.

These are the awncient men of the congregacion, the captaynes amonge the trybes of their fathers, which were heades and prynces in Israel.

And Moses & Aaron toke them (like as they are there named by name) and gathered the whole cōgregacion together also, the first daye of the secōde moneth, and rekened the after their byrth, acordinge to their kynredes and fathers houses by their names, fō twentye yeare and aboue, heade by heade, as the LORDE commaunded Moses, and nombred them in the wyldernes of Sinai.

The children of Ruben Israels first sonne, their kynreds & generacions after their fathers houses, in the nombre of their names heade by heade, all the were males, from twentye yeare & aboue, and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ruben, sixe and fortye thousande, and fyue hundred.

The children of Simeon their kynreds & generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names heade by heade, all that were males from twentye yeare and aboue, and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Simeon, nyme and fiftye thousande and thre hundred.

The children of Gad their kynreds and generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Gad, fyue and fortye thousande, sixe hundred and fiftie.

The children of Iuda their kynreds and generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Iuda, foure and seventy thousande, & sixe hundred.

The children of Issachar their kynreds & generacions, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Issachar, foure and fiftye thousande and foure hundred.

The children of Zabulon their kynreds and generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Zabulon, seven and fiftye thousande and foure hundred.

Josephs children of Ephraim, their kynreds & generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare & aboue, all the were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ephraim, fortye thousande & fyue hundred.

The children of Manasse their kynreds & generacions, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare & aboue, all the were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Manasse, two & thirtie thousande & two hundred.

The children of Ben Jamin their kynreds and generacions, after their fathers houses, in the nombre of the names from twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ben Jamin, fyue and thirtie thousande and foure hundred.

The children of Dan their kynreds and generacions after their fathers houses, in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeares and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Dan, two and thre score thousande, and seven hundred.

The children of Aser their kynreds & generacions, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare & aboue, all the were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Aser, one & fortye thousande and fyue hundred.

The children of Nephthali, their kynreds and generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth vnto the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Nephthali, thre and fiftie thousande and foure hundred.

These are they whom Moses and Aaron nombred with the twelue prynces of Israel, wherof every one was ouer the house of their fathers. And the summe of the children of Israel after their fathers houses, from twentye yeare and aboue (what so ever was able to go forth to the warre in Israel) was sixe C. thousande, thre thousande, fyue C. & fiftie. But the Levites after the trybe of their fathers, were not nombred amonge them.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: The trybe of Levi shal thou not nombre, ner take the summe of them amonge the children of Israel: but shal appoynte them to the habitacon of wytnesse, and to all the apparell therof, and to all that belongeth thereto. And they shal beare the Tabernacle & all the ordinaunce therof, and shal wayte vpon it, and shal pitch their tentes rounde aboute it. And whan men shal go on their iourney, the Levites shal take downe the Tabernacle. And whan the hoost pitch their tentes, they shal set vp the Tabernacle. And yf a stranger please nye vnto it, he shal dye. The children of Israel shal pitch their tentes, every one in his awne armye, and by the baner of his awne companye. But the Levites shal pitch rounde aboute the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that there come no wrath vpon the congregacion of the children of Israel: therfore shal the Levites wayte vpon the habitacon of wytnesse. And the children of Israel byd all, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The ii. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, & sayde: The children of Israel shal pitch rounde aboute the Tabernacle of wytnesse, every one vnder his banner & tokens, after their fathers houses.

On the East syde shal Iuda pitch with his banner & hoost, their captayne Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. And his armye in the summe, foure & seventy thousande and sixe hundred. Next vnto him shal the trybe of Issachar pitch, their captayne Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar: and his armye in the summe, foure and fiftye thousande and foure hundred. The trybe of Zabulon also, their captayne Eliab the sonne of Helon: his armye in the summe, seven and fiftie thousande and foure hundred.

Exo. 11. f
Num. 11.

1 Par. 14.

So þ all they which beidge to þ hoost of Iuda, be in the summe an C. sixe and foure score thousande, z foure hundieth be longinge to their armye, z they shall go before.

B On the South side shall lye the paulyons z baner of Ruben w their hoost, their captaine Eliazur þ sonne of Sedeur: z his armie in the summe, sixe z fourtie thousande, z fyue C. Nexte vnto him shall the trybe of Simeon pitch, their captaine Selumiel þ sonne of Zuri Sadai: z his armie in y summe, nyne and fiftie thousande, and thre hundieth. The trybe of Gad also, their captaine Eliasaph þ sonne of Deguel: z his armie in the summe, fyue z fourtye thousande, sixe hundieth z fiftie. So that all they which belonge to the hoost of Ruben, be in the summe, an hundieth, one z fiftie thousande, foure hundieth and fiftie, belonginge to their armye. And they shall be the seconde in the iourney.

C After that shall the Tabernacle of wytenesse go w the hoost of the Levites euē in þ myddes amōge the hoostes: z as they lye in their tentes, so shall they go forth also, every one in his place vnder his baner.

On the West syde shall lye y paulyons z baner of Ephraim w their hoost: their captainy shall be Elisama sonne of Amihab, and his armye in the summe, fourtye thousande and fyue hundieth. Nexte vnto him shall þ trybe of Manasse pitch, their captaine Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur: his armye in the summe, two and thirtie thousande z two hundieth. The trybe of Ben Jamin also, their captaine Abidan the sonne of Gedeon: his armye in the summe, fyue and thirtie thousande z foure hundieth. So þ all they which belonge to the hoost of Ephraim, be in the summe, an hundieth thousande, eight hundred, z an hundieth, belonginge to his armie. And they shall be the thirde in the iourney.

On the North syde shall lye þ paulyons z baner of Dan with their hoost: their captainy Abieser þ sonne of Ammi Sadai, his armye in the summe, two and sixtye thousande and sent hundieth. Nexte vnto him shall the trybe of Asser pitch: their captaine Pagiel þ sonne of Ochar, his armye in the summe, one and fourtye thousande, and fyue hundieth. The trybe of Nephthali also, their captaine Ahira the sonne of Enan: his armye in the summe, thre z fiftie thousande z foure hundieth. So þ all they which belonge to the hoost of Dan, be in the summe, an hundieth thousande, seven z fiftie thousande, z sixe hundieth. And they shall be the last in the iourney with their baners.

This is the summe of the children of Israel, after their fathers houses and armyes with their hoostes: even sixe hundred thousande, z thre thousande, fyue hundieth z fiftie. But þ Levites were not nombred in þ summe amonge the childre of Israel, as y LORDE comānded Moses. And y childre of Israel dyd all as the LORDE comānded Moses. And so they pitched vnder their baners, z toke their iourney, every one in his kynred, accordinge to the house of their fathers.

The III. Chapter.

A These are the generacions of Aaron z Moses, whan þ LORDE spake vnto Moses at þ same tyme vpon mount Sinai. And these are þ names of the sonnes of Aaron. The firstborne, Nadab: then Abihu, Eleasar z Jehamar. These are þ names of the sonnes of Aaron, which were anoynted to be prestes, z their handes fylled for þ presthode. But Nadab z Abihu dyed before y LORDE, whā they offred straige fyre before y LORDE, in þ wilderness of Sinai, z had no sonnes. But Eleasar and Jehamar executed þ prestes office w their father Aaron.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Bynge hither the trybe of Levi, and set them before Aaron the prest, þ they maye serue w him, z wayte vpon him z vpo the whole congregacion before y Tabernacle of wytenesse, and execute the seruyce of the habitation, and kepe all the apparell of the Tabernacle of wytenesse, and wayte vpon the childre of Israel, to mynistr in the seruyce of the habitation.

B And thou shalt geue þ Levites vnto Aaron and his sonnes for a gift, vnto every one his awne, from amonge the childre of Israel. As for Aaron z his sonnes, thou shalt appoynte them to wayte on their prestes office. If another preasse therto, he shall dye.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Beholde, I haue take the Levites fro amonge the childre of Israel, for all the first borne that open the Matrix amonge the children of Israel, so that the Levites shall be myne. For the firstborne are myne, sence y tyme that I smote all the first borne in y lande of Egypte, whā I sanctified vnto me all the first borne in Israel, from me vnto catell, that they shulde be myne. The LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, and sayde: Nombre the children of Levi after their fathers houses and kynreds, all that are males of a moneth olde and aboue.

So Moses nombred them accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, as he had comānded. And these were the children of Levi with their names: Gerson, Kachath, Merari. The names of the children of Gerson in their kynreds, were Libni and Semei.

The childre of Kachath in their kynreds were Amram, Jesehar, Hebion and Osiel.

The children of Merari in their kynreds, were Maheli and Musi. These are the kynreds of Levi after their fathers houses.

These are y kynreds of Gerson: The Libnites and Semeites, the summe was founde in nombre, seven thousande and fyue hundieth, of all that were males of a moneth olde and aboue. And the same kynreds of the Gersonites shall pitch behinde the habitation on the west syde: Let Eliasaph the sonne of Lael be their ruler. And they shall waite vpon the Tabernacle of wytenesse, of the habitation, and of the tent, and conerynges therof, and the hangynge in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytenesse, the hangynge aboute the court, z the hangynge in y court-dore, which (court) goe h aboute the habitation and the altare, and the cordes of it, z all that belongeth to the seruyce therof.

These are the kynreds of Kachath: The Amramites, the Jeseharites, the Hebionites, and Osielites, all that were males of a moneth olde z aboue, in nombre eight thousande and sixe hundieth, waytinge vpon the Tabernacle of the Sanctuary, z shall pitch on the south syde of y habitation: Let Eliasaph the sonne of Osiel be their ruler. And they shall kepe the Arke, the table, the candillsticke, the altare and all the vessels of the Sanctuary, to do seruyce in, and the wayle, and all that belongeth to the service therof. But the chiefe of all the rulers of the Levites, shall be Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the prest, over them that are apoynted to kepe the watch of the Sanctuary.

These are y kynreds of Merari: The Ma-

helites and Mishites, which were in nombre six thousande and two hundred, all that were males of a moneth olde and above: Let Zariel & sonne of Abihail be their ruler, and they shall pitche vpon the north syde of the habitation. And their office shalbe to kepe the bordes, and barres, and pilers, and sockets of the habitation, and all the apparell therof and that serueth thereto: & pilers also aboute & courtes, with the sockets, and nailes, and cordes.

¶ But before the habitation and before & Tabernacle on the East syde shal Moses & Aaron & his sonnes pytche, that they maye wayte vpon the Sanctuary, & the children of Israel. ¶ If any other please thereto, he shal dye.

Num. 3. b ad. 16. a 14. 25. g

All the Levites in the summe, whom Moses and Aaron nombred after their tymreds, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, all that were males, of a moneth olde and above, were two and twenty thousande.

Num. 3. b
ad. 8. b

And y LORDE saide vnto Moses: Take all the first borne, that are males amonge the children of Israel, of a moneth olde and above, and take the nombre of their names. And & Levites shalt thou take out vnto me the LORDE, for all & first borne of & childre of Israel, & the cattell of the Levites for all the first borne amonge the cattell of & children of Israel. And Moses nombred all the first borne amonge the childre of Israel, as the LORDE commaunded him. And in the nombre of the names of all the first borne, that were males of a moneth olde & above, in their summe, there were foude two and twenty thousande, two hundred, and thre and seventy.

Leu. 27. a

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Take the Levites for all & first borne amonge the childre of Israel, & the cattell of & Levites for their cattell, & the Levites maye be myne the LORDES. But the redemption money of the two hundred thre & seventy & remayne of the first borne of the children of Israel, above the nombre of the Levites, shalt thou take, even fyne Syckles of every heade, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary (one Syckle is worth twentye Seras) & the money & remayneth over their nombre, shalt thou geue vnto Aaron and his sonnes.

Num. 30. b
ad. 26. d
45. b

Then toke Moses & redemption money (that remayned over above the nombre of the Levites) from & first borne of the childre of Israel, even a thousande, thre hundred, and fyne and thre score Syckles, after & Syckle of the Sanctuary, & gaue it vnto Aaron and his sonnes, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The iiii. Chapter.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Take & summe of the childre of Rahath from amonge the childre of Levi, after their tymreds & fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill fiftye yeare, all that are mete for the warre, that they maye do the worke in the Tabernacle of witnessse. This shal be the office of the children of Rahath in the Tabernacle of witnessse, which is most holy.

¶ When the hoost breketh vp, Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and take downe the vayne, and couer the Arke of witnessse therewith, and laye the couerynge of doo slaynes vpon it, and spred a whole yalowe clothe above thereon, and put his stauess therein. And vpon the shewe table they shal spred a yalowe clothe also, and set thereon the dishes, spones, flatpeces and pottes to poure out and in, and the daylie bred shal lye vpon it, and they shal spred a purple clothe thereover, and couer it with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put the stauess of it therein.

And they shal take a yalowe clothe, and couer the candlestick of light therewith, and his lampes, with his snuffers and outquenchers, and all the oyle vessels that belonge to the seruyce, and aboute all this shal they put a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put it vpon stauess.

So shal they spred a yalowe clothe ouer the golden altare also, and couer the same with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put it vpon stauess. All the vessels that they occupye in the Sanctuary, shal they take, and put a yalowe clothe therover, & couer them with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put them vpon stauess. They shal swepe the ashes also from the altare, and spred a clothe of scarlet ouer it, and set all his vessels thereon, that they occupye vpon it: colespanses, fleshokes, shouels, basens, with all the apparell of the altare, and they shal spred a couerynge of doo slaynes thereon, and put his stauess thereto.

¶ Now when Aaron and his sonnes haue done this, and haue couered the Sanctuary & all the ornaments therof, when the hoost breketh vp, then shal the children of Rahath go in, that they maye beare it, and the Sanctuary shal they not touche, lest they dye. This is the charge of the childre of Rahath in the Tabernacle of witnessse.

¶ And Eleasar the sonne of Aaron & prest, shal haue the office, to prepare the oyle for the light, and the spyces for the incense, and the daylie meat offeringe, and the anoyntinge oyle, to order the whole habitation, & all that therein is, in the Sanctuary and the ornaments therof.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, & sayde: Ye shal not destroye the trybe of the tymred of the Rahathites amonge the Levites, but this shal ye do with them, & they maye lye & not dye, yf they touche the most holy. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and appoynte every one vnto his office & charge. But they shal not go in, presumptuously to lye vpon & Sanctuary, lest they die. And & LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron & sayde: Take the summe of the children of Gerson also, after their fathers house & tymred, from thirtie yeare & above, vntill fiftye yeare, & appoynte them all & are mete for the warre, to haue an office in the Tabernacle of witnessse.

¶ This shal be the office of the tymred of the Gersonites, euere to serue & to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the habitation and of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and his couerynge and the couerynge of doo slaynes, that is aboute thereon, and the hanginge in the dore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and the hanginge aboute the courtes, which goeth aboute the habitation and the altare, and their cordes, and all the instrumentes & serue for the, and all that belongeth to their occupieng. Accordinge vnto the worde of Aaron and of his sonnes, shal all the office of the children of Gerson be done, what so ener they shal beare and occupye. And ye shal se, that they wayte vpon all their charge. This shal be & office of & tymred of & childre of & Gersonites in & Tabernacle of witnessse. And their waytinge shal be vnder & haide of Jehamar, the sonne of Aarons the prest.

¶ The children of Merari after their tymred and fathers house, shal thou appoynte also, from thirtie yeare and above, vnto fiftye yeare, all that are mete for the warre, & they maye haue an office in the Tabernacle of witnessse. But vpon this charge shal they wayte accordinge to all their office in & Tabernacle of witnessse, that they beare the bordes of the habitation, and the barres, and pilers, and sockets: the pilers of the courtes also rounde aboute, and the sockets and nailes and cordes, with all their apparell, accordinge to all their seruyce. And vnto every one shal ye appoynte his porcion of charge to waite vpon the apparell. ¶ Let this be the office of the tymred of the children of Merari, all that they shal do in the Tabernacle of witnessse vnder the hande of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

¶ And Moses and Aaron with the captaines of the congregacion, nombred the children of & Rahathites, accordinge to their tymreds and houses of their fathers, from thirtie yeare and above, vntill fiftye, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of witnessse. And the summe was, two thousande, seven hundred and systie. This is the summe of the tymred of the Rahathites (which all had seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnessse) whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

¶ The children of Gerson were nombred also in their tymreds and fathers houses from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in & Tabernacle of witnessse, and the summe was two thousande, fyne hundred and thirtie. This is & summe of the tymred of the childre of Gerson, which all had to do in the Tabernacle of witnessse, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to & worde of & LORDE.

¶ The children of Merari were nombred also accordinge to their tymreds and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of witnessse, & the summe was thre thousande, and two hundred. This is the summe of the tymred of the childre of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

¶ The summe of all the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron with the captaines of Israel tolde, after their tymreds and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that wente in to do every one his office, and to beare the burthen in & Tabernacle of witnessse, was eight thousande fyne hundred and foure score, which were nombred accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses, every one to his office & charge, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The V. Chapter.

¶ And & LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde the children of Israel, & they put out of the hoost, all & lepers, and all that haue yssues, and that are defyled vpon the deed, both men and women shal they putt out of the hoost, that they defyle not their tentes, wherein I dwell

amonge them. And 3 children of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoost, as 3 LORDE had sayde vnto Moses.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel & saye vnto them: Whan a man or woman doeth a synne to eny body, and offendeth ther with agaynst the LORDE, then hath that soule a trespase vpon it. And they shall knowlege their synne, that they haue done, and shall make amendes for their trespase, even with the whole summe, and put 3 fifti parte more thereto, and geue it vnto him, agaynst whom they haue trespassed. But yf there be noman to make the amendes vnto for the offence 3 he hath trespassed agaynst him, then shal the reconcylynge be made vnto the LORDE for the prest, besydes the ramme of the attonement, wherwith he shal be reconcyled.

B Likewyse all the Zeneofferynges of all that the children of Israel halowe vnto the LORDE, and offre vnto the prest, shall be his. And who so haloweth eny thinge, it shal be his. And who so geueth the prest eny thinge, it shal be his also.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel; and saye vnto them: Whan eny mans wife goeth asyde, and trespaceth agaynst him, & eny mā lye with her fleshye, and the thinge be yet hyd from his eyes, and is not come to light that she is defiled, and he can brynge no witness agaynst her (for she was not takē ther in) and the sperte of gelousy kyndleth him, so that he is gelous ouer his wife: whether she be vncleane or not vncleane, then shal he brynge her vnto the prest, and brynge an offeringe for her, even the tenth parte of an Ephah of barlye meale, and shal poure no oyle theron, ner put frankensence vpon it: for it is an offeringe of gelousy, and an offeringe of remembraunce, that remembreth synne.

C Then shall the prest brynge her, and sett her before the LORDE, and take of the holy water in an earthen vessell, and put of 3 dust that is on the floore of the habitacion, in to the water. And he shal see the wife before 3 LORDE, and vncouer hir heade, and the offeringe of remembraunce which is an offeringe of gelousy, shal he laye vpon hir handes. And the prest shal haue in his hande bytter cursinge water, and shal coniure the wife, & saye vnto her: If no man haue lyē with the, and thou hast not gone asyde from thy husbande, to defyle thy self, then shall not these bytter cursinge waters hurte the. But yf thou hast gone asyde from thy husbande, so that thou art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the besyde thy husbande, then shall the prest coniure the wife with this curse, and shal saye vnto her: The LORDE sett the to a curse and a coniuration amonge thy people, so that the LORDE make thy thye rotte, and thy wombe to berst. So go this cursed water in to thy body, that 3 wombe berst, and thy thye rotte. And the wife shal saye: Amen Amen.

So the prest shall wyte this curse in a byll, and wash it out with the water, and shall geue the wife of the bytter cursinge waters to drynke. And whā the cursinge water is gone in her, so 3 it is bytter vnto her then shal the prest take the gelousy offeringe out of the wyues hande, and waue it for a meatofferynge before the LORDE, and of fre it vpon the altare: namely, he shall take an handfull of the meatofferynge for hir remembraunce, & burne it vpo the altare, & then geue the wife the water to drinke. And whā she hath dronken the water, yf she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynst hir husbande, then shal the cursinge water go in to her, and be so bytter, that hir wombe shal berst, and hir thye shall rotte, and the wife shal be a curse amonge hir people. But yf the same wife be not defyled, but is cleane, then shall it do her no harme, so that she maye be with childe.

This is the lawe of gelousy, whan a wyfe goeth asyde from hir husbande, and is defyled: Or whan 3 sperte of gelousy kyndleth a man, so that he is gelous ouer his wyfe, 3 he brynge her before the LORDE, and that 3 prest do all w her accordinge vnto this lawe. And 3 man shal be gilelesse of the synne, but the wife shall beare hir mysdede.

The VI. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan a man or woman separateth them selues, to vowe a vowe of abstinence vnto the LORDE, he shal absteyne from wyne and strōge drynke. Vyneger of wyne & of stronge drynke shal he not drynke, ner that is pressed out of grapes: he shall nether eate fresh ner drye grapes, so longe as his abstinence endureth. Morouer he shall eate no thinge that is made of the vyne tre, from the vyne cornels vnto the hulle.

As longe as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasoure come vpon his heade, tyll the tyme be out which he absteyneth vnto the LORDE, for he is holy.

And he shall let the heer of his heade grewe, and stonde bare openly. All the tyme out 3 he absteyneth vnto the LORDE, shal he goe no deed. Nether shal he defyle himself at 3 death of his father, of his mother, of his brother, or of his sister. For the abstinence of his God is vpon his heade, and 3 whole tyme of his abstinence shall he be holy vnto the LORDE.

B And yf it chaunce eny man to dye suddenly before him, then shal 3 heade of his abstinence be defyled. Therfore shal he shawe his heade in the daye of his clensynge, that is vpon the seuenth daye: and vpon 3 eight daye shal he brynge two turtill doves, or two yonge pigeons, vnto the prest before 3 dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prest shal make the one a synofferynge, and the other a burnt offeringe, and make an attonement for him, because he defyled himself vpon 3 deed, and so shal he halowe his heade the same daye, that he maye holde out the tyme of his abstinence vnto the LORDE, and he shal brynge a lambe of a yearc olde for a trespacofferynge. But 3 daies afore shal he be but lost, because his abstinence was defyled.

C This is the lawe of the absteyner. Whan the tyme of his abstinence is out, he shal be brought before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shal brynge his offeringe vnto the LORDE, even an he lambe of a yearc olde without blemyshe for a burnt offeringe, & a she lambe of a yearc olde without blemyshe for a synofferynge, and a ramme without blemyshe for an healt offeringe, & a maū de w vnlendened cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and swete wafers anoynted with oyle, & their meatofferings & dryntofferynges.

And the prest shal brynge it before the LORDE, and shal make his synofferynge and his burnt offeringe, and 3 ramme shal he make an healt offeringe vnto the LORDE, with 3 maūde of the vnlendened bred. His meatofferynge and dryntofferynge shal he make also. And he shall shawe the heade of the absteyners abstinence before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heade heer of his abstinence, and cast it vpon the fyre that is vnder 3 healt offeringe.

D And the sodden shulder of the ramme shal he take, and an vnlendened cake out of the maūde, and a swete wafer, and laye them vpon the handes of the absteyner:

(after that he hath shawen of his abstinence.) And he shal waue them before the LORDE. This is holy for the prest with the Wauebrest, and Zene shulder. After that, maye the absteyner drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the absteyner, which vowerth his offeringe vnto the LORDE for his abstinence, besydes that, which his hande can get. As he hath vowed, so shall he do accordinge to the lawe of his abstinence.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: Thus shal ye saye vnto the children of Israel, whan ye blesse them.

The LORDE blesse the, and kepe the. The LORDE make his face to shyne vpo the, and be mercifull vnto the.

The LORDE lift vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace.

For they shal put my name vpo the children of Israel, that I maye blesse them.

The VII. Chapter.

And whan Moses had set vp the habitacion and anoynted it, and sanctified it with all the apparell therof: and had anoynted and halowed the altare also with all his vessels, Then offred the captaines of Israel, which were the rulers in their fathers houses.

For they were the captaines amonge 3 kynreds, and stode ouer the that were nombred. And they brought their offeringes before the LORDE, siue couered charettes, and twolue oren, for every two captaines a charette, and an oren for every one, and brought them before the habitacion.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take it of them, that it maye serue for the ministracion of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue it vnto the Leuites, vnto every one accordinge to his office. Then toke Moses the charettes and oren, and gaue them vnto the Leuites.

Two charettes and foure oren gaue he vnto 3 children of Gerson accordinge to their office: and foure charettes and eight oren gaue he vnto the children of Merari accordinge to their office, vnder the hande of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

But vnto the children of Rahab he gaue no thinge, because they had an holy office vpon them, and must beare vpo their shulders. And the captaines offred to the dedication of the altare, in the daye whan it was anoynted, and offred their giftes before the altare.

So that the summe of all the syluer in the vessels, was two thousande and foure hundred Sycles (after the Sytle of the Sanctuary). And the twelue spones of golde full of incense, conteyned euery one ten Sycles, after the Sytle of the Sanctuary: So that the summe of the golde in the spones, was an hundred and twenty Sycles.

The summe of the catell for the burntofferings, was twelue bullockes, twelue rammes, twelue labes of a yere olde with their meatofferings: And twelue he goates for synofferings. And the summe of the catell for the healthofferings, was foure and twety oxen, thre score rammes, and thre score he goates, thre score labes of a yere olde. This is the dedication of the altare, after that it was anoynted.

And whan Moses wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnes, he might be commoned withall, he herde the voyce speakyng vnto him fro of the Mercy seate, which was vpon the Arke of wytnes betwixte the two Cherubins, from thence was he comoned withall.

The VIII. Chapter.

And the LORD calked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to Aaron, and saye vnto him: Whan thou settest vp the lampes, thou shalt set the so, that they maye all sende geue light aboue vpon the candilstick. And Aaron dyd so, and set the lampes vpon the candilstick, as the LORD commanded Moses. The worke of the candilstick was of beate golde, both the shaft and floures thereof: Accordyng to the vison that the LORD had shewed Moses, even so made he the candelssticke.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the Leuites frō amonge the children of Israel, & clense them. But thus shalt thou do with them, that thou mayest clense them. Thou shalt sprentle purifienge water vpon them, and lett a rasure go ouer their whole body, and washe their clothes, and then are they cleane. Then shall they take a yonge bullocke, and his meat offeringe of fyne floure myngled with oyle. And another yonge bullocke shalt thou take for a synofferinge.

And thou shalt brynge the Leuites before the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and gather together the whole congregacion of β children of Israel, and brynge the Leuites before the LORDE. And the children of Israel shall laye their handes vpon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue β Leuites before the LORDE for the children of Israel, that they maye mynistrē in the seruyce of the LORDE.

And the Leuites shall laye their handes vpon the heedes of the bullockes, and the one shall be made a synnofferynge, the other a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, to make an attonement for the Leuites. And thou shalt set the Leuites before Aaron and his sonnes, and waue them before the LORDE, and so shalt thou separate them from β children of Israel, that they maye be myne. Thus shall they go in, that they maye do seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Thus shalt thou clense the, & waue them: for they are my gifte of the children of Israel, & and I haue taken them vnto me for all that openeth the Matrix, namely for the first borne of all the children of Israel.

Num. 3. b

Exo. 13. a
Luc. 2. d

For every first borne amonge the children of Israel is myne, both of men and of cattell. sens the tyme that I smote all the first borne in the lande of Egipte, and sanctified them vnto my self, and toke the Leuites for all the first borne amonge the childre of Israel, and gaue them for a gifte vnto Aaron and his sonnes from amonge the children of Israel, β they shulde do the seruyce of the children of Israel in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to make attonement for the children of Israel, that there be not a plage amonge the children of Israel, yf they wyll come nye β Sanctuary.

And Moses with Aaron and the whole congregacio of the childre of Israel, dyd to the Leuites all as the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And they purified the Leuites, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waueed them before the LORDE, and made attonement for them, that they might be cleane.

After that wente they in, to do their office in the Tabernacle of wytnesse before Aaron and his sonnes: as the LORDE commaunded Moses concernynge the Leuites, euen so dyd they with them.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & sayde: This is it that belongeth vnto the Leuites: From fyue and twentye yere and aboue, shall they go in to the office of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. But frō fyfte yere forth, they shal ceasse from the waitinge of the seruyce therof, and shall mynistrē nomore, but shal appoynte their brethren to waite and serue in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: but the office shal not they execute. Thus shalt thou do with the Leuites in their seruyces, that euery one maye wayte vpon his awne charge.

The IX. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in β first moneth of the seconde yere that they were departed out of the lande of Egipte, & sayde: Let the children of Israel kepe Easter in his season, euen vpon the fourtene dayes of this moneth at euen, in his season shall they kepe it, acordinge to all the statutes & lawes therof. And Moses spake to β childre of Israel, yf they shulde kepe Easter. And they kep Easter vpo the fourtene daye of the first moneth at euen in the wilderness of Sinai. Acordinge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the children of Israel.

Then were there certayne men defyled of a deed man, so that they coulde not kepe Easter vpon that daye: these came before Moses and Aaron the same daye, and sayde vnto him: We are defyled of a deed mā: wherfore shulde we be despysed, that we must not bringe oure giftes in his season amonge the children of Israel: Moses sayde vnto them: Stande styll, I wil heare what the LORDE commaundeth you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saie: Whā eny man is defyled of a deed course, or is gone farre from you ouer the felde, or is amonge youre kynssfolkes, yet shall he kepe Easter, but in the seconde moneth vpo β fourtene daye at euen, and they shal eat it with vnleuended bred and sower sawse, and shall leaue none of it vntyll the morrowe, ner breake eny bone therof, and shal kepe it acordinge to all β maner of β Easter.

But he that is cleane, and not gone in a iourney, and is negligent to kepe the Easter, the same soule shal be roted out from amonge his people: because he brought not his gifte to the LORDE in his season, he shal beate his synne. And whan there dwelleth a straunger amonge you, he shal kepe Easter also vnto the LORDE, & shal holde it acordinge to β ordinaunce and lawe of β Easter. This statute shal be vnto you alike, to the straunger as to him that is borne in the londe.

And β same daye β the habitacion was set vp, a cloude couered it vpo the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & at euen there was a symilitude of fyre vpon the habitacion vntill the morrowe. So came it to passe allwaye, β the cloude couered it by daye, & the symilitude of fyre by night. And whan the cloude was takē vp from the habitacion, then the children of Israel wente on their iourney. And loke in what place the cloude abode, there the childre of Israel pitched their tentes. Acordinge to the worde of the LORDE toke the children of Israel their iourney, and acordinge to his worde pitched they their tentes. So longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye styll. And whan the cloude taried many dayes vpon the habitacion, the childre of Israel wayted vpon the LORDE, & wente not on their iourney.

And whan it chaunced that the cloude abode vpo β habitacion eny space of dayes, then pitched they acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, & after the worde of the LORDE wente they on their iourney. Whan the cloude was there from the euenynge vntyll the morrowe, and so was taken vp, then wēte they on their iourney: and whether it was takē vp by daye or by night, they iourneyed. But whan it taried vpon the habitacion two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season, then laye the children of Israel, and iourneyed not: and so whan it was taken vp, they wente on their iourney. For acordinge to the mouth of the LORDE they laye, and after the mouth of the LORDE they iourneyed, so β they kep the LORDES watch, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayest vse them, to call the congregacion together, and whan the hoost shal breake vp. Whan they blowe with both, then shall the whole congregacion gather them selues together vnto the before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Whan they blowe but with one, then the captaynes, the rulers ouer the then sandes in Israel shal gather them selues together vnto the. Whan ye trompe, then shal the hoostes that lye on the East syde, breake vp. And whan ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoostes that lye on the South syde, shal breake vp. For ye shall trompe, whan they shal take their iourneys. But whan β congregacion is to be gathered together, ye shal blowe, and not trompe. This blowinge w the trompettes shal the sonnes of Aaron the priest do. And it shal be y^e lawe for euer amonge youre posterities.

Iudic. 3. d

Whan ye go to a battayll in youre londe agaynst youre enemies β were you, ye shall trompe with the trompettes, that ye maye be remembied before the LORDE y^e God, and delyuered from youre enemies.

Like wyse whan ye are mery, and in youre feast dayes, & in youre new Monethes, ye shal blowe with the trompettes ouer youre burnt sacrifices & health offeringes, β it maie be a remembraunce vnto you before youre God. I am the LORDE youre God.

Vpon the twentye daye in the seconde moneth of the seconde yere, arose the cloude from the habitacion of wytnesse. And the childre of Israel wente on their iourney out of the wilderness of Sinai, and the cloude abode in the wilderness of Paran, first brake vp (acordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.) Namely, the baner of the hoost of Juda wente forth first with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Isachar was Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Elon. And the habitacion was taken downe, and the children of Gerson and Merari bare the habitacion.

Num. 4. a

After that wente the baner of the hoost of Ruben with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Simeon was Selumiel the sonne of Zuri. And Elisaph the sonne of Deguel ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Gad. Then wente the Rahabites forward also, and bare the Sanctuary, and caused β habitacion be set vp agaynst they came.

After that wente the baner of the hoost of the children of Ephraim with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Elisama the sonne of Amihud. And Gamaliel the sonne of Peasur ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Manasse. And Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni ouer the hoost of the try-be of the children of Ben Jamin.

After that wente the baner of the hoost of the children of Dan with their Armyes,
(and so were all the hoostes vp) and Abieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai was ouer their hoost. And Pagiel & sonne of Othian, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of As-ser. And Ahira the sonne of Enan ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Nephe-thali. Thus the childre of Israel were forth with their armyes.

D And Moses spake vnto his brother in lawe, Hobab the sonne of Raguel of Ma-dian: We go vnto the place, of the which I LORDE sayde: I wil geue it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we wil do I best with the, for the LORDE hath promysed good vnto Israel. But he answered: I wil not go w you, but wil go in to myne awne londe vnto my kynred. He sayde: Oh nay, leaue vs not:
for thou knowest where is best for vs to pyr-che in the wyldernes, and thou shalt be oure eye. And yf thou geest with vs, loke what good the LORDE doth vnto vs, the same wil we do vnto the. So they departed from the mount of the LORDE the dayes iour-ney, & the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt wente before them those the dayes iourney, to shewe the where they shulde rest. And I cloude of the LORDE was ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they were out of I tere.

Plal. 67. a And whan the Arke wente forth, Moses sayde: Arysse LORDE, let thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate the, flye before the. And whan it rested, he sayde: Come agayne O LORDE vnto the multitude of the thousandes of Israel.

The XI. Chapter.

Exo 16. a
Deut. 9. d A And whan I people wared vnpacide, it displeased sore I eares of I LORDE.
And whan the LORDE herde it, his wrath wared whore, & the fyre of I LORDE burnt amonge them, so I it consumed the vtre-most of I hoost. The cryed the people vnto Moses. And Moses prayed vnto the LOR-DE. So I fyre quenched. And the place was called Tabera, because the fyre of the LOR-DE burnt amonge them.

Then the comon sorte of people I was amonge them, fell a lusting, and sat & wept w
the children of Israel, and sayde: Who wyl geue vs flesh to eate? We remembre the fish, the we ate in Egipte for naught, & Cucumbers, Melons, letes, onyons, & garlete: But now is oure soule dried awaye, oure eyes se nothinge then the Manna.

The Manna was like Coriander seede, and to loke vpon, like Bedellion. And the people ranne here and there, & gathered it, & grounde it in Milles, and beate it in morters, and baked it in panes, and made cakes of it, and it had a raistlike an oyle cake. And whan I dew fell vpon the cokes in the night, I Manna fell therewith.

Now whan Moses herde the people we-pe amonge their kynreds, every one in his e-dore, then the wrath of the LORDE wared exceedinge whore. And it grieved Moses also. And Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Why verest thou thy seruante? And why fynde not I fauoure in I sight, I thou sayest I burthen of all this people vps me? Haue I the cōceaned all this people, or begotten them, that thou shuldest saye vnto me: Carry them in thine armes (as a nurse beareth a childe) vnto the londe, that thou hast sworne vnto their fathers: Where shal I get flesh, to ge-ue all this people? They wepe before me, and saye: Geue vs flesh, that we maye eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is to heuy for me. And yf thou wylt deale thus w me: O kyll me then, yf I haue foun-de fauoure in thy sight, that I se not my wretchednesse.

And the LORDE saide vnto Moses: Gather vnto me I seuentye men amonge the Elders of Israel, whom thou knowest I they are the Elders in I people and officers ouer them, and brynge them before the Tabernacle of witness, and set them there with the:
then wil I come downe, and talke with the euen there, & take of thy spire that is vpon
the, and putt it vpon them, that they maye beare the burthen of the people with the, I thou beare not all alone.

And vnto I people thou shalt saye: Sac-tifie yor selues agaynst tomorrow, I ye maye eate flesh: for youre wepyng is come into the eares of the LORDE, ye that saye: Who shal geue vs flesh to eate? for we were well at ease in Egipte. Therfore shal the LORDE geue you flesh to eate, not one daye, not two,

not fyue, not ten, not twentye dayes longe,
but a moneth longe, tyll it go out at youre noses, and tyll ye lothe it: euen because ye haue refused the LORDE, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before him, & sayde: Wherefore wente we out of Egipte?

And Moses sayde: Sixe hundred thousande fore men are there of the people amō-ge whom I am, and thou sayest: I wyl ge-ue you flesh to eate a moneth lōge. Shal the shepe and oxen be slayne to be ynough for than? Or shal all the fishes of the see be gathered together, to be sufficient for them?
The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Is the LORDES hande shortened then? But now shalt thou se, whether my wordes shal be fulfilled in dede, or no?

And Moses wete out, and tolde the people I worde of the LORDE, and gathered the seuentye men amonge the Elders of the people, & set them rounde aboute the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloude, & spake vnto him, & toke of the spire
I was vpon him, & put it vpon the seuentie Elders. And whan the spire rested vpon them, they prophesied, and ceassed not.

S But in the hoost thereremayned yet two men, of whom the one was called Eldad, I other Medad, & the spire rested vps them.
For they were wyrtten vp also, & yet were they not gone out vnto the Tabernacle, and they prophesied in the hoost. Then ran there a lad, & tolde Moses, & sayde: Eldad and Medad prophesie in the hoost. Then answered Josua I sonne of Nun Moses seruaute (whom he had chosen) and sayde: My lorde Moses, for bydder them. But Moses sayde vnto him: Art thou gelous for my sake? wol-de God, I all the people of I LORDE coulde prophesie, and that I LORDE wolde ge-ue them his spire. So Moses and the Elders of Israel gat them to the hoost.

G Then wente out the wynde from I LOR-DE, & cansed quayles to come from the see, & scattered the ouer the hoost. here a dayes iour-ney, there a dayes iourney rounde aboute I hoost, two cubytes hye aboue I earth. Then the people stode vp all that daye and all I night, and all the nexte daye, and gathered quayles: and he that gathered the leest, gathered ten homers, & they fylled them roun-de aboute the hoost.

But whyle I flesh was yet betwene their teeth, & ouer it was vp, the wrath of the LORDE wared whore amonge the people, and slawe them with an exceedinge greates slaughter. Therfore is the same place called the graues of lust, because the voluptuous people were buried there. From the lust graues toke the people their iourney vnto Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

The XII. Chapter.

A And Miriam & Aaron spake agaynst
Moses because of his wife the Morian, which he had taken, because he had take a Moian to wife, and they sayde:
Both the LORDE speake onely thow Mōses? Speaketh he not also by vs? And the LORDE herde it. But Moses was a very mekeman, aboue all men vpon earth. And haistely spake the LORDE vnto Moses, and to Aaron, and to Miriam: Go out ye thre vnto I Tabernacle of wytnesse. And they wen-te out all thre.

Then came the LORDE downe in the cloudy piler, & stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, & called Aaron & Miriam, & they both wete out. And he sayde: Heare my wordes:
If eny man be a prophet of the LORDE, vnto him wil I shewe my self in a vision, or wil speake vnto him in a dreame. But not so to my seruante Moses, which is faithfull in all my house. I touch to mouth speake I vnto him, & he seyth the LORDE in his fashion, not thow barke wordes or licenesse:
Wherefore were ye not afrayed then to speake agaynst my seruant Moses?

And I wrath of the LORDE wared who-re ouer them, & he turned him awaye, and I cloude also departed from the Tabernacle.
And beholde, then was Miriam become leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron turned him vnto Miriam, and sawe that she was leporous, and sayde vnto Moses: Oh my lorde, put not the synne vpon vs, which we haue foolishly committed and synned, that she be not as one that commeth deed out of his mothers wombe: It hath eaten vp half his flesh already.

But Moses cried vnto the LORDE, & sayde: Oh God, heale her. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: If hir father had spytted in hir face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes?
Let her be shnt out of I hoost seue dayes, after I let her be receaved agayne. So Miriam was shnt out of the hoost seue dayes, & the people wente no farther, tyll Miriam was receaved agayne. Afterwarde departed the people from Hazeroth, and pitched in I wyldernes of Paran.

The XIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Send forth men to spye out I lande of Canaan (which I wil geue vnto y children of Israel) of euery trybe of their fathers a man, and let them all be soch as are captaines amonge them. Moses sent the out of the wilderness of Paran, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, soch as were all heades amonge the children of Israel, and these are their names:

Samua the sonne of Zaur, of the trybe of Ruben. Saphat the sonne of Hou, of the trybe of Simson. Caleb y sonne of Jephune, of the trybe of Iuda. Igeal the sonne of Joseph, of the trybe of Isachar. Hosea the sonne of Nun, of y trybe of Ephraim. Palti the sonne of Rapha, of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Gabiel the sonne of Sodi, of y trybe of Zabulon. Gaddi the sonne of Sasi, of the trybe of Joseph of Manasse. Ammel the sonne of Gemalli, of the trybe of Dan. Serphur y sonne of Michael, of the trybe of Asser. Nabebi the sonne of Naphsi, of the trybe of Nephthali. Guel the sonne of Machi, of the trybe of Gad. These are the names of the men, whom Moses sent forth to spye out the lande. As for Hosea the sonne of Nun, Moses called him Josua.

B Now when Moses sent the forth to spye out the lande of Canaan, he sayde vnto the: Go vp southwarde, and get you vnto the mountaynes, and loke vpon the lande how it is: and the people that dwell therein, whether they be stronge or weake, fewe or many: and what maner of lande it is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: y what maner of cities they be that they dwell in, whether they be fenced with walles, or not: and what maner of lande it is, whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein, or not. Be of a good courage, and bringe of the frutes of the lande. It was euen aboute the tyme, that grapes are first ripe.

They wente vp, y spyed the lande, from y wilderness of Sin, vntyll Rehob, as me go vnto Hemath. They wente vp also toward the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Abimam was, and Sefai and Thalmal, the children of Enack (Hebron was buylded seven yeres before Joan in Egypte.)

C And they came to the ryuer of Escol, and there they cut downe a cluster of grapes, and caused two to beare it vpon a staffe, pomgranates also and fygges. The place is called the ryuer of Escol, because of the cluster of grapes, which the children of Israel cut downe there.

And when they had spyed out the lande, they turned backe agayne after fourty daies, and wente, and came to Moses and Aaron, y to the whole congregacion of y children of Israel in to y wilderness of Paran, vnto Cades, and broughte them worde agayne, and to the whole congregacion, how it stood, and let them se the frute of the lande, and tolde them, and sayde: We came into y lande, whither ye sent vs, where it floweth with mylke and hony, and this is the frute thereof: saynge that stronge people dwell therein, and the cities are exceedinge stronge and greate. And we sawe the children of Enack there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, and Jebusites and Amorites dwell vpon the mountaynes, but the Cananites dwell by the sea, and aboute Jordane.

Howbeit Caleb stylled y people that was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto them: Let vs go vp, and conquere the lande, for we are able to ouercome it. But the men that wente vp with him, sayde: We are not able to go vp agaynst that people, for they are to stronge for vs. And of the lande that they had searched, they broughte vp an euell reporte amonge the childre of Israel, and saide: The lande that we have gone thorow to spye out, eateth vp the indwellers thereof: and all the people that we sawe therein, are men of grete stature. We sawe giauntes there also, yet seemed in oure sighte as y greshoppers, and so dyd we in their sighte.

The XIII. Chapter.

Then the whole congregacion toke on, and cryed, and the people wepte y night. And all the childre of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregacion sayde vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, or that we might dye yet in this wilderness. Wherefore bringeth the LORDE vs in to this lande, that oure wyues shulde fall thorow the swerde, and ouer children be praye? Is it not better, that we go agayne into Egypte? And they sayde one to another: Let vs make a captain, and go in to Egypte agayne.

But Moses y Aaron fell vpo their faces before y whole congregacion of the multitude of the childre of Israel. And Josua y some of Nun, y Caleb y some of Jephune (which also had spyed out the lande) rente their clothes, y spake to the whole congregacion of the children of Israel: The lande y we have walked thorow to spye it out, is a very good lande. If the LORDE haue lust vnto vs, he shal bringe vs in to the same lande, y geue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke y hony. But in anye wyse rebell not ye agaynst the LORDE, y feare not y people of this lande, for we wil eate the vp as bred. Their defence is departed fro them, but the LORDE is with vs, be not ye afayed of them.

B And all the people, bad stone them w stones. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witness vnto all the children of Israel, y the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: How longe shal this people blaspheme me? And how longe wil it be, or they beleue me, for all the tokes that I haue shewed amonge them? I wil smyte them with pestilence y destroye the, y wil make of the a greater y mightier people then this is.

But Moses sayde vnto y LORDE: Then shal y Egyptians heare it (for thy power hast thou brought this people from amonge the) so shal it becolde the inhabitants of this lande also, which haue herde, y thou O LORDE art amonge this people, y thou art sene from face to face, y that thy cloude stondeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them in the cloudy piler on the daye tyme, and in the fyrie piler on the night season. If thou shuldest now slaye this people as one man, then the Hethen that haue herde so good reporte of the, shulde saye: The LORDE was not able to bringe the people in to the lande, that he swate vnto them, therefore hath he slayne them in the wilderness.

C So let the power of the LORDE now be greate, accordinge as thou hast spoken and sayde: The LORDE is of longe sufferance and of greate mercy, and forgiveth synne and trespass, and leaveth no man innocent, y visiteth the mysdede of the fathers vpon the children in to the thirde and fourth generation. O be gracious now vnto the synne of this people accordinge to thy greate mercy, like as thou hast forborne this people also, ever from Egypte vnto this place. And the LORDE sayde: I haue forgiven it, as thou hast saide. But as truly as I lyue, all y that shall be full of my glory. For of all y men that haue sene my glory y my tokens, which I dyd in Egypte and in the wilderness, and tempted me now ten tymes, y haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande that I swate vnto their fathers: nether shal eny of them that haue blasphemed me, se it. But my seruante Caleb, because there is another maner spie with him, y because he hath folowed me, him wil I bringe in to the lande, which he hath gone thorow, y his sede shal conquere it, and y Amalechites also and the Cananites, that dwell in the lowe countrees. Tomorrow turne you, and get you to the wilderness, in the waye toward the reed sea.

And y LORDE spake vnto Moses y Aaron, y sayde: How longe shal this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? For I haue herde the murmuringe of the childre of Israel, y they haue murmured agaynst me. Tell them therefore: As truly as I lyue (sayeth y LORDE) I wil do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares: Your carcases shal lye in this wilderness. And all ye that were nombred from twentye yeres and aboue, which haue murmured agaynst me, shal not come in to the lande (exceptynge the which I lift vp my hande, y I wolde let you dwell therein) save Caleb y sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

Your children, of whom ye sayde: They shal be a spoyle, them wyll I bringe in, so y they shal knowe the lande, which ye haue refused. But ye with youre carcases shal lye in this wilderness, and y children shal wander in this wilderness fourty yeres, y beare y whoredome, tyll y carcases be wasted in the wilderness, accordinge to the nombre of y fourty dayes, wherein ye spyed out the lande. A daye for a yere, so y fourty yeres ye shall beare youre mysdede, that ye maye knowe what it is, when I with drawe my hande. Euen I the LORDE haue sayde it, y wil do it in dede vnto all this euell congregacion, that haue lift vp them selues agaynst me: In this wilderness shal they be consumed, and there shal they dye.

So there dyed and were plagued before the LORDE all the me, whom Moses sent to spye out the lande, y came agayne, and made the whole congregacion to murmur agaynst it, because they brought vp a mysreporte of the lande, that it was euell. But Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb y some of Jephune ne were left alyue, of the men that wente to spye out the lande. And Moses spake these wordes vnto all the children of Israel. The toke the people greatesorrowe.

S And they arose early in the mornynge, and wente vnto the toppe of the mountayne, and sayde: Lo, here are we, and will go vnto the place, wherof the LORD hath sayde: for we haue synned. But Moses sayde: wherfore go ye on this maner beyonde the word of the LORD? It shall not prosper with you: go not vp (for the LORD is not amōge you) y^e ye be not slayne before y^e enemies. For the Amalechites and Cananites are there before you, and ye shall fall thorow the sword, because ye haue turned y^e selues from the LORD, and the LORD shall not be with you.

But they were blynded to go vnto the toppe of the mountayne: neuertheles the Ark of the LORDES conenante and Moses came not out of the hooste. Then came downe the Amalechites and Cananites which dwelt vpon that mountayne, and smote them and hewed them, cūen vnto Horma.

The XV. Chapter.

AND the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande of youre dwellinge, which I shall geue you, and wil do sacrifice vnto the LORD, whether it be a burnt offering, or an offering for a speciall vowe, or a freewill offering, or youre feast offerings, that ye maye make a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD, of oxen or of shepe.

He shall wil offre now his gifte vnto the LORD, shall brynge for the meat offering a tēth deale of fyne flour myngled with oyle of the fourth parte of an hin, and wyne for the drynt offeringe the fourth parte of an hin also: to the burnt offering, or any other offering, whan a lambe is offred. But whā the re is a ramme offred, thou shalt make the meat offeringe two tēth deales of fyne flour myngled with oyle, of the thirde parte of an hin, and the thirde parte of an hin of wyne also for a drynt offeringe: this shalt thou offre for a sweete sauour vnto the LORD.

But yf thou wilt offre an oxe for a burnt offering, or for a speciall vowe offering, or for an healt offering vnto the LORD, thou shalt brynge to the oxe, the meat offeringe, even thre tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with half an hin of oyle, and half an hin of wyne for a drynt offeringe. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD. Thus shalt thou do with an oxe, with a ram me, with a lambe, and with a goate. Accordinge as the nombre of the offeringes is, therafter shall the nombre of the meat offerings and drynt offerings be also.

He that is one of youre selues, shall do this, that he maye offre a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD. And yf there dwell a straunger with you, or is amōge youre kynnsfolkes, and wil do an offeringe vnto the LORD for a sweete sauoure, the same shall do as ye do. Let there be one statute for the whole congregacion, both vnto you and to the strangers. A perpetuall statute shall it be vnto youre posterities, that the stranger be enē as ye before the LORD. One lawe, and one ordinaunce shall be vnto you and to the stranger that dwelleth with you.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande, in to the which I shall brynge you, so that ye eate the bred of the lande, ye shall hewe vp an heue offeringe vnto the LORD, namely, a cake of the firstlinges of youre dowe shall ye geue for an heue offeringe: as the heue offeringe of the barne, enē so shall ye geue the firstlinges of youre dowe also vnto the LORD, for an heue offeringe amōge youre posterities.

And whan ye thorow ignorance overseye any of these commaundementes, which the LORD hath spoken by Moses, and all the LORD hath commaunded you by Moses (from the daye that the LORD began to commaunde for youre posterities) and the congregacion do ought ignorantly, the LORD shall the whole congregacion offre a yonge bullocke from amōge the greates catell, as a burnt offeringe, for a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD, with his meat offeringe and drynt offeringe as the maner is, and an hegoate for a syn offeringe. And so shall the prest make an attonement for the whole congregacion of the childre of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is an ignorance. And they shall brynge these their giftes for an offeringe vnto the LORD, and their syn offeringe before the LORD for their ignorance, and it shall be forgiven the whole congregacion of the childre of Israel, and the stranger also that dwelleth amōge you, for so much as all the people is in such ignorance.

And if one soule synne thorow ignorance, the same shall brynge a she goate of a year olde for a syn offeringe. And the prest shall make an attonement for such an ignorant soule with the syn offeringe for the ignorant ce before the LORD, that he maye reconcile him, and it shall be forgiven him. And it shall be one lawe, (that ye shall do for ignorance) both vnto him that is borne amōge the childre of Israel, and to the stranger that dwelleth amōge you.

But yf a soule do ought presumptuously, whether he be one of youre selues or a stranger, he hath despysed the LORD: the same soule shall be roted out from amōge his people: because he hath despysed the word of the LORD, and hath leste his commaundment undone: that soule shall vicerly perish, his synne shall be vpon him.

Now whyle the childre of Israel were in the wyldernes, they founde a man gatheringe stickes vpon the Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron, and before the whole congregacion. And they put him in prison, for it was not declared what shulde be done vnto him. The LORD sayde vnto Moses: The man shall dye the death, the whole congregacion shall stone him without the hoost. Then the whole congregacion brought him out of the hoost, and stoned him that he dyed, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto the, that they make them gardes vpon the quarters of their garmentes amōge all y^e posterities, and put yalowe rybandes vpon the gardes in the quarters. And the gardes shall serue you, that ye maye loke vpon the, and remembre all the commaundementes of the LORD, and do them: that ye order not youre selues after the manege of youre awne hert, ner go awhorunge after youre awne eyes. Therefore shall ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto youre God. I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be y^e God. Euen I the LORD your God.

The XVI. Chapter.

And Corah the sonne of Jesehar the sonne of Rahab, the sonne of Levi, with Dathan and Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonnes of Ruben, stode vp agaynst Moses, with certayne men amōge the childre of Israel, two hundred and fyftee capaynes of the congregacion, counsellors, and famous men. And they gathered them selues agaynst Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: Remake to moch a doo, for all the congregacion is holy euery one, and the LORD is amōge them: Why lifte ye youre selues vpon then aboue the congregacion of the LORD?

Whan Moses herde this, he fell vpon his face, and saide vnto Corah, and to all his company: Tomorrow shall the LORD shewe who is his, and who is holy to come vnto him. Whosoeuer he choseth, the same shall come vnto him. This do: Take ye censours, thou Corah and all thy company, and do fyre therin, and put incense thereon to morrow before the LORD: then whom so euer the LORD choseth, the same shall be holy. Remake to moch a doo, ye childre of Levi.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Heare ye childre of Levi. Is it not ynough vnto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel, that ye shulde come nye him, to do the seruyce of the dwellinge place of the LORD, and stonde before the people to minister vnto them? He hath caused the and all thy brethren the childre of Levi with the, to come nye vnto him: and now ye sette the presthode also. Thou and all thy company conspyre agaynst the LORD. What is Aaron, that ye shulde murmur agaynst him?

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab. But they saide: We wil not come vp. Is it to litle that thou hast broughte vs out of the lande of Egypt (that floweth with mylke and hony) to kill vs in the wyldernes: but thou must raigne ouer vs also? How goodly well hast thou broughte vs in to a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, and geueth vs felde and vniardes in possession? Wilt thou put out these mens eyes? We wil not come vp.

Then was Moses very wroth, and saide vnto the LORD: Turne thou not vnto their meat offerings. I haue not take so moch as an Asses fro the, necher haue I hurte eny of the. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Tomorrow be thou and all thy company before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron. And take euery one his censur, and put incense therin, and come before the LORD, euery one with his censur (that is two hundred and fyftee censurs) and both thou and Aaron take euery his censur.

And every one took his censer, and put fyre therin, and layed incense thereon, and came before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered y whole congregaciō agaynst the before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness.

But y glory of the LORDE appeared before y whole congregaciō. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses z Aaron, z sayde: Separate ydure selues frō this congregaciō, y I maye shortly consume them. And they fell vpon their faces, z sayde: O God, thou God of the spreces of all flesh, ys one man haue synned, wile thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregaciō? And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake to the congregaciō, and saye: Come vp from y dwellynge of Corah, and Dathan, and Abiram.

And Moses stode vp, z wente vnto Dathan z Abiram, z the Elders of Israel followed him, z he spake to y congregaciō, z sayde: Departe frō y tentes of these vngodly mē z touche nothynge y is theirs, y ye perishe not in any of their tymes. And they gat them vp from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, z Abiram. But Dathan and Abiram came out, and stode in the dore of their tentes, with their wyues, and sonnes and children.

And Moses sayde: Hereby shal ye knowe that the LORDE hath sent me, to do all these woites, and that I haue not done them of myne owne here. If these men dye the comen death of all men, or be vysited as all men are vysited, then hath not the LORDE sent me. But ys the LORDE make a new thynge, and the earth open hir mouth, and swalowe them with all that they haue, so y they go downe quyk in to hell, the shal ye knowe, that the sēmen haue blasphemed the LORDE.

Deu. 11. a
Nu. 26. b
Ps. 105. b

And whā he had spokē out all these woites, y groude cloue asunder vnder the, z the earth opened hir mouth, z swallowed the, w their houses, z all the mē y were w Corah, z all their substantice, and they wente downe quyk in to the hell, with all that they had.

And the earth closed vpo them, z so they perished from amonge y congregaciō. And all Israel y were aboute the, fled at y cry of the, for they sayde: That y earth swalowe not vs also. Moreover the fyre came out frō the LORDE, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men, that offred the incense.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake to Eleazar y sonne of Aaron y priest, y he take vp y censers out of y burninge, z scatter y fyre here z there (for the censers of these synners are halowed thow their soules) y they maye be beate in to thur ne places, z fastened vpon y altare. For they are offred before y LORDE, z halowed: and they shalbe a token vnto y childre of Israel.

And Eleazar the priest took y brasen censers which they y were burnt, had offred, z bet the to plates, to fasten the vpon y altare for a remēbrance vnto y children of Israel y no straunger (and he that is not of y seide of Aaron) come nye to offre incense before the LORDE, y it happē not vnto him as vnto Corah and his companye, a cōdyngē as the LORDE sayde vnto him by Moses.

On the nexte morow murmured y whole congregaciō of y childre of Israel agaynst Moses z Aaron, z sayde: We haue slayne y peple of y LORDE. And whā the cōgregaciō was gathered agaynst Moses z Aaron, they turned the towarde y Tabernacle of witness. And beholde, the y cloude covered y Tabernacle, z y glory of y LORDE appeared. And Moses z Aaron wete in before y Tabernacle of witness. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses z sayde: Get you out of this cōgregaciō, I wil shortly consume the. And they fell vpon their faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take the cēser z put fyre therin frō of the altare, z laye incense thereon, z go soone to the cōgregaciō, z make an attonement for them. For the wraith is gone out from the LORDE, and the plage is begōne amonge the people.

And Aaron dyd as Moses sayde, z rāme in the myddest amonge y congregaciō. And beholde, y plage was begōne. And he burnt incense z made an attonement for the people, z stode betwene the deed z the lyuynge, and the plage ceased. But there were fourtent thousande, and sent hundredeth deed in the plage, besydes them that dyed aboute the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron came agayne vnto Moses before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness. And the plage ceased.

The XVII. Chapter.
And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, z take of the twelue staves, of every capteyne of his fathers house one, and wyte every mans name vpon his staffe. But Aarons name shalst thou wyte vpon the staffe of Levi. For every heade of their fathers house shal haue a staffe. And laye the in the Tabernacle of witness, before the witness where I reside vnto you. And loke whom I shall chōse, his staffe shal flourish, y I maye stylye the grōdginges of the children of Israel, which they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the childre of Israel, z all their capteynes gaue him twelue staves, every capteyne a staffe, after y house of their fathers. And Aarons staffe was amonge their staves also. And Moses layed the staves before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witness.

On the morow whā Moses wete in to y Tabernacle of witness, he founde y Aarons rodde of the house of Levi flourished, and brought forth blossoms, z bare allmondes. And Moses brought forth all y staves frō y LORDE before all y childre of Israel, that they might se it. And they took every mā his staffe. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: (Staffe. Dunge Aarons staffe agayne before the witness, y it maye be kepte for a tokē to the childre of rebellion, that their murmurings maye cease frome, lest they dye.

Moses dyd as y LORDE cōmaunded him. And y childre of Israel sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, we cōsume awaye, we are destroyed, z perishe. Who so cōmeth nye y dwellynge place of y LORDE, he dyeth. Shal we the vterly cōsume awaye? The XVII. Chap.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Thou z thy sonnes, z thy fathers house w the shal beare the myssede of y Sanctuary: z thou z thy sonnes w the shal beare the myssede of y presthode. But thy brethren of the trybe of Levi y father, shal come nye the, z be ioyned vnto the, that they maye mynistrē vnto y. But thou z thy sonnes w the, shal mynistrē before y Tabernacle of witness. And they shal waite vpo y seruyce z vpon y seruyce of the whole Tabernacle. But nye vnto the vessels of y Sanctuary z to the altare, shal they not come, y both they z ye dye not: howbeit they shal be ioyned vnto the, to waite vpo the mynistraciō in the Tabernacle of witness, in all the seruyce of the Tabernacle. And there shal no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore waite now vpon the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and vpon the seruyce of the altare, that there come no more wraith vpon the children of Israel. For lo, I haue ratē y brethren the Leuites frō amonge the children of Israel, to be youre giste, for a presente vnto y LORDE, to do y seruyce in y Tabernacle of witness. As for y, and y sonnes with the, ye shal waite vpon youre prestes office, that ye maye mynistrē in all maner busynesse of the altare, and within the vayle: for y prestes office geue I vnto you for a giste to do seruyce. If a straunger come nye, he shal dye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuen the my hēueofferyngest. And all that the children of Israel halowe, haue I geuen vnto the, and to thy sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye. This shalst thou haue of the most holy thinges that they offer. All their gistes with all their meatofferings, and with all their synofferings, and w all their trespass offerings, that they geue me, the same shal be most holy vnto the and y sonnes. In the most holy place shalst thou eate it. All that are males shal eate therof: For it shal be holy vnto the.

The hēueofferynge of their gistes in all the Waueofferyngis of the children of Israel, haue I geuen vnto the also, and to thy sonnes, and to thy daughters for a perpetuall dewtye. Who so is cleane in thy house, shal eate therof. All the fat of the oyle, and all y fat of the wyne and corne of their first linges, that they geue vnto the LORDE, haue I geuen vnto y. The first frutes of all that is in their londe, which they brynge vnto the LORDE, shal be thine. Who so euer is cleane in thine house, shal eate therof.

All dedicate thinges in Israel shal be thine. All that breaketh the Matre amonge all flesh, which they brynge vnto the LORDE, whether it be man or best, shal be thine. But so, that thou cause the firstborne of mā to be redeemed, and that thou cause the first borne of vncleane bestes to be redeemed also. They shal redeme it whā it is a moneth olde, and shal geue it lowse for money, euen for synē cycles, after the cycle of the Sanctuary, which cycle is worth twentye Gerās.)

But the first frutes of an ore, or lambe, or goate shalst thou not cause to be redeemed for they are holy. Their bloude shalst thou sprenkle vpon the altare, and their fat shalst thou burne for an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto y LORDE. Their flesh shal be thine, like as y Wauehest and y right shulder is thine also. All the hēueofferings that y childre of Israel halowe vnto y LORDE, haue I geuen vnto the, z to thy sonnes, z to thy daughters with the for a perpetuall deuotiō.

Exo. 28. b
Leu. 27. d
Exo. 45. b

This shalbe a salted covenant for ever before y^e LORDE, vnto the and thy seide with the.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Thou shal inherit nothinge in their londe, ner haue any poeise amonge them: for I am y^e por-cion, and thine inheritaunce amonge the children of Israel. Vnto the children of Levi haue I geuen all the riches in Israel to inheritaunce, for y^e seruyce which they do vnto me in the Tabernacle of witnessse, that from hece forth the children of Israel come not nye
the Tabernacle of witnessse, to lade them sel-ues with synne, and to dye: But the Levites shal do the seruyce in the Tabernacle of wit-nesse, and shal beare their synne, for a perpetuall lawe amonge youre posterities. And they shal inherit none inheritaunce amonge the children of Israel. For y^e riches of the childre of Israel, which they haue vnto y^e LORDE, haue I geuen vnto the Levites for an heretage. Therefore haue I sayde vnto them, that they shal inherit no inheritaunce amonge
the children of Israel.

And y^e LORDE talked wth Moses, and saide:
Speake to the Levites, and saye vnto them:
Wha ye take of y^e childre of Israel y^e riches,
y^e I haue geuen you of the for y^e inheritaunce, ye shal take an heueofferinge of the same vnto the LORDE, euen the tenth of the tiche.
And the same y^e heueofferynge shal ye re-te, as though ye gaue come out of the barne, and fullnesse out of the wynepresse.

Thus shal ye geue an heueofferynge vnto the LORDE of all y^e riches, which ye take of the children of Israel, y^e ye maie geue the same heueofferynge of y^e LORDE, vnto Aaron y^e priest. And all y^e ye geue of y^e tythes, and ha-lowe vnto y^e LORDE for a gifte, y^e same shal be his of the best. And saye thou vnto them:
Whan ye thus haue vnto y^e fat therof, it shal be reueined vnto the Levites as the increace of the barne, and as the increace of the wine presse. And ye maye eate it in all places, ye y^e childre: for it is youre rewarde for you-re seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnessse: and ye shal not lade synne vpon you in the same, whan ye haue the fat therof, and vnhallowe not the halowed thinges of the children of Israel, and ye shal not dye.

The XIX. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron: This custome shal be a lawe, which the LORDE hath commaunded, and sayde: Speake vnto y^e children of Israel, y^e they brynge vnto y^e a reed cow with out spot, wherein is no blemyshe, and vpon wh^o
there came neuer yock: and ye shal geue her unto Eleasar the priest, which shal burne her without the hooste, and cause her to be slayne there before him.

And Eleasar y^e priest shal take of her be with his synger, and sprentle it seuen-met straighte toward the dore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and cause the cow to be burne before him, both hir synne and hir flesh, and hir bloude also with hir donge.
And the priest shal take Cedar wood and rose, and purple wolle, and cast it vpon the cow
as she burneth, and he shal washe his clothes, and bathe his body with water, and the goin to the hoost, and be vncleane vntill y^e eue.

And he that burneth her, shal wash his clothes also with water, and bathe his body in water, and be vncleane vntill y^e euen. And one y^e is cleane, shal gather vp the asshes of y^e cow, and poure them without the hoost in a cleane place, that they maye be kepte there, for sprentlinge water to the congregation of the childre of Israel, for it is a synofferyn-ge. And he that gathered vp the asshes of the cow, shal wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen. This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto y^e childre of Israel, and vnto
the strangers that dwell amonge you.

Who so now toucheth a deed ma, shal be vncleane seuen dayes: the same shal purifie himself here with, on the thirde daye and on the seuenth daie, and then shal he be cleane.
And yf he purifye not himself on the thirde daye, and on the seuenth daye, the shal be not be cleane. But wha any ma toucheth a deed personne, and wil not purifie himself, he defyleth the dwellinge of the LORDE, and the same soule shal be roted out of Israel, because the sprentlinge water is not sprentled vpon him: and he is vncleane, as long as he letteth not himself be pouged therof.

This is the lawe. Whan a ma dyeth in y^e tente, who so ever goeth in to the tente, and all y^e is in the tente, shal be vncleane seuen da-es. And every open vessel that hath no lydd nor couerynge, is vncleane. And who so toucheth one y^e is slayne wth the swerde vpon
y^e felde, or any other deed, or a deed mans bone, or a grave, y^e same is vncleane seuen dayes.

So now for the vncleane personne, they shal take of y^e asshes of this burnt synoffe-rynge, and put springinge water thereon in to a vessell, and a cleane man shal take y^e sops, and dyppe it in the water, and sprentle it vpon the tente, and vpon all the vessels, and all the soules that are therein. Likewyse also vpon him, y^e hath touched a deed mans bone, or a slayne personne, or a deed body, or a grave.

And he that is cleane, shal sprentle vpon
the vncleane, y^e thirde daye, and the seuenth daie, and purifye him on y^e seuenth daye. And he shal washe his clothes, and bathe him self wth water, and so at euen he shal be cleane.

But he y^e is vncleane, and wil not purifye himself, y^e same soule shal be roted out of y^e cōgregation. For he hath defyled the Sanctuary of the LORDE, and is not sprentled wth spritlinge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto the. And he y^e sprentled wth the sprentlinge water, shal wash his clothes also. And who so euer toucheth the sprentlinge water, shal be vncleane vntill the euen. And what so euer he toucheth, shal be vncleane: and loke what soule he toucheth, shal be vncleane vntill the euen.

The XX. Chapter.

And the childre of Israel came wth the whole cōgregation into the wildernesse of Sin in the first moneth, and the people abode at Cades. And there dyed Miriam, and was buried there. And the congrega-cion had no water, and they gathered them sel-ues together agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the people chode with Moses, and sayde: Wolde God y^e we had perished, whan oure brether perished before the LORDE. Wherfore haue ye broughte the congregation of the LORDE into this wildernes, y^e we shulde dye here with oure catell: And wherfore haue ye broughte vs out of Egipte in to this place, where men can not sowe, where are nerher sygges, ner vynes, ner pomgranates, and where there is no water to drynke?

And Moses and Aaron were fro the congregacion vnto y^e dore of y^e Tabernacle of wit-nesse, and fell vpon their faces. And the glory of the LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the staffe, and gather the cōgregation together, then and thy brother Aaron, and speake vnto the rocke before their eyes, and it shal geue his water. And thus shalt thou prouyde the water out of the rocke, and geue the congrega-cion drynke, and their catell also.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, as he commaunded him, and Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rocke, and sayde vnto the: Heare ye rebellions: Shal we prouyde you water out of this rocke? And Moses lift vp his hande, and smote y^e rocke wth the staffe two tymes. Then came y^e water out abundantly, so y^e the cōgregacion drank, and their catell also.

But the LORDE sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: Because ye belened me not, to sanctifye me before y^e childre of Israel, ye shal not bryn-ge this congregacion in to the londe that I shal geue the. This is y^e water of strife, where the children of Israel strone wth the LORDE and he was sanctified vpon them.

And Moses sent messengers fro Cades vnto y^e kynge of y^e Edomites: This worde sendeth the y^e brother Israel: Thou knowest all y^e trauayle that happened vnto vs, how that oure fathers wente downe in to Egipte, and how we haue dwelt in Egipte a longe tyme, and how the Egiptians deale euell with vs and our fathers. And we cryed vnto y^e LORDE which herde oure voyce, and sent his angell, and hath broughte vs out of Egipte: And be-holde, we are at Cades in y^e cite without the borders of y^e londe. O let vs go thorow thy londe, we wyl not go thorow y^e felde, ner vynyardes, ner drynke the water out of the fou-tynes. We wyl go the hye strete, and curne nether to y^e right hande ner to y^e lefte, cyll
we be come past y^e borders of thy countre.

But the Edomite answered him: Thou shal not go by me, or I wyl come agaynst y^e with y^e swerde. The children of Israel saide vnto him: We wil go y^e comd hye waye, and yf
we or oure catell drynke of thy water, we wil paye for it: we wil do nothinge, but passe tho-row on fote onely. But he sayde: Thou shalt not go thorow, And the Edomites came out agaynst them with a mightie people and a strōge hande. Thus y^e Edomites denied to grate Israel passage thorow the borders of the lande. And Israel turned awaye from them.

And the children of Israel brake vp fro Cades, and came vnto the whole congrega-cion vnto mount Hor. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron at mount Hor har-de vpon the coastes of y^e lande of y^e Edomites, and sayde: Let Aaron be gathered vnto his people: for he shal not come in to y^e lande y^e I haue geuen vnto y^e childre of Israel, because ye were disobedient vnto my mouth at the water of strife. Take Aaron and Eleasar and his sonne, and brynge them vp vnto mount Hor, and strype Aaron out of his ves-timentes, and put the vpon Eleasar his sonne and there shal Aaron be gathered (vnto his people) and dye.

Then dyd Moses as the LORDE commaunded him, and they wente vp vnto Mount Hor in y^e sight of the whole congregacion.
And Moses toke Aarons clothes, and put the vpon Eleasar his sonne. And Aaron dyed there, euen aboue vpon the mount. And Moses and Eleasar came downe from the mount.
And whan the whole congregacion sawe that Aaron was awaye, they mourned for him thirtie daies thowout the whole house of Israel.

The xxi. Chapter.

Now when Arad the kynge of the Canaanites (which dwelt toward the south) herde, that Israel came in by the waie of the spies had founde out, he sought agaynst Israel, and toke some of them prisoners. Then vowed Israel a vowe vnto the LORD, and sayde: If thou wilt geue this people vnder my hande, I will utterly destroye their cities. And the LORD herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Canaanites, and they utterly destroyed them with their cities also. And he called the place Horma.

Then departed they from mount Horon by waye toward the red see, that they might go aboute the lande of the Edomites. And the soules of the people faynted by the waie, and they spake agaynst God and agaynst Moses: Wherefore hast thou brought vs out of the lande of Egypt, to slaye vs in the wilderness? For here is neither bread nor water, and oure soules lothech this lighte meate.

Then sent the LORD fyre serpentes amonge the people, which bite the peple, so that there dyed moch people in Israel. Then came they vnto Moses, and sayde: We haue synned, because we haue spoken agaynst the LORD and agaynst the. Praye thou vnto the LORD, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moses prayed for the people.

Then sayde the LORD vnto Moses: Make the a brasen serpente, and sette it vp for a token. Who so euer is bitten, and lokech vpon it, shall lyue. Then made Moses a serpent of brasen, and set it vp for a token: and when a serpent had bitten any man, he behelde the brasen serpente, and recovered.

And the children of Israel departed, and pitched in Oboth. And from Oboth they wente on, and pitched in Ijim by Abarim in the wilderness ouer agaynst Moab, in the East hyde. From thence departed they, pitched by the ryuer of Sared. From thence departed they, and pitched on this side Arnon, which is in the wilderness, and cometh out of the coastes of the Amorites. In Arnon is the border betwixte Moab and the Amorites. Wherefore it is spoken in the booke of the warres of the LORD: And go with violence both on the ryuer of Arnon, and on the founteyne of the river, which boweth downwarde to dwell at Ar, and leaneth thereon, to be the border of Moab.

And from thence they came to the well. This is the well, wherof the LORD spake vnto Moses: gather the people together, I will geue them water. Then sange Israel this songe, and they sange one after another ouer the well: This is the well, that the prynces digged: the nobles amonge the people haue digged it thowout the teacher and their stauers.

And from this wilderness they wente vnto Mathana, and from Mathana vnto Nabaliel, and from Nabaliel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth vnto the valley that lieth in the felde of Moab at the toppe of Pisga, and turneth toward the wilderness.

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, and caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thowout thy lande, we will not turne in to thy felde, nor in to the vynyards: neither will we drynke the water of the welles, but by the strete wil we go, till we be past the borders of thy countre.

Howbeit Sihon wolde not geue the children of Israel licence to go thowout the coastes of his lande, but gathered all his people together, and wente out agaynst Israel in the wilderness. And when he came to Jahaza, he fought agaynst Israel. Neuertheless Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde, and conquered his lande from Arnon vnto Iaboc, and vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon were ströge. So Israel toke all those cities, and dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, namely at Hesbon, and in the townes belonginge therto. For Hesbon the cite was Sihons the kynge of the Amorites, and he had foughten before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his lande from him vntyll Arnon.

Wherefore it is sayde in the proverbe: Come vnto Hesbon, let vs buylde and prepare a cite of Sihon. For there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flamme from the cite of Sihon, which hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the citisens of the toppe of Arnon. And vnto the Moab, thou people of Camos art vndone. His sonnes are put to flighte, and his daughters brought captiue vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites. Their glory is come to naught from Hesbon vnto Dibon: waisted are they vnto Mediba, which reacheth vnto Mediba. Thus dwelt Israel in the lande of the Amorites.

And Moses sent out spies vnto Jahesar, and they toke the townes belonginge therto, and conquered the Amorites that were therein. And they turned, and wente vp the waye toward Basan. Then Og the kynge of Basan wete out agaynst them with all his people, to fight in Edrei. And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Feare him not, for I haue geuen him to his lande and people in thy hande, and thou shalt do with him, as thou wydest with Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him, and his sonnes, and all his people (so that there remayned none) and conquered the lande. Afterwarde wete the children of Israel, and pitched in the felde of Moab beyonde Iordane by Jericho.

The xxij. Chapter.

Now when Balac the sonne of Ziphor sawe all that Israel had done vnto the Amorites, and that the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people (he was so greate) and that the Moabites stode in feare of the children of Israel, he sayde vnto the Elders of the Madianites: Now shall this heape lycke vp all that is aboute vs, euē as an oxe licketh vp the grasse in the felde. (And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.)

And he sent out messengers vnto Balaam the sonne of Beor, which was an interpreter. (The same dwelt by the water of the lande of the children of his people) that they shulde call him, and he caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, there is come out of Egypt, a people, which couereth the face of the earth, and lyeth ouer agaynst me. Come now therefore, and curse me this people, for they are to myghtie for me, yf peradventure I might be able to smyte them, and to dryne them out of the lande. For I wote, that whom thou blessest, he is blessed: and whom thou cursest, he is cursed.

And the Elders of the Moabites wente on with the Elders of the Madianites, and had the rewarde of the fourth sayenge in their handes, and they came vnto Balaam, and tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he saide vnto the: Tary here all night, and I will bringe ge you worde agayne, euē as the LORD shall saye vnto me. So the prynces of the Moabites abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam, and sayde: What men are these, which are with thee? Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites hath sent vnto me: Beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt, and couereth the face of the earth, come now therefore, and curse me this people, that I maye be able to smyte them, and to dryne them out. But God sayde vnto Balaam: Go not with them, and curse not that people, for they are blessed.

Then rose Balaam vp in the mornyng, and sayde vnto the prynces of Balac: Get you vnto youre lande, for the LORD will not suffer me to go with you.

And the prynces of the Moabites gat the vp, came to Balac, and saide: Balaam refuseth to come to vs. Then sent Balac yet a greater company of prynces, and more honorable than they. When they came to Balaam, they tolde him: Balac the sonne of Ziphor sendeth thee this worde: Wherfore wilt thou not come vnto me, for I will promote thee vnto hye honoure, and wil do what so euer thou sayest vnto me. Come I praye thee, curse me this people.

Balaam answered, and sayde vnto the seruantes of Balac: If Balac wolde geue me his house full of silver and golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde the worde of the LORD my God, to do litle or greate. Neuertheles tary ye here this night, and I maye wete, what the LORD will saye more vnto me. Then came God to Balaam by night, and saide vnto him: If the men are come to call thee, get thee vp then, and go with them: but what I shall saye vnto thee, that shalt thou do.

Then rose Balaam vp in the mornyng, and saddled his Asse, and wente with the prynces of the Moabites. But the wrath of God waxed whote, because he wete. And the angell of the LORD stode in the waye, to withstode him. But he rode vpon his Asse, and two seruantes to him. And the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD standing in the waye, and his swerde drawen in his hande. And the Ass turned a syde out of the waye, and wente in to the felde. But Balaam smote her, that she shulde go in the waye.

Then stode the angell of the LORD in the waye by the vynyardes, where there were walles on both the sydes. And when the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD, she wrenched vnto the wall, and thrust Balaams fore vnto the wall. And he smote her agayne. The while the angell of the LORD farther, and stode in a narrow place, where there was no waye to turne, nether to the righte hande ner to the left. And when the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD, she fell downe vnder Balaam. Then was Balaams wiach furious, and smote the Ass with a staffe.

Then opened the LORD the mouth of the Ass, and she sayde vnto Balaam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smitten me now thre tymes? Balaam sayde vnto the Ass: Because thou hast mocked me. Oh the Ass! I had a swerde now in my hande, I wolde kill the. The Ass sayde vnto Balaam: Am not I thine Ass, which thou hast rydden vpon in the tyme vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? he sayde: No.

Then opened the LORD the eyes of Balaam, and he sawe the angell of the LORD standing in the waye, and a drawen swerde in his hande. And he enclined him selfe, and bowed downe to his face. And the angell of the LORD sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou smitten thine Ass now thre tymes? Beholde, I am come out to resiste the, for the waye is forward, and contrary vnto me. And the Ass sawe me, and auoyded from me thre tymes: or els yf she had not turned asyde fro me, I had slayne the, and saved the Ass alyue.

Then sayde Balaam vnto the angell of the LORD: I have synned, for I wist not, that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. And now yf it displeaseth the, I wil turne agayne. The angell of the LORD saide vnto him: Go with the me: but thou shalt speake nothinge els, then that I shal saye vnto the. So Balaam wente forth to the princes of Balac. When Balac herde that Balaam came, he wente out to meete him (in the cite of the Moabites, which lieth on the coaste of Arnon, which is on the uttermost border) and sayde vnto him: Dyd not I sende for the to call the? Wherefore camest thou not then vnto me? Thinkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? Balaam answered him: Lo, I am come vnto the. But how can I saye any thinge els, then that God putteth in my mouth? I must speake. So Balaam wente with Balac, and they came vnto the cite on the uttermost border of his lande. And Balac slew oxen and shepe, and sent for Balaam, and for the princes that were with him.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And in the morninge, Balac toke Balaam, and they wente vnto the hye place of Baal, that from thence he might see vnto the uttermost parte of the people. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Buylde me here seven altars, and prouyde me here seven bullockes, and seven rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayde. And both Balac and Balaam offered, on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Stand thou by, and burne offerynge, I wil go, yf happily the LORD wil mee me, and call me, and I maye tell the, what so euer he sheweth me. And he wente his waye, as he sayde.

And the LORD mette Balaam. And Balaam saide vnto him: Seven altars haue I prepared, and offered on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORD put the word in Balaams mouth, and sayde: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wise. And when he came agayne vnto him, beholde, he stode by his burntofferynge, with all the princes of the Moabites.

Then toke he vp his parable, and sayde: Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath caused to seme out of Syria from the mostaynes toward the East, (and sayde) Come, curse me Jacob: come, desyre me Israel. How shall I curse, whom God curseth not? How shall I desyre, whom the LORD desyeth not? For I sit in the coppe of the stonye rockes, I see him, and from the hilles I beholde him. Beholde, the people shall dwell by the selues, and shal not be reckoned amonge the heithen. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel? My soule is of death, and of righteousnes, and my ende be as the ende of these.

Then saide Balac vnto Balaam: What doest thou vnto me? I caused to see the, that thou curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou blessest the. He answered and saide: Must I not kepe, and speake that which the LORD putteth in to my mouth? Balac saide vnto him: Come with me yet vnto another place, fro whence thou mayest see the uttermost parte of them, and not see them all, and curse me them there.

And he toke him vp to a free place, and wente to the toppe of Pisga, and buylde seven altars, and offered on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. And he sayde vnto Balac: Stand beside by thy burntofferynge, whyle I go yonder. And the LORD mette Balaam, and put the worde in his mouth, and sayde: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wise. And when he came to him agayne, beholde, he stode by his burntofferynge with the princes of the Moabites. And Balac sayde vnto him: What hath the LORD sayde?

And he toke vp his parable, and sayde: As ye see vnto Balac, and heare, make my testimony in thine eares, thou some of Ephor. God is not a man, that he shulde lye, ner a mans childe, that he eny thinge shulde repente him. Shulde he saye and not do? Shulde he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I am broughte hither to blesse, I blesse, and can not go backe there fre. There is no weerynesse sene in Jacob, neither eny labour in Israel. The LORD his God is with him, and the kynges trompet is amonge the. God hath broughte the out of Egypte, his strength is as of an unicorn. For there is no Soicrye in Jacob, and no Soicrye saye in Israel. When the tyme cometh, it shal be saide vnto Jacob, and to Israel, what God doeth. Beholde, the people shall rise vp as a Lyoness, and heue vp him selfe as a Lyon. He shal not lye downe, tyll he eate of the pray, and drynke the bloude of the slayne.

Then sayde Balac vnto Balaam: Thou shalt neither curse him, ner blesse him. Balaam answered, and sayde vnto Balac: Haue I not tolde the: All that the LORD speake, that I must do? Balac saide vnto him: Oh come, I wil bringe the to another place, yf it maye happily please God, that thou mayest curse the there. And he broughte him vp to the toppe of mount Peor, and boweth toward the wyldernes. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Buylde me here seven altars, and prouyde me seven bullockes and seven rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayde, and offered on every altare a bullocke and a ramme.

The XXIIII. Chapter.

And when Balaam sawe that it pleased the LORD, that he shulde blesse Israel, he wente not as he dyd before, to see witches, but set his face straight toward the wyldernes, lifte vp his eyes, and sawe Israel, how they laye accordinge to their trybes, and the spere of God came vpon him, and he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man whose eyes are opened: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, which sawe the vision of the Almighty: which fell downe, and his eyes were opened.

How goodly are thy tentes O Jacob, and thy habitacions O Israel: Euen as the brode valleys, as the gardens by the waters syde, as the tentes which the LORD hath piactured, and as the Cedar trees vpon the water. The water shal flowe out of his boter, and his sede shal be a greete water. His kynge shal be hyer then Agag, and his kyngdome shal be exalted. God hath broughte hi out of Egypte, his strength is as of an unicorn. He shal eate vp the heithen his enemies, and grynde their bones to poulder, and shute thow downe as a Lyon and as a Lyoness. Who wyll raise him vp? Blessed be he, that blesseth the: and cursed, that curseth the.

Then was Balac furious with wrath agaynst Balaam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto him: I haue called the, and thou shuldest curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou hast blesseth the now thre tymes: and now get the hede to the place. I thoughte that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but the LORD hath kepte the backe from that worshippe.

Balaam answered him: Tolde not I the messengers (whom thou sendest vnto me) and sayde: If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde the worde of the LORD, to do either euill or good after myne owne herte: but what the LORD speake, that must I speake also. And now beholde, for so moch as I go to my people, come therefore, I wyll shewe the what this people shal do vnto the people after this tyme.

And he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man, whose eyes are opened: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, and which hath the knowledge of the hyest, euen he that sawe the vision of the Almighty, and fell downe, and his eyes were opened: I shal see him, but not now: I shal beholde him, but not nie at hande. There shal a starre come out of Jacob, and a cepter shal come vp out of Israel, and shal smyte the rulers of the Moabites, and overcome all the chyldren of Seth.

Edom shal be his possession, and Seir shal be his enemies possessiō, but Israel shal do manfully. Out of Jacob shal come he that hath dominion, and shal destroye the remnant of the cities.

And when he sawe the Amalechites, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Amalec the first amonge the heithen, but at last thou shalt perish utterly. And when he sawe the Kenites, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Sitt ge is y dwellinge, and on a rocke hast thou put thy nest, neuertheles thou shalt be a burminge vnto Ayn, tyll Assur take y prisoner. And he toke vp his parable agayne, & sayde: Alas, who shal lye, whā God doeth this? And shippes out of Citim shall subdue Assur and Eber. He him self also shal perishe utterly. And Balaam gat him vp, and departed, and came agayne vnto his place, and Balac wente his waye also.

The XXV. Chapter.

Unto Israel dwelt in Sittim, and the people beganne to commytte whoredomes with the daughters of the Moabites, which called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddes. And the people ate and worshipped their goddes, and Israel submytted him self vnto Baal peor. Then the wrath of the LORDE waxed whore vpon Israel, and he sayde vnto Moses: Take all the rulers of the people, and hange them vp vnto the LORDE agaynst y Sonne, that the terrible wrath of the LORDE maye be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: Every man slaye his capteyne, that haue submytted them selues vnto Baal peor.

B And beholde, one of the childre of Israel wete in agaynst his brether, & loyned him self to a Madiamitish womā, in y sighte of Moses & of the whole cōgregation of y childre of Israel, which weped before the dore of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. Whan Phineas y sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest sawe y, he rose vp out of the cōgregation, & toke a swerde in his hande, & wente after the man of Israel into the whore house, & thrust the thore w, both the man of Israel and the woman, enē thorew the bely of her. Then ceased the plague from the children of Israel, and there were slayne in the plague foure and twenty thousande.

C And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, & saide: Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest, hath turned my wrath awaye from the childre of Israel thorew his gelousy for my sake amonge them, y I shulden not cōsume the childre of Israel in my gelousy. Wherefore saye beholde, I geue him my cōvenant of peace, and he shal haue it, & his seed after him, enē the cōvenant of an everlastinge presthode, because he was gelous for his Gods sake, and made an attonement for the children of Israel.

The man of Israel that was slayne with the Madiamitish woman, was called Simri the sonne of Salu, a capteyne of the house of the father of the Simeonites. The Madiamitish woman also that was slayne, was called Cosbi, y daughter of Bar, which was a ruler of the people of a kynred amonge the Madiamites.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Vere the Madiamites, & smyte them, for they haue vexed you with their wyles, whereby they haue bigyled you thorew Peor, and thorew their sister Cosbi the daughter of a capteyne of y Madiamites, which was slayne in the daye of the plague, for Peors sake, and the plague came after.

The XXVI. Chapter.

Unto whan the giltie bloude was shed, the LORDE sayde vnto Moses & vnto Eleasar y sonne of Aaron y prest: Take the summe of the whole cōgregation of the childre of Israel from twentye years & aboue, after thair fathers houses, all y are able to go forth to the warre in Israel. And Moses & Eleasar the prest spake vnto them (in the felde of the Moabites besyde Jordan) ouer agaynst Jericho manly vnto all the that were twentye years olde & aboue, as the LORDE cōmanded Moses. And these are y childre of Israel, that came out of Egypte.

This is the summe of the children of Israel: sixe hundred thousande, a thousande seven hundred and thirtie.

And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Vnto these shalst thou denybe the lode to in iij inheritance, according to the nombre of names. To many shalt thou geue the more inheritance, and to few the lesse, vnto every one shall be geue according to their nombre: yet shall the lande be deuyled by lott. According to y names of the trybes of their fathers shall they enheret it: for after the lott shalt thou deuyle their inheritance, both betwixte many and fewe.

And this is the summe of the Leuites in their tymes. Gerson: of whom cometh the tymed of the Gersonites. Rahath: of whos cometh the tymed of the Rahathites. Merari: of whom cometh y tymed of y Merarites. These are y tymes of Levi, the tymed of y Libnites, y tymed of y Hebronites, y tymed of the Mahalites, y tymed of the Musites, the tymed of the Corahites.

Rahath begat Amram. And Amrams wife was called Jochebed a daughter of Levi, which was borne him in Egypt: And vnto Amram she bare Aaron y y. Ioses, y Miriam their sister. And vnto Aaron were borne Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar y Jehamar. As for Nadab y Abihu, they dyed, when they offered straunge fyre before y LORDE. And the summe of the was thie y twentye thousande, all males fro fyue monethes y aboue. For they were not nombred amonge the children of Israel, for there was no inheritance geuen the amonge the children of Israel.

This is y summe of y childre of Israel, whos Moses y Eleasar the prest nombred in the felde of the Moabites besyde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho: Amonge whom there was not one of the summe of those children of Israel, whom Moses y Aaron the prest nombred in the wilderness of Sinai. For y LORDE sayde vnto the, y they shulde dye in the wilderness. And there was not one of them leste, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune and Josua the sonne of Nun.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Vnto the daughters of y Zelaphead y sonne of Zepher y sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, amonge the tymes of Manasse the sonne Joseph (whose names were, Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Milca, y Thirza) came y stode before Moses y Eleasar the prest, y before the rulers y the whole congregacion, even before the doore of y Tabernacle of witnesse, y sayde: Our father is dead in the wilderness, y was not in the company of them y rose vp agaynst y LORDE in the congregacion of Corah: but dyed in his awne synne, and had no sonnes. Wherefore shulde o' fathers name pe risethen amonge his tymes, though he we no sonne? Geue vs a possession also amonge our fathers brethren.

Moses brought their cause before y LORDE. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: The daughters of Zelaphead haue spote right. Thou shalt geue the a possession to inher amonge their fathers brethren, y shalt geue their fathers inheritance vnto them. And saye vnto the childre of Israel: When a man dyeth y hath no sonne, ye shall turne his inheritance vnto his daughter. If he haue no daughter, ye shal geue it vnto his brethren. If he haue no brethren, ye shal geue it vnto his fathers brethren. If he haue no fathers brethren, ye shal geue it vnto his nexte kynfolke which beloge vnto him in his tymes, y they maye possesse it. This shalbe an ordinance and a perpetuall lawe vnto the children of Israel, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Ge the vp in to this mount Abarim, y beholde the lode, which I shal geue vnto the childre of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto y people. As Aaron y brother was gathered: for ye were disobedient vnto my worde in the wilderness of Sin, in y strife of the congregacion, when ye shulde haue sanctified me, thowow the water before them. This is the water of stryfe at Cades in the wilderness of Sin.

And Moses spake vnto the LORDE y sayde: O let the LORDE God of the spirces of all flesh set a man ouer the congregacion, which maye go in y out before them, y to leade the one y in, y the congregacion of the LORDE be not as the shepe without a shepherd.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take vnto the Josua the sonne of Nun, which is a man in whom is the spire, and putte his handes vpon him, y set him before Eleasar the prest, and before the whole congregacion, and geue him a charge in their sightes, y beutyfy him with thy bewty, that the whole congregacion of the children of Israel maye be obediēt vnto him. And he shal stonde before Eleasar the prest, which shal be counsell for him after the maner of the lighte, before the LORDE. At the mouth of him shall both he and all the children of Israel with him, and the whole congregacion go in and out.

Moses dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, y toke Josua, and set him before Eleasar the prest, and before all the congregacion, and layed his handes vpon him, and gaue him a charge, as the LORDE sayde vnto Moses.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

Vnto the LORDE spake vnto Moses, y sayde: Comaunde y childre of Israel, y saye vnto the: The offeringe of my bled which is my offeringe of the swete sauoure, shal ye kepe in his due season, that ye maie offre vnto me. And saye vnto the: These are the offeringes that ye shal offre vnto the LORDE: Lambes of a yeare olde which are without blemyshe, every daye two for a daylie burnt offeringe: the one lambe in the moynge, the other at euen. And thereto a tenth deale of an Ephra of fyne floure for a meat offeringe, myngled with beate oyle of the fourth parte of an Hin, this is a daylie burnt offeringe, which ye offered vpon mount Sinai, for a swete sauoure of a sacrifice vnto the LORDE: And the drynt offeringe of the same, y fourth parte of an Hin to a lambe, and this shalbe poured in the Sanctuary for a giste vnto the LORDE. The other lambe shalte thou prepare at euen (like as the meat offeringe in the moynge) y the drynt offeringe therof, for a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

On the Sabbath daye, two lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe, y two tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle, y the drynt offeringe therof. This is the burnt offeringe of every Sabbath, besyde the daylie burnt offeringe, whis drynt offeringe.

And on the first daye of youre monethes ye shal offre a burnt offeringe vnto y LORDE: two yonge bullockes, a ramme, seuen lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe, and allwaye thie tenth deales of fyne floure for a meat offeringe myngled with oyle vnto every bullocke: two tenth deales of fyne floure for a meat offeringe myngled with oyle vnto the ramme: and a tenth deale of fyne floure for a meat offeringe myngled with oyle vnto every lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of a swete sauoure, a sacrifice vnto y LORDE.

And their drynt offeringes shalbe, half an Hin of wyne vnto every bullocke, the thirde parte of an Hin to the ramme, y fourth parte of an Hin to every lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of every moneth in the yeare. There shalbe offered an he goate also for a syn offeringe vnto the LORDE, to the daylie burnt offeringe with his drynt offeringe.

And on the fourtene daye of the first moneth is the Easter vnto the LORDE, and on the systene daye of the same moneth is the feast. Seuen dayes shal vnleuened bled be eaten. The first daye shalbe an holy conuocation: To serule worke shal ye do therein, and ye shal offre a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE: two yonge bullockes, one ramme, seuen lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe, with their meat offeringe: thie tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle to eicher bullocke, and two tenth deales to the ramme, and one tenth deale to every lambe amonge the seuen lambes. And an he goate for a syn offeringe, to make an attonement for you. And these shal ye offre in the moynge, besydes the burnt offeringe, which is a daylie burnt offeringe. After this maner shal ye offre y bled every daye seuen dayes longe for an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE, to the daylie burnt offeringe, and drynt offeringe also. And the seuenth daye shal be called an holy conuocation with you: no serule worke shal ye do therein.

And the daye of the fyft frutes (wha ye offre the meat offeringe of the moneth vnto y LORDE in youre wetes) shal be an holy conuocation also: To worke of bondage shal ye do therein. And ye shal offre a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE: two yonge bullockes, a ramme, seuen lambes of a yeare olde, with their meat offeringes: thie tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle to every bullocke, two tenth deales to the ramme, and one tenth deale to every lambe of the seuen lambes. And an he goate to make an attonement for you. This shal ye do, besydes y daylie burnt offeringe with his meat offeringe and his drynt offeringe. Without blemyshe shal they be all.

The XXX. Chapter.

Vnto the fyft daye of the seuenth moneth shal be with you an holy conuocation. To serule worke shal ye do therein, for it is the daye of youre trumpet blowinge. And ye shal offre a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE: a yonge bullocke, a ramme, seuen lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe. And their meat offerings: thie tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle to the bullocke, two tenth deales to the ramme, and one tenth deale vnto every lambe of y seuen lambes. An he goate also for a syn offeringe, to make an attonement for you, besydes y burnt offeringe of y moneth y his meat offeringe, y besydes y daylie burnt offeringe with his meat offeringe y with their drynt offeringes, according to the maner of the for a swete te said. This is a sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

 The tenth daye of this seventh moneth shalbe an holy conuocation to you also, and ye shal humble youre soules, and do no seruy
 le worke therein, but offre a burnt offeringe

These thinges shal ye do vnto 3 LORDE in youre feastes, besyde that ye vowe and ge ue of a freewill for burnt offeringes, meat of feringes, drynt offeringes and healt offeringes.
 And Moses tolde the children of Is rael all that the LORDE commaunded him.

The xxx. Chapter.

And Moses spake vnto the rulers of 3
 the trybes of the children of Israel and saide: This is it that the LORDE
 hath commaunded: If any man make a vowe vnto the LORDE, or sweare an oath, so that he binde his soule, he shal not breake his wor de, but do all that is proceeded out of his mouth.

If a damsell make a vowe vnto 3 LOR
DE, and bynde herself, whyle she is in hir fathers house, and unmarried, and hir vowe or bonde that she maketh ouer hir soule, commeth to hir fathers eares, z he holde his peace thereto, the all hir voves z bondes 3

 she hath boude hir self withall ouer hir sou le, shal stonde in effecte. But yf hir father for byd her 3 same daye that he heareth it, the shal no vowe ner bonde that she hath bou de hir self withall ouer hir soule, be of vay
 le. And the LORDE shalbe mercifull vnto her, for so moch as hir father forbade her.

If she haue an husbände, z hath a vowe upon her, or yf she haue letten go out of hir lippes a bonde ouer hir soule, z hir husbände heare it, z holde his peace therat, the same daye that he heareth it, then hir vowe z bon de wherewith she hath boude hir self ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effecte. But yf hir hus bände forbyd her the same daye that he hea reth it, the is the vowe lowse 3 she hath vpo hir, z the bonde also that she hath letten go out of hir lippes ouer hir soule, and the LOR
DE shalbe gracious vnto her.

The vowe of a wyddowe, z of her 3 is deuorced, all 3 she byndeth hir self withall ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effecte vpo her.

If she vowe in hir husbādes house, or bin de hir self to an oath ouer hir soule, z hir hus bände heare it, z holde his peace thereto, and forbydeth it not, the shal all 3 same vowe, z all 3 she hath boude hir self to all ouer hir soule, stonde in effecte. But yf hir husbāde dis annulle it, 3 same daye 3 he heareth it, the is it of no value 3 is proceeded out of hir lip pes, which she hath vowed or boude ouer hir soule: for hir husbāde hath made it lowse, z the LORDE shalbe gracious vnto her. And all voves z othes 3 byndeth to humble 3 sou le, maie hir husbāde stablish or breake, thus If he holde his peace thereto fro one daie to another, then stablisheth he all hir voves z bondes, 3 she hath vpon her, because he hel de his peace, the same daye 3 he herde the.
 But yf he disannulle the after 3 he hath her de the, then shal he take awaie hir misdebe.

These are the statutes 3 the LORDE co mmaunded Moses betwene a man z his wife,
 z betwene the father z his doughter, whyle
 she is yet a damsell in hir fathers house.

The xxxi. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z saide: Auenge the childre of Israel of the Madianites, 3 thou mayest afterwarde be gathered vnto 3 people. The spake Mo ses vnto the people, z saide: Harnessse some men amonge you to the warre agaynst the Madianites (3 they maye auenge 3 LORDE vpon the Madianites) out of euery trybe a thousande, 3 out of euery trybe of Israel ye maye sende some to the battayll. And from amonge the thousandes of Israel they toke one thousande out of euery tribe, even twelue thousande prepared vnto the battayll. And Moses sent them with Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest in to the battayll, and the holy vessels and 3 trompettes to blowe in his hande.

And they fought agaynst 3 Madianites
 as 3 LORDE commaunded Moses, z slew all 3 males, z the kynge of the Madianites slew they also amonge the other that were slaine namely, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur and Reba, the fyue kynge of the Madianites. And they 3 slew Balaam the sonne of Beor to the swer
 de. And 3 children of Israel toke the women of the Madianites prisoners, z their childre:
 all their catell, all their substance, and all their goodes spoiled they, and all their cities of their dwellinges z castels burnt they to fyre. And they toke all 3 spoyle, z all 3 they coude cathe men z catell, and brought the vnto Moses z to Eleasar the prest, and to 3 congregacion of the children of Israel (na mely 3 prisoners, and the catell 3 were take, and the good that was spoiled) in to the hooft in the felde of the Moabites, which lyeth besyde Iordane ouer against Jericho.

And Moses and Eleasar the prest and all the captaynes of 3 congregacion, wete out of the hooft to mete the. And Moses was an grie at the officers of the hooft, which were capteynes ouer thousandes and hundreds, 3 came from the battayll, and sayde vnto the:
 Hane ye saved all 3 women alyue? Beholde,
 3 haue not they (thorow Balaams busynes) turned away 3 childre of Israel to synne a gaynst the LORDE vpo Peor, z their came a plague ouer the whole congregacion of 3 LOR
DE: To wetherfore slaine all the males amonge
 3 childre, z kyll all 3 women 3 haue knowne men z lyen to them. But all the women chil dren 3 haue knowne no mē ner lien to them, kepe those alyue for youre selues. And lodge ye without the hooft, all 3 haue slayne any man, or touched the slayne, that on the thir
 de and seventh daie ye maie purifie yō selues and those whom ye haue taken prisoners.
 And all the clothes, and all stuffe that is ma de of skynnes, and all maner furre, and all vessels of wod shal ye purifie.

And Eleasar the prest sayde vnto 3 cap taines of the hooft, 3 wente out to the bat tayll: This is the statute of the lawe, which the LORDE commaunded Moses: Golde, silver brasse, yron, tynne and leed, and all that suf feth the fyre, shal ye cause to go thorow the fyre, and clense it, that it maye be purified with 3 sprenglynge water. As for all soch as suffreth not the fyre, ye shal cause it to go thorow 3 water, and shal washe y^e clothes vpon the seventh daye, and the shall ye be cleane. After that shall ye come in to the hooste.

3 Mac. 9. c

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the summe of the spoyle of those that are taken, both of women and of cattell, thou and Eleasar the prest, and the chiefe fathers of the congregacion, and geue 3 halfe vnto those that toke the warre vpon them, and wente out to the battayll, and 3 other halfe to the congregacion. And of the men of warre that wente out to 3 battayll, thou shalt geue vnto the LORDE one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women, oxen, Asses and shepe: Of their halfe parte shalt thou take it, and geue it vnto Eleasar the prest for an heueofferynge vnto the LORDE. But of the children of Israels halfe parte, thou shalt take one heade of fyftee, both of the women, oxen, Asses and shepe, and of all the cattell, and shalt geue them vnto the Levites, that wayte vpon the habitacio of the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar the prest dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And the spoyle and praye which 3 men of warre had spoyle, was sixe hundred thousande and fyue and seuentye thousande shepe, two and seuentye thousande oxen, one and thre score thousande Asses: and the women 3 had knowne no manner lye to them, were two and thre thousande soules.

And the halfe parte which belonged vnto them that wente to the warre, was in nombre thre hundred thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, and fyue hundred shepe: of the which the LORDE had sixe hundred, and fyue and seuentye shepe. Item sixe and thirtie thousande oxen: wherof the LORDE had two and seuentye. Item thirtie thousande and fyue hundred Asses: wherof the LORDE had one and thre score. Item sixtene thousande soules of women: wherof the LORDE had two and thirtie. And Moses gaue this heueofferynge of the LORDE vnto Eleasar the prest, as the LORDE commaunded him.

As for the other halfe which Moses deuyled vnto the children of Israel fro 3 men of warre (namely 3 halfe that fell to the congregacion) it was also thre hundred thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, and fyue hundred shepe, sixe and thirtie thousande oxen, thirtie thousande and fyue hundred Asses, and sixtene thousande women soules.

And of this halfe of the childre of Israel to Moses one of every fyftee, both of the cattell and of the women, and gaue them vnto 3 Levites, that waited vpon the habitacio of the LORDE, as 3 LORDE commaunded Moses.

And the captaines ouer 3 thousandes of the hoost, namely they that were ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, came forth vnto Moses, and sayde vnto him: Thy seruantes haue taken 3 summe of 3 men of warre, that were vnder oure hande, and there lacked us one: therfore brynge we a present vnto the LORDE, what every one hath founde of Jewels of golde, chernes, bracelets, rynges, and earches, that oure soules may be reconyled before the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar 3 prest toke of them 3 golde of all maner ornaments. And all the golde of the heueofferynge that they shewed vnto the LORDE, was sixe thousande and seuen hundred and fifty Syckles, of the captaines ouer thousandes and hundredes. For loke what every one had spoyle, that was his awne. And Moses and Eleasar the prest toke the golde of the captaines ouer thousandes and hundredes, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of witness for a remembraunce of the children of Israel before the LORDE.

The XXXII. Chapter.

The children of Ruben and the children of Gad had an exceeding grete multitude of cattell, and sawe the lande of Jafer and Gilead 3 it was a good place for cattell, and came and spake vnto Moses and to Eleasar the prest, and to the captaines of the congregacion: The lande of Atroth, Dibon, Jafer, Timra, Heshb, Elele, Seban, Nebo, and Beon, which the LORDE hath mete lande for cattell, and thy seruantes haue many cattell. And they sayde moore: For we haue founde fauoure before the, the geue thy seruantes this lande in possession, and we wyl not go ouer Jordane.

Moses sayde vnto them: Your brethren shall go to the warre, and wyl ye tary here? Wherfore turne ye 3 herdes of the childre of Israel, that they shulde not go ouer into the lande that the LORDE shall geue them? Thus dyd your fathers also, whan Israel them out from Cades Bernea, to spye out the lande. And whan they were come vnto the uer of Escol, and sawe 3 lande, they turned the herdes of the children of Israel, so that they wolde not into the lande which 3 LORDE wolde haue geuen them.

And the LORDE was wroth at the same tyme, and sayde: These men 3 are come out of Egypte, from twetye yeare olde and aboue, shall not se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholly folowed me: saine Caleb 3 sonne of Jephune 3 Kenisite, and Josua 3 sonne of Nun: for they haue wholly folowed 3 LORDE. So the LORDE was wroth at Israel, and let the wander in the wilderness fourty yeares, tyll all 3 generacion 3 had done euill before the LORDE, was consumed.

And beholde, ye are risen vp in your fathers steade, to increase the nombre of synfull men, and to augmente yet the wrath and indignacion of the LORDE agaynst Israel. For yf ye returne you backe from folowinge him, he shal yet leaue them more in the wilderness, and so shal ye destroye all this people.

Then stepte they to him, and sayde: we wyl buylde shepesholde here for oure shepe and cattell, and cities for 3 children: As for oure selues, we wyl go ready armed before the children of Israel, tyll we haue broughte them vnto their place: Our childre shal remayne in the fenced cities, because of 3 indwellers of the lande. We wyl not turne home agayne, tyll the children of Israel haue taken every one his inheritaunce in possession: for we wyl not inheret with them beyonde Jordane: for 3 inheritaunce shal fall vnto vs vpon this syde Jordane Eastwarde.

Moses sayde vnto them: If ye wil do this, that ye wil harness your selues to the warre before the LORDE, then go ouer Jordane before the LORDE, who so euer is harnesssed amonge you, tyll he haue dryuen out his enemies before his face, and vntyll the lande be subdued before the LORDE, then shal ye returne, and be vngiltye before the LORDE, and before Israel, so shal ye haue this lande in possession before the LORDE. But yf ye wil not do so, beholde, ye shal offende agaynst the LORDE, and be sure, that your synne shal fynde you out. Buylde cities now therfore for your children, and shepesholde and stalles for your shepe and cattell, and do as ye haue spoken.

The childre of Gad, and the childre of Ruben sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruantes shal do as my lord hath commaunded. Our children, wyues, substance, and all 3 cattell, shal be in 3 cities of Gilead. But we 3 seruantes wyl go all harnesssed for the warre vnto battle before 3 LORDE, as my lord hath saide.

The Moses commaunded Eleasar 3 prest and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the chiefe fathers of the tribes of the childre of Israel, and saide vnto them: If the childre of Gad and the childre of Ruben go ouer Jordane to you, all prepared to fight before the LORDE, and whan the lande is subdued vnto y^e, the geue them the lande of Gilead in possession. But yf they go not ouer with y^e, harness, then shal they inheret to y^e in 3 lode of Canaan.

The children of Gad and the children of Ruben answered, and sayde: As 3 LORDE hath spoken vnto 3 seruantes, so wyl we do: we wil go harnesssed before the LORDE in to 3 lode of Canaan, and possesse oure inheritaunce on this syde Jordane.

So Moses gaue vnto 3 children of Gad and to the children of Ruben, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, 3 kyngdome of Sihon kyng of the Amorites and the kyngdome of Og the kyng of Basan, the lande with the cities therof in all 3 coastes of 3 countre rounde aboute. The 3 children of Gad buylde Dibon, Atroth, Argor, Atroth, Sophan, Jafer, and Jegaheba, Bethnimra, and Zetharan, stronge fenced cities, and shepe foldes. The children of Ruben buylde Heshb, Eleale, Atriathaim, Nebo, Baal Meon, and turned 3 names, and Sibamas and gaue names vnto 3 cities which they buylde. And 3 children of Machir the sonne of Manasse wente in to Gilead, and conquered it, and dyne out the Amorites 3 were therin. Then Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir 3 sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therin. Jair 3 sonne of Manasse wente and conquered the villages therof, and called them Hauror, Jair. Tobah wente, and esquired Kenaz, with the townes belonginge thereto, and called it Tobah, after his awne name.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

These are 3 iourneys of the childre of Israel, which wete out of 3 lande of Egypte according to their armies, 3 Moses and Aarō. And Moses wrote their gage out as they iourneyed, after 3 commaundment of 3 LORDE. And these (namely) are the iourneys of their outgoinge. They departed fro Raamses vpon 3 fiftene daye of the first moneth (even the morow after the Easter) thorow an hye hande, so that all the Egipcians sawe, and buried then their firstborne, whom the LORDE had slayne amonge them: for the LORDE executed iudgment also vpon their goddes. Whan they were departed from Raamses, they pitched in Succoth. And fro Succoth they departed, and pitched their tentes in Etha, which lyeth in 3 edge of 3 wilderness. Fro Etha they departed,

Then wil it come to passe, that I shal do vnto you euen as I thought to do vnto them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde the childre of Israel, and saie vnto them: Whā ye come into the londe of Canaan, the londe ⁊ falleth to youre inheritance, shall haue borders in the londe of Canaan. The South quarter shall begynne at the wyldernes of Sin by Edom, sochat youre South quarter be from the edge of the Salt see, which lyeth toward the South: and that ⁊ same quarter for a compasse from the South vnto ⁊

crabim, ⁊ go thoroꝝ Zimma: ⁊ that his outgonge be from the South vnto Cades Barnea, ⁊ reache vnto Hazor Adar, and go thoroꝝ Azmona, and stretch out from Azmona vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and that the ende therof be at the greatesee.

But the West quarter shal be this: name lyche greatesee, let ⁊ be youre boier toward the West.

B The North quarter shal be this: Ye shall compasse from the greatesee vnto mount Hor. And from mount Hor ye shall compasse tyll a man come vnto Hemath, that the outgonge therof be the coast of Zedada, and that the boier of the same go out vnto Siphon, and that the goynge out of it be at Hazor Enan. Let this be youre North quarter.

And youre East quarter shall ye compasse from Hazor Enan vnto Sephan, ⁊ let the coaste go downe from Sephan and Ribla on the East syde of Ain. The let it go downe, ⁊ reache vnto the syde of the see of Chinnereth Eastwarde, and come downe by Jordane, so ⁊ the goynge out of it be the Salt see. Let this be youre londe with the borders therof rounde aboute.

C And Moses commaunded the children of Israel, and sayde: This is youre londe that ye shal deuſe out amonge you by lot, which the LORDE hath commaunded to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and to the halfe trybe. For the trybe of the children of Ruben after their fathers house, and the trybe of the children of Gad acordinge to their fathers house, and the half trybe of Manasse haue receaued their porcion. Thus the two trybes and the halfe trybe haue their inheritance already, on this syde Jordane, ouer agaynst Jericho, Eastwarde.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: These are ⁊ names of the men, which shal deuſe the londe amonge you. Eleasar the prest, and Iesua the sonne of Nun. And the captaene of euery trybe shal ye take, to deuſe the londe.

And these are the names of the men: Caleb the sonne of Jephune of the trybe of Iuda. Semuel the sonne of Ammihud of the trybe of Simeon. Elidab ⁊ sonne of Cilson of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Buki the sonne of Jagli of the trybe of the childre of Dan. Sammel the sonne of Ephod, of the trybe of the children of Manasse amonge the children of Joseph. Remuel the sonne of Siphchan, of the trybe of the children of Ephraim. Elizaphan the sonne of Parnach, of the trybe of the childre of Zabulon. Paltiel the sonne of Aſan, of the trybe of the childre of Issachar. Abihud the sonne of Selomi, of the trybe of the children of Aſſer. Pedahel the sonne of Ammihud, of the trybe of the children of Nephthali. These are they whom ⁊ LORDE commaunded, that they shulde deuſe the inheritance vnto the children of Israel in the londe of Canaan.

The XXXV. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the felde of the Moabites by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, ⁊ sayde: Commaunde the childre of Israel, that they geue vnto ⁊ Leuites of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in. The suburbs also aboute the cities shal ye geue vnto the Leuites, that they maye dwell in the cities, and in the suburbs to haue their cattell, and substance, and all their bestes.

The suburbs which ye geue vnto ⁊ Leuites, shal reache fro the wall of ⁊ cite outward, a M. cubites rounde aboute. Thus ye shal measure without the cite on ⁊ East syde, two thouſande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ South syde, two thouſande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ West syde, two thouſande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ North syde, two thouſande cubites, so ⁊ the cite be in the myddes. This shal be their suburbs.

B And amonge the cities which ye shal geue vnto the Leuites, ye shall geue the ſire fre cities, that he which comitteth a slaughter, maie flye thither. Besydes the same ye shal geue the yet two ⁊ fourtie cities: so ⁊ all ⁊ cities which ye geue vnto ⁊ Leuites, be eight ⁊ fourtye with their suburbs. And of ⁊ same ye shal geue the more, from the ⁊ haue moche in possession amonge the children of Israel: ⁊ the lesse from them, that haue litle in possession. Every one (acordinge to his inheritance that is deuſed vnto him) shal geue of his cities vnto the Leuites.

And the LORDE talked w Moses ⁊ saide: Speake to the childre of Israel, ⁊ saie vnto the: Whā ye come ouer Jordane in to ⁊ londe of Canaan, ye shall chose out cities to be ſire cities, ⁊ who so comitteth slaughter vnawarres, maye flye thither. And soch ſire cities shal be amonge you because of the auenger of bloude, that he which hath commytted slaughter, dye not, tyll he stonde in iudgment before the congregacion. And of these cities which ye shall geue, there shal be ſire ſire cities. Thus shal ye geue on this syde Jordane, and thre in the londe of Canaan.

These are the ſire ſire cities, both for ⁊ childre of Israel ⁊ for the straungers, ⁊ for soch as dwell amonge you, & who so ever hath slaine any soule vna warres, maye flyethither.

Deu 21. b He & smytheth anyman w an yron weapō, & he dye, the same is a murthurer, & shal dye the death. If he cast at him w a stone (wher with anyman maye be slayne) & he dyether of, then is he a murthurer, and shal dye the death. If he smyte him w an handweapō of wood (wherwith any man maie be slayne) that he dye, then is he a murthurer, and shal dye the death. The auenger of bloude shal bringe & murthurer to death. Whan he synneth him, he shal slaye him. If he thrust at him of hate, or cast ought at him with laienge of wayte, or smyte him of envye w his hande, that he dye, then shal he that hath slayne him, dye the death: for he is a murthurer. The auenger of bloude shal bringe him to death, as soone as he synneth him.

Deu 19. a But yf he thrust him by chaunce, & not of envye, or hurle ought at him without any layenge of wayte, or cast at him with a stone (wherof a man maye dye, & sawe it not) & he dye, & is not his enemye, nether thought him any euell, the shal the cōgregacion iudge betwene him & hath cōmytted & slaughtered, and the auenger of bloude, in such cases. And the cōgregacion shal deliuer the deed slayer from the hande of y auenger of bloude, & shal let him come agayne to the fre cite, whither he was fled: & there shal he abyde vnto & death of the hye priest, which was anoynted with & holy oyle. But yf the deed slayer go out of the borders of his fre cite, that he was fled vnto, and the auenger of bloude fynde him without & borders of his fre cite, and kyll him, he shal not be gyleye of bloude. For he shulde haue bydden in his fre cite vntill & death of the hye priest, & after & hye prestes death to come agayne vnto the londe of his enheritaunce. This shal be a statute of the lawe vnto you amonge youre posterities in all youre dwellinges.

Deu 17. b and 19. a The deed slayer shal be slayne at y mouth of witnesses. One witness shal not answer ouer a soule to death. And ye shal receaue none attonement ouer the soule of the deed slayer (for he is gyleye of death) but he shal dye the death. And ye shal receaue none attonement of him, which is fled to the fre cite, & he shulde come agayne to dwell in the londe, till the hye priest dye. And defyle not ye y londe wherin ye dwell. For who so is gyleye of bloude, defyleth the londe: and the londe can not be reconcyed from the bloude that is shed therein, but onely thorow the bloude of him that shed it. Defyle not ye the londe that ye dwell in, wherin I dwell also. For I am the LORDE, which dwell amonge & dwelien of Israel.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

And & these fathers of the kynred of the childre of Gilead & sonne of Manasse (which was the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the children of Joseph) came forth, and spake before Moses, and before the captaynes amonge the these fathers of the children of Israel, and saide: Syr, the LORDE hath commannded, that ye shal de gene the londe by loer vnto the childre of Israel to inheret. And thou my lorde hast commannded thorow the LORDE, that the enheritaunce of & brother Zelaphead shal de be geue vnto his daughters. Now yf any men out of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shal oure fathers enheritaunce be lesse: and as moch as they haue, shal come to & enheritaunce of the trybe that they come vnto. Thus shal the loer of oure enheritaunce be mynished. So whan the years of Iubilee cometh vnto the childre of Israel, then shal their enheritaunce come to & enheritaunce of the trybe, wher they are. Thus shal oure fathers enheritaunce be mynished, as moch as they haue.

Moses charged the childre of Israel (according to the commanndement of the LORDE) and sayde: The trybe of the children of Joseph hath sayde righte. This is it that y LORDE commanndeth the daughters of Zelaphead, and sayeth: Let them marry as they like best, onely that they marry in y kynred of the trybe of their father, that the enheritaunce of the children of Israel fall not fro one trybe to another. For every one amonge the children of Israel shal cleue to the enheritaunce of the trybe of his father: & every daughter that possesseth any enheritaunce amonge the trybes of the children of Israel, shal be marryed vnto one of the kynred of the trybe of hir father: & every one amonge the children of Israel maye enioye his fathers enheritaunce, and that the enheritaunce fall not from one trybe to another: but that every one maye cleue to his awne enheritaunce amonge the trybes of the children of Israel.

As the LORDE comannded Moses, enso dyd & daughters of y Zelaphead, Manasse, Thirza, Hagla, Milca & Noa & were marryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of y kynred of the children of Manasse the sonne of Joseph. So their enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commanndementes & lawes, which y LORDE commannded by Moses vnto the childre of Israel, in the felde of the Moabites by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

These are the wordes that Moses spake vnto all Israel on the o- ther syde Iordane in the wilderness, in the playne felde toward the reed see, betwe- ne Paran, Thophel,

Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab, eleven daies iourney from Horeb, by the waye of mount Seir vnto Cades Bernea. And it fortuneth the first daye of the eleventh moneth in the fortieth yere, that Moses spake vnto y^e chil- dren of Israel accordinge vnto all as y^e LOR- DE commaunded him, * after he had smyt- ten Sihon y^e kynge of the Amorites which dwelt at Heshbon: and Og the kynge of Ba- san, that dwelt at Ashtaroth, and at Edrei.

On the other syde Iordane in y^e lande of the Moabites, begame Moses to declare this lawe, and sayde: The LORDE o^r God spake vnto vs vpon mount Horeb, z sayde: Ye haue bene longe ynough vpon this moun- tayne, turne you, z departed hence, that ye maye come to the mountaynes of the Amo- rites, and to all their neighbours in y^e felde, vpon mountaynes, and in the valleys toward the South and toward the see syde, of the lande of Canaan: and to mount Liba- nus, even vnto the greate water Euphrates. Beholde, I haue deliuered you the lande, go in, and take it in possession, which the LOR- DE swaue vnto y^e fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, * that he wolde geue it vnto the, and their sede after them.

and 17. b

Exod. 19. c

Then saide I vnto you at the same tyme: I am not able to beare you my self alone, for the LORDE youre God hath increased you, so that this daye ye are as y^e starres of hea- ven in multitude. (The LORDE God of y^e fathers make you yet many thousande ty- mes mo, z blesse you, as he hath promysed you.) How can I alone beare soche cōbraun-ce, z charge, z stryfe amonge you: Proryde he- re men of wysdome z understandinge, such as are knowne amonge youre trybes, the whiche I set to be heades vnto you.

Then answered ye me, and sayde: It is a good thinge, that thou sayest thou wilt do. Thercofke I y^e heades of youre trybes, wy- se and famous mē, and set them ouer you to be heades, ouer thousandes, ouer hundiede, ouer fiftye and ouer ten: and officers amonge youre trybes.

And I charged youre iudges at y^e same tyme, z sayde: Heare youre brether, z iudges righteously betwene euery man and his bro- ther, and the stranger. Ye shall knowe no personne in iudgment, but shall heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man: for the Iudgment is Gods. But yf eny cause be to harde for you, let it be broughte vnto me, y^e I maye heare it. Thus commaunded I you at the same tyme, all y^e ye shulde doo.

Then departed we from Horeb, and wal- led thorow the whole wilderness (which is greate and terryble as ye haue sene) by the waye to y^e mountaynes of the Amorites, as the LORDE oure God commauded vs, and came vnto Cades Bernea. Then sayde I vnto you: Ye are come to y^e mountaynes of y^e Amorites, which the LORDE o^r God shal geue vs. Beholde, there the lande before the, which the LORDE thy God hath geue vnto the: Go vp, z conquere it, as y^e LORDE God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the: * feare not, and be not discouraged.

Then came ye all vnto me, and sayde: Let vs sende men before vs, to spye vs out the lande, and to bringe vs worde agayne, by what waye we shal go vp, and to what ci- ties we shal come. That pleased me well, and I toke twelue men from amonge you, of eu- ry trybe one. Which whan they were depar- ted, and wente vp to hye countrie, and ca- me to the ryuer Escol, they spyed it out, and toke of the frute of y^e lande with the, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, that the LORDE oure God hath ge- uen vs.

But ye wolde not go vp, and were disho- bedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: Because the LORDE hateth vs, ther- fore hath he broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites, to destroye vs. Whither shal we go vp? Our brethren haue discoura- ged our herres, z saide: The people is greater z of hye stature the we, y^e cities are greate, z walled euen vp to heauen. Moreover we ha- ue sene there the children of Enakim.

But I sayde vnto you: Feare not, and be not afrayed of them: for the LORDE youre God goeth before you, and shall fighte for you, like as he dealeth with you in Egypte be- fore youre eyes, and in the wilderness: whe- re thou sawest, that the LORDE thy God bare the (euen as a man beareth his sonne) thorow out all the waye that ye haue wal- led, tyll ye came to this place. And yet for all this ye haue not belened on the LORDE youre God, which wente before you, to sear- che you out a place, where ye shulde pitch youre tentes: by nyght in the sye (to shewe you the waye, wherein ye shulde go) z on the daye tyme in the cloude.

Whan the LORDE herde y^e voyce of y^e wordes, he was wroth, and swore, and saide: There shall none of this euell generacion se that good lande, which I swaue to geue vnto youre fathers, excepte Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shal se it. And vnto him wyl I geue the lande that he hath troddē vpon, z to his children, because he hath perfectly so- lowed the LORDE.

The LORDE was angrie wth me also for youre sakes, and sayde: Thou also shalt not go in thither. But Josua y^e sonne of Nun, which stondeth before the, he shal go in thi- ther: Courage him, for he shal deuoyde the en- heritaunce out vnto Israel. And youre chil- dren, of wh^{ch} ye sayde they shulde be a praye, and youre sonnes which this daie underston- de nether good ner bad, they shal go in thi- ther, vnto them wil I geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne you, and take youre iourney to the wilderness, euen the waye to the reed see.

Then answered ye, z sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynst y^e LORDE, we wil go vp, and fighte, accordinge to all that the LOR- DE hath commaunded vs. Now whan ye had prepared y^e selues, euery one in his har- nesse, z were at the poynte to go vp to the mountaynes, y^e LORDE sayde vnto me: Spea- ke vnto them, y^e they go not vp, z that they fighte not (for I am not amonge you) that ye be not smytten before youre enemies. Whan I tolde you this, ye wolde not heare, z were disobedient vnto the worde of the LORDE, and were presumptuous, and wente vp to y^e mountaynes. Then the Amorites that dwelt vpon the mountaynes, came out agaynst you, and chased you, as Bees do, and smote you at Seir, euen vnto Horeb. Now whan ye came againe, and wepte before the LORDE, he wolde not heare youre voyce, and encl- ned not his eares vnto you. * So ye abode in Cades a longe season.

Then turned we vs, and toke our iour- ney to the wilderness, euen the waye to the reed see (as the LORDE sayde vnto me) and compassed mount Seir a longe season. And y^e LORDE saide vnto me: Ye haue compassed this mountayne now longe ynough, turne you Northwarde, and commaunde the people, and saye: Ye shal go thorow y^e coast- es of youre brethren the children of Esau, which dwell at Seir: z they shal be afrayed of you. But take diligente heed to youre sel- ues, that ye prouoke them not: for I wyl not geue you one fore brether of their lande. For mount Seir haue I geuen to the children of Esau to possesse. Ye shal bye meate of them for moneye, that ye maye eate. And water shal ye bye of them for money, that ye maye drynke. For the LORDE thy God hath bles- sed the in all the workes of thy bondes. He hath considered thy iourneyes thorow this greate wilderness: and this fortye yeaes hath the LORDE thy God bene with the, so that thou hast wanted nothinge.

Now whan we were departed from o^r brethren the children of Esau, that dwell vpon mount Seir, by the waye of the felde from Elath z Azeon gaber, we turned vs, z wente by the waye of the wilderness of y^e Moabites. Then sayde the LORDE vnto me: * Thou shalt not vere the Moabites, ner prouoke the vnto battayll, for I wil not geue the of their lande to possesse. For Ar haue I geuen vnto the children of Lot in possession. * The Emims dwelt there before tyme, which were a greate stronge people, z hye of stature, as the Enakims: and were taken for giannes, like as y^e Enakims. And y^e Moabites called them Emims. * The Ho- rites also dwelt in Seir afore tyme, z y^e chil- dren of Esau droue them out, and destroyed them before them, z dwelt in their steade: li- ke as Israel dyd in y^e lode of his possession, that the LORDE gaue them.

Get you vp now, z go ouer the ryuer Sa- red. And we wente ouer. The tyme that we were goinge fro Cades Bernea, tyll we ca- me ouer the ryuer Sared, was eight z thir- ty yeaes: tyll all the men of warre were waysted out of the hoost, * as the LORDE swaue vnto them. The hande of the LORDE also was agaynst them, to destroye the out of the host, till they were consumed.

And when all the men of warre were consumed, so they were deed amonge the people, the LORDE spake vnto me, and sayde: This daie shalt thou go thorow the coast of Moabites by Ar, & shalt come nye vnto children of Ammon, whom thou shalt not were ner prouoke. For I wyll not geue the of the lode of the childre of Ammon to possess, for I haue geue it vnto the childre of Lot in possession. It was eake for a lode of giants also, & giants dwelt therein afore tyme. And the Ammonites calleth Samsumims, which was a people that was greete, many, and of hye stature, as the Enatims.

And these the LORDE destroyed before the, and let them possesse the same, so that they dwelt in their steade. Like as he dyd with the childre of Esau, which dwell vpo mount Seir, when he destroyed the houses before them: and let them possesse the same, so that they haue dwelt in their steade vnto this daye. And the Caphthorims came out of Caphthar, and destroyed the Anims (which dwell at Hazarim euen vnto Gaza) & there dwelt they in their steade.

Get you vp now, and departe, and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, I haue geue Sihon the kynge of the Amorites at Hesbon into thy hande: go to and conquere, and prouoke him vnto battayll. This daye wyll I begynne, so that all nacions vnder all the heauen, shal feare & drede: In so moch that wha they heare of the, they shal tremble and quake for thy commynge.

Then sente I messengers from the wylder nesse of the East vnto Sihon the kynge at Hesbon: with peaceable wordes, and caused to saye vnto him: I wil go but thorow thy lode, I wil go a longe by the hye waye, I wil neither turne to the righte hade ner to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money, that I maye eate: & water shalt thou sell me for money, that I maye drinke. Onely let me go thorow by fore, as the childre of Esau (which dwell at Seir) dyd vnto me: and the Moabites that dwell at Ar: vntill I be come ouer Jordane, into the londe which the LORDE oure God shal geue vnto vs.

But Sihon the kynge at Hesbon wolde not let vs go by him: for the LORDE & God hardened his mynde, & made his hert tough that he mighte deliuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto me: Beholde, I haue begonne to deliuer Sihon with his londe before the: go to and conquere, and pos sesse his lode. And Sihon came out to all his people to fight agaynst vs at Jahza. But the LORDE oure God deliuered him in to oure handes, so that we smote him with his children and all his people.

Then toke we all his cities at the same tyme, and destroyed utterly all the cities, men, women, and children, and let none remayne save the catell, which we caught to oure selues, & the spoyle of the cities that we wanne from Aror, which lyeth vpon the ryuer syde of Arnon, and from the cite on the ryuer vnto Gilead. There was no cite that coulde defende it selfe from vs: the LORDE oure God deliuered vs all before vs. But vnto the londe of the children of Ammon thou camest not, ner to all that was on the ryuer Jabok, ner to the cities vpo the mountaynes, ner vnto what so euer the LORDE oure God forbade vs.

The III. Chapter.

Now we turned vs, & wente vp & wate vnto Basan. And Og the kynge of Basan, came out to all his people to fight agaynst vs at Edrei. But the LORDE sayde vnto me: Be not afrayed of him, for I haue deliuered him & all his people to thy hande: & thou shalt do to him, as thou dydest to Sihon kynge of the Amorites, which dwell at Hesbon. Thus the LORDE oure God deliuered Og the kynge of Basan in to oure handes also with all his people: so that we smote him, till there was nothinge left euer vnto him.

Then wanne we at the same tyme all his cities, & there was not one cite that we toke not from him, euen thre score cities, the whole region of Argob in the kyngdome of Og at Basan. All these cities were stronge, with hye walles, gates, and barres, besyde many other unwalled townes.

And we utterly destroyed them, as we dyd with Sihon the kynge at Hesbon. All the cities destroyed we utterly, and the men, women, and children. But all the catell and spoyle of the cities caughte we for oure selues.

Thus toke we at the same tyme the londe out of the honde of the two kynges of the Amorites beyonde Jordane, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amorites call it Senir) all the cities vpon the playne, and all Gilead, and all Basan vnto Salcha and Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the giants. Beholde, his yron bed is here at Rabath amonge the children of Ammon, nyne cubites longe, and foure cubites brode, after the cubite of a man.

This londe conquered we at the same tyme, from Aror that lyeth on the ryuer of Arnon. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gaue halfe mount Gilead with the cities therof: and the remnant of Gilead, & all Basan the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse. The whole region of Argob with all Basan was called the giants londe.

Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gessuri and Maachati, and Basan called he Hanoth Jair after his awne name, vnto this daye: But vnto Machir I gaue Gilead. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gaue one parte of Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon (at the myddes of the ryuer is the border and vnto the ryuer Jabok, which is the border of the children of Ammon: the felde also, and Jordane (which is the coaste) from Cinnereth vnto the see in the felde, namely, the Salte see vnder mount Pisga, Eastwarde.

And I commaunded you at the same tyme, and sayde: The LORDE your God hath geuen you this londe to take possession of it, so your waye forth therfore harnessed be for your brethren the children of Israel, all ye that be mete for the warre. As for your wyues, and children and catell (for I knowe that ye haue moch catell) let them remayne in your cities, which I haue geuen you, vntill the LORDE your God haue broughte your brethren to rest also as well as you, that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE your God shal geue the beyonde Jordane: and then shal ye turne agayne to your awne possession, which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua at the same tyme, and sayde: Thine eyes haue sene all that the LORDE your God hath done vnto these two kynges: eue so shal the LORDE do also vnto all the kyngdomes whither thou goest. Feare them not, for the LORDE your God shal fight for you.

And I besoughte the LORDE at the same tyme, & sayde: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast be come to shewe thy seruante thy greatnesse and thy mightie hade. For where is there a God in heauen & earth, that can do after thy workes and after thy power? O let me go & see thy good londe beyonde Jordane, & goodly hye countre, and Libanus.

But the LORDE was angrie with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: Be content, speake nomore to me of this matter. Get the vp to the toppe of mount Pisga, and lifte vp thine eyes toward the west, and toward the north, and toward the south, and toward the east: and beholde it with thine eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. And geue Josua his charge, and corage him, and bolde him, for he shal go ouer Jordane before the people, and shal dewye vnto them the londe, that thou shalt see. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Peor.

The III. Chapter.

Now hearken Israel vnto the ordinaunces and lawes, which I teach you that ye do them, & ye maye lyue, and come in, & take possession of the londe, which the LORDE God of your fathers geueth vnto you. Ye shal put nothinge vnto the worde which I commaunde you, neither do oughte therefrom, that ye maye kepe the commandementes of the LORDE your God, which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the LORDE hath done to Baal Peor: all them that walked after Baal Peor, hath the LORDE thy God destroyed from amonge you. But yet that cleue vnto the LORDE your God, are all aliue this daye. Beholde I haue taughte you ordinaunces and lawes, sod as the LORDE my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do eue so in the londe, in to which ye shal come, to possesse it.

Kepe them now therfore and do them: for that is your wysdome and vnderstandinge in the sight of all nacions, which wha they haue herde all these ordinaunces, shall saye: What a wyse and vnderstandinge folke is this? and how excellent a people? For where is there so excellent a nation, that hath goddes so nye him, as the LORDE oure God is nye vnto vs, as oft as we call vpon him? And where is there so excellent a nation, that hath so righteous ordinaunces and lawes, as all this lawe which I laye before you this daye.

Take heed to thy selfe now, and kepe well thy soule, that thou forget not the thinges which thine eyes haue sene, and that they be parte not out of thy hert all the dayes of thy life. And thou shalt teach them thy children and thy childers children, the daye wha thou stodest before the LORDE thy God by mount Horeb, when the LORDE sayde vnto me: Gather me the people together, that I maye make them heare my wordes, which they shal lerne, that they maye feare me all the dayes of their life vpon earth, & that they also maye teach their children.

And ye came nye, & stode vnder y mount. But the mount burne even vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darthe, cloudes, and myste. And y LORD spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre. The voyce of his wordes ye herde, neuerthelesse ye sawe no ymage, but herde the voyce onely. And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, which he cōmaunded you to do, namely, the ten verses, and wrote them vpon two tables of stone. And the LORD commaunded me at the same tyme, to teach you ordinaunces & lawes that ye might do thereafter in the londe, in to the which ye go to possesse it.

Kepe well youre soules therefore, for ye sawe no maner of ymage, in the daye whā the LORD spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon mount Horeb, that ye destroye not youre selues, and make you eny ymage, that is like a man, or woman, or best vpon earth, or fethered foule vnder the heauen, or woime vpon the ground, or fyssh in the water vnder y earth: y thou lifte not vp thine eyes toward heauen, and se the Sonne and the Moone & the starres, and the whole host of heauen, and be diseased, and worshippe, and serue them: which the LORD y God hath made to serue all nacions vnder y whole heauen.

But you hath the LORD taken, and broughte you out of the yron fornace, namely, out of Egipte, that ye shulde be the people of his enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. And the LORD was angrie with me for youre sakes, so that he swore, y I shulde not go ouer Jordane, ner come in to that good londe, which the LORD thy God shal geue the to enheritaunce. As for me, I must dye in this londe, and shal not go ouer Jordane: But ye shal go ouer, and shal haue that good lōde in possession.

Take hede therefore vnto youre selues, that ye forget not the couenaunt of the LORD youre God, and that ye make no ymages of eny maner of fashon: as the LORD thy God hath commaunded. For the LORD thy God is a consuming fyre, and a gelous God.

When ye haue begotten children, and childrens children, and haue dwelt in the londe, ye marre youre selues, & make you ymages of eny maner of fashon, and do euill in the sighte of y LORD youre God, to provoke him: I call heauen and earth to recor-de ouer you this daie, that ye shall shortly rise fro the londe, in to y which ye go ouer Jordane to possesse it. Ye shal not dwell longe therein, but shal verily be destroyed. And y LORD shal scatter you amonge y nacions, and ye shall be left a small people amonge y heathen, whither the LORD shal bringe you. There shal ye serue goddes, which are y workes of mens handes, euen wodd & stone, which nether se ne heare, ner eate ner smell.

But yf then seke the LORD y God then thou shalt finde him, yf thou seke him with thy whole hert and with all y soule. When thou shalt be strately troubled, & whā all the se thinges shal come vpo the in y latter dayes, then shalt thou turne agayne to y LORD thy God, and be obedient vnto his voice. For y LORD y God is a mercifull God, he shal not forsake the, ner destroye the: nether shall he forget the couenaunt with thy fathers, which he swore vnto them.

For after the tymes past, which haue bene before the, sens the daie y God created man vpon earth, from one ende of the heauen vnto the other, whether there was euer eny soch greute thinge done, or eny soch like herde, that a people hath herde y voyce of God speake out of the fyre (as thou hast herde) & yet liued. Or whether God assaied to go & take vnto him a people out of y myddes of a nacion, thow tentacions, thow tokens, thow wonders, thow warre, & thow a mightie hande, & thow a stretched out arme, and thow greute visiōs, accordinge to all as the LORD youre God hath done with you in Egipte before thine eyes.

Thou hast seene it, y thou mightest knowe that the LORD is God, and that there is no other but he onely. Out of heauen made he the to heare his voyce, that he mighte re- toun the: and vpon earth he shewed the his greute feare, & out of y fyre thou herdest his wordes: because he loued y fathers, & chose their sede after the. And he broughte y out of his presence thow his mightie power out of Egipte, to dryue out (before the) nacions greater and mightier then thou, and to bringe y in, y he might geue the their lōde to enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye.

Therefore shalt thou knowe this daye, & turne it into thine herte, that the LORD is God above in heauen, and beneth vpon earth, and that there is no mo. Kepe his ordinaunces therefore and commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daie, the shal it go well w the and thy children after the, so that thy life shal longe endure in y londe.

which the LORD thy God geueth the thy life longe.

Then separated Moses the cities beyon de Jordane, toward the Sonne rysinge, y he might flye thither, which had slayne his neighbour vnawares, & hated him not afore tyme, y he might flye into one of these cities, & lyue. Bezer in y wilderness in the playne countre amonge the Rubenites, & Ramoth in Gilead amonge y Gaddites, & Golan in Basan amonge the Manassites.

This is the lawe which Moses layd before the children of Israel: these are the testimones, ordinaunces, & lawes, y Moses spake vnto the children of Israel (after they were departed out of Egipte) beyonde Jordane in the valley ouer agaynst the house of peor, in y londe of Sion tynge of y Amorites which dwelt at Hesbon, whom Moses & the childre of Israel smote after they were departed out of Egipte, & conquered his lōde, & the londe of Og tynge of Basan, two tynge of the Amorites which were beyon de Jordane toward the Sonne rysinge fro Arnon (which lyeth vpon y ryuer syde of Arnon) vnto mount Sion, which is Hermon: & all y playne felde beyonde Jordane eastward vnto the see in y plaine felde vnder mount Pisga.

The V. Chapter.
Moses called all Israel, & sayde vnto the: Heare Israel the ordinaunces & lawes which I speake in yo eares this daye: lerne them, & kepe the so, that ye do thereafter. The LORD oure God made a couenaunt with vs at Horeb: he made not this couenaunt with oure fathers, but with vs, that are here this daie, and lyue euery one. He talked with vs face to face out of the fyre vpo the mount. I stode at the same tyme betwixte the LORD and you, that I might shewe you the worde of the LORD. For ye were afrayed of the fyre, & wente not vpo the mount, and he sayde:

I am the LORD thy God, which haue broughte the out of the londe of Egipte, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my sighte. Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of eny maner of liknesse of the thinges y are aboue in heauen, & beneth vpon earth, & in the water vnder the earth. Thou shalt not hono the, ner serue the. For I y LORD y God am a gelous God, vistinge the synne of the fathers vpo the children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacion, of the y hate me: & shewe mercy vpon many thousandes y loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take y name of y LORD y God in vayne: for y LORD shal not holde him vngiltie, y take his name in vaine.

Kepe y Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the LORD thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe daies shalt thou laboure, and do all thy worke, but vpon the seventh daye it is the Sabbath of the LORD thy God: No maner worke shalt thou do in it, thou, and thy some, and thy daughter, and thy seruante, and thy mayde, and thine oxe, and thine Assie, and all thy catell, and the straunger which is within thy gates, that thy seruante and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. For thou shalt remembre, that thou thyself also wast a seruante in the londe of Egipte, and how that the LORD thy God broughte the out from thence with a mightie hande, and a stretched out arme. Therefore hath the LORD y God commaunded y to kepe the Sabbath daye.

Honoure thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commaunded the: that thou mayest lyue longe vpo earth, and that it maye go well with the in the londe, which the LORD thy God shal geue the.

Thou shalt not kill.
Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.
Thou shalt not steale.
Thou shalt beare no false witness against thy neighbour.

Thou shalt not lust after y neighbours wyfe.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neighbours house, londe, seruante, mayde, oxe, Assie, or what so euer he hath.

These are the wordes that the LORD spake to all youre congregacion, vpon the mount out of the fyre of the cloude and darthe with a greute voyce, and added nothinge thereto. And he wrote them vpon two tables of stone, and deliuered the vnto me.

But when ye herde the voyce out of the darthe, and sawe the mount burne w fyre, ye came vnto me all ye rulers amonge youre trybes, and youre Elders and sayde: Beholde, the LORD oure God hath shewed vs his glory & his greatnes, and we haue herde his voyce out of y fyre. This daye haue we seene, that God maie talke with a man, and he yet lyue. And now w herfore shulde we dye, that this fyre shulde consume vs? If we shulde heare the voyce of the LORD oure God any more, we shulde dye. For what is all fleshe, that it shulde be able to heare y voyce of the lyvinge God speakyng out of y fyre, as we haue done, and yet lyue? So thou and heare all þ the LORDE oure God sayeth, and tell us. All þ the LORDE sayeth vnto the, that will we heare and do. Whan the LORDE herbe the voyce of yd wordes which ye spake vnto me, he sayde vnto me: I haue herde þ voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken vnto þ. It is all good that they haue spoken. But who shal geue them such an herre, þ they maye feare me, and kepe all my commaundementes as longe as they lyue, þ it maye go well with them, and with their childre for ever? So I saye vnto them: Get you in to yd tentes agayne. But thou shalt stonde here before me, that I maye tell the all the commaundementes, and ordinaunces and lawes which thou shalt teach them þ they maye do therafter in the lode, which I shal geue the to possesse. Take hede now therfore that ye do, as the LORDE yd God hath commaunded you, and turne not asyde nether to þ right hande ner to the lefte: but walke in all þ wayes which the LORDE youre God hath commaunded you, that ye maie lyue, and that it maie go well with you, and þ ye maye lyue longe in þ londe which ye shall haue in possession.

The VI. Chapter.

These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes which þ LORDE yd God hath commaunded, þ ye shulde lerne them, and do them, in the londe whither ye go to possesse it, that thou mayest feare the LORDE yd God, and kepe all his ordinaunces and commaundementes, which I commaunde the, thou and þ children, and þ childers children all þ dayes of youre life, that ye maye lyue longe. Thou shalt heare (O Israel) and take hede, þ thou do therafter, þ it maye go well with þ, and that thou mayest multiplie greatly, as þ LORDE God of y fathers hath promysed the a londe þ floweth w mylke and honny. Heare O Israel, the LORDE oure God is one LORDE onely. And thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God w all thy hart, with all þ soule, and with all thy myghte. And these wordes, which I commaunde the this daie, shalt thou take to herte, and shalt whet them vpon þ children, and shalt talke of them, whā thou syttest in thyne house, and whā thou walkest by the waie: whā thou lvest downe, and whā thou rysest vp. And thou shalt bynde them for a signe vpon thine hande, and they shall be a token of remembraunce before thine eyes, and thou shalt wyte them vpon the postes of thine house, and vpon thy gates.

Now whā þ LORDE yd God shal bringe the in to þ londe wherof he swaie vnto y fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and shal geue the greates and goodly cities, which thou hast not buylded: and houses full of all goodes, which thou hast not filled: and digged welles which thou hast not digged: and vineyardes and olyue trees, which thou hast not plantid, so þ thou eatest and art full: then beware that thou forget not the LORDE, which broughte the out of the londe of Egypte, fro the house of bondage: but thou shalt feare the LORDE thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue, and sweare by his name. And thou shalt not folowe the other goddes of the nations which are aboute you (for the LORDE thy God is a gelous God in the myddest of the) that the wrath of the LORDE thy God waxe not whore ouer the, and destroye the from the earth.

Re shalt not tempte þ LORDE youre God, as ye tempted him at Massa: but kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE yd God, and his witnessses, and his ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the, that thou mayest do that which is right and good in þ sight of the LORDE, þ thou mayest prospere, and þ thou mayest go in and conquere that good londe, which the LORDE swaie vnto y fathers, that he maye chace out all thine enemies before the, as the LORDE hath sayde.

Now whā thy some areth the todaye or tomorrow, and sayeth: What meane these witnessses, ordinaunces and lawes, that the LORDE oure God hath commaunded you? Then shalt thou saye vnto thy some: We were pharaos bondmen in Egypte, and the LORDE broughte vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande, and the LORDE did greates and euell tokens and wonders in Egypte vpo pharao and all his house before oure eyes, and broughte vs from thence, to bringe vs in and to geue vs þ londe, that he swaie vnto oure fathers. And therfore hath the LORDE commaunded vs to do a cordinge vnto all these ordinaunces, that we might feare the LORDE oure God, that we might prospere all the dayes of oure life, as it is come to passe this daie. And it shall be righteousness vnto vs before the LORDE oure God, yf we kepe and do all these commaundementes, as he hath commaunded vs.

The VII. Chapter.

Whā þ LORDE yd God bringeth the in to þ londe wherof he swaie vnto y fathers, and shal geue the greates and goodly cities, which thou hast not buylded: and houses full of all goodes, which thou hast not filled: and digged welles which thou hast not digged: and vineyardes and olyue trees, which thou hast not plantid, so þ thou eatest and art full: then beware that thou forget not the LORDE, which broughte the out of the londe of Egypte, fro the house of bondage: but thou shalt feare the LORDE thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue, and sweare by his name. And thou shalt not folowe the other goddes of the nations which are aboute you (for the LORDE thy God is a gelous God in the myddest of the) that the wrath of the LORDE thy God waxe not whore ouer the, and destroye the from the earth.

ter and mightier then thou: and whā the LORDE thy God deliuereth the before þ, that thou mayest smyte them, thou shalt utterly destroye them, so that thou make no couenaunt with them, nor shewest them fauoure, and shalt make no marriages with them: Ne shall not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, nether take their daughters vnto youre sonnes. For they will make youre sonnes departe fro me, to serue straunge goddes: then shall the wrath of the LORDE waxe whore vpon you, and destroye you shortly.

But thus shalt ye do with them: Ye shall overthrowe their altares, breake downe their pillars, cut downe their groves, and burne their images with fyre. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God. The hath the LORDE thy God chosen, that thou shuldest be his awne peculiar people, from amonge all nations that are vpon the earth.

It was not because of the multitude of you above all nations, that þ LORDE had lust vnto you and chose you. (For ye were the lest amonge all nations) but because he loued you, and that he mighte kepe the ooth, which he swaie vnto youre fathers, he broughte you out with a mightie hande, and deliuered you fro the house of bondage, out of the hande of pharao kynge of Egypte.

Thou shalt vnderstande now therfore, that the LORDE thy God is a mightie and true God, which keperth couenaunt and mercy vnto them that loue him, and kepe his commaundementes, euen thorow out a thousande generacions: And rewardeth them that hate him, before his face, that he maye destroye them: and wyll not be longe in tarynge to rewardeth them (before his face) that hate him. Kepe now therfore the commaundementes, and ordinaunces and lawes, which I commaunde the this daie, that thou do therafter.

And yf ye shall heare these lawes and kepe them, and do therafter, then shal the LORDE thy God also kepe the couenaunt and mercy with the, which he swaie vnto thy fathers: and shal loue the, blesse the, and multiplie the: he shal blesse the frute of y wombe, and the frute of thy londe, thy corne, wyne and oyle, the frute of thy fyne, and the frute of thy shepe, in the londe that he swaie vnto y fathers to geue the. Blessed shalt thou be above all nations, there shal no vnfuturfull personne be in the, ner amonge thy catell. The LORDE shal put from the all manner of dyscase, and shal bringe vpon the none of þ euell sicknesses of Egypte, which thou hast sene, but shall put them vpon all those that hate the.

Thou shalt bringe to naught all the nations, which the LORDE thy God shal deliuer the. Thine eye shall not spare them, and their goddes shalt thou not serue, for that shal be thy decaye. If thou shalt saye in thine herte: These nations are mo then I, how can I dryue them out? Feare them not. Remember what the LORDE thy God did vnto pharao and to all the Egyptians, thorow greates tentacions (which) thou hast sene with thine eyes) thorow tokens and wonders, thorow a mightie hande and a stretched out arme, wherewith the LORDE thy God broughte the out. Euen so shal the LORDE thy God do vnto all þ nations of whō thou art afrayed.

The LORDE yd God also shal sende hemetes amonge them, vntill they that remayne and hyde themselves from the, be destroyed. Be not thou afrayed of them: for the LORDE thy God is in the myddes of the, euen the mightie and fearfull God. He (euen the LORDE thy God) shall rote out the nations before the by litle and litle. Thou canst not consume them at one time, þ the bestes of the felde increaseth not vpon the. The LORDE thy God shal deliuer them before the, and shall smite them with a greates slaughter, till they be destroyed. And he shal deliuer their kynnes in to thine hande, and thou shalt destroye their names from vnder heauen. There shal no man make the resistance before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them.

The ymages of their goddes shalt thou burne with fyre, and shalt not desyre the syluer or golde that is on them: or to take it vnto the, that thou snare not thy self therin: for it is abhominacion vnto the LORDE yd God. Therfore shalt thou not bringe the abhominacion in to thine house, þ thou be not damned as it is, but shalt utterly desyre it, and abhorre it, for it is damned.

The VIII. Chapter.

Al the commaundementes which I commaunde þ this daie, shal ye kepe, so þ ye do therafter, that ye maye lyue and multiplie, and come in, and take possession of the land, which þ LORDE swaie vnto youre fathers: and thynke vpon all þ waies thorow the which the LORDE thy God hath led the this fortye yeares in the wyldernes, that he mighte chasten the, and proue the, to wete whāth were in thine herte, whēther thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no. He chastened the, and let the hunger,

Eze. 16. c
Phil. 1. b
Beware now therfore, that thou forget not the LORDE thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commandementes, and his ordinaunces, and lawes, which I commaunde the this daye: that (whā thou hast eaten & art fylled, and hast buylded goodly houses, & dwellest therein, and whā thy beestes and shepe, and syluer, and golde, and all y thou hast, increaseth) thine hert ryse not then, and thou forget the LORDE thy God (which brought the out of the londe of Egypte, fro y house of bondage, and led y thorow this greates & terrible wyldernes, where were serpentes that spouted fyre, and Scorpions, & drought, and where there was no water, and brought the water out of the hard flynte, and fed the in the wyldernesse with Manna wherof y fathers knewe not, that he might chasten the, and proue the to do the good afterwarde) and lest thou saye in thine hert: My power and the mighte of myne awne hande hath done me all this good: But that thou thynke vpon the LORDE thy God. For it is he, which geueth the power to exercise strength, that he maye performe the covenant, which he sware vnto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

Deut. 4. d
But yf thou shalt forget the LORDE thy God, and folowe other goddes, and serue them, and worshippe the, I testifie ouer you this daye, that ye shal utterly perishe. Euen as the heythen whom y LORDE destroyed before youre face, so shall ye perishe also, because ye are not obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE youre God.

The IX. Chapter.

Exo. 17. d
Goe ouer Jordan, that thou maiest me in to conquer the nations, which are greater and mightier then thou, great cities, walled vp vnto heauen, a greates people and of an hye stature, namely the childe of Enakim, whom thou hast knowe, and of whom thou hast herde saye: Who is able to stonde agaynst the children of Enakim. Therfore shalt thou knowe this daye, that the LORDE y God goeth before the, & a sumynge fyre. he shal destroye the, and shal subdue them before the, and shal drine them out, & shortly shall he brynge the to naught, as the LORDE hath promysed the.

Now whā the LORDE thy God hath expelled them out before the, saye not thou the in thine hert: The LORDE hath brought me in to take possession of this lande for myne awne righteousnes sake, where as y LORDE yet dryueth out the heythen before the, because of their vngodlynes.

For thou comest not in to take the lande in possession, for thine awne righteousnes sake, and because of thy right hert: but the LORDE dryueth out these heythen, for their awne vngodlynes sake, and that he maye performe the worde, which the LORDE hath sworne vnto y fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understonde now therfore, that the LORDE y God geueth not the this londe to possess it, for thine awne righteousnes sake. For thou art a styffnecked people.

Remember and forget not, how thou displeasedst the LORDE thy God in the wyldernesse. Sence y daye that thou departedst out of the londe of Egypte, tyll ye came vnto this place, haue ye bene disobedient vnto the LORDE.

For in Horeb ye angered the LORDE, so that of wrath he wolde haue destroyed you, whā I was gone vp to y mount, to receaue the tables of stone, namely the tables of the covenant: which the LORDE made w you, and I abode fortye dayes & fortye nightes vpon the mount, and ate no bread, & dranke no water: and the LORDE gaue me y two tables of stone, wyrtten with the synger of God, and in them was a cordinge to all the wordes, which the LORDE sayde vnto you vpon the mount out of the fyre, in the daye of the gathering together.

And after the fortye dayes and fortye nightes, y LORDE gaue me y two tables of stone, namely y tables of the covenant, and sayde vnto me: vp, & get y downe quyetly from hence, for thy people whom thou brougest out of Egypte, haue marred the selues, they are soone gone out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a molten ymage.

And the LORDE sayde vnto me: I see this people, that it is a styffnecked people: let me alone, that I maye destroye them, and put out their name from vnder heauē. I wyl make of the a people mightier and greater than this is.

And as I turned me, & wente downe fro the mount which bieth w fyre, & had y two tables of the covenant in both my handes, I looked, & beholde, ye had synned agaynst y LORDE y God, so y ye had made you a molten calfe, & were soone turned out of y waie which the LORDE had commaunded you. Then toke I the two tables, & cast them out of both my handes, & brake the before youre eyes, & I fell before the LORDE (even as at the first tyme) fortye dayes & fortye nightes, & nether ate bread, ner dranke water, because of all youre synnes which ye had synned, whā ye dyd soch euell in the sighte of the LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wrath. For I was afrayed of the wrath and indignacion, wherwith the LORDE was angrie w you, vnto haue destroyed you. And the LORDE herde me at that tyme also.

Moreover the LORDE was very angrie w Aaron, so that he wolde haue destroyed him, but I made intercession for Aaron also at y same tyme. As for youre synne (namely, the calfe that ye had made) I toke it, and burnt it w the fyre, and smote it a sunder, & grynede it in peces, even vnto dust, and cast the dust in to the broke that descended from the mount.

He displeased the LORDE also, at Taberah, & at Massah, & at the lustgraves, & whā he sent you from Cades Barnea, and sayde: Go vp, and conquer the londe which I haue geuen you. And ye were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE youre God, and belued not on him, and herkened not vnto his voyce: for ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE, as long as I haue knowne you.

Thē fell I before y LORDE fortye dayes and fortye nightes, which I laye there. For y LORDE sayde, he wolde destroye you. But

I made intercession vnto the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE LORDE, destroye not y people and thine inheritaunce, which thou thorow thy greates power hast deliuered, and brought out of Egypte with a mightie hande. Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Loke not vpon the stubbertnesse, and vngodlynesse and synne of this people (that the londe wherout thou hast brought vs, saye not: The LORDE was not able to bringe them in to the lande, that he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore hath he brought them out, to destroye the in the wyldernesse:.) For they are thy people & thine inheritaunce, which thou hast brought out w thy greates power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The X. Chapter.

At the same tyme sayde the LORDE vnto me: Hew y two tables of stone like vnto the first, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, and make y an Arke of wood, and in the tables I wyl wyte the wordes, that were in the first, which thou brakest, and thou shalt laye them in the Arke. So I made an Arke of fyre tre, and hewed two tables of stone (like as the first were) & wente vp into the mount, and y two tables were in my hande.

Then wrote he in y tables (acordinge as the first wytyng was) the ten verses, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the tyme of the gathering together. And the LORDE gaue the vnto me. And I turned me, & wente downe from the mount, and layed the tables in the Arke which I had made, that they might be there, as the LORDE commaunded me.

And the childe of Israel departed from Beroth & vnto Jakan vnto Mosera (there dyed Aaron, & there was he buried: & Eleasar his sonne became priest in his steade.) Fro thence they departed from Gadgad. From Gadgad to Jathbath, a londe of ryuers of water. At the same season the LORDE separated out the trybe of Levi, to beare the Arke of the LORDES covenant, and to stonde before the LORDE, to minister vnto him, and to prayse his name vnto this daye. Therfore shal the Levites haue no porcion ner inheritaunce w their brethien: for the LORDE is their inheritaunce, as the LORDE thy God hath promysed them.

But I taried vnto the mount (like as aforetyme) fortye dayes and fortye nightes, and the LORDE herde me at that tyme also, and wolde not destroye the. But he sayde vnto me: Up, & get the forth, & thou mayest go before the people, & they may come in, and conquer the lode, which I swaie unto their fathers to geue them.

Now Israel, what requyret the LORDE thy God of the, but & thou feare the LORDE thy God, and that thou walke in all his wayes, & loue him, & serue the LORDE & God with all thy hart, & with all thy soule: and & thou kepe the commaundementes of & LORDE, & his ordinaunces, which I commaunde the this daye, & thou mayest prospere: Beholde, the heauen & the heauen of all heaues and the earth, and all & is therein, is & LORDE & God. & hath he had a pleasure unto & fathers, to loue the: and hath chosen their seide after the, namely you, aboue all nacions, as it is com to passe this daye.

Circumcise therefore & foreshynne of yd hert, & be nomore styffnecked. For the LORDE & God is God of all goddes, & LORDE ouer all lordes, a greate God, mightie & terry ble, which regardeth no personne, & taketh no giftes, and doeth righte vnto the fatherlesse and wedows, and loueth the stranger, to geue him sode & rayment. Therefore shal ye loue a stranger, for ye youre selues also were strangers in the londe of Egipte.

Thou shalt feare the LORDE thy God, him onely shalt thou serue, vnto him shalt thou cleue: & swaie by his name. He is thy prayse & & God, which hath done for & the se greates & terryble thinges, & thine eyes haue sene. Thy fathers were downe into Egipte & seuenye soules, but now hath & LORDE thy God made the: as & starres of heauen in multitude.

The XL Chapter.

Therefore shalt thou loue the LORDE & God, & kepe his commaundementes, his ordinaunces, his lawes, & his preceptes all & life lōge. And vnderstōde this daye, that which youre childre knowe not: Which haue not sene the nartoure of the LORDE & God, & his greatnesse, & his mightie hande, & his stretched out arme, & his tokens and actes which he dyd amonge the Egiptians, vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egipte, & to all his londe, & what he dyd to the power of & Egiptians, & vnto their houses & charettes, whan he broughte the waters of the reed see vpo them, as they folowed after you, & how & LORDE hath broughte them to naughte vnto this daye: & what he dyd vnto you in the wilderness, vntyll ye came vnto this place: what he dyd vnto Dathan and Abiram the children of Elisab the sonne of Ruben, how the earth opened hir mouth and swallowed them with their householdes & all their good that they had in the myddes amonge all Israel.

For youre eyes haue sene the greates woikes of & LORDE, which he hath done. Therefore shal ye kepe all the commaundementes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye maye be stronge to come in, and to conquer the londe, whither ye go to possesse it, & that ye maye lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE swaie vnto youre fathers, to geue vnto them and to their seide, eue a londe that floweth with mylke and hony: For the londe whither thou comest in, to possesse it, is not as the londe of Egipte, whence ye came out, where thou sowedest thy seide, and waterdest it at thy foote as a garden of herben but it hath hilles and valleyes, which drynke water of the rayne of heauen, a londe that the LORDE thy God careth for. And the eyes of the LORDE thy God are allwayes therein from the begynnyng of the yere vnto the ende.

If ye shal herken therfore vnto my commaundementes, which I commaunde you this daye, & ye loue the LORDE youre God, and serue him, with all youre hert and with all youre soule: then wyl I geue rayne vnto youre lōde in due season, early and late, that thou mayest gather in thy come, thy wyne and thine oyle: and I wyl geue grasse vpon thy felde for thy cattell, that ye maye eate & be fylled.

But beware, & youre hert be not disceined, that ye go asyde, & serue other goddes, & worshippe them, and then the wrath of the LORDE waxe whote vpo you, and he shal vpe the heauē, that there come no rayne, and the earth geue not hir increase, & ye perishe shortly from the good lōde, which the LORDE hath geuen you.

Put vpon therfore these my wordes in youre hertes and in youre soules, and byndeth for a signe vpon youre handes, & they maye be a token of remembraunce before yd eyes, and teach them youre children, so that thou talke therof, whan thou syttest in thine house, or walkest by the waye: whan thou lyest downe, and whan thou rysest vp: and wryte them vpon the postes of thine house, and vpon thy gates, that thou and thy children maye lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE swaie vnto thy fathers to geue them, as longe as the dayes of heauen endure vpon earth.

So: yf ye shal kepe all these commaund

mentes which I commaunde you, so that ye do therafter, that ye loue the LORDE youre God, and walke in all his wayes, and cleue vnto him, then shall the LORDE dryue out all these nacions before you, so that ye shall conquer greater and mightier nacions then ye youre selues are.

All the places that the soles of youre fete treade vpon, shalbe yours, from the wilderness, and from mount Libanus, and from the water Euphrates vnto & vttemost see shal youre coastes be. Now man shal be able to withstande you. The LORDE youre God shal let the feare and drede of you come vpon all & londes wherin ye go, like as he hath promysed you.

Beholde, I laye before you this daye the blessinge and the curse. The blessinge, yf ye be obedient vnto the commaundementes of the LORDE youre God, which I commaunde you this daye. The curse, yf ye wyl not be obedient to the commaundementes of the LORDE youre God, but turne out of the waye, which I commaunde you this daye, so that ye walke after other goddes, whom ye knowe not.

Whan & LORDE & God hath broughte the into the londe, whither thou comest in to possesse it, then shalt thou geue the blessinge vpon mount Gisim, and the curse vpon mount Ebal, which are beyonde Jordane the waye toward the goinge downe of the Sonne, in the lōde of the Cananites, which dwell in & playne felde ouer agaynst Gilgal, besyde the Oke groue of More. For ye shal go ouer Jordane, that ye maye come in to take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God hath geuen you, to conquer it, and to dwell therein. Take hede now therfore, that ye do acordinge vnto all the ordinaunces and lawes, which I laye before you this daye.

The XII. Chapter.

These are the ordinaunces and lawes which ye shal kepe, that ye do therafter in the londe, which the LORDE God of thy fathers hath geuen the to possesse, as longe as ye lyue vpon earth. Destroye all the places, wherin & heithen (whos ye shal conquer) haue serued their goddes, whether it be vpo hye mountaynes, vpo hilles, or amonge grene trees. And ouerthrowe their altars, and breake downe their pilers, and burne their grones with fyre, and hewe downe the ymages of their goddes, & brynge the names of them to naught out of the same place. Ye shal not do so vnto the LOR-

DE youre God: but the place, which & LORDE DE youre God shal chose out of all yd trybes (that he maye let his name dwell there) shal ye sele, and come thither, and thither shal ye brynge youre burnt sacrifices, & youre other offerynges, and youre riches and the heue offerynges of youre handes, and youre vowes, and youre fre wyll offerynges, and the first borne of youre oxen and sheper and there shal ye eate before the LORDE youre God, and reioyse ouer all that ye and youre houses haue geue with youre handes, because the LORDE thy God hath blessed the. Ye shall do none of the thinges, & we do here this daye, every man what semeth him good in his awne eyes, for ye are not yet come to rest, nor to & inheritaunce which the LORDE thy God shal geue the.

But ye shal go ouer Jordane, and dwell in the londe & the LORDE youre God shal dewyde out vnto you, & he shal geue you rest from all youre enemies rounde aboute, and ye shal dwell safe. Now whan the LORDE thy God hath chosen a place, to make his name dwell there, ye shal brynge thither all & I haue commaunded you, namely, yd burnt sacrifices, youre other offerynges, youre riches, the heue offerynges of youre handes, & all youre fre vowes, which ye shall vowe vnto & LORDE: and there shal ye eate, and reioyse before the LORDE youre God, ye and youre sonnes, and youre daughters, and youre seruautes, and youre maydes, and the Leuites that are within youre gates, for they haue no porcion nor inheritaunce with you.

Take hede vnto thy selfe, that thou offer not thy burnt offerynges in what so ever place thou seyst: but in the place which & LORDE shal haue chosen in one of thy trybes, there shalt thou offer thy burnt offerynges, and do all that I commaunde the. Not withstandinge thou mayest kyll and eate flesch within all thy gates, after all the desyre of thy soule, acordinge to the blessinge of the LORDE thy God, which he hath geue the: both the cleane and vncleane maye eate it, as of the Roe and herte, onely the bloude shalt thou not eate, but poure it out as water vpon the earth.

But within thy gates mayest thou not eate of the rythes of thy come, of thy wyne, & of thy oyle, nor of & first borne of thine oxen and of thy shepe, or of eny of thy vowes which thou hast vowed, or of thy fre wyll offerynges, or heue offerynges of thy handes: but before the LORDE thy God shalt thou eateth, in the place which the LORD thy God choiceth, thou and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, and the Leuite that is within thy gates, and thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God, ouer all that thou puttest thine hand vnto. And beware, that thou forsake not the Leuite, as long as thou lyest vpon the earth.

But when the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy borders of thy lande (as he hath promysed the) and thou sayest: I wil eate flesh (for so much as thy soule longeth to eate flesh) then eate flesh according to all the desire of thy soule. But yf the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen (to let his name be there) be farre from the, then kill of thy oxen and of thy shepe, which the LORD hath geuen the, as he hath commaunded the, and eate it within thy gates according to all thy desire of thy soule. Even as a Roode here is eaten, maist thou eate it both the cleane and vncleane maie eate it indifferently. Only beware, that thou eate not the bloude: for the bloude is the life. Therefore shalt thou not eate the life with the flesh, but shalt poure it out like water vpon the earth, and thou mayest prospere, and thy children after the, when thou hast done that which is righte in the sighte of the LORD.

But when thou hast vowed ought that is thine, or makest a vowe, thou shalt take it, and brynge it vnto the place, that the LORD hath chosen, and do thy burnt offerings with the flesh and bloude vpon the altare of the LORD thy God. The bloude of thine offering shalt thou poure vpon the altare of the LORD thy God, and eate the flesh. Take hede, and heare all these wordes, which I commaunde the, and it maye go well with the, and thy children after thee for ever, when thou hast done that which is righte and acceptable in the sighte of the LORD thy God.

When the LORD thy God hath roced one the, either before the, whether thou comest into conquire them, and when thou hast conquered them, and dwelt in their lande, beware then, that thou fall not in the snare after the, when they are destroyed before the: and that thou are not after their goddes, and sayest: As these nations have serued their goddes, so wil I do also. Thou shalt not do so vnto the LORD thy God. For all that is abhominacion vnto the LORD, and that he hateth, if same have they done vnto their goddes. For they have burne euen their sonnes and their daughters with fyre vnto their goddes.

All that I commaunde you, shall ye kepe that ye do thereafter. Ye shall put nothing thereto, neither take ought there from.

The XIII. Chapter.

Yf there rise vpon a prophet or dreamer amonge you, and geue the a token or a wonder, and that token or wonder which he spake of, cometh to passe, and then saye: Let vs go after other goddes (whom thou knowest not) and let vs serue the: Thou shalt not hearken vnto the wordes of such a prophet or dreamer.

For the LORD your God proueth you, to wete whether ye loue him with all your heart, and with all your soule. For ye shall walke after the LORD your God, and feare him, and kepe his commaundementes, and hearken vnto his voyce, and serue him, and cleue vnto him. As for that prophet or dreamer, he shall dye: because he hath spoken to turne you away from the LORD your God (which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, and deliuered you from the house of bondage) to thrust the out of the way, which the LORD thy God commaunded the to walke in, and so shalt thou put away the euill from the.

If thy brother, the sonne of thy mother, or thine awne sonne, or thy daughter, or thy wyfe in thy bosome, or thy frende which is vnto the as thine owne soule, enseye the secretly, and saye: Let vs go and serue other goddes (whom thou knowest not, nor yet thy father) which are amonge the nations round aboute you, whether they be nye vnto the or farre from the, from the one ende of the earth vnto the other: consente not vnto him, and hearken not vnto him. Thine eye also shalt thou not pity him, and thou shalt haue no compassion vpon him, nor kepe him secrete, but shalt cause him to be slayne: thine hande shalt be first vpon him, to cause him to be slayne, and then the handes of all the people. He shall be stoned to death, because he went aboute to thrust the away from the LORD thy God, which broughte the out of the lande of Egypte from the house of bondage: and all Israel maye heare, and feare him, and do no more such euill amonge you.

If thou hearest in any cite which the LORD thy God hath geuen the to dwell in, that it is sayde: There are certayne men, the children of Belial, gone out from amonge you, and haue disceaued the inhabitants of the cite, and sayde: let vs go, and serue other goddes, whom ye knowe not. Then shalt thou seeke, make search, and enquire diligently.

And yf it be founde of a truth, that it is so in dede, and such abheminacion is wrought amonge you, then shalt thou smyte the indwellers of the same cite and their catell, with the edge of the swerde, and damne the cite with all that is therein: and all the spoyle therof shalt thou gather together in the myddes of the stretes of it, and burne with fyre, both the cite and all the spoyle therof together vnto the LORD thy God, that it maye lye vpon a heape for ever, and neuer be buryed any more. And let nothinge of the damned thinge cleue vnto thy hande, that the LORD maye be turned from the indignacion of his wrath, and graunte the mercy, and haue compassion on the, and multiplie the (as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers) because thou hast hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, to kepe all his commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye, so that thou doest the thinge which is righte in the sighte of the LORD thy God.

The XIII. Chapter.

Ye are the children of the LORD your God, but not your selues therefore, and make you no baldnesse betwene your eyes ouer any deed. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORD thy God. And the LORD hath chosen the to be his awne peculiar people, from amonge all the nations that are vpon the earth.

Thou shalt eate no abhominacion. These are the bestes which ye shall eate: Oxen, shepe, Goates, Herts, Kodes, Bugles, wyld goate, Unicorne, Origen, and Camelion. And every best that denyeth his clawe, and cheweth cudd, shall ye eate. Nevertheless thise shall ye not eate of them that chewe cudd, and denye the hofte in to two clawes: The Camell, the haye, and the conye, for though they chewe cudd, yet denye they not the hofte, therefore shall they be vncleane vnto you. The swyne, though he denye the hofte, yet cheweth he not cudd, he shall be vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesh of the, and their deed carcases shall ye not touche.

This is it that ye shall eate of all that is in the waters: All that hath fynes and scales, shall ye eate. But what so ever hath no fynes nor scales, that shall ye not eate, for it is vncleane vnto you.

Eate of all cleane fowles. But these are they, wherof ye shall not eate: The Eagle, the Goshawk, the Cormorant, the Itron, the Vulture, the Rytte with his kynde, and all Ravens in their kynde, the Estriche, the Tighthe crowe, the Coo, the Sparrow hawk with his kynde, the litle Oule, the greate Oule, the Duck, the Byttre, the Swanne, the Pellicane, the Pye, the Stork, the Heron, the Jaye with his kynde, the Lapwinge, the Swallowe: And all fowles that crepe, shall be vncleane vnto you, and ye shall not eate them.

Ye shall eate of nothinge that dyeth alone: thou mayest geue it vnto a stranger with in thy gates, that he eate it, or sell it to a stranger. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not seeth a kydd, whyle it yet sucketh his mother.

Thou shalt separate out the tithes all the increase of thy seide, and cometh out of thy felde every yere: and shalt eate it before the LORD thy God (in the place which he choiceth, and his name maye dwell there) namely of thy oxen, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, and of thy shepe, and thou mayest lerne to feare the LORD thy God, all thy life longe.

But yf the waye be to much for thee, and the place, which the LORD thy God hath chosen to set his name there, be to farre from the: then thou canst not carry it that the LORD thy God hath blessed the withall, then geue it for money, and take money in thine hande, and go vnto the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen, and geue the money for all that thy soule desireth, whether it be oxen, shepe, wyne, stronge drynke, or for what so ever thy soule desireth, and eate there before the LORD thy God, and be merry, thou and thine household, and the Leuite that is within thy gates. Thou shalt not forsake him, for he hath no porcion nor inheritance with the.

In the thirde yere shalt thou brynge forth all the riches of thine increase of the same yere, and shalt laye it within thy gates. The shall the Leuite (which hath no porcion nor inheritance with the) and the stranger, and the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, which are within thy gates, come and eate, and fyll them selues, that the LORD thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thy handes which thou doest.

The XV. Chapter.

In the senyth yere shalt thou make a Fre yere. This is the maner of the Fre yere. The so ever ledest oughte with his hande vnto his neighbour, shall not requyre it of his neighbour or his brother: for it is called the Fre yere vnto the LORD. Of a stranger mayest thou requyre it: but vnto him that is thy brother, shalt thou remytte it. There shall be no begger amonge you: for the LORD shall blesse y in the lode which the LORD & God shall geue y to inheritaunce to take it in possession, one ly y thou herke vnto the voyce of the LORD & God, & kepe all these commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye, that thou maiest do thereafter. For the LORD & God shall blesse the, as he hath promysed the. The shalt thou lende vnto many nacions, & shalt borowe of noman. Thou shalt raigne ouer many nacions, & noman shall reigne ouer y.

When one of thy brethren is waxed poore in any cite within thy londe, which y LORD & God shall geue y, thou shalt not harden thine hert, ner withdrawe thine hande from thy poore brother: but shalt open thine hande vnto him, and lende him, accordinge as he hath nede.

Beware, that there be not a poynte of Belial in thine hert, that thou woldest saye: The seventh yeare, the yeare of freedome is at hande. For yf thou lokest not freely vpon thy poore brother, and geuest him nothinge then shall he crye ouer the vnto the LORD, and it shall be synne vnto the. But thou shalt geue him, and let it not greue thine hert that thou geuest him. For because of it, shall the LORD thy God blesse the in all thy workes, and in all that thou puttest thine hande vnto. The londe shall neuer be with out poore, therfore commaunde I the and saye, that thou open thine hande vnto thy brother, which is neady and poore in thy londe.

If thy brother as hebrue or hebruesse be solde vnto the, he shall serue the sixe yeare, in the seventh yeare shalt thou let him go fre. And whā thou deliuerest him fre, thou shalt not let him go from the empye, but shalt geue him of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of y wyne, so that thou geue him of that, which the LORD thy God hath blessed the with all. And remember that thou also wast a seruante in the lode of Egypte, and how that the LORD thy God deliuered the, therfore commaunde I the this thinge to daye.

C But yf he saye vnto the: I wyll not go out awaye from the, for I loue y and thine house (in so much as he is well at ease with the) then take a borkyn, and bore him thorrow his eare to the dore, and let him be thy seruante for ever. And with thy mayde shalt thou do likewise. And let it not seme greuous vnto the, to let him go fre from the (for he hath serued the sixe yeares as a dubble byred seruante) then shall the LORD thy God blesse the in all that thou doest.

All the first borne that come of thine oxen and shepe, y are males, shalt thou halowe vnto the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not plowe with the first borne of thine oxen, and shalt not clyppe the first borne of thy shepe. Before the LORD thy God shalt thou eat the every yeare, in the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen, thou and thine household.

But yf it haue a deformyte, so that it is lame or blynde, or hath any other euell blemish, thou shalt not offre it vnto y LORD thy God, but shalt eat it within thine awne gates: whether thou be vncleane or cleane, as the Roe and Zert. Onely se that thou eate not of the bloude therof, but poure it out as water vpon the grounde.

The XVI. Chapter.

Yserue the moneth Abib, y thou of fre Easter vnto the LORD thy God: for in the moneth Abib the LORD thy God broughte y out of Egypte by night. And for the Easter vnto y LORD thy God, thou shalt offre oxen & shepe, in y place which y LORD shall chose, y his name maye dwell there. Thou shalt eate no leued bled in y feast. Seven dayes shalt thou eate the vneleued bled of thy tribulacion. For with sorowfull haist camest thou out of the londe of Egypte, that thou mayest remember the daye of thy departinge out of y londe of Egypte, all y life longe. In seven dayes shall there no leued bled be sene within all thy coastes: & of the flesch that is offred y first daye at euen, there shall nothinge be lefte ouer night vntill the mornynge.

Thou mayest not offre Easter w in any of thy gates, which the LORD thy God hath geuen the: but in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there, there shalt thou offre this Easter, at euen when the Sonne is gone downe, euen in the same season that thou camest out of Egypte: and thou shalt dighe it, and eate it in the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen, and then turne the on the morowe, & go home in to thy tent. Sixe dayes shalt thou eate vneleued bled, and on the seventh daye is the gatheringe together of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt do no worke therein.

Seven weekes shalt thou nombre vnto y, and begynne to nombre when the syckle be gynneth in the come, and thou shalt kepe the. Feast of weekes vnto the LORD thy God, that thou geue a frewill offeringe of thine hande, accordinge as the LORD thy God hath blessed the, and shalt reioyse before the LORD thy God, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, and the Lewite that is within thy gates, y stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, that are amonge you, in the place which y LORD thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there. And remember, y thou wast a seruante in Egypte, so that thou feare and do these ordynaunces.

The feast of Tabernacles shalt thou kepe seven dayes, when thou hast gathered in the frutes of thy barne & of thy wyne presse, and thou shalt reioyse in thy feast, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, the Lewite, the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe that are within y gates. Seven dayes shalt thou kepe y feast vnto the LORD thy God, in the place that he hath chosen. For the LORD thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes and in all the workes of thine handes. Therfore shalt thou be glad.

The tymes in the yeare shall all thy males appeare before the LORD thy God (in the place that he shall chose) namely, in the feast of vneleued bled, in the feast of weekes, and in the feast of Tabernacles. He shall not appeare empye before the LORD, but every one after the giste of his hande, accordinge to the blessinge that the LORD thy God hath geuen the.

The XVII. Chapter.

Ydges & officers shalt thou ordeyne within all y gates, which y LORD thy God geueth the amonge thy trybes, y they maye iudge the people with righteous iudgment. Thou shalt not wrest the lawe. Thou shalt knowe no personne also, ner take giftes. For giftes blynde the eyes of y wyse, & peruerse y righteous causes. Let what righte is, y shalt thou followe, that thou mayest lyue & possesse the londe, which the LORD thy God shall geue the.

Thou shalt plante no grove (of what so ever trees it be) nye vnto the altare of the LORD thy God, which thou makest the. Thou shalt set the vp no piler, which y LORD thy God hatherh. Thou shalt offre vnto the LORD thy God no ore or shepe, that hath a blemish or any euell favourednesse on it: for that is abhominacion vnto the LORD thy God.

Yf there be founde amonge you (within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God shall geue y) a man or woman, that worketh wickednesse in y sighte of the LORD thy God, so that he transgresseth his conuenance and goeth, and serueth other goddes, & worshippeth them, whether it be Sone or Moire, or any of the hocste of heauen, which I haue not commaunded, and it is tolde the, & thou hearest of it, then shalt thou make diligent search therfore. And yf thou fyndest that it is so of a trouth, that such abhominacion is wroughte in Israel, then shalt thou brynge forth the same man or y same womā (which haue done such euell vnto thy gates and shalt stone them to death. At the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall he dye, that is worthy of death. At the mouth of one witness shall he not dye. The handes of the witnesses shall be the first to kyll him, and the y handes of all the people, that thou mayest put awaye the euell from the.

If a matter be to harde for the in iudgment betwixte bloude and bloude, betwixte plee and plee, betwixte stroke and stroke, and yf there be matters of stryfe within thy gates: then shalt thou ryse, and go vp vnto y place that y LORD thy God hath chosen: and shalt come to the prestes the Lewites, & to the iudge which shall be at that tyme, and shalt axe. They shall shewe the how to iudge, and thou shalt do thereafter, as they saye vnto the, in y place which the LORD hath chosen: and thou shalt take heed that thou do accordinge vnto all y they teach the. Accordinge to the lawe y they teach the, & after the iudgment that they tell y, shalt thou do: so that thou turne not asyde from y same, nerther to the righte hande ner to the left.

And yf any man deale presumptuously, so that he herteneth not vnto the prest (which stoneth to do seruice vnto the LORD thy God) or to the iudge, the same shall dye: and thou shalt put awaye the euell from Israel, that all y people maye heare, and feare, and be nomore presumptuous.

When thou art come in to y londe which the LORD thy God shall geue the, & takest it in possession, and dwellest therein, and shalt saie: I wil set a kinge ouer me, as all the nacions haue aboute me, the shalt thou set him to be kinge ouer the, whom the LORD thy God shall chose.

One of thy brethren shalt thou sette to be kinge ouer the. Thou mayest not set a stranger ouer the, which is not thy brother. Onely let him not haue many hoises, y he brynge not y people againe in to Egypte thorrow y multitude of hoises, for as much as y LORD hath sayde vnto you, that from hence forth ye shulde come nomore this waye agayne.

The LORD his God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, all these ordinaunces, so that he do ther-after. He shall not lifte up his herte aboue his brechren, and shall not turne asyde from the commaundement, nether to the right hander to the left, that he maye prologe his dayes in his Kingdome, he and his children in Israel.

Whan thou comest into the lande which the LORD thy God shall geue thee, thou shalt not lerne to do the abominacions of these nations, that there be not founde amonge you, that make his sonne or daughter go thorow the fyre, or a prophecier, or a choser out of dayes, or that regardeth the soules cryenge, or a witch, or a conurter, or soychsayer, or an expounder of tokens, or that doeth any thinge of the deed.

For who so ever doth soch, is abhominacion vnto the LORD: and because of soch ab-ominacions doth the LORD thy God brynge the out before the. But thou shalt be perfect with the LORD thy God. For these nations whom thou shalt conquer, whom the LORD thy God hath geuen thee, herten to the chosers out of dayes, and to the soychsayers: but so shalt thou do vnto the LORD thy God.

A prophecier, like vnto me, shall the LORD thy God raise the vp even out of the, and from amonge thy brechren, vnto him shall ye hearken, accordinge as thou desyrest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, (in the daye of gatheringe together) and saydest: Let me heare the voyce of the LORD my God nomore, and se nomore this greates fyre, that I dye not. And the LORD saide vnto me: They have well spoken. I wil raise them up a prophecier from amonge their brechren like vnto the, and wil put my wordes in his mouth, and he shall speake vnto them all that I shall commaunde him. And who so ever wil not hearken vnto my wordes, which he shall speake in my name, of him wil I requyre it.

But if a prophecier presume to speake ought in my name, which I have not commaunded him to speake: and he that speaketh in the name of other goddes, the same prophecier shall dye. But if thou saye in thine hert: How can I knowe what wordes the LORD hath not spoken? Even whan the prophecier speaketh in the name of the LORD, and the thinge followeth not, and cometh not to passe, the same is the worde, the LORD hath not spoken. The prophecier hath spoken it presumptuously, therfore be not afrayed of him.

The XIX. Chapter.

Whan the LORD thy God shall have roced out the nations, whose lande the LORD thy God shall geue thee, so that thou hast conquered them, and dwellest in their cities and houses, thou shalt appoynte the out thre cities in the myddes of the lande. The LORD thy God shall geue thee to possesse. Thou shalt prepare the waye, and parte the coastes of the lande (which the LORD thy God shall denyde out vnto the) in thre partes, that whosoever hath committed a slaughter, maye flye thither. And this shalbe the cause, that whosoever hath committed a slaughter maye flye thither, and lyve.

If any man smyte his neighboure in awarres, and hath not hated him in tyme passed (as whan a man goeth vnto the web with his neighbour to hew downe tymber, and hertneth his hande to the axe to hew downe the web, and the yron slippeth from the helme, and byteth his neighbour, that he dyeth) the same shall flye into one of these cities, that he maye lyve, lest the avenger of bloude followe after the deedlyer, why he hit him is whore, and overtake him, why he hit him is so farre, and slaye him, where as yet no cause of death is in hi, for so moch as he hated him not in tyme passed. Therfore commaunde I the, that thou appoynte out thre cities.

And whan the LORD thy God enlargeth thy borders, as he hath swome vnto thy fathers, and geueth thee all the lande which he promysed thy fathers to geue (so that thou kepe all these commaundementes, and do the LORD thy God, and walke in his wayes all the longe of thy lande) thou adde yet thre cities vnto these thre, that innocent bloude be not shed in thy lande (which the LORD thy God geueth thee to enheritaunce) and so bloude come vpon the.

But if any man beare hate agaynst his neighbour, and layeth waite for him, and ryseh agaynst him, and smyter him that he dye, and flyeth into one of these cities, then shall the Elders of the same cite sende thither, and cause him to be ferched from thence, and delyver him into the handes of the avenger of bloude, that he maye dye: thine eye shall not pitie him, and the gyltye bloude shall thou put awaye fro Israel, that thou mayest prospere.

Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's marke, which they of olde tyme have set in thine enheritaunce, that thou enheriteest in the lande, which the LORD thy God hath geuen thee to possesse it.

One witnesse shall not stonde vp alone agaynst a man, over eny trespase or synne, what maner of synne so ever it be, the a man can do, but in the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall every matter be stablished.

But if an unrighteous wytnesse stonde up agaynst any man, to testifie eny trespase vpon him, then shall both the men that stryue together, stonde before the LORD, before the prestes and Judges, which shall be at the same tyme. And the iudges shall make diligent inquisition: and if the witnesse be founde false, and hath geue false witness agaynst his brother, then shall ye do vnto him, men as he thoughte to do vnto his brother: that thou mayest put awaye the euill from the, that other maye heare and feare, and take nomore vpon them to do soch wicked poyntes amonge you. Thine eye shall not pitie him. Soule for soule, eye for eye, to the for the, hande for hande, foote for foote. Exod. 21. d

Whan thou goest out to battayll agaynst thine enemies, and seyst horses and charrettes of the people more then thou, be not afrayed of them: for the LORD thy God which brought thee out of the lande of Egypte, is with thee. Now what ye are come nye vnto the battayll, the prest shall steppe forth, and speake to the people, and saye vnto the: Heare Israel: Ye go this daye into the battayll agaynst your enemies, let not your herte faynte, feare not, be not afrayed, ner a drede of them. But if they wil not deale peaceably with the, and wyll warre with the, then besege it: and whan the LORD thy God delyvereth it into thy hande, thou shalt smyte all the males that are therein, with the edge of the swerde: save the women and the children. As for the cattell, and all that is in the cite, and all the spoyle, thou shalt take them vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath geuen thee. Thus shalt thou do vnto all the cities, that are very farre from the, and are not of the cities of these nations.

 DE thy God hath commaunded the, & they teache you not to do all & abhominacions, which they do vnto their goddes, z so ye to synne agaynst the LORDE your God.

Whan thou must lye a longe season before a cite, agaynst the which thou makest war-re to take it, thou shalt not destroye & trees therof that thou woldest hew them downe wth the axe, for thou mayest eate therof: and therfore shalt thou not hew them downe. For it is but woodd vpon the felde, and no man, and can not come z be bulwokes agaynst
 the. But the trees which thou knowest & me eate not of, those shalt thou destroye, and ro-te out, and make bulwokes therof, agaynst
 the cite that warreth with the, tyll thou haue overcome it.

The XXI. Chapter.

Whan there is one slayne founde in & londe which & LORDE & God shall geue & to possesse it, z lyeth in & felde, z it is not knowne who hath slaine him, then shal thy Elders z iudges go forth, and meet from the slayne vnto the cities that lye rounde aboute. Loke which cite is the nexte, & Elders of the same shal take a yonge cowe, which hath not bene laboured, ner hath drawe in the yocke, z they shal brynge her in to a valley, where as is necher earinge nor sowinge, and strike of hir heade there in the valley.

Then shal the prestes & children of Levi come forth. (For the LORDE thy God hath chosen them, to serue him, and to praye his name: and at their mouth shal all ples and strypes be tryed.) And all the Elders of the same cite shal come forth vnto the slayne, z

Wash their handes ouer & yonge cowe, who se heade is stricken of in the valley, and shal answere and saie: Oure handes haue not shed this bloude, nether haue oure eyes sene it. Be-mercifull (O LORDE) vnto thy people of Israel, wh^o thou hast deliuered, & laye no innocent bloude vnto thy people of Israels charge: then shal they be reconcyled from the bloude. Thus shalt thou put awaye the innocent bloude from the, in that thou doest the thinge whis is righte in the sighte of & LORDE.

Whan thou goest forth to warre agaynst thine enemies, z the LORDE thy God deliue-reth them in to thine handes, so that thou carriest awaye their prisoners, and seist ge the captyues a bewtyfull woman, z hauen a desyre vnto her to take her to thy wyfe, brynge her home to thine house, and let her shawe hir heade, and pare hir nayles, and put of hir clothes that she was taken prisoner in, and let her sit in thine house, and wor-ne for hir father and mother a moneth longe after that lye with her, and marry her, and let her be thy wyfe. But yf thou haue no se-uoure vnto her, then shalt thou let her go whither she wyll, and not to sell her, ner to make chensauce of her, because thou hast dishonoured her.

If a man haue two wyues, one that he loueth, and one that he hateth, and they be-re him children, both the beloued and the hated, so that the first borne be his that is hated, and the tyme cometh that he dealeth out the inheritance vnto his children, then can he not make the sonne of & beloued first borne before the first borne sonne of the hated, but he shall knowe the sonne of the hated for & first sonne, so that he geue him du-ble of all that is at hande: for the same is & begynnynge of his strength, z the firstborn righte is his.

If any man haue a stubborne and disobedient sonne, which herkeneth not vnto the voyce of his father, and mother, and when they teach him nurture, wyll not folow them, then shall his father and mother cale him, and brynge him to & Elders of their cite, and to the gate of the same place, and saie vnto the Elders of the cite: This our sonne is stobborne and disobediēt, and herkeneth not vnto oure voyce, and is a yote and a diontarde. Then shal all the men of & same cite stone him to death: and thus shalt thou put awaye the euell frō the, that all Israel maye heare and feare.

If a man haue commytted a synne & is worthy of death, and is put to death, so that he is hanged on tre, then shal not his bodye mayne all night on tre, but thou shalt burye him the same daye. (For cursed is he of God that is hanged) that thou desyle not thy lon-de, which the LORDE thy God geueth the to inheritance.

The XXII. Chapter.

If thou se thy brothers ore or shepe, go astray, thou shalt not withhold thy selfe from them, but shalt bryng the agayne vnto & brother. But yf & brother be not nye vnto the, z thou knowest him not, then shalt thou take the into thine house, &

they maye be to the, tyll & brother are after them, z then deliuer him the agayne. In lite manner shalt thou do with his Ass, & his rayment, z with every lost thinge of & brother, which he hath lost, z thou hast founde
 it: thou mayest not with drawe thy selfe.

If thou se thy brothers ore or Ass fallen downe by the waye, thou shalt not wth drawe thy selfe from him, but shalt helpe him vp.

A woman shall not reere & which perceiveth to a man, nether shal a man put on womans rayment. For who so ener doth soch, is abhominacion vnto & LORDE & God.

If thou chaunce vpon a byrdes nest by &
 waye in a tre, or on the grounde, with yonge & wth egges, and the dame syttinge vpon the yonge or vpon the egges, thou shalt not take the dame with the yonge, but shalt let the dame flye, and take the yonge, that thou mayest prosper and lye longe.

Whan thou buydest a new house, make a battlement aboute thy rose, that thou lade not bloude vpon thine house, yf any man fall therof.

Thou shalt not sowe thy vynyarde with dyuerse seedes, that thou halowe not to the falloferynge the seide which thou hast sowe-ne, with the increase of the vynyarde.

Thou shalt not plowe with an ore and an Ass together at one tyme.

Thou shalt not weere a garment, & is mix-te with wollen and linnen together.

Thou shalt make gardes vpon the fou-re quarters of thy garment, wherewith thou couerest thy selfe.

If a man take a wyfe, and hate her whan
 he hath lye with her, and layeth eny shamefull thinge vnto hir charge, and bryngeth vp an euell name vpon her, and sayeth: I co-reth this wyfe, z whan I cameto her, I founde her not a mayde. Then shal the father and mother of the damsell take her, and brynge forth the tokens of the damells virginite before the Elders of the cite, even vnto the gate. And & damells father shal saie vnto & Elders: I gaue this man my daughter to wyfe, now hateth he her, and layeth a shamefull thinge to hir charge, and sayeth: I founde not thy daughter a mayde. And lo, these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And they shal spiede out the clothe before the Elders of the cite. So shal the Elders of the cite take that man, and chastice him, and put a penance vpon him of an hundred cycles of syluer, and geue the same vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath brought vp an euell name of a may-de in Israel, and he shall haue her to wyfe, so & he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

 But yf it be of a truely, that the damsell is not founde a virgin, the shal she be brought forth vnto the doore of hir fathers house, and the me of the cite shal stone her to death, & because she hath wrought folly in Israel, and played the whore in hir fathers house. And so shalt thou put awaye the euell from the.

If a man be founde lienge with a womā that hath a married husbande, they shal dye both the man, z the womā that he hath lien withall. And so shalt thou put awaye euell from Israel.

If a mayde be handfasted to any man, z
 another man getteth her in the cite, z lyeth with her, ye shal brynge them both out vnto the gate of the cite, and stone them both, & they dye. The damsell, because she cryed not, beyng in the cite. The man, because he hath brought his neighbours wyfe to shame. And thou shalt put awaye the euell from the.

But yf a man get an handfasted damsell vpon the felde, and take her, and lye wth her,
 then the man that laye with her, shal dye alone, and vnto the damsell thou shalt do no-thinge: for she hath done no synne worthy of death. It is like an yf a man rose agaynst his neighbour, and slawe him, even so is this also. For he founde her in the felde, and the handfasted damsell cryed, and there was no man to helpe her.

If a man fynde a mayde that is not hab-fested, and take her, and lye with her, and be founde, then shal he that laye with her, geue hir father fyfrie cycles of syluer, and shall haue her to wyfe, because he hath shamed her: he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

Tomā shal take his fathers wyfe, ner vncouer his fathers couerynge.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Where shal none that hath his stones broken or & is gelded, come in to the cōgregation of the LORDE. There shal no whores childe also come in to the cōgregation of & LORDE, no not after & tenth and turned the curse to a blessing vnto the because the LORDE & God loved the. Thou shalt wyssh him nether prosperite ner healtch all thy life longe for ever. Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite: for he is thy brother.

Gen. 25. c.

An Egyptian shalt thou not abhorre, for thou wast a stranger in his londe. The children whom they beget in the thirde generation, shall come in to the congregacion of & LORDE.

1. p. 6. b

* Whā thou goest out to fighte agaynst thine enemies, kepe the from all wickednesse.

If there be eny man amonge you which is uncleane, so that eny thinge is chaunced to him by nyghte, the same shal go out of & hoost vntyll he haue bathed himselfe with water before euen: and whan the Sonne is gone downe, he shall come in to the hoost agayne.

And without the hoost thou shalt haue place to resorte vnto for necessarye, & thou shalt haue a shouell vnder the gyidle: and whan thou wilt set & downe without, thou shalt dygge therewith: and whan thou hast done thine easement, thou shalt couer that which is departed from the. For the LORDE thy God waltech in thine hooste, to deliuer the, and to geue thine enemies before the. Therfore shall thy hooste be holy, that he se no uncleane thinge in the, and so turne himselfe from the.

Thou shalt not deliuer vnto his master the seruante, which is escaped fro him vnto the. He shall dwell with the in the place that he choseth within eny of thy gates, for his wealth, and thou shalt not vex him.

There shall be no whore amonge & daughters of Israel, nether whorkeper amonge the sonnes of Israel. * Thou shalt not bringe & hyre of an whoore ner the puce of a dogg in to the house of the LORDE & God for eny maner of vowe: for they both are abhominacion vnto the LORDE thy God.

Thou shalt occupye no vsury vnto & brother, nether with money, ner with fode, ner with eny maner thinge that vsury maye be used withall. (Vnto a stranger thou maiest lende vnto vsury, but not vnto thy brother) & the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in all & thou takest in hāde, in the lōde whither thou comest in to possesse it.

Act. 5. a

Whan thou makest a vowe vnto & LORDE & God, to shalt not be slacke to performe it: for the LORDE thy God shal requyre it of the, and it shal be synne vnto the. If thou leave vowing, then is it no synne vnto the. But that which is proceeded out of & lyp-pes shalt thou kepe, and do thereafter, accordinge as thou hast vowed vnto the LORDE of a freewyll, which thou hast spoken wth thy mouth.

Whan thou goest in to thy negheours myarde, thou mayest eate of the grapes accordinge to thy desyre, tyll thou haue ynough. But thou shalt put none in to thy vessel.

* Whan thou goest in thy negheours vinefelde, thou mayest plucke the eares with thine hande, but with a syccle mayest thou not reape therein.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Whan a man taketh a wife, and marrieth her, and she findech no fauoure in his eyes because of eny vncleannesse, the shal he wyte a byll of denoimēt, and geue it her in hir hāde, and sende her out of his house. If whan she is gone out of his house, she go, and be another mans wyfe, and the same seconde man hate her also, & wyte a byll of denoimēt, and geue it her in hir hande, and sende her out of his house. Or if the same seconde man dye, which tooke her to wife, then hir first husbāde that put hir awaie, maie not take hir againe to be his wife, in so moch as she is defyled, for that is abhominacion before the LORDE: that thou make not the lōde to synne, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the to enheritance.

Whan a man hath newly taken a wyfe, he shall not go anwarre fare, nether shall he be charged withall. He shal be fre in his house one yeare longe, that he maye be merry wth his wife which he hath taken.

Thou shalt not take & nethermost and vppermost myffone to pledge, for he hat set & his lynnyng to pledge.

If eny man be founde that stealeth one of his brethren, from amonge the childre of Israel, and setteth him to pledge, or selleth him soch a thefe shal dye, that thou maiest put a waye the euill from the.

Kepe the from the plage of leprosie, that thou observe diligently and do accordinge vnto all that the priestes the Leuites teach the, as I haue commanded them, & shal observe and do thereafter. Remember what the LORDE thy God byd vnto Miriam by the waye, whan ye were come out of Egypte.

If thou lendest & brother eny bette, thou shalt not go into his house, and take a pledge, but shalt stonde without: and he, to whō thou lendest, shal brynge out his pledge vnto the. But if it be a poore body, thou shalt not lye downe to slepe, with his pledge, but shalt deliuer him his pledge agayne, whan the Sonne goeth downe, that he maye slepe in his awne rayment, and blesse the, so shall the same be reckned vnto the for righteounes before the LORDE thy God.

Thou shalt not withdraue the hyre of & nedye and poore amonge thy brethren, or stranger that is in thy lōde, or within thy gates, but shalt geue him his hyre the same daye, that the Sonne go not downe thereon, for so moch as he is nedye, and his life susteyned therewith: that he call not vpon the LORDE agaynst the, and it be synne vnto the.

The fathers shal not dye for the children, ner the childre for the fathers, but every one shal dye for his awne synne.

Thou shalt not wrest the righte of the stranger and of the fatherlesse. And if redowes rayment shalt thou not take to pledge: for thou shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruante in Egypte, and how that & LORDE thy God deliuered the from thence, therfore commaunde I the to do this.

Whan thou hast reaped downe thine harvest in the felde, and hast forgotten a shefe in the felde, thou shalt not turne agayne to fetch it, but it shal be for the stranger, & fatherlesse and the wedowe, that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thy handes.

Whan thou hast plucked thine Olyue tree, thou shalt not plucke them vp cleane afterwarde: it shal be for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe. Whan thou hast gathered thy vynyarde, thou shalt not gather it vp cleane afterwarde: it shal be for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe. And thou shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruante in the lōde of Egypte: therfore commaunde I the to do this.

The XXV. Chapter.

Whan there is a stryfe betwene men, they shal be brought before & lawe and iudged: and the iudges shal iustifye the righteous, and condemne the vngodly. And if the vngodly haue deserued stryfes, the iudge shal commaunde to take him downe, and they shal beate him before him, accordinge to the measure and nombre of his trespass. Whan they haue geue him fortye stryfes, they shal beate him nomore, lest (if there be mo stryfes genen him) he be beate to moch, and thy brother be horrible before thine eyes.

Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of the ore, that treadeth out the come.

Whan brethren dwell together, and one of them dye without children, then shall not & wife of the dead take a straunge man with out, but hir kynsman shal go in vnto her, and take her to wyfe: and the first sonne that she beareth, shal be set vp after the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel.

But if the man wyl not take his kynswoman, then shal his kynswoman go vp vnder the gate to the Elders, and saye: My kynsman refuseth to stire vp a name vnto his brother in Israel, and wyl not marie me. Then shal the Elders of the cite call him, and comen with him. If he stonde then and saye: I wyl not take her, then shal his kynswoman steppe forth vnto him before the Elders, and lowse a shue fro his fore, and spyt in his face, and shal ansivere, and saye: Thus shal it be done vnto every man, that wyl not builde his brothers house. And his name shal be called in Israel, the vnschodd house.

If two women stryue together, and the wyfe of one renne to, to deliuer hir husbāde from the hande of him that smyteth him, & put forth hir hande, and take him by the secretes, then shalt thou cut of hir hande, and thine eye shal not pitie her.

Thou shalt not haue in & bagg two manner of weightes, a greate and a small. Neither shalt thou haue in thine house dyuerse measures, a greate and a small. Thou shalt haue a perfecte and iust weighte, and a perfecte and iust measure, that thy life maye be longe in the lōde, which the LORDE & God shal geue the. For who so ener doth soch (yea all they that do euill) are abhominacion vnto the LORDE thy God. * Remembre what the Amalechites did vnto the by the waye, whā ye were departed out of Egypte, how they buckled with the by the waye, and smote thy hymnost, euen all that were feble, which came after the whan thou wast weerye and fainte, and they feared not God. Nowe ha the LORDE thy God bryngeth the, to rest fro all thine enemies rounde aboute in the lōde which the LORDE thy God geuech the for inheritance to possesse, then shalt thou put out the remembraunce of the Amalechites from vnder heauen. Forget not this.

Exo. 17. c

The XXVI. Chapter.

Whan thou comest into the lōde that the LORDE thy God shal geue the to inheritance, and enioyest it, and dwellest therein, thou shalt take of all maner, first frutes of the londe, that come out of thy ground, which the LORD thy God geueth thee, and shalt put them in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the LORD thy God shal chose (if his name maye dwell there) and thou shalt come vnto the priest which shalbe at that tyme, and saye vnto him: I knowlege this daye vnto the LORD thy God, that I am come in to the londe, which the LORD swaue vnto oure fathers to geue vs. And the priest shal take the maunde out of thine hande, and set it downe before the altare of the LORD thy God.

Then shalt thou answer and saye before the LORD thy God: The Syrians wolde haue destroyed my father, which were downe in to Egypte, and was a straunger there with a small folke, and became there a nation great, mightie and full of people. But the Egyptians increased vs euell, and troubled vs, and layed an harde bondage vpon vs. Then cried we vnto the LORD, the God of oure fathers. And the LORD herde oure cryenge, and led us out of oure aduersite, labour, and oppressio, and brought vs out of Egypte with a mighty hande, and stretched out arme, and with greates terryblenesse thou hast brought us vnto this place, and hath geuen vs this londe, that floweth with mylke and hony. Therfore bringe I now the first frutes of the londe, which the LORD hath geuen vs. And thou shalt leaue them before the LORD thy God, and geue thanks before the LORD thy God, and reioyse ouer all the good, that the LORD thy God hath geuen thee, and thyne house: thou and the Leuite, and the straunger that is with thee.

When thou hast brought together all thy frutes of thine increase in the thirde yere, which is a yere of tithes, thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, to the straunger, to the fatherlesse, and to the wedowe, that they maye eate within thy gates, and be filled. And thou shalt saye before the LORD thy God: I haue brought that halowed is, out of my house, and haue geuen it vnto the Leuite, the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, accordinge to all thy commaundement which thou hast comaunded me. I haue not transgressed thy commaundementes, ner forgotten them. I haue not eaten thereof in my house, ner taken awaye thereof in violence. I haue not geuen thereof vnto the deed. I haue bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD my God, and haue done all as he hath commaunded me. Take downe from thy holy habitacion, from heauen, and blesse thy people of Israel, and the londe that thou hast geuen vs, as thou swarest vnto oure fathers, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony.

In the daye when the LORD thy God commaunded thee, to do accordinge vnto all these ordinances and lawes, that thou shuldest kepe them and do therafter with all thy heart and with all thy soule. The same daye maydest thou a promysse vnto the LORD, that he shulde be thy God, and thou wouldest walke in all his wayes, and kepe his ordinances, his commaundementes, and his lawes, and to hearken vnto his voyce. And the LORD promysed the vpon the same daye, that thou shuldest be his awne peculiar people, like as he hath sayde vnto the (so thou kepe all his commaundementes) and that he wolde make the hye in prayse name and honoure aboue all nations which he hath made. Thou mayest be an holy people vnto the LORD thy God, as he hath sayde vnto thee.

The XXVII. Chapter.

And Moses with the Elders of Israel commaunded the people, and sayde: Kepe all the commaundementes which I comaunde you this daye. And what time as ye go ouer Jordane, in to the londe, the LORD thy God shal geue thee, thou shalt set vp greates stones, and playster them with playster, and wyte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe: (when thou art come ouer) and thou mayest come in to the londe, which the LORD thy God shall geue thee, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony, as the LORD thy God of thy fathers hath promysed thee.

Now when ye go ouer Jordane, ye shall set vp these stones (whereof I comaunde you this daye) vpon mount Ebal, and playster them with playster: and there shalt thou buyde vnto the LORD thy God an altare of stone, whereupon thou shalt lifte no yron. Of whole stones shalt thou builde this altare vnto the LORD thy God, and offre burnt offerings thereon vnto the LORD thy God: and thou shalt offre heale offerings, and eate there, and reioyse before the LORD thy God: and vpon the stones thou shalt wyte all the wordes of this lawe manifestly and well.

And Moses with the prestes and Levites spake vnto all Israel, and sayde: Take heed and heare O Israel: This daye are thou become the people of the LORD thy God, that thou mayest be obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, and do accordinge vnto all his commaundementes and ordinances, which I comaunde thee this daye.

And Moses charged the people the same daye, and sayde: These shal stonde vpon mount Gufim to blesse the people, when ye are gone ouer Jordane: Simeon, Levi, Iuda, Isachar, Joseph, and Ben Jamin. And these shal stonde vpon mount Ebal to curse: Ruben, Gad, Asser, Zabulon, Dan, and Nephthali. And the Levites shal begynne, and saye vnto every man of Israel, with a loude voyce:

Cursed be he, that maketh any carved ydole or molten ymage (an abhominacion of the LORD, a worke of the handes of yecraftesman) and putteth it in a secreete place. And all the people shal answer and saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that curseth his father and mother. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that remoneth his neighbours mark. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that maketh a blynde man go out of his waye. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that wresteth the righte of the stranger, of the fatherlesse, and the wedowe. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his fathers wife, to vncover his fathers couerynge. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with any maner beest. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his sister, which is the daughter of his father or of his mother. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his mother in lawe. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he that slayeth his neighbour secretly. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that receaueth giftes to slaye the soule of innocent bloude. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that conryneth not in all the wordes of this lawe, to do them. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

And if thou shalt hearken vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, to observe and do all his commaundementes which I comaunde thee this daye, then shall the LORD thy God set thee an hye aboue all nations vpon earth, and all these blessinges shal come vpon thee, and overtake thee, becau se thou hast bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde. Blessed shalt thou be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy ground, and the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thine oren, and the frute of thy shepe. Blessed shalt thou be thy basket, and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and blessed when thou goest out. And thine enemies that rise vp agaynst thee, shal the LORD cause to be smytten before thy face. They shal come out agaynst the one waye, and flye before the seven wayes.

The LORD shal commaunde the blessinge to be with thee in thy cellers, and in all that thou takest in hande, and shal blesse thee in the londe that the LORD thy God hath geuen thee. The LORD shal set thee vp to be an holy people vnto himselfe (as he hath sworn vnto thee) if thou kepe the commaundementes of the LORD thy God: so that all nations vpon earth shal see, that thou art called after the name of the LORD: and they shal be afrayed of you. And the LORD shal make thee plenteous in goodes, in the frute of thy wombe, in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy ground, in the londe that the LORD swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue thee.

And the LORD shal open vnto thee his good treasure, euen the heauen, to giue raine vnto thy londe in due season, and to prosper all the workes of thine handes. And thou shalt lede vnto many nations, but thou shalt borowe of no man. And the LORD shal set thee before, and not behynde: and thou shalt be about only, and not benethe, if thou be obedient vnto the commaundementes of the LORD thy God, which I comaunde thee this daye to kepe and to do them: and if thou bowe not asyde from any of these wordes, which I comaunde thee this daye, either to the righte hande or to the lefte, thou wouldest walke after other goddes to serue them.

But if thou wylt not hearken vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, to kepe and to do all his commaundementes and ordinances, which I comaunde thee this daye, then shall all these curses come vpon thee, and overtake thee. Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, and cursed in the felde: cursed shalt thy basket be, and thy store. Cursed shall be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy londe, the frute of thine oren, and the frute of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The LORD shal sende in to thee, consuming, and complayninge, and cursynge, in all that thou takest in hande to do, tyll he haue destroyed the & shortly broughte to the naughte, because of thy wicked inuencions, in that thou hast forsaken me.

C The LORDE shall make the pestylence to byde longe with the, tyll he haue consumed the out of the londe, in to the which thou comest to possesse it. The LORDE shall smyte the with swellynge, fevers, heate, burnynge, venoms, drowth, and palenesse, & shall persecute the, tyll he haue destroyed the.

Deu. 10. 6 Thy heauen, that is ouer thy heade, shalbe of brasse, and the earth vnder the, of yron. The LORDE shall geue thy londe dust for rayne, and asshes from heauen vpon the, vntill thou be broughte to naughte. The LORDE shall cause the be smytten before thine enemyes. Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst them, and seven wayes shalt thou flye before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes vpon earth. Thy carcase shalbe meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and to all the beestes vpon earth, and there shalbe no man to fraye them awaye.

Rich. 3. b 1 Cor. 1. 6 The LORDE shall smyte the with & botches of Egypte, with the Emorodes, with scalle, and maungynesse, that thou shalt not be healed therof. The LORDE shall smyte the with madnesse, blyndnesse and dasyng of hert. And thou shalt grope at the noone daye, as & blynde gropeth in darknesse, and shalt not prospere in thy waye. And thou shalt suffre violence and wronge all thy lifelonge, & no man shal helpe & . Thou shalt sponse a wife, but another shal lye with her. Deu. 20. 19 Thou shalt buyde an house, but another shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plante a vnyarde, but shalt not make it comen.

D Thine ore shalbe slayne before thine eyes, but thou shalt not eate therof. Thine asse shalbe violently taken awaye (even before & face) and shal not be restored & againe. Thy shepe shalbe geuen vnto thine enemies, and no man shal helpe the. Thy sonnes and thy daughters shalbe geuen vnto another nation, and thine eyes shal se it, and dase vpon them all the daye longe, and thy hande shal not be able to deliuer them. The frute of & londe and all & labour, shall a nacion eate, which thou knowest not: and thou shalt but onely be her that shalbe oppressed and suffre wronge, all the dayes of thy life. And thou shalt be cleane besyde thy selfe for the sighte, which thine eyes shal se.

The LORDE shall smyte the with a myseriuous botch in & knes & legges, so that thou canst not be healed, even from the sole of thy fote vnto the crowne of thy heade.

The LORDE shall brynge the and thy kynge (which thou hast set ouer the) vnto a nation, whom thou knowest not, nether thy fathers: and there shalt thou serue other goddes, even woodd and stone: and thou shalt go to waist, and become a byworde, & a laughing stocke amonge all nations, whither & LORDE hath caryed the.

Thou shalt cary out moch sode into & feld, and shalt gather but litle in: for the grefhoppers shal destroye it. Thou shalt plante vnyardes and dresse the, but thou shalt nether drynte of the wyne, ner gather of & grapes: for & wormes shal consume it. Thou shalt haue Olynetrees in all & coastes, but shalt not be anoynted with the oyle: for thyne Olive trees shalbe roted out. Thou shalt get sonnes and daughters, and yet not haue them: for they shal be caried awaye captiue. All thy trees and frutes of thy londe shal be marred with blastynge.

The straunger that is with &, shal dymme vp ouer the, and be allwaye aboue the but thou shalt come downe alowe, and lye euer beneath. He shal lende vnto the, but thou shalt not lende him. He shalbe before, but thou shalt be behynde.

And all these curses shall come vpon the, and folowe the, and ouertake &, tyll thou be destroyed, because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE & God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the. Therefore shalt thou be betokens and wonders vpon the, & vpon thy fode for euer, because thou hast not serued & LORDE thy God with a ioyfull and good hert, whan thou haddest abundaunce of all thinges. And therefore shalt thou serue thine enemye, which the LORDE shall sende vpon the, in hunger and thyrst, in nakednesse, and neede of all thinge: & he shal put a yocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntill he haue broughte the to naughte.

The LORDE shall brynge a nacion vpon the from farre, even from the ende of & worlde, as a flyenge Aegle: a people, whose spech thou canst not vnderstande, an hard favoured people, which regarde not the personne of the olde, ner haue compassion on the yonge. And they shal eate vp & frute of thy catell, & the frute of thy londe, tyll they haue destroyed the, and shall leaue the thinge in corne, wyne, oyle, in the frute of & oren and shepe, vntill they haue broughte the to naughte: and shal laye sege vnto the & in all thy gates, tyll they cast downe thy hye and stronge walles, wherein thou trustest thorow out all thy londe. And thou shalt be beseged within all thy portes, thorow out all thy londe which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the.

Deu. 32. 10 Thou shalt eate the frute of thine awne body, the fleshy of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, which the LORDE & God hath geue the, in that straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shall besege the: so that it shal greue the man & afore hath lyned tenderly and in voluptuousnes amonge you, to lye vpon his brother and vpon his wife & lyeth in his bosome, and on the sonne that is left ouer of his sonnes, lest he shulde geue any of them of the fleshy of his children that he eateth, in as moch as there is no thinge left him in that straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shal besege & within all thy gates. And the woman that afore hath lyned so tenderly and voluptuously amonge you, that she durste not set the sole of hir fote vpon the grounde for tendernes and voluptuousnes, shal be greued to lye vpon hir husbände that lieth in hir bosome, and on hir sonne, and on hir daughter: even because of hir daughters which she hath nourished betwixte hir legges in hir lappe, and because of hir sonnes that she hath borne: for she shall eate them secretly for very scarcenesse of all thinges, in the straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shal besege & within thy gates.

Deu. 32. 15 If thou wilt not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe which are wrytten in this boke, that thou mayest feare this glorious and fearfull name, euen the LORDE thy God, then shalt the LORDE entreate & wonderously, with plagues vpon & and thy fode, yee with greate and continuall plagues, with euell and contynuall sickneses, and shal brynge vpon & all & sickneses of Egypte (wherof thou wast a frayed) and they shal cleue vnto the. Therto all maner sickneses and all maner plagues, which are not wrytten in the boke of this lawe, shal the LORDE thy God cause to come vpon the, vntill he haue destroyed the. And there shal be left but a fewe people of you, which afore were as the starres of heauen in multitude: because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God.

Deu. 32. 16 And as & LORDE reioysed ouer you afore, so shal he reioyse ouer you, to destroye you, and to brynge you to naughte, and ye shalbe waysted from of the londe, whither thou goest now to possesse it. For the LORDE shal scatter the amonge all nations, from the one ende of the worlde vnto another, and there shalt thou serue other goddes, whom thou knowest not, ner yet thy fathers, euen woodd and stone.

And amonge those same nations shalt thou haue no quyetnesse, nether shal the sole of & fote haue eny rest: for the LORDE shal geue the there a fearfull hert, and dasyng of eyes, and a troubled soule, so that thy life shal hage before the: Night and daye shalt thou feare, and shalt haue no trust in thy life. In the mornynge thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me the enemyng? And at euen shalt thou saye: Who shal geue me the mornynge? For the very greate feare of thine hert, which shal make the a frayed: and for the sighte of thine eyes which thou shalt se.

And the LORDE shal brynge the agayne in to Egypte by shippe fulles, euen thorow the waye wherof I sayde vnto the: Thou shalt se it no more: and there shal ye be solde vnto your enemies for bonde seruantes and bonde maidens, and there shal be no man to bye you.

The XXX. Chapter.

Deu. 32. 17 These are & wordes of the conenaunt, which the LORDE commaunded Moyses to make w the children of Israel in the londe of the Meabites, besyde & conuenaunt which he made with them in Horeb. And Moyses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the LORDE dyd before youre eyes in the londe of Egypte, vnto Pharaos with all his seruantes, and all his londe, the greate tentacions which thine eyes haue sene, that they were greate tokens and wonders. And yet vnto this daye hath not the LORDE geuen you an hert that vnderstandeth, eyes that se, & eares that heare.

He hath caused you to walke fortye yeres in the wyldernes. Your clothes are not waxed olde vpon you, nether is thy shue waxed olde on thy fote. Ye haue eaten no bred, and drunken no wyne, ner stronge drynke, that ye might knowe, that he is & LORDE your God.

And whan ye came vnto this place, Sihon the kynge of Heshbon, and Og & kynge of Basan, came out agaynst vs vnto battayll, and we smote them, and toke their londe, and gaue it to inheritaunce vnto 3 Rubenites and Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of the Manassites. Repe now therfore the wordes of this couenaunt, and do therafter, that ye maye haue vnderfundinge in all that ye do.

Restonde this daye all before the LORD your God, the chiefe rulers of youre trybes, youre Elders, youre officers, every man in Israel, youre children, youre wyues, 3 straungers that are in thynne hoost, from the hewer of 3 wodde vnto 3 drawer of 3 water: that thou shuldest enter in to the couenaunt of the LORD thy God, and in to the ooth which the LORD thy God maketh with the this daye, that he might set the vp this daye to be a people vnto himself, and that he might be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he swaie vnto 3 fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

For I make not this couenaunt and this ooth with you onely, but both with you 3 are here this daye, and stonde with vs before the LORD our God, and also with them that are not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe how we haue dwelt in the londe of Egypte, and how we came thorow the myddes of the heithen, whom ye passed by, and sawe their abominacions and their Idols, wodde and stone, syluer and golde, which were with them: Lest there be amoge you man or woman, or an housholde, or a trybe, which turneth awaye his hert this daye from the LORD our God, to go and to serue 3 goddes of these nacions: and lest there be amonge you some rote, that beareth gall 3 worme: so that though he heare the wordes of this curse, he blesse him selfe yet in his hert, and saye: Tush, it shal not be so euell. I wil walke after the meanyng of myne awne hert, that the drunken maye perishe with the thystie.

Then shal not the LORD be mercifull vnto him, but his wrath and gelousy shal smote ouer soch a man, and all the curses that are wyrtten in this boke, shal lichte vpon him: and the LORD shal put out his name from vnder heauen, and shal separate him vnto euell out of all the trybes of Israel, acordinge vnto all the curses of the couenaunt, that is wyrtten in the boke of this lawe.

So the posterities of youre childre which shal ryse vp after you, and the straungers that come out of farre countrees, shall saye (whan they se the plagues of this londe, and the diseases wherewith the LORD hath smytten it) that he hath brent vp all that londe with brymstone and salt, so 3 it can not be sowne, ner is frutefull, nether groweth there eny grasse therein. Like as Sodom, Gomor, Adama and Zeboim are ouerthrowne, which the LORD overthrew in his wrath and anger.

Then shall all nacions saye: Wherfore hath the LORD done thus vnto this londe? What greate wrothfull displeasure is this? Then shal it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the couenaunt of 3 LORD God of their fathers (which he made with them whan he brought them out of the londe of Egypte) and they wote, and serued other goddes, and worshipped the, euen soch goddes as they knewe not, and whom he had not deuyled vnto them. Therfore the wrath of the LORD wared whore ouer this londe, to brynge vpon it all the curses that are wyrtten in this boke. And the LORD thrust them out of their londe w greute wroth, indignacion 3 displeasure 3 hath cast them into another londe, as it is come to passe this daye.

These are the secretes of the LORD our God, which are opened vnto vs and our children for ever, 3 we shulde do all the wordes of this lawe.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now whan all this cometh vpon the, whether it be the blessinge or 3 curse which I haue layed before the, and thou goest in to thine hert, beyng amoge the heithen, whither the LORD thy God hath thrust the, and thou turnest vnto the LORD 3 God, so that thou herkenest vnto his voyce, thou and thy children with all 3 hert and with all thy soule, in all that I commaunde the this daye, then shal the LORD thy God turne thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and shal gather thy congregacion agayne from amonge all the nacions, whither the LORD thy God hath scattered the.

And though thou werest thrust out vnto the vtremost partes of the heauen, yet shal the LORD thy God gather the from thence, and from thence shal he fetch the, and shal brynge the in to the londe, which thy fathers haue possessed, and thou shalt enioye it, and he shal do the good, and multiplye the abode thy fathers.

And the LORD thy God shall circumspect thine hert, and the hert of thy seide, that thou mayest loue the LORD 3 God with all thy hert and with all 3 soule, that thou mayest lyue. But all these curses shall the LORD thy God laye vpon thine enemyes, and vpon them that hate the and persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and herken vnto the voyce of the LORD, to do all his commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye. And the LORD thy God shal make the plenteous in all the workes of thine handes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catell, in the frute of thy londe to good.

For the LORD shall turne, to reioyse ouer the to good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers, so that thou herken vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God (to kepe his commaundementes and ordinances, which are wyrtten in the boke of this lawe) and turne vnto the LORD thy God with all thy hert and with all thy soule.

For the commaundement which I commaunde 3 this daye, is not to wonderfull for the, ner to farre, ner yet in heauen, that thou needest to saye: Who wil go vp for vs in to heauen, and brynge it vnto vs, that we maie heare it and do it? Nether is it beyonde the see, that thou needest to saye: Who wyll go ouer the see for vs, and fetch it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? For the worde is verynne vnto the, euē in thyn mouth and in thine hert, that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue layed before you this daye, life and good, death and euill. For I commaunde the this daye, to loue the LORD thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, ordinances, and lawes, that thou mayest lyue and multiplye, and that the LORD thy God maye blesse the in the londe, whither thou goest to possesse it.

But yf thou turnest awaye thine hert, so that thou wilt not heare, but fall a waye, to worshippe other goddes and to serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shal perishe, 3 not lyue longe in the londe, whither thou goest ouer Jordane to possesse it.

I take heauen and earth this daye to recorde ouer you: I haue layed before you life and death, blessinge and cursinge, that thou mayest chose life, and that thou and thy seide maye lyue, 3 ye maye loue the LORD your God, and herken vnto his voyce, and cleue vnto him: For he is thy life and thy longe age: that thou mayest dwell in the londe, which the LORD swaie vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue them.

The XXXI. Chapter.

And Moses wente, 3 spake these wordes to all Israel, and saide vnto them: I am this daye an hundred and twety yeare olde, I can nomore go out and in to the LORD also hath sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. The LORD thy God himselfe shal go before the ouer Jordane: and he himselfe shal destroye these nacions before the, that thou mayest conquere them: and Josua he shal go ouer before the, as the LORD hath sayde. And the LORD shal do vnto them, as he dyd vnto Sihon and Og the kynges of the Amorites and vnto their lode, which he destroyed.

Now whan the LORD shal deliuer the before you, ye shal do vnto them acordyng vnto all the commaundementes which I haue commaunded you. Be manly and stronge, feare not, and be not a frayed of them. For the LORD thy God himselfe shal go with the, and shal not faile the, ner forsake the.

And Moses called Josua, and sayde vnto him before all Israel: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt brynge this people in to the londe, which the LORD hath sworne vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge them by lott. But the LORD himselfe that goeth before you, euen he shal be with the, and shal not faile the, ner forsake the: Feare not, and be not a frayed.

And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the prestes the children of Levi (which bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORD) and vnto all the Elders of Israel.

And he commaunded them, and sayde: At the ende of seven yeares, in the tyme of the 3re yeare, in the feast of Tabernacles whan all Israel come to appeare before the LORD thy God, in the place that he shall chose, thou shalt cause this lawe to be proclaimed before all Israel in their eares, namely, before the congregacion of the people, both of men, women, children, and thy straungers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and lerne to feare the LORD their God, and be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that their children also which knowe nothyng, maye heare and lerne to feare the LORDE yo^r God, all youre lyue dayes which ye lyue in the londe, whither ye go ouer Iordane to possesse it.

D And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou must die, call Josua, and stonde in the Tabernacle of witnesse, that I maye geue him a charge. Moses wente with Josua, and stode in the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the LORDE appeared in the Tabernacle in a cloudy pyler, and the same cloudy pyler stode in the doore of the Tabernacle.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, thou shalt slepe with y^r fathers, and this people wyll rylse vp, and go a whoung after straunge goddes of the londe into the which they come, and wyll forsake me, and breake the couenante which I haue made wth them. And then shall my wrath waxe whote agaynst them, at the same tyme, and I shall forsake the, and hyde my face fro them, that they maye be consumed. And so whan moche aduersitee & trouble cometh vpoⁿ the, they shal saye: Is not all this euell come vpoⁿ me, because God is not with me? But I shall hyde my face at the same tyme because of all the euell that they haue done, in that they haue turned vnto other goddes.

Wryte now therfore this songe, & teach it the children of Israel, and put it in their mouth, that this songe maye be a witnesse vnto me amonge the children of Israel. For I wil brynge them in to the londe which I swaie vnto their fathers, that floweth with mylke and hony. And whan they eate, and are full and fatt, they shal turne vnto other goddes, and serue them, and blasphememe, and breake my couenante.

And so whan moche myschefe and tribulation is come vpon them, this songe shall answere before them for a witnesse. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their seide: for I knowe their ymaginacion, that they go aboute euennow, before I brynge them in to the londe, which I swaie vnto them.

So Moses wrote this songe at the same tyme, and taughte it the children of Israel. And the LORDE gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt brynge the children of Israel in to the londe, which I swaie vnto them, and I wil be with the.

Now whan Moses had wrytten out all the wordes of this lawe in a boke, he commaunded the Leuites (which bare the Arke of the LORDES couenante) and sayde: Take the boke of this lawe, and laye it by the syde of the Arke of the couenante of the LORDE youre God, that it maye be there a wytnesse agaynst the: for I knowe thy stubburnesse and thy harde neck. Beholde, x hyle I am yet alyue wth you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE: how moche more after my deathe?

Gather now vnto me all the Elders of youre trybes, and youre officers, & I maye speake these wordes in their eares, and take heauen and earth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my deathe ye shall marre youre selues, and turne asyde out of the waye, which I haue commaunded you: and so shall my fortune happen vnto you hereafter, because ye haue done euell in the sight of the LORDE, in prouokynge him thow the wordes of youre handes.

So Moses spake out the wordes of this songe euennow to the ende, in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Ertzen (O ye heauens) I wyll speake, and let the earth heare the wordes of my mouth.

My doctryne droppe as doth the rain, and my speach flowe as doth the dew.

Euen as the rayne vpon the graske, and as the droppes vpon the herbe.

For I wil call vpon the name of the LORDE, geue ye the glory vnto oure God.

Perfekte are the workes of the Stone, for all his wayes are righteous.

God is true, and no wickednes is therein him, righteous and iust is he.

The forward and ouerthrowte generation hath marred them selues to himwarde and are not his children, because of their deformyte.

Thankest thou the LORDE & God so, thou foolish and vnwyse people?

Is not hethy father and thy LORDE? Hath he not made the, and prepared the?

Remember the dayes that are past, considere the yeaeres of the generacions aforetyme.

Are thy father, he shall shewe the: thine elders, they shal telle the.

Whan the most hyghest denyed yⁿ nacions and scatterd the children of men.

Then set he the borders of the nacions accordinge to the nombre of the children of Israel.

For the LORDES parte is his folk,

Jacob is the meercy of his enheritaunce. He founde him in the wyldernes, euen in the drye deserte where he roared.

He led him aboute, and gaue him understandinge: he kepte him as the aple of his eye.

As an Eagle stereth vp hir nest, and flottereth ouer hir yonge: Euen so stretched he out his fetters, and toke him, and bare him on his wynges.

The LORDE only was his gyde, & there was no straunge God with him.

He caried him ouer y^e height of the earth, and sed him with the increase of the felde.

He caused him sucke hony out of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone.

Butter of the kyne, and mylke of the shepe, with the fat of the lambes, and rammes of the sonnes of Basan, and he goates with the fat of the kyneys, and wheate: And gaue him drynke of the very bloude of grapes.

And whan he was fat and had ynough, he waxed wanton.

He is fat, and thicke, and smothe, & hath letten God go, that made him, and despyed the rocke of his saluacion.

He hath prouoked him to indignacion, thow straunge goddes, and thow abhominacion hath he angred him.

They offred vnto felde deuels, & not vnto their God.

Vnto goddes whom they newe not, enen vnto newe goddes, & came newly vp, whom their fathers honoured not.

Thy rocke that begat y^e, hast thou bespyed, and hast forgotten God that made the.

And whan the LORDE sawe it, he was moued wth wrath ouer his sonnes and his daughters.

And he sayde: I wyll hyde my face from them, I wyll se what their ende shal be: for it is a forward generation, they are children in whom is no fayth.

They haue prouoked me in it that is not God: wth their vanities haue they angred me.

And I agayne wil prouoke them, by thow that are no people: by a foolish nacion wil I anger them.

For the fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and shal burne vnto y^e nethermost hell, and shal consume the londe with the increase therof, and set the foundations of y^e mountaynes in fyre.

I wil heape myscheues vpoⁿ them, I wil spende all myne arrowes at them.

They shal pyne awaye thow hunger, & be consumed of the fevers, and of bytter sicknesses.

I wil sende amonge them y^e tette of bees, & tes, and furious serpentes.

Without shall the swerde robbe them, & feare in the chambers, both the yonge man and yonge woman, the suckynge children wth the gray headed man.

I wyll saye: Where are they? I shall make their remembraunce to cease from amonge men.

If the wrath of the enemies were not gathered, lest their enemies shulde be proude, & might saie: Oure hande is hye, and: The LORDE hath not done all this.

For it is a people, wherein is no counsell, and there is no understandinge in them.

O that they were wyse & vnderstode this, that they wolde considere what shulde happen vnto them hereafter.

How cometh it, & one shall chace a thousande of them, and y^e two shal put ten thousande to flyght?

Is it not so, euen because their rocke hath solde them, and because the LORDE hath geuen them ouer?

For oure rocke is not as their rocke, & of this are oure enemies iudges them selues.

Their vyne is of the vyne of Sodcm, and of the felde of Gomorra: their grapes are the grapes of gall, they haue bytter clustres.

Their wyne is the poyson of Dragons, & the furious gall of Adders.

Is not this hid with me, and sealed vp in my treasures?

Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll rewarde in due season. Their fore shall flyde, for the tyme of their destruccio is at honde, and the thinge that is to come vpon them, maketh haiste.

For the LORDE shall iudge his people, & shal haue compassion on his seruantes. For he shal considere that their power is awaie, and that it is gone with them, which were shut vp and remayned ouer.

And he shal saye: Where are their goddes, their rocke wherein they trusted?

Of whose sacrifices they ate y^e fatt, and dranke the wyne of their drynke offerings? Let them rylse vp and helpe you, and be youre proteccion.

Se now that I am, and that there is none other God but I.

I can kyll and make alyue: what I haue

^{Job 10. 2} smytten, that can I heale: and there is no man able to deliuer out of my hande.

So: I wil lifte vp my hande to heauen, and wil saye: I lyue ever.

And whet I edge of my swerde, and my hande take holde of iudgment, then wil I auenge me on myne enemies, and rewarde them that hate me.

I wil make myne arrowes dronken with bloude, and my swerde shal eate flesh ouer I bloude of the slayne, and ouer the captyuite, and in that the enemies heade shall be discovered.

And Moses came and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, he and Josua the sonne of Nun. Now whā Moses had made an ende of speakinge all these wordes vnto all Israel, he sayde vnto the: Take to hert all I wordes, which I testifie vnto you this daye, that ye commaunde youre children, to obserue and do all the wordes of this lawe. For it is no vaine worde vnto you, but it is yo^r life: and this worde shal prolonge youre life in I londe, whither ye goe ouer Iordane to conquire it.

And I LORDE spake vnto Moses I same daie, and sayde: Get the vp to this mount Aba-^{Nu. 10. d}rim, vpon mount Nebo, which lyeth in I londe of the Moabites euer agaynst Jericho, and beholde the londe of Canaan, which I shall geue vnto the children of Israel in possessiō. And dyc thou vpon the mount, whan thou art come vp, and be gathered vnto thy people, like as Aaron thy brother dyed vpon mount Hor, and was gathered vnto his people: Because yettrespased agaynst me amonge the children of Israel by the water of stryfe at Cades in the wilderness of Sin, and sanctified me not amonge the children of Israel. For thou shalt see the londe ouer agaynst the, which I geue vnto I children of Israel but thou shalt not come in to it.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

^{Exo. 3. a} ^{Exo. 19. a} Ihis is the blessinge, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed I childre of Israel before his death, and saide: The LORDE came from Sinai, and rose vp vnto the from Seir. He appeared fro mount Paran, and came to many thousande sayntes. At his righte hande is there a lawe of fyre for them: O how loued he the people: All his sayntes are in his hande, and they shall se them selues downe at thy fete, and receaue of thy wordes. Moses commaunded vnto the laue, which is the enheritaunce of the congregation of Jacob. And he was in the fulnesse of the kyng, and helde I rulers of I people together, with the trybes of Israel.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye, and his people be serue in nombre.

This is the blessinge of Iuda. And he sayde: LORDE heare the voyce of Iuda, and bryng him vnto his people: Let his handes multiplie him, and let him be helped fro his enemies.

And vnto Levi he sayde: Thy perfectione and I lichte be acordinge vnto the man of thy mercy, whō thou hast tempted at Massah, whan ye stroue by the water of stryfe. He that sayeth vnto his father and to his mother: I se him not: and to his brother, I knowe him not: and to his sonne, I wene not of him, those haue obserued thy wordes, and kepte I couenaunt: they shal teach Jacob thy iudgements, and Israel thy lawe: they shal laie incense before thy nose, and burne offerings vpon thine altare. LORDE, blese thou his power and accepte the workes of his handes: in yce the loynes of them I ryste vp agaynst him, and of them that hate him, that they lifte not vp them selues.

And to Ben Jamin he saide: The beloued of the LORDE shal dwell in hope on him: All the daye long: shal he wayte vpon him, and shal dwell betwene his shulders.

And to Ioseph he sayde: His londe lieth in the blessinge of the LORDE, there are noble frutes of heauen, of the dew, and of the depe chat lyeth beneath: There are noble frutes of the increase of the Sonne, and noble rype frutes of I monethes: And of I topes of the mountaynes of olde, and of the hilles allwaye, and of the noble frutes of I earth, and of I fulnesse thereof. The good will of him that dwelleth in the busshes, come vpon the heade of Ioseph, and vpon I toppe of his heade that was separated fro amonge his brechren.

His bewtye is as a firstborne oxe, and his homes are as I hornes of an Unicorne: with the same shal he pussheth the nacions together, euen vnto the endes of the woulde. These are the thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasse.

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyse Zabulon of thy outgoynge: but reioyse thou Issachar of thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto I hyll, and there shal they offre I offerings of righteousness. For they shal see the abundaunce of the see, and the treasures hyd in the sonde.

And to Gad he sayde: Blessynge haue Gad, which maketh rowme. He dwelleth as a lyon, and spoyleth the arme and the coppe of the heade. And he sawe his begynnynge, that I heape of the teachers laye hyd there, and came with the rulers of the people, and executed the righteousness of the LORDE, and his iudgment on Israel.

And to Dan he sayde: Dan a yonge lyon, he shal flowe from Basan.

And to Iephthai he saide: Iephthai shal haue abundaunce of pleasure, and shalbe full of the blessinge of the LORDE: his possession shal be toward the west and south. And to Asser he sayde: Asser be blessed wth sonnes, accepted be he with his brechren, and dyppe his fore in oyle. Iron and brasse be on thy shues. Thyne age be as thy youth.

There is no God as the God of the iust. He that syteth vpon heauen, be thy helpe. And his glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwellinge of God from the begynnynge, and vnder the armes of the woulde. And he shal dryue out thine enemye before the, and saye: He destroyed. And Israel shal dwell safe alone. The eye of Jacob shalbe vpon I londe where come and wine is, heauen also shal droppe with dewe. Happye art thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? O thou people I art saued by the LORDE, which is thy helpe, shylde, and the swerde of thy glorye. Thyne enemies shal pyne awaye, and thou shalt treade vpon the height of them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

^{Exo. 33. a} ^{Exo. 34. a} In I Moyses wente from the selbe of I Moabites vp vnto mount Nebo, vnto I toppe of mount Pisga ouer agaynst Jericho. And the LORDE shewed him all the londe of Gilead vnto Dan, and all Iephthai li, and the londe of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the londe of Iuda, vnto I vttemost see, and toward the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of the palme trees euen vnto Zoar. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: This is the londe that I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sayde: I wyll geue it vnto thy seide. Thou hast seene it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go ouer thither.

So Moses I seruaunt of the LORDE died there in the londe of the Moabites, acordinge vnto the worde of I LORDE. And he buried him in a valley, in the londe of the Moabites ouer agaynst the house of Peor. And no man knewe of his graue vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twentye yeare olde whan he dyed: his eyes were not dymme, and his chekes were not fallen. And the children of Israel weped for Moses in I felde of the Moabites thirtie daies, and the dayes of the wepyng and mournynge for Moses were fulfilled.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was filled with I spere of wysdome (for Moses had layed his hande vpon him) and the children of Israel hearkened vnto him, and dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And there arose no prophet more in Israel, like vnto Moses, whom the LORDE knewe face to face in all tokens and wonders (which the LORDE sent him to do in I londe of Egypte, vnto Pharaos, and to all his seruantes, and his londe) and in all this mightie hande and greates visions which Moses dyd in the sighte of all Israel.

The booke of Josua.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Moses the seruant of the LORDE, spake the LORDE vnto Josua & somme of Aun Moses mynister: My seruant Moses is deed, vp now, and go ouer this Iordane, thou and all this people into the londe that I haue geuen the children of Israel. All the places that the soles of your feet shal treade vpon, haue I geuen vnto you, as I sayde vnto Moses: From the wilderness and this Libanus vnto the greete water Euphrates: all the londe of the Hethites vnto the greete see toward the west, shal be youre boilder. There shall noman be able to withstonde & all thy life longe. And like as I was with Moses, so wil I be with the also. I will not fayle the nether forsake the. Be stronge and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde & londe, which I swaie vnto their fathers, to geue it them.

Be stronge therfore and very bolde, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng accordinge to the lawe, that Moses my seruant commaunded the. Turne not asyde from it, nether to the righte hande ner to the lefte, & thou mayest deale wysly whither so euer thou goest. And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exerce thy selfe therein daie and night, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng accordinge to it that is wyrtte therein: Then shalt thou prospere in thy waies, and deale wysly. Lo, I haue commaunded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not, and be not afrayed: for the LORDE thy God is with &, whither so euer thou goest.

Then commaunded Josua the officers of the people, and sayde: Go thorow the hoost, and charge & people, and saye: Prepare you wyttayles, for ouer thre dayes shal ye go ouer this Iordane, that ye maye come in and take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God shal geue you.

And to the Rubenites, Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse, sayde Josua: Thynke vpon the worde, that Moses the seruant of & LORDE spake vnto you, and sayde: The LORDE y^e God hath broughte you to rest, and geuen you this londe. Let youre wyues and children and catell remayne in y^e londe, that Moses gaue you on this syde Iordane: But ye youre selues (as many as be fightinge men) shal go forth before youre brethien in harness, and helpe them, tyll the LORDE haue broughte youre brethien to rest also as well as you: that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE y^e God shal geue them: Then shal ye turne agayne into the londe of youre possession, that ye maye enioye it, which Moses the seruant of the LORDE hath geuen you on this syde Iordane toward & East. And they answered Josua and sayde: All that thou hast commaunded vs, wyll we do: and whither so euer thou sendest vs, we wyll go thither. Like as we haue obeyed Moses, so wyll we be obedient also vnto the: Onely that the LORDE thy God be with &, like as he was with Moses. Who so euer disobeyeth thy mouth, and herkeneth not vnto thy wordes in all that thou hast commaunded vs, shal dye: Onely be thou stronge and bolde.

The II. Chapter.

Josua the sonne of Nun sent out two spyes priuely from Setim, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, loke vpon the londe and Jericho. They wente forth, and came in to & house of an harlot, called Rahab, and laye there. Then was it tolde the kynge of Jericho: Lo, there are men come in this nighte from the childre of Israel, to spy the londe. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, saynge: Deluyer the men forth that are come vnto the in to thy house, for they are come to spy out the whole londe. Now as for the two men, the woman had hyd them, and sayde: There came men in vnto me in vede, but I knewe not whence they were. And at the shutting in of the gate when it was darcke, they wente out, so & I can not tell whither they be gone: folowe soone after them, for ye shal ouertake them. But she had caused them to clymme vp vnto the house toppe, and hyd them vnder the stalkes of flaxe, that she had prepared her vpon the toppe of the house. Now be it the men folowed after them in & waye towarde Iordane, euen vnto the ferye: and whan they that folowed vpon them were gone forth, the gate was shut.

B And ouer the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente vp to them vnto the house toppe, and sayde vnto the: I knowe that the LORDE shal deliuer you the londe, for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and all the inhabitants of the londe are discouraged at youre commynge. For we haue herde, how the LORDE dried vp the water in the reed see before you, whā ye departed out of Egipt: and what ye dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites, Sihon and Og beyonde Iordane, how ye rote them out, and destroyed them. And sence we herde therof, oure hert hath failed vs, nether is there a good stomacke more in eny man, by the reason of youre commynge. For the LORDE ys God is both the God aboue in heauē and beneth vpon earth.

C Swear now then vnto me: euen by the LORDE (for somoch as I haue dealede mercifully with you) that ye wyl also shewe mercy vpon my fathers house: and geue me a true token, that ye wyl let my father lyue, and my mother, my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they haue, and deliuer oure soules from deathe. The men sayde vnto her: If we shewe no mercy and faithfulness vpon the, whan the LORDE geueth vs the londe, then let oure soule dye for you, so farre as thou betrayest not oure denyce. Then let she them downe thorow the wyndowe by a coarde: for his house was in the wall of the cite, and in the wall was his dwellynge. And she sayde vnto them: Go youre waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that folowe vpon you: and hyde youre selues there thie dayes, tyll they be come agayne & folowe after you: and then get you youre waye.

B But the men sayde vnto her: As for this oath that thou hast taken of vs, we wyl be discharged of it whan we come in to & londe, excepte thou knyttest in the wyndowe & lyne of this rose coloured rope (& thou hast lett vs downe with all) & gatherest vnto & in to the house, thy father, thy mother, & brethren & all thy fathers house. And loke who so ever goeth out at the dore of thy house, his bloude be vpon his owne heade, and we guilelesse. But of all those & are in & house, yf a hande be layed vpon the, their bloude shalbe vpon & heade. And yf thou bewrayest eny of this denyce of ours, the wil we be discharged of the oath & thou hast take of vs. She sayde: Let it be so as ye saye, and she let the go. And they wente their waye. And she knyt the rose coloured lyne in the wyndowe. They wente on their waye, and came to the mountaynes, and remayned there the dayes, tyll they that folowed vpon them were come agayne: for they soughte them thorow every strete, & yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayne, and departed from the mountaynes, and passed ouer Iordane) and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde him every thinge, as they had founde it, & they sayde vnto Iosua: The LORDE hath geue vs all the londe in oure handes, and all they that dwell in the londe, are sore afraied of vs.

The III. Chapter.

And Iosua rose vp early, and they departed from Secim, & came vnto Iordane, he and all the children of Israel, and remayned there all night, afore they wete ouer. But after thie dayes wente the officers thorow & hoost, and commaunded the people, and sayde: Whan ye se the Arke of & coneuant of the LORDE youre God, and the prestes from amonge the Levites bearynge it, departe ye then out of youre place, and folowe after (but so, that there be rowme betwene you and it by two thousande cubits, & that ye come not nye it) & ye maye knowe what waye ye shalbe go: for ye neuer went that waye afore.

And Iosua sayde vnto the people: Helowe youre selues, for tomorrow shal & LORDE bringe wonderous thinges to passe amonge you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Beare ye the Arke of & coneuant, and go before the people. Then bare they the Arke, and wente before the people. And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: This daye wyl I begynne to make the greate in the sighte of all Israel, that they maye knowe, how that like as I was with Moses, so am I with the also. And commaunde thou the prestes that beare the Arke, and saye: Whan ye come before in the water of Iordane, stonde still.

C And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: Come hither, & heare the worde of the LORDE youre God. He sayde morouer: By this shal ye perceaue, that the luyng God is amonge you, and that he shall drye out before you & Cananites, Hethites, Hewites, phereites, Girgoshites, Amorites and Jebusites. Beholde, the Arke of the coneuant of him & hath domynion ouer all londes, shal go before you in Iordane. Take now therfore twolue men out of & trybes of Israel, out of every trybe one. And whan the soles of the fete of the prestes that beare & Arke of the LORDE the gouernoure of all londes, are set in the water of Iordane, then shal & water of Iordane withdraue it selfe from the water that floweth from aboue, that it maye stonde on a heape.

D Now whan the people departed out of their tentes, to go ouer Iordane, & the prestes bare the Arke of the coneuant before the people, and came in to Iordane, & bypte their fete before in the water (as for Iordane on all his bankes it was full of all manner waters: of the londe) then the water that came downe fro aboue, stode straight vp vpon one heape, very farre from the cite of Adom, that lyeth on the syde of Zartan: But the water that ranne downe to the see (euen to the salt see) fell awaye, and becreased.

So & people wente thorow ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the Arke of the LORDEs coneuant, stode drye in & myddes of Iordane, readye prepared: & all Israel wete thorow drye shod, vntill & whoke people were all come ouer Iordane.

The III. Chapter.

And & LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Take you twolue men, out of every trybe one, & commande them, & saye: Take vp twolue stones out of Iordane, from the place where the fete of the prestes stode in their araye: & cary them with you, & ye maie leaue them in & lodgyng, where ye shal lodge this night. The Iosua called twolue men which were prepared of the children of Israel, out of every trybe one, & sayde vnto the: Go youre waye ouer before the Arke of the LORDE youre God in the myddes of Iordane, & take every man a stone vpon his shulder, after the nombre of the trybes of & children of Israel, & they maye be a token amonge you. And whan youre children aser their fathers here after, and saye: What do these stones there? That ye maye then saye vnto them, how that the water of Iordane claue in sunder before the Arke of the LORDEs coneuant, whan it wente thorow Iordane, & that these stones are set for a perpetuall remembraunce vnto the children of Israel.

Then dyd the children of Israel as Iosua commaunded them, and bare twolue stones out of the myddes of Iordane (as the LORDE had sayde vnto Iosua) acordyng to the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, and broughte the same with them in to the lodgyng, and leste them there. And Iosua set vp twolue stones in & myddes of Iordane, where & fete of the prestes stode, that bare & Arke of the coneuant: and there they be yet vnto this daye. As for & prestes that bare & Arke, they stode in the myddes of Iordane, vntill all was persourmed that the LORDE charged Iosua to saye vnto & people: acordyng as Moses gaue Iosua in commaundement. The people also made haist, and wente ouer. Now whan all the people was gone ouer, the Arke of the LORDE wente ouer also, and the prestes wente before the people.

And the Rubenites, & Gadites, and & halfe trybe of Manasse wente harnessed before the childre of Israel, like as Moses had sayde vnto the: Aboute a fortye thousande men ready harnessed to the warre, wente before the LORDE to the battayll, vpon & felde of Jericho. In that daye the LORDE made Iosua greate in the sighte of all Israel: and like as they feared Moses, so stode they in awe of him, all his life longe.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Commaunde the prestes which beare the Arke of witness, that they come vp out of Iordane. So Iosua commaunded the prestes, & sayde: Come vp out of Iordane. And whan the prestes & bare the Arke of the coneuant of & LORDE were come out of Iordane, and trode with the soles of their fete vpon the drye londe, & water of Iordane came agayne in to his place, and flowed (like as afore tyme) vpon all his bankes.

It was & tenth daye of the first moneth, whan the people came vp out of Iordane: & they pitched their tentes in Gilgal vpon & East syde of & cite of Jericho. And & twolue stones which they had taken out of Iordane, dyd Iosua set vp at Gilgal, & saide vnto the children of Israel: Whan youre children aser their fathers here after, & saie: What meane these stones? Ye shall tell the, & saye: Israel wete drye thorow Iordane, what tyme as & LORDE ys God dried vp & water of Iordane before you, vntill ye were ouers like as the LORDE of God dyd in the reed see, which he dyed up before vs, & we might go thorow that all the people upon earth might knowe the hāde of the LORDE, how mightie it is, to the intent that ye shulde all waye feare the LORDE your God.

The vi. Chap.

The V. Chapter.

Now whan all the kynges of y Amorytes that dwelt beyonde Jordane westwarde, and all the kynges of y Canaanites by the see syde herde, how y LORDE had dyed up the water of Jordane before the children of Israel, tyll they were come over: their hert sayled them, neither was there any more courage in them at the presence of the children of Israel.

At the same tyme sayde y LORDE unto Josua: Make the knyves of stone, & circumcise the children of Israel agayne the second tyme. Then Josua made him knyves of stone, and circumcised the childre of Israel upon the toppe of the forestynnes. And the cause why Josua circumcised all the males of the people y were come out of Egipte, is this: for all the men of warre dyed in y wilderness by the waye, after they were departed out of Egipte: for all the people that came forth, were circumcised.

But all the people that were borne in y wilderness by the waye (after they departed out of Egipte) were not circumcised: for the children of Israel waited fortye yeres in the wilderness, untill all the people of the men of warre that came out of Egipte, were consumed, because they hardened not unto the voyce of the LORDE, like as the LORDE swaie unto them, that they shulde not see the londe, which the LORDE swaie unto their fathers to geue unto vs, even a londe that floweth with mylke & hony: their children which were come up in their steade, dyd Josua circumcise: for they had the forestynne, and were not circumcised by the waye.

C And whan all the people were circumcised, they abode in their place, and in y tētes, tyll they were whole. And y LORDE saide unto Josua: To daie haue I turned y shame of Egipte awaye from you, & the same place was called Gulgall unto this daye. And whyle the children of Israel laye thus at Gulgall, they kepte Easter: the fourteenth daye of the moneth at enē in the felde of Jericho. And they ate of the come of the lōde the seconde daye of the Easter: namely, unlepended bried, & fymentye of y yeare, and the same daye. And upon the morow, the Man na sayled, whan they ate of the come of y londe, so that the children of Israel had more Manna, but ate of the come of the lōde of Canaan the same yeare.

And it fortuned that whā Josua was by Jericho, he lyste up his eyes, & was awary that there stode a mā agaynst him, and had a naked swerde in his hande. And Josua went to him, & sayde unto him: Art thou one of vs, or of our enemies? he sayde: No, but I am y pryncce of the LORDES hoost, and now am I come. Then fell Josua downe the earth upon his face, & worshipped him, and sayde unto him: What sayest my LORDE unto his sernaunt? And the pryncce of the LORDES hoost sayde unto him: Put y shues of y fere, for the place wher y stondest, is holy. And Josua dyd so.

The VI. Chapter.

As for Jericho, it was shut & kepte by cause of the childre of Israel, so that no man might go out ner in. But the LORDE sayde unto Josua: Beholde, I haue geuen Jericho with y kyng and men of warre therof, into y hande. Let all the men of warre go once rounde aboute y cite, and do so fyve dayes. But upon the seventh daye let the prestes take the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arte, and go the same seventh daye seven tymes aboute the cite, and let the prestes blowe the trompettes. And whan the hoime of the yeare of Jubilye bloweth and maketh a sounde, so that ye heare the trompettes, all the people shal make a greateshout, then shal the walles of the cite fall downe, and y people shal fall in, every one straight before him.

Then Josua the sonne of Nun called y prestes, and sayde unto them: Deare y Arte of the covenant, and let seven prestes take the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arte of the LORDE. But unto the people he sayde: Get you hence, and go rounde aboute the cite: and let him that is harnessid, go before the Arte of the LORDE. Whan Josua had spoken this unto the people, the seven prestes bare the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arte of the LORDE, and wente & blew the trompettes, and the Arte of the LORDES covenant folowed after them: and who so was harnessid, wente before the prestes that blew the trompettes, and the multitude folowed the Arte. And all was full of y noyse of the trompettes. But Josua commaunded the people, and sayde: Ye shal make no shout, ner let your voyce be heard, that shall ye geue one worde out of your mouth, untill the daye y I saye unto you: Make a shout, then make a shout.

The boke of Josua.

The vii. Chap. Fo. iij.

C So the Arte of the LORDE wente once rounde aboute the cite, and came agayne into y hooste, & remayned therein: for Josua used to ryse up early in the morninge. And the prestes bare the Arte of the LORDE: so dyd the seven prestes beare the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before y Arte of the LORDE, and wente and blew the trompettes: and who so was harnessid, wente before the Arte, but y multitude folowed y Arte of the LORDE. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes.

The seconde daye wente they once aboute the cite also, and came agayne into the hoost. Thus dyd they fyve dayes. But upon the sixth daye whan the morninge sprynge arose, they gat them up early, and wente after the same maner seven tymes aboute y cite, so that upon the same one seventh daye they wente seven tymes aboute the cite.

D And at the sixth tyme whan the prestes blew the trompettes, Josua sayde unto the people: Make a shout, for y LORDE hath deliuered you the cite: howbeit this cite, & all that is therein, shalbe damned unto the LORDE: onely the harlot Rahab shal lyue, & all that are with her in y house, for she had the messaungers, whom we sent forth. Onely beware of it that is damned, lest ye damne your selues (yf ye take ought of it which is damned) and make the hoost of y rael to be damned, and bringe it into mysfortune. But all the syluer and golde, with the ornaments of brasse & yron, shalbe sanctified unto the LORDE, that it maye come to the LORDES treasure.

Then made the people a greateshout, and the prestes blew the trompettes (for whan the people herde the noyse of the trompettes, they made a greateshout) and the walles fell, and the people cymmed up into the cite, every one straight before him. Thus they wanne y cite, and destroyed all that was in the cite with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, yonge and elde, ore, shepe, and Asse.

E But Josua sayde unto y two women which had spied out the londe: Go in to the house of the harlot, and bringe out the woman fro thence with all that she hath, accordinge as ye haue sworne unto her. Then y yonge men (the spyers) wente in, and brought forth Rahab with hir father and mother, & brethren, and all that she had, and all hir kyndred, and caused her to dwell without the hoost of y rael. As for the cite, they burnt it with fyre, & all that was therein: onely the syluer and golde, and the ornaments of brasse and yron put they unto the treasure in the house of y LORDE: but Josua let the harlot Rahab lyue, with hir fathers house, and all that she had: & she dwelt in y rael unto this daie, because she had had the messaungers whō Josua sent unto Jericho to spye.

At the same tyme swaie Josua, and sayde: Cursed be that man before the LORDE, which setteth up this cite of Jericho & buyldeth it: Whan he laieth y foundacion therof, let it cost him his first sonne: And whā he setteth up the gates of it, let it cost him his yongest sonne. Thus the LORDE was rich Josua, so that he was spoken of in all londes.

The VI. Chapter.

De the children of Israel had comyt a synne in the thinge y was commanded: for Achas the sonne of Charni the sonne of Sadi the sonne of Setab, of y tribe of Juda, took some of it y was dānd. Then was the wrath of the LORDE feared ouer the children of Israel.

Now whan Josua sent out men from Jericho unto Hai, which lyeth besyde Bethan on y east syde of Bethel, he sayde unto them: Go vp, and spye the londe. And whan they had gone vp, and spied out Hai, they came agayne to Josua, and sayde unto him: Let not all the people go vp, but upon a two or thre thousande, that they maye go vp and smyte Hai, lest all the people weere yet hāsel ues there, for they are but fewe.

So there wente vp, of the people upon a thre thousande men, and they fled before the men of Hai, and they of Hai smote upon a fyre and thyrtye men of them, and chased them from the porte unto Sebam, and smote them downe the waye. Then was the hert of the people discouraged, and

14. 11. b became like water. As for Josua he rente his clothes, and fell vpon his face vnto the earth before the Arke of the LORDE, vntill the eueninge, with the Elders of Israel, and cast dust vpon their heades.

B And Josua sayde: Oh LORDE LORDE, wherfore hast thou broughte this people o- uer Jordane, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites to destroye vs? O that we had caried beionde Jordane, as we begane. Oh my LORDE, what shal I saye, whyle Is- rael turneth his backe vpon his enemies? Whā the Cananites heare of this, they shal compasse vs rounde aboute, yee and rote out oure names from of the earth. What wyle thou do then vnto thy greates name?

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Josua: See- de vp, why lyeest thou so vpon thy face? Is- rael hath offended, and trasgressed ouer my couenauit, which I commaunded the. They haue taken also of the thinge that was dam- ned, and haue stollen, and dyssembled, and layed it amonge their ornaments. The chil- dren of Israel are not able to stonde before their aduersaries, but must turne their bac- kes vpon their enemies: for they are accursed. I wyll nomore be with you from hēce forth yf ye put not out the damned from amonge you.

C Stonde vp, and sanctifie the people, and saye: Sanctifie yo^r selues agaynst comorow for thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: There is a damned thinge in the O Israel, therfore canst thou not stonde before thine enemies, tyll ye put awaye the damned from amonge you. And ye shall ryse vpearly, one trybe after another: and loke which trybe so euer the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one kynred after another: and loke which kynred the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one house after another. And loke what house the LORDE taketh, the same shal come forth, one housholder af- ter another. And who so euer is founde in y^e curse, the same shalbe burnt in the fyre with all that he hath: because he hath gone beyon- de the couenauit of the LORDE, and commit- ted folye in Israel.

Then Josua gat him vp by tymes in the momynge, and brought forth Israel, the try- be after another, and y^e trybe of Iuda was taken. And whan he had brought forth the kynreds in Iuda, y^e kynred of the Serahites was taken. And whan he had brought forth the kynred of the Serahites, one housholde after another, Sabdi was taken. And whā he had brought forth his house, one housholder after another, Achan the sonne of Charui y^e sonne of Sabdi the sonne of Se- rah of the trybe of Iuda, was taken.

And Josua sayde vnto Achan: My son- ne, gene the glory vnto the LORDE the God of Israel, and gene him the prayse, and tell me, what thou hast done, and hide nothinge from me.

Then answered Achan vnto Josua, and sayde: Verely I haue synned agaynst y^e LOR- DE God of Israel, thus & thus haue I done: I saue amonge y^e spoiles a costly Babilonish garment, and two hundreth Syckles of syluer and a tange of golde, worth fiftye Syckles in weighe, vnto the which I had a lust, and to- ke it: and beholde, it is hyd in the ground in my tente, and the syluer vnder it.

Then Josua sent messengers thither, which ranne to the tente, and beholde, it was hyd in his tente, and the syluer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tente, and brought it vnto Josua, and to all the children of Israel and poured it before the LORDE. Then Jo- sua and all Israel with him, toke Achan the sonne of Serah with the syluer, the garment and gold tange, his sonnes and daughters, his oxen and asses, and shepe, and all that he had broughte they in to y^e valley of Achor.

And Josua sayde: For so moch as thou hast troubled vs, the LORDE trouble the this daye. And all Israel stoned him, and burned him with fyre with all that he had. And whan they had stoned him, they made ouer him a greates heape of stones, which remay- neeth vnto this daye. (So the LORDE turned from the rigorousnes of his wrath.) Therfo- re is the same place called y^e valley of Achor vnto this daye.

The VIII. Chapter.

Unto y^e LORDE saide vnto Josua: I am not, and be not a frayd. Take all the men of warre with the, and ryse, and get the vp vnto Hai. Beholde, I haue gaanto thy hande, the kynge of Hai with his people in his cite & countre. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, as thou dydest with Jericho and the kynge therof. I saynge that ye shal deale amonge you their spoyle & catell: but set thou a preuy watch behynde the cite.

Then Josua arose, and all y^e men of war- re, to go vp vnto Hai: and Josua chose thirtie thousande fightinge men, and sent them out by night, and commaunded them, and say- de: Take hede, ye shal be. y^e preuy watch be hynde the cite, but go not to farre from the cite, and se that ye be redye alltogether. As for me and all the people that is with me, we wyll make vs to the cite. And whan they come forth agaynst vs (* as afore) we wyll flye before them, that they maye folowe our a fur vs, tyll we haue prouoked them forth of the cite: for they shal thinke that we flye before them, like as at y^e first. And whyle we flye before them, ye shal get you vp out of the preuy watch, and wyne the cite. For y^e LORDE your God shal deliuer it in to you- re handes. But whan ye haue wonne the ci- te, set fyre vpon it, doinge as aordinge vnto the worde of the LORDE. Beholde, I haue commaunded you.

So Josua sent them awaye, & they wen- te vnto the place of the preuy watch, and laye betwixte Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of Hai. But Josua abode that night amonge the people. And in the momynge he arose early, and set the people in order, and came vp with the Elders of Israel before the people towarde Hai: and all the men of warre that were with him, wente vp, & gat them forth, and came ouer agaynst the cite, and pitched their tentes on the north syde of Hai, so y^e there was but a valley betwe- ne him and Hai.

C He had taken aboute a fyue thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch be- twene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite, and they ordred the people of the whole hoost that was on the north syde of the cite, so that the vttemost of the people reached vnto the west ende of the cite. So Josua wente the same nighte in to the myd- des of the valley.

But whan the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made haist, and gat him vp early, and the men out of the cite, to mete Israel to y^e bat- tayll, with all his people, euen righte before the felde: for he wyft not that there was a preuy watch behynde him on the backe syde of the cite. But Josua and all Israel were feble before them, and fled by the waye to y^e wyldernes. Then cried all the people in the cite, that they shulde folowe vpon them, and they folowed after Josua and rushed out of the cite, so that there remayned not one man in Hai and Bethel, which wence not out to folowe vpon Israel, and they lef- te the cite stondinge open, that they mighte persecute Israel.

Thē sayde y^e LORDE vnto Josua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thine han- de, towarde Hai: for I wyll deliuer it in to thy hande. And whan Josua reached out the speare that was in his hande, towarde y^e cite, y^e hynder watch brake vp out of their place, and ranne (whan he had stretched out his hande) and came in to the cite, and wan- ne it, and made haist, & set fyre vpon it. And the men of Hai turned them, and loke- d behynde them, and the smoke of the cite wen- te vp towarde heauen, and they had no pla- ce to flie vnto, neither hither ner thither: and the people that fled towarde the wyldernes turned aboute, to folowe vpon them.

And whan Josua and all Israel sawe, y^e the hynder watch had wonne the cite (for y^e smoke of the cite ascended) they turned agai- ne, and smote the men of Hai. And they in the cite came forth also agaynst them, so y^e they came in the myddes amonge Israel on both the sydes, and they slawe them, so that there was not one man of them left ouer or escaped: and they toke the kynge of Hai aly- ue, and broughte him vnto Josua. And whā Israel had slayne all the inhabitants of Hai, which had folowed vpon them in the felde and in the wyldernes: and whan they were all fallen thorow the edge of the swerde, tyll they were destroyed, thē turned all Israel vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of y^e swer- de. And of all them which fell that daye fro- man vnto womā, there were twelue thousan- de, all men of Hai.

But Josua withtyme not his hande (wher with he reached out the speare) tyll all the inhabitants of Hai were utterly destroyed, sa- uynge the catell and the spoyle of y^e cite, dyd Israel parte amonge themselves, aordinge vnto the worde of the LORDE, which he co- mmaunded Josua. And Josua burned vp Hai and made an heape therof for euer, which is there yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tre vntyll the euen.

But whā the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take his body from the tre, and to cast it vnder the gate of the cite, and made vpon him a greate heape of stones, which is there yet vnto this daye.

G Then baylded Iosua an altare vnto the LORDE God of Israel vpon mount Ebal accordinge as Moses the seruauant of J LORDE commanded the children of Israel, as it is wrytten in the booke of the lawe of Moses euen an altare of whole stone, wherupon there was no yron listad: and he offered burnt-offerings and heath offerings, and there vpon the stones he wrote the seconde lawe of Moses, which he wrote before the childre of Israel.

And all Israel with their Elders and officers and iudges, stode on both the sydes of the Arke, right ouer agaynst the prestes & bare the Arke of the couenauant of the LORDE, the straunger as well as one of them selues, the one halfe besyde mount Gerysim, and the other halfe besyde mount Ebal, as Moses the seruauant of the LORDE commanded afore, to blesse the people of Israel. Afterwarde caused he to proclame all the wordes of the lawe of the blessinge and cursynge, as it is wrytten in the booke of the lawe. There was not one worde that Moses commanded, but Iosua caused it to be proclaimed before all the congregacion of Israel, and before the wemen, and children, and straungers which walked amonge them.

The IX. Chapter.

When all the kynges that were beyonde Iordane vpon the mountaynes, and in the lowe countrees, & in all the hauens of the greete see, and besyde mount Libanus, herde this (namely, & Zebites, Amorites, Cananites, Phereites, Hivites and Jebusites) they gathered the selues together with one acorde, to fighte agaynst Iosua, and agaynst Israel.

But whan the inhabitants of Gibeon herde, what Iosua had done with Jericho and Hai, they dealete craftely, wrote on their waie, and made a message, and toke olde sakes vpon their asses, and olderente wyne botels, and olde mended shues vpon their fete, and put on olde and peced garmentes, and all & bried of their vytayles was harde and moulde, and they wente vnto Iosua into & hoost at Gilgall, and sayde vnto him, and to every man in Israel: We are come out of a farre countre, therfore make now a couenante w vs. Then sayde every man in Israel vnto & Zebite: Peradventure thou dwellest amonge vs, how can I then make a couenante with the?

The ix. Chap.

They saide vnto Iosua: We are & seruantes. Iosua sayde vnto them: What are ye, & whence come ye? They sayde: Thy seruantes are come out of a very farre countre, because of the name of the LORDE thy God: for we haue herde the reporte of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and all that he dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites besyde Iordane, Sihon the kyng at Hesbon, and Og the kyng of Basan, which dwelt at Ashtaroth. Therfore sayde oure Elders and all the inhabitants of oure countre: Take sode with you for youre iourney, and go meet them, and saye vnto them: We are your seruantes, therfore make now a bonde with vs: This oure bried that we toke out of our houses for oure foode, was new whan we took our iourney toward you: but now lo, it is harde & moulded, and these bottels fylled with new, and lo, they are rote. And these oure clothes and shues are waxed olde, by & reason of the sore longe iourney.

Then the captaynes toke their vytayles, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE. And Iosua made peace with them, and set up a couenante with them, that they shoulde be saved alwey, and the rulers of the congregacion swore vnto them. But thie dayes after that they had made a couenante with them, they herde, that they were their neighbours, and dwelt amonge them: For as the children of Israel wente forth on their iourney, they came on the thirde daye vnto the cities, which are called Gibeon, Caphur, Beeroth, and Cirath Jearim, and smote them not, because that the rulers of the congregacion had swome vnto them by the name of the LORDE the God of Israel.

But whan all the congregacion murmured agaynst the rulers, all the rulers sayde vnto the whole congregacion: We haue swome vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israel, therfore maye we not touch them. But this wil we do vnto them: Let them liue, that there come no wrath vpon vs, because of the oath that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto them: Let them liue, that they maye be & herders of wodd and beaters of water for the whole congregacion, as the rulers haue sayde vnto them. Then Iosua called them, and counciled with them, and sayde: Wherfore haue ye diseaued vs, and sayde, that ye were farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs? Therfore shall ye be cursed, so that of you there shall not cease seruantes in new wodd and to beare water for the house of my God.

They answered Iosua, & sayde: It was tolde thy seruantes, that the LORDE thy God commanded Moses his seruauant, that he shoulde geue you the whole lode, and that he wolde destroye all the inhabitants of the londe before you: therfore were we sore afrayed of oure lynes before you, and thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy handes: loke what thou thinkest good and righte to do vnto vs, that do.

And he dyd euen so vnto them, and deliuered them from the children of Israels hand, that they shoulde not slaye them. So vpon the same daye Iosua made them herders of wodd and water bearers for the congregacion, and for the altare of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shall chose.

The X. Chapter.

When Adonisedech the kyng of Jerusalem herde, that Iosua had wonne Hai, and dammed it, and done vnto Hai and & kyng of it, like as he dyd vnto Jericho and to the kyng therof, & that they of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were come vnder them, they were sore afrayed. For Gibeon was a greete citie, like as one of the kynges cities, and greater then Hai, and all the citisyns therof were men of armes. Therfore sent he vnto Hoham the kyng of Hebron, and to Pinea the kyng of Jarmuth, and to Japhia the kyng of Lachis, and to Debir the kyng of Eglon, and caused to saie vnto them: Come vp vnto me, and helpe me, that we maie synge to Gibeon, for they haue made peace with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then came the fyue kynges of the Amorites together, and wente vp, the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, & kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon, with all their armies, & layed sege vnto Gibeon, and foughte agaynst it.

Howbeit they of Gibeon sent vnto Iosua to Gilgall, and caused to saie vnto him: Withdrowe not thine hande from thy seruantes, come vp soone vnto vs: deliuer and helpe vs, for all the kynges of the Amorites that dwell vpon the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynst vs. Iosua wente vp from Gilgall, and all the warryers and all the men armes with him. And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Feare them not, for I haue geue them in to thy hande. There shall not one of them be able to stonde before the,

The x. Chap. Fo. vi.

So Iosua came sodenly vpon them, for all that might wente he vp from Gilgall. And the LORDE discomfyred the before Israel, and smote them with a greete slaughter at Gibeon: & they chaced them the waie downe to Beth Horon, and smote them vnto Aseta and Mateda.

And whan they fled before Israel, the LORDE caused a greete hayle from heauen to fall vpon them, vnto Aseta, so that they dyed: & many mo of them dyed of the hayle, then the children of Israel slew with the swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the LORDE (the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Amorites before the children of Israel) and sayde in the presence of Israel: Some, holde styll at Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon.

Then the Sonne helde styll, and & Moone stode, vntill the people had auenged the selues on their enemies. Is not this wrytten in the booke of the righteous? Thus the Sonne stode styll in the myddes of heauen, and dyffered to go downe for the space of a whole daye after. And there was no daye like vnto this (nether before ner after whan the LORDE harkened vnto the voyce of one man: for the LORDE fought for Israel. And Iosua wente agayne to Gilgall in to the trees, and all Israel with him. As for the fyue kynges, they were fled, and had hyd the selues in the caue at Mateda.

Then was it tolde Iosua: We haue founde the fyue kynges hyd in the caue at Mateda. Iosua sayde: Rolle greete stones then before the hole of the caue, and set men there to kepe them.

As for you, stonde not ye styll, but folowe after youre enemies, and synge them behynde, and let them not come in their citis, for the LORDE youre God hath deliuered the in to youre hande. And whan Iosua and & children of Israel had ended the sore greete slaughter vpon them, so & they were broughte to naught, the remnaunt of them came in to the stronge citis.

So all the people came agayne to the hoost vnto Iosua to Mateda in peace, and no man durst moue his tynge agaynst the children of Israel. Iosua sayde: Open the mouth of the caue, and brynge the fyue kynges forth vnto me. They dyd so, and broughte the kynges vnto him out of the caue: the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon.

When these syne kynges were broughte forth vnto him, Iosua called euery man of Israel, and sayde vnto the rulers of the men of warre that wente with him: Come forth and creade vpon the neckes of these kynges with youre fete. And they came forth, and trode vpon their neckes with their fete. And Iosua saide vnto them: Be not a frayd, and feare not: be stronge and bolde, for thus shal the LORDE do vnto all yo' enemies, agaynst whom ye fighte.

And Iosua smote them afterwarde, and put them to death, and hanged them vpon syne trees. And they hanged styll vpon the trees vntill the enenyng. But when the some was gone downe, he commaunded to take them off from the trees: and they cast them in the caue, wherein they had hyd them selues, & before the hole of the caue they layed greete stones, which are there yet vnto this daye. The same daye wanne Iosua Makeda also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynges therof, and damned it, and all the soules that were therein, and let none remayne escaped: and dyd vnto the kynges of Makeda as he dyd vnto the kynges of Jericho.

Then Iosua and all Israel with him departed from Makeda vnto Lybna, & foughte agaynst it. (And the LORDE gaue it with the kynges therof into the hande of Israel) and smote it and all the soules that were therein, with the edge of the swerde, and let not one remayne in it: and dyd vnto the kynges therof as he had done vnto the kynges of Jericho.

Afterwarde wente Iosua and all Israel with him from Lybna vnto Lachis, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE deliuered Lachis also into the hande of Israel, so that they wanne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, accordinge to all as he had done vnto Lybna. At the same tyme Horam the kyng of Gazer wente vp, to helpe Lachis. But Iosua smote him with all his people, tyll there remayned not one.

And Iosua wente with all Israel from Lachis, vnto Eglon, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and damned all the soules that were therein the same daye, accordinge vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that wente Iosua with all Israel from Eglon vnto Hebron, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynges of it, and all the cities therof, and all the soules that were therein, and let not one remayne: and dyng vnto all as he had done vnto Eglon, and damned it, and all the soules that were therein.

Then turned Iosua agayne with all Israel toward Debir, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, with the kynges of it, and all the cities therof, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and damned all the soules that were therein, and let not one remayne. Even as he had done vnto Hebron and Lybna with their kynges, so dyd he also vnto Debir, and the kynges therof.

Thus Iosua smote all the londe vpon mountaynes, and toward the south, and the lowe countrees, and by the ryuers, with all their kynges, and let not one remayne, and damned all that had breath, as the LORDE God of Israel had commaunded. And Iosua smote them from Cades Bernea to Gaza, and all the londe of Gosen vnto Sebon, and toke all these kynges with their deat at one tyme: for the LORDE God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Iosua was agayne with all Israel to the tentes in Gilgal.

The XI. Chapter.

When Jabin the kyng of Ashtorah de this, he sent vnto Jabothebenge of Madon and to the kynges of Samron, and to the kynges of Ashtaph, and to the kynges that dwelt toward the north vpon the mountaynes, and in the playne the southsyde of Elneroch, and in the low countrees, and in the lordshippes of Dan, the see syde: and to the Cananites toward the east and west, to the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes, and to the Hivites, vnder mount Hermon, the londe of Mispa. These were out with their armies, a greete people, as many as the soude of the see, and exceeding many horse and charettes. All these kynges gathered themselves, and came, and pitched together by the water of Meram, to fighte with Israel.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Fear them not, for tomorrow aboute this tyme I deliuer them all slayne, before the children of Israel: thou shalt lame their horses, and burne their charettes with fire. And Iosua came sodenly vpon them, and all the men of warre with him by the water of Meram, and fell vpon them. And the LORDE deliuered them into the handes of Israel, and they smote them, and chased them vnto greete Sal and to the warme water, and to the playne of Mispa toward the east, and smote them, vntill there remayned not one.

Then deale Iosua with them as the LORDE had saide vnto him, & lamed their horses, & burnt their charettes. And he returned backe at the same tyme, & wanne Hazor, & smote the kynges of it with the swerde, for Hazor was a forefront of head cite of all these kyngdomes, and smote all the soules that were therein with the edge of the swerde, and damned it, & let nothinge remayne that had breath, & damned Hazor with fyre. All the cities of these kyngdomes wanne Iosua also, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and damned them, accordinge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE commaunded.

Howbeit the cities that stode vpon the hilles, dyd not the children of Israel burne with fyre: but Hazor onely dyd Iosua burne. And all the spoyle of these cities and the cattell, dyd the children of Israel deale amonge them, but smote all the men with the edge of the swerde, tyll they had destroyed them, and let nothinge remayne that had breath. As the LORDE commaunded his seruaunt Moses, and as Moses commaunded Iosua, even so dyd Iosua, so that there was nothinge vndone of all that the LORDE commaunded Moses.

So Iosua toke all this lode vpon the mountaynes, & all the lyeth toward the south, & all the londe of Gosen, and the lowe countree, & the playne felde, and the mountayne of Israel with the valley therof, from the mountayne that parteth the londe vnto the water of Seir, vnto Baalgad, in the playne of mount Libanus beneth mount Hermon. All their kynges toke he, and smote them, and put them to death. Howbeit he warred a longe season with these kynges.

Yet was there not one cite, that yeldeb it selfe peaceably vnto the children of Israel (excepte the Hivites, which dwelt at Gibeon) but they wanne them all with battayll. And this was done so of the LORDE that their hert was so hardened, to come agaynst the children of Israel with battayll, & they mighte be dāned, & no fauoure to be shewed vnto them, but to be destroyed, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

At the same tyme came Iosua, and roted out the Enakims from the mountayne, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, from every mountayne of Juda, and from every mountayne of Israel, and damned them with their cities, and let none of the Enakims remay-ne in the londe of the children of Israel, save at Gaza, at Gath, at Asdod, there remayned of them.

Thus Iosua conquered all the londe accordinge vnto all as the LORDE sayde vnto Moses, & gaue it vnto Israel to enheritaunce, vnto euery trybe his poicion, and they loned from warre.

The XII. Chapter.

These are the kynges of the londe, whom the children of Israel smote, & conquered their lode, beyonde Jordane, eastwarde, fro the water of Arnon, vnto mount Hermon, and vnto all the playne felde toward the east: Sihon the kyng of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, and had dominion from Aroer that lieth by the water syde of Arnon, and vnto the myddes of the water: and ouer halfe Gilead, vnto the water of Jabok, which is the border of the children of Ammon: and ouer the playne felde, vnto the see of Cynneroth eastwarde, and vnto the see of the playne felde, namely the Salt see toward the east, the waye vnto Beth Jesimoth: and from the south beneth by the ryuers of mount Pisga.

And the border of Og the kyng of Basan, which remayned yet of Raphaim, and dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, and had the dominion ouer mount Hermon, ouer Salcha, and ouer all Basan vnto the border of Geshur & Maachati, & of halfe Gilead, which was the border of Sihon the kyng at Heshbon. Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE and the children of Israel smote them. And Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue it vnto the Rubenites, Gadites and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in possession.

These are the kynges of the lode, whom Iosua & the children of Israel smote on this syde Jordane westwarde, fro Baalgad vnto the playne of mount Libanus, vnto the mount that parteth the londe vnto the water of Seir, & that Iosua gaue vnto the trybes of Israel in possession, vnto euery one his parte, what so erer was in 3 mountaynes, valleyes, playne felde, by the ryuers, in 3 wyldernesces & towarde the south, the Hethites, Amorites, Cananites, Phereites, Hivites, and Jebusites.

C The kynge of Jericho, the kynge of Hai, which lyeth besyde Bethel, the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon, the kynge of Geser, the kynge of Debir, the kynge of Geder, the kynge of Horma, the kynge of Arad, 3 kynge of Libna, the kynge of Adulla, the kynge of Makeda, the kynge of Bethel, the kynge of Tappuah, the kynge of Hephher, the kynge of Apheth, the kynge of Lasaron, the kynge of Madan, the kynge of Hasor, the kynge of Simron Meron, the kynge of Achsaph, the kynge of Tehenah, the kynge of Megido, the kynge of Cades, the kynge of Jakneam by Carmel, the kynge in the lordshippes of Dor, the kynge of the Hethen at Gilgall, the kynge of Thirza. These are one and thirte kynges.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Now when Iosua was olde and wel stricken in age, the LORDE sayde vnto him: Thou art olde & well aged, and there remaineth yet moch of the londe to conquire, namely all Galile of the philistynes, and all Gessuri, from Sihor which floweth before Egypte, vnto the border of Ekron, northwarde, which is rekened vnto the Cananites: fyne lordes of the philistynes, namely, the Gassites, the Asdodites, the Ascalonites, the Gerhites, the Ekronites & the Hivites. But from the north it is all 3 londe of the Cananites, and Maara of the Sidonians vnto Aphel, even vnto the border of the Amorites. Moreover the londe of the Gubiles eastwarde, from Baalgad vnder mount Hermon, tyll a ma come vnto Hamath. All they that dwell vpon the mount, from Libanus vnto the warme waters, and all the Sidonians. I wyl dryue them out before the children of Israel: Onely let them be deale out amonge Israel, as I have commaunded the.

B Denyde thou this lode now to enheritaunce amonge the nyne trybes and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse. For the Rubenites & Gad dices with 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, have receaved their enheritaunce, which Moses gaue the beyonde Jordane Eastwarde, accordinge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue them the same, from Aroer which lieth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the water, & all the coastes of Medba vnto Dibon, and all the cities of Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, vnto the border of the children of Ammon: and Gilead and 3 border of Gessuri and Maachati, and all mount Hermon, and all Basan vnto Salcha: all 3 kyngdome of Og at Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, that remained yet out of Raphaim. But Moses smote them and drewe them out.

The children of Israel drewe not out the Gessurites & Maachathites, but both Gessur and Maachath dwelt amonge the children of Israel vnto this daye. But vnto 3 trybe of the Levites he gaue no enheritaunce: for the offeringe of the LORDE God of Israel is their enheritaunce, accordinge as he hath promysed them.

So Moses gaue vnto the trybe of 3 children of Ruben after their kynreds, so that their border was Aroer, which lyeth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the same water, with all the playne felde vnto Medba: Heshbon, and all the cities therof which lyeth in the playne felde: Dibon, Bamoth Baal, & Beth Baal Meon, Jahza, Kedemoth, Mephath, Ariathaim, Sibama, Zerecha Sahar, vpon mount Emet, Beth Peor: the ryuers by pisa, and Beth Jesimoth, and all the cities vpon the playne, and all the realme of Sihon kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses smote with the prynces of Midian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, & Reba, the mightemen of kynge Sihon, which were inhabitants of the londe. And Balaam the sonne of Beor the propheticier, dyd the children of Israel kill with the swerde amonge the other that were slayne: and the border of 3 childre of Ruben was Jordane. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Ruben amonge their kynreds, cities and villages.

Vnto the trybe of the children of Gad amonge their kynreds gaue Moses, so that their border was, Jaheser and all the cities in Gilead, and the halfe londe of the children of Ammon, vnto Aroer, which lyeth before Rabbath: and from Heshbon vnto Ramath Mispe & Betomim: and fro Mahanaim vnto the border of Debir. But in the valley, Beth Haram, Beth Nimra, Sechoth and Zaphon (which remaind yet of the realme of Sihon kynge of Heshbon) and was by Jordane, vnto the edge of the see of Cyneroth, on this syde Jordane eastwarde.

This is the inheritaunce of the children of Gad in their kynreds, cities & villages.

Vnto the halfe trybe of the children of Manasse after their kynreds, gaue Moses, so that their border was fro Mahanaim, all Basan, all the kyngdome of Og kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jair which lyeth in Basan, namely thre score cities. And halfe Gilead, Astaroth, Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan, vnto the children of Machir the sonne of Manasse. This is the halfe porcion of the children of Machir after their kynreds.

This is it that Moses deale out vpon the felde of Moab beyonde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde. But vnto 3 trybe of Levi gaue Moses no enheritaunce: for the LORDE God of Israel is their enheritaunce, as he hath promysed them.

The XIII. Chapter.

This is it that the children of Israel haue enherited in the londe of Canaan, which Eleazar the priest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the chiefe of the fathers amonge the trybes of the children of Israel parted out amonge them. But by lot dyd they denyde it out amonge them, accordinge as the LORDE commaunded Moses to geue vnto the nyne trybes and 3 halfe: vnto the two trybes and the halfe dyd Moses geue enheritaunce beyonde Jordane. But vnto the Levites he gaue no enheritaunce amonge them. For of the children of Joseph there were two trybes, Manasse and Ephraim. Therfore gaue they the Levites no porcion in the londe, but cities, to dwell therein, and suburbs for their catell and goodes. Even as the LORDE commaunded Moses, so dyd the childre of Israel, and denyded the londe.

Then came forth the children of Juda to Iosua at Gilgall: and Caleb 3 sonne of Jephunne the Kenisite sayde vnto him: Thou knowest what 3 LORDE sayde vnto Moses the man of God, concerninge me and the londe of Cades Bernea. I was fortye yeare olde, when Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE sent me out from Cades Bernea, to spye out the londe, and I broughte him worde agayne, even as I had it in my hart. Howbeit my brethren that wente vpon with me, discoraged the hart of the people: but I folowed 3 LORDE my God vnto the vttemost.

Then swaue Moses vnto me the same daye, and sayde: The londe wherupon thou hast troden with thy fote, shalbe thine enheritaunce and thy childrens for ever, because thou hast folowed the LORDE my God vnto the vttemost. And now hath the LORDE letten me lyue, accordinge as he sayde. It is now fyue and fortie yeare sence 3 LORDE spake this vnto Moses, when Israel walked in the wilderness. And now lo, this daie am I fyue and foure score yeare olde: and am yet as stronge to daye, as I was in that daye when Moses sent me out: even as my strength was then, so is it now also to fight, and to go out and in.

Geue me now therfore this mountayne, wherof the LORDE spake in that daye, and thou herdest it the same daye: for now the Enakims dwell thereon, and it hath greates and stronge cities: yf happily the LORDE wyl be with me, that I maye dryue the out, as he hath sayde. Then Iosua blessed him, and so gaue Hebron vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephunne. Therfore was Hebron the enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephunne the Kenisite, vnto this daye, because he folowed the LORDE God of Israel vnto the vttemost. But afore tyme was Hebron called Kirjatharba, & greates people were there amonge the Enakims. And the lode ceased from warre.

The XV. Chapter.

The lot of the trybe of the children of Juda amonge their kynreds, was 3 coaste of Edom by the wilderness of Sin, which bordereth southwarde on the edge of the south countrees. Their south borders were from the vttemost syde of the salt see, that is, from the coast that goeth southwarde, and commeth out from thence towarde 3 eastsyde of Arabbim, and goeth forth thorow Zinna, and yet goeth vpon from the south towarde Cades Bernea, and goeth thorow Heshon, and goeth vnto Adara, & fetcheth a compass aboute Carcaa, & goeth thorow Asmona, and commeth forth to the ryuer of Egypte, so that the sea is the ende of 3 border. Let this be youre border southwarde.

But the east border is from the salt see to the vttemost parte of Jordane.

The border northwarde, is from the sea coast which is on 3 edge of Jordane, and goeth vpon vnto Beth Hagla, and stretcheth out from the north vnto Betharaba, and commeth vpon vnto the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben, and goeth vpon vnto Debir from 3 valley of Achor, and from the north coaste that is towarde Gilgall, which lyeth ouer agaynst Abumim vponwarde, which is on the north syde of the water. Then goeth it vnto 3 water of Ensemes, and commeth out vnto the well of Rogell. Then goeth it vnto the valley of the sonne of Hinnam, a longe besyde the Jebusite that dwelleth from 3 southwarde, that is Jerusalem: and commeth vnto the toppe of the mount which lyeth before the valley of Hinnam from the westwarde, that bordereth on the edge of the valley of Raphaim towarde the north.

Then commeth it from the toppe of the same mount vnto the water well of Ephraim, and commeth out vnto the cities of mount Ephraim, and boweth towarde Baala, that is Ririath Jarim, and fetcheth a compass aboute from Baala westwarde vnto mount Seir, and goeth by the north syde of the mount Jarim, that is Thessalon: and cometh downe to Berhsemes, and goeth thorow Thinnia, and breaketh out on the north syde of Aeron, and stretcheth forth towarde Sicron, and goeth ouer mount Baala, and cometh cut vnto Jabuel: so that their westernmost border is the see.

The weste border is the greatesee. This is the border of the children of Juda rounde aboute in their kynreds. Caleb the sonne of Jephune had his porcion geue him amonge the children of Juda (as the LORD es maunded Iosua) namely Ririatharba of the father of Enak, that is Hebron.

And Caleb droue from thence the three formes of Enak, Sesai, Ahiman, and Thalmas begotten of Enak. And from thence he wente vnto the inhabitants of Debir. (As for Debir, it was called Ririath Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb sayde: Who so smyth Ririath Sepher and wyneeth it, I wyll geue him my daughter Achsa to wyfe. Then Achiel the sonne of Benas the brother of Caleb wanne it: and he gaue him his daughter Achsa to wyfe.

And it fortuneth when they wente in, that she was counceled of hir housbande, to are a pece of londe of hir father. And she fell downe from the asse. Then sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Geue me a blessinge, for thou hast geue me a south (and drye) londe: geue me welles of water also. Then gaue he her welles aboue and beneath.

This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of Juda amonge their kynreds. And the cities of the trybe of the children of Juda, from one to another by the coastes of the Edomites towarde the south, werethese: Cabzeel, Eder, Jagur, Bina, Dumona, Abada, Kedes, Hazor, Jechnam, Siph, Telem, Beilot, Hazor Hadatha, Ririath Hebron that is Hazor: Ama, Sana, Molada, Hazor Gad, Hesmon, Beth palet, Hazor Sual, Dab Seba, Bisiochia, Baala, Jim, Azem, Ekeblad, Cheil, Harma, Zilag, Madmama, San Sana, Lebaoth, Silhim, Ain, Rim. These are nyne and twenty cities and their villages.

But in the lowe countrees was Esthal, Zaren, Asna, Saroah, Engannim, Chapua, Enam, Jarmoth, Abuliam, Socho, Aitai, Saaraim, Abithaim, Gedera, Giderothim. These are fourtene cities and their villages.

Benahabasa, Migdal Gad, Dilean, Mip, Jachiel, Lachis, Bazetath, Eglis, Ebron, Lachma, Chithlis, Gedoroth, Bakhugon, Naama, Makeda. These are sixtene cities and their villages.

Libna, Ether, Asen, Jephthah, Asa, Nazib, Keila, Achisib, Mareja. These are nyne cities and their villages. Ebron with his daughters and villages. From Ebron vnto the see, all that reacheth vnto Asdod and the villages therof. Asdod with the daughters and villages therof. Gasa with his daughters and villages vnto the water of Egipte. And the greatesee is his border.

But vpon the mount was Samir, Jecir, Socho, Danna, Ririath Sanna, that is Debir: Anab, Esthemmo, Annim, Gofen, Holon, Gilo. These are eleven cities and their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, Jura, Jeracl, Jachde, Sanoah, Rain, Gibea, Thinnia. These are ten cities and their villages. Halhul, Bethzur, Gedoi, Maarath, Bakh Anoth, Elcheton. These are six cities and their villages. Ririath Baal (that is Ririath Jarim) Harabba, two cities and their villages. And in the wyldernesse was Becharaba, Muddin, Sedacha, Nibsan, and the Salt cite, and Engabdi. These are six cities and their villages. But the Jebusites dwelt at Jerusalem, and the children of Juda coude not dryue them awaye. So the Jebusites remaine with the children of Juda at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

The xvi. Chapter.

And the lot fell vnto the children of Ephraim fro Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, vnto the water on the east syde of Jericho, and the wyldernesse, 3 goeth vnto Jericho thorow the mountayn of Bethel, and commeth out from Bethel vnto Lus, and goeth thorow the coast of Aciaroth, and stretcheth downe westwarde vnto 3 coaste of Japhleti to 3 border of the lower Berhoion, and vnto Gaser: and the endetherof is by the greatesee. This the children of Joseph (Manasses and Ephraim) receaued to inheritaunce.

The Border of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds of their inheritaunce from the east, was Ataroth Abar vnto the upper Berhoion, and goeth out westwarde by Michmethach that lyeth towarde the north, there fetcheth it a compass towarde the east syde of the cite Thachath Silo, and goeth there thorow from the east vnto Janoha, and commeth downe from Janoha vnto Ataroth and Maaratha, and bordereth on Jericho, and goeth out at Jordane. From Chapuah goeth it westwarde vnto Naalkama, and the out goinge of it is at the see.

This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds. And all the borders, cities with their villages of the childre of Ephraim laye scattered amonge the inheritaunce of the children of Manasse. And they droue not out 3 Cananites, which dwelt at Gaser. So 3 Cananites remaine amonge Ephraim vnto this daye, and became tributaries.

The xvij. Chapter.

And the lot fell vnto the trybe of Manasse (for he is Josephs first sonne) and it fell vpon Machir the first sonne of Manasse 3 father of Gilead: for he was a man of armes, therefore had he Gilead and Basan. It fell also vnto the other children of Manasse, namely vnto 3 childre of Abiezer, the children of Helek, the children of Asriel, the children of Sedech, the children of Jephther, and the children of Semida: These are the childre of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, males, amonge their kynreds.

But Zelaphead the sonne of Jephther the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, had no sonnes, but daughters, and their names are these: Mahala, Noa, Hagla, Milca, Tirza, and they came before Eleazar the prest, and before Iosua the sonne of Nun, and before the rulers, and sayde: The LORD commaundered Moses, to geue vs inheritaunce amonge oure brethren. And so they had inheritaunce geuen them amonge their fathers brethren, accordinge to the commaunderment of the LORD.

There fell vpon Manasse ten meetynes without the londe of Gilead and Basan, which lyeth beynde Jordane. For 3 daughters of Manasse receaued inheritaunce amonge his sonnes: but the other children of Manasse had the londe of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was fro Aser forth vnto Michmethach, that lyeth before Sichem, and reacheth vnto the righte syde of them of En Tapuah: for the londe of Tapuah fell vnto Manasse, and the border of Manasse is vnto the childre of Ephraim. Then commeth it downe to Naalkama towarde the south syde of the ryuer cities, which are Ephraims amonge the cities of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the ryuer, and goeth forth by the see syde, southwarde vnto Ephraim, and to Manasse northwarde, and the see is his coaste. And it shal border on Aser from the north, and on Isachar from the east.

So (amonge Isachar and Aser) Manasses had Beth Sean and the townes therof, and Jebaam and the townes therof, and them of Dor and their townes, and them of En Dor and their townes, and them of Taanach and their townes, and them of Maggedo and their townes, and the thirde parte of (the cite) Tophet. And the children of Manasse coude not dryue awaye the inhabitants of these cities, but the Cananites beganne to dwell in the same londe. Howbeit when the children of Israel were able, they made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

Then spake the children of Joseph vnto Iosua, and sayde: Wherfore hast thou geue me but one porcion and one meetlyne of inheritaunce, and I am yet a greateseeple, as the LORD hath blessed me so largely? Then sayde Iosua vnto them: For so much as thou art a greateseeple, go vnto the wood, and make thy selfe a reyn in the londe of the pherisites and Raphaim, forynge mozt Ephraim is to narrowe for the.

Then sayde the children of Joseph: We shal not be able to attayne vnto the mountaynes, for there are yron charrettes amonge all the Cananites, that dwell in the londe of Emet, by whom lyeth Beth Sean and the villages therof, and Jesrael in Emet. Iosua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, euen to Ephraim and Manasse: Thou art a greateseeple, and for so much as thou art so greateseeple, thou must not haue one lot, but the mountayne where 3 wood is, shal be thine rote 3 out for 3, so shal it be the outgoinge of thy porcion, whan thou dryuest out the Canani-tes, which have y^e charrettes, & are mightie.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AND all the multitude of the children of Israel gathered them selves together vnto Silo, and they set vp γ Tabernacle of witnesse, and the londe was subdued vnto them. But there were yet seven tribes of the child^r of Israel, vnto whom they had not denyed their enheritaunce.
And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: How longe are ye so slowe, to go and co-quere the londe, which the LORDE God of yours fathers hath given you? Chose you the men out of every tribe, & I maye sende them, and that they maye get them vp and go thorow the londe, and descrybe it acor-dinge to the enheritaunces therof, and come vnto me.

Denyde the londe in seven partes. Judas shal remayne vpon his borders of the south syde, and the house of Joseph shal remayne vpon his borders of the north parte: but descrybe ye the londe in seven partes, and bryn-ge them vnto me, then shal I cast γ lot for you before the LORDE our God. For the Leuites haue no porcion amonge you, but the priesthode of the LORDE is their enhe-ritaunce. As for Gad & Ruben and γ halfe tribe of Manasse, they haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Iordane eastwarde, which Moses the seruante of the LORDE
gaue them.

B Then the men gat vp, to go their waye.
And whan they were aboute to go for to descrybe the londe, Iosua commaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and walke tho-row the londe, and descrybe it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast γ lot for you before the LORDE at Silo. So the men departed, and wente thorow the londe, and descrybed it in seven partes vpon a letter a-cordinge to the cities, and came to Iosua in to the hoost at Silo. Then Iosua cast the lot ouer them at Silo before the LORDE, and there distributed the londe amonge the children of Israel, vnto every one his parte.

And the lot of the trybe of the children of Ben Jamin fell accordinge to their kyn-reds, and the border of their lot wente out betwene the children of Juda & the children of Joseph. And their border was on γ north quarter of Iordane, and goeth vp from the north syde of Jericho, and commeth vp to the mountayne westwarde, and goeth out by the wyldernesse of Bechaven, and goeth

from thence towarde Lus, even by the south syde of Lus (that is Bechel) and commeth downe vnto Ataroth Abar by the mountayne which lyeth on γ south syde of the londe Bethoron. Then boweth it downe, and se-theth a compasse vnto the south west quarter from the mount that lyeth ouer agayn Bethoron towarde the south, and goeth on vnto Kiriat Baal, γ is Kiriat Jearim, a cite of the children of Juda. This is the west border.

But the south border is from Kiriat Jearim forth, and goeth out towarde the west, and commeth south vnto γ water well of Nephtoi: and goeth downe by the valley of the sonne of Hinnam: and goeth done thorow the valley of Hinnam on γ south syde of the Jebusites, and commeth downe to the well of Rogell, and stretcheth from the northwarde, and commeth out vnto Sa-mies, and commeth south to the heape that lyeth vnto the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben, and goeth a longe besyde γ play-ne felde which lyeth northwarde, and commeth downe vnto γ playne felde, and goeth besyde Beth Hagla that lyeth towarde the north, and his ende is at the north border of the Salt see, vnto γ edge of Iordane south warde. This is the south border.

But Iordane shal be the ende of the east quarter. This is the enheritaunce of γ children of Ben Jamin in their borders rounde aboute, amonge their kynreds.

The cities of the trybe of the children of Ben Jamin amonge their kynreds are these:
Jericho, Beth Hagla, Emel Rezig, Baharaba, Zemaraim, Bethel, Avim, Haphar, Aphia, Caphar Amonai, Appni, Gaba: these are twelue cities and their villages.

Gibeon, Rama, Beeroth, Mispa, Capht-ra, Moza, Rekem, Jerpeel, Thareala, Be-la, Eleph, and the Jebusites, that is Jerusalem, Gibeath, Kiriat: these are foure cities and their villages. This is the enhe-ritaunce of the children of Ben Jamin in their kynreds.

The XIX. Chapter.

Then fell the seconde lot of the trybe of the children of Simeon acor-dinge to their kynreds, and their enhe-ritaunce was amonge the enheritaunces of γ children of Juda. And to their enheritaun-ce they had Beer Seba, Molada, Hazar Sual, Baala, Azem, El Tholad, Bethpazze, and their villages.

Hama, Zilag, Betha Martaboth, Hazar Suffa, Beth Lebaoth, and Sarubene: these are thre cities & their villages. Ain, Ki-non, Ether, Asan: these are foure cities and their villages. And all γ villages that lye aboute the cities vnto Balach Beer Ra-math towarde the south. This is the enhe-ritaunce of the trybe of the children of Simeon in their kynreds: for the enheritaunce of the children of Simeon is vnder the por-cion of the children of Juda. For so much as the enheritaunce of the children of Juda was to greate for them, therfore inhereted
the children of Simeon amonge their enhe-ritaunce.

The thirde lot fell vpon the child^r of Za-bulon after their kynreds. And the border of their enheritaunce was vnto Sarid, & goeth vp westwarde to Mareala, & bordieth vpon Dabath, and reacheth vnto the ryuer that floweth ouer agaynst Jatneam: & turneth from Sarid eastwarde vnto the border of Cisloth Thabor, and cometh out vnto Da-bath, and reacheth vp to Japia, and from thence goeth it westwarde thorow Gicha Hepher, and Jcha Razim, and commeth out towardes Ramon, Hamthor Hanea, & se-theth a compasse aboute from the north vnto Marthon, & the goynge out of it is in γ valley Jephtha El, Katath, Nahalal, Sim-ron, Jedaia, & Bethlehem: These are twel-ue cities and their villages. This is the en-heritaunce of the child^r of Zabulon in their kynreds: these are their cities and villages.

The fourth lot fell vpon the child^r of Is-sachar after their kynreds, & their border was Jisraella, Chesulloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, Anaharath, Raabith, Rishon, Abes, Raneth, En Ganim, Enhada, Beth Pazez, & bordieth vpon Thabor, Sahazima, Beth Sames, and γ outgoinge of it was at Jordane. These are sixtene cities and their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Issachar in their kynreds,
cities and villages.

The fifth lot fell vpon the trybe of the children of Asser, after their kynreds. And their border was Helkath, Hali, Beten, Ach-saph, Alamelech, Amead, Misael, and bordeth on Carmel vnto the see, and on Sihor, and Libnath, and turneth towarde the east vnto Beth Dagon, and bordieth on Zabulon, and on the valley of Jephthael, and toward the north syde of Beth Emel and Nagiel: & commeth out vnto Cabul on the west syde of Ekron, Rehob, Hamon and Canan, vnto greate Sidon. And turneth to wardes Rama, vnto the stronge cite of Ber, and turneth towardes Hossa, and goeth one vnto the see, after γ rlyne towardes Ach-sib, Oma, Apher, Rehob.

These are two and twentye cities and their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Asser in their kin-reds cities and villages.

The syxte lot fell vpon the children of Nephthali in their kynreds. And their border was frō Heleph Elon thozom Zaanaim, Adai Meteb, Jabneel vnto Latum, and goeth out vnto Iordan, and turneth westwarde to Asnoth Thabor, and cometh out from thence vnto Hukok, and bordieth on Zabulon towarde the south, and on Asser toward the west, and on Juda by Iordane toward the east: and hath stronge cities, Zidimzer, Hamath Ratath, Chinnaret, Ada-
ma, Rama, Hazor, Kedesh, Ediel, En Hazor, Jereon, Migdal Elhah, Beth Anath, Beth Sames. These are nyntene cities and their villages. This is the enheritaunce of γ try-be of the children of Nephthali in their kyn-
reds, cities, and villages.

The seventh lot fell vpon the trybe of the children of Dan after their kynreds. And the border of their enheritaunce was Zareah, Esthaol, Irtames, Saalabin, Aialon, Iechia, Elon, Chinnata, Et ron, Elpheth, Gibeath
Baalath, Jehud, Brierbarat, Gat Ramon, Me Jarkon, Rakon with the border by Japho, and on the same goeth the border of the children of Dan out. And the children of Dan wente vp, and foughte agaynst Lesem, and wonne it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and toke it in possession, & dwelt therin, and called it Dan, after γ name of their father. This is the enheritaunce of the try-be of the children of Dan in their kynreds,
cities, and villages.

And whā γ lōde was all parted out with the borders therof, the children of Israel ga-ue Iosua the some of Lun, an enheritaun-ce amonge them, and accordinge to the commaundement of the LORDE they gaue him
 γ cite that he requyred, namely, Thimnath Serah, vpon mount Ephraim: there buylded
he the cite, and dwelt therein.

These are the enheritaunces which Eleasar the prest and Iosua γ some of Lun, and the chiefe of the fathers amonge γ tribes, deuided out by lot vnto the child^r of Israel at Silo before the LORDE, then before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnes, and so they ended the denydinge out of the londe.

The booke of Iosua.

The XX. Chapter.

20.11.b
Deut. 19.c

Unto the LORD spake vnto Iosua, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel: Geue amonge you fre cities, wherof I spake vnto you by Moses, that a deed-slayer which sleyleth a soule vnawarres and unwittingly, maye flye thither, & they maye be fre amonge you from the auenger of bloude. And he that flyeth to one of those cities, shal stonde without before the porte of the cite, and shewe his cause before the Elders of the cite, then shall they take him to them in to the cite, and geue him place to dwell with them.

B And yf the auenger of bloude folowe vpon him, they shall not deliuer the deed-slayer in to his handes, for so much as he hath slayne his neighbour vnawarres, and was not his enemye afore: but he shall dwell in y cite, tyll he stonde before the congregacion in iudgment, vntill the hye priest dye, which shall be at that tyme. Then shall the deed-slayer returne, and go vnto his awne cite, and vnto his house to the cite, from whence he was fled.

C Then appoynted they Kedres in Galile vpon mount Nephtali, and Sechem vpon mount Ephraim, and Kiriat-harba, that is Hebion vpon mount Juda. And beynde Jordane on the east syde of Jericho, they gaue Befer in the wilderness vpon the playne out of the trybe of Ruben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan out of the trybe of Manasse.

These were the cities appoynted for all y children of Israel, and for the straungers which dwelt amonge them, that whosoever had slayne a soule vnawarres, might flye thither, that he shulde not be put to death by the auenger of bloude, tyll he had stonde before the congregacion.

The XXI. Chapters.

Num. 33.a

When the chiefe fathers amonge the Levites came forth vnto Eleasar the priest and to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and to y awncient fathers amonge the trybes of the children of Israel, and spake vnto them at Silo in the londe of Canaan, and sayde: * The LORD commaundered by Moses, that we shulde haue cities geuen vs to dwell in, and the suburbs of the same for oure catell. Then the children of Israel gaue of their inheritaunce these cities and the suburbs therof, vnto the Levites, accordyng to the commaundement of the LORD.

The xxi. Chap.

And the lot fell vpon the kynred of the Rahabites, and the children of Aaron the prest amonge the Levites, had by the lot thytene cities of the trybe of Juda, of the trybe of Simcon, and of the trybe of Ben Jamin. The other childre of Rahab of the same kynred, had by the lot ten cities, of the trybe of Ephraim, of the trybe of Dan, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

But the children of Gerson of the same kynred had by the lot thytene cities, of the trybe of Issachar, of the trybe of Asser, of y trybe of Nephtali, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse at Basan.

The children of Merari of their kynred had twolue cities, of the trybe of Ruben, of the trybe of Gad, and of the trybe of Zabulon. So the children of Israel gaue these cities and their suburbs vnto the Levites by lot, as the LORD commaundered by Moses.

Of the trybe of the children of Juda, and of the trybe of the children of Simcon, they gaue these cities (which they name by name) vnto the children of Aaron of the kynred of the Rahabites amonge the children of Levi: for the first lot was the yre.

So they gaue them Kiriat-harba, which was the fathers of Enak, that is Hebion vpon the mount Juda, and the suburbs therof rounde aboute. But the seide of the cite and the vyllages therof, gaue they vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephane for his possession.

Thus gaue they vnto the children of Aaron the prest, the fre cite of the deed-slayers, Hebion and the suburbs therof, Libna and the suburbs therof, Jathir and the suburbs therof, Esthuma and the suburbs therof, Holon and the suburbs therof, Debe and the suburbs therof, Ain and the suburbs therof, Iuta and the suburbs therof, Beth Semes and the suburbs therof, comynne cities of these two trybes.

But of the trybe of Ben Jamin they gaue foure cities, Gibeon and y suburbs therof, Gaba, and the suburbs therof, Anathoth and the suburbs therof, Almon and the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the children of Aaron the prest were thirtene with their suburbs.

The kynreds of the other children of Rahab the Levites, had by their lot foure cities, of the trybe of Ephraim, and they gaue the fre cite of the deed-slayers, Seche and the suburbs therof vpon mount Ephraim, Gaser and the suburbs therof, Kibzai

and the suburbs therof, Bethron and the suburbs therof.

Of the trybe of Dan foure cities, Elchead and y suburbs therof, Gibeon and the suburbs therof, Alalon and the suburbs therof, Gath Rimon and the suburbs therof. Of the halfe trybe of Manasses two cities, Thaanach and the suburbs therof, Gath Rimon and the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the other children of y kynred of Rahab, were ten with their suburbs.

But vnto the children of Gerson amonge the kynreds of the Levites were geuen, Of the halfe trybe of Manasse two cities, the fre cite for the deed-slayer, Gola in Basan and the suburbs therof, Beashtia, and the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Issachar foure cities, Rishon and the suburbs therof, Dabirach and the suburbs therof, Jarmuth and the suburbs therof, Engannim and the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Asser foure cities, Misceal, Abdon, Helkath and Rehob with the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Nephtali the cities, the fre cite Kedres (for the deed-slayer) in Galile, Hamoth, Dor, and Rarchan with the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the kynred of the Gersonites were thirtene with their suburbs.

Vnto the kynreds of Merari the other Levites were geuen, Of the trybe of Zabulon foure cities, Jakneam, Rarcha, Dimna and Uahalal with y suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Ruben foure cities, Bezer, Jahza, Kedemoth and Mephaat with their suburbs. Of the trybe of Gad foure cities, the fre cite for the deed-slayer, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaïm, Hesben and Jaser with their suburbs: so that all the cities of the children of Merari amonge their kynreds of y other Levites, were twolue. Thus all the cities of the Levites amonge y possession of the children of Israel, were eght and forty with their suburbs. And these cities were so dealete out, that enery one had their suburbs rounde aboute, the one as the other.

Thus the LORD gaue the children of Israel all the londe, which he had sworne vnto their fathers to geue: & they toke possession of it, and dwelt therein. And the LORD gaue the rest before all those y were aboute them: like as he swore vnto their fathers, & none of their enemies stode agaynst the, but all their enemies deliuered he in to their hande. And their myssed nothinge of all the good that the LORD had promysed vnto the house of Israel, it came euery whyt.

The XXII. Chapter.

When Iosua called y Rubenites and Gadites, and y halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue kepte all, that Moses the seruante of the LORD commaundered you, and haue hearkened vnto my voyce in all y I haue commaunded you. Ye haue not forsaken youre brethren a longe season, vnto this daye, and haue waited vpon the commaundement of the LORD your God. For so much now as the LORD your God hath broughte youre brethren to rest, as he promysed them, turne you now, and go youre waye to youre tentes in to the londe of youre possession, which Moses the seruante of the LORD gaue you beynde Jordane.

But take diligent hede now, that ye do accordyng to the commaundement and lawe which Moses the seruante of the LORD hath commaunded: That ye loue the LORD your God, and walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleue vnto him, and serue him with all youre heart, and with all youre soule. So Iosua blessed them, and let them go. And they wente vnto their tentes.

Vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse had Moses geuen possession at Basan: vnto the other halfe gaue Iosua amonge their brethren on this syde Jordane westwarde. And whan he let them go to their tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them: Ye come home agayne with greete good vnto youre tentes, with exceedyng much catell, syluer, golde, blasse, yron and raynment, distribute therfore the spoyle of youre enemyes amonge youre brethren.

So the Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse returned, and wente from the children of Israel out of Silo (which lyeth in the londe of Canaan) to go in to the countre of Gilead to the londe of their possession, that they mighte possesse it, accordyng to the commaundement of the LORD by Moses.

And whan they came vnto the heapes by Jordane, which lye in the londe of Canaan, the same Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe trybe of Manasses buylded there beynde Jordane, a same greete altare. But whan the children of Israel herde saye: Beholde, the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse haue buylded an altare ouer agaynst the londe, de of Canaan vpon the heapes by Iordane on this syde the children of Israel, they gathered them selues together with the whole congregacion at Silo, to go vp agaynst the with an armie. And (in the meane season) they sent to them in to the lande of Gilead, Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and with him ten chiefe prynces amonge the houses of their fathers, out of every tribe in Israel one. And they came to the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in the lande of Gilead, and sayde:

D Thus sayeth the whole congregacion of the LORDE vnto you: * What trespasse is this, y^e haue trespassed agaynst the God of Israel, that ye shulde turne backe from y^e LORDE this daye, to builde you an altare, for to fall awaye from the LORDE?

Num. 25. a * Have we not ynough of the wickednesse of Peor: from the which we are not yet clen sed this daye, and there came a plague amonge the congregacion of the LORDE: and ye turne you backe this daye from the LORDE, and this daye are ye fallen awaye from the LORDE, that he maye be wroth to daye or to morow at the whole congregacion of the LORDE.

If the lande of youre possession be uncleane, then come ouer in to the lande that the LORDE possesseth, where the dwellynge of the LORDE is, and take possessions amonge vs, and fall not awaye from the LORDE and from vs, to builde you an altare with out the altare of the LORDE our God. * Did not Achan the sonne of Serah trespasse in the thinge that was damned, and the wrath came ouer y^e whole congregacion of Israel and he wente not downe alone for his mysdede?

Ios. 7. a Then answered the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto the heades and prynces of Israel: The mightie God y^e LORDE, the mightie God the LORDE knoweth, and Israel knoweth also, yf this be a transgressyng or trespacyng agaynst the LORDE, then let it not helpe vs this daye: If we haue buylded the altare, because we wolde turne awaye backe from the LORDE, to offer burntofferings or meatofferings ther on, or to make any deedofferings vpon it, then let the LORDE requyre it: And yf we haue not done it rather for very feare of this thinge, and sayde: To daye or to morow mighte youre children saye vnto oure children:

The xxij. Chap.

What haue ye to do with the LORDE the God of Israel: The LORDE hath set Iordane for a border betwene vs and you y^e children of Ruben and Gad, ye haue no portion in the LORDE: By this shulde your children make oure children to turne awaye from the feare of the LORDE.

Therefore sayde we: Let vs make our children an altare, not for sacrifice, nor for burnt offeringe, but that it maye be a witness betwene vs and you, and oure posterities, that we maye serue the LORDE in his sighte with oure burntofferings, deedofferings, and other offerings: and y^e youre children to daye or to morow neade not to saye vnto oure children: Ye haue no parte in the LORDE.

And we sayde: But yf they shulde speake so vnto vs, or to oure posterities to daye or to morow, then maye we saye: Beholde the similitude of y^e altare of the LORDE, which oure fathers made, not for sacrifice, nor for burnt offeringe, but for a witness betwene vs and you.

God forbydde, that we shulde fall awaye from the LORDE, to turne backe from him this daye, and to buyld an altare for sacrifice, for burnt offeringe and for any preynt, without y^e altare of the LORDE our God, that stoneth before his habitation.

But whan Phineas the prest, and the chiefe of the congregacion, the prynces of Israel which were with him, herde these wordes, that the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse had spoken, they pleased them well. And Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest sayde vnto the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse: This daye we knowe, that y^e LORDE is amonge vs, in that ye haue not trespassed agaynst the LORDE in this daye. Now haue ye deliuered the children of Israel out of the hande of the LORDE.

Then Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and the rulers returned out of the lande of Gilead, from the children of Ruben and Gad, vnto y^e lande of Canaan to the children of Israel, and brought them wordes gayne of the matter.

Then were the children of Israel well content with the thinge. And they prayed the God of Israel, and sayde nomore that they wolde go vp agaynst them with an armie, to destroye the lande that the children of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And y^e child of Ruben and Gad called the name of the altare: This altare be witness betwene vs, that the LORDE is God.

The XXXIIII. Chapter.

I After a longe season, whan the LORDE had brought Israel to rest from all their enemies rounde aboute: and Iosua was now olde and well stricken in age, he called all Israel and their Elders, heades, iudges, and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue sene all that the LORDE youre God hath done vnto all these nacions in youre sighte. For the LORDE youre God himself hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue parted amonge you y^e remnant of the nacions by lot, vnto every trybe his inheritaunce from Iordane forth, and all the nacions whom I haue roted out vnto the greate see westwarde.

And the LORDE youre God shal thrust them out before you, and dryue them awaye from you, that ye maye haue their lande in possession, as the LORDE youre God hath promysed you. Be ströge now therefore, that ye maye obserue and do all that is wrytten in the booke of the lawe of Moses: so that ye come not asyde from it, nether to the righte hande nor to the left: that ye come not amonge y^e remnant of these nacions, which are with you: And let that ye make no mention ner sweare by the names of their goddes, nether serue them, ner bowe youre selues vnto them: But cleue vnto the LORDE youre God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: the shal the LORDE dryue awaye greate and mightie nacions before you, like as there hath no man bene able to stonde before you vnto this daye. * One of you shal chace a thousande: for the LORDE youre God fighteth for you, accordinge as he promysed you. Take diligent hede therefore vnto youre selues, that ye loue the LORDE youre God.

But yf ye turne backe, and cleue vnto the scother nacions, and make mariages with them, so that ye come amonge them, and they amonge you, be ye sure then, that the LORDE youre God shal nomore dryue out all these nacions before you, but they shal be vnto you a snare and net, and prickes in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll he haue destroyed you from the good lode, which the LORDE youre God hath geuen you.

Beholde, this daye do I go the waye of all the world, and ye shal knowe enen from all youre hert and from all youre soule, that there hath not sayled one worde of all the good that the LORDE youre God promysed you. Now like as all the good is come that the LORDE youre God promised you:

The xxxij. Chap. Ho. xij.

enen so shal the LORDE cause all euill to come vpon you, tyll he haue destroyed you from this good lode, which the LORDE youre God hath geuen you: yf ye transgresse y^e commandment of the LORDE youre God, which he hath commaunded you. And yf ye go y^e waye and serue other goddes, and worshippe the, then shal the wrath of the LORDE be wroth ouer you, and shal shortly destroye you out of the good lode, y^e he hath geuen you.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

I osua gathered all the trybes of Israel together vnto Sichem, and called the Elders of Israel, the heades, iudges and officers. And whā they were come before God, he sayde vnto all the people: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: * Y^e fathers dwelt afore time beyöde y^e water, Abrahā y^e Nahor y^e Tarah their father y^e serued other goddes. * Then toke I y^e father Abraham beyöde the water, and caused him to walke in the lande of Canaan, and multiplied his sede, and gaue him Isaac, and vnto Isaac I gaue Jacob and Esau, and gaue Esau mount Seir to possesse. As for Jacob, y^e his childre, they wente downe in to Egypte.

Then sent I Moses and Aaron, and plagued Egypte as I haue done amonge the. After y^e brought I you and youre fathers out of Egypte. And whan ye came to y^e see, and the Egyptians folowed vpon youre fathers with charrettes and horse men vnto the reed see, then cryed they vnto the LORDE, which put a darcknesse betwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpon them, and ouerwhelmed them. And youre eyes haue sene what I dyd to y^e Egyptians, and ye dwelt in y^e wilderness a löge season. And I broughte you in to y^e lande of the Amorites, which dwelt beyöde Iordane: and whā they fought agaynst you, I deliuered them in to y^e hande, that ye mighte haue their countre in possession, and I destroyed them before you. * Then Balac the sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites gat him vp, and foughte agaynst Israel: and he sente and had call Balaam the sonne of Beor, to curse you, neuertheles I wolde not heare him, but I blessed you, and deliuered you out of his hande.

And whan ye wente ouer Iordane, and came vnto Jericho, the citsyns of Jericho foughte agaynst you, the Amorites, Pherecites, Cananites, Hethites, Girgositites, Hemitites, y^e Jebusites: howbeit I deliuered the in to youre hande. And I sent hornettes before you, which droue them out before you, na

And whan ye wente ouer Iordane, and came vnto Jericho, the citsyns of Jericho foughte agaynst you, the Amorites, Pherecites, Cananites, Hethites, Girgositites, Hemitites, y^e Jebusites: howbeit I deliuered the in to youre hande. And I sent hornettes before you, which droue them out before you, na mely the two kynges of the Amorites: not the row thy swerde, ner the row thy bowe. And I have geuen you a londe wher vpon ye bestowed no labour, and cities which ye have not buylded, that ye might dwell therein, and that ye might eate of the vnyardes and o-lyne trees which ye have not planted. Feare the LORDE now therfore, and serue him perfectly and in the trueth, and let go the god-des, whom youre fathers serued beyonde the water and in Egipte, and serue ye the LORDE.

But yf ye like not to serue the LORDE, the chose you this daye whom ye wyll serue: the God whom youre fathers serued beyonde the water, or the goddes of the Amorites, in whose lode ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyll serue the LORDE. Then answered the people, and saide: God forbidde, that we shul-de forsake the LORDE, & serue other goddes.
For the LORDE oure God brought vs and oure fathers out of the londe of Egipte fro
the house of bondage, and did soch greates to vs before oure eyes, and preserved vs all the waye that we wente, and amonge all the nations, whom we trauayled by. And the LOR-DE thrust out before vs all the people of the Amorites that dwelt in the londe. Therfore wyll we also serue the LORDE, for he is oure God.

Iosua sayde vnto the people: Ye can not serue the LORDE: for he is an holy God, migh-tye, and gelous, which spareth not youre transgressions and synnes. But yf ye forsake the LORDE, and serue a straunge god, then shall the LORDE turne him, and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. The people sayde vnto Iosua: Not so, but we will serue the LORDE.
Then sayde Iosua vnto the people: Ye are witnesses ouer youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the LORDE, to serue him. And they sayde: Yee. Then put awaye from you (sayde
he) the straunge goddes that are amonge you, and enclyne youre hert vnto the LORDE the God of Israel. And the people sayde vnto Iosua: We wyll serue the LORDE oure God, and be obedient vnto his voyce. So Iosua made a covenante with the people the same daye, and laied statutes & lawes before them at Sichem.

I R. 7. c
And Iosua wrote this acte in the boke of the lawe of God, and toke a greate stone, & set it vp there vnder an oke, which was in the Sanctuary of the LORDE, and sayde vnto all the people: Beholde, this stone shall be wit-nesse ouer you: for it hath herde all the wor-des of the LORDE, which he hath spoken

vnto vs, and shall be a witnesse ouer that ye denye not youre God. So Iosua
the people go euery one to his enheritaunce.

And it fortuneth after these actes, that Iosua the sonne of Nun & seruant of the LOR-DE dyed, whan he was an hundredth and yeare olde, and was buried in the border his enheritaunce at Thimnath Serah, wher lyeth on the mount Ephraim, on the north side of mount Gaas. And the children of Israel serued the LORDE as long as Iosua lyued, and the Elders (that lyued longe after Iosua) which knewe all the workes of the LORDE, that he had done vnto Israel. The bones of Ioseph, which the children of Israel had broughte out of Egipte, buryed
they at Sichem, in the pece of the londe, wher Jacob boughte of the children of Hamor father of Sichem for an hundredth pen, as was the enheritaunce of the children of Ioseph. Eleasar the sonne of Aaron died also, and they buried him at Gibeath, which was Phineas his sonnes, that was geuen him
vpon
mount Ephraim.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Josua the children of Israel axed the LORDE, and sayde: Who shall go vp & be captay-ne of warre against the Cananites? The LOR-DE sayde: Juda shall go vp. Beholde, I haue deliuered the lon-de in to his hande. Then sayde Juda vnto his brother Simeon: Go vp with me in to my lot, and let vs fighte against the Cananites, then wyl I go agayne with the in to the lot:

So Simeon wente with him.

Now whan Juda wente vp the LORDE deliuered the Cananites and pherisites in to their handes, & they slawe te thousande me at Belet: & they founde Abdoni Belet at Beset, & foughte agaynst him, and slawe the Ca-nanites and pherisites. But Abdoni Belet fled, and they folowed a fier him: and whan they had euertaken him, they cut of the tho-bes of his handes and fete.

Then sayde Abdoni Belet: Thre score and ten kynges & the thembes of their handes & fete cut of, gathered vp the meate & was leste vnder my table. Now as I haue done, so hath God rewarded me agayne. And he was broughte vnto Jerusalem, wher he dyed.

But the childre of Juda foughte agaynst Jerusalem, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set fyre vpon the cite. Then wente the children of Israel deune, to fighte agaynst the Cananites, & dwelt vpon the mount, and towarde the south, and in the valle. Then Juda wente agaynst the Cananites, which dwelt at Hebron. As for Hebron, it was called Biriatharba a fore tyme, and they smote Sesai, & Achiman, and Thalmai.

And from thence he wente agaynst the inhabiters of Debir (but Debir was called Biriath Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb sayde: He that smyteth Biriath Sepher, & wyn-neth it, I wyl geue him my daughter Achsa to wife. Then Achisai the sonne of Benas, Calebs yongest brother wanne it. And he ga-ue him his daughter Achsa to wife. And it fortuneth that whan they were in, she was counceled of hir housbande, to axe a pece of lon-de of hir father. And she fell from the asse.
The sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the?<
 > She sayde: Geue me a blessinge, for thou hast geuen me a south & drye londe, geue me also a watery londe. Then gaue he her a lon-de that was watery a boue and teneth.

And the childre of Benyue & Iosias brother in lawe, wente vp out of the palme cite, with the children of Juda in to the wyl-dernesse of Juda, that lyeth on the south syde of the cite Arab: and wente their waye, & dwelt amonge the people. And Juda wente with his brother Simeon, & they smote the Cananites at Zephath, & damned them, & called the name of the cite Boima. Juda also wanne Gasa with the borders therof, & Ascalon with hir borders, & Accaron with the coastes therof. And the LORDE was with Juda, so that he conquered the mountaynes: but them that dwelt in the valley coulde he not conquere, because they had yron charettes. And acordinge as Moses had sayde, they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, which bro-ue out the thre sonnes of Enak. Howbeit the children of Ben Jamin dreue not out the Jebusites which dwelt at Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwelt amonge the children of Ben Jamin at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

Likewyse the children of Ioseph were vp also vnto Bethel, & the LORDE was with them. And the house of Ioseph spied out Bethel (which afore tyme was called Lus) and the watch men sawe a man goinge out of the city, and saide vnto him: Shewe vs where we maye come in to the cite. And he sayde: I shewe mercy vpon the. And whan he had shewed them where they mighte come in to the cite,

they smote & cite to the edge of the swerde:
but they let the man go & all his frendes.

Then were the same man vp into y count-re of the Zechites, & buylded a cite, and called it Lusa, & so is the name of it yet vnto this daye. And Manasses & Dan were out Berth Sean & the villages therof, ner Thaanah with the villages therof, ner the inhabitants of Doi with the villages therof: ner the inhabiters of Tebleam & the villages therof, ner the inhabitants of Mageddo & the villages therof, and & Cananites begonne to dwell in the same londe. But whan Israel was mightie, he made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

In like maner Ephraim droue not out & Cananites that dwelt at Gaser, but the Ca-nanites dwelt amonge them at Gaser.

Zabulon also droue not out the inhabitants of Bitron and Nabalol, but & Cananites dwelt amonge them, & were tributaries.

Asser droue not out y inhabitants of Aco, & y inhabitants of Sidon, of Abilab, of Ach-sib, of Helba, of Aphik & of Rehob, but & Asserites dwelt amoge the Cananites that dwelt in the lode, for they droue the not out.

Nephthali droue not out y inhabitants of Beth Semes, ner of Beth Anath, but dwelt amonge the Cananites which dwelt in the londe: howbeit they of Beth Semes and of Beth Anath were tributaries.

And the Amorites subdued the childre of Dan vpon the mountaine, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Amorites begonne to dwell vpon mount Heres at Aiolon and at Saalim. Howbeit y hande of y house of Joseph was to sore for them, and they became tributaries. And the border of the Amorites was, as a mā goeth vp towarde Acrahim, and from the rocke, & from the toppe.

The II. Chapter.

¶ But there came vp a messaiger of y LORDE from Gilgall vnto Bochim, and sayde: I haue caried you vp hither out of Egypte, and broughte you in to the londe that I sware vnto youre fathers, & saide: I wyl neuer breake my couenaunt wth you, that ye shulde make no couenaunt with the dwellers of this londe, but breake dow-ne their altars: Nevertheless ye haue not hearkned vnto my voyce. Wherefore haue ye done this? Then saide y moouers: I wil driue them out before you, that they maye be a fall vnto you, and their goddes a fundament. And whan y messaiger of the LORDE spoken these wordes vnto all the childre of Israel, the people leste vp their voyce, & re-te, and called y name of the place Bochim, and offred there vnto the LORDE.

For whan Josua had sente awaye y peple, and the childre of Israel were gone, eu-ry one to his inheritaunce, for to take possession of the londe, the people serued the LORDE
as long as Josua lyled and y Elders, which lyled longe after Josua, and y sam all the greates workes of the LORDE, which he dyd for Israel.

Now whan Josua the sonne of Nauth seruaunt of the LORDE, was deede (whan he was an hundred and ten yere elde, they beried him in y border of his inheritaunce at Timnath Heres vpon mount Ephraim in the north syde of mount Gaas. And whan all the same generacion was gathered vnto their fathers, there came vp after them another generacion, which knew not the LORDE, ner the workes that he had done for Israel.

Then wroughte the children of Israel
euell before the LORDE, and serued Baalam and forsoke y LORDE the God of their fathers (which broughte them out of the lon-de of Egypte) and folowed other goddes:
the goddes of the nacions that dwelt rounde aboute them, & worshipped them, & displeased the LORDE: for they forsoke y LORDE euer more and more, and serued Baalam & Astaroth.

Then y wrath of the LORDE waxed agayn-st Israel, & he deliuered the in to y han-des of those y spoyled the, that they mighte spoyl them, & sold the in to the handes of their enemies rounde aboute, & they were not able to withstande their enemies enemyes, but what waye so euer they wolde out, y hande of the LORDE was agaynst the to that hurte (euen as the LORDE sayde and swa-re vnto them) and they were sore oppressed.

Now whan the LORDE rayssed them vp iudges, which helped them out of the handes of such as spoyled the, they folowed not the iudges nether, but wente a whoringe after other goddes, & worshipped them, and were soone gone out of y waye y their fathers walked in, to heare the commandementes of the LORDE, & dyd not as they dyd.

But whan y LORDE rayssed vp iudges vnto them, the LORDE was with y iudges and helped them out of the handes of their enemies, as long as the iudges lyled. For the LORDE had pitie of their complaunte, which they made ouer those y subdued the

and oppressed them.

¶ Nevertheless whan the iudge dyed, they turned backe, and marred all more the their fathers, so that they folowed other goddes to serue them and to bowe them selues vnto them: they wolde not fall from their purposes, ner from their obstinate waye.

Therfore waxed the wrath of the LORDE
allwaie so whore ouer Israel, that he sayde:
For so much as the people haue transgressed my couenaunt, which I commaunded their fathers, & folowe not my voyce, I wil from hence forth driue out none of the Zechites, whos Josua leste behynde him, whan he dyed, that by them I maye proue Israel, whether they wil kepe the waye of the LORDE, to walke therein, as their fathers dyd, or not.
Thus the LORDE suffred all these nacions, so that in a shorte tyme he droue them not out, whom he had not geuen ouer in to Josuas hande.

The III. Chapter.

¶ These are the nacions, whom the LORDE suffred to remayne, & by them he mighte proue Israel, which had no vnderstandinge in the warres of Canaan:
onely because y the trybes of the childre of Israel mighte knowe & lerne to warre, which afore had no knowlege therof, namely: The sue lordes of y Philistynes, & all the Cananites, & Sidonians, & the Zechites y dwelt vpon mount Libanus, from mount Baal Hermon, vntill a man come vnto Hemath. The same remayned, that Israel mighte be proued by them, that it mighte be knowne whether they wolde hearken to the commande-mentes of the LORDE, which he commaunded their fathers by Moses.

Now whan the children of Israel dwelt thus amoge the Cananites, Zechites, Amorites, Pherisites, Zenuites & Jebusites, they toke their daughters to wyues, & gaue their daughters vnto their sonnes, & serued their goddes, and wroughte wickednes before the LORDE, & forgat the LORDE their God, & serued Baalam & Astaroth. Then y wrath of y LORDE waxed whore ouer Israel, &
he sold the vnder the hade of Cusan Risa-tham kynge of Mesopotamia, & so y childre of Israel serued Cusan Risaatham viij. yea-res.

¶ Then cried the childre of Israel vnto the LORDE, & the LORDE rayssed the vp a sauour which deliuered the, namely: Achmel y sonne of Renas, Calebs yongest brother.

And the sperte of the LORDE came vpon him, & he was indge in Israel, & wente out a warre fare. And y LORDE deliuered Cu-san Risaatham the kynge of Syria in to his hade, so y his hande was to stroge for him.
Then was the londe in rest fortye yeres.
And Achmel the sonne of Renas dyed.

But the childre of Israel dyd yet more euell before the LORDE. Then the LORDE strengthened Eglon the kynge of y Moabites agaynst y childre of Israel, because they wroughte wickednesse before y LORDE. And he gathered vnto him y childre of Ammon, & the Amalechites, & wete and smote Israel,
and conquered the cite of the palme trees.
And the childre of Israel serued Eglon y kynge of y Moabites eightene yere. Then cried they vnto the LORDE. And the LORDE rayssed the vp a sauoure, namely: Ehud the sonne of Gera y sonne of Jemini, which was a man that mighte do nothings with his righte hande.

And whan the childre of Israel sent a present by him vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, Ehud made him a two edged daggar of a spanne longe, & gyrded it vnder his garnet vpon his righte thye, & broughte
y present vnto Eglon the kynge of y Moabites. As for Eglon, he was a very fat man.

And whan he had deliuered the presente, he let the people go that had caried the present, and he himselfe turned backe from the Idols at Gilgall, & caused to saye thus (vnto the kynge): I haue a secreete thinge to tell the O kynge. And he commaunded to ke-pe sylence, & all they that stode aboute him, wente out from him.

And Ehud came in vnto him. He sat in a syled Sommer perler, which was for him selfe alone. And Ehud saide: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the of God. The rose he vp fro his seate. But Ehud put forth his lefte han-de, & toke the daggar from his righte thye, & thrust it in to his bely, so y the herte wente in also after the blade, & the fatt closed the hete: for he dide not y daggar out of his bely, & y fylthines departed fro him. But Ehud gat him out at the backe doore, & put to y dere after him, and lockte it.

Now whan he was gone, his seruantes came in, and sawe that the doore of the Sommer perler was lockte, and they sayde: perad-uenture he is gone to the priuey in the syled Sommer perler.

But whan they had wayted so longe tyll they were ashamed (for no man opened the perler doore) they toke the keye, and opened it.

Beholde, then laye their lorde deed vpo the earth. As for Ehud, he was gotten awaye, whyle they made so longe tarienge, & he wente ouer by the Idolo, and ranne his waye vnto Seirath.

And whan he came in, he blew & trompet vpo mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel wente with him from the mount, and he before them, and he saide vnto them: Followe me, for the LORDE hath deliuered the Moabites youre enemies in to yo^r hande. And they followed him, & wanne y ferye of Jordane, & goeth towarde Moab, & suffred no man to go ouer, and at y same tyme they smote of the Moabites vpo a ten thousande men, all nobles and men of armes, so that there escaped not one. Thus were the Moabites broughte vnder the hande of the children of Israel at that tyme, and the lorde was in rest foure score yeres.

Afterwarde was Samgar y sonne of Anath, which slewe sixe hundred Philistynes with an ores gadd, and deliuered Israel also.

The iiii. Chapter.

Whe children of Israel dyd yet more euell before y LORDE, whan Ehud was deed. And the LORDE solde the in to the hande of Jabin the kynge of the Cananites, which dwelt at Hazor, & the chefe captayne of his hooste was Sissera, and he dwelt at Haroseth of the Heythen. And the childre of Israel cried vnto the LORDE: for he had myne hundred yron charrettes, and subdued the children of Israel by violence twentye yere.

At y same tyme was Judgesse in Israel the prophetisse Debboia, the wyfe of Lapidoch, and she dwelt vnder y palme of Debboia betwene Rama & Bethel, vpon mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel came vp vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, & called for Barak the sonne of Abi Noam of Kedes Nephtali, and sayde vnto him: Hath not y LORDE the God of Israel co maunded the: Go thy waye, and get the vp vnto mount Thabor, & take w the tenthousand men of the children of Nephtali & Zabulon: for I wil make Sissera the chefe captayne of Jabin's hoost to come to the vnto y water of Tysen, with his charrettes and with his multitude, and I wyll deliuer him in to thy hande. Barak sayde vnto her: If thou wilt come with me, I wil go: but yf thou wilt not come with me, I wil not go.

She sayde: I wyll go with the: neuertheless the prayse shal not be thine in this iour ney that thou goest, but y LORDE shal deliuer Sissera in to a womans hande. So Debboia gat hir vp, and wente with Barak vnto Kedes. Then Barak called Zabulon and Nephtali vnto Kedes, and mette on fote ten thousande men. And Debboia wente w him also. As for Heber the Kenyte he was departed from the Kenytes from the children of Hobab Moses brother in lawe, and had pitched his tent by y Oke of Zaanaim besyde Kedes.

Then was it tolde Sissera, y Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, was gone vp vnto mount Thabor: & he gathered all his charrettes together, nyne C. yron charrettes, & all the people y was with him from Haroseth of the Heythen, vnto the water Tysen. Debboia sayde vnto Barak: Up, this is the daie wherein the LORDE hath deliuered Sissera in to y hande: for y LORDE shal go forth before y. So Barak wente from mount Thabor, and y ten thousande men after him.

But the LORDE discomfited Sissera w all his charrettes & hoost, & made the a fraye of the edge of the swerde before Barak, so y Sissera leapt of his charret, & fled on fote. Neuertheless Barak folowed vpon the charrettes & the hoost vnto Haroseth of the Heythen, & all Sisseras hoost fell thorow y edge of the swerde, so y not one escaped. As for Sissera, he fled on fote vnto the tente of Jael, y wife of Heber y Kenite. For there was peace betwene kynge Jabin at Hazor, & the house of Heber the Kenite.

Jael mette forth to mette Sissera, & sayde vnto him: Turne in my lorde, turne in to me, & be not a frayd. And he turned in vnto her in to the tente, & she couered him with a garment. He sayde vnto her: I praye y geue me a litle water to drynke, for I am athyrt. She opened she a mylke pot, & gaue him to drynke, and couered him. And he sayde vnto her: Seede in the tente dore, & yf one come & ask is there eny man here: saye No man.

Then Jael the wife of Heber toke a nak of the tente, and an hammer in hir hande, & wente in priuely vnto him, & smote the nak in thorow the temples of his heade, so y he sancte to y earth. As for him, he was fallen on a slomber, and weery, and so he dyed.

But whan Barak folowed after Sissera, Jael wente for to mette him, and sayde vnto him: Come hither, I wil shewe the the man, whom thou seekest. And whan he came in vnto her, he sawe Sissera deed, & the nak sticke in his temples. Thus God broughte downe Jabin the kynge of the Cananites before the children of Israel at that tyme, & the hande of the children of Israel wente & subdued Jabin y kynge of the Cananites, till they had rote him out. Then Debboia and Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, sange at the same tyme, and sayde:

The V. Chapter.

Wow that ye are come to rest, ye quyet men in Israel, prayse y LORDE, amonge soch of the people as be fre wyllinge.

Heare ye kynges, & herken to ye prynces: I wyll, I wyll synge to the LORDE, even vnto the LORDE y God of Israel wil I playe.

LORDE, whan thou wentest out from Sair, & camest in from the felde of Edem, y earth quaked, the heauen dropped, and the cloudes dropped with water.

The hilles melted before the LORDE, Sinai before the LORDE the God of Israel.

In the tyme of Sanger the sonne of Anath: In the tyme of Jael the wayes sayled: and they that shulde haue gone in pathes, walked thorow croked wayes.

There was scarcenesse, there was scarcenesse of housbande men in Israel, vntyll J Debboia came vp, vntyll I came vp a mother in Israel.

God hath chosen a new thinge. He hath overcome y portes in battayll: and yet was there sene nether shyld nor speare amonge foure thousande in Israel.

My heart loneth y teachers of Israel: ye y are fre wyllinge amonge the people, prayse the LORDE.

Re that ryde vpo sayre Asses, ye that syt in iudgment and geue sentence, ye that go by the waye, prayse the LORDE.

Whan y archers cried betwene y drawers of water, then was it spote of y righteousness of the LORDE, of the righteousness of his husbande men in Israel: then ruled the people of the LORDE vnder the gates.

Up Debboia vp, get the vp, get the vp, & rehearse a songe. Arise Barak, & catch him y caught the, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then had the desolate the rule with the mightie of the people. The LORDE had y dominion thorow the giantes.

Out of Ephraim was their rote against Amalek, and after him Ben Jamin in thy people.

Out of Machir haue teachers ruled, and out of Zabulon are there become gouernours thorow the wytyng penne.

And out of Issachar there were prynces with Debboia, and Issachar was as Barak in y valley, sent with his people on fote: As for Ruben, he stode bye in his awne consayte, and separated him selfe from vs.

Why abodest thou betwixte the borders, whan thou herdest the noyse of the flockes because Ruben stode bye in his awne consayte, and separated him selfe from vs.

Gilead abode beyonde Jordane, and why dwelt Dan amonge the shippes: Asser sat in the haue of the see, and caried in his possessions.

But Zabulons people toperde their life vnto death: Nephtali also in the toppe of y felde of Merom.

The kynges came & foughte, then foughte y kynges of the Cananites at Thaanah by the water of Megiddo, but spoyle of money broughte they not there from.

From heauē were they foughte agaynst, the starres in their courses foughte with Sissera.

The broke Tysen overwelmed them, the broke Adumim, yee the broke Tysen. My soule treade thou vpon the mightie.

Then made the horse fete a rushinge together, for the greates violence of their mightie horse men.

Curse the cite of Meros (sayde y angell of the LORDE) curse the cite syns therof, because they came not to helpe y LORDE, to helpe the LORDE to the giantes.

Blessynge amonge n emen haue Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: blessinge haue she in the tente amonge the women.

Whan he ayled water, she gaue him mylke, & broughte forth linter in a lordly d^resse.

She toke holde of the nak w hir hande, & the smyth hammer with hir righte hande, and smote Sissera, cut of his heade & pearced and boied thorow his temples.

He bowed him selfe downe at hir fete, he fell downe, and laye there. He sancte downe, and fell at hir fete: whan he had sonde downe, he laye there destroyed.

His mother looked out at the wyndowe, & cried piteously thorow the trolace: Why tarieth his charret out so longe, that he cometh not? Wherfore do the wheles of his charret make so longe tarienge?

The wyfist amonge his ladies answered, & sayde vnto her: Shulde they not finde & deuilde the spoyle, vnto enery man a sayre mayde or two for a pray, & partye coloured garments of nedle worke to Sissera for a spoyle, partye coloured garments of nedle worke aboute the necke for a pray?

Thus all thine enemies must perishe

The booke of the Judges.

LORDE: but they that loue the, shal be euen as the Sonne rysinge vp in his myghte.
And the londe had peace fortye yeares.

The VI. Chapter.

And whan the children of Israel dyd dwell in the sighte of the LORDE, the LORDE deliuered them vnder the hande of the Madianites vij. yeares. And whā the hande of the Madianites was to myghte ouer the children of Israel, the children of Israel made them clyffes in y^e mountaynes, and caues and holdes, to defende them selves from y^e Madianites. And whan Israel sowed eny thinge, y^e Madianites and Amalechites, and the children towarde the south came vp vpon them, and pitched their cēttes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the londe downe vnto Gasa, & let nothinge remayne ouer of the bestes in Israel, nether shepe, ner oxen, ner asses. For they came vp with their catell and tentes, as it had bene a greate multitude of greshoppers (so that ne ther they ner their camels myghte be nombred) and fell in to the londe, that they myghte destroye it. Thus was Israel exceedinge small before the Madianites. Then cried the children of Israel vnto the LORDE.

But whan they cried vnto the LORDE because of y^e Madianites, y^e LORDE sente the a prophet, which sayde vnto the: Thus saith the LORDE the God of Israel: I caried you out of Egypte, & broughte you out of y^e house of bondage, & deliuered you from the hande of the Egipcians, & from the hāde of all them that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you, & geuen you their lōde and sayde vnto you: I am the LORDE youre God. Feare not ye the goddes of the Amorites, in whose londe ye dwell: neuertheles ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce.

And there came an angell of the LORDE, & sat him downe vnder an Oke at Aphia, which belonged vnto Joas the father of y^e Ephraimites, and his sonne Gedeon was throsinginge wheate in the barne, that he myghte flye awaye before the Madianites.

CThen appeared vnto him the angell of y^e LORDE, and sayde vnto him: The LORDE with y^e then mightie giante. But Gedeon sayde vnto him: Syr, yf the LORDE be wth vs, wherfore is all this then happened vnto vs? And where are all the wonders, which oure fathers tolde vs, & sayde: The LORDE brought vs out of Egypte? But now hath the LORDE forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the hande of the Madianites.

The LORDE turned him vnto him, & say

The vi. Chap.

de: Go thy waye in this thy strength, thou shalt deliuer Israel out of the hande of y^e Madianites. I haue sente the. But he sayde: My LORDE, wherewithall shal I deliuer Israel? Beholde, my tynred is the smallest in Manasse, & I am the leest in my fathers house. The LORDE sayde vnto him: I will be wth the, so y^e thou shalt smyte the Madianites, euen as though they were but one man.

He sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then make me a token, that it is thou, which speakest wth me: go not awaye, tyll I come to y^e, and brynge a meat-offerynge, to set before the. He sayde: I wyll tary, tyll thou comest agayne. And Gedeon wēt, and made ready a kydd, and an Ephā of unleuended floure, and layed the flesh in a mannde, and put the broth in a pot, and broughte it forth vnto him vnder the Oke, and came nye. But the angell of God sayde vnto him: Take the flesh and the unleuended bried, & set it vpon the stonye rocke that is here, and poure the broth thereon. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the LORDE stretched out the staffe that he had in his hande, and wth the ende of it he touched the flesh and the unleuended floure: and the fyre came out of the rocke, and consumed the flesh and the unleuended floure. And the angell of the LORDE vanysht out of his sighte.

Now whā Gedeon sawe that it was an angell of y^e LORDE, he sayde: O LORDE LORDE, haue I thus sene an angell of y^e LORDE face to face? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Peace be wth the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Gedeon buylded an altare there vnto y^e LORDE, & called it: The LORDE of peace. The same stondech yet vnto this daye at Aphia, y^e belōgeth vnto the father of y^e Ephraimites.

And in y^e same night sayde y^e LORDE vnto him: Take a fedd bullocke frō amōgethy fathers open, & another bullocke of seuen yeares olde, and breake downe the altare of Baal which is thy fathers, and cut downe the groue that stondech by it, and buylde thou an altare vnto the LORDE y^e God aboue vpon the toppe of this rocke, and make it ready, and take the other bullocke, and offer a burnt offeringe wth the woodd of the groue that thou hast hewen downe. Then toke Gedeon ten men of his seruantes, and dyd as y^e LORDE sayde vnto him: but he was afrayed to do this by daye tyme, for his fathers house and the people in y^e cite, and so he dyd it by nighte.

Now whan the people in the cite rose vp early in the mornynge, beholde, Baals altare

was broken, and the groue hewen downe by it, and the other bullocke a burnt offeringe vpon the altare that was buylded, & one sayde vnto another: Who hath done this? And whan they soughte & made searche, it was sayde: Gedeon the sonne of Joas hath done it. The sayde the people of y^e cite vnto Joas: Brynge forth y^e sonne, he must dye, because he hath broken Baals altare, and hewen downe the groue therby. But Joas sayde vnto all them that stode by him: Wyl ye stryue for Baal? Wil ye deliuer him? He y^e stryue for him, shal dye this mornynge. If he be God, let him auēge him selfe, because his altare is broken downe. From y^e daye forth was he called Jerubaal, because it was sayde: Let Baal auēge him selfe, that his altare is broken downe.

EWhan y^e Madianites now & y^e Amalecites, & the childre towarde the south had gathered the selues together, & were passed the row (Jordane) & had pitched their tentes in the valley of Jestaal, the spiete of the LORDE endued Gedeon, & he caused the trompet to be blowne, & called the house of y^e Abiezer, that they shulde folowe him: & he sent messengers vnto all Manasse, & called them, y^e they shulde folowe him also: and he sent messengers likewise vnto Asser & Zabulon & Naphtali, which came vp to meete him.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: If thou wilt deliuer Israel thorow my hande, as thou hast saide, the wil I laye a flese of woll in the court: yf y^e dew be onely vpon y^e flese, & drye vpon all the grounde, then wyll I perceaue, that thou shalt deliuer Israel thorow my hande, as thou hast sayde. And it came so to passe. And whan he rose vp early in the mornynge, he wrāge y^e dew out of the flese, and fylled a dyshe full of water. And Gedeon sayde vnto God: Be not wroth at me, that I speake yet this one tyme. I wyll proue yet but once wth the flese, let it be drye onely vpon the flese, and dew vpon all the grounde. And God dyd so the same nighte:

The vii. Chap. Ho. xiii.

so that it was drye onely vpon the flese, and dew vpon all the grounde.

The VII. Chapter.

Then Jerubaal (that is Gedeon) gat him vp early, and all the people that was wth him, and pitched their tentes besyde the well of Harod, so that he had the hoost of the Madianites on the north side behynde the hyll of Mora in the valley. But the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: The people that be wth y^e are to many for me to deliuer Madian in to their hande, lest Israel boost them selues agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath deliuered me. Cause a proclamation now to be made in the eares of the people, and saye: He that feareth, and is afrayed, let him turne backe, and get him soone from mount Gilead. Then returned there of the people aboute a two and twenty thousande so that there was left but tenthousande.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon. The people are yet to many: brynge them downe to the water, there wyll I proue them for y^e: and of whom I saye that he shal go wth the, the same shal go wth the: but of whō I saie that he shal not go wth the, the same shall not go. And he broughte the people vnto y^e water. And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: Whosoever licketh of the water wth his ell ge, as a dogg licketh, make him stonde asyde and lytewyse whosoever falletch downe vpon his knes to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had licked out of the hande to the month, thie hundred men. And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: Thorow the thie hundred which haue licked, wyll I deliuer you, and geue ouer the Madianites in to thy hāde: As for the other people, let them go euery one vnto his place.

And they toke vytayles wth them for y^e people, and their trompettes: but the other Israelites let he go, euery one vnto his tente. And he strengthened himselfe wth the thie hundred men, and the Madianites hoost laye before him beneth in the valley. And the same night sayde the LORDE vnto him: Up, and go downe in to the hoost, for I haue geuen them ouer in to thy hande. But yf thou be afrayed to go downe, then let y^e seruante Pura go downe wth the vnto the hoost, y^e thou maiest heare what they saie: after that shalt thou be bolde, and thy honde stronge, that thou mayest go downe in to the hoost.

Then wente Gedeon downe wth his seruante vnto y^e vntmost parte of y^e watchme of armes y^e were in y^e hoost. And y^e Madianites and Amalechites, and all the children of the south, had layed them selves beneth in the valley, as a multitude of greeshoppers, and their Camels were not to be nombred for multitude, eue as the sonde on y see shore. Now when Gedeon came, beholde, one tolde another his dreame, & sayde: Beholde, I haue dreamed a dreame: He thoughte a barte barlye lofe came rollinge downe to y hoost of y Madianites: and when it came to the tence, it smote it, and euerthrew it, and turned it vpsyde downe, so that the tence fell. Then answered the other: That is nothinge els then y swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas y Israelite: God hath geue euer the Madianites with all the hoost in to his hande.

When Gedeon herde this dreame tolde, & the interpretation of it, he worshipped, and came agayne in to the hoost of Israel, and sayde: Up, for the LORDE hath deliuered y hoost of the Madianites in to youre hãde. And he deuoyded the thre hundred men in to thre partes, and gaue euery one a trompet in his hande, and empye pytchers, and lampes therein, and sayde vnto them: Loke vnto me, and do ye eue so, and beholde, whã I come to the vttemost parte of the hoost, enen as I do, so do ye also. When I blew y trompet, and all that are w me, then shal ye blowe y tromptes also rounde aboute all the hoost, and saye: Here the LORDE & Gedeon. Thus came Gedeon and the thre hundred men with him vnto the vttemost parte of y hoost (aboute the tyme when the mydwarch begynneth) and waked vp the archme, and blew with the tromptes, and smote asjunder the pitchers in their handes.

So all the thre companies blew with y tromptes, and brake the pitchers. But the lampes helde they in their lefte hande, and the tromptes in their righte hãde, so that they blew, and cried: Here the swerde of the LORDE and Gedeon. And enery one stode in his place aboute the hoost. Then ranne all the hoost, and cried and fled. And whyle the thre hundred men blew the tromptes, y LORDE broughte it so to passe, that euery mans swerde in all y hoost was agaynst another, and the hoost fled vnto Bethsicha Zeteratha, and vnto the border of the playne of Mithabab besyde Tabath. And y men of Israel of Ephraim, of Asser, & of Manasse cried, and folowed vpon the Madianites.

And Gedeon sent messengers vp vnto all mount Ephraim, sayenge: Come downe agaynst the Madianites, and stoppe the water from them vnto Bethbara and Jordane. And then cryed all they that were of Ephraim, and stopped the water from them vnto Bethbara and Jordane, and toke the prynces of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke of Oreb, and Zeb in the wynepresse of Zeb, and folowed vpon the Madianites, and broughte the heades of Oreb and Zeb, vnto Gedeon ouer Jordane.

The VIII. Chapter.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto him: Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast not called vs, whã thou wentest forth to fight agaynst y Madianites: and they chode sore with him. But he sayde vnto them: What haue I done now that is like youre acte? Is not the terygadderynge of Ephraim better then the whole harvest of Abieser? God hath deliuered y prynces of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb in to youre hande, how coulde I do that ye haue done: Whã he had sayde this, the blast was swaged from him.

Now when Gedeon came vnto Jordane, he wente ouer with the thre hundred men that were with him, and they were weery, and folowed vpon their chace. And he sayde vnto the men of Succoth: I praye you geue the people that are with me, some leaues of bried (for they are weery) that I maye folow vpon Zeb and Salmana the kinges of the Madianites.

But the rulers of Succoth sayde: Are the handes of Zeb and Salmana in thy handes already, that we must geue bried vnto thy men of warre? Gedeon sayde: Well, when the LORDE deliuereth Zeb and Salmana in to my hãde, I wyll thref the your flesh with thornes of the wylderne, and with breares. And from thence I wynter vnto Penuel, and spake euen so vnto them. And the mē of Penuel gaue him like answer as they of Succoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Penuel: If I come peaceably agayne, I wil brake don ne this tower.

As for Zeb and Salmana, they were at Barhar, and their hoost with them vpon a systene thousande, which were all that were lefte of the whole hoost of the children of the East: for there were fallen an hundred and twentye thousande, that coulde draw the swerde.

And Gedeon wente vp by the waye, wher they dwell in the tentes on the east side of Nobah and Jabbeha, & smote the hoost, for the hoost was carelessse, and mistrusted nothinge. And Zeb and Salmana fled, but he folowed after them, and toke y two kges of the Madianites Zeb and Salmana, and put all the hoost in feare.

Now when Gedeon y sonne of Joas came agayne fro the battayll out of y east, he toke a lad of the men of Succoth, & examyned him, which wrote him vp the names of the rulers of Succoth, and their Elders, eue the score and seuentene men.

And he came to the men of Succoth, & sayde: Beholde, here is Zeb and Salmana, cocer nyng wh y laughed me to scoine, & sayde: Are the handes of Zeb and Salmana in thy hãdes all ready, that we must geue bried vnto thy men which are weery? And he toke the Elders of the cite, and thornes out of the wylderne, and breares, and caused y men of Succoth to be torne therewith. And the tower of Penuel brake he downe, and slewe the men of the cite.

And he saide vnto Zeb and Salmana: What manner of mē were they wh y slewe at Thabor? They sayde: They were enen liethe, & goodly men, as yf they had bene a kynges child. He sayde: They were my brethern, euen my mother somes: As truly as the LORDE lyncheth, yf ye had lette them ly, I wolde not slaye you.

And he saide vnto his first borne sonne Jerther: Stonde vp, & slaye them. Howbeit the laddre was not out his swerde, for he was a frayd, so so moch as he was yet but a lad. Zeb and Salmana sayde: Stonde thou vp, & slaye vs, for as the man is, soch is also his strength. So Gedeon arose, and slewe Zeb and Salmana, and toke the ornamentes that were aboute their Camels neckes.

Then sayde certayne in Israel vnto Gedeon: Bethon lorde ouer vs, thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for so moch as thou hast deliuered vs from y hande of y Madianites. Nevertheless Gedeon saide vnto them: I wil not be lorde ouer you, neither shal my sonne be lorde ouer you, but the LORDE shal be lorde ouer you.

Gedeon sayde vnto them: One thinge I desire of you, Every man geue me the earinge that he hath spoyled. (For in so moch as y men were Ismaelites, they had earinges.) They sayde: Them wyll we geue the. And they spied out a cloth, and euery man cast the earinge theron that he had spoyled. And the golden earinges which he requyred, had in weight, a thousande and seuen hundred Sydes of golde, besyde the spanges and thymes, and scarlet rayment which the kynges of the Madianites dyd weere, and besyde the neck bandes of their Camels. And Gideon made a cote armoure therof, and set it in his cite at Aphra. And all Israel wente there a whoringe after it, and it turned to an occasion of fallinge vnto Gedeon and his house.

Thus were y Madianites broughte downe before the children of Israel, and lifte vp their heade no more: and the londe was in rest fortye yeares, as lōge as Gedeon lynch.

And Jerubaal the sonne of Joas wete & dwelt in his house. And Gedeon had thre score & ten sonnes, which were come out of his chyce: for he had many wyues. And his concubyne which he had at Sichẽ, bare him a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed in a good age, & was buried at Aphra in y sepulchre of his father Joas the father of the Ephraim.

But when Gedeon was deed, the child of Israel turned backe, and wente awhoringe after Baalim, and made a couenaunt w Baal Berith, y he shulde be their God. And y child of Israel thoughte not on y LORDE their God, which had deliuered them fro the hande of their enemies rounde aboute: and they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubaal Gedeon, accordinge to all the good that he had done vnto Israel.

The IX. Chapter.

Abimelech the sonne of Jerubaal wente vnto Sichẽ to his mothers brethern, & spake vnto them, & to all the kynred of his mothers fathers house, and sayde: I praye you speake in the eares of all the men at Sichẽ: What is better for you, that thre score and ten men all children of Jerubaal shulde be lordes ouer you, or that one man shulde be lorde ouer you? Remembre also that I am youre bone and youre flesh.

Then spake his mothers brethern all these wordes for him, in y eares of all y men at Sichẽ. And their hert enclyned to Abimelech, for they thoughte: He is oure brother: and gaue him thre score and ten syluerlinges out of y house of Baal Berith. And w them Abimelech hyred men that were vagabundes and of light condicions, which folowed him. And he came to his fathers house vnto Aphra, and slew his brethern the children of Jerubaal, euen thre score men and tw vpon one stone. But Jotham the yongest sonne of Jerubaal remayned ouer, for he was hydd. And all the men of Sichẽ, and all the house of Millo gathered them selues together, and wente and made Abimelech kyng by the Oke that stondech at Sichẽ.

B When this was tolde Jotham, he wente, and stode vpon the toppe of mount Gufim, and lifte vp his voyce, cried, and sayde: Heare me ye men of Sichem, that God maye heare you also. The trees wente to anointe a kinde ouer them, and sayde vnto the Olyue tre: Bethou oure kynge. But the Olyue tre answered them: Shall I go and leaue my fatnesse (which both God and men commende in me) and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the fygge tre: Come thou and be kynge ouer vs. But the fygge tre sayde vnto the: Shal I leane my sweetnes and my good frute, and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: Come thou and be oure kynge. But the vyne sayde vnto them: Shal I leane my sweete vyne, which reioyseth God and men, and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? The sayde all the trees vnto the thorne busshes: Come thou, and be kynge ouer vs. And the thorne busshes sayde vnto the trees: If it be true, & ye anoynte me to be kynge ouer you, the come, and put youre trust vnder my shadowe. If no, then go fyre out of the thorne busshes, & consume & Cedar trees of Libanus.

C If ye haue done righte now and iustly, & ye haue made Abimelech to be kynge: and yf ye haue done well vnto Jerubaal and to his house, and haue done vnto him as he deserued vnto you. Which (euen my father) foughte for youre sakes, and to perde his lyfe, to be lyuer out of the Madianites hande, eue you, which are risen vp this daye agaynst my fathers house, & haue slaine his childre, thre score personnes & ten vpon one stone, and haue made you a kynge (euen Abimelech the sonne of his handmaide) ouer the men at Sichem, for so much as he is youre brother.

If ye haue done righte now and iustly vnto Jerubaal and his house this daye, then reioyse ouer Abimelech, and let him reioyse ouer you. If no, then go fyre out from Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem and the house of Millo: And fyre go out also fro the men of Sichem, and from the house of Millo, and consume Abimelech. And Jotham (whan he had spoken this out) fled, and gat him out of the waye, and wente vnto Ber, and dwelt there because of his brother Abimelech.

D Now whan Abimelech had reigned thre yeare ouer Israel, God sent an euell mynde betwene Abimelech and the men of Sichem (for the men of Sichem despyed Abimelech), and rehearsed the nuryge done to the sonnes of Jerubaal, and their bloude, and layed it vpon Abimelech their brether which slewe them, and vpon the men of Sichem that strenghted his hande thereto, that he mighte slaye his bretherien.

And the men of Sichem set an hynder watch vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, and spoyled all them that walked by the waye, and it was tolde Abimelech. But there came Gaal the sonne of Eber and his bretherien, and entred into Sichem, and the men of Sichem put their trust in him, and wente out in to the felde, and gathered their vynyardes, and pressed them, and made a daunse, and wente in to their gubhouse, and ate and drank, and cursed Abimelech.

And Gaal y sonne of Eber sayde: What is Abimelech? and what is Sichem, that he shulde serue him? Is he not the sonne of Jerubaal, and hath set Sebul his seruante ouer the men of Sichem? the father of Sichem. Wherefore shulde we serue him? Wolde he the people were vnder my hande, & I might put downe Abimelech.

And it was tolde Abimelech: Jerubachine hooste, and departe. For Sebul the ruler of the cite, whan he herde the wordes of Gaal y sonne of Eber, he was wroth fully displeased, and sente message secretly to Abimelech, and caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, Gaal the sonne of Eber and his bretherien are come to Sichem, and make the cite to be agaynst the.

Arise therefore by nyght, thou and thy people that is with the, and laye wayte fast in the felde: and euenow whan the Sonnarysith, get the vp soone, and fall vpon the cite: and yf he and the people that is with him come out vnto the, the deale with him, as thynne hande fyndeth.

Abimelech stode vp by nyght, and all the people that was with him, and layed wayte for Sichem with foure companies of men of warre. And Gaal the sonne of Eber went out and stode at the doore of the gate of the cite. But Abimelech gat him vp out of the hynder watch, and the people that was with him. Now whan Gaal sawe the people, he sayde vnto Sebul: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from the toppe of y mount. Sebul saide vnto him: Thou seist y shadow of the mountaynes as though they were men. Gaal spake yet more and sayde: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from y wydes of the londe, & one bonde of men cometh by the waye to y witch Oke. The sayde Sebul: Where is now y mouth y sayde: My is Abimelech, that we shulde serue him? Is not this y people, whom thou hast refused? Go forth now, and fighte with him.

Gaal wente forth before the citefyns of Sichem, and foughte with Abimelech. But Abimelech chased him, so that he fled, and there fell many slayne euen vnto the gate of the cite. And Abimelech abode at Arimma. But Sebul droue awaye Gaal and his bretherien, so that they must not remayne at Sichem. Vpon the morowe wente the people forth in to y felde. Whan this was tolde Abimelech, he toke the people, and parted them into thre hordes of men, and wayted for the in the felde. Now whan he sawe y the people were out of the cite, he rose agaynst the, and smote them.

G Abimelech and y company of men that was with him, fell vpon them, and stepte vnto the doore of the porte: but the other two companies fell vpon all them that were in the felde, and slewe them. The foughte Abimelech agaynst the cite all y same daye, and wanne it, and slewe the people that was therein, and brake downe y cite, and sowed salt thereon.

Whan all the men of the tower of Sichem herde this, they wente in to a stronge holde of y house of their God Berith. But whan Abimelech herde, that all the men of the tower of Sichem had gathered the felnes together, he wente vp vnto mount Zelmon, and all the people that was with him, and toke an axe in his hande, and hewed downe a braynch of a tre, and toke it vp, & layed it vpon his shulder, and sayde vnto all the people that was with him: As ye haue sene me do, make ye haist, and do euen so as I. Then all the people hewed downe euery one a braynch, and folowed Abimelech: and they layed them to the holde, and set fyre vpon them agaynst them and the holde: and all the men of the tower of Sichem dyed thorough the smote and fyre, vpon a thousande men and women.

As for Abimelech, he wente vnto Thebez, and layed sege vnto it, and wanne it. But in the myddes of the cite, there was a stronge tower, vnto the which all the men and women, and all the citefyns of the cite fled, and shutt it after them, and clymmed vp to the toppe of the tower. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and foughte agaynst it, and came nye vnto the doore of the tower, that he might burne it with fyre. But a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon Abimelechs heade, and brake his brane panne. Then Abimelech in all the haist, called the seruante that bare his wapen, and sayde vnto him: Drawe out thy swerde, and kyll me, that it be not sayde of me: A woman hath slayne him. Then his seruante thrust him thorow, and he dyed. Whan the Israelites which were with him, sawe, y Abimelech was deed, they gat them awaye euery one vnto his awne place.

Thus God recompenced Abimelech the euill that he had done vnto his father, whan he slewe his thre score and ten bretherien: like wyse all the euill of the men of Sichem, dyd God rewarde them vpon their heade: and so the curse of Jotham y sonne of Jerubaal came vpon them.

The X. Chapter.

After Abimelech there rose vp another sauoure in Israel, Thola a man of Isachar, and the sonne of Pua, the sonne of Dodo. And he dwelt at Samir vpon the mount Ephraim, and iudged Israel thre and twentye yeare, and died, and was buried at Samir.

After him stode vp one Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel two and twentye yeare, and hath thirtie somes, rydinge vpon thre assen soales: and had thirtie cities, whose names are Janoth Jair (that is, the cities of Jair) vnto this daye, and lye in Gilead. And Jair dyed, and was buried at Camon.

But the children of Israel wroughte wickednes in the sighte of the LORDE, and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddesses of Siria, and the goddesses of Sidon, and the goddesses of Moab, and the goddesses of y children of Ammon, and the goddesses of the philistines, and forsoke y LORDE, and serued him not. Then was y wrath of y LORDE seared vpon Israel, and he gaue the over vnder the hande of the philistynes, and of the children of Ammon. And they vexed and oppressed y children of Israel eightene yeare longe, all the children of Israel that were beyonde Jordan in the londe of the Moabites, which lyeth in Gilead. The children of Ammon also wente ouer Iordane, and fought agaynst Juda, Ben Iamun, and agaynst the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was very sore troubled.

C Then cryed the children of Israel vnto the LORDE, and sayde: We haue synned agaynst the, for we haue forsaken oure God, & serued Baalim. But the LORDE sayde vnto the childre of Israel: Did not the Egipcians, the Amorites, the children of Ammon, & Philistines, the Sidonians, the Amalechites and Moabites oppresse you, and I helped you out of their hande, whan ye cryed vnto me? Yet haue ye forsaken me, and serued other goddes? Therfore wyl I helpe you no more. So youre waye, and crye vpon the goddes whom ye haue chosen, let them helpe you in the tyme of youre trouble.

Deut. 32. 6
100. 3. d

D But the childre of Israel sayde vnto the LORDE: We haue synned, do thou vnto vs what pleaseth the, onely deliuer vs at this tyme. And they put the straunge goddes fro them, and serued the LORDE. And his soule had pytie on the misery of Israel.

And the children of Ammon called them selues together, and pitched in Gilead: But the children of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pitched at Mispa. And 3 people of the chiefe of Gilead sayde amōge them selues: Who so euer begynneth to fight agaynst the children of Ammon, shalbe heaue ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The XI. Chapter.

A Ephthae a Gileadite was a valiant man of armes, but an harlots child. Gilead begat Jephthae. But whan the wyfe had borne children vnto Gilead, and the same wyues childre were waxe greete, they thrust out Jephthae, and sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not be here in oure fathers house, for thou art another womans sonne. The fled he from his birth, and dwelt in the londe of Tob. And there resorted vnto him vagabondes, and were cut with him. And after a certayne tyme foughte the children of Ammon with Israel.

Now whā the childre of Ammon foughte thus with Israel, the Elders wente from Gilead to fetch Jephthae out of the londe of Tob, and sayde vnto him: Come, and be oure caprayne, and fight agaynst the children of Ammon. But Jephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that hate me and haue thrust me out of my fathers house, and now come ye to me whan ye are in trouble?

The xi. Chap.

The Elders of Gilead sayde: Therfore me we now agayne vnto the, that thou mayest go with vs, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon, and be oure caprayne ouer all that dwell in Gilead. Jephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: If ye seche agayne to fighte agaynst the childre of Ammon, and the LORDE deliuer them before me, shal I then be youre heade. The Elders of Gilead saide vnto Jephthae: The LORDE be hearer betwene vs, yf we do not as thou hast sayde. So Jephthae wote with the Elders of Gilead. And the people made him heade, and dote ouer them. And Jephthae spake all this before the LORDE at Mispa.

Then sente Jephthae messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, and caused to saye vnto him: What hast thou to do with me, that thou comest vnto me to fighte agaynst my londe? The kynge of the childre of Ammon answered Jephthaes messengers because that Israel toke awaye my londe (whan they departed out of Egipce) from Arnon vnto Iabock, and vnto Iordan: agayne it me agayne now therfore peaceably.

But Jephthae sent yet mo messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, which sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth Jephthae: Israel hath taken no londe, neither from the Moabites ner from the children of Ammon: for when they departed out of Egipce, Israel walked thorow the wilderness vnto the reed see, and came to Cades, and sente messengers to the kynge of the Edomites, and sayde: Let me go thorow thy londe. But the kynge of the Edomites wolde not heare the. They sent lykewyse vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wolde not also. Thus Israel abode in Cades, and compassed the lide of the Edomites and Moabites, and came on the east syde of the londe of the Moabites and pitched beyende Arnon, and came not within the coaste of the Moabites. For Arnon is the border of the Moabites.

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites at Heshbon, and caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thorow thy londe vnto my place. Nevertheless Sihon wolde not trust Israel to go thorow the border of his londe, but gathered all his people, and pitched at Jahza, and fought with Israel. Howbeit the LORDE God of Israel gaue Sihon with all his people in to Israels hande, so that they slewe them. Thus Israel conquered all the londe of the Amorites that dwelt in 3 same countre. And they toke possessio of all the borders of the Am mon, from Arnon vnto Iabock, & from 3 wyl demisse vnto Iordane. So 3 LORDE God of Israel diuor awaye the Amorites before his people of Israel, and wilt thou conquere them? Is it not so, yf thy God Camos gaue the oughter to possesse, woldest thou not possesse it? What so euer the LORDE oure God hath gaue vs before vs to possesse, that shal we conquere and take in possession.

E Hast thou better righte (thunkest thou) xhe Balac the sonne of Ziphor, the kynge of 3 Moabites? Dyd he euer go to lawe or fighte agaynst Israel? Though Israel haue dwelt now vps a thre hūdrith yere in Heshbon, and in the vyllages therof, in Arzer and in the vyllages therof, and in all the cities that lye by Arnon. Why dyd not ye rescue it at the same tyme? I haue not offended the, & thou doest me euill to fighte agaynst me? The LORDE gaue sentence this daie betwene Israel and the children of Ammon.

Nevertheless the kynge of the children of Ammon wolde not heare 3 wordes of Jephthae, which he sent vnto him. Then came 3 spere of the LORDE vpon Jephthae, and he wente thorow Gilead, and Manasse, and thorow Mispa which lieth in Gilead, and fro Mispa that lieth in Gilead, vnto 3 children of Ammon.

J And Jephthae vowed a vowe vnto the LORDE, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer the childre of Ammon in to my hande, what so euer cometh (first) out at the doore of my house in my waye, whan I retorne agayne peaceably from the childre of Ammon, that same shalbe the LORDES, and I wyl offre it for a burnt offeringe.

So Jephthae wente vpon the children of Ammon, to fighte agaynst them. And 3 LORDE gaue them in to his hande, and he smote the from Arzer tyll thou comest vnto Min, which euen twentye cities, and vnto the playne of 3 vnyardes a very greete slaughter, and thus were the children of Ammon subdued before the children of Israel.

Now whan Jephthae came to Mispa vnto his house, beholde, his daughter wente out to mete him with tabrettes and daunces: and she was his onely childe, & he had els nother sonne ner daughter. And whan he sawe her, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Alas my daughter, thou makest my heart sorowfull, and discomfortest me: so I haue opened my mouth vnto the LORDE, and can not call it agayne.

She sayde: My father, yf thou hast opened thy mouth vnto the LORDE, then do vnto me as it is proceeded out of 3 mouth, accordinge as the LORDE hath aneged the of thine enemies the children of Ammon. And she sayde vnto hit father: Do this for me, geue me leue to go downe vps the mountaynes two monethes, that I maye beweepe my virginite with my playsecres. He sayde: Go thy waye. And he let her go two monethes. Then wente she with her playsecres, and bewayled hit mayden heade vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes she came agayne vnto hit father. And he dyd vnto her accordinge as he had vowed. And she had neuer bene in daunger of eny man. And it was a custom: in Israel, that the daughters of Israel shulde go chery yere, and mourne for the daughter of Jephthae the Gileadite, foure dayes in the yere.

The XII. Chapter.

Ald thry of Ephraim made insurrection, & wente northwarde, & sayde vnto Jephthae: Wherfore wētest thou to the battayll agaynst the children of Ammon, & hast not called vs, that we mighte go with the? We wil burne thy house and the with fyre. Jephthae sayde vnto the: I and my people had a greete matter with 3 children of Ammon, and I cried vpon you, but ye helped me not out of their handes. Now whan I sawe 3 there was no helper, I put my soule in my honde, and wente agaynst the children of Ammon, and the LORDE deliuered them in to my hande. Wherfore come ye vp to me, to fighte agaynst me?

Jud. 9. 1

Mal. 1. 10

And Jephthae gathered all the men in Gilead, & foughte agaynst Ephraim. And the men in Gilead smote Ephraim, because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are as they 3 fle awaye before Ephraim, (and dwell) amōge Ephraim & Manasse. And the Gileadites toke 3 ferye of Iordane from Ephraim. Now whā one of 3 fugitive Ephraimites dyd saye: Let me go ouer, 3 men of Gilead sayde: Art thou an Ephraimite? yf he answered: No, they bad him saye: Schiboleth, & he sayde: Siboleth, & coude not speake it righte: then they toke him, & slew him at 3 ferye of Iordane, so 3 the same tyme there fell of Ephraim two & forty. Jephthae iudged Israel sive yeres. And Jephthae 3 Gileadite dyed, & was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.

After him iudged Israel one Ebian of C Bethleem, which had thirtie sonnes and as many daughters: and his thirtie daughters gaue he forth to mariage, and thirtie daughters toke he from without for his sonnes, and iudged Israel seven yere, and died, and shoulders & loynes: and were downe, & dwelt in the stone clyffe at Etam. Then wente the Philistynes vp, and layed sege vnto Iuda, & pitched at Lechi. But they of Iuda sayde: Wherfore are ye come vp agaynst vs? They answered: we are come vp to bynde Samson, & we maye do vnto him, as he hath done vnto vs.

C Then were there thre M. men of Iuda downe to the stone clyffe of Etam, & sayde vnto Samson: Knowest thou not that the Philistynes raigne ouer vs? Wherfore hast thou done this then vnto vs? He sayde: As they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto the agayne. They sayde vnto him: We are come downe to bynde the, & to deliuer & into the hande of the Philistynes. Samson sayde vnto the: Then sweare & promyse me, & ye wyll not slaye me. They answered him: We wyll not kyll the, we wil but bynde the, & deliuer the into their hande, & wyll not slaye. & And they bounde him with two new coardes & caried him from the stone. And whan he came vnto Lechi, the Philistynes shouted, and rane vnto him. But & spere of & the LORD came vpon him, & the coardes aboute his armes were like chieues burne in the fyre, so & the bondes were lowshed from his bondes.

D And he founde the cheke bone of a deeb assen: then put he forth his hande, and toke it, & slewe a thousande men therewith: And Samson sayde: With an olde asses cheke bone, yee cut with the cheke bone of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And whan he had sayde & he cast & cheke bone out of his hande, & called the place Ramath Lechi. But whā he was sore a chyist, he called vpo the LORD, & saide: Soch greace healeth hast thou geue by the hande of thy seruante, but now must I dye a chyist, & fall in to & hande of & vncircūcised. The God opened a gome to the in & cheke bone, so & water wete out: & whan he dranke, his spere came agayne, & he was refreshed. Therfore vnto this daye is it yet called & well of & cheke bone of him & made intercession. And he iudged Israel in the tyme of the Philistynes. twētye yere.

The xvi. Chapter.

A Samson wente vnto Gaza: & there he sawe an harlot, & laye with her. The was it saide vnto the Gazites: Samson is come hither. And they compassed him aboute, & caused to laye wayte for him peneuilly: & watched all the nyghte in the gate of & cite, & all that nyghte they helde them styll, & sayde: Abyde, tomorrow whan we fighte, we wyll slaye him. But Samson laye vnto mydnyghte, then rose he at mydnyghte, & he holde on boch & syde portes of & gate of the cite, & both the postes, & lifte them ouer with the barres, & layed them vpon his shoulders, & bare them vnto & toppe of & mounte agaynst Hebron.

After this he fell into the love of a woman by & broke of Sorak, whose name was Dalila, vnto whom the prynces of the Philistynes came vp, and sayde vnto her: Perswade him, and loke wher he hath soch greace strength, & how we maye ouercome him, & we myghte bynde him & subdue him, so wyll we geue the every man a M. and an C. syluerlinges. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: I praye the tell me, wher in thy greace strength is, & how thou myghtest be bounde to be subdued. Samson sayde vnto her: If I was bounde with feur roapes of fresh senewes, which are not yet dried vp, I shulde be weake, and as another man. The prynces of the Philistynes broughte vp vnto her feur new roapes, which were not yet dried vp. And she bounde him therewith. But there was wayte layed for him besyde her in the chamber, and she sayde vnto him: The Philistynes vpon the Samson. Therewith he brake the roapes in sunder, cut as a wynd thiede breaketh, whan it hath caught the heate of the fyre. And it was not knowne wher in his strength was.

Then sayde Dalila vnto Samson: beholde, thou hast begyled me & dyssembled with me: tell me yet, wherwithall mayest thou be bounde? He answered her: If they bounde me with new coardes, wherwith no laber hath bene done, I shulde be feble, & as another man. Then toke Dalila new coardes, & bounde him withall, and sayde: The Philistynes vpo the Samson (but there was wayte layed for him in the chamber.) And he bitte them from his armes, euen as it had ben a thiede.

Dalila sayde vnto him: Yet hast thou begyled me & disssembled to me: Tell me yet, wherwithall myghtest thou be bounde? He answered her: If thou playtest feur hayne lockes of my heade together in a fyllet, and fastenest them in with a nayle (I shulde be weake.) And she saide vnto him: The Philistynes vpo the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & drue out & playted hayne lockes with the nale and the fyllet.

Then sayde she vnto him: How cast thou saye & thou louest me, where as thine hart is not yet with me? Thre tymes hast thou disssembled me, and not tolde me wher in thy greace strength is. So whan she was euery daye importune vpon him to her wordes, & wolde not let him haue rest, his soule was saynten vnto the death, & he shewed her his whole herte, & sayde vnto her: There came neuer rassure vpon my heade, for I am a Nazare of God fro my mothers wombe. If I were shaden, my strength shulde departe from me, so that I shulde be weake, and as all other men. Now whan Dalila sawe that he had opened all his herte vnto her, she sent & called for the prynces of the Philistynes, & sayde: Come yet once vp, for he hath opened his whole herte vnto me.

E Then came the prynces of the Philistynes vnto her, & broughte the money to them in their handes. And she made him to slepe vpon hir lappe, & called one which shoue of the feur hayne lockes of his heade. And she begonne to vexe him. The was his strength departed fro him. And she sayde vnto him: The Philistynes vpon the Samson. Now whā he awoke out of his slepe, he thought: I wil go forth as I haue done aforetyme, & ease my selfe, & knewe not & the LORD was departed from him. But the Philistynes toke him, & put out his eyes, and broughte him downe to Gaza, & bounde him with fetters, and made him to grynde in the prison. But the beer of his heade beganne to growe agayne, where it was shaven of.

F Whan & prynces of the Philistynes were gathered together, to make a greace sacrifice vnto Dagon their god, and to beioyfull, they sayde: Oure god hath deliuered Samson our enemye into our hande. Like wyse whan & people sawe him, they praysed their god, & sayde: Oure god hath deliuered in to oure handes oure enemye, & destroyed oure londe, & slewe many of vs. Now whan their herte was ioysfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Samson, that he maye make some pastyme before vs. Then fetched they Samson out of the prison, & he made pastyme before them. And they set him betwene two pilers. But Samson sayde vnto the lad & led him by the hande: Let me touche the pilers wher vpon the house stonde, & I maye leane ther vnto. As for & house, it was full of men & women. All the prynces of the Philistynes were there also, and vpon the rose were aboute a thre thousande men and women, which behelde what pastyme Samson made.

G But Samson called vpon the LORD, & sayde: O LORDE LORDE, chynke vpon me, & strength me but this once O God I beseeche the, & for both myne eyes I maye aneige me on the Philistynes. And he toke holde of & two mydpylles, that the house stode vpon & was holden by, the one in his righte hande, & & other in his lefte, & saide: My soule dyeth in the Philistynes, & he bowed him selfe mightely: Then fell the house vpon the prynces & vpon all the people that were therein, so that there were mo of & slayne which dyed in his death, the he slewe whyle he lyed. Then came his brethren downe and all his fathers house, and sette him, and caried him vp, and buried him in the graue of his father Manoah betwene Zarga and Esbaol. He iudged Israel twentye yere.

The xvij. Chapter.

Here was a man vpo mount Ephraim, named Micha, which sayde vnto his mother: The thousande and hundred syluerlinges which thou hast taken vnto the, & sworne, and spoken of before myne eares: beholde, & same money is by me, I haue taken it vnto me. Then sayde his mother: The blessinge of the LORD haue thou my sonne. So he gaue his mother the thousande & hundred syluerlinges agayne. And his mother saide: That money haue I sanctified vnto the LORD to my hande for my sonne, to make a molten ymage: therfore I geue it the agayne. Therewith he deliuered & money agayne vnto his mother.

Then toke his mother two hundred syluerlinges, & put them forth to & goldsynner, which made a molten ymage, & was afterwarde in Michas house. And thus the man Micha had a gods house, & made an overbo dy cote, & Idols, and fylled & handes of one of his sonnes, & he myghte be his prest. At & tyme was there no kynge in Israel, & every man dyd the thinge & was righte in his awne eyes. There was a ydgeman of Bethleem Iuda, and gethe tymbres of Iuda, and he was a Leuite, and was a stranger there. The same wente out of the cite of Bethleem Iuda, to walke whither he coude.

And whā he came vnto mount Ephraim unto the house of Micha, to go on his journey. Micha asked him: Whence comest thou? He answered him: I am a Levite of Beth-leem Juda, and am walking where I can. Micha sayde unto him: Carry with me, thou shalt be my father and my priest. I will give thee every year ten shekels of silver, and thou shalt be my father and my priest. And the Levite was content. And the Levite agreed to abide with the man: and he held the young man, as one of his own sons. And Micha filled the Levites hand, that he might be his priest, and so he was in Michas house. And Micha sayde: I am sure the LORD will do me good now, when I have a Levite to my priest.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AT that time was there no king in Israel. And the tribe of Dan was sought after, for they had no inheritance to dwell in, for unto that day there was no inheritance fallen unto them among the tribes of Israel. And the child of Dan sent out of their tents five captains, which were men of arms, from Barga and Eschael, to spy and search out the land. And they sayde unto them: Go your way, and search out the land. And they came up to mount Ephraim in to the house of Micha, and tarried there all night. And while they were there, Micha his host, they knew the voice of the young man the Levite, and sayde unto him: Who brought thee hither? What makest thou here? and why woldst thou come hither?

He answered them: Thus and thus hath Micha done unto me, and hath hired me to be his priest. They sayde unto him: O are at God, if we may perceive, whether our journey which we go, shall prosper well or not. The priest answered them: Go your way in peace, your journey if ye go, is before the LORD. Then the five men wente their way, and came unto Laish, and saw that the people which was therein, dwelt sure, even as the Sidonians, at rest, and careless, and that there was no lord in the land to vex them, and were farre from the Sidonians, and had nothing to do with any man.

And they came to their brethren to Barga and Eschael. And their brethren said unto them: How is it with you? They sayde: Arise, let us go up unto them, for we have seen the land, and it is a very good land: make haile thereof, and be not slacke to go, that ye may come to take possession of the land. When ye come, ye shall come to a careless people, and the land is wide: for God hath delivered red this place in to your hand, where nothing wanteth of all that is upon earth.

Then wente there thence out of the tents of Dan from Barga and Eschael, five hundred men ready armed, and wente up, and pitched at Buriath Jerim in Juda: there fore called they the place, the host of Dan, unto this day, which is behinde Buriath Jerim.

And from thence they wente up unto mount Ephraim, and came to the house of Micha. Then answered the five men that were sent to spy the land of Laish, and sayde unto their brethren: Know ye not that in these parts there is an overbody of idols, and molten images? How may we lose what we have to do? They departed thence, and came to the house of the young man the Levite in Michas house, and saluted him freely. And the five hundred men, which were of the child of Dan, stood ready armed before the gate. And the five men that were gone to spy the land, were up, and came thither, and took the image, the overbody of idols, and the molten idols. In the mean while stood the priest at the gate, with the five hundred men armed.

Now when these were come in to Michas house, and took the image, the overbody of idols, and the molten idols, the priest sayde unto them: What do ye? They answered him: Holde thy peace, and laye thine hand upon thy mouth, and go with us, if thou mayest be our father and priest. Is it better for thee to be priest in one mans house, then among a whole tribe and kindred in Israel? This pleased the priest well, and he took both the overbody of idols, and the idols, and the image, and came in among the people. And when they turned them and wente thence, they sent their children, and catell, and such precious things as they had, before them.

When they were come farre now from the house of Micha, the men that were in Michas house gathered together by Michas house, and followed the child of Dan, and cried upon the child of Dan. They turned their faces about, and sayde unto Micha: What ayleth thee, if thou makest such a crying? He answered: We have taken away my goddess, and the priest, and are goinge your way, and what have I behynder? What is here? And yet ye saye unto me: What ayleth thee? But the child of Dan said unto him: Let not thy voice be heard among us, that some wrothfull man thinke not at thee, and so shall he and the house of his house be destroyed. So the child of Dan went on their way. And Micha, when he sawe that they were to stronge for him, turned backe, and came agayne to his house.

But they were that Micha had made, and the priest whom he had, and came unto Laish, to a careless people, and slew them with the edge of the sword, and burnt the city with fire, and there was no man to deliver them: for they laye farre from Sidon, and had to do with no man. And they laye in the valley, which is besyde Beth Rehob. Then builded they the city, and dwelt therein, and called it Dan, after the name of their father Dan, whom Israel began. And the city was called Laish after this name.

And the child of Dan set up the image for them, and Jonathan his sonne of Gidai the sonne of Manasse, and his sonnes, were pastors among the tribe of Dan. And at the time that they were led awaye captives out of the land, and thus they set among the image of Micha, which he had made as large as the house of God was at Silo.

The XIX. Chapter.

AT the same time was there no king in Israel, and there was a man of Ephraim, which was a stranger besyde mount Ephraim, and had taken him a concubine of Bethlehem Juda to wife. And when she had played the harlot besyde him, she ranne from him to her fathers house unto Bethlehem Juda, and was there four monethes longe. And when her husband gat him up, and wente after her, to speake freely to her, and to fetch her agayne, and had a servant and a couple of asses with him. And she led him in to her fathers house. When the damsel's father sawe him, he was glad, and received him: and his father in lawe, the damsel's father kept him, so that he tarried there dayes with him: thus they ate and drinke, and remained there all night.

But on the fourth daye he gat him up, and wold go his way. Then sayde the damsel's father unto his sonne in lawe: Refresh thine heart first with a morsell of bread, and then shalt ye go. And they sat them downe, and ate and drinke both together: Then sayde the damsel's father unto the man: Oh tarrye all night, if we maye refresh thine heart. But the man arose, and wold needs go. And his father in lawe constrained him to tarrye all night. On the fifth daye in the morninge he gat him up, and wold be gone. Then sayde the damsel's father: I praye the comfort thine heart, and let us tarrye till the daye be farther past, and so they ate both together.

And the man gat him up, and wold go with his concubine and with his servant. But his father in lawe the damsel's father, said unto him agayne: Lo, the daye is spent, and it begynneth to be even, tarrye all night beholde, here is lodginge yet this daye, abide here this night, it shall refresh thine heart tomorrow by times get you up, and go your waye unto thy sent. Nevertheless the man wold needs go, but gat him up, and wold his waye, and came out agayne to Beth Rehob (that is Jerusalem) and his couple of asses laden, and his concubine with him.

Now when they were come nye unto Jebus, the daye was fast awaye. And the servant said unto his master: I praye you go on, and let us tarrye in to this cite of the Jebusites, and tarrye therein all night. For we have found in this cite of the Jebusites, that are called Gibeon. And he sayde unto his servant: Gibeon before, that we maye come to some place, and tarrye at Gibeon or at Ramah all night. And they wente on and walked, and the woman wente downe upon the harde by Gibeon, which lyeth in the tribe of Ben Jamin: and they turned in there, if they might come in, and tarrye at Gibeon all night. But when he came in, he sat him downe in the street of the cite: for there was no man that wold lodge them in his house that night.

And beholde, then came there an olde man from his worke out of the felde in the evening: and he was also of mount Ephraim, and a stranger at Gibeon: but of that place were the children of Jemini. And when he liſt up his eyes, and sawe the stranger in the street, he sayde unto him: Whither wilt thou go? and whence comest thou? He answered him: We are goinge on our journey from Bethleem Juda, until we come besyde mount Ephraim, wher we are, and wente unto Bethlehem Juda: and now I go unto the house of the LORD, and now I will harborow me. We have strawe and provender for our asses, and bread and wyne for me and thy handmayden, and for the young man which is with thy servant, so that we wante nothinge.

The olde man sayde: Peace be with thee: what soever thou wouldest, thou findest it with me, only tarrye not in the street all night. And he brought him in to his house, and gave the asses provender: and they washed their feet, and ate and drinke. And when their heart was now ioyfull, the men of the cite, the children of Belial, came, and compassed

the house rounde aboute, and rushed at 3 dore, and sayde vnto 3 olde man, which was the good man of 3 house: Bynge out the mā which is come in to thy house, that we maye knowe him.

121. 19. b

But the good man of the house wente forth to them, and sayde vnto them: Oh no my brethren, do not so wickedly, consideringe this man is come in to my house: Oh do not sich folye. Beholde, I have a daughter yet a virgin, and this man hath a concubine, chose will I bynge forth vnto you, that ye maye humble them, and do with them as ye lyke:
but do not sich foly vnto this man. Neuer-theles the men wolde not herten vnto him.
Then toke 3 man his concubine and brought her forth vnto them: and they knewe her,
and deale shamefully with her all 3 nighte vntill the mornynge. And whan the mornyn-ge brake on, they let her go.

Then came the woman early in the mor-nynge, and fell downe at the dore of the mā house that her lorde was in, and laye there tyll it was light. Now whan hir lorde rose vp in the mornynge, and opened the dore of the house, and wence forth to go on his iour-ney, beholde, his concubine laye at the dore of the house, and hir handes vpon the thir-holde. He saide vnto her: stonde vp, let vs go.
Neuertheles she gaue him no answeere. The toke he her vp vpon his asse, gat him vp, and wente vnto his place.

Now whan he came home, he toke a swerde, and helde his concubine, and cut her w
the bones and all in to twolue peces, and sente them in to all the coastes of Israel. Who so ever sawe it, sayde: Soch a thinge hath not bene done ner sent, sence the tyme that 3 children of Israel departed out of the londe of Egipte, vnto this daye. Now as concernyn-ge this, take youre adysemēt, and geue yō counsell, and shew it forth.

The XX. Chapter.

Then wente the children of Israel out and gathered a congregacion together as one man, frō Dan vntill Ber-saba, and from the londe of Gilead vnto the LORDE to Mispa: and there came together of all the quarters of the people, and of all the trybes of Israel in to the congregacion of the people of God, foure hundredth thousande fore men that drewe out 3 swerde. But the children of Ben Jamin herde, howe the children of Israel were gone vp vnto Mis-pa. And the children of Israel sayde: Tell vs, howe happened this euell?

Then answered the Leuite the husbāde of the woman that was slayne, and sayde:

came to Gibeā in Ben Jamin with my cubynne, to tary there all night, then the op-sins of Gibeā gat them vp agaynst me, and compased me aboute in the house by night, and thoughte to slaye me, and defiled my cubynne, so that she dyed: then toke I my cubynne, and cut her in peces, and sent them ces in to every countre of the inheritaunce of Israel: for they haue done an abhomincion and folye in Israel. Beholde, here are y children of Israel: aduise you well, and take this matter in hande.

So all the people gat them vp as one,
and sayde: Noma shal go in to his tent, departe to his house, but this wil we do agaynst Gibeā: Let vs cast lot, and take men of an hundred, and an hundred of a thousande, and a thousande of ten thousande, out of all 3 trybes of Israel, 3 they mai-make sode for 3 people, to come & do with Gibeā. Ben Jamin, acordynge to their saye which they haue done in Israel. Thus all the men of Israel beyng confederate, gathered them selues together as one man vnto the cite: and the trybes of Israel sent men vnto all the kindreds of Ben Jamin, and caused saye vnto them: What maner of wickydnes is this, that is done amonge you? Deluyt re therfore the men the children of Belial Gibeā, that we maye put them to deatch, and do awaye the euell out of Israel. Neuertheles the children of Ben Jamin wolde not fo-lowe the voyce of their brethren the children of Israel, but gathered them selues out of 3
cites vnto Gibeā, to go forth in battayll agaynst the children of Israel.

And the same daye were there nombred of the children of Ben Jamin out of the cities, five and twenty thousand men, this dwe the swerde, beside the citefyns of Gibeā of whom there were tolde sent hundredth thousen men. And amonge all this people there were chosen out seven hundredth men, which were not the right hande but the lefte, and yet the flynge coude they touch an heer, and not myffe. But the men of Israel, beside them of Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundredth thousande, which drewe the swerde, & were all men of armes. And the children of Israel arose, and wente vp to the house of God (in Silo)
and axed at God, and sayde: Who shal go vp for vs to beginne the battayll with 3 children of Ben Jamin? The LORDE saide: Iuda shal begynne.

So the children of Israel gat the vp in mornynge, & pitched ouer agaynst Gibeā, & were men of Israel were out to fighte with Ben Jamin, and set them selues in araye to fighte agaynst Gibeā. Then fell the children of Ben Jamin out of Gibeā, and slewe the same daye amonge Israel two & twenty thousande to the grounde.

But the people of the men of Israel comforted them selues, and made them ready to fighte yet more in the same place, after they had prepared them selues the daye afore.
And the children of Israel wente vp, and wepte before the LORDE vntill the evenynge, and axed at the LORDE, & sayde: Shall we go enymore to fighte with oure brethren, the children of Ben Jamin? The LORDE sayde: Go vp vnto them. And whan the children of Israel gat them vp to the childre of Ben Jamin on 3 next daye, the Ben Jami-tes fell out of Gibeā agaynst them the same daye, and slewe yet eighrene thousande of 3 children of Israel to the grounde, which all drewe the swerde.

Then wente all the children of Israel vp,
and all the people, and came to the house of God, and wepte, and caried there before the LORDE, & fasted that daye vntill the euening, and offered burnt offrynges and deed offerin-ges before the LORDE. And the children of Israel axed at the LORDE (the Arke of the covenant of God was there at that tyme, and phineas the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron stode before him at the same tyme) & they sayde: Shal we go forth eny more to fighte with oure brethren the childre of Ben Jamin, or shal we leaue of? The LOR-DE sayde: Go vp, tomorrow wyll I deluyt them in to youre handes.

And the children of Israel set a priuy watch agaynst Gibeā rounde aboute, and so the children of Israel wente vp to the children of Ben Jamin on the thirde daye, and set them selues in araye agaynst Gibeā like as the other two tymes afore. The came the children of Ben Jamin out agaynst the people, & brake out of the cite, & begonne to slaye certaine wounded of the people (like as the other two tymes afore) in the selde vpon two stretes: wher of one goeth towards Bechel, the other vnto Gilead vpon a thirtie men in Israel. Then thought the childre of Ben Jamin: They are smytten before vs like as afore. But the childre of Israel sayde: Let vs flye, that we maie prouoke them out of the cite in to the hye stretes.

Then all the men of Israel gat them vp from their place, and prepared them selues vnto Baal Thamar. And the hinder watch of Israel brake out of their place, from 3 caue of Gaba, and came vnto Gibeā, twentye thousand chosen men out of all Israel, so that it was a fore battayll: but they knewe not that the euell shulde happen vnto them.
Thus the LORDE smote Ben Jamin before the children of Israel, so that the same daye
the children of Israel destroyed fyue & twen-tye thousande and an hundredth men in Ben Jamin, which all drewe the swerde.

For whan the childre of Ben Jamin sawe that they were smitten, the men of Israel ga-ue them rowine (to flye). For they trusted to the watch, which they had sett by Gibeā.
And the watch made haist also, & brake forth vnto Gibeā, and wente vpon it, and smote all the cite with the edge of 3 swerde. They were appoynted betwene them selues the men of Israel and the hynder watch, so f. ll vpon them with the swerde, whan the smoke of the cite arose. Now whan the men of Israel turned them in the battayll, and Ben Jamin begonne to smyte the wounded in Israel vpon a thirtie men, and thoughte, they are smytten before vs, like as in the battayll afore, then begonne there a piler of smoke to arise vp from the cite. And Ben Jamin looked behinde them: and beholde, the flamme of 3 cite wente vp vnto heauen. And the men of Israel turned them, and were scarce vpon 3 men of Ben Jamin: for they sawe that the euell wolde happen vnto them.

And they turned them before the men of Israel in the waye to the wyldernes, but the battayll folowed vpon them. And them of the cite destroyed they amonge them. And they compassed Ben Jamin rounde aboute, and folowed vpon them vnto Menah, and trode them downe tyll afore Gibeā east-warde. And there fell of Ben Jamin eightene thousande men, which were all men of armes.

Whan the remnant of Ben Jamin sawe that, they turned them and fled towards the wyldernes vnto the stonye rocke of Rimoni

The boke of the Judges.

But in the same strete they slewe fyue thousande men, and folowed vpon them vnto Gibeon, and slewe two thousande of the: and so there fell the same daye of Ben Jamin fyue and twenty thousande men which drewe & siberde, and were all mē of armes. Onely sixe hundred men turned backe, and fled toward the wyldernesse vnto the stonye rocke of Rimmon, and abode in the rocke of Rimmon foure monethes. And the men of Israel came agayne to the children of Ben Jamin, and smote them that were in the cite with & edge of the swerde, both mē and catell and all that was founde: and what soeuer was foude in the cite, they cast it into the fyre.

The XXI. Chapter.

The men of Israel had sworn at Mispah, and sayde: A man shal geue his daughter to the Ben Jamites to wife. And the people came to the house of God (in Silo) & abode there before God vntill the enenyng, and lifte vp their voyce, and wept sore, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, wherfore is this come to passe in Israel this daye? But on the morow the people gat the vp early, and builded there an altare, and offered burnt offerings and deed offerings.

And the children of Israel sayde: Where is there eny mā of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp with the congregacion vnto the LORDE? For there was a greete oath made, that whoso came not vp to Mispah vnto the LORDE, shulde dye the deeth. And the children of Israel were sorry for Ben Jamin their brother, and sayde: This daye is there one trybe lesse in Israel. How wyll we do that the remnant maye haue wyues? For we haue sworn by the LORDE, that we wyl not geue the wyues of oure daughters. And they sayde: Where is there eny mā of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp to the LORDE vnto Mispah? And beholde, there was not ene man of the cite syns of Jabes in Gilead.

Then sent the congregacion twelue thousande men of armes thither, and commaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and smite the cite syns of Jabes in Gilead with the swerde, the women also and the children, but so that ye do after this maner: Se that ye damne all them that are males, and all the women that haue lyen with men. And amonge the cite syns of Jabes in Gilead they founde foure hundred damselfs, which were virgins, and had lyen with noman: those they broughte into the hoost vnto Silo, which lyeth in the londe of Canaan.

Num. 31. 6

The xxi. Chap.

Then sent the whole congregacion, and caused to talke with the children of Ben Jamin, which were in the stonye rocke of Rimmon, and called vnto them frendly. So the children of Ben Jamin came agayne at the same tyme, and they gaue them women which they had of the women of Jabes in Gilead, and founde no mo after that maner. Then were the people sorry for Ben Jamin, that the LORDE had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And the Elders of the congregacion sayde: What wil we do, that the remnant maye haue wyues also? for the women in Ben Jamin are destroyed, and they sayde: The inheritance of them of Ben Jamin that are escaped, must nedes remayne, that there be not a trybe destroyed out of Israel: & we can not geue them oure daughters to wyues, for the children of Israel haue sworn and sayde: Cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to the Ben Jamites.

And they sayde: Beholde there is a yearly feast of the LORDE at Silo, which lieth on the north syde of the Gods house, and on the east syde of the strete as a mā goeth from Bethel vnto Sichem, and lieth on the south syde of Libanus. And they commaunded the children of Ben Jamin, & sayde: Go youre waye, and wayte in the vynyardes. And when ye se that the daughters of Silo go forth by companyes to daunse, get you out of the vynyardes, and every man take him a wyfe of the daughters of Silo, and go youre waye into the lode of Ben Jamin. As for their fathers and brethien, whan they come to lawe with vs, we wyll saye vnto them: Be favourable to them, for they haue not taken the in battail: but ye gaue the not vnto them by time, and it is youre faute.

The children of Ben Jamin did so, and accordinge to their nombre toke them wyues from the daunse, whom they caught by violence, and wente their waye, & dwelt in their awne inheritance, and builded cities and dwelt therein. The children of Israel also gat them vp from thence at the same time, wayte one to his trybe and to his kindred, and departed thence, every man to his awne inheritance. At & time was there no kynge in Israel, and euery man dyd & thinge & was right in his awne eyes.

The boke of Ruth.

What this boke conteyneth.

- Chap. I. Elimelech departeth from Bethleem with his wyfe and two sonnes into the londe of the Moabites, where the father dyeth and both the sonnes. Ruth the wyfe of the one sonne goeth home with hir mother in lawe.
Chap. II. Ruth gathereth vp eares of corne in the felde of Boos hir husbandes kynsin.
Chap. III. Ruth lyeth her downe in the barn at Boos fere, and he geueth her good wordes, and laderh her with fire measures of barleye.
Chap. IIII. Boos marieth Ruth, which beareth him Obed Dauides graundfather.

The first Chapter.

In & tyme whan the Judges ruled, there was a deth in the londe. And there wente a mā from Bethleem Iuda to take his iourney into the londe of the Moabites with his wyfe and two sonnes, which man was called Elimelech, and his wyfe Naemi, & his two sonnes, the one Mahelon, and the other Chilion: these were Ephraites of Bethleem Iuda. And whan they came into the londe of the Moabites, they dwelt there. And Elimelech Naemis husbande dyed, & she was left behinde with hir two sonnes, which toke Moabish wyues: the one was called Arpa, the other Ruth. And whan they had dwelt there ten years, they dyed both, Mahelon and Chilion, so that the woman remayned desolate of both hir sonnes and hir husbande.

Then gat she her vp with both hir sonnes wyues, & wente agayne out of the lode of the Moabites (for she had herde in the londe of the Moabites, & the LORDE had visited his people & geuen them bled) & so she departed from & place where she was, & both hir sonnes wyues with her. And as they were by the waye to come agayne into the londe of Iuda, she sayde vnto both hir sonnes wyues: Go ye waye, & turne backe ether of you to hir mothers house: the LORDE shewe mercy vpon you, as ye haue done on the & are deed & on me. The LORDE graunte you, & ye maie fynde rest ether of you in hir husbandes house (whom ye shal get) and she kysed them.

Then lifte they vp their voyce, and wepte, & sayde vnto her: We wil go with the vnto

The first Chap. Ho. xxiij.

& people. But Naemi sayde: Turne agayne my daughters, why wolde ye go with me? How can I haue children enymore in my body, to be youre husbandes? Turne agayne my daughters, and go youre waye, for I am now to olde to take an husbande.

And though I shulde saye: I hope this might to take an husbande & to brynge forth children, yet coulde ye not tary till they were growne vp: for ye shulde be to olde, so that ye coulde haue no husbandes. No my daughters, therfore am I sorry for you, for & haue of the LORDE is gone forth ouer me.

Then lifte they vp their voyce, and wept yet more, and Arpa kysed hir mother in lawe (and turned backe agayne but Ruth abode styll by her). Nevertheless she sayde: Beholde, thy syster in lawe is turned backe vnto hir people and to hir god, turne thou agat ne also after thy syster in lawe. Ruth answered: Speake not come therof, that I shulde forsake the, and turne backe from the: whither so euer thou goest, thither wil I go also: and loke where thou abydest, there wil I abide also: Thy people is my people, & thy God is my God. Loke where thou diest, there wil I dye, and enen there wil I also be buried. The LORDE do this and that vnto me, deach one ly shal departe so.

Now whan she sawe, that she wassted fastly mynded to go with her, she spake no more to her therof. So they wente on both together, till they came vnto Bethleem. And whan they were come in to Bethleem, the whole cite was moued ouer them, and sayde: Is not this Naemi? Nevertheless she sayde vnto them: call me not Naemi, but Mara: for the Almighty hath made me very sorry. I departed full, but the LORDE hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why call ye me then Naemi? whā the LORDE hath brought me lowe, and the Almighty hath made me sorry?

It was aboute the tyme of the begynnynge of the barleye harvest, whan Naemi and his sonnes wyfe Ruth & Moabitisse, came agayne from the londe of the Moabites vnto Bethleem. There was a kinsman also of & kynred of Elimelech Naemis husbande, whose name was Boos, which was an honest man. The II. Chapter.

Now Ruth the Moabitisse saide vnto Naemi: Let me go in to & felde, & gather eares of corne, after him, in whose sight I shal fynde fauor. She sayde vnto her: Go & waite my daughter. She wente on, & came & gathered after & reapers in & felde. And it fortuned that the same felde was the enheritance of Boos, which was of the kynred of Elimelech, and beholde, Boos came from Beethleem, and sayde vnto the reapers: The LORDE be with you. They answered: The LORDE blesse the. And Boos sayde vnto his yongman which had the oversight of 3 reapers. Whole damsell is this? The yongman that was set ouer 3 reapers, answered and sayde: It is the damsell the Moabitisse, which came agayne with Naemi from the londe of the Moabites. And she sayde: Let me plucke vp and gather (I pray the) betwene the sheues after the reapers: and thus is she come, and hath stonde here ever sence the mounyng, and within a litle whyle she wolde haue bene gone home agayne.

Then sayde Boos vnto Ruth: Hearst thou my daughter? Thou shalt not come vpon another mans londe to gather, and go not awaye from hence, but tary with my daisels, and loke where they reape in 3 felde, go thou after them: for I haue commaunded my seruantes that no man touch the. And yf thou be a thysst, go thy waye to the vessell & drynke, where my seruantes drinke. Then fell she downe vpon his face, and bowed herself downe to the earth, and sayde vnto him: How haue I founde this fauoure in 3 sighte, that thou woldest knowe me, which am yet a stranger?

Boos answered and sayde vnto her: It is tolde me alle together, what thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe after thy husbandes death, how that thou hast left 3 father and thy mother, and thy native countre, and art come to a people, whom thou hast not knowne afore. The LORDE recompence the thy doinge, and thy rewarde be perfecte of the LORDE God of Israel, vnto whom thou art come to put thy trust vnder his wynges. She sayde: let me fynde fauoure (3r) before thyne eyes, for thou hast comforted me, and spoken frendly vnto thy handmayde, where as I am not yet like one of 3 handmaydes.

Boos sayde vnto her: Whan it is eatinge tyme, come hither, and eate of the bried, and dyppe thy morsell in the vynes. And she sat hir downe besyde the reapers. And he seepatched come before her, and she ate, & was satisfied, and lefte ouer. And whā she rose to gather, Boos commaunded his seruantes, and sayde: Let her gather betwene the sheues also, and do her no dishoneste: and cast of the sheues vnto her, and let it lye that she maye gather it vp, and se that no man reprove her for it.

So she gathered in the felde vntill an and she shated out what she had gathered, and it was almost an Ephā of barley: and she toke it vp, and came in to the cite, and shewed hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. She toke forth also, and gathered that which was left, wherof she was satisfied. The sayde hir mother in lawe vnto her: Blessinge haue the man that hath knowen the, where thou hast gathered and laboured this daye.

She tolde hir mother in lawe by whom she had laboured, and sayde: The man is me, by whom I haue wrought to daye, & Boos. Naemi sayde vnto hir daughter in lawe: The blessinge of the LORDE haue, for he hath not lefte of to be mercifull vnto the lyuynge, and to the deed. And Naemi sayde vnto her: The same man belongeth to vs, and is oure nye kynsman. Ruth the Moabitisse saide: He saide moreouer vnto me: Thou shalt resorte vnto my seruantes, if they haue made an ende of all my barn. Naemi sayde vnto Ruth hir daughter in lawe: It is better my daughter, that thou go forth with his daisels, lest eny man withde the in another felde. Thus she kept herself with Boos daisels, so that she gathered vntill the barley harvest and the wheat harvest was out, and came agayne to him in lawe.

The iij. Chapter.

Now Naemi hir mother in lawe sayde vnto her: My daughter, I will praye for thee, that thou makest prosperie. Boos oure kynsman, by whose damsell thou hast bene, casteth vp barley now this night in his barn. Barke thyselfe therfor, and mossell the, and put on thy clothes, and go downe vnto the barn, so 3 noma knowe the, tyll they haue all eaten and dronken.

Whan he layeth him downe then to slepe, mark 3 place where he lyeth downe, and come thou, and take vp the conynges at his fete, and laye the downe, so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. She sayde vnto her: What so ener thou saiest vnto me, I wil do it.

She wente downe to the barn, & dyd as hir mother in lawe had commaunded her. And whā Boos had eate & dronke, his heart was mery, & he came and layed him downe behynde a heape of sheues. And she came secretly, and toke vp the conynges at his fete, and layed hir downe. Now whā it was midnight, the man was a frayd, and groped aboute him, and beholde, a woman laye at his fete. And he sayde: Who art thou? She saide: I am Ruth thy handmayden, spreade 3 wynges ouer thy handmayden: for thou art the nye kynsman.

She sayde: The LORDEs blessinge haue thou my daughter. Thou hast done a better mercy here after then before, 3 thou art not gone after yonge men, nether riche ner poore. Feare not now my daughter: All 3 thou hast sayde, will I do for the: for all the cite of my people knoweth, 3 thou art a vertuous woman. Trueth it is now, 3 I am a nye kynsman, but there is one nyer then I. Tarye thou all night. Tomorrow yf he take the, well: yf he like not to take 3, then wil I take 3 myselfe, as truly as 3 LORDE lyueth. Slepe thou tyll 3 mounyng. And she slepte at his fete vntill 3 mornow. And she rose vp ouer one coude knowe another. And he thoughte thus: That no mā knowe now 3 there hath come a woman in to the barn, and he sayde: Reach metho cloke 3 thou hast on the, & holde it forth. And she helde it forth. And he met her sixe measures of barley, and layed it vpon her, & she wente in to the cite, & came to hir mother in lawe, which sayde: How is it with the my daughter? And she tolde her all 3 the mā had done vnto her, & sayde: These sixe measures of barley gaue he me, for he sayde: Thou shalt not come emptye vnto 3 mother in lawe. She sayde: Abyde my daughter, tyll thou se what 3 matter wil growe to: for the man wil not ceasse, tyll he brynge it to an ende this daye.

The iij. Chapter.

Boos wente vnto 3 gate, and sat him downe there: & beholde, whan 3 nye kynsman wente by, Boos spake vnto him, & sayde: Come & syt the downe here, and called him by his name. And he came & sat him downe, & he toke testimony of the Elders of 3 cite, & sayde: Syt you downe here. And they sat the downe. The sayde he to the nye kynsman: Naemi which is come agayne fro the lode of the Moabites, offereth to sell 3 pece of londe, 3 was oure brothers Eli Melech, therfore thoughte I to shewe it before thine eares, & to tell the: If thou wilt rede me it, then bye it before the citesyns & before the Elders of my people: but yf thou wilt not rede me it, then tell me, 3 I maie knowe: for there is no nye kynsman excepte thou, and I nyte after the.

She sayde: I wil rede me it. Boos saide: In the daye 3 thou byest the lode out of 3 hand of Naemi, thou must take Ruth also the Moabitisse the wife of the deed, that thou mayest raise vp a name to 3 deed in his inheritance.

reuerence. The sayde he: I can not rede me it, lest I haplye destroye myne awne inheritance. Redeme thou 3 I shulde rede me, for I can not rede me it. But this was an olde custome in Israel concernyng the redemynge & chaunginge, 3 all matters might be stable, the one put of his shue, & gaue it vnto 3 other: 3 was the testimony in Israel.

And the nye kynsman sayde vnto Boos: Bye thou it, & he put of his shue. And Boos sayde vnto the Elders and to all the people: Ye are witnesses this daie, 3 I haue boughte out of the hande of Naemi, all that belongeth to Eli Melech, and all that was Chelions and Mahelons: And Ruth the Moabitisse Mahelons wife, take I to wife, that I maye raise vp a name vnto 3 deed in his inheritance, and that his name be not rote out from amonge his brethren, and out of the gate of his place: Of this are ye witnesses. And all the people that was in the gate with the Elders, saide: We are witnesses. The LORDE make the woman that cometh in to thy house, as Rachel and Lea (which both haue bylded vnto the house of Israel) that she maye be an ensample of vertue in Ephraim, and haue an honorable name in Beethleem. And thy house be as 3 house of Phares (whō Thamar bare vnto Iuda) wherof the seide, that the LORDE shall gene the of this damsell.

So Boos toke Ruth, and she became his wife. And whan he laye with her, the LORDE graunted her 3 she conceived, and bare a sonne. The sayde the women vnto Naemi: Praise be the LORDE, which hath not suffered a kynsman to ceasse from the at this tyme, that his name maye conynue in Israel: he shal restore thy life agayne, and prouyde for thine age. For 3 somes wife which hath lored the, hath borne him that is better vnto the, then seven sonnes.

And Naemi toke the childe, and layde it vpon hir lappe, and became the noyse of it, and hir neighbours gaue him a name & sayde: There is a childe borne vnto Naemi, and they called his name Obed. The same is the father of Isai, which is 3 father of Dauid.

This is 3 generation of Phares. Phares begat Hesrom. Hesrom begat Aram. Aram begat Aminadab. Aminadab begate Naasson. Naasson begat Salmon. Salmon begat Boos. Boos begat Obed. Obed begat Isai. Isai begat Dauid.

The i. boke of the kynges.

The first Chapter.

There was a man of Ramathaim Sophim
of mount Ephraim,
whose name was Eli cana & sonne of Jero ham, & sonne of Eli
hu, & sonne of Tohu, & sonne of Zuph, &
was an Ephraite. And he had two wyues, & one was called Anna, & other Peninna.
As for Peninna, she had children, but Anna had no child. And yf same man wice vp frs his cite at his tyme, to worshippinge and to offer vnto the LORDE Zebaoth at Silo. The re were the prestes of the LORDE Ophni and Phineas, the two sonnes of Eli. Now whan it came vpon a daye that Elcana of fired, he gaue partes vnto his wife Peninna, and to all his sonnes and daughters. But vnto Anna he gaue one deale henely, for he loued Anna. Nevertheless the LORDE had closed hir wombe, & hir aduersary cast her in the tette with hir vnfructifullnes, be cause the LORDE had closed hir wombe:
thus dyd she every yere, whan they wente vp to the house of the LORDE, and thus she prouoked her. So she wepte, and ate no thinge. But Elcana hir husbände sayde vn to her: Wherfore wepest thou? and why ea test thou not? And wherfore is thine hert so griued? Am not I better vnto the then ten sonnes?

Then stode Anna vp, whan she had ea ten and dronken at Silo. But Eli the prest sat vpon a stole by the poste of the temple of the LORDE. And she was full of beny
n in hir herte, and prayed vnto the LOR DE and wepte, and vowed a vowe, and say de: O LORDE Zebaoth, yf thou wilt lōke vpon the aduersite of thy handmayden, and thynke vpon me, and not forget thy hand mayden, and wilt geue thy handmayden a sonne, I wil geue him vnto the LORDE all his life longe, & and there shal no rasour co me vpon his heade.

And whā she had prayed longe before & LORDE, Eli toke hede to hir mouth, for An na spake in hir hert, hir lippes onely moued, but hir voyce was not herde. Then thought te Eli she had bene dronken, and sayde vnto her: How longe wilt thou be dronken? Let come from the the wyne that thou hast by the. Nevertheless Anna answered and sayde:
To my lord. I am a sorenfull woman, wy ne and stronge drynke haue I not dronken
but haue poured out my hert before & LOR DE. Counte not thy handmayden a dought er of Belial: for out of my heuy thoughte and sorow haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered her, and sayde: Go y waye
in peace, the God of Israel shal graunte & thy peticion that thou hast desired of him.
She sayde: Let thy handmayden synde fa uoure in thy sighte. So the woman wente hir waye and ate, and loked nomore so sorow fully, and on y morowe they gat them vp by tymes. And whan they had worshipped be fore & LORDE, they returned, and came ho me vnto Ramatha.

And Elcana laye with Anna his wife, and the LORDE remembred her. And after certayne dayes, she conceiued and bare a son ne, and called his name Samuel, for I haue desired him (sayde she) of the LORDE. And whan the man Elcana wente vp with all his household to offre sacrifice and his vo we vnto the LORDE at sodi tyme as y cus tome was, Anna wente not vp, but sayde vn to hir husbände: (I wil not go vp) tyll y chil de be weened: then will I brynge him, that he maye appeare before the LORDE, and co ntinue there for ever.

Elcana hir husbände sayde vnto her: D
The do as thou thyntest best, tary tyll thou haue weened him: but the LORDE persour me that he hath spoken. So the woman abo de, and gaue hir sonne sucke, tyll she weened him. And whan she had weened him, she broughte him vp with her, with the bulloc kes, with an Eph of fyne floure, and a bot tell of wyne, and broughte him in to y hon
se of the LORDE at Silo.

Nevertheless the childe was yet but yon
ge. And they slewe a bullocke, and broughte the childe vnto Eli. And she sayde: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule lyueth my lord, I am the woman that stode here by y, and made intercession vnto the LORDE, whan
I prayed for this childe. Now hath y LOR
DE graunted me my peticion, which I desy red of him, therefore haue I geuen him ouer vnto the LORDE, as long as he is lent vnto the LORDE. And they worshipped the LORDE there.

The II. Chapter.

And Anna prayed, and sayde:

My heart reioyseth in the LORDE, & my home is exalted in the LORDE.

My mouth is opened wyde vpon myne enemies, for I am glad of thy saluacion.

There is no man holy as the LORDE, for without the is nothinge, and there is no comforte like vnto oure God.

Let go ye greates boostinge of hye thynges, let go out of youre mouth that olde by-woorde: for the LORDE is a God & knoweth all thynges, & he hath set all workes in order.

The bowe of the mightie is broken, and the weake are gyded aboute with strength.

They that were fylled afore, are solde for bryd: and they that were hongrie, are satisfied: vntill the baren bare seuen, and tyll she that had many childre, was become weake.

The LORDE slayeth, and geueth life: he ledeth vnto hell, and bryngeth out agayne.

The LORDE maketh poore and maketh riche: he bryngeth lowe and exalteth.

He taketh vp the mealy one of the dust, and lifteth vp the poore out of the myre, that he maye set them amonge the prynces, and to let them inheret the seate of honoure: for the foundations and corners of the worlde are the LORDES, and he hath set the compass of the earth thereon.

He shall preserue the fete of his sayntes, but the vngodly shall be put to sylence in darkness. For there is no man that can do oughte of his owne power.

The LORDES enemies shall be put in feare before him, he shall thoder vpon the in heau.

The LORDE shall iudge the endes of the worlde, & shall geue strenght vnto his kynge, & shall exalte the home of his anoynted.

Elcana wente his waye to Ramath vnto his house. And the childe became the LORDES mynister before Eli the prest. But Elis sonnes were the childre of Belial, and knewe not the LORDE, ner the dutye of the prestes vnto the people: but whan eny man wolde offre oughte, the prestes boye came, whyle the flesh was seethinge, and had a thre forted fleshoke in his hande, and thrust it in to the candion, or ketell, or panne, or pot: and loke what he drew forth with the fleshoke, that toke the prest therof. Thus dyd they vnto all Israel, which came thither vnto Silo.

Like wyse, or euer they burned the fact, the prestes lad came, and sayde vnto him that broughte the offerynge: Geue me the flesh, that I maye roste it for the prest, for he wyl receaue no sodden flesh of y, but rawe. If eny man sayde then vnto him: Let the fat burne as it oughte to do this daye, and afterwarde take what thine heart desireth, then sayde he vnto him: Thou shalt geue me enen now: yf no, I wyl take it from the by violence. Therefore was the synne of y a dyt very greate before the LORDE, for y people spake euell of y meatofferynge of y LORDE. But Samuel was a mynister before the LORDE, and the childe was gyded with an oare body cote of linnen, his mother also made him a litle cote of sylke, and broughte it vpon him at convenient tymes, whan she wente vpon with hir husbunde to offer y offerynge in due season.

And Eli blessed Elcana & his wife, and sayde: The LORDE geue the seide of this woman, for this good that thou hast lent vnto the LORDE. And they wote vnto their place. And the LORDE vyfited Anna, so that she conceyued and bare thre sonnes and two daughters: but the childe Samuel grew vp with the LORDE.

As for Eli, he was very olde, and herte of all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women that serued God before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and he sayde vnto them: wherfore do ye this? For I heare of youre euell consociation of all this people. Not so my childre, this is no good repute that I heare, ye cause the people of the LORDE to offende. If eny man synne agaynst a man, the iudge can dreffe it. But yf eny man synne agaynst the LORDE, who can redresse it? Nevertheless they hardened not vnto the voyce of their father, for the LORDES wyll was to slaye them. But the childe Samuel wente and grew vp, & was accepted of the LORDE & of Eli.

There came a man of God to Eli, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I shewed my selfe vnto thy fathers house, whan they were yet in Egypte vnder the house of Pharaos, and chose him there vnto my selfe before all the trybes of Israel, for the presthode, that he shulde offer vpon myne altare, and burne incense, and weare the oare body cote before me, and vnto thy fathers house I gaue all the offeringes of the children of Israel. Why layest thou thy selfe then agaynst my sacrifices and meatofferynges, which I commaunded (to offer) in the habitation: and thou honourest thy sonnes more then me, that ye mighte seide youre selues with the firstlinges of all the meatofferynges of my people of Israel?

The i. booke of the kynge.

Therefore sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: I haue spoken, that thy house and thy fathers house shulde walke before me for euer. But now sayeth the LORDE: That be same fro me. But who so euer honoureth me, him wil I honore also: as for those that despise me, they shal not be regarded. Beholde, the tyme shal come, that I wyl breake thine arme in two, and the arme of thy fathers house, so that there shal no oldeman be in thy house. And thou shalt se thine aduersaries in the habitation, in all the good of Israel, and there shal neuer be olde man in thy fathers house. Yet wyl I not rote out eueryman of the fro myne altare, but thyne eyes maye be consumed, & that thy soule maye be sore: & a greates multitude of thy house shal dye, whan they are come to be men.

And this shalbe a token vnto the, that shal come vpon thy two sonnes Ophni and Phineas: They shall both dye in one daye.

But vnto my selfe I wyl rayse vp a faithfull prest, which shal do acordinge as it is in my herte & in my soule: vnto him wyl I buylde a sure house, that he maye allwaye walke before myne anoynted. And who so euer remayneth of thy house, shal come and worshipe him for a syluer peny and for a pece of bryd, and shall saye: I praye the leaue me to one prestes parte, that I maye eate a morsell of bryd.

The III. Chapter.

And whan the childe Samuel mynistered vnto the LORDE vnder Eli, the worde of the LORDE was deare at the same tyme, nerher was there eny sure & manifest vision. And it fortunied at the same tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and his eyes begonne to be dynne, so that he coulde not se. And Samuel had layed him downe in the temple of the LORDE (where the Arke of God was) before the lampe of God was put out. And the LORDE called Samuel. He answered: Beholde, here am I. And he ronne vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. But he saide: I haue not called the, go thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to slepe. And he wente his waye, and layed him downe to slepe.

The LORDE called agayne: Samuel. And Samuel arose, & wente vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. Nevertheless he sayde: My sonne, I haue not called the. So thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to slepe. As for Samuel, he knewe not the LORDE as yet, & the worde of the LORDE was not yet shewed vnto him. And the LORDE called Samuel the thirde tyme. And he arose, & wente vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am

The iiij. Chap. Ho. xxv.

I, thou hast called me. Then perceaued Eli the LORDE called the childe, & he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye agayne, & laye the downe to slepe: and yf the LORDE call the eny more, then saye: Speake LORDE, for y seruauant heareth. Samuel wote his waye, and layed him downe in his place. The came the LORDE, & stode, and called like as afore: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel sayde: Speake LORDE, for thy seruauant heareth. And the LORDE saide vnto Samuel: Beholde, I do a thinge in Israel, & who so euer shall heare it, both his eares shal glowe. In the daie will I rayse vp vpon Eli: all that I haue spokē concerninge his house. I will take it in hande, & perfourme it: for I haue tolde him, & I wil be Iudge ouer his house for euer, because of the wickednes, & he knewe how shamefully his childre be haued the selues, and hath not once looked sowerly therto. Therefore haue I sworne vnto the house of Eli, & this wickednes of the house of Eli shal not be recōcyled nether by sacrifice ner by meatoffrynge for euer. And Samuel laye vnto the morow, & opened the doores of the house of the LORDE.

But Samuel was afrayed to tell the vision vnto Eli. Then Eli called him & sayde: Samuel my sonne. He answered: Beholde, here am I. He sayde: What is the worde of the LORDE hath spokē vnto the? hyde it not fro me. God do this & that vnto y, yf thou hyde oughte from me, of all that he hath talked with the. Then Samuel tolde him altogether, & hyd nothinge from him. He sayde: It is the LORDE, let him do what pleasech him.

Samuel grew vp, & the LORDE was with him, & there fell none of all his wordes vpon the earth. And all Israel fro Dan vnto Bersaba, knewe that Samuel was faithfull to be a prophet of the LORDE. And the LORDE appeared agayne at Silo: for the LORDE shewed him selfe vnto Samuel at Silo, the row the worde of the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

And all Israel spake of Samuel. And Israel wente south to the battayll agaynst the Philistynes, & pitched besyde the helpe stone. As for the Philistynes, they pitched at Aphek, and prepared them selues agaynst Israel. And whan the battayll beganne, the host was denyed, so that Israel was smytte before the enemies, & in the edge in the felde they slewe aboute a foure thousande men. And whan the people came in to the hoost, the Elders of Israel sayde: Wherfore hath the LORDE caused vs to be smytten this daie before the Philistynes? Let vs take vnto vs the Arke of the LORDES couenant from Silo, and let it come amonge vs, that it maye helpe vs from the hande of oure enemies. And the people sent vnto Silo, and caused to set thence the Arke of y couenauent of the LORDE Zebaoth, that sitteth vpon the Cherubins. And with the Arke of the couenauent of God there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas.

B And whan the Arke of the couenauent of the LORDE came in to the hoost, all Israel shouted with a greate shout, so that the earth sounded with all. But whan the philistynes herde y noyse of y shout, they sayde: what noyse is this of soch greate shoutinge in the tentes of the hebrues? And whan they perceaued y the Arke of the LORDE was come in to the hoost, they were afraied and sayde: God is come in to the hoost. And they sayde morouer: Wo vnto vs, for it hath not bene thus afore tyme. Wo vnto vs. Who wil deliuer vs fro the hande of these hye goddes? These are the goddes that smote Egipte with all maner of plagues in the wyldernesse. Be stronge now and manly ye philistynes, that ye serue not the hebrues: as they haue serued you. Be manly and fighte.

C Then foughte the philistynes, and Israel was smytten, and every one fled vnto his cite, and there fell of Israel thirtie thousande fore me, and the Arke of God was take, and the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas dyed.

Re. 2. g Then rane there one of Ben Jamin out of the fore fronte of the battayl, and came vnto Silo the same daye, and had his clothes rent, and had earch vpon his heade. And whan he came in, Eli sat vpon the seate, that he mighte loke toward the waye: for his herbe was fearfull aboute y Arke of God. And whan the man came in to the cite, he tolde it forth: and all the cite cried. And whan Eli herde y noyse of the cryge, he axed: What noyse of busynes is this? The man came haistely, and tolde Eli. (As for Eli, he was fourescore and eightene yere olde, and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not se.) The man sayde vnto Eli: I come and am fled this daye out of the hoost. He sayde: How is it my sonne?

Reg. 1. 2 B Then answered the rydinge bringer, and sayde: Israel is fled before the philistynes, and a greate slaughter hath there bene amonge the people, and thy two sonnes Ophni and Phineas are dead, yeez the Arke of God is take awaye. Whan he had made mencion of the Arke of God, he fell downe backward from the seate by the gate, and brake his neck, and dyed: for he was olde, and an heny man. He iud god Israel fortie yeres. The wife of his sonne Phineas was with childe, and shulde shortly be deliuered, whan she herde the rydinges of the Arke of God was taken, and y hit her in lawe and hir husbade were dead, she bowed hir selfe and crayed: for hir praye came vpon her. And whan she was now at the poynte of death, the women that were by her, sayde: Feare not, thou hast a yonge sonne. But she gaueno answer, nether regarded it, and she called the childe Jacob, and sayde: The glory is gone from Israel, because the Arke of God was taken awaye, and hir brother in lawe and hir husbade. And she sayde morouer: The glory is gone from Israel, for the Arke of God is take awaye.

The V. Chapter.

Q S for the Arke of God, the philistynes toke it and broughte it from the stone of helpe vnto Asdod in to the house of Dagon, and set it besyde Dagon. And whan they of Asdod rose vp early in the morowe, they founde Dagon lyenge on his face vpon the earth, before the Arke of the LORDE. But they toke vp Dagon, and set him agayne in his place. And whan they rose vp early in the next morowe, they founde Dagon lyenge on his face agayne vpon the earth before the Arke of the LORDE: but his heade and both his handes hewen of vpon the threshold, so that the block laie there onely. Therefore the prestes of Dagon, and all they that go into his house, treade not vpon the threshold of Dagon at Asdod vnto this daye.

But the hande of the LORDE was against them of Asdod, and destroyed them, and smote Asdod and all the borders thereof in secrete places. Whan the men of Asdod sawe that they were so plagued, they sayde: Let not the Arke of the God of Israel ry with vs, for his hande is to harde vpon vs, and vpon god Dagon. And they sent sayd and gathered all the prynces of the philistynes vnto them, and sayde: What shal we do with the Arke of the God of Israel? The answered they of Beth: Let the Arke of the God of Israel be boune aboute. And they carried the Arke of the God of Israel rounde aboute.

C But wha they bare it aboute, there was a very greate rumoure in the cite thorow the hande of the LORDE, and smote the people of the cite, from the smallest vnto the greatest, and destroyed them in the secrete places. Then sent they the Arke of the LORDE vnto Ekron. But wha the Arke of the LORDE came vnto Ekron, they of Ekron cried: They haue caried the Arke of God aboute vnto me, to slaye me and my people.

D Then sente they forth, and gathered all y prynces of the philistynes together, and sayde: Sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel agayne vnto hir place, that it slaye not me and my people: for there is a very greate rumoure with the deede in all the cite, and the hande of God is there. And the people that dyed not, were smytten in secrete places, so that the noyse of the cite wote vp vnto heauen.

The VI. Chapter.

Q Thus was the Arke of the LORDE in the londe of the philistynes seuen monethes. And the philistynes called their prestes and soothsayers, and sayde: What shal we do with the Arke of the LORDE? Shewe vs, wher with shal we sende it vnto hir place? They sayde: If ye wyll sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel, sende it not awaye emptye, but geue a trespass offeringe: so shal ye be made whole, and ye shal knowe, why his hande departeth not from you.

They sayde: What is the trespass offeringe that we shall geue him? They answered: Syue hynder partes of golde, and syue golden myce, acordinge to the nombre of the syue prynces of y philistynes. For there hath bene one maner of plage vpon you all, and vpon youre prynces. Therefore must ye make youre hynder partes of one fashyon and youre myce, which haue destroyed youre lond, that ye maye geue the God of Israel the honoure: peradventure his hnde shal be the lighter vpon you and vpon youre God, and vpon youre londe. Why harden ye youre hart, as the Egiptians and Pharaos hardened their hart? Whan he shewed him selfe vpon them, dyd not they let them departe to go their waye?

Go to now therfore, and make a new cart, and take two mylke kyne, vpon y which there neuer came yock, and yocke them to y cart, and let their calues tary behynde them at home, and take ye the Arke of the LORDE

and laye it vpon the cart: and the Jewels of golde that ye geue him for a trespass offeringe put in a cosser beside it, and sende it awaye and let it go. And loke well: yf it go the waie of hir awne coaste Beth Semes, the hath he done vs all that is greate euell: yf no, then shal ye knowe that his hande hath not touched vs, but y it is happened vnto vs by chauce.

The men dyd so, and toke two yonge mylke kyne, and yocked them to a cart, and helde their calues at home, and layed the Arke of the LORDE vpon the cart, and the cosser with the golden myce, and with the ymagines of their disease. And the kyne wente straight waye vnto Beth Semes vpon one hye strete, and wente on blearinge, and turned nether to the righte hande ner to the left. And the prynces of the philistynes wente after them vnto y coast of Beth Semes.

The Beth Samites were euen reapinge downe their wheate harvest in the valley, and lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe the Arke, and reioysed to se it. The cart came in to the felde of Josia the Beth Semite, and there it stode styll. And there was a greate stone, and they claued the tymber of the cart, and offred the kyne vnto the LORDE for a burnt-offerynge.

But the Leuites toke downe the Arke of the LORDE, and the cosser that was by it, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and set the vpon the greate stone. The men of Beth Semes offred burnt-offerynges, and ocher offeringes also vnto the LORDE the same daye. And whan the syue prynces of the philistynes had sene it, they departed agayne the same daye toward Ekron.

D These are the golden diseases, that the philistynes offred for a trespass offeringe vnto the LORDE: Asdod one, Gasa one: Ascalon one, Gath one, and Ekron one: and golden myce, acordynge to the nombre of all the cities of the philistynes amonge the syue prynces, from the walled cite vnto the vylage, and vnto the greate playne felde, wher vpon they set the Arke of the LORDE (which was) vnto this daye vpon the felde of Josia the Beth Semite.

And certayne of Beth Semes were slaine because they had sene y Arke of the LORDE, and he slewe fiftie thousande and seuentye men of the people. Then mourned the people, because the LORDE had done so greate a slaughter in the people. And the men at Beth Semes sayde: Who maye stode before the LORDE so holy a God? And to whos shal he go fro vs? And they sent messengers to y inhabitants of Axiath Jearim, sayenge: The philistynes haue brought the Arke of God agayne, come downe, & fetch it vp vnto you.

The VII. Chapter.

So the men of Biriath Jearim came downe, & fetched vp the Arke of the LORD, & brought it in to the house of Abinadab at Gibeon, & they consecrated Eleazar his sonne, & he might kepe the Arke. And fro the daye that the Arke of the LORD abode at Biriath Jearim, the tyme extended forth so longe tyll it came to twentye yeares: and all the house of Israel wepte after the LORD.

But Samuel sayde vnto all the house of Israel: If ye turne you withall youre heart vnto the LORD, then put awaye from you the straunge goddes and Astaroth, and directe youre heart vnto the LORD, and serue him onely, so shall he deliuer you out of the hande of the philistynes. Then the childre of Israel put awaye Baalim and Astaroth from them, and serued the LORD onely.

Samuel sayde: Gather all Israel together vnto Mizpa, that I maye praye for you vnto the LORD. And they came together vnto Mizpa, and drinke water, & poured it out before the LORD, and fasted the same daye, and there they sayde: We haue sinned vnto the LORD. So Samuel iudged the children of Israel at Mizpa.

But when the philistynes herde that the children of Israel were come together vnto Mizpa, the prynces of the philistynes were vp against Israel. When the childre of Israel herde that, they were afrayed of the philistynes, & sayde vnto Samuel: Ceasse not to crye vnto the LORD our God for vs, & he maie helpe vs out of the hande of the philistynes.

Samuel toke a fat lambe, & offered an whole burnt offering vnto the LORD, & cried vnto the LORD for Israel, and the LORD herde him. And whyle Samuel was offeringe the burnt sacrifice, the philistynes came to fight agaynst Israel. But the LORD thondred a thonder vpon the philistynes the same daye, & discomfited the, so that they were smytte before Israel. The wente the men of Israel forth, & chased the philistynes, & smote them till vnder Beth Car. Then toke Samuel a stone, & set it vp betwene Mizpa & Sen, & called it the helpe stone, & sayde: Hither to hath the LORD helpe vs. Thus were the philistynes broughte downe, & came nomore within the border of Israel. And the hande of the LORD was against the philistynes, as longe as Samuel liued.

So Israel gat the cities agayne, that the philistynes had conquered, fro Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders therof, those did Israel rescue out of the hande of the philistynes.

So Israel gat the cities agayne, that the philistynes had conquered, fro Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders therof, those did Israel rescue out of the hande of the philistynes.

So Israel gat the cities agayne, that the philistynes had conquered, fro Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders therof, those did Israel rescue out of the hande of the philistynes.

The viij. Chap.

nes: Israel had peace with the Ammonites. Samuel iudged Israel as longe as he liued, & wrote aboute euery yeare vnto Bethel & Gilgal & Mizpa: & wha he had iudged Israel in all these places, he came agayne vnto Ramath, for there was his house, & there he iudged Israel, & builded an altare there vnto the LORD.

The VIII. Chapter.

When Samuel waxed olde, he set his sonnes to be iudges ouer Israel. His firstborne sonne was called Joel, & the secōde Abia, & they were iudges at Bersaba. Nevertheless his sonnes walked not in his wayes, but enclined vnto conuetousnes, & toke gistes, & mistreated the lawe. Then all the Elders in Israel gathered the selues together, & came to Ramath vnto Samuel, & said vnto him: Beholde, thou art waxen olde, & thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes, & set a tyme now ouer vs therfore, to iudge vs, as all thy brethren haue. The was Samuel displeased wha they sayde: Geue vs a tynge, to iudge as. And Samuel prayed before the LORD.

The LORD saide vnto Samuel: Harken vnto the voyce of the people in all that they haue sayde vnto the. For they haue not refused the, but me, & I shulde not be kinge ouer them. They do vnto the as they haue done euery sence the daie that I broughte them out of the lande of Egypt vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes. Her is now therfore vnto their voyce. Retrefye vnto them, and shewe them the lawe of the tynge that shall raigne ouer them.

And Samuel tolde all the wordes of the LORD vnto the people, that requyred a tynge of him. This shal be the lawe of the tynge that I shal raigne ouer you: No sonnes shal he take for his charettes, and for horsmen to runne before his charettes, and to be rulers & captaynes, to be plowmen to tyll his lande, and to be reapers in his harvest, and to make his harness, and soch thinges as belongeth to his charettes. As for yb doughters, he shal take the, to be Apotecaries, cokers and bakers: Your best lōde and vynyardes, and oyle gardens shal he take, and geue vnto his seruantes: Of youre sedes also and vinyardes shal he take the Tithes, & geue vnto his childerlaynes and seruantes. And youre seruantes and youre maydes, and youre best yonge men, and youre asses shal he take, and do his busynesse withall. Of youre flockes shal he take the Tithes, and ye shal be his seruantes. When ye shal crye then at the same tyme ouer youre tynge, whom ye haue chosen you, the LORD shal not heare you at the same tyme. Nevertheless the people refused it.

The i. boke of the kynges.

heare the voyce of Samuel, and sayde: Not so, but there shall be a tynge ouer vs, & we maye be as all other heithen, & a tynge maie iudge vs, & go forth before vs, and gouerne our warres. The perturbed Samuel vnto all the people sayde, & tolde it before the eares of the LORD. The LORD sayde vnto the: Herken thou vnto their voyce, and make them a tynge. And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: So youre waye euery one vnto his citie.

The IX. Chapter.

There was a man of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeor, the sonne of Bertheiah, & sonne of Apiah, the sonne of a man of Jemini, a valiant man, which had a sonne named Saul, which was so goodly a yonge man, that there was not a goodlier amonge the children of Israel, higher by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had lost his asses, and he sayde vnto Saul his sonne: Take one of the children with the, & the vp, go thy waye, and seeke the asses. And he wente his waye thorow mount Ephraim, and thorow the lōde of Solisa, and founde them not. They wente thorow the lōde of Saalim, & there they were not. They passed thorow the lōde of Jemini, & founde the not. But wha they came in to the lōde of Zaph, Saul sayde vnto the childer that was with him: Come, let vs go home agayne, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for vs. He sayde: Beholde, here is an honorable man of God in this cite, all that he sayeth, cometh to passe. Let vs go thither now, peradventure he maye shewe vs our waye which we go. But Saul sayde vnto his childer: Though we shulde go, what bringe we the man? For the bryd is gone out of the water, and els haue we no giste to bringe the man of God, what haue we? The childer answered agayne, and sayde: Beholde, I haue the fourth parte of a syluer Syckle by me, & same wyll we geue the man of God, that he maye shewe vs our waye.

As for tyme in Israel, when a man wente to afe counsell at the LORD, he sayde: Come, let vs go to the Seer: for they that now are called prophetes, were called Seers afore tyme. Saul sayde vnto his childer: Thou hast well spoken, come let vs go. And when they wente vnto the cite where the man of God was, and came vp to the cite, they founde damfells which were gone forth to drawe water, vnto them they sayde: Is the Seer here? They answered them and sayde: Yee. Beholde, he is there, make haist, for he came in to the cite this daye, because the people haue a sacrifice to do to daye in the hye place. When ye come in the cite, ye shal fynde him, & fore he go vp to the hye place for to eate: for the people wyll not eate tyll he come. For he shall blesse the offeringe, then shal they eate that are called. Therfore go ye waie vp, for enow now shal ye fynde him.

And when they came vp to the cite, and were even in the myddes of the cite, beholde, Samuel came forth in their waye, and wolde go vp to the hye place. But the LORD had opened Samuels eare the daye afore, or euer Saul came, and sayde: Tomorrow aboute this tyme wyll I sende a man vnto the out of the lōde of Ben Jamin, him shalt thou anoynte to be pryncer ouer my people of Israel, that he maye deliuer my people from the hande of the philistynes: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their crye is come before me. Now when Samuel behelde Saul, the LORD answered him: lo, & is the man of whom I tolde the, that he shulde raigne ouer my people.

Then came Saul vnto Samuel vnder the gate, and sayde: Tell me (I praye the) where is the Seers house? Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the Seer. Go vp before me vnto the hye place: for ye shall eate with me to daye, tomorrow wyll I lett the go, and all that is in thine heart, wyll I tell the: and as for the Asses which were lost the dayes ago, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whom shal belonge all that is pleasaunt in Israel? Shall it not belonge vnto the, and to all thy fathers house? Saul answered: Am not I a sonne of Jemini, & am of the smallest trybe, and my kynred the least amonge all the kynreds of the trybe of Ben Jamin? Whyspeakest thou so the vnto me? Samuel toke Saul & his childer, & broughte them in to the perler where they shulde eate, and satt them aboue those that were called, of whom there were aboute a thirtie men. And Samuel sayde vnto the cokers: Geue me the porcion that I gave the, and had the kepe it by the. Then the cokers toke vp a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saul. And (Samuel) sayde: Beholde, this is left, laye it before the, and eate: for it was kipte for the agaynst this tyme, when I called the people. Thus Saul ate with Samuel the same daye.

And when they were gone downe from the hye place vnto the cite, he talked with Saul in the chamber. And they rose vpe early on the morow. And when the morninge sprynge arose, Samuel called Saul in the chamber, and sayde: Up, & I maye sende

the thy waye. And Saul gat him vp: & they both wete fowth together, he and Samuel. And whan they came downe to the ende of the cite, Samuel sayde vnto Saul: Speake vnto þe childe, that he go on forth before vs, but stode thou styll now, that I maie shewe the what God hath sayde.

The X. Chapter.

Then toke Samuel a glasse of oyle, and poured it vps his heade, and kysed him, and sayde: Seist thou that the LORDE hath anoynted the, to be the paince ouer his enheritaunce? Whan thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men besyde Rachels graue in the coast of Ben Jamin at Bethleh, which shal saie vnto the: The asses are founde, whom thou wentest to seke: and beholde, thy father hath put the asses out of his mynde, and taketh thought for the, and sayeth: What shall I do for my sonne?

And whan thou goest on forth from thence, thou shalt come to the Oke of Thabor, there shall thre men fynde the, which go vp vnto God towarde Bethel: one beareth thre kiddes, another thre loanes of bried the thyde a bottel with wyne: and they shall salute the, and geue the two loanes, which thou shalt take of their hande.

After that shalt thou come to the hyll of God, where the Philistynes watch is: and whan thou comest there in to the cite, there shall mete the a company of prophetes commynge downe from the hye place, and before them a psaltery, and tabret, a pype and a harpe, and they them selues prophecience. And the spere of the LORDE shall come vpon the, and thou shalt prophecy with them, and shalt be chaunged in to another man.

Whan these tokens now come vnto the, then do what so euer cometh vnder thyne hande: for God is with the. Thou shalt go downe before me vnto Gilgall: Beholde, thither wyl I come downe vnto the, that thou mayest offre burnt offeringes and be offerynges. Seuen dayes shalt thou tary till I come to the, and shewe the what thou shuldest do. And whan he turned his shulder to go from Samuel, God chaunged him another hert, and all these tokens came the same daye.

And whan they came vnto the hill, beholde, there met him a company of prophetes: and the spere of God came vpon him, so that he prophecied amonge them. But whan they which knewe him before, sawe him that he prophecied with the prophetes, they sayde all amonge them selues: What is hapened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And one of them was there, answered and sayde: Who is their father? Hereof came the proverbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And whan he had left of prophecience, he came vnto the hyll.

Sauls vncle sayde vnto him and to his childe: Whither wente ye? They answered to seke the asses. And whan we sawe that they were awaye, we came vnto Samuel. Then sayde Sauls vncle: Tell me, what sayde Samuel vnto you? Saul answered his vncle: He tolde vs, þe asses were founde. One of þe kyngdome he tolde him nothinge what Samuel had sayde.

Samuel called the people together vnto the LORDE to Mizpa, and spake vnto the children of Israel: Thus saierth þe LORDE the God of Israel: I broughte Israel out of Egipte, and deliuered you from the hande of þe Egiptians, and from the hande of all the kyngdomes that oppressed you. But now haue ye refused y^e God, which hath helpe you out of all youre sorowes and troubles, & ye haue saide vnto him: Set a kinge ouer vs. Well, stonde ye now before þe LORDE according to youre trybes and kynreds.

Now whan Samuel had broughte forth all the trybes of Israel, the trybe of Ben Jamin was taken. And whan he had broughte forth the trybe of Ben Jamin with his kynreds, the kynred of Marri was takē, & Saul the sonne of Cis was takē. And they sought him, but they founde him not.

Then arood they further at the LORDE, whether he was for to come thither. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath by him selfe amonge þe vessels. Then ranne they thither, and fetched him. And whan he stode amonge the people, he was hygher by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayde vnto all the people: There se ye him whom the LORDE hath chosen, for in all the people there is none like him. Then gaue all the people a shout, and sayde: God saue the new kynge.

Samuel tolde the people all the lawe of the kyngdome, and wrote it in a boke, and layd it before the LORDE. And Samuel let all the people go, euery one to his awne house. And Saul wente home also vnto Gibea, and there wente with him one parte of the hoost, whose herres God had touched. But the childe of Belial sayde: What shal this felowe helpe vs, and despyed him, & broughte him no presente. But he made him as though he herde it not.

The XI. Chapter.

Ahas of Ammonite wete vp & layd siege vnto Jabes in Gilead. And all the men of Jabes sayde vnto Ahas: Be at one with vs, & we wyl serue the. But Ahas of Ammonite answered them: I wil make a covenaut with you, of this condicion, that I maye thrust out all youre right eyes, and put you to shame amonge all Israel. Then sayde all the Elders of Jabes vnto him: Geue vs seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messaungers into all þe coastes of Israel: If there be then no sauoure, we wyl go forth vnto the.

So the messaungers came vnto Gibea of Saul, and spake this before the eares of the people. Then all þe people lifte vp their voyce, and wepte. And beholde, Saul came after the open out of the felde, and sayde: What ayleth the people that they wepe? So they tolde him the earande of the men of Jabes. Then came the spere of God vpon him, whan he had herde these wordes, and his wrath was sore moued, and he toke a couple of oxen, and hewed them in sunder, and sent them in to all the coastes of Israel by the messaungers, sayenge: Who so euer goeth nor forth after Saul and Samuel, his oxen shalbe thus dealte withall.

Then fell the feare of the LORDE vpon the people, so that they wente forth like as one man, and they were tolde at Baseth, and of the childe of Israel there were thre hundred thousand men, and thirtie thousande of the children of Juda. And they spake vnto the messaungers that were come: Saye thus to the men of Jabes in Gilead: Tomorrow shal ye haue helpe, whan þe Sonne is at the whotest. Whan þe messaungers came and tolde this to the men of Jabes, they were glad. And the men of Jabes sayde: Tomorrow wyl we come forth vnto you, that ye maye do vnto vs, what so euer

it pleasech you. And on þe nexte morow Saul set the people in thre partes, and came into the hoost aboute the mornyng watch, and smote the Ammonites tyll the daye was at the whotest. As for those þe remayned, they were so scared, that two of them abode not together.

Then sayde the people vnto Samuel: Where are they that sayde: Shulde Saul raigne ouer vs? Deliyer vs here the men, that we maye put them to death. But Saul sayde: There shal noman dye this daye, for to daye hath the LORDE geuen health in Israel. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Come, let vs go vnto Gilgall, and renue the kyngdome there. Then wente all the people vnto Gilgall, and there they made Saul kinge before the LORDE at Gilgal, and offered deerofferinges before the LORDE. And Saul with all the men of Israel reioysed there greatly.

The XII. Chapter.

Samuel sayde vnto all Israel: Beholde, I haue hekened vnto youre voyce in all that ye sayde vnto me, and haue made a kynge ouer you. And now lo, the re goeth youre kynge before you. As for me, I am waxen olde and graye heered, and my somes are with you: and I haue gone before you from my youth vp vnto this daye. Beholde, here am I: answer ye agaynst me before the LORDE and his anoynted, yf I haue taken eny mans oxe or ass, yf I haue done eny man violence or wronge, yf I haue oppressed eny mā, yf I haue receaued a gifte of eny mans hande, and kepte it secretly, I wil restore it you agayne.

They saide: Thou hast done vs nether violence nor wronge, nether oppressed, nor taken ought of eny mans hande. He sayde: The LORDE be witnesse agaynst you, and so be his anoynted this daye, that ye haue founde nothinge in my hande. They saide: Yee they shalbe witnesses. And Samuel sayde vnto the people: The LORDE which made Moyses and Aaron, and broughte youre fathers out of the londe of Egipte (is here present.) Seode forth now therfore, that I maye iudge you before the LORDE ouer the righteounes of the LORDE, which he hath done for you and youre fathers.

Whan Jacob was come in to Egipte, youre fathers cryed vnto the LORDE. And he sent Moyses and Aaron to brynge youre fathers out of Egipte, and to cause them for to dwell in this place.

But whan they forgat the LORDE their God, he solde them vnder the power of Sisera, the captaune at Hazor: and vnder the power of the Philistynes: and vnder the power of the kinge of the Moabites, which foughte agaynst them. But they cried vnto the LORDE, and sayde: We haue synned, in that we haue forsaken the LORDE, and serued Baalim and Astaroth. But now deliuer vs from the hande of oure enemies, and we wyl serue the. Then the LORDE sent Jerubaal, Bedan, Jephthac, and Samuel, and deliuered you from youre enemies rounde aboute, and caused you to dwell safe.

But whan ye sawe that Nabal the kynge of the children of Ammon came agaynst you: ye sayde vnto me: Not thou, but a kynge shal raigne ouer vs, where as notwithstandinge youre God was youre kynge. Now, there haue ye youre kynge, whos ye haue chosen and desired: for lo, the LORDE hath set a kynge ouer you. If ye shal feare the LORDE now, and serue him, and hearken vnto his voice, and not be disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, then shall both ye and youre kynge that raigneth ouer you, folowe the LORDE youre God. But if ye hearken not vnto the voice of the LORDE, but be disobedient vnto his mouth, then shal the hande of the LORDE be agaynst you, and agaynst youre fathers.

Secunde forth now also, and beholde this greate thinge, that the LORDE shal do before youre eyes. Is not now the wheate harvest? Yet wyl I call vpon the LORDE, so that he shal cause it thonder and rayne, that ye shall knowe and se the greate euell, which ye haue done in the sight of the LORDE, in that ye haue desired to haue a kynge.

And whan Samuel called vpon the LORDE, the LORDE caused it to thonder and raine the same daye.

Then all the people feared the LORDE greatly and Samuel, and they sayde all vnto Samuel: Praise thou vnto the LORDE thy God for thy seruantes, that we dye not: for beside oure synnes we haue done this euell also, that we haue desired vnto vs a kynge. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Feare not, ye haue done all this euell in dede. Neuertheles be parte not backe from the LORDE, but serue the LORDE with all youre hert, and go not asyde after vanite, for it profyteth you nothinge, and can not deliuer you, in so much as it is but a vayne thinge. For the LORDE shal not forsake his people because of his greate names sake: for the LORDE hath begonne to make you a people vnto him selfe. But God forbyd that I shulde synne vnto the LORDE, to cease from prayinge for you, and from teachinge you the good and righteous waye. Feare ye the LORDE, and serue him faithfully with all ye haue: for ye haue sene, how greate thinges he doth vnto you. But if ye do wickedly, both ye and youre kynge shal perishe.

The XIII. Chapter.

Saul had bene kynge one yere, and whan he had raigned ouer Israel two yeres, he chose him thre thousande me out of Israel: two thousande were with Saul at Michmas vpon the mount of Bethel, and one thousande with Jonathan at Gibeon of Beniamin. As for the other people, he let them go every one vnto his toun. But Jonathan smote the Philistynes in their awne watch, which was at Gibeon. The came to the Philistynes eares. And Saul caused to blowe the trompes in all the lande, to saye: Let the Hebrues heare. And all Israel herde saye: Saul hath smitten the Philistynes watch, for Israel stande before the Philistynes. And all the people cried after Saul vnto Gilgal.

Then the Philistynes gathered themselves together to fighte with Israel, thirte hundred charrettes, sixe thousande horsmen, and other people besyde, in nombre as the sande by the see shore, and wente vp, and pitched at Michmas on the eastsyde of Bethaven. Whan the men of Israel sawe that mystrone laye vpon the neckes of the (for the people was come therto) they crope in to caves and denues, in to rockes, and holes and holes. But the Hebrues wente ouer Jordan to the lande of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul he was yet at Gilgal, and all the people were saynt harted after him. Then taried he ten dayes accordinge to the tyme apointed of Samuel. And whan Samuel came vnto Gilgal, the people were scattered abroad from him. Then sayde Saul: Bring me hither a burnt offeringe and deed offeringe. And he offered a burnt offeringe. But whan he had made an ende of the burnt offeringe, beholde, Samuel came. Then wente Saul forth to meete him, that he mighte salute him.

But Samuel sayde: What hast thou done? Saul answered: I sawe that the people was scattered abroad from me, and thou camest not in due season: and the Philistynes were gathered together at Michmas. Then sayde J. Now shall the Philistynes come downe to me vnto Gilgal, and I haue not in the face of the LORDE: so I boldened myselfe, and offered a burnt offeringe.

Samuel sayde vnto Saul: Thou hast done foolishly, and not kept the commandement of the LORDE thy God, which he commanded the. For if thou haddest not done this, he had prospered thy kyngdome vpon Israel for ever: but now shall not thy kyngdome continue. The LORDE hath soughte him out a man after his owne hert: him hath the LORDE commanded to be pryncer ouer his people, for thou hast not kept the LORDE commanded. And Samuel arose, and wente vp from Gilgal vnto Gibeon of Beniamin.

And Saul nombred the people that was founde with him, vpon a sixe hundred men. Saul and his sonne Jonathan, and the people that was with them, taried at Gibeon of Beniamin: but the Philistynes had pitched their tentes at Michmas. And out of the host of the Philistynes there wente thre bondes of men to destroye: one turned the waye toward Ephraim in to the lande of Saul: another turned toward the waye of Bethoron: the thirde turned toward the waye, that reacheth to the valley of Zeboim vnto the wyl-

But there was not a smith founde in all the lande of Israel: for the Philistynes thoughte: The Hebrues mighte happily make swordes and speares. And all Israel were sayne to go downe to the Philistynes, whan any man had a plowshare, a mattock, an axe, or a sythe so sharpe: and the edges of the plowshares, and mattocks, and sickles, and axes, were laboured, and the poyntes blunted. Now whan the daye of the battayll came, there was neither swerde ner speare founde in the hande of all the people, that was with Saul and Jonathan: but for Saul and Jonathan his sonne there was somewhat founde. And the Philistynes watche were out ouer by Michmas.

The XIII. Chapter.

It fortuned at the same tyme, Jonathan sayde vnto his lad which was his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go o-uer to the Philistynes watch, and I lyeth above, and he tolde not his father. Saul dwelt at the ende of Gibeon vnder a pomegranate tre, which was in the suburbs. And the people that were by him, were vpon a sixe hundred men. And Abia the sonne of Achitob the brother of Jacob, the sonne of Phineas, and sonne of Eli, the prest of the LORDE at Silo, waye the quabody cote. But the people knewe not that Jonathan was gone.

Between the passages where Jonathan soughte to go ouer vnto the Philistynes watch, there were two hye rockes, the one on the one syde, the other on the other: the one was called Bozez, the other Senné. And the one laye on the north syde toward Michmas, and the other on the south syde toward Gaba. And Jonathan sayde vnto his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go euer to the watch of these vncircumcised, peradventure the LORDE shal worke with vs. For it is no harde matter for the LORDE to helpe by many or by fewe. Then answered him his wapen bearer: Do all that is in thine hert, go on thy waie, beholde, I am with the, euen as thine hert wyl.

Jonathan sayde: Well than, whan we are gone ouer to the men, and come within the sighte of them, if they saye: Stande styll, tyll we come to you, then wyl we stande styll in oure place, and not go vp to them. But if they saye: Come vnto vs, we wyl go vp to them, the hath the LORDE deliuered them in to oure hande, and this shal be a token for vs. Now whan they came both in the sighte of the Philistynes watch, the Philistynes sayde: Se, the Hebrues are gone out of their holes, that they were crept in to. And the men in the watch answered Jonathan and his wapen bearer, and sayde: Come vp to vs, and we wyl teach you what the matter is. Then sayde Jonathan to his wapen bearer: Come vp after me, the LORDE hath deliuered them in to Israels hande. And Jonathan claime vp with handes and feete, and his wapen bearer after him. And Jonathan smote them downe before him, and his wapen bearer slewe behynde him, so that the first slaughter that Jonathan and his wapen bearer dyd, was vpon a twenty men, with in the length of halue an aker of lande, which is a pare of oren maye tyll in one daye.

And there came a fearfulness and flighte in the host vpon the felde, and amonge all the people of the watch: and vpon the destroyers there came a fearfulness also and flighte, so that the lande was in a rumoure, and there came a flighte thow God. And Sauls watchmen at Gibeon of Beniamin sawe, that the multitude gat them awaye, and ranne to and fro.

Saul sayde vnto the people that was with him: Tell and se which of vs is gone awaye. And whan they nombred, beholde, Jonathan and his wapen bearer was not there.

The i. boke of the kynges.

Then saide Saul vnto Abia: Brynge hither the Arke of God (for at that tyme was the Arke of God with the children of Israel.) And whyle Saul was yet speakyng to the priest, the multitude in the Philistynes hoost gat vp, ranne, and was greete. And Saul sayde vnto the priest: Withdrowe thine hande. And Saul cried, and all the people that was with him, and came to the battayll. And beholde, every mans swerde was agaynst another, and there was a very great murther.

The hebrues also that were with 3 philistynes afore, and had gone vp with them in the hoost on every syde, ioyned them selues vnto Israel which were with Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israel which had hyd the selues vpon mount Ephraim, whan they herde that the Philistynes fled, folowed after them in the battayll. Thus 3 LORDE helped Israel at that tyme, and 3 battayll lasted vnto Bethauen.

And whan the men of Israel came forth, Saul charged all the people the same daye, and sayde: Cursed be every man, which eateth bred vntyll euen, that I maye auenge me on myne enemies. Then all the people fasted no bred. And all the people of the londe came in to the wodd. But there laye hony vpon the felde: and whan the people came in to the wodd, beholde, the hony flowd, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hande: for the people were afraied because of the ooch. As for Jonathas he had not herde, that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staff that he had in his hande, and dypped the ende of it in 3 hony cymbe, and turned his hande to his mouth, and his eyes were lighted.

Then answered one of the people, and sayde: Thy father hath charged the people, and sayde: Cursed be every man that eateth oughe of this daye. Nevertheless the people were saynt. Then sayde Jonathas: My father hath troubled the londe: Se how lighted myne eyes are become, because I haue taisted a litle of this hony. If the people this daie had eate of the spoyle of their enemies that they founde, the slaughter shulde hane bene greater agaynst the Philistynes. Yet sith they the Philistynes the same daye fro Michmas vnto Aialon, and the people were very weery.

And 3 people turned to the spoyle, and toke shepe and oren, and calues, and slew them vpon the earth, and ate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul. Behol de, the people synne agaynst the LORDE, that they eate bloude. He sayde: He haue me well: roll vnto me now a greates stone. And Saul sayde morouer: Go abrode amonge the people, and saye vnto them, that every one bryngenic his ore and his shepe, and slaye them here, that ye maye eate, and not to synne agaynst the LORDE with eatyng of bloude. Then broughte all the people every one his ore with his hande the same night, and slew them there. And Saul buyded an altare vnto 3 LORDE. This is the first altare that he buyded vnto the LORDE.

And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistynes, by night, and spoyle them, yll it be cleare moynyng, that we let none escape. They answered: Do what so ever please the. But the priest sayde: Let vs goyn here vnto God. And Saul axed of God. Shal I go downe here after 3 Philistynes: and wilt thou deliuer the in to Israels hande? Nevertheless he answered him not at that tyme.

Then sayde Saul: Let all the armyes of the people come hither, and make search and se, in whom is this synne at this tyme. For as truly as God the Sauoure of Israel lyeth, and though it be in my sonne Jonathas, he shal dye. And no man answered him of all the people. And he sayde vnto all Israel: Dye on the one syde, I and my sonne Jonathas wyl be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as it please the. And Saul sayde vnto the LORDE the God of Israel: Do thou that right is. The was Jonathas and Saul taken: but the people wente forth free. Saul sayde: Cast the lot ouer me and my sonne Jonathas. So Jonathas was take. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas: Tell me, what hast thou done? Jonathas tolde him, and sayde: I easted a litle hony with the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, must I dye therfore? The sayde Saul: God do this and that vnto me, Jonathas thou must dye the death.

But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shal de Jonathas dye, that hath done so great health in Israel this night? God forbid. As truly as the LORDE lyeth, there shal not one heer of his heade fall vpon 3 earth: for with God hath he wroughte at this tyme. So the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. Then wente Saul vp from the Philistynes: and the Philistynes wente into their place.

But whan Saul had equered the kynge ouer Israel, he foughte agaynst all the armyes rounde aboute, agaynst the Moabites, agaynst the childre of Ammon, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kynge of Zoba, agaynst 3 Philistynes: and whither so ever he turned him, he gat 3 victory. And he made an hoost, and smote 3 Amalechites, and deliuered Israel from the hande of all those that spoiled them.

Saul had these sonnes: Jonathas, Isui, and Malchisua. And these were 3 names of his two doughters: the first borne Merob, and 3 yongest Michol. And Sauls wife was called Abinoam, the doughter of Ahimaas. And his chiefe captaynes name was Abner, the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. Cis was 3 father of Saul. But Ner 3 father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel.

There was a mightie sore warre agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Saul lyued. And where Saul sawe a man that was stronge and mere for 3 warre, he toke him to him.

The XV. Chapter.

Amuel sayde vnto Saul: The LORDE sent me to anoynte the for to be kynge ouer his people of Israel: heare now therfore the voyce of the wordes of the LORDE. Thus sayeth 3 LORDE Zebaoth: I haue remembred what Amalek dyd vnto Israel, and how he layed wayte for him in 3 waye, whan he wente out of Egipte: Go 3 waye now therfore, and smyte the Amalechites, and damne them with all that they haue, and spare him not: but slaye both man and woman, children and sucklynges, oren and shepe, Camels and asses. Saul commanded the people the same, and nombred them at Talaim, two hundred thousande foremen, and ten thousande men of Juda.

And whan Saul came to the cite of the Amalechites, he set an hynder watch by the ryuer, and sayde vnto 3 Benites: Get you hence, departe, and go downe from 3 Amalechites, 3 I smyte you not with them, for ye shewed mercy vnto all the children of Israel, whan they departed out of Egipte. So the Benites gat them awaye from amonge the Amalechites.

Then smote Saul the Amalechites from Heula vnto Sur (which lyeth ouer agaynst Egipte) and toke Agag the kynge of 3 Amalechites alyue, and dammed all 3 people to the edge of the swerde. Nevertheless Saul and the people spared Agag, and the shepe and oren 3 were good and fat, and the lambes, and all that was good, and wolde not damne the: but toke what was foule and nothyng worth, that they dammed.

The xv. Chap. Fo. xxxij.

Then came the worde of the LORDE vnto Samuel, and sayde: Repenteth me that I made Saul kynge, for he hath turned him selfe backe fro me, and not confirmed my wordes. Therefore was Samuel angrie, and cried vnto the LORDE all that night. And Samuel gat him vp early, that he might mete Saul in 3 moynyng. And it was tolde him, that Saul was come vnto Carmel, and had set him vp a pilier, and was gone aboute, and come downe to Gilgall.

Now whan Samuel came to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou vnto 3 LORDE, I haue persourmed the worde of 3 LORDE. Samuel answered: What crye is this then of shepe in myne eares, and the crye of oren which I heare?

Saul sayde: They haue broughte them from the Amalechites: for the people spared the best shepe and oren for the offeringe of 3 LORDE thy God, the other haue we dammed. Nevertheless Samuel answered Saul: Let me tell the what 3 LORDE hath sayde vnto me this night. He sayde: Saye on. Samuel sayde: Whan thou wast but small in thine awne eyes, wast thou not 3 heade amonge the trybes of Israel: and the LORDE anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel: and 3 LORDE sent 3 in to the waye, and sayde: Go 3 waite and damne the synners the Amalechites, and fighte agaynst them, yll thou haue utterly destroyed the: Wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, but hast turned thy selfe to the spoyle, and done euell in the sighte of the LORDE?

Saul answered Samuel: Yee I haue hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, and haue gone the waye that 3 LORDE sent me, and broughte Agag the kynge of the Amalechites, and dammed the Amalechites: but 3 people haue take of the spoyle, shepe and oren, and 3 best amonge the dammed, to offer vnto 3 LORDE thy God in Gilgall. Samuel saide: Hath the LORDE pleasure in sacrifices and burnt offeringes, as in obeynge the voyce of the LORDE? Beholde, obedience is better then offeringe, and to hearken is better then the fat of rammes. For disobedience is as 3 synne of witchcraft, and rebellion is as the blasphemy of Idoatrye. In so much now as thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, he hath refused the also, that thou shuldest not be kynge.

Then sayde Saul vnto Samuel: I haue synned, 3 I haue transgressed the commandment of the LORDE and thy worde: for I was afraied of the people, and hearkened unto their voyce. And now forgewe me my synne, & retorne with me, that I maye wor- shippe y^e LORDE. Samuel saide vnto Saul: I wil not turne backe with y^e, for thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, and the LORDE hath refused the also, y^e thou shuldest not be kyng in Israel. And whan Samuel turned him backe to go his waye, he gat him by y^e edge of his garment, & rete it. Then sayde Samuel vnto him: The LORDE hath rente the kyngdome of Israel from y^e this daye, & geuen it vnto y^e neyghbo^r, which is better then thou. The ouerwynner in Israel also shal not lye, nether shal he repent: for he is no man, that he shulde repent.

G He sayde: I haue synned, yet honoure me now before the Elders of my people and before Israel, and turne backe with me, that I maye worshippe the LORDE thy God. So Samuel turned agayne after Saul, that Saul mighte worshippe the LORDE. But Samuel sayde: Bynge me hither Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag wente vnto him tenderly. And Agag saide: Thus departeth the bytternesse of death. Samuel sayde: Like as thy swerde hath made women childlesse, so shal y^e mother also be with out children amonge women. So Samuel hewed Agag in peces before y^e LORDE in Gilgall.

And Samuel departed vnto Ramath. But Saul wente vp to his house at Gibea. And Samuel sawe Saul no more vnto the daye of his death. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because it repented the LORDE, that he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel. The XVI. Chapter.

AND y^e LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: How longe mournest thou for Saul, whom I haue refused, that he shulde not be kyng ouer Israel? Fyll thine home with oyle, go thy waye, I wyll sende the to Isai the Bethleemite: for amonge his sonnes haue I prouyded me a kyng. But Samuel sayde: How shal I go? Saul shal perceaue it, and shal slaye me. The LORDE sayde: Take the a calfe from the droue, & saye: I am come to do sacrifice vnto y^e LORDE. And thou shalt call Isai to y^e sacrifice, so shall I tell the what thou shalt do, that thou mayest anoynte me him, whom I shall shewe the. Samuel dyd as the LORDE sayde, and came to Bethleem. Then were the Elders of the cite astonnyed, and wente forth to mete him, and sayde: Is thy commynge peaceable? He sayde: Yee. I am come to do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Sanctifye youre selues, & come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Isai and his sonnes, and called them to the sacrifice.

Now whā they came in, he behelde Eliab, & thoughte, whether he shulde be his anoynted before the LORDE. But y^e LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: loke not vpon his countenance, ner vpon the tallnesse of his person. For I iudge not after the sighte of man. A man hath respect vnto the thinge that is before his eyes, but the LORDE loketh vpon the hert. Then Isai called Abinadab, & broughte him before Samuel. And he sayde: This hath not the LORDE chosen. Then Isai broughte Samma. But he sayde: This also hath not the LORDE chosen. Then broughte Isai his seven sonnes before Samuel. Nevertheless Samuel saide vnto Isai: The LORDE hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: There is yet one y^e leest of all, and beholde, he kepeth the shepe. The sayde Samuel vnto Isai: Sende & call him to be fetcht, for we will not sit downe at the table, vntyll he come. Then sent he, & caused him be broughte. And he was well coloured wth sayre eyes & of a bentyfull countenance. And the LORDE saide: Aryse, and anoynte him, that is he.

Thē toke Samuel his oyle home, & anoynted him amonge his brethre. And the spere of the LORDE came vpp^{er} David fro^m y^e daye forth. As for Samuel, he gat him vp, & wente vnto Ramath.

But the spere of the LORDE departed from Saul, and an euell spere from y^e LORDE vexed him. Then sayde Sauls seruantes vnto him: Beholde, an euell spere from God vexeth the. Let oure lord saie vnto his seruantes which stonde before him, y^e they seke a man which can playe vpon the harpe, and instrumente, that whan the euell spere of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe wth his hande, to ease the withall. Then sayde Saul vnto his seruantes: Prouyde me a man that can playe well vpon the instrumente, & brynge him vnto me.

D Then answered one of the children, & sayde: Beholde, I sawe a sonne of Isai y^e Bethleemite, which can playe vpon the instrumente, an honest & valeaunt man, and one y^e hath vnderstodunge in matters, & is wel fauoured. The Saul sent messangers vnto Isai, saye- ge: Sende me David y^e sonne, which is with the shepe. Then toke Isai an asse wth bread, & a bottell wth wyne, and a kyd, and sent it vnto Saul by David his sonne. So David came to Saul, & stode before him, & he loued him well, and he became his wapen bearer. And Saul sente vnto Isai, saye ge: Let David remaine before me, for he hath founde fauor in my sighte. Now whan the spere of God came vpp^{er} Saul, David toke y^e harpe, & played wth his hande: so was Saul refreshed, & eased, & the euell spere departed from him.

The XVII. Chapter.

The philistynes gathered their hoost to y^e battayll, and came together to Socho in Iuda, & pitched their tentes betwene Socho & Aseta, at the ende of Damun. But Saul & the me of Israel came together, & pitched in the Oke valley, & prepared them selues to the battayll agaynst the philistynes. And the philistynes stode vpon a hyll on the one syde, and the Israelites vpon a hyll on the other syde, so that there was a valley betwene them.

Then stepte there forth from amonge the philistynes a stoute bolde man, named Goliath of Gath, sixe cubites and an hande burth hie, and had an helmet of stele on his heade, and a fast habergion vpon him, and the weight of his habergion was fyue thou sande Sicles of stele, and harnessse of stele had he vpon his legges, and a shyld of stele vpon his shoulders: and the shaft of his speare was like a weuers lome, and the yron of his speare had sixe hundred Sicles of yron, and his wapen bearer wente before him.

AND he stode and called vnto the hoost of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Wherefore are ye come forth to prepare youre selues to the battayll? Am not I a philistyne, and ye the seruantes of Saul? Chose one amonge you to come downe vnto me: yf he can fighte agaynst me and slaye me, then wil we be youre seruantes: but yf I can ouercome him and slaye him, then shal ye be oure seruantes, to do vs seruyce. And the philistyne sayde: I haue spokē disdainedly vnto the hoost of Israel this daye. Geue me one, and let v^s fighte together. Whan Saul and all Israel herde these wordes of y^e philistyne, they were astonnyed, and sore afayed.

But David was the sonne of a man of Ephrata of Bethleem Iuda, whose name was Isai, which had eight sonnes, and was an olde man in Sauls tyme, and was well strycken in age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai were gone with Saul to the battayll. And there names were these: Eliab the first borne, Abinadab the second, and Samma the thirde. But David was the yongest of all. So whan the thre eldest were gone with Saul to the battayll, David wente agayne from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethleem. But the philistyne stepte forth early in the mornynge and at even, and stode there fortye dayes.

Isai sayde vnto David his sonne: Take this Ephra of firmentye for thy brethien, and these ten loaves of bred (and runne to the hoost vnto thy brethien) & these ten new cheses, and brynge them to y^e captaigne, and loke how thy brethiende, whether it go well with them or no, and take what they byd the. But Saul and they, and all the men of Israel were in the Oke valley, and foughte agaynst the philistynes.

Then David gat him vpearly in the mornynge, and commytted the shepe to y^e keper, and toke his burthen, wente his waye, as Isai commaunded him, and came to the ten. And the hoost was gone forth, and had prepared them selues, and cried in the battayll: For Israel had set them selues in aray, and the philistynes were agaynst their hoost in their aray also.

Then lefte David the vessell that he bare, with the keper of the stuffe, and ranne to the hoost, and wente in, and saluted his brethien. And whyle he was yet talkynge with them, beholde, then came vp the stoute bolde man, whose name was Goliath, the philistyne of Gath, out of the philistynes hoost, and spake like as afore, and David herde it. But every man of Israel, whan he sawe the man, fled from him, and was sore afayed of him.

And every man in Israel sayde: Hane ye sene the man commynge vpe hither? For he is come vpe hither, to speake disdainedly vnto Israel. And who so euer smyteth him, him wyll the kyng make ryche, and geue him his daughter, and make his fathers house fre in Israel.

Then sayde David vnto the men that stode by him: What shalbe done to the man, that smyterth this philistyne, and turneth this shame awaye from Israel: For what is he this philistyne this vncircumcised, that defyeth the host of the lyvinge God: Then the people tolde him as afore. Thus shall it be done vnto the, in that smyterth him. And Eliab his greater brother herde him talke with the men, and was very wroth agaynst David, and sayde: Wherfore art thou come downe: and why hast thou left a fewe shepe in the wyldernes: I knowe thy presumptuousnesse well ynough, and the wickednesse of thine hert: for thou art come downe to se the battayll. David answered: What haue I done now: Is there not an occasion: And he turned him selfe from him vnto another, and spake accordinge as he had sayde before. Then the people answered him like as afore.

The i. boke of the kynges.

And whan they herde the wordes which David sayde, they tolde them in the presence of Saul, and he caused him be fetched. And David sayde vnto Saul: Let no man here be discouraged because of him. Thy seruant shall go, and fighte with the philistyne. Neuertheles Saul sayde vnto David: Thou art not able to go agaynst this philistyne to fighte with him, for thou art but a childe: but this is a man of warre from his yowth vp.

David sayde vnto Saul: Thy seruant kepte his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon and a bere, and caried awaye a shepe from the flocke, then wente I forth after him, and smote him, and delyuered it out of his mouth. And whan he wolde haue bene vpon me, I toke him by his beerde, and smote him, and slewe him. So thy seruant smote both the Lyon and the Bere. Therefore shall this philistyne this vncircumcised be euen as one of them: for he hath defyed the host of the lyvinge God. And David sayde: The LORDE that delyuered me from the Lyon and Bere, shall delyuer me also from this philistyne.

And Saul sayde vnto David: Go thy waye, the LORDE be with the. And Saul clothed David with his clothes, and set an helmet of stele vpon his heade, and put an habergion vpon him. And David girded his swerde aboue his clothes, and beganne to go, for he had neuer bene used to it afore. Then sayde David vnto Saul: I can not go thus, for I haue not bene used to it, and so he laied it from him, and toke his staff in his hande, and chose fyue slighthe stones out of the ryuer, and put them in the shepardses bagge which he had by him, and toke a stone in his hande, and made him to the philistyne. And the philistyne wente forth, and made him to David, and his wapen bare before him.

Now whan the philistyne looked vnto David, he thoughte some of him: for he was but a childe, well colourd, and bery full to lye vpon. And the philistyne sayde vnto David: Am I a dogg then, that thou comest vnto me with a staffe: And he answered David by his God, and sayde vnto David: Come hither to me, I wil geue thy flesh to the fowles vnder the heauen, and to the beastes in the felde. Neuertheles David sayde vnto the philistyne: Thou comest vnto me with swerde, speare and shyld. But I come vnto the in the name of the LORDE Zebaoth the God of the host of Israel, whom thou hast defyed. This daye shall the LORDE delyuer the into my hande, that I maye smyte the, and take thy heade from the, and geue the bodies of the host of the philistynes this daye vnto the fowles vnder the heauen, and to the wyld beestes vpon the earth, that all the lande maye knowe that Israel hath a God. And all this congregation shall knowe, that the LORDE saithmer ther chorow swerde ner speare: for the battayll is the LORDES, and he shall delyuer you in to oure handes.

Now whan the philistyne gat him vp, and wente forth and due nye vnto David, David made haifte, and ranne from the host vnto the philistyne. And David put his hande in his bagge, and toke out a stone, and thre it with the slynge, and herte the philistyne euen in the fore heade, so that the stone sterte in his fore heade, and he fell downe to the grounde vpon his face.

So David ouercame the philistyne with the slynge and with the stone, and smote him, and slewe him. And for so moch as David had no swerde in his hande, he ranne and stode ouer the philistyne, and toke his de, and due it out of the sheeth, and slewe him, and smote of his heade withall. Whan the philistynes sawe that the strongest of them was dede, they fled. And the men of Israel and Juda gat the vp, and cryed and solowed vpon the philistynes, tyll they came vnto the valley, and to the portes of Ekron. And the philistynes fell downe slayne vnto Gath and to Ekron. And the children of Israel turned agayne from chassyng of the philistynes, and spoyled their tentes. But David toke the heade of the philistyne, and broughte it vnto Jerusalem, as for his armour, he layed it in his tente.

Whan Saul sawe David go forth agaynst the philistyne, he saide vnto Abner his chiefe captaigne: Abner, whose sonne is this childe: Abner sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth O kyng, I wote not. The kyng sayde: Art he whose sonne the yongema is. Now whan David came agayne from the slaughter of the philistyne, Abner toke him, and broughte him before Saul, and he had the philistynes heade in his hande. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne art thou, thou yongeman: David sayde: I am a sonne of thy seruant Isai the Bethleemite.

The xviii. Chapter.

And whan he had made an ende of tealyng with Saul, the soule of Jonathas was bounde with the soule of David, and Jonathas loued him as his owne soule. And Saul toke him the same daye, and let him not go agayne to his fathers house. And Jonathas and David made a covenante together, for he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne coere that he had vpon him, and gaue it vnto David: yee and his cloke, his swerde, his bowe, and his girdell. And David wente forth whither so ener Saul sent him, and behaued himselfe wysely. And Saul set him ouer the men of warre, and he pleased all the people well, and all the seruantes of Saul.

It fortuneth, that whan David was come agayne from the slaughter of the philistyne, the women wente out of all the cities of Israel with songes and daunces, to meete kyng Saul, with tymbrels, with myrth, and with fyddels. And the women sange vnto another, and played and sayde: Saul hath smyten his thousande: but David his tenthousande.

Then was Saul very wroth, and he wrode displeased him sore, and he sayde: They ha ne ascribed tenthousande vnto David, and but one thousande vnto me: what shal he haue more but the kyngdome: And from that daye forth, Saul looked sowerly vpon David.

The nexte daye after came the euell spiritte of God vpon Saul, and prophced in the myddes of the house. But David played on the instrumente with his hande, as he was wonte daylie. And Saul had a iauelynge in his hande, and cast it, and thoughte: I wyll stycke David fast to the wall. Neuerthelesse David turned himselfe twyse awaye from him. And Saul was a frayd of David: for the LORDE was with him, and was departed from Saul. Then Saul put him from him, and set him to be pryncce ouer a thousande men, and he went out and in before the people. And David behaued himselfe wysely in all his doynges, and the LORDE was with him.

Now whan Saul sawe that he was so exceedyng wysely, he stode in feare of him. But all Israel and Juda loued David, for he wente out and in before them. And Saul sayde vnto David: Beholde, my greatest daughter Merob: wyl I geue the to wyfe: be stronge now, and gouerne the warres of the LORDE. For Saul thoughte my hande shal not be vpon him, but the hande of the philistynes. Neuertheles David answered Saul: Who am I: and what is my life, and the kyndred of my father in Israel, that I shulde mary the kynges daughter:

But whan the tyme came, that Merob the daughter of Saul shulde haue bene geue vnto David, she was geuen vnto Adriel the Michathite to wyfe. Neuerthelesse Michol Sauls daughter loued David. Whan this was tolde Saul, he matter pleased him well, and he sayde: I wyl geue him her, and she maye be a snare vnto him, and that the handes of the philistynes maye come vpon him. And he sayde vnto David: This daye shalt thou be my daughter in lawe: and thou shalt be my daughter in lawe. And Saul spake vnto his seruantes: Take the David secretly, and saye: Beholde, the kyng hath pleasure in the, and all his seruantes loue the, marry thou therfore the kynges daughter.

And Sauls seruantes spake these wordes in the eares of David. But David saide: Thynke ye it but a small matter, to mary the kynges daughter: As for me, I am but a poore symple man. And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, and sayde: Soch wordes hath David spoken. Saul sayde: Then saye ye vnto David: The kyng desyreth no dowry, but onely an hundred chylde of the best of the flocke.

the philistynes, that vengeance maye be taken of the kynges enemies. Howbeit Saul thought to cause Dauid be slayne by the handes of the philistynes. Then his seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, and Dauid was contented with the matter, to marry the kynges daughter.

G And after a fewe dayes Dauid gatt him vp, and wente with his men, and smote two hundred men amonge the philistynes. And Dauid broughte their foreskynnes, and made their nombre sufficient vnto the kyng, & he mighte marry the kynges daughter. The Saul gaue him his daughter Michol to wyfe. And Saul sawe and perceaued, that the LORDE was wth Dauid. And Michol Sauls daughter loved him. Then was Saul the more a frayd, and became his enemye as longe as he lyued. And whan the prynces of the philistynes were forth, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysely then all the seruantes of Saul in their outgoynge: so that his name was in greate reputacion.

The XIX. Chapeer.

S Saul spake to Jonathas his sonne, and to all his seruantes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. Neuerthelesse Jonathas the sonne of Saul loued Dauid exceedingly, and tolde him, and sayde: Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. Kepe thetherfore (I praye the) in the mornyng and abyde in secreete, and hyde the. But I wyll go forth, and stonde besyde my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll speake of the vnto my father: and what soeuer I se I shal brynge the worde.

And Jonathas reported & best of Dauid vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto him: Oh let not the kyng synne agaynst his seruante, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and his doynge is very necessary for the, he put his lyfe in his hande also, and smote the philistyne, & the LORDE dyd a greate healtch vnto all Israel: this hast thou sene, and reioysed therof. Wherefore wilt thou chen offende agaynst innocent bloude, that thou woldest kyll Dauid without a cause? Then hardened Saul vnto the voice of Jonathas and sware: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, he shal not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and tolde him all these wordes, and broughte him to Saul, so that he was in presence like as afore tyme.

But there arose a battayll agayne, and Dauid wente forth, and fought agaynst the philistynes, and smote a greate slaughter, so that they fled before him. Neuertheles swell sperte of the LORDE came vpon Saul, and he sat in his house, and had a iauldrie in his hande. But Dauid plaid vpon the strumment with his hade. And Saul thought with the ianelinge to sticke Dauid fast in the wall. Howbeit, he wente asyde fro Saul, and the ianelynge smote in the wall. And Dauid fled, and escaped that night.

Now withstandinge Saul sent his messengers to Dauids house, that they shoulde laye wayte for him, and kyll him in the mornyng. Michol Dauids wyfe tolde him this, and sayde: If thou saue not thy soule this night, then shalt dye tomorrow. Then Michol let him downe thorow the wyndow, so that he wente his waye, fled, and escaped. And Michol toke an ymage, and layd it in the bed, and laied a goates skynne at the heade of it, and couered it with clothes. Then Saul sent messengers, to fetch Dauid. As she sayde: He is sicke. Neuerthelesse Saul sent messengers to se Dauid, & sayde: Bynge him vp to me with the bed, that he may be slayne.

Now whan the messengers came, beholde, the ymage laye in the bed, and a goates skynne at the heade of it. Then sayde Saul vnto Michol: Why hast thou begyled me, and let myne enemye go, that he mighte escape? Michol sayde vnto Saul: he sayde vnto me: Let me go, or I wyll kyll the. For Dauid, he fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and tolde him all & Saul had done vnto him. And he wente wth Samuel, and they abode at Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath. Then Saul sente messengers to fetch Dauid. And they sawe a company of prophetes prophesyinge, and Samuel had the oversight of them. Then came the sperte of God vpon the messengers of Saul, so that they prophesied also.

Whan this was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, which prophesied likewise. Then sente he messengers the thyrde tyme, and they in like maner prophesied. Then wente he himselfe also vnto Ramath, and whan he came to the greate well which is at Secho, he ayled and sayde: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was it tolde him: beholde, at Naioth in Ramath. And he wente thither, euen vnto Naioth in Ramath. And y^e sperte of God came vpon him also, and he wolde & prophesied till he came vnto Naioth in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, & prophesied likewise before Samuel, & fell downe on all that daye and all that night. He is of came the prouerbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes?

The XX. Chapter.

Dauid fled fro Naioth in Ramath, and came, & spake before Jonathas: What haue I done? What trespass haue I made? What haue I synned in & fight of thy father, & he seeketh to kyll me? he sayde vnto him: God forbid, thou shalt not dye. Beholde, my father doth nothings, neither greace ner small, but he sheweth it be fore myne eares. Wherefore shulde my father the hyde this fro me? It shal not be so. The swate Dauid agayne, and sayde: Thy father knoweth well, & I haue founde fauoure in & fight, therfore shal he thynke: Jonathas shal not knowe of this, lest it greue him. Verily, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as & soule lyueth, there is but one steppe betwene me & death. Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: I wil do for the what so euer thy heart desireth. Dauid sayde vnto him: Beholde, tomorrow is the new Mone, that I shulde sit at the table with the kyng. Let me hyde my selfe therfore in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father then are after me, saye: Dauid prayed me, & he mighte ranne to Bethleem vnto his cite, for all his kynred haue there a yearly sacrifice. If he saye then: It is good, the stondeeth it well with & seruant. But yf he be wroth, thou shalt perceaue that he intendeth euell. Do mercy therfore vpon thy seruant: for with me & seruant hast thou made a couenaunt in the LORDE. But yf there be any trespass in me, then slaye me thy selfe, for why woldest thou brynge me vnto thy father?

Jonathas sayde: That be farre from the, that I shulde perceaue my father to intendeuell agaynst the, and shulde not tell the. Dauid sayde: Who shal brynge me worde, yf thy father geue the an harde answer? Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: Come, let vs go forth into the felde. And they wente out both in to & felde. And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid:

LORDE God of Israel, yf I perceaue by my father tomorrow or on the thyrde daye, that it goeth well with Dauid, & sende not vnto the, and shewe the before thine eares, then let the LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathas. But yf my father deelyte in euell agaynst the, I wil shewe it before thine eares also, and let & go, that thou mayest departe in peace.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. If I do it not, then do thou no mercy of the LORDE on me, while I lyue, no not whan I dye, and plucke thy mercy fro my house for euer. And whan the LORDE roterch out & enemies of Dauid, euen one out of the londe, then let Dauid rote out Jonathas also with his house, and the LORDE requyre it of the hande of Dauids enemies.

And Jonathas proceeded further, and swate vnto Dauid (he loued him so well: for he loued him euen as his owne soule) and Jonathas sayde vnto him: Tomorrow is & new Mone, and thou shalt be ayed after: for thou shalt be wanted where thou wast wonte to sit. But on the thyrde daye come downe soone, & go in to & place where thou hydest the on the worchdaye, & set the downe by the stone of Asel: chen wyl I shute the arrowes on & side, as though I wolde shute at a marke: and beholde, I wil sende the boye, and saye vnto him, Go seke & arrowes. If I saye now vnto the lad: Lo, the arrowes lye hitherwarde behynde &, fetch them, then come thou, for it is peace, and there is no parell, as truly as the LORDE lyueth. But yf I saye vnto the lad: beholde, the arrowes lye yonderwarde before the, then go thou thy waye, for the LORDE hath let the go. As for that which thou and I haue spokt together, the LORDE is betwene me and the for euer.

Dauid hid himselfe in the felde. And whan the new Mone came, the kyng sat him downe at the table to eate. Whan the kyng had set him downe in his place as he was wonte by the wall, Jonathas stode vp, but Abner sat him downe besyde Saul. And Dauid was myssed in his place. And Saul spake nothinge that daye, for he thought: There is somewhat happend vnto him, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new Mone, whan Dauid was myssed in his place, Saul saide vnto Jonathas his sonne: Wherefore is not the sonne of Isai come to the table neither yesterdaye ner to daye?

Jonathas answered Saul: he prayed me that he mighte go vnto Bethleem, and sayde: Let me go, for oure kynred hath a sacrifice to do in the cyte, and my brother hath sent for me himselfe: yf I haue founde fauoure now in thy syghte, I wyll go, and se my brethren: therfore is he not come to the kynges table. Then was the kyng wroth at Jonathas, and sayde vnto him: Thou wicked and vnchaste, I knowe how that thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai, to the shame of thy selfe and of y^e shamefull mocher. For as longe as y^e sonne of Iſai lyueth vpon earth nether thou nor thy kyngdome ſhal proſpere. Sende now therfore, and cauſe him to be ſet ched vnto me, for he is a childe of death.

Jonathas answered his father Saul and ſayde vnto him: Wherfore ſhal he dye? what hath he done? Then ſhot Saul the ianelynge at him, that he might ſmite him. The per ceaued Jonathas, that his father was vterly determed to kyll Dauid, and he roſe vp from y^e table in a wrothfull diſpleaſure, and ate no bled y^e ſame ſeconde daye of the newe Mone: for he was vexed becauſe of Dauid, that his father had done him ſoch diſhonour.

S On the morow wente Jonathas forth in to the felde, at the tyme appoynted of Dauid, and a litle boy with him, and ſayde vnto y^e boy: Runne and ſete me the arrowes which I ſhute. Whan the boy ranne, he ſhot an arrowe ouer him. And whan the boy came to the place whither Jonathas had ſhot y^e arrowe, Jonathas cryed after him, and ſayde: The arrowe lyeth yonderwarde before the. And he cryed after him agayne: haſte the, and ſtonde not ſtyll. Then the boy gathered vp Jonathas arrowes, and brought them to his lord. And the boy knewe nothinge, only Jonathas and Dauid knewe of y^e matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boy his wapen and ſayde vnto him: Go thy waye, and cary them in to the cite. And whan the boy was gone, Dauid aroſe from the place towarde the ſouth, and fell vpon his face to the groſſe be, and worſhipped chiee tymes, and they kiſſed one another, and wepte together. But Dauid moſt ſpecially. And Jonathas ſaide vnto Dauid: Go thy waye in peace. What ſoener we both haue ſworne y^e ſpote together in the name of the LORDE, the LORDE be witneſſe betwene me and the, betwene my ſede and y^e ſede for euer. And Jonathas gat him vp, and came in to the cite.

The XXI. Chapter.

Dauid came to Nob to y^e preſt Ahimelech. And Ahimelech was aſtonyſhed, whan he ſawe Dauid commun ge, and ſayde vnto him: Why commeſt thou alone, and noman is with the? Dauid ſayde vnto Ahimelech the preſt: The kyng hath comytted a matter vnto me, and ſayde: Let noman knowe wherfore I haue ſent the, and what I haue commaunded the: for I haue appoynted my ſeruantes to mete me here y^e there. If thou haue now ought vnder thy hande, a loafe of bled or ſyne, geue me the ſame in my hande, or what ſo euer thou findeſt.

The preſt answered Dauid, and ſayde: I haue no comen bled vnder my hande, but holy bled, yf the yonge men haue onely taken them ſelues from women. Dauid answered the preſt, and ſayde vnto him: The men were kepte thre dayes from vs whan we departed forth, and the yonge men of ſels were holy. But this waye is unholy, nertheleſſe it ſhalbe ſanctified to daye in thy inſtrumences. Then the preſt gaue him y^e holy, in ſo much as there was none other bled but the ſhewbredes, which were taken vp before the LORDE, that there might be ther freſhbredes ſet therein the daye which toke them awaye.

But the ſame daye was there a man ſpured in before the LORDE, one of Sauls ſervantes, named Doeg an Edomite, y^e mightieſt amonge Sauls hyndmen. And Dauid ſayde vnto Ahimelech: Is there not a ſpore or a ſwerde here vnder thine hande? I haue not taken my ſwerde and wapens with me: for the kynges matter requyred haſt. The preſt ſayde: The ſwerde of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou ſmoteſt in the Ch valley, is here wrapped in a cloth behynde the overbody cote. If thou wylt haue it, take it, for here is els none but it. Dauid ſayde: There is not ſoch another, geue me it.

And Dauid gat him vp, and fled from Saul, and came to Achis y^e kyng of Gath. But Achis ſervantes ſayde vnto him: This is Dauid the kyng of the lande, of whom they ſunge in the daunſe, and ſayde: Saul hath ſmytten his thouſande, but Dauid hath ten thouſande. And Dauid toke theſe wordes to hert, and was ſore aſtrayed of Achis the kyng of Gath, and altered his countenance before them, and ſhewed himſelfe as he had bene madd in their handes, and ſet ſlaverynges ranne downe his beard. Then ſayde Achis vnto his ſervantes: Beholde ye ſe that the man is out of his wyt, why haue ye brought him vnto me? Haue I to ſerue madd men, that ye haue brought this man to be madd before me? Shulde he come in to my houſe?

The XXII. Chapter.

Dauid wente fro thence, y^e ſled vnto the cave of Adullam. Whan his brethren and all his fathers houſe heard that, they came downe thither vnto him. And there gathered vnto him all maner were in trouble and det, and ſory of hert, and he became their heade, ſo that thre with him vpon a ſoure hundred men.

And Dauid wente from thence towarde Miſpa in the lande of the Moabites, and ſayde vnto the kyng of the Moabites: Let my father and my mocher go out and in amonge you, tyll I ſe what God wil do with me. And he leſte them before the kyng of y^e Moabites, ſo that they remayned by him, as longe as Dauid was in the caſtell. Nertheleſſe the prophet Gad ſayde vnto Dauid: Abide not in the caſtell, but go y^e waye, and come in to the lande of Iuda. Then departed Dauid, and came in to the woodd of Harech. And Saul herde that Dauid and the men which were with him, were come forth.

Now whyle Saul dwelt at Gibeon under a grove in Rama, he had a Javelinge in his hande, and all his ſervantes ſtoode by him. Then ſayde Saul vnto his ſervantes that ſtoode by him: Heare ye children of Ieminu ſhal the ſonne of Iſai geue loddes and vnyardes vnto you all, y^e make you all captyues ouer thouſandes and ouer hundredes, that ye haue all conſpyred agaynſt me, and there is no man that ſheweth it before myne eares, for ſo much as my ſonne alſo hath made a covenante with the ſonne of Iſai: There is noman amonge you that letteth it for my ſake, or y^e openeth it vnto myne eares: for my ſonne hath ſtered vp my ſervantes agaynſt me, that he maye laye wayte for me, as it is maniſeſt.

Then answered Doeg y^e Edomite which ſtoode beſyde Sauls ſervantes, and ſayde: I ſawe the ſonne of Iſai, that he came vnto Nob, to Ahimelech y^e ſonne of Achitob, which aſked counsell at the LORDE for him, and gaue him ſode, y^e the ſwerde of Goliath the Philistine.

Then ſent the kyng, and cauſed to call Ahimelech the preſt the ſonne of Achitob, and all his fathers houſe, the preſtes that were at Nob, and they came all to the kyng. And Saul ſayde: Heare thou ſonne of Achitob, he ſaide: Here am I my lord. And Saul ſayde vnto him: Wherfore haue ye conſpyred agaynſt me, thou y^e the ſonne of Iſai, that thou haſt geuen him bled and a ſwerde, and aſked counsell at God for him, to ſtere him vp, that he mighte laye awayte for me, as it is maniſeſt.

Ahimelech answered the kyng and ſaide: And who is amonge all thy ſervantes like Dauid, which is faithfull, and hath married the kynges daughter, and goeth in thine obedience, y^e is honorably taken in thine houſe?

Haue I begonne then fiſt this daye to aſke counsell at God for him? That be ſarre from me. Let not the kyng laie ſoch to his ſervantes charge in all my fathers houſe: for thy ſervant knewe not of all theſe thinges ne ther ſmall ner greete. Nertheleſſe the kyng ſayde: Ahimelech thou muſt dye y^e death, thou and all thy fathers houſe. And the kyng ſayde to his fore men that ſtoode by him: Turne you, and ſlaye the preſtes of the LORDE, for their hande is with Dauid alſo.

Not withſtandinge the kynges ſervantes wolde not laye their handes vpon y^e preſtes of the LORDE, to ſlaye them. Then ſaide y^e kyng vnto Doeg: Turne the, and ſlaye the preſtes. Doeg the Edomite turned him, and ſlew the preſtes, ſo that the ſame daye there dyed ſyre and foure ſcore men, which waye overbody cotes of linnen. And Nob the cite of the preſtes ſmore he with the edge of the ſwerde, both men and women, children and ſucklynges, oxen and aſſes, and ſhepe.

Nertheleſſe there eſcaped a ſonne of Ahimelech (the ſonne of Achitob) whoſe name was Abiathar, and fled after Dauid, and tolde him, that Saul had ſlayne y^e preſtes of the LORDE. Dauid ſayde vnto Abiathar: I knewe well the ſame daye that Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. I am giltye of the ſoules of thy fathers houſe. Abide thou with me, and feare not. He that layeth wayte for my lyfe, ſhall laye wayte for thine alſo, and thou ſhalt be preferred with me.

The XXIII. Chapter.

It was tolde Dauid: Beholde, the Philistines fighte agaynſt Cegila, and ſpoyle the barnes. Then Dauid aſked at the LORDE, and ſayde: Shal I go, y^e ſmyte theſe Philistines? And the LORDE ſayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, thou ſhalt ſmyte the Philistines, and deliuer Cegila. But y^e men that were with Dauid, ſayde vnto him: Beholde, we are here in feare in Jewry, and ſhall we go to Cegila vnto the hoſt of the Philistines? The Dauid aſked at the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE answered him, and ſayde: Up, ge: the downe to Cegila, for I wil deliuer the Philistines in to thy hande.

So Dauid wente with his men vnto Cegila, and foughte agaynſt the Philistines, y^e dioune awaye their cartell, and ſmote them with a greete ſlaughter. Thus Dauid deliuered them of Cegila. For whan Abiathar the ſonne of Ahimelech fled vnto Dauid at Cegila, he bare downe the overbody cote with him.

Thē was it tolde Saul, that David was come to Cegila, and he sayde: God hath deliuered him in to my hāde, for he is shut fast in, now that he is come in to a cite which is kepe wth gates and barres. And Saul caused for to call all the people downe to 3 battail vnto Cegila, 3 they might beseege David and his men. But whan David perceined 3 Saul incēded euell against him, he saide vnto Abiathar 3 prest: Drynge me hither the ouerboddy cote. And David sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, thy seruānt hath herde, that Saul goeth aboute to come for to destroye the cite of Cegila for my sake. Shal the citysens of Cegila deliuer me ouer in to his handes? And shal Saul come downe, as thy seruānt hath herde? Tell thy seruānt this, O LORDE God of Israel. And the LORDE saide: He shal come downe.

David sayde: Shall the citysens of Cegila deliuer me and my men in to Sauls handes? The LORDE sayde: Yee. Thē David gat him vp with his mē, of whom there were vpon a hire hundreth, 3 walked whither they coude. Now whan it was tolde Saul that David was escaped from Cegila, he let his iourneyslonde. As for David, he remayned in the wilderness in the castell, and abode vpon the mount in the wilderness of Siph. But Saul sought him as longe as he luyed. Ne vertheles God gaue him not in to his handes. And David sawe, that Saul was gone forth to seke after his life. But David was in the wilderness of Siph, in the wodd.

Then Jonathas the sonne of Saul gat him vp, and wēt vnto David in to the wodd, and strenghted his hande in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, my father Sauls hande shal not finde 3: and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, so will I be the nexte vnto the. And 3 my father knoweth right well. And they made a couenānt both together before the LORDE. And David remayned in the wodd. As for Jonathas, he wente home agayne.

But the Siphites wente vp to Saul vnto Gibeath, and sayde: Is not David hyd with vs in the castell in 3 wodd, vpon mount Hachila, which lyeth on the righte hande of the wilderness? Let the kynge come downe now therfore acordinge to all the desyre of his hert, and we will deliuer him in to the kynge's hande. Then sayde Saul: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue had pytie vpon me: Go youre waye now therfore, and be sure, that ye maye knowe and se in what place his fete haue bene, and who hath iene him there: for it is tolde me, that he is hid somer. Lete well and spye out all the places, where he hydeh him, and come agayn to me, whan ye are sure, and I will go with you. If he be in the londe, I will enquire after him amonge all the thousandes in Israel.

Then gat they them vp, and wente the waye vnto Siph before Saul. But David and his men were in the wilderness of Mahon, even in the felde on the righte hande of the wilderness. Now whan Saul wente thither with his men to seke him, it was tolde David, and he gat him downe to the rocke, and abode in the wilderness of Mahon. Whan Saul herde that, he folowed a fter David in the wilderness of Mahon. And Saul and his men wente on the one syde of the hill, but David and his men on 3 other syde of 3 hill. But whan David made haist to escape from Saul, Saul with his men compassed about David and his men, that he might take them. Ne vertheles there came a messenger vnto Saul, and sayde: Make haist and come, for the philistynes are fallē in to the londe. Thē Saul turned him from chasing of David, and wente agaynst the philistynes. Therfore is 3 place called Sela Naboth. Thē David wente vp from thence, and abode in the castell at En Gaddi.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Now whan Saul came agayne from the philistynes, it was tolde him: Beholde, David is in the wilderness of Engaddi. And Saul toke thre thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and wente to seke David with his men vpon the stony rockes of the wyld goates. And whan he came to the shepe foldes by 3 waye, there was a cave, and Saul wente in to couer his face. But David and his men sat behinde with the cave.

Then sayde Davids men vnto him: Is this is the daye, wherof the LORDE thy God hath sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will deliuer thine enemye in to thy hande, that thou mayest do wth him what it pleaseth the. And David stode vp, 3 cut of the tye of Sauls garment quyetly. Ne vertheles it smote him afterwarde in his hert, because he had cut of the tye of Sauls garment, and sayde wth to his men: The LORDE let that be farre from me, that I shulde do it, 3 laye my hande vpon my lordes head. And David was anoynted of the LORDE. And David with his seruantes with wordes, 3 suffered not to ryse vp agaynst Saul.

But whan Saul gat him vp out of the cave, and was goinge his waye, David rose vp also a fter him, and wente out of the cave, and cried behynde Saul, 3 sayde: My lord the kynge. And Saul looked behynde him. And David bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and sayde vnto Saul: Why herkenest thou vnto the wordes of men, that saye: David seeketh thy myssfortune? Beholde, thine eyes se this daye that the LORDE gaue the in to my hande in the cave, and I was counceled to slaye the: Ne vertheles thou wast fauoured, for I sayde: I will not laye my hande vpon my lord, for he is the LORDEs anoynted. Beholde, my father the tye of thy garment in my hande, that I wolde not slaye the; whan I cut of the tye of thy garment. And now and f, 3 there is no euell ner trespass in my hand: neither haue I offended the, and thou followest after my soule, to take it awaye. The LORDE shal be iudge betwene me and the, and auengeme on the, but my hāde shal not be vpon the, acordinge as it is sayde after the olde proverbe: Vngodlynes commeth of the vngodly: but my hande shal not be vpon the. Whom persecutest thou O kynge of Israel, whom persecutest thou? a deed dogg: a fter: The LORDE be iudge, and geue sentence betwene me and the, and cōsidre it, and defende my cause, and deliuer me from thy hande.

Now whan David had spoken out these wordes vnto Saul, Saul saide: Is not this thy voyce my sonne David? And Saul lifte vp his voyce, and wepte, and saide vnto David: Thou art more righteous then I: for thou hast recompensed me good, but I haue rewarded the euell. And this daye hast thou shewed me howe thou hast done me good, for so much as 3 LORDE hath deliuered me in to thy hande, and thou neuertheles hast not slaine me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemye, will let him go in a good waye? The LORDE reward the good for 3 thou hast done vnto me this daye. Beholde now, I knowe that thou shalt be kynge, 3 the kynge dome of Israel stondesth in thy hande: sweate now therfore vnto me by the LORDE, 3 thou shalt not rote out my seide after me, neither destroye my name out of my fathers house. And David swore vnto Saul. Then went Saul home, but David gat him vp with his men vnto the castell.

The XXV. Chapter.

Now Samuel dyed, and all Israel gathered them selues together, mourned for him, 3 buried him in his house at Ramath. As for David, he rose, and wente downe in to the wilderness of paran. And there was a man at Maca, and his possession at Carmel, and the man was of greate power, and had thre thousande shepe, and a thousande geates. And it fortuned that he clypped his shepe at Carmel, and his name was Nabal, but his wyues name was Abigail, and she was a woman of good understandinge, 3 bewtyfull of face. But the man was harde, and wicked in his doynges, and was one of Caleb.

Now whan David herde in the wilderness 3 Nabal clypped his shepe, he sent out ten yonge men, 3 saide vnto them: Go vp vnto Carmel, 3 whan ye come to Nabal, salute him frendly on my behalfe, 3 saye: Good lucke, peace be wth the 3 thine house, 3 with all 3 thou hast. I haue herde saye that thou hast shepe clyppers. Now 3 shepherdes whom thou hast, haue bene with vs, we haue done them no dishonoure, and they wanted nothinge of their nombre, as longe as they were at Carmel: Are thy yonge men, they shal tell the, and let thy yonge men fynde fauoure in 3 sighte: for we are come in a good daye, geue thy seruantes 3 thy sonne David what thy hande syndeth.

And whan Davids yonge men came, and spake all these wordes on Davids behalfe vnto Nabal, they lefte of. But Nabal answered Davids seruantes, 3 sayde: What is he 3 David? 3 who is the sonne of Isai? There are many seruantes now 3 runne awaye from their masters. Shulde I take my bried, water and flesh, that I haue slayne for my clyppers, 3 geue it vnto me whom I knowe not whence they are?

Thē Davids yonge mē turned their waye agayne. And whan they came agayne vnto him, they tolde him all these wordes. Thē sayde David vnto his men: Every man gyde his swerde aboute him. And every one gyde his swerde aboute him. And David gyde his swerde aboute him also, and there wēt vp after him vpon a foure hundreth men, but two hundreth remayned wth the staffe.

Ne vertheles Abigail Nabals wife tolde one of hir yonge men, and sayde: Beholde, David sent messaungers out of the wilderness to blesse oure lord, 3 notwithstandinge he was scarce vps them, and yet haue they bene very profitable men vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonoure, and we wanted none of the nombre as lōge as we walked with them, whan we were in the felde: but they haue bene ouer wall daye and nighte, as lon ge as we kepte the shepe by them. Take he-de now therfore, and loke well what thou doest, for there is surely a myffortune at han-de agaynst oure lorde, & agaynst all his house. And he is a man of Belial, to whom no man darre saye any thinge. Then Abigail made haist, and toke two hundred loaves of bred, and two botels of wyne, and fyve she-pe ready dighite, and fyve measures of firmentye, and an hundred frayles of rasens, and two hundred frayles of fygges, & layed

them vpon asses, and sayde to hir yonge men:
Go ye your waye before me, beholde, I wyl come after. And she tolde Nabal hir houshinde nothings therof. And as she rode vpon the asse, and wente downe in the shadowe of a hill, beholde, Dauid & his men met hir do-wne, so that she came vpon them.

D But Dauid sayde: Wel, all that this man had in a wyldernes, haue I kepte for naughte, so that there wanted nothings of all that he had, and he rewardeth me euell for good.
God do this and yet more vnto the enemies of Dauid, yf vntyll to morow in the mornyn-ge I leaue this man (of all that he hath) so much as one that maketh water agaynst a wall. Now whan Abigail sawe Dauid, she lighte downe from the asse in all the haist, and fell vpon hir face before Dauid, and worshipped him to the grounde, and fell at his fete, and sayde: Oh my lorde, let this trespass be myne, and let thy handmayde speake before thine eares, and heare the wordes of thy handmayden: Let not my lorde set his hert agaynst this Nabal the man of Belial, for he is a foole, accordinge as his name is called: his name is foole, and foolishnes is with him. As for me thy handmayde, I sawe not my lordes yonge men, whom thou dydest sende.

But now my lorde, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, the LORDE hath kepte thee backe, & thou shuldest not come agaynst bloude, and he hath deliuered thine hande.

E Thine enemies be now as Nabal, and so be they that wolde my lorde euell. There is a blessynge, & thy handmayde hath brought my lorde, take it, and geue it vnto the yonge men, that walke vnder my lorde. For a sure house shal a LORDE make my lorde, which fighth the fighthe of the LORDE, and no euell shal be founde in the all thy life longe.
And yf any man ryse vp to persecute a, and to laye wayte for thy soule, then shal the soule of my lorde be bounde in the bundell of a lyuynge, euen with the LORDE thy God.

But a soule of thine enemies shal be turne backe to the synge. Whan the LORDE fore doth all this good for my lorde (whom he hath promysed thee) and commaundeth to be his Duke ouer Israel, then shal it be stomblinge blocke ner occasion of fallinge vnto my lordes hert, that thou hast not shod bloude without a cause, and auenged thy selfe, then shal a LORDE do good vnto my lorde, and thou shalt thynke vpon thy hand-mayden.

Then saide Dauid vnto Abigail: Blessed be the LORDE God of Israel, which hath sent thee to meete me this daye: and blessed be thy speach, and blessed be thou, which hast kept me backe this daye, that I am not come agaynst bloude, to auenge me with my owne hande. Verely (as truly as the LORDE the God of Israel lyueth, which hath hyndred me that I shoulde do the no euell)
If thou haddest not met me in all the hert, Nabal shoulde not haue had leste him vnto
a lighte mornynge, so much as one that ma-keth water agaynst the wall. So Dauid to-ke of hir haire what she had brought him, and sayde vnto her: Go vp in peace vnto thine house: beholde, I haue hearkened vnto thy voice, and accepted thy personne.

But whan Abigail came to Nabal, be-holde, he had prepared a feast in his house for a kynges feast, and his hert was merry, for he was very dronken. And she tolde him all things, neether small ner greete vntyll she re mornynge. But whan it was daye, & the wyne was come from Nabal, his wife tolde him these thinges.

Then was his hert deede in his body, & that he became euen as a stone: and ouer
many dayes the LORDE smote him, so that he dyed.
Whan Dauid herde that Nabal was dead,
he sayde: Blessed be a LORDE which hath auenged my rebuke on Nabal, and put away his seruante from euell. And the LORDE hath rewarded Nabal that euell vpon his heade.

And Dauid sent, and caused to call with Abigail, & he mighte take her to wife. And whan Dauides seruantes came to Abigail vnto Carmel, they spake vnto her, and saide: Dauid hath sent vs vnto thee, that he may take a wife. She rose vp, and worshipped vpon hir face vnto the earth, and sayde: Be-holde, here is thy handmayde, that she may do seruyce vnto the seruantes of my lorde, and to washe their fete. And Abigail made haist, and gat her vp, and rode vpon an asse, and fyve maydens that were vnder her, and wente after Dauides messengers, and became his wife. Dauid toke Abinoam of Jesrad also, and they both became his wyues.

But Saul gaue Michol his daughter the wife of Dauid vnto Phalti a sonne of Laish of Galilee.

The XXV. Chapter.

They of Siph came to Saul vnto Gi-beath, & sayde: Is not Dauid hyd vpon the hill of Hachila, which lyeth ouer agaynst the wyldernes? Then Saul gat him vp, and wente downe to the wil-dernes of Siph, and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, to seeke Dauid in the wil-dernes of Siph, and pitched vpon the hill of Hachila, which lyeth by the waye before the wyldernes. But Dauid remayned in the wyldernes, and whan he sawe that Saul came after him in to the wyldernes, he sent out spies, and knewe of a surtie, that he was co-minge.

And Dauid gat him vp, and came to the place where Saul had pitched his tent, and sawe the place where Saul laye with his chefe capeayne. Abner a sonne of Ner: for Saul laye in the tent, and the hoost aboute
him. Then answered Dauid, and sayde vnto Abimelech the Zechite, and to Abisai the sonne of Jeru: Is a brother of Joab: Who wil go downe to me to Saul in to the hoost?
Abisai sayde: I wil go downe with thee.

D So Dauid and Abisai came to the people in the nyght season, & beholde, Saul laye and slepte in the tent, and his speare sticke in the grounde at his heade. But Abner and the people laye rounde aboute him. Then sayde Abisai vnto Dauid: God hath closed thine enemye in thine hande this daye. Therfore wil I now thrust him thorow once with the speare euen in to the grounde, & he shall haue ynough of it. Neuertheles Dauid sayde vnto Abisai: Destroye him not, for who wil laye hande vpon the anoynted of a LOR-DE, & remayne vngiltye? Dauid sayde mor-ouer: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf a LORDE him selfe smyte him not, or excepte his tyme come that he dye, or that he go in to the battayll and perishe, the LORDE let it be farr from me, that I shoulde laye my han-de on the LORDES anoynted. Take a spea-re now therfore at his heade, & the cuppe of water, & let vs go. So Dauid toke a speare & the cuppe of water at Sauls heade, & they wente their waye. And there was no man that sawe it, ner perceaued it, neether awaked, but they slepte every one, for there was a depe sleepe fallen vpon them from the LORDE.

Now whan Dauid was come ouer on a other syde, he stode vpon the toppe of the mount a farr of (so that there was a wyde space betwene them) and cried vpon a people, and vpon Abner the sonne of Ner, & sayde: Hearest thou not Abner? And Abner answered and sayde: Who art thou that cryest so, and diseatest the kyng? And Dauid sayde vnto Abner: Art thou not a man? And where is there such one as thou in Israel?
Why hast thou not then kepte thy lorde a kyng? for there is one of a people come in to destroye thy lorde a kyng. It is not well that thou hast done. As truly as the LORDE lyueth, ye are the children of death, because ye haue not kepte your lorde the LORDES anoynted. Beholde now, where is a kynges speare, and the cuppe of water that was at his heade.

Then knewe Saul the voyce of Dauid,
and saide: Is not that thy voyce my sonne Dauid? Dauid sayde: It is my voyce my lorde the kyng. And he sayde morouer: Why doth my lorde so persecute his seruante?
What haue I done? and what euell is there in my hande? Yet let my lorde the kyng heare but the wordes of his seruante: If a LORDE psonne the agaynst me, let there be smelled a mentoffarynge: but yf the childre of men do it, cursed be they before the LOR-DE, because they haue thrust me out this daye: that I shoulde not dwell in the LORDES inheritance) and saye: Go a waye, and ser-ue other goddes. So fall not now my blou-de vpon the earth from the face of the LOR-DE. For the kyng of Israel is gone forth to seeke a flee, as a partridge is folowed on vpon
the mountaynes.

And Saul sayde: I haue synned: Come a-gayne Dauid my sonne, I wil do the nomie harte, because my soule hath bene deare in a fighthe this daye. Beholde, I haue done foolishly and very vnwysely. Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde, here is the kynges spea-re, let one of the yongemen come ouer here and fetch it. But the LORDE shal reward every one accordinge to his righteousnes and faith, for a LORDE deliuered a this daye into my hande: neuertheles I wolde not laie my hande vpon the LORDES anoynted. And as a soule hath bene greatly reputed in my fighthe this daye, so let a LORDE repute my soule in his fighthe, & deliuer me from all trouble. Saul saide vnto Dauid: Blessed be thou Dauid my sonne, thou shalt do it, & be able.
But Dauid wente his waye, and Saul turned agayne vnto his place.

And thoughte in his hert: One of these dayes shal I fall into the handes of Saul: It is better that I get me my waye into y^e londe of y^e philistynes, that Saul maye leaue of from sekynge me in all the coastes of Israel, so shal I escape his handes. And he gat him vp, and wente ouer (with the sixe hundred men that were with him) vnto Achis the sonne of Maach kyng of Gath. So David remayned by Achis at Gath, with his mē, every one with his housholde, and David with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And whan worde came to Saul that David was fled vnto Gath, he soughte him nomore.

And David sayde vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then let there be geuen me a place in one of the cities of the londe, that I maye dwell therein. Wherfore shulde thy seruauant dwell in the kynges cite with the? Then Achis gaue him Siclag the same daye. Therfore belongeth. Siclag to the kynges of Iuda vnto this daye. The tyme that David dwelt in the londe of the philistynes, is foure monethes.

B David wente vp with his men, and fell in to the londe of the Gessurites and Gittites, and Amalechites: for these were the inhabitants of this londe of olde, as thou comcest to Sur vnto the lode of Egypte. But whā David smote y^e londe, he let nether man ner woman lyue, and toke the shepe, oxen, asses, Camels and rayment, and returned and came to Achis. So whan Achis spake: Whither fell ye in to daye? David sayde: Towarde the south parte of Iuda, towarde y^e south parte of the Jerahmuelites, & towarde the south parte of the Benites. But David let nether man ner woman come lynynge vnto Geth, and thoughte: They mighte peradventure speake & reporte agaynst vs: thus dyd David, and this was his maner as longe as he dwelt in y^e londe of the philistynes. Therfore Achis gaue credence vnto David, and thoughte: he hath made him selfe stynt before his people of Israel, therefore shal he be my seruauant for ever.

A It fortuned at y^e same tyme, that the philistynes gathered their hoost together to the battayll, to go agaynst Israel. And Achis sayde vnto David: Thou shalt knowe, that thou and thy men shal go forth with me in the hoost. David sayde vnto Achis: Well, thou shalt se what thy seruant shal do. Achis saide vnto David: The fore wyll I ordeine the to be the top of my heade as longe as I lyue. As for Saul, he was dead, and all y^e people had mourned for him, & buried him in his cite Ramath. So Saul had dryuen the soychsayers and expounders of tokens out of y^e londe. Now whan the philistynes gathered them selves together, and came and pitched their tents at Sunem, Saul gathered all the people together, & they pitched at Gilboa. But whan Saul sawe the hoost of the philistynes, he was afrayed, and his hert was discouraged, and he axed counsell at the LORDE. But y^e LORDE gaue him no answer, nether by dreames, ner by the highes, ner by prophetes.

Thē sayde Saul vnto his seruantes: Seke me a womā which hath a spere of soych sayge, that I maye go vnto her, and axe of her. His seruantes sayde vnto him: Beholde, at Endor is there a woman, which hath a spere of soychsayenge. And Saul charged his clothes, and put on other, and went by nyghte vnto the woman, and sayde: prophete vnto me I pray the, thorow the spere of soychsayenge, and brynge me him of whom I shal name vnto the. The woman saide vnto him: Beholde, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath rooted out the soychsayers & witches from the londe, wherfore wilt thou brynge my soule then into y^e nett, that I maye be slayne? But Saul swore vnto her by y^e LORDE, and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, there shall no harme happen vnto the for this. Then saye y^e woman: Whom shal I brynge vp vnto the? He sayde: Brynge me vp Samuel.

Now whan y^e woman sawe Samuel, she cryed loude, and sayde vnto Saul: Wherfore hast thou begyled me? Thou art Saul. And the kyng sayde vnto her: Feare not, what seist thou? The woman sayde vnto Saul: I se goddes comynge vp out of y^e earth. He sayde: How is he shapened? She sayde: There cometh vp an olde man, and is clothed with a longe garment. Then perceived Saul that it was Samuel, & bowed him selfe downe to his face to the ground, and worshipped him.

Samuel saide vnto Saul: Why hast thou disquieted me, to cause me be brought vp? Saul sayde: I am sore troubled, the philistynes fighte agaynst me, & God is departed from me, & geueth me no answer, nether by prophetes ner by dreames: therefore haue I called the, & thou mightest shewe me, what I shal do. Samuel sayde: What wilt thou axe of me, seynge the LORDE is departed from the, and is become thine enemye? The LORDE shal do vnto the even as he spake by me, and shal plucke the kyngdome out of thy hande, and geue it vnto David thy neighbor: because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, ner performed the displeasure of his wrath agaynst Amalek. Therfore hath the LORDE done this now vnto the. Moreover the LORDE shal deliuer Israel with the also into the handes of the philistynes: & comow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me. And the hoost of Israel shal the LORDE deliuer in to the handes of the philistynes. Then fell Saul immediately vnto the earth, for he coulde not stonde, and was sore afrayed at these wordes of Samuel, so that there was nomore strength in him: for he had eaten no bred all that daye and all that nyght.

E And the woman wente into Saul, & sawe that he was sore veyed, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy hand maye hath hearkened vnto thy voyce, and I haue put my soule in my hande, so that I haue hearkened vnto y^e wordes which thou spakest vnto me. Therfore folowethon also the voyce of thy hand maye. I wil see a morsell of bred before the to eate, that thou mayest come to thy strength, & go y^e waye. But he refused, and sayde, I wil not eate. Then his seruantes & the woman compelled him, so that he hearkened vnto their voyce.

And he rose vp from y^e grounde, and sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so she made haist, and kyled it, and toke meell and dyd kneet it, and baked sweete cakes, & broughte them forth before Saul, & before his seruantes. And whan they had eaten, they stode vp, and wote their waye y^e nyghte.

The philistynes gathered all their armies together at Aphek. But Israel pitched at Ain in Iesrael. And the prynces of the philistynes were forth with hundreds and with thousandes, but David and his men were behynde with Achis. Thē sayde the prynces of the philistynes: What shal these Iebwes do? Achis saide vnto the: Is not this David y^e seruaunt of Saul kyng of Israel, which hath bene with me now yeres and dayes, & I haue founde no euill in him sence the tyme that he fell to me vnto this daye? Nevertheless the prynces of y^e philistynes were wroth at him, & sayde vnto him: Let the man turne backe agayne, & abyde in his place, which thou hast appoynted him, that he go not downe with vs to y^e batayll, and become oure aduersary in y^e felde. For wherit coulde he better do his lordes pleasure, thē in the heades of these men? Is not this David, of whom they singe in the daunce: Saul hath smytte his thousande, but David his ten thousande? Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto him: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, I take the for an honest man, and thy our goynge and ingoynge with me in y^e hoost pleasech me well, and no euell haue I marked in the, sence y^e tyme that thou camest to me vnto this daye. But thou pleasest not the prynces. Returne now therfore, and go y^e waye in peace, that thou do no euell in the sighte of the prynces of y^e philistynes.

B David sayde: What haue I done, & what hast thou marked in thy seruauant, sence y^e tyme that I haue bene in y^e presence vnto this daye, that I shulde not come and fighte agaynst the enemies of my lordes the kyng? Achis answered and sayde vnto David: I knowe well that thou pleasest myne eyes eue as an angell of God. But the prynces of y^e philistynes haue sayde: Let him not go vp with vs vnto the batayll. Get the vp therfore comow by tymes, and y^e lordes seruantes which are come with the. And whan ye haue gotten you vp early in the mornynge, whan it is lighte, go y^e waye. So David & his men gat them vp early, to go their waye in the mornynge, and to come agayne in to the londe of the philistynes. But the philistynes wente vp towarde Iesrael.

OW whan David came to Siclag on the thirde daie with his men, the Amalechites had falle in on y^e south parte and at Siclag, and had smytten Siclag, and burned it with fyre, and had caried awaye the womē out of it, both small & greater. Nevertheless they had slayne no man, but dryuen the thence, and were goynge on their waye. Now whan David with his men came to the cite, and sawe that it was brent with fyre, and that their wyues, sonnes & daughters were led awaye captiue, David and the people that was with him leste vp their voyce, and wepte so longe tyll they coulde wepe nomore. For Davids two wyues also were caried awaye captiue, Ahinoam y^e Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And David was very sorowfull, for the people wolde haue stoned him: for y^e soule of all the people was in greete hevynes, every one over his sonnes and daughters.

B Utertheles David strenghted him selfe in the LORDE his God, & sayde unto Abiathar & priest the sonne of Ahimelech: Bynge me hither the overbody cote. And whan Abiathar had broughte the overbody cote unto David, David arode at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I folowe upon the men of warre, and shal I ouertake them? He sayde: Yee, folowe vpon them, thou shalt ouertake them, and shalt rescue the pray. Then wente David his waye, and the sixe hundred men that were with him. And whan they came to the ryuer of Besor, some stode styll. But David and the foure hundred men folowed after: As for the two hundred men that stode styll, they had bene slowe to go over the ryuer of Besor.

C And they founde a man of Egipte vpon the felde, him they broughte vnto David, & gaue him bried to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue him a quantite of fygges, & two quantities of rasyns. And whan he had eaten, his spere came to him againe: for in thre dayes and thre nightes he had eate no bried, and dronke no water.

C David sayde vnto him: Whose art thou? & whence art thou? He sayde: I am a childe of Egipte, an Amalechites seruaunt, & my master hath forsaken me, because I was sicke thre dayes a goo. We sell her in towarde & south syde of Chereus, and vpon Juda, and towarde & south parte of Caleb, & haue burned Sidlag with fyre.

David sayde vnto him: Wilt thou bringe me downe to these men of warre? He sayde: Swear vnto me by God, & thou shalt not slaye me, ner deluyne me in to my masters hande, and I wil bringe the downe to these men of warre. And he broughte the downe, and beholde, they were scatred vpon all & ground, eatinge and drynkyng, and kepyng holy daye, and were makinge mery there, because of all the greate spoyle that they had taken out of the londe of the philistynes and of Juda.

D And David smote them from & morowtill the even, agaynst the nexte daye, so that there escaped none, excepte foure hundred yonge men, which rode vpon camels, & fled. So David rescued all that the Amalechites had taken, and his two wyues, & there mysfled nothinge, nether small ner greete, nether sonnes ner daughters, ner spoyle: and what so euer they had taken, David broughte all agayne. And David toke the shepe and oxe, and broue & catell before him. And they sayde: This is Davids spoyle.

And whan David came to the two hundred men, which had bene slowe to folow after David, and abode at the ryuer of Besor, they wente forth to meete David, and the people & was with him. And David came to the people, and saluted them frendly.

Then answered soch men as were called Belials men (amonge them that had gone with David) and sayde: Seynge they were not wth vs, they shal haue none of the spoyle that we haue rescued: but let every man ke his wife & his children and be gone.

Then sayde David: Ye shall not do so, my brethren) with that which & LORDE hath geuen vs, and hath preserved vs, and deluyred these men of warre (which were come agaynst vs) in to oure handes. Who shalbe of us, that wente downe to the battayle, so shal & porcion be of them also that abode wth the stuffe, & shalbe denyded a lyte.

From that tyme forth hath this been an ordinance & lawe in Israel vnto this daye. And whan David came to Siclag, before of the spoyle vnto the Elders in Juda his neighbours, and sayde: Beholde, there hath ye the blessinge out of the spoyle of the enemies of the LORDE, namely vnto them of Bethel, vnto them at Ramath in the south, vnto them at Jathir, vnto them at Aroa, vnto them at Siphamoth, vnto them at Eschemoa, vnto them at Rachal, vnto them in the cities of the Jerahmeelites, vnto them in the cities of the Kenites, vnto them at Hazor, vnto them at Boisan, vnto them at Aith, vnto them at Hebion, and vnto all the places where David had walked wth his men.

The XXXI. Chapter.

B Ute & philistynes foughte agaynst Israel, and the men of Israel fled before the philistynes, and fell downe smytten vpon the mount Gilboa. And the philistynes preassed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and slewe Jonathas, & Abinadab and Malchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayll was sore agaynst Saul, & the archers fell vpon him with bowes, and he was wounded of the archers.

Then sayde Saul vnto his wapenbearer: Drawe out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not and flate me, and make a laughinge stocke of me. Utertheles his wapenbearer wolde not, for he was sore afayed. Then toke Saul his swerde, and fell therein. Now whan his wapenbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell also vpon his swerde, and dyed with him. Thus dyed Saul and his thre sonnes, & his wapenbearer, and all his men together the same daye.

Whan & men of Israel which were beyond the valley, and beyonde Jordane, sawe, & the men of Israel were fled, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they leste & cities, and fled also. Then came the philistynes, & dwelt therein.

C On the nexte daye came the philistynes to spoyle & slayne, and founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gilboa, and fowte of his heade, and toke of his harnesse, and sent it in to the lande of the philistynes rounde aboute, to shewe it in the house of their Idols, and amonge the people, & layed his harnesse in & house of Ashtaroth: but his body hanged they vp vpon the wall of Bethsan.

Whan they of Jabes in Gilead herde, what the philistynes had done vnto Saul, they gat them vp, as many as were men of armes, and wente all the nighte, and toke & body of Saul, and the bodies of his sonnes from & wall of Bethsan, broughte the to Jabes, and burnt them there, and toke their bones, and buried them vnder & tree at Jabes, & fasted seuen dayes.

After the death of Saul when David was come agayne from the slaughter of the Amalechites, and had remayned two dayes at Siclag, beholde, on the thirde daye there came a man out of Sauls hoost, with his clothes rente, and earth vpon his heade. And when he came vnto David, he fell downe to the grounde, and worshipped. David sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou? He sayde vnto him: Out of the hoost of Israel am I fled. David sayde vnto him: Tell me, what is the matter? He sayde: the people is fled from the battayll, and many of the people are fallen: And Saul also is deed and his sonne Jonathas. David sayde vnto the yonge man that brought him this worde: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne are deed? The yonge man answered him this, sayde: I came by chance vnto mount Gelboa, and beholde, Saul leaned vpon his speare, and the charrettes and horses followed harde after him: and he turned him aboute, and sawe me, and called me. And I sayde: Here am I. And he sayde vnto me: What art thou? I sayde vnto him: I am an Amalechite. And he saide vnto me: Come to me, and kyll me, for anguyshe hath gotten holde of me: for my life is yet whole within me. Then stept I to him, and slewe him, for I knowe well that he coulde not lye after his fall. And I toke the crowne from his heade, and the armelet from his arme, and haue broughte it here vnto my lord. Then toke David holde of his clothes, and rente them, and so dyd all the men that were with him, and mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntill the even, ouer Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and ouer the people of the LORD, and ouer the house of Israel, because they were fallen thorow the swerde.

C And David sayde to the yonge man that broughte him worde: What art thou? He sayde: I am the sonne of a stranger an Amalechite. David sayde: How happeneth it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thine hand vpon the LORDS anointed to destroye him? And David sayde vnto one of his yonge men: Come hither, and slaye him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde David vnto him: Thy bloude be vpon thine owne heade. For thy mouth hath spoken against thyselfe and sayde: I haue slayne the anointed of the LORD. And David mourned this lamentacion ouer Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and commaunded to teach the child of Juda the bowe. Beholde, it is written in the boke of the righteous.

The eldest in Israel are slayne vpon the heighe of the. How are the Worthies fallen. Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in the stretes at Ascalon: lest the daughters of the Philistynes reioyse, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumphe.

The mountaynes of Gelboa, nether denner rayne come vnto you, nether lode be made of corneth: here offer ynges: for there is the shyld of the Worthies smytten downe, the shyld of Saul, as though he had not beene anointed with oyle.

The bowe of Jonathas sayled not, and the swerde of Saul came not agayne vnto de from the bloude of the slayne, and fro the fat of the giauntes.

Saul and Jonathas lonely and pleasant in their lyfe, and in their deeth were not parted asunder: lighter then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons.

The daughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul which clothed you with purple in pleasures, and decked you with Jewels of golde in youre garmentes.

How are the Worthies fallen so in the battayll: Jonathas is slayne vpon the heighe of the.

I am sorry for the my brother Jonathas: thou hast bene very loyal vnto me: Thy lye hath bene more speciall vnto me, then the lone of women.

How are the Worthies fallen, and the weapons destroyed?

The II. Chapter.

After these actes David arose at the LORDS, and sayde: Shall I go vnto one of the cities of Juda? And the LORDS sayde vnto him: Go vp. David sayde: Whither? He sayde: Vnto Hebron. So David wente thither with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail the bala wyfe of Carmel. And David brought vnto the men that were with him also, every one with his housholde, and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron. And the men of Juda came, and there they anointed him kyng ouer the house of Juda.

And when it was tolde David, that the men of Iabes in Gilead had buried Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: Blessed be ye of the LORD, that ye haue done this mercy vpon youre lord Saul, and haue buried him. The LORD therefore shewe maner now and faithfulness vpon you. And because ye haue done this, I also will do you good. Let youre harte now therefore be comforted, and be ye stronger: for though Saul youre lord be deed, yet hath the house of Juda chosen me to be kyng ouer them.

But Abner the sonne of Ner, which was Sauls chiefe captayne, toke Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul, and broughte him thorow the hoost, and made him kyng ouer Gilead, Assur, Iesrael, Ephraim, Ben Jamin and ouer all Israel. And Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul was fourtye yeare olde, when he was made kyng of Israel, and he reigned two yeares. But the house of Juda helde with David. The tyme that David was kyng at Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was seven yeares and sixe monethes longe.

And Abner the sonne of Ner wente forth with the seruantes of Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul, out of the hoost vnto Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Seru Ja wente forth with Davids seruantes, and they met together by the pole at Gibeon, and theselaye on the one syde of the pole, the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde vnto Joab: Let the yonge men get them vp, and playe before vs. Joab sayde: Let them aryse. Then gat they them vp, and wente in nombre twelue of Ben Jamin on Ishbosheth Sauls sonnes syde, and twelue of Davids seruantes. And every one gat another by the heade, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and fell together: therefore is the place called Helath hazurim (that is, the fild of the Worthies) which is at Gibeon.

C And there arose a sore harde battayll the same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to flight of Davids seruantes. The sonnes of Seru Ja were there, Joab, Abisai, and Asahel. As for Asahel, he was lighter of fete as a Roode in the feld, and followed after Abner, and turned not asyde nether to the righte hande nether to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner turned him aboute, and sayde: Art thou Asahel? He sayde: Yee. Abner sayde vnto him: Go thy waye ether to the righte hande or to the lefte, and get the one of the yonge men, and take his harnesse from him. Nevertheless he wolde not leane of fro him. Then sayde Abner agayne to Asahel: Get the awaye from me, why wilt thou that I smyte thee to the grounde? and how darre I lifte up my face before my brother Joab? Howbeit he wolde not go his waye.

Then Abner thrust him in with a speare into his belly, so that the speare wente out behynde him. And there he fell and dyed before him: and who so came to the place where Asahel laye deed, stode still there. But Joab and Abisai followed vpon Abner, till the sonne wente downe. And when they came to the hyll of Amma, which lieth before Giah, by the waye to the wilderness of Gibeon, the children of Ben Jamin gathered them selves together behynde Abner, and grewe to a multitude, and stode vpon the toppe of an hyll.

D And Abner called vnto Joab, and sayde: Shal the swerde be deuoure without end? Knowest thou not, that it will be bytter at the last: how longe will it be or thou saie it to the people, that they leane of from their brethren? Joab sayde: As truly as God lyueth, yf thou haddest sayde thus daye in the morninge, the people had ceased every one from his brother. And Joab blew the trompet, and all the people stode still, and followed nomore vpon Israel, nether foughte they any more.

Abner and his men wente all that same night ouer the playne felde, and passed ouer Jordane, and walked thorow all Bichron, and came to the tentes. Joab turned him from Abner, and gathered all the people together. And of Davids seruantes there myssed nyntene men, and Asahel. But Davids seruantes had smytten so amonge Ben Jamin and the men of Abner, that thre hundred and thre score men were deed. And they toke vnto Asahel, and buried him in his fathers graue at Bethleem. And Joab with his men wente all that night: and at the breake of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The III. Chapter.

And there was a longe battayll betwene the house of Saul and the house of David. But David wente and increased, and the house of Saul wente and diminished. And vnto David were children borne at Hebron. His firstborne sonne Ammon of Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse: the seconde Chisleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmel: the thirde Absalon the sonne of Maacha the daughter of Thalmay kyng of Geshur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagitha the syfth Saphatiah the sonne of Abital: the sixte Iethream of Egla Davids wife. These were borne vnto David at Hebron.

Now when it was warre betwene the house of Saul: the house of David, Abner strengthened Sauls house. And Saul had had a concubine, whose name was Rissa the daughter of Aia. And Ishbosheth sayde vnto Abner: Wherefore liest thou with my fathers concubine?

The ii. boke of the kynges.

Then was Abner very wroth at these wordes of Iſbosheth, and sayde: Am I a dogges heade then, that I agaynst Iuda do mercy vnto the house of Saul thy father, and vnto his brethren and kynnesfolkes? and haue not deliuered the into thy hande of David, and thou layest a trespass to my charge this daye for a womans sake? God do Abner this and that, yf I do not: as the LORD hath sworn vnto David, that the kyngdome maye be taken fro the house of Saul, and yf state of David set vp ouer Iſrael and Iuda, from Dan vnto Berseba. Then coulde he not answer him one worde agayne, he feared him so.

And Abner sent messengers vnto David, sayenge: Whose is the londe? And sayde: Make thy couenaunt with me. Beholde, my hande shall be with the, to turne all Iſrael vnto the.

He sayde: Wel, I wyll make a couenaunt with the, but one thyng I desyre of the, that thou se not my face, excepte thou bringe me first Michol Saules daughter, whan thou comest to se my face. David sent messengers also vnto Iſbosheth the sonne of Saul, sayenge: Give me my wyfe Michol, whom I married with an hundred shekels of the Philistynes. Iſbosheth sent, and caused for to take her from the man: Paltiel the sonne of Laish. And his husbande wente with her, and wepte behynde her vnto Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto him: Turne backe agayne, and go thy waye. And he turned backe agayne.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Iſrael, and sayde: Your myndes haue bene set afore tyme and longe ago vpon David, that he mighte be kyng ouer you, do it now therefore, for the LORD hath sayde of David: I wil deliuer my people of Iſrael by the hande of David my seruante, from the hande of the Philistynes, and from the hande of all their enemies.

Abner spake also before the eares of Ben Jamin, and wente to speake before the eares of David at Hebron all that Iſrael and the whole house of Ben Jamin was contented withall. Now whan Abner came to Hebron vnto David, and cōtēry men with him, David made them a feast. And Abner sayde vnto David: I wyll get me vp, and go gather all Iſrael together to my lord the kyng, and that they maye make a couenaunt with the, that thou mayest be kyng, at thy soules desyre.

So David let Abner go from him in peace. And beholde, David seruantes and Iſbosheth came from the men of warre, and brought a greatespoyle with them. And Abner was not now with David at Hebron, for he had sent him from him, so that he was gone by waye in peace.

But whan Joab and all the host with him was come, it was tolde him that Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, and how he had sent him fro him, so that he was gone his waye in peace. Then wente Joab in to the kyng, and sayde: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner came to the, why hadst thou sent him from the, that he is gone his waye? Knowest thou not Abner the sonne of Ner? For he came to the to disceane, that he mighte knowe thy outgoynge, and ingoynge, and to spie out all that thou doest. And whan Joab wente out from David, he sent messengers after Abner, to fetch him agayne from Boharsira, and David knewe not thereof. Now whan Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Joab brought him in to middes vnder a gate, to talke wth him secretly, and thrust him there in to a bely that he dyed, because of his brother Asahels bloud.

Whan David knewe of it thereafter, he sayde: I am vngiltye, and so is my kyngdome for ever before the LORD: because I have geue the bloude of Abner my sonne of Ner: but vpon the heade of Joab fall it, and vpon all his fathers house, and in the house of Joab there ceasse not one to haue a remynge of a leprosy, and to go vpon a staffe, and fall thorow the swerde, and to haue carnell of bled. Thus Joab and his brother Asahel slew Abner, because he had slayne their brother Asahel in the battaill at Gibeon.

David sayde vnto Joab and to all his people that was with him: Rente youre clothes, and gyde sack cloth aboute you, and make lamentacion for Abner. And the kyng wente after the Bere. And whan they buryd Abner at Hebron, the kyng lifte vp his voice, and wepte besyde Abners graue, and all the people wepte also.

And the kyng mourned for Abner, and sayde: Abner is not deed as a foole dyth. Thy handes were not bounde, thy feet were not vexed with fetters, thou art fallen as a man falleth be fore wicked men hufes. Thus all the people bewailed him yet more.

Now whan all the people came in to cōtēry with David, whyle it was yet hye daye, David swore, and sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf I cause ether bled or ouerwhelme afore the Sone go downe. And all the people knewe it, and it pleased them well all that the kyng dyd in the sighte of all the people. And all the people and all Iſrael perceaued the same daye, that it came not of the kyng, that Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne. And the kyng sayde vnto his seruantes: Knowe ye not that this daye a pryncce and a grete man is fallen in Iſrael? As for me, I am yet but tender and anoynted kyng. But the men the children of Zeruia are to harde for me. The LORD recompence him that doth euill, accordinge to his wickednes.

The iii. Chapter.

Whan Saules sonne herde that Abner was dead at Hebron, his handes were fible, and all Iſrael was sory. But there were two men captaynes ouer the soldiers vnder the sonne of Saul, the one was called Baena, the other Rehob, sonnes of Rimmon: for Berorh was colired also in Ben Jamin. And the Berorhites were fled vnto Gethaim, and were strangers there vnto this daye. Jonathas also the sonne of Saul had a sonne which was lame on his fete, and was fyue yeare olde whan the rumoure of Saul and Jonathas came from Iſrael. And his wyfe toke him, and fled. And whyle she made haist and fled, he fell, and was lame: And his name was Mephibosheth.

Then wente the sonnes of Rimmon and Berorhite, Rehob and Baena, and came to the house of Iſbosheth, in the heate of the daye, and he laye vpo his bed at the noone daie. And they came in to the house to fetch wheate, and thrust him in the bely, and gat them awaye. For whan they came in to his house, he laye vpo his bed in his chamber, and they stucke him to death, and smote of his heade, and toke his heade, and departed by the waye of the playne felde all that nighte, and broughte the heade of Iſbosheth to David vnto Hebron, and sayde vnto the kyng: Beholde, there is the heade of Iſbosheth the sonne of Saul thine enemye, which layed wayte for thy soule. This daye hath the LORD auenged my lord the kyng of Saul and his seide.

Then answered David vnto Rehob and Baena his brother, and sonnes of Rimmon and Berorhite, and sayde: As truly as the LORD liueth, which hath deliuered my soule out of all trouble, I toke him and broughte me word and sayde: Saul is deed, and he thoughte he had bene a good messenger, and at Sidad I put him to death, vnto whom I shuld haue given a rewarde for his message,

The v. Chap. Fo. xliij.

And these vngodly personnes haue slayne a righteous man in his owne house vpon his bed. Now shulde not I requyre his bloude of youre handes, and take you a waye from the earth? And David commaunded his yongmen, which slew them, and smote of their handes and fete, and hanged them vp by a pole at Hebron. But the heade of Iſbosheth toke they, and buried it in Abners graue at Hebron.

The v. Chapter.

And all the trybes of Iſrael came to David vnto Hebron, and sayde: Beholde, we are thy bone and thy flesh. And afore tyme whan Saul was kyng ouer vs, thou leddest Iſrael out and in. So the LORD hath sayde: Thou shalt kepe my people of Iſrael, and shalt be the duke ouer Iſrael. And all the Elders in Iſrael came to the kyng vnto Hebron. And kyng David made a couenaunt with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anoynted David to be kyng ouer Iſrael. Thyrtye yeare olde was David whan he was made kyng, and reigned fortye yeares. At Hebron raigned he seuen yeares and sixe monethes ouer Iuda: but at Jerusalem he reigned thre and thirtie yeares ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

And the kyng wente with his men to Jerusalem, agaynst the Jebusites, which dwelt in the londe. Nevertheless they sayde vnto David: Thou shalt not come hither but the blynde and lame shal dyue and awaite. (They thoughte plainly, that David shulde not come in.) Howbeit David wanne the castell of Sion, which is the cite of David. Then sayde David the same daye: Who seuer smytheth the Jebusites, and openeth the perquellies, the lame and the blynde, which (Jebusites) Dauids soule hateth. Herof cometh the prouerbe: Let no blynde ner lame come in to the house. So David dwelt in the castell, and called it the cite of David. And David builded residue aboute fro Millo and within. And David grewe, and the LORD the God Zebaoth was with him.

And Hiram the kyng of Tyre sent messengers vnto David, and Cedar trees for walles, and Carpenters, and Masons, to build David an house. And David knewe, that the LORD had consumed him kyng ouer Iſrael, and exalted his kyngdome for his people of Iſraels sake. And David toke yet more wyues and concubynes at Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron, and there were yet more sonnes and daughters borne vnto him. And these are the names of them that were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samma Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Iehohar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, Eliphazer.

And whan the philistines herde that Dauid was anoynted kinge ouer Israel, they wete vp all to sette Dauid. Whan Dauid perceaued that, he wete downe in to a castell. But the philistynes came and scattered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid ayled at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the philistynes? and wylt thou deliuer them in to my hande? The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyl deliuer the philistynes in to thy hande.

And Dauid came vnto Baal prazim, and smote the there, and sayde: The LORDE hath decayded myne enemies, euen as the waters parte asunder: therfore is the same place called Baal prazim. And they leste their ymagines there, but Dauid and his men caried the awaye.

Neuerthelasse the philistynes wente vp agayne, and scattered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid ayled at the LORDE. The LORDE sayde: Thou shalt go vp, but compasse them behinde, that thou mayest be vpon them euer agaynst the peertrees: and whan thou hearest vpon the toppe of the peertrees, the sounde of the goinge be helde, for then is the LORDE gone forth before the, to smyte: the hoost of the philistines. Dauid dyd as the LORDE commaunded him and smote the philistynes from Geba, tyll thou comest vnto Gaser.

The VI. Chapter.

And Dauid gathered agayne all the yonge chosen men in Israel, euen thie thousande, and gat him vp, and wente with all the people that was with him of the tribes of Juda, to fetch vp the Arke of God from thence: whose name is: The name of the LORDE Zebaoth dwelleth thereon betwene the Cherubins. And they caused the arke of God to be caried vpo a new cart, and fetched it out of the house of Abinadab, which dwelt at Gibeon. Vsa and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab drewe the new cart. And whan they broughte it with the Arke from the house of Abinadab which dwelt at Gibeon, Ahio wente before the Arke: and Dauid and all the house of Israel played before the LORDE, with all manner of instrumentes of pine tre, with harpes, and psalteries, and tabrettes, and belles, and Cymbals.

And whan they came to the barnefloore of Nahon, Vsa stretched out his hande, and helde the Arke of God, for the oportunityte out asyde. Then waxed the wrath of the LORDE scarce agaynst Vsa, and God smote him there because of his presumption, so that he dyed there besyde the Arke of God. And was Dauid sory, because the LORDE had made soch a rente vpon Vsa, and he called the same place Perez Vsa vnto this daye. And Dauid feared the LORDE the same daie, and sayde: How shall the Arke of the LORDE come vnto me? And he wolde not let it be broughte to him in to the cite of Dauid, he caused it be broughte in to the house of Obed Edom the Gathite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had continued thre monethes in the house of Obed Edom the Gathite, the LORDE blessed him and all his house.

And it was tolde konge Dauid, that the LORDE had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that he had because of the Arke of God. Then wente he, and fetched vp the Arke of God out of the house of Obed Edom in to the cite of Dauid with ioye. And whan they were gone fise steppes in with the Arke of the LORDE, they offered an oxe and a shepe. And Dauid daunced wth all his might before the LORDE, and was girded with an ouerbordy cote of lynn. And Dauid with all Israel broughte vp the Arke of the LORDE with tabrettes and trompettes.

And whan the Arke of the LORDE came in to the cite of Dauid, Michol the daughter of Saul looked out at a window, and sawe konge Dauid leapinge, sprynginge and dasyng before the LORDE, and despyed him in his hert. But whan they broughte in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in his place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offered burnt offerynges and deed offerynges before the LORDE. And whan Dauid had made an end of offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE Zebaoth, and deale out vnto all the people, and to the multitude of Israel, both to man and womā, vnto every one a cake of bred, and a peece of flesh, and a meece of pottage. Then wente all the people their waye, every one vnto his house.

Whan Dauid came agayne to blesse his house, Michol the daughter of Saul wente forth to mete him, and sayde: How glorious hath the konge of Israel bene to daye, which hath covered himselfe before the maydes of his seruantes, like as the rascall people discover them selues. But Dauid saide vnto Michol: I wil playe before the LORDE, which hath chosen me afore the father, and afore all his house, because he hath commaunded me to be the pryncce ouer the people of the LORDE, euen ouer Israel, and yet wyl I be vylter then so, and wyl be lowe in myne owne sight: and with the maydens wherof thou hast spoken, wyl I be honoured. As for Michol the daughter of Saul, she had no childe vnto the daye of hir deatch.

The VII. Chapter.

Now whan the konge sat in his house, and the LORDE had geuen him rest from all his enemies on euery syde, he sayde vnto the prophet Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedre, and the Arke of God dwelleth amonge the curtaynes. Nathan sayde vnto the konge: So thy waye, what so euer thou hast in thine hert, do: for the LORDE is wth the. But the same nyght came the worde of the LORDE vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go and speake to my seruante Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Shalt thou buyde me an house to dwell in? I haue dwelle in no house sence the daye that I broughte the children of Israel vnto this daye, but haue walked in the Tabernacle and habitacion, whiche so euer I wente with the children of Israel. Dyd I euer speake to eny of the trybes of Israel (whom I commaunded to kepe my people of Israel)? sayde: Wherfore do ye not buyde me an house of Cedar wood?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruante Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: I toke the from the pasture whan thou wentest behynde the shepe, and thou shalt be the pryncce euer my people of Israel, and haue bene wth the whiche so euer thou wentest, and haue roted out all thine enemies before the, and haue made the a greate name, accordinge to the name of the greate men vpon earth. And for my people of Israel I wyl appoynte a place, and wyl plante them, that they maye remayne there, nomore to be removed, and the childre of wickednes oppresse them nomore, like as afore, and sence the tyme that I ordeyned Iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl geue the rest from all thine enemies. And the LORDE sheweth the, that the LORDE wyl make the a house.

Now whan the tyme is fulfilled, and thou shalt slepe wth thy fathers, I wil after the rayse vp thy syde, which shal come of thy body: his kyngdome wyl I stablish, he shal buyde an house for my name, and I wyl stablish the seate of his kyngdome for euer. I

wyl be his father, and he shall be my sonne. Whan he doth a trespace, I wyl reprove him with the rodd of men and with the plagges of the childre of men: But my mercy shal not be withdrawn fro him, as I haue with drawen it fro Saul, whos I haue take awaye before the. As for the house and thy kyngdome, it shal be stablished for euer before the, and thy seate shal endure fast for euermore.

Whan Nathan had tolde all these wordes, and all this vision vnto Dauid, konge Dauid came and sat him downe before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God, who am I? and what is my house, and thou hast broughte me thus farre? This O LORDE God hast thou thoughte to litle also, but hast spoken of the house of thy seruante yet longe for to come. O LORDE God, is that the lawe of men?

And what shall Dauid speake vnto the? thou knowest thy seruante O LORDE God, for thy wordes sake and accordinge to the hert hast thou done all these greates thinges, and thou mightest shewe the vnto thy seruante. Therfore art thou greatly magnified O LORDE God: for there is none like the, and there is no God but thou, accordinge vnto all that we haue herde with our eares. For where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel? For whose sake God wente to deliuer him a people, and to make him selfe a name, and to do them soch greates and terrible thinges in thy lode before the people, whom thou hast deliuered vnto thy selfe fro Egipte, from the people, and from their goddes. And thy people of Israel hast thou prepared the to be a people vnto thyne owne selfe for euer, and thou O LORDE art become their God.

Stablish now the worde therfore for euer (O LORDE God) which thou hast spokē ouer thy seruante and ouer his house, and do accordinge as thou hast sayde. So shall thy name be greates for euer, so that it shal be sayde: The LORDE Zebaoth is the God euer Israel, and the house of thy seruante Dauid shal be made sure before the. For thou LORDE Zebaoth, thou God of Israel hast opened the eare of thy seruante, and sayde: I wil buyde the an house. Therfore hath the seruante founde his hert, to praye this prayer vnto the. Now LORDE God thou thy selfe art God, and thy wordes shal be the trueth. Thou hast spoken soch good ouer thy seruante. Begynne now therfore, and blesse the seruantes house, that it maye be before the for euer, for thou LORDE God thine awne selfe hast spoken it: and with thy blessinge shal thy seruantes honse be blessed for ever.

The VIII. Chapter.

And it fortuneth after this, & David smote & philistynes, and discomfited them, and toke the brydell of bondage out of the philistynes hande. * He smote the Moabites also to the grounde, so that he broughte two partes of them to death, and let one parte lyue. Thus the Moabites were subdued vnto David, so & they brought te him giftees.

David smote Hadad Eser also the sonne of Rehob kyng of Zoba, whan he wote to ferch his power agayne at & water Euphrates. And of them toke David a thousande & seuen hundred hoysmen, and twenty thousande fet: men, and lamed all the charettes, saue an hundred which he keppe behynde.
But the Siryans came from Damascon to helpe Hadad Eser kyng of Zoba. And Da-uid smote two and twenty thousande men of the Syrians, and layed people vnto Damascus in Syria.

Thus was Syria subdued vnto David,
so that they broughte him giftees: for & LOR-DE helped David whiche so euer he wente.
And David toke & shyldes of golde, which Hadad Eser seruantes had, and broughte te them to Jerusalem. But from Bethah & Berochai & cities of Hadad Eser toke Da-uid very moch brasse.

B * Whan Thoi the kyng of Hemath her-de, that David had smytten alle the power of Hadad Eser, he sent his sonne Joiam vnto
David to salute him frendly, & to blesse him, because he had foughten with Adad Eser and smytten him (for Thoi had warre with Hadad Eser) and had Jewels with him of syluer, of golde, and of brasse: which kyng David halowed also vnto & LORDE, with the syluer and golde which he sanctified vnto the LORDE from all the heyth, whom he subdued, from Siria, fro Moab, from the childre of Ammon, from the philistynes, fro Amalek, from the spoyle of Hadad Eser & sonne of Rehob kyng of Zoba.

C David gat him selfe a name also whan he came, * and smote eighrene thousande of & Sirians in & Salt valley. And he layed people in all Edomea, * and all Edom was subdued vnto David: for the LORDE helped David, whiche so euer he wente. Thus was David kyng over all Israel. And he executed iudgemente and righteousnes vnto all & people. * Joab & sonne of Zeru Ja was captayne over the hoost. Josaphat the sonne of thar were prestes. Seraia was Scribe. Be-naia the sonne of Joiada was ouer & Chu-thians & Plethians. And the sonnes of Da-uid were * prestes.

The IX. Chapter.

And David sayde: Remayneth ther yet eny man of Sauls house, that I maye do mercy vpon him for Jona-thas sake? There was a seruante of Saul house, named Siba, whom they called vnto David, & the kyng sayde vnto him: An-thou Siba? He sayde: Yee thy seruante. The kyng sayde: Is there yet eny man of Sauls house, & I maye do the mercy of God vpon him? Siba sayde vnto the kyng: There is yet a sonne of Jonathas, lame on his feet.
The kyng sayde vnto him: Where is he? Si-ba sayde vnto & kyng: Beholde, he is at Lidaber in & house of Machir & sonne of Am-muel. The kyng sayde: I will sende & call for to ferch him from Lidaber out of & house of Machir the sonne of Ammuel.

Now whan Mephiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul came vnto Da-uid, he fell vpon his face, & worshiped him.
David sayde: Mephiboseth. He sayde: I am
I thy seruante. David sayde vnto him:
Feare not, for I will do mercy vpon the for thy father Jonathas sake, and wil restore vnto the alle the londe of thy father Saul: but thou shalt eate bred daylie at my table. He worshiped and sayde: Who am I thy seruant, that thou turnest the to a deed dogg
as I am?

Then the kyng called Siba & seruante of Saul, and sayde vnto him: All & hath belonged vnto Saul & to all his house, haue I geuen to thy lordes sonne. Tyl his londe for him therfore, thou & thy children & seruantes, & brynge it in, & it maye be bred for & la-des sonne, and & he maye enioye it: but Mephiboseth & lordes sonne shal eate bred day-lie at my table. Siba had systene sonnes & twenty seruantes. And Siba sayde vnto & kyng: Acordinge vnto all as my lord the kyng hath commaunded his seruante, so shal his seruante do. And let Mephiboseth (sayde David) eate at my table, as one of the kynges owne children. And Mephiboseth had a yonge sonne, whose name was Micha.
But all & dwelt in the house of Siba, seruant Mephiboseth. As for Mephiboseth him selfe, he dwelt at Jerusalem: for he ate daylie at the kynges table * and was lame on both his feet.

The X. Chapter.

And it fortuneth after this, that & kyng of the children of Ammon dyed, & his sonne Hanun was kyng in his steade. Then sayde David: I will do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nahas, as his father dyd mercy vpon me. And so he sent, and comforted him by his seruantes ouer his fathers death. Now whan Davids seruantes came into the londe of the children of Ammon, the mightie men of the children of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun their lord: Thy-nest thou it is for the honer of & father in sighte, & David hath sent comforters vnto
the: hath he not sent his seruantes vnto & (thynkest thou) to spy and search out the cite and to overthrowe it?

B Then toke Hanun the seruantes of Da-uid, and shoue of the one halve of their beer-des, and cut of the halfe of their garmetes euen by the girbell, and so let them go. Whā this was tolde David, he sent to mete them:
for the men were put to greate shame. And the kyng caused to saye vnto them: Abide at Jericho, tyll youre beerdes be growne, &
then come agayne.

Whan the childre of Ammon sawe that they stynted in the sighte of David, they sent and hyed the Sirians of the house of Rehob, and the Sirians at Zoba euen twentye thousande fore men, and from the kyng of Maacha a thousande men, and from Jstob two hundred men. Whan David herder that, he sent Joab with all the hoost of & men of warre. And the children of Ammon wente forth, and prepared them selues to & battayll before the intrance of the gate.
But the Sirians of Soba, of Rehob, of Jstob and of Maacha were alone in the felde.

C Now whan Joab sawe that the battayll was set vpo him before and behynde, he chose of all the best yonge men in Israel, & prepared him selfe agaynst the Syrians. And the resydue of the people put he vnder the hande of his brother Abisai, that he mighte prepare him agaynst the childre of Ammon.
And sayde: If & Syrians be to mightie for me, helpe thou me: but if the children of Ammon be to mightie for the, I shal helpe the.
Take a good courage vnto the, and let vs be stronge for oure people, and for & cite of oure God: neuertheles the LORDE do what pleaseth him.

And Joab made him forth with the people that was with him, to fighte agaynst the Syrians: and they fled before him. And

The xi. Chap. Ho. xliij.

whan the children of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai, & wente in to the cite. So Joab turned agayne from the children of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And whan the Syrians sawe & they were smytten before Israel, they came together.

And Hadad Eser sent & broughte out &
Syrians beyonde the water, and conueyed their power in, & Sobath the chese captayne of Hadad Eser wente before the. Whan this was tolde David, he gathered all Israel together, & wente over Jordane, and came to Helam, & the Syrians prepared them sel-ues agaynst David to fighte with him, howbeit the Syrians fled before Israel. And Da-uid slewe of the Syrians seuē hundred cha-rettes, & fourye thousande hoysmen, & Sobath the chese captaigne smote he also, so that he dyed there. Whan the kynges which were vnder Adad Eser, sawe, that they were smytten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and were subdued vnto them. And the Syrians were afrayed to helpe the children of Ammon eny more.

The XI. Chapter.

And whan & yeare came aboute what tyme as & kynges use to go forth, Da-uid sent Joab and his seruantes with him, and all Israel, to destroye the children of Ammon, and to laye sege vnto Rabbat
but David abode at Jerusalem.

And aboute the enetyde it fortuneth that David arose from his restinge place, & wen-te vp to & toppe of the kynges palace, and from & toppe he sawe a woman * wasshin-ge hir selfe, and the woman was of a very fayre bewtye. And David sent, and caused to are what woman it was, and sayde: Is not that Bethseba the doughter of Eliam the wife of Duias the Gethite? And David sent messenger, and caused for to ferch her. And whā she was come in vnto him, he laye with her. Neuertheles she halowed hir selfe from hir vncleines, and turned a gayne vnto h house. And the womā was with childe, and sent, and caused to tell David and to saye: I am with childe. David sent vnto Joab (saye ge:) Send me Uias & Hethite. And Joab sent Uias vnto David. And whan Uias came to him, David ased him yf it stode well with Joab, and with the people and with the battayll.

B And David sayde to Uias: Go downein to thy house, and wash thy fete. And whan Uias wente out of the kynges palace, the kynges giste folowed him. And Uias layed him downe to slepe before the kynges palace gate, where all his lordes seruantes laye, & wente not downe in to his house. Whan word came to David: Uias is not gone downe in to his house, David sayde vnto him: Camest thou not ouer the felde? Why wentest thou not downe in to thy house? Uias sayde vnto David: The Arke and Israel & Juda abyde in the tentes: And Joab my lord and my lordes seruantes lye in & felde, and shal I go in to my house to eate and drynke, and to lye with my wyfe? As truly as thou luyest, and as truly as thy soule luyeth, I wyll not do this thinge. David sayde vnto Uias: Abyde here then to daye, to morow wil I let the go. So Uias abode at Jerusalem the same daye, and the nexte also. And David called him to eate & drynke before him, & made him dronken. And at even he wente to lye him downe for to slepe vpon his couche with his lordes seruantes, and wente not downe in to his house.

C On the morow wrote David a letter vnto Joab, & sent it by Uias. After this maner wrote he in the letter: Set Uias in & forst parte of & batayll, & turne you behynde him, & he maye be slayne. Now whā Joab layed sege to the cite, he set Uias in & place, where he knewe & the mightiest men of Aimes were. And whan the men of the cite fell out and foughte agaynst Joab, there fell certayne of & people of David's seruantes. And Uias the Hethite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, and caused to tell & kyng all the matter concernynge the battayll, and comaunded the messaunger, and sayde: Whan thou hast tolde & kyng all the matter concernynge the batayll, and seist that he is wroth, and yf the kyng saye vnto the: Wherfore came ye so nye the cite with the battayll? Nowe ye not how they vse to shute from the wall? Who smote Abimelech the sonne of Jerubaall? Dyd not a womā cast a pece of a myllstone vpo him from the wall, so that he dyed at Thebez? Why came ye so nye the wall? Then shalt thou saye: Thy seruaunt Uias the Hethite is dead also.

The messaunger wente his waye, and came and tolde David all together, wherfore Joab had sent him. And the messaunger sayde vnto David: The men prenyled againe vs, and fell out vnto vs into & felde: and we were vpon them harde at the dore of & pite. And the archers shot from the wall vpon thy seruantes, and slewe certayne of the kynges seruantes: and thy seruaunt Uias the Hethite is deed also.

David sayde vnto the messaunger: Thou shalt thou saye vnto Joab: Let not & wepe the, for the swerde consumerh now one now another. Go forth with the battayll against the cite, that thou mayest destroye it, and disforce the men. And whan Uias wife heard that Uias was deed, she mourned for her husbāde. But whā she had made an ende of mounyng, David sent, and caused her be fetchd vnto his palace, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. Nevertheless this dede & David dyd, displeaseth the LORDE.

The XII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE sent Nathan vnto David. Whan he came to him, he tolde him: There were two men in one cite, the one riche, the other poore. The riche man had very many shepe and oxen: but the poore man had nothinge save one litle shepe, which he had boughte, and noursed it, so that it grewe vp with him and his children together. It ate of his bred, and drank of his cuppe, and slepte in his lappe, and he helde it as a daughter. But whan there came a straunger vnto the riche man, he spared to take of his awne shepe & oxen (to prepare oughte for the straunger that was come vnto him) and toke the poore mans shepe, and prepared it for the man that was come vnto him.

Thē was David wroth with greates displeasure agaynst that man, and sayde vnto Nathan: As truly as the LORDE luyeth, the man that hath done this, is the child of death. The shepe also shal he make good foure folde, because he hath done soch a thinge, and not spared it.

Then sayde Nathan vnto David: Thou art even the man. Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: I haue anoynted thee to be kyng ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hande of Saul, and haue gathered the & lordes house, and his wyues into lappe, and the house of Israel and Juda haue I geuen the: and yf that be to litle, I wyll yet do this and that for the also. Wherfore hast thou then despysed the worde of the LORDE, to do soch euill in his sighte? Uias the Hethite hast thou slayne with the swerde: his wyfe hast thou taken to be thy wyfe, but him hast thou slayne with & swerde of the children of Ammon.

C Now therfore shal not & swerde departe from thy house for ouer, because thou hast despysed me, and taken the wyfe of Uias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wyll raise vp euill of thine awne house, and wyll take thy wyues before thine eyes, and wyll geue them vnto thy neyghboure, so that he shal lye with thy wyues by Sonnelighte. For thou hast done it secretly, but I wyll do this in the sighte of all Israel, and by Sonnelighte.

Then sayde David vnto Nathan: I haue synned vnto the LORDE. Nathan sayde vnto David: So hath the LORDE also taken awaye thy synne, thou shalt not dye. But for somoch as thou choicest this dede hast caused the enemies of the LORDE to blaspheme, & sonnet hat is borne vnto the, shal dye the death. And Nathan wente home. As for the childe which Uias wife bare vnto David, the LORDE smote it, so that it was deed sicke.

D And David besoughte God for the childe, and fasted, and wente in, and laie all nyght vpon the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue taken him vp fro the grounde: nevertheless he wolde not, neither ate he wth them. Vpon the seuenth daye & childe dyed. And David's seruantes durst not tell him that the childe was deed. For they thoughte: Beholde, whan the childe was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he heard not vnto oure voyce, how moch more shal it greue him, yf we saye: The childe is deed? And David sawe that his seruantes made a whisperinge together, and perceived that the childe was deed, and sayde vnto his seruantes: Is the childe deed? They sayde: Yee. Then rose David vp from the earth, and washed him selfe, and anoynted him, and put on other garmentes, & wente in to the house of the LORDE, and worshipped.

E And whan he came agayne, he commaunded to set bierd before him, and ate. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: What maner of thinge is this that thou doest? Whan the childe was alyue, thou fastedst and wepest:

The xij. Chap. Ho. xlv.

but now that it is deed, thou sittest vp and eatest? He sayde: I fasted and wepte for the childe whan it was yet a lyue, for I thoughte: Who knoweth, peradventure the LORDE maye be gracious vnto me, that the childe maye lyue. But now that it is deed, wherfore shulde I fast? Can I fetch it agayne? I shal go vnto it, but it shal not come agayne vnto me. And whan David had comforted Bethseba his wyfe, he wente in vnto her, and laye with her. And she bare a sonne, whom he called Salomon. And the LORDE loued him. And he put him vnder the hāde of Nathan & prophet, which called him Jedidia because of the LORDE.

So Joab soughte agaynst Rabba of & children of Ammon, and wanne the kynges cite, & sent messagers vnto David, & caused to saye vnto him: I haue foughte agaynst Rabba, and haue wonne the water cite also. Gather thou therfore the residue of the people together, and laye sege to & cite, and wyne it, that I wyne it not, and haue the name therof. So David gathered all & people together, and wente, & foughte agaynst Rabba, and wanne it, and toke their kynges crowne fro his heade (which in weighe had a talent of golde, and precious stones) and was set vpon Davids heade, and very moch spoyle caried he out of the cite. As for the people that was therein, he broughte them forth, and layed them vnder yron sawes and hokes and wedges of yron, and burned them in tyle ouens. Thus dyd he vnto all the cities of the children of Ammon. Then returned David and all the people vnto Jerusalem agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

AND it fortuneth after this, that Absalom & sonne of David had a fayre sister, whose name was Thamar, & Ammon the sonne of David loued her. And Ammon was in greates combrance, in so moch that he was enen sicke, because of Thamar his sister. For she was a virgin, and Ammon thoughte it shulde beharde for him to do eny thinge vnto her. But Ammon had a frende, whose name was Jonadab the sonne of Simea Davids brother, And the same Jonadab was a very wyse man, which sayde vnto him: Why art thou so leane (thou kynges sonne) from daye to daye? Mayest thou not tell me? Then sayde Ammon vnto him: I loue Thamar my brother Absaloms sister exceedingly.

Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye the downe vpon thy bedd, and make the sicke. And whan thy father cometh to lōke how thou doest, saye vnto him: Oh let my sister Thamar come, that she maye fede me, and make a meece of meate before me, that I maye se it, & eate it of hir hande. So Ammon layed him downe, and made him slepe. Now whā the kyng came in to lōke how he dyd, Ammon sayde vnto the kyng: Oh let my sister Thamar come, and make me a syppynge or two, and that I maye eate it of hir hande. Then sent Dauid for Thamar in to the house, and sayde vnto her: Go thy waye to thy brother Ammons house, & make him a meece of meate. Thamar wente vnto hir brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bed. And she toke flour, and mixte it, and dighte it before his eyes, and made him a syppynge. And she toke the meece of meate, and poured it out before him: but he wolde not eate.

C And Ammon saide: Put forth every man from me. And every man wete forth from him. Then sayde Ammon vnto Thamar: Brynge me that meece of meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate it of thy hande. Then toke Thamar & syppynge that she had made, and broughte it vnto Ammon hir brother in to the chamber.

And whan she broughte it vnto him & he mighte eate, he toke holde of her, & sayde vnto her: Come my sister, lye with me. Nevertheless she saide: Oh no my brother, force me not: for so do they not in Israel, do not thou soch foly. Whither shal I go with my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the unwise in Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, he shal not withholde me from the.

D Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her, and overcame her, & forced her, and laye with her. And Ammon hated her exceedingly, so that the hate was greater then the love was before. And Ammon sayde vnto her: Up, and get the hence.

She saide vnto him: This euell that thou thrustest me out, is greater then the other, that thou hast done vnto me. Nevertheless he herkened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued him, and sayde: Put awaye this woman from me, and locke the dore after her. And she had a partye garment on: for soch garmentes waye & kynges. dough ters whyle they were virgins.

And whā his seruante had put hir forth, & locke the dore after her, Thamar strowed asshes vpon hir heade, and rente the partye garment which she had vpon her, and layed hir hande vpon hir heade, and wente on, and cryed. And hir brother Absalom in de vnto her: Hath thy brother Ammon done with the? Now holde thy peace my sister: for is thy brother, and take not the matter so hart.

So Thamar remayned a wyddowe in brother Absaloms house. And whan kyng Dauid herde of all this, he was very sore. As for Absalom, he spake nether euell nor good to Ammon: but Absalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his sister Thamar.

After two yeaeres had Absalom shere clyppers at Baal hazor, which lyeth by Ephraim. And Absalom called all the kynges children, and came to the kyng, and sayde: Beholde, thy seruante hath shere clyppers, let it please & kyng with his seruantes to go with his seruante. But the kyng sayde vnto Absalom: No my sonne, let us not all go, lest we be to chargeable vnto the.

And he wolde nedes haue had him to go, howbeit he wolde not, but blessed him. Absalom sayde: Shall my brother Ammon go with vs then? The kyng sayde vnto him: Wherfore shall he go with the? Then was Absalom so importune vpon him, that he let Ammon and all the kynges childre go with him.

But Absalom commaunded his yonge men, and sayde: Take hede whan Ammon is mery with wyne (and I saye vnto you Smyte Ammon, and slaye him) that ye be not a frayd: for I haue commaunded you, be stronge, and playe the men. So Absaloms yonge men dyd vnto Ammon, as Absalom had commaunded them. Then stode all the kynges children up, and every one gace him vp vps his Mule, and fled. And whyle they were yet on their waye, the rumoure came to kyng Dauid, that Absalom had slayne all the kynges children, so that not one of them was lefte.

Then stode the kyng up, and rente his clothes, & layed him downe vpon the earth, and all his seruantes that stode aboute him, rente their clothes. Then answered Jonadab & sonne of Simea Dauids brother, and sayde: Let not my lord the kyng thinke that all the yongemen the kynges children are deed, but & Ammon is deed onely: for Absalom hath kepte it in him selfe sence the daie that he forced his sister Thamar. Therfore let not my lord the kyng take it so hart, that all the kynges children shulde be deed, but that Ammon is deed onely.

As for Absalom, he fled. And the yonge man that kepte the watch, lifte vp his eyes, and looked, and beholde, A greate people came in the waye one after another by the hill syde. Then sayde Jonadab vnto the kyng: Beholde, the kynges children come. Euen as thy seruante sayde, so is it happened. And whan he had ended his talkynge, the kynges children came, and lifte vp their voyce, and wepte.

The kyng and all his seruantes wepte also very sore. But Absalom fled, and wente vnto Thalmay the sonne of Ammihud kyng of Gesur. As for Dauid, he mourned for his sonne every daye. Whan Absalom was fled and gone vnto Gesur, he was there thre yeaere. And kyng Dauid ceased from goynge out agaynst Absalom, for he had comforted him selfe ouer Ammon that he was deed.

The XIII. Chapter.

Joab the sonne of Jeru Ja perceaued & the kynges hert was agaynst Absalom, and sent vnto Thecoa, and caused to fetch from thence a prudent woman and saide vnto her: Make lamentacion, and weere mournynge garmentes, & anoynte the not with oyle: but sayne thy selfe as a woman which hath mourned longe ouer a deed, and thou shalt go in to the kyng, and speake so & so vnto him. And Joab tolde her what she shulde saye.

And whan the woman of Thecoa wolde speake with the kyng, she fell vpon hir face to the grounde, and worshipped, and sayde: helpe me O kyng. The kyng sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: I am a wedowe, a woman that meurneth, and my husbāde is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, which stroue together in the felde: and whyle there was noman to parteth a sūder, the one smote the other, and slewe him.

And beholde, all the whole kynred ryseth up agaynst thy handmayden, and saye: We lyue him which hath smytten his brother, that we maye kyll him, for the soule of his brother whom he hath slayne, and that we maye destroye the heyre also. And thus are they mynded to put out my sparke, which yet is lefte, that there shulde no name ner any thinge els remayne ouer vnto my husbāde vpon earth.

The kyng sayde vnto the woman: Go & waye home, I wil geue a comaundement for & And the woman of Thecoa saide vnto & kyng: The trespase be vpon me (my lord & kyng) and vpon my fathers house: but the kyng and his seate be vngiltye. The kyng sayde: He that speaketh agaynst the, brynge him vnto me, so shall he touch the nomore. She sayde: Let the kyng thinke vpon the LORD his God, that there be not to many auengers of bloude to destroye, and that they brynge not my sonne to naught. He sayde: As truly as the LORD lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonne fall vpon the earth. And the woman sayde: Let thy handmayde speake somewhat to my lord the kyng. He sayde: speake on. The woman sayde: Wherfore hast thou deuised soch a thinge agaynst the people of God? And how happeneth it that the kyng speaketh soch, to make himselfe giltye, and causeth not his outlawe to be broughte agayne? For we all dye the death, and as the water that sinketh in to the earth, which is not taken vp. And God will not take awaye the lyfe, but vnbethynketh himselfe, & euen the very outlaws be not cleane thrust out from him.

Thus am I come also to speake this to my lord the kyng in the presence of the people, for thy handmayden thoughte: I wyll speake to the kyng, peradventure he shall do that his handmayden sayeth, for he shall heare his handmayden, to deliuer me from the hande of all them, that wolde destroye me with my sonne from the inheritaunce of God. And thy handmayden thoughte, & woide of my lord the kyng shall be as a meat offeringe, for my lord the kyng is as an angell of God, so that he can heare good and euell, therefore shall the LORD thy God be with the.

The kyng answered and sayde vnto the woman: Kepe nothyng from me that I ate the. The woman sayde: Let my lord the kyng speake on. The kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this? The woman answered and sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth (my lord O kyng), there is els noman nether at the righte hande ner at & lefte, but euen as my LORD the kyng hath sayde, for thy seruante Joab hath commaunded me, and he himselfe hath taughte thy handmayden all these wordes, that I shulde turne this matter of this sassyth, this hath Joab thy seruante done. But my lord is wyse, as the wysdome of an angell of God, so that he knoweth all thynges vpon earth.

Then sayde the kyng vnto Joab: Beholde, I haue done this: go thy waye ther. D
hij

fore and brynge the childe Absalom agayne. Then fell Joab vpon his face vnto the grounde, and worshipped, and thanked the kyng, and sayde: This daye doth thy seruante perceaue, that I haue founde grace in thy syghte my lord the kyng, in that the kyng doth as his seruante hath sayde. So Joab gat him vp, and wente vnto Gesur, and broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. But the kyng sayde: Let him go agayne in to his house, and not se my face. Thus Absalom came agayne to his house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so fayre, and so marvelous goodly a man, as Absalom. From the sole of his foete vnto the toppe of his heade there was not one blemish in him. And whan his heade was rounded (that was comonly every yere, for it was so heuy for him, so that it must nedes have bene rounded) the heere of his heade weyed two hundred Sicles after the kynges weyght. And vnto Absalom there were borne thre sonnes and one daughter, whose name was Thamar, and she was a woman of a fayre bewtye: So Absalom abode two yeres at Jerusalem, and sawe not the kynges face.

And Absalom sent for Joab, that he might sende him to the kyng. And he wolde not come to him. But he sent the seruaunt, yet wolde he not come. Then sayde he vnto his seruantes: Ye knowe Joabs pece of londe that lyeth by myne, and he hath barlye thereon: go youre waye therfore and set fyre vpon it. So Absaloms seruantes set fyre vpon Joabs pece of londe.

Then Joab gat him vp, and came to Absalom in to the house, and sayde vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruantes set fyre vpon my pece of londe? Absalom sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, I sent for the, and caused to saye vnto the: Come hither, that I maye sende the to the kyng, and to saye: Wherfore came I from Gesur? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me therfore se the kynges face. But yf there be any trespase in me, then put me to death. And Joab wente in to the kyng, and tolde him. And he called Absalom, to come in to the kyng, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde before the kyng. And the kyng kysed Absalom.

The XV. Chapter.

And after this it fortuneth that Absalom caused to prepare himselfe charets tes and horses, and fiftye men, which were his foemen. And Absalom gat him vp all mornynge in the mornynge, and stode in the waye by the porte: and whan any man had a matter which shulde come to the kyng for iudgment, Absalom called vnto him and sayde: Of what cite art thou? If he sayde that thy seruante is of one of the trybes of Israel, then sayde Absalom vnto him: Beholde, thy matter is righte and plaine: but there is noman appoynted of the kyng to heare the.

And Absalom sayde: O who setteth me to be iudge in Israel, that every man which hath a plecter to do in Israel, might come to me, that I might helpe him to right? And whan any man came to him to do worshippe, he put forth his hande, and helde him, and kysed him. After this maner dyd Absalom vnto all Israel whan they came to the lawe vnto the kyng, and so dyd he steale awaye the herte of the men of Israel.

After fortye yeres sayde Absalom vnto the kyng: I wil go and persourne my name at Hebron, which I made vnto the LORDE. For thy seruante made a vowe, whan I dwelt at Gesur in Siria, and sayde: Whan the LORDE bryngeth me agayne to Jerusalem, I shal do a Gods seruyce vnto the LORDE. The kyng sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace. And he gat him vp, and wente vnto Hebron.

But Absalom had sent out spyes in all the trybes of Israel, sayenge: Whan ye here the noyse of the trompe, saye: Absalom is made kyng at Hebron. There wente with Absalom two hundred men called from Jerusalem, but they wente on simply, and knewe not of the matter. Absalom sent also for Achitophel (the Gilonite) Dauids counsellor, out of his cite Gilo. Now whan he did the sacrifice, the conspiracion was mighty, and the people ranne together, and multiplied with Absalom.

Then came one which tolde Dauid, and sayde, that the herte of every man in Israel folowed Absalom. Dauid sayde vnto all his seruantes that were with him at Jerusalem: Up, let vs fle, for here shall be no escape for vs before Absalom.

Make haist that we maye be goynge, lest he ouertake vs and catch vs, and dyne some myssfortune vpon vs, and smyte the eye with the edge of the swerde. Then sayde the kynges seruantes vnto him: Loke what my LORDE the kyng chooseth, beholde, here are thy seruantes. And the kyng wente forth on foote with all his household. But ten concubynes left he to kepe the house.

And whan the kyng and all the people came forth on foote, they were farre from home, and all his seruantes wente by him, and all the Cherethians and Plethians, and all the Gethites (euene sixe hundred men) which were come on foote from Gath, wente before the kyng.

And the kyng sayde vnto Jehai the Gethite: Why goest thou also with vs? Turne backe, and byde with the kyng, for thou art a stranger: get the hence agayne vnto thy place. Thou camest yester daye, and to daye thou iurdest to go with vs: As for me, I wil go whither I can: turne thou backe agayne, and mercy and faithfulness happen vnto thy brethren with the. Jehai answered, and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as my lord the kyng lyueth, loke in what place my lord the kyng shalbe, (whether it chaunce to life or death) there shal thy seruante be also.

Dauid sayde vnto Jehai: Then come, and go with vs. So wente Jehai the Gethite and all his men, and the whole multitude of the children that were with him. And all the lande wepte with loude voyce, and all the people with them. And the kyng wente ouer the brooke Cedron, and all the people wente ouer by the waye that goeth to the wyldernes.

And beholde, Sadoc was there also, and all the Levites that were with them, and they bare the Arke of the couenant of God, and set it there. And Abiathar wente vp, till all the people came out of the cite. But the kyng sayde vnto Sadoc: Brynge the Arke of God into the cite agayne. If I shal fynde grace before the LORDE, he shal fetch me agayne, and shall let me se it, and the house of it. But yf he saye thus: I haue no pleasure to, beholde, here am I, let him do with me as it pleaseth him.

And the kyng saide vnto Sadoc the priest: O thou seer, turne agayne to the cite with peace, and Ahimaas thy sonne with the, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar: beholde, I wil tary in the playne of the wyldernes, till the message come from you, and tell me. So Sadoc and Abiathar broughte the Arke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and remayned there.

But Dauid wente vp to mount Olyneta and wepte, and his heade was covered. And all the people that was with him, had eueryman his heade covered and wente on and wepte. And whan it was tolde Dauid, that Achitophel was in the confederacy with Absalom, he sayde: LORDE turne thou Achitophels counsell to foolishnes.

And whan Dauid came vp to the toppe of the mount, where the use was to worshippinge God, Chusai the Arachite met him with his cote rent, and earth vpon his heade. And Dauid sayde vnto him: If thou go with me, thou shalt be chargeable vnto me: but yf thou goest agayne in to the cite, and sayest vnto Absalom: I am thy seruant, O kyng, euene as I was thy fathers seruant, so wyll I now be thy seruant. Then shalt thou brynge Achitophels counsell to naughte. So is Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes with the, and all that thou bearest out of the kynges house, tell it vnto Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes. Beholde, their two sonnes are with the: Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, by them mayest thou sende me worde what thou bearest. So Chusai Dauids frende came in to the cite. And Absalom came to Jerusalem.

The XVI. Chapter.

And whan Dauid was gone a lytle by from the toppe of the mount, beholde, Siba the seruante of Mephiboseth met him with a couple of asses saddled, whereon were two hundred loaves of bred, and an hundred quantities of rasyns and an hundred quantities of fygges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kyng vnto Siba: What wilt thou do herewith? Siba sayde: The asses shalbe for the kynges household to ryde vpon, and the loaves and fygges for the yonge men to eat, and the wyne shalbe for them to drynke whan they are weery in the wyldernes. The kyng sayde: Where is thy lordes sonne? Siba sayde vnto the kyng: Beholde, he abyde that Jerusalem, for he sayde: To daye shal the house of Israel restore my fathers kyngdome vnto me. The kyng sayde vnto Siba: Beholde, all that Mephiboseth hath, shalbe thine. Siba sayde with reuerence, Let me fynde grace in thy syghte my lord the kyng.

But whan kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, there wente out a man of the kynred of the house of Saul, whose name was Semei the sonne of Gera, which wente forth and cursed, and cast stones at Dauid, and at all kyng Dauids seruantes, and all the people and all the mighty men men were at his righte hande and at his left. Thus sayde Semei whan he cursed: Get the fourth, get the fourth thou bloody hounde, thou man of Belial. The LORDE hath rewarded the for all the bloude of the house of Saul, & thou becamest kyng in his steade. Now hath the LORDE geuen the kyngdome into y^e hande of Absalom thy sonne, and beholde, now stickest thou in thine owne myf thefe, for thou art a bloody hounde.

But Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja sayde vnto the kyng: Shall this deed dogg curse my lord the kyng? I wyl go and take the heade awaye from him. The kyng saide: He childien of Neru Ja, what haue I to do wth you? Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: Curse David. Who can saye now: Why doest thou so?

C And David sayde vnto Abisai and to all his seruantes: Beholde, my sonne which came of my body, seeketh after my lyfe, how much more now the sonne of Iemini? Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: peradventure the LORDE shall confydre my aduersyte, and recompence me good for his cursynge this daye. So David wente on his waye with his men. But Semei wente on by the mount besyde him, and cursed, and cast stones at him, & threwe clottes of earth.

And the kyng came in and all the people that was with him, weery, and refreshed him selfe there. But Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. Whan Chusai the Arachite Davids frende came in to Absalom, he sayde vnto Absalom: God saue the kyng. God saue the kyng.

D Absalom sayde vnto Chusai: Is this thy mercy vnto thy frende? Why art thou not gone with thy frende? Chusai sayde vnto Absalom: Not so, but loke whom the LORDE choseth, and this people, and all the men in Israel, his wyl I be, and byde with him. Secondly, whom shulde I serue? Shulde I not do seruyce before his sonne? Like as I haue serued in the presence of thy father, so wyl I do seruyce before the also.

And Absalom sayde vnto Achitophel: Geue vs youre counsell what we shal do. Achitophel sayde vnto Absalom: Go lye with thy fathers concubynes, whom he hath left to kepe the house, so shall all Israel heare that thou hast made thy father to stynte, and the hande of all them that are with y^e, shal be the bolder. Then made they a tente vnto Absalom vpon the house toppe. And Absalom laye with his fathers concubynes in the sighte of all Israel.

At that tyme whan Achitophel gaue counsell, that was euen as yf a man gaue counsell at God: So were all the counsell of Achitophel both with David and Absalom.

The xvij. Chapter.

Achitophel sayde vnto Absalom: I wil chose out twelue thousand men and wyl get me vp, and persue David by nighte, and fall vpon him whan he is weery: When I vexe him the, so that the people which is by him, flieth, I wil ter the kyng onely, and brynge all the people vnto the agayne. So whan every man brought vnto the as thou desyrest, then shal all the people be in peace. Absalom thought that good, and so dyd all the Elders in Israel. But Absalom sayde: I praye you let Chusai the Arachite also, and let vs heare what he sayeth therto. And whā Chusai came in to Absalom, Absalom saide vnto him: Thus hath Achitophel spoken, Saye thou now, shal we do it or not?

Then sayde Chusai vnto Absalom: There is no good counsell y^e Achitophel hath geuen at this tyme. And Chusai sayde more: Thou knowest thy father well and his maner, that they are stronge and of a wrothfull spirit, euen as a Deer that is robbed of his yonge ones in the felde. Thy father also is a man of warre, and wyl not be negligēt with the people. Beholde, he hath now peradventure hyd hymselfe in some cave or in some place. If it came to passe then that it chanced euell at the first, & there shulde come a rumour and saye: There is a slaughter done in the people that folowed Absalom: the shulde euen man be discouraged, which els is valeant, & hath a hert like a lyō: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is stronge, and that all they which be with him, are mightie men.

But this is my counsell, that thou gather together all Israel from Dan vnto Bersabe in nombre as the sonde of the See, and get thou thine owne person amonge them, that wil we fall vpon him in what place we finde him, and wyl ouerwhelme him euen as the dew falleth vpon the earth, so that we shal not leaue one of him and of all his men. But yf he resorte in to a cite, then shal all Israel cast roapes aboute the same cite, and drawe it in to the river, so that there shal not one stone of it be founde.

Then sayde Absalom and every man in Israel: The counsell of Chusai the Arachite is better then Achitophels counsell.

But the LORDE broughte it so to passe, that y^e good counsell of Achitophel was hyndred, that the LORDE mighte brynge euell vpon Absalom.

And Chusai sayde vnto Sadoc & Abiathar the prestes: Thus and thus hath Achitophel counceled Absalom and the Elders in Israel: but so and so haue I counceled. Sende now therfore in all the haist, and tell David, and saye: Abyde not all nighte in the playne felde of the wyldernes, but get the out, that the kyng be not swallowed vp, and all the people that is with him. As for Jonathas and Ahimaaz, they stode by the well of Rogel, and a damsell wente thither and tolde them. They wente on their waye, and tolde kyng David, for they durst not be seene to come in to the cite.

But a lad sawe them, and tolde Absalom. Nevertheless they wente on their waye, and came to a mans house at Bahurim, which had a well in his courte, and they wete downe in to it. And the woman toke and spred a couerynge ouer the welles mouth, & strowed fennel seede thereon, that it was not perceaued. Now whan Absaloms seruantes came to the woman in to the house, they sayde: where is Ahimaaz and Jonathas? The woman sayde vnto them: They are gone ouer the litle water.

And whā they soughte and founde them not, they wente agayne to Jerusalem. And whan they were gone, they clymmed vp out of the well, and wente their waye, and tolde David y^e kyng, and sayde vnto David: Get you vp, and go soone ouer y^e water, for thus and thus hath Achitophel geuen counsell agaynst you.

Then David gat him vp, and all the people that was with him, and passed ouer Jordan: yllie was cleare morninge. And there was not one, but he wente ouer Jordane.

Whan Achitophel sawe that his counsell wente not forth, he sadled his asse, gat him vp, and wete home in to his cite and put his house to poynte, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buried in his fathers grave.

And David came to Mahanaim, and Absalom wente ouer Jordane, & all the men of Israel wth him. And Absalom had set Amasa ouer the hoost in Joabs steade. Amasa was the sonne of a man, whose name was Iethra a Iesraelite, which laye with Abigail the daughter of Nabal the sister of Zeru Ja Joabs mother. But Israel and Absalom pitched in Gilad.

Whan David was come to Mahanaim, Nabal of Rabbath of the childre of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Ammiel of Lodebar, and Barfillai a Gileadite of Roglim broughte bedstufte, tapestrie worke, basons, earthen vessel, where, barley, meel, parched corne, beenes, oecemeell, rye, hony, butter, shepe and sit oren vnto David, and to y^e people that was with him, for to eate: for they thought, The people shal be hongrie, weerye and thirstye in the wyldernes.

The xviii. Chapter.

A David mustred the people y^e was with him, and set captaynes ouer the, ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes. And sent out of the people one thirde parte vnder Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja Joabs brother, and one thirde parte vnder Ithai the Gethite. And the kyng sayde vnto the people: I wyl go forth with you also. Nevertheless the people sayde: Thou shalt not go forth, for though we sle, or die halfe of vs they shal not regarde vs. For thou art as ten thousande of vs. Therfore is this better that thou mayest helpe vs out of the cite. The kyng sayde: Loke what ye are content withall, that wyl I do. And the kyng stode in the gate, and all the people wente forth by hundredes and by thousandes. And y^e kyng commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ithai, and sayde: Intreate me the yonge man Absalom gently. And all the people herde it, whā the kyng commaunded all the captaynes concerninge Absalom. And whan the people were come forth in to the felde agaynst Israel, the battayll beganne in the wod of Ephraim. And the people of Israel were smitten there befoie Davids seruantes, so that there was a greates slaughter the same daye, of twentye thousande men. And the battayll was scatted abroad there in the londe. And the wod consumed much more people the same daye, then the swerde consumed.

And Absalom met Davids seruantes, and rode vpon a Mule. And whan the Mule came vnder a greates thicke Oke tre, his heade toke holde on the Oke, and so hanged he betwene heauen and earth, but the Mule ranne awaye from vnder him. Whan a certayne man sawe that, he tolde Joab, and saide: Beholde, I sawe Absalom hange vpon an Oke tre. And Joab saide vnto the mā y^e tolde it him: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smotest thou him not there to the ground? so wolde I haue geuen the of myne owne behalfe ten syluer kynges and a gyrdell.

C The man sayde vnto Joab: If thou haddest weyed me a thousande syluer kynges in my handes, yet wolde I not haue layed my handes on the kynges sonne. For the kyng commaunded the and Abisai and Jehai before oure eares, and sayde: Repe me the yonge man Absalom. Or yf I had dyssembled vpon the toperdy of myne owne soule (for so moch as nothynge shulde be hyd from y kyng) thou thy selfe shuldest haue stode against me. Joab sayde: Not so, I wil vpon him be fore thy face.

Then toke Joab thre speares in his hande, and thrust Absalom thorow y hert, while he was yet alyue vpon the Oke. And ten yonge men Joabs weapenbearers, came abente him, and smote him to death. Then blew Joab the trompe, and broughte the people agayne, that they shulde folowe nomore vpon Israel. For Joab wolde fauoure the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast him in the wod in to a greate pyrt, and layed a grea te heape of stones vpon him. And all Israel fled, enery one vnto his tente.

D Absalom had set him vp a piler whyle he was yet alyue, which stode in the kynges valley, for he sayde: I haue no sonne, therefore shall this be a remembraunce of my name: and he called the piler after his owne name. And vnto this daie it is yet called Absaloms place.

Abimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayde: Let me runne now, and brynge the kyng worde, that the LORDE hath gotten him righte fro the hande of his enemies. But Joab sayde: Thou shalt bringe no good tidynge to daie another daie shalt thou brynge him worde, and not to daie, for the kynges sonne is deed. But vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kyng what thou hast seene. And Chusi did his obaysaunce vnto Joab, and ranne. Abimaas the sonne of Sadoc saide agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wilt thou runne my sonne? Come hither, thou shalt brynge no good tydynge. (He answered:) What and I ranne yet. He saide vnto him: Come on y waye then. So Abimaas ranne the straigh waye, and came before Chusi.

As for Dauid, he sat betwenethe two pyrtes. And the watchman wente vp to y toppe of the porte vpon the wall, and lifte y his eyes, and sawe a man renninge alone, and cryed, and tolde the kyng. The kyng sayde: If he be alone, then is there good tydynge in his mouth. And as the same wente and came forth, the watchman sawe another man renninge, and cryed in the porte and sayde: Beholde, there renneth a man alone. The kyng sayde: The same is a good messaunger. So the watchman sayde: I se the rennyng of the first as it were the rennyng of Abimaas the sonne of Sadoc. And the kyng sayde: He is a good man, and brynge y good tidynge. Abimaas cryed, and sayde vnto y kyng: Peace, and worshipped before the kyng vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Praised be the LORDE thy God, which hath genen ouer y men that lifte vp their hande agaynst my LORDE the kyng.

The kyng sayde: Goeth it well with the yonge man Absalom? Abimaas sayde: I sawe a greate vproure, whan Joab the kynges seruaunt sent me thy seruaunt, and I wote not what it was. The kyng sayde: God bounte, and stonde here. And he wente abownd and stode there. Beholde, then came Chusi and sayde: I brynge good tydynge my lord the kyng: The LORDE hath executed righte for the this daie, from the hande of all them that rose vp agaynst the. But the kyng sayde vnto Chusi: Goeth it well with the yonge man Absalom? Chusi sayde: Even so goit y all the enemyes of my lord the kyng, and with all them that ryse vp agaynst the to do euell, as it goeth with the yonge man. Then was the kyng sorowfull, and wente vp in to the perler vpon the gate, and wepte, and as he wente, he sayde thus: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God y I shulde dye for the. O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The XIX. Chapter.

And it was tolde Joab: beholde, y kyng wepeth y mourneth for Absalom. And so out of y victory of y daye there came a mourninge amonge all the people. For the people had herde the same daie, y the kyng toke on heuely because of his sonne. And y people stalle awaye the same daye, so that they came not in to the cite: as a people that is put to shame, pyteth them selfe awaye, whan they are fled in a battayll. As for the kyng, he had couered his face, and cryed loud, and sayde: Oh my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

But Joab came to the kyng in to the house, and sayde: This daie hast thou shamed all thy seruantes (which haue deliuered thy soule this daie, and the soules of thy sonnes, of thy dongheers, of thy wyues, and of thy concubynes) in that thou louest them that hate the, and hatest those that loue y. For to daie thou shewest thy selfe, that thou carest not for the captaynes and seruantes: for I perceane this daie, that yf Absalom onely were alyue, and we all deed this daie, thou woldest thynke it were well.

But the vp now therfore, and go forth, and speake longyngly vnto thy seruantes. For I sweare vnto the by y LORDE, yf thou go not forth, there shall not be lefte the one man this nyght: this shalbe worse vnto y, than all the euell that happened the sence y youth vphiche to. The kyng gat him vp, and sat in the gate. And it was sayde vnto the people: beholde, the kyng syteth in the gate. Then came all the people before y kyng. But Israel was fled euery one vnto his tent.

And all the people stroue in all the trybes of Israel, and sayde: The kyng ryd vs from the hande of oure enemies, and deliuered vs from the hande of the Philistynes, and was sayne to fle out of the lode for Absalom. So Absalom whom we had anoynted ouer vs, is deed in the battayll. Why are ye so styll now, that ye fetch not the kyng agayne?

C The kyng sent vnto Sadoc y Abiathar the prestes, y caused to saye vnto the: Speake to the Elders of Juda, y saye: Why wyl ye be the last to fetch the kyng agayne vnto his house? (for y sayenge of all Israel was come before the kyng in to his house) ye are my brethren, my bone, and my flesh. Wherefore wyl ye then be the last to brynge the kyng agayne? And saye vnto Amasa: Art not thou my bone and my flesh? God do this y that vnto me, yf thou shalt not be the chiefe captayne before me in Joabs steade, as long as thou lyest.

And he bowed the hert of all the men of Juda as of one man. And they sent vnto y kyng: Come agayne, thou and all thy seruantes: So the kyng came agayne. And whan he came vnto Jordane, y men of Juda were come to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kyng, that they mighte brynge y kyng ouer Jordane. And Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, which dwelt at Bahurim, made haist, and wente downe with y men of Juda to mete kyng Dauid, and there were with him a thousande me of Ben Jamin. Siba also the seruaunt of the house of Saul with his systene sonnes and twenty seruantes, y gat them thorow Jordane and passed ouer y fery, that they mighte brynge ouer the kynges housholde, and to do him pleasure.

But Semei the sonne of Gera fell downe before the kyng, whan he passed ouer Jordane, and sayde vnto the kyng: O my lord, laye not the trespasse vnto my charge, y thynke not vpon it that thy seruaunt vexed the, in the daie whan my lord the kyng wente out of Jerusalem: and let not y kyng take it to hert, for thy seruaunt knoweth that he hath synned. And beholde, this daie am I come the first amonge all the house of Joseph, for to go downe to mete my lord the kyng.

Nevertheless Abisai the sonne of Zeru Ja answered and sayde: And shulde not Semei dye therfore, kyng he hath cursed y anoynted of y LORDE? But Dauid sayde: What haue I to do with you ye children of Zeru Ja, that ye wyl become Sathan vnto me this daie? Shulde eny man dye this daie in Israel? Thynkest thou that I knowe not, y I am become kyng ouer Israel this daie? And y kyng sayde vnto Semei: Thou shalt not dye. And the kyng swore vnto him.

Mephiboseth the sonne of Saul came downe also to mete the kyng. And he had not made cleane his fete ner combed his beard, nether had he washed his clothes sence the daie that the kyng was gone awaye, vntill the daie that he came agayne in peace. Now whan he came to Jerusalem for to mete the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Mephiboseth, wherfore wentest thou not with me? And he sayde: My lord the kyng, my seruaunt hath deale vnrighteously with me: for thy seruaunt thoughte: I wil saddell an asse and ryde thereon, and go vnto the kyng: for thy seruaunt is lame, and he hath accused thy seruaunt before my lord y kyng.

But my lord y kyng is an angell of God, and thou mayest do what pleaseth the. For all my fathers house was nothynge, but people of death before my lord y kyng. And yett hast thou set thy seruaunt amonge them that eate at y table. What other righteousnes haue I, that I shulde crye eny more vnto the kyng? The kyng sayde vnto him: What speakest thou yett more of thy matter: I have sayde: Thou and Siba parte the lande betwene you. Mephibosech sayde vnto the kyng: Let him take it all, in as moch as my lord & kyng is come home in peace.

S And Barzillai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and broughte the kyng ouer Jordane, that he mighte conuey him in Jordane. And Barzillai was very olde, so good as foure score yere olde, & the same had prouyded & kyng of fode whyle he was at Mahanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kyng sayde vnto Barzillai: Thou shalt go ouer with me, I wyll take care for the & myne awne selfe at Jerusalem. But Barzillai sayde vnto the kyng: What haue I yet to lyue, that I shulde go vp to Jerusalem to the kyng? This daye am I foure score yere olde. How shulde I knowe what is good or euell, or taist what I eat or drynke, or heare what the Musicians do synge? Why shulde chy seruante be chargeable first vnto my lord the kyng? chy seruante shall go a litle with the kyng ouer Jordane. Why wil the kyng recompence me after this maner? Let chy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in my cite besyde my father and my mothers grave. Beholde, there is chy seruante Chimeam, let him go ouer with my lord the kyng, and do vnto him what pleasech the.

G The kyng sayde: Chimeam shal go ouer with me, and I wyll do for him what liketh the: and what so ever thou desirest of me, that wyll I do for the also. And whan all the people was gone ouer Jordane and the kyng ge lykewyse, the kyng kyssed Barzillai and blessed him, and he turned vnto his place. And the kyng passed ouer vnto Gilgal, and Chimeam wente with him. And all the people of Juda broughte the kyng ouer, howbeit there was but halfe of the people of Israel there.

And beholde, the came all the men of Israel vnto the kyng, & sayde vnto him: Why haue oure brethren the men of Juda stollen the awaye, and haue conueyed the kyng and his housholde ouer Jordane, and all Dauides men with him? Then answered they of Juda vnto them of Israel: The kyng is of oure nye kyndred, why are ye angrie therfore? Thynke ye that we haue receaued eny fode or gistes of the kyng? Then answered they of Israel vnto them of Juda, & sayde: We haue ten tymes more with the kyng and with Dauid, the thou, why hast thou regarded me then so lightly, that oures were not the first to fetch oure kyng agayne? But they of Juda spake harder then they of Israel.

The XX. Chapter.

There was a famous man of Belai there, whose name was Seba the sonne of Dichai, a man of Jamini, which blew the trompe, and sayde: We haue porcion in Dauid, ner inheritance in the sonne of Isai: let every get him to his tent, O Israel. Then fell every man in Israel from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Dichai. But the men of Juda cleued vnto the kyng from Jordane vnto Jerusalem. Whan Dauid came heme to Jerusalem, he rote the ten concubynes (whom he had leste to kepe the house) and put them in a holde to be kept, and made prouysion for them: but he laye not with them, and so were they shut up vnto their deatch, and layed wedowes.

And the kyng sayde vnto Amasa: Call all the men of Juda together agaynst the thirde daye, & be thou here present also. And Amasa wrote to call Juda together. And he was slacke to come at the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayde vnto Ishai: Now shall Seba the sonne of Dichai do vs more harme then Absalom. Take thou thy lordes seruantes, and folowe vpon him, he synde not some ströge cities for him, and so escape out of oure sight. Then wente Joab with him, and the Cherethians and Plecthians, and all the mighty men: and they were out of Jerusalem to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Dichai.

But whan they were by the great flou at Gibeon, Amasa came before them. As for Joab, he was gyded aboue his garment which he had on, and vpon it he had a sword gyded, which hanged by his thye in the sheeth, and wente easely out and in, and slew him. And Joab sayde vnto Amasa: Peace be with the my brother. And Joab with Amasa by the beerde with his right hand to kysse him. And Amasa toke no heed vnto the sword in Joabs hande, and he thrust him therewith in to the bely, & his bowels ran out vpon the earth, and he thrust at him more. And so he dyed.

Joab & his brother Abisai folowed vpon Seba the sonne of Dichai. And one of Joabs seruantes stode by him, and sayde: What is he this, that wolde be agaynst Joab to please Dauid, and to be with Dauid in Ierusalem? As for Amasa, he laye rolled in the bloude in the myddes of the strete. But whan one sawe that all the people stode about him, he remoued Amasa from the strete vnto the felde, and cast a clothe vpon him, for so moch as he sawe, that who so ever came by him, stoode still. Now whan he was put out of the waye, every man wente after Joab, to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Dichai.

And he wente thorow all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel Beth Maacha, and all the best chosen men gathered them selues together, & folowed after him, and came and beseged him at Abel Beth Maacha, and made a banke aboute to cite harde on the wall. And all the people that was with Joab, layed to their ordynance, and wolde haue cast downe the wall.

Then cried there a wyse woman out of the cite: heare, heare, saye vnto Joab that he come hither, I wyll speake with him. And whan he came to her, the woman sayde: Art thou Joab? he sayde: Yee. She sayde vnto him: heare the wordes of thy handmayden. he sayde: I heare. She sayde: The comon sayenge was somtyme: Who so wyll are, let him sit at Abel, and so came it to a good ende. This is the noble and faithfull cite in Israel, and wilt thou destroye the cite and the mother in Israel? Why wilt thou swallowe vpon the inheritance of the LORDE?

Joab answered and sayde: That be farre, that be farre frome, that I shulde swallowe vpon and destroye. The matter is not so, but a certayne man of mounte Ephraim named Seba the sonne of Dichai, hath lifte vpon him selfe agaynst kyng Dauid, & I wyll departe from the cite. The woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heade shal be cast vnto the ouer the wall. And the woman came in to all the people with hir wysdome. And they smote of the heade of Seba the sonne of Dichai, and cast it vnto Joab. Then blew he the trompe, and they departed from the cite, every one vnto his tent. But Joab came agayne to Jerusalem vnto the kyng.

Joab was capteyne ouer all the hoost of Israel: Benaia the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cherethians and Plecthians: Adoniram was rent gatherer: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Chaunceler: Seia was the scribe: Ira also the Jairite was Dauids priest.

The XXI. Chapter.

There was a death also in Dauids tyme the thre yeres together. And Dauid soughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde: Because of Saul and because of that bloudy housholde, & he slewe the Gibeonites. Then the kyng caused for to call the Gibeonites, and spake vnto them. (As for the Gibeonites, they were not of the children of Israel, but a remnant of the Amorites: howbeit the children of Israel had sworne vnto the, and Saul soughte for to synne them in his gelousy, for the childre of Israel and Juda.) Then sayde Dauid to the Gibeonites: What shal I do vnto you? And where withall shal I make the attonement, that ye maye blesse the inheritance of the LORDE? The Gibeonites sayde vnto him: It is not for golde and syluer that we haue to do with Saul and his house, nether haue we oughte to do for to slaye eny man in Israel.

he sayde: What saye ye then, that I shal do vnto you? They sayde vnto the kyng: The man that hath destroyed vs and broughte vs to naughte, shulde we destroye, that nothinge be leste him in all the coastes of Israel. Let there be geuen vs seven men of his sonnes, that we maye hange them vpon the LORDE at Gibeon of Saul the chesen of the LORDE. The kyng sayde: I wyll geue them. Howbeit the kyng spared Mephibosech the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul, because of the oath of the LORDE that was betwene them: namely, betwene Dauid & Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But the two sonnes of Rispera the daughter of Aia, whom she had borne vnto Saul, Armoni & Mephibosech, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul, whom she bare vnto Adriel the sonne of Barzillai the Mahalothite, dyd the kyng take, and gaue them in to the handes of the Gibeonites, which hanged the vpon vpon the mount before the LORDE.

So these seven fell at one tyme, and dyed in the tyme of the first harvest, whan barley harvest begynneth. Then toke Rispera the daughter of Aia a sack cloth, & spred it vpon the rock in the begynnyng of the harvest, tyll the water from the heauen dropped vpon them, and suffred not the soules of the heauen to rest on them on the daye tyme, nether the wyld beasts of the felde on the nyghte season. And it was tolde Dauid what Rispera the daughter of Aia Saulls concubine had done.

And Dauid wente and toke the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sonne from the cite of Jabes in Gilead (which they had stollen from the strete at Bethsan, where the Philistynes had hanged the, what tyme as the Philistynes had synnyn Saul vpon mount Gilboa) and broughte them vpon from thence, and gathered them together to the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and of his sonne Jonathan buried they in 3 londe of Ben Jamin, besyde 3 graue of his father Cis. So after this was God at one with the londe.

The ii. boke of the kyniges.

But there arose warre agayne of 3 philistynes agaynst Israel. And Dauid wente downe 2 his seruantes with him, 2 foughte agaynst the philistynes. And Dauid was weery, 2 Jeshi of Nob (which was one of the children of Rapha, and the weight of his speare was thre C. weight of bresse, and had a new harness vpon him) thoughte to smyte Dauid. Nevertheless Abisai the some of Jeru Ja helped him, 2 smote the philistyne to death. Then swaie Dauids men vnto him, 2 sayde: "Thou shalt nomore go forth with vs vnto the warre, that the lanterne in Israel be not put out."

Afterwarde there arose yet warre at Nob with the philistynes. Then Sibechai the Gushathite smote Saph, which also was one of the childre of Rapha.

And there arose yet warre at Gob with the philistynes. Then Elhanan the sonne of Jaere Origin a Bethleemite smote Goliath the Gethite, which had a speare, whose shaft was like a weavers lome.

And there arose yet warre at Gath, wherether was a cotencious man, which had fire fyngers on his handes, and fire toes on his fete, that is foure and ewery in the nombre, and he was borne also of Rapha. And whan he spake despitely vnto Israel, Jonathan 3 sonne of Simea Dauids brother smote him. These foure were borne vnto Rapha at Gath, and fell thorow the hande of Dauid and of his seruantes.

The XXII. Chapter.

Dauid spake the wordes of this songe before the LORDE, what tyme as the LORDE had deliuered him fro the hande of all his enemies, and from the hande of Saul, and he sayde.

The LORDE is my stony rock, 2 my castell, and my deliuerer.

God is my strength, in him wyl I put my trust: my shyld 2 the horne of my saluacion, my defence 2 my refuge, my Sauoure, thou shalt helpe me from violent wronge.

I wil call vpon the LORDE with prayse, so shal I be deliuered fro myne enemies.

For the sorowes of death compassed me, and the brokes of Belial made me a frayd.

The paynes of hell came aboute me, and the snares of death had overtaken me.

Whan I was in trouble, I called vpon the LORDE, yee even my God called I vpon, 2

The xxij. Chap.

so he herde my voyce fro his holy temple, 2 my cōplaynte came into his eares.

The earth trembled and quaked, the foundations of the heauen shoke and moved, because he was wroth.

Smoke wente vp from his nose, and consuminge fyre out of his mouth, coles were kyndled therof.

He bowed the heauens and came downe, and it was darke vnder his fete.

He sat vpon Cherub and dyd flye, and appeared vpon the fetchers of the wynde.

He made darknes his paulyon round aboute him, thicke water in the cloudes of 3 ayre.

At the brightnesse of him were the fyr coles kyndled.

The LORDE thondered from heauē, and the 3yest put forth his voyce.

He shot his arrowes, and scattered them he lightened, and discomfited them.

The pourynges out of the See were stilled, and the foundations of the earth were discovered at the chydyinge of the LORDE, 2 at the bierth of the spere of his wrath.

He sent downe from aboue, and reccaued me, and drue me out of many waters.

He deliuered me fro my stronge enemy, from them that hated me, for they were mighty for me.

They overtoke me in the tyme of my trouble, but the LORDE was my succoure.

He broughte me forth in to liberty: he deliuered me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

The LORDE shal rewarde me after my righteousness, and accordinge to the clamours of my handes shal he recompence me.

For I haue kepte 3 waye of the LORDE, 2 haue not bene vngodly agaynst my God.

For I haue an eye vnto all his lawes, and haue not put his ordinaunces fro me.

Therefore wil I be perfecte vnto him, and wyl eschue myne awne wickednes.

So shal 3 LORDE rewarde me after my righteousness, accordinge to the clēnes of my handes in his eye sighte.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, and with the perfecte thou shalt be perfecte.

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde.

For thou shalt saue the poore oppressed people, and shalt set thine eyes agaynst the proude to bringe them downe.

For thou O LORDE art my lanterne. The LORDE shal lighte my darknesse.

For in 3 I shal discōfite an hoost of men, 2 in my God I shal leape ouer the wall.

The ii. boke of the kyniges.

The waye of God is perfecte: 3 wordes of the LORDE are tryed in the fyre: he is a shyld for all the that put their trust in him.

For where is there a God, excepte 3 LORDE? Or who hath any strength without our God?

God hath strenghted me with power, and made playne a perfecte waye for me.

He hath made my fete like hartes fete, 2 hath set me vp an hye.

He teacheth my handes to fighte, and benedict the stele bowe with myne armes.

And thou hast geuen me the shyld of 3 health, and with 3 louynge correccion shalt thou multiplie me.

Thou hast enlarged my goynge vnder me, and myne ankles haue not slyded.

I wyl solowe vpon myne enemies, and destroye the: and wyl not turne backe agayne, tyll I haue broughte them to naught.

I wil cōsume them and thrust them thorow, that they come not vp: they shal fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast girded me with strength to 3 battayll, and hast subdued them vnder me 3 rose vpon agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne enemies to turne their backs vpon me, that I might destroye them that hate me.

They shal crye, but there shalbe no Sauoure: yee even vnto the LORDE, but he answereth them not.

I wil beate them as small as the dust of the earth: even as 3 claye of the stretes wil I make them thynne, and spiede them out abroad.

But me shalt thou deliuer from the strynges of the people, and shalt kepe me to be 3 heade of the 3eythen: A people whom I haue not knowne shal serue me.

The straunge children haue denyed me: at the hearynge of the eare shal they herkē vnto me.

The straunge children are waken olde, 2 are shut vp in cheir prisons.

The LORDE lyueth, and blessed be my God, and magnified be the strength of my health.

God seyth that I be auenged, and subdueth the people vnto me.

He bringeth me out fro myne enemies: 2 from them 3 rise vpon agaynst me, shalt thou exalte me, and from 3 cruell man shalt thou deliuer me.

For this cause wyl I geue thankes vnto the amonge the 3eythen, and synge prayses vnto thy name.

The xxij. Chap. Fo. li.

Which doth greate health for his kynge, 2 sheweth mercy vnto Dauid his anoynted, and to his seide for euermore.

The XXIII. Chapter.

These are the last wordes of Dauid: 2 Dauid the sonne of Iai sayde. The man, that was set vp to be 3 anoynted of the God of Jacob, 2 a pleasaunt dyter of songes of Israel, sayde: The spere of the LORDE hath spoken by me, and the vterance therof is done thorow my tounge.

He sayde: The God of Israel hath spokē vnto me, the strength of Israel, the gouernoure amonge men, the righteous gouernoure in the feare of God. As the lighte is in 3 mornyng whan the Sonne aryseth, so that for the brightnesse therof no cloude remayneth: and as the grasse loketh vpon the earth thorow the rayne, euen so shal my house be with God.

For he hath made an euerlastynge cōuenant with me, well appoynted on euery syde and sure. For this is all my health 2 pleasure, that it shal growe. But the Belial shal be utterly 2 cleane roted out as the thornes, which men take not in their hādes. And they 3 touch them, shal destroye them w yrons 2 speares: 2 in the fyre shal they be brent, that they maye be broughte to naught.

These are the names of Dauids Worthies: 2 Iasabeam 3 sonne of Zachmoni, the cheffest amonge thre, which liue vpon his speare, 2 slewe eight hundred at one tyme.

After him was Eleasar the sonne of Dothi the sonne of Ahobi amonge the thre Worthies with Dauid, whan they spake despitely to the philistynes, and were gathered together to the battayll, and the men of Israel wente vp. Then stode he vp and smote the philistynes, tyll his hande was so weery that it cromptled with the swerde. And the LORDE gaue a greate victory at the same tyme, so that the people turned after him to spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age 3 Hararite. Whan the philistynes had gathered themselves in a company, and in the same place there was a pece of lōde full of small come, and the people fled before the philistynes, the stode he in the myddes of 3 pece of londe, 2 deliuered it, 2 smote 3 philistynes. And God gaue a greate victory.

And these thre principall amonge thirtie, came downe in the harness vnto Dauid, in to the caue of Adullam, 2 the hoost of 3 philistynes laye in 3 valley of Rephaim. But Dauid was at the same tyme in the castell, and 3 philistynes people laye at Bethleem. And Dauid was despyous, and sayde: Wol-

be God yf some man wolde fetch me a drynke of water out of the well at Berthelem vnder the gate. The brake the thre Worthies into the hoost of the philistynes, and drue of the water out of the well at Berthelem vnder y gate, & caried it & broughte it vnto Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drynke it, but offered it vnto the LORDE, & sayde: The LORDE let this be farre from me, that I shulde do it. Is it not the bloude of the men that ioperded their lyues, and wente thither? And he wolde not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthies.

D Abisai y brother of Joab the sonne of Zeru Ja was one also chese amoge the. He liste vp his speare & smote the hundreth, & was an auuncient man amoge the, & the noblest amonge the, & was their ruler. But he came not vnto the thre. And Benaia the sonne of Joiada, the sonne of Jshai (a man of greace actes of Cabzeil) smote two mighty gisantes of y Moabites, & wete downe, & slewe a Lyon at a well in the shewe tyme. He smote also a fayre goodly man of Egipte, which had a speare in his hande. But he wete downe to him with a staffe, and toke the speare out of the Egiptians hande by violence, and slewe him with his owne speare. This dyd Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amoge the Worthies, and more honorable then the thirtie, but he came not vnto the thre. And Dauid made him of his secreete counsell.

Asahel the brother of Joab is amonge y thirtie: Elham his vnckles sonne at Berthelem. Samma the Haradite, Elia the Haradite, Helez the Palcite, Ira the sonne of Tekoite, Abiser the Anchothite, Mebunai the Zushachite, Salmon the Abobite, Mahera the Necophatite, Jchai the sonne of Ribai of Gibeon of the childre of Ben Jamin, Benaia the Pirgathonite, Hidai of the broke of Gaas, Abialbon the Arbathite, Asmaueh the Bahumite, Eliaheba the Baalbomite. The children of Jafen and Jonathas: Samma the Haradite, Eliphelet the sonne of Ahassbai y sonne of Maechathi, Eliam the sonne of Achitophel y Gilonite, Hesrai of Carmel, Paerai the Arbite, Jegael the sonne of Nathan of Soba, Dani the Gadite, Zeleg the Ammonite, Naharai the Beerothite, the weapon bearer of Joab the sonne of Zeru Ja, Ira the Jechite, Gareb the Jechite, Uri the Jechite. These are alle together seven and thirtie.

The XXIII. Chapter.

The xxiii. Chap.

AND the LORDE was wrothfully displeased of y new agaynst Israel, and moved Dauid amonge them, because he saide: Go, nombre Israel and Juda. And the kyng sayde vnto Joab y chese capayne of his hoost: Go aboute in all the trybes of Israel, from Dan vnto Berseba, and nombre the people, that I maye knowe how many they be. Joab sayde vnto the kyng: The LORDE thy God adde vnto this people an hundreth tymes as moch as it is now, that my lord the kyng maye se his eyes lust thereon. But why hath my lord the kyng a desire to this thinge? Neuertheles the kynges worde preuailed agaynst Joab and the capaynes of the hoost.

So Joab and y capaynes of the hoost wente forth from the kyng, to nombre the people of Israel, and passed ouer Jordan, and pitched at Arcoer, at the righte hande of the cite which lyeth in y ryuer of Gad, and at Jaseer, & came to Gilcad, and in the lew countre of Hadsi, and came vnto Dan Jaan, and aboute Sidon, and came to the stronge cite of Tyrus, and all the cities of the heetes and Cananites, and came south to the south parte of Juda vnto Berseba, and wete rounde aboute that countre, and ascerteyne monethes and twenty daies they came to Jerusalem. And Joab deliuered vnto y kyng the summe of the people that was nombred. And in Israel there were eight hundred and thre stronge men, that drue out the swerde, and in Juda syue hundreth thousande men. And after that the people was nombred, Dauid here smote him selfe. And Dauid sayde vnto y LORDE: I haue synned sore, that I haue done this. And now LORDE take away the trespace of thy seruauit. For I haue done very vnwysely.

And whan Dauid rose vp in the morninge, the worde of the LORDE came vnto the prophet Gad, Dauids Seer, & sayde: Go & speake vnto Dauid. Thus sayeth the LORDE: I bringe the thre thinges, chose the one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. Gad came vnto Dauid, and tolde him, and sayde vnto him: Wilt thou that seven yere verth shall come in to thy londe? Or that thou be saynt to fyve yere before thine aduersaries thre monethes, and theye persecute the? Or that there be pestilence thre dayes in the londe? Take aduysment therfore and se, what answerest thou. Dauid sayde vnto him: I sende rather fall in to y handes of the LORDE.

The ii. boke

his mercy is greates) I wyll not fall in to the handes of men.

So the LORDE sent pestilence in to Israel from the morow vnto the tyme appoynted, so that there dyed of the people from Dan vnto Berseba, thre score and ten thousande men. And whan the angel stretched his hande ouer Jerusalem to destroye it, the LORDE repented ouer the euell, and sayde vnto the angel: It is ynough, holde now thy hande. The angel of the LORDE was besyde the barne of Arafna the Jebusite. But whan Dauid sawe the angel that smote the people, he sayde vnto the LORDE: beholde, It is I that haue synned, I haue done the trespace: As for these shepe, what haue they done? Oh let thy hande be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came to Dauid at the same tyme, and saide vnto him: Go vp, and set vp an altare vnto the LORDE in y barne of Arafna the Jebusite. So Dauid wete vp as Gad sayde, and as the LORDE had commanded. And whan Arafna looked aboute him, he sawe the kyng with his seruantes goinge vnto him, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Wherfore cometh my lord y kyng vnto his seruauit? Dauid sayde: To bye the barne of the, and to buyde an altare vnto the LORDE, that the plage maye cease from the people.

But Arafna sayde vnto Dauid: Let my lord the kyng take it, and offre what pleasech him. Beholde, there is an oxe for a burne offeringe, and sleddes, and vessels of oxen to the wodd. All this gaue Arafna vnto the kyng. And Arafna sayde vnto y kyng: The LORDE thy God make the accepted vnto him. Neuertheles y kyng sayde vnto Arafna: Not so, but I wyll bye it of the for as moch as it is worth. For I wyll not offre burnt offeringes vnto y LORDE, of y which I haue for naughte. So Dauid boughte the barne and the oxe for fiftye Sicles of syluer, and buyded an altare there vnto the LORDE, and offered burnt offeringes & dede offeringes. And the LORDE was mercifull vnto y londe, and y plage ceased from the people of Israel.

And whā Kinge David was olde & well strycke in age, he coulde not be warme, though he was covered with clothes. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Let vs seke a yonge damsell a virgin for oure lorde the kyng, to stonde before the kyng, and to nourshe him, & to slepe in his armes, and to warme oure lorde the kyng. And they sought a fayre damsell in all the coastes of Israel, and founde Abisag of Sunem, and brought her vnto the kyng. And she was a very fayre damsell, and noursched the kyng, and serued him. Howbeit the kyng knewe her not.

Adonias the sonne of Hagith liue vpon him selfe, and sayde: I wyl be kyng. And he prepared him charrettes and horsmen, and systemen to be renners on fote before him. And his father reprimed him not therfore, so much as to saye: Wherefore doest thou so? And he was a man of a very fayre bewtye, and he had begotten him nexte after Absalon. And his matter stode by Joab the sonne of Zeruia and by Abiathar the prest, which helped Adonias. But Sadoc the prest, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and Nathan the prest and Semai and Rei, and Davids Worthies were not with Adonias.

And whā Adonias offred shepe and oxen, and fat catell besyde the stone of Sebelech, which lyeth by the well of Rogel, he called all his brether the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But the prophet Nathan and Benaia, and the Worthies, and his brother Salomon called he not. Then sayde Nathan vnto Bethseba Salomons mother: Hast thou not herde the Adonias is kyng, and oure lorde David knoweth not therof? Come now therfore, I wyl geue the counsell, that thou mayest deliuer thy soule and the soule of thy sonne Salomon. Come now and go in to kinge David and saye vnto him: Hast not thou my lorde the kynges sworne and sayde vnto thy handmayden: Salomon thy sonne shall be kyng after me, and he shall sitt vpon my seate? Why is then Adonias made kyng? Beholde, while thou art yet there, and talkest with the kyng, I wyl come in after the, and tell forth thy tale. And Bethseba wente in to the kyng to the chamber. And the kyng was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem serued the kyng. And Bethseba bowed hirselfe, and worshipped the kyng.

The kyng sayde: What wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: My lorde, Thou hast sworne vnto thy handmayde by the LORDE thy God: Thy sonne Salomon shall be kyng after me and sitt vpon my seate. But now, Adonias is kyng, and my lorde the kyng knoweth it not. He hath offred oxen and fat catell, and many shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, and Abiathar the prest, and Joab the chefe capayne. But thy seruant Salomon hath he not bydden. Nevertheless thou my lorde art kyng, the eyes of all Israel loke vnto the, that thou shouldest shewe them who shall sitt vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after the. And whā my lorde the kyng slepeth with his sacher then shal I and my sonne Salomon be sayne to be synners.

But while she yet spake to the kyng, the prophet Nathan came, and she tolde the kyng: beholde, there is the prophet Nathan. And whā he came in before the kyng, he worshipped the kyng vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: My lorde the kyng, hast thou sayde: Adonias shal be kyng after me, & sitt vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, and hath offred oxen, and fat catell, & hath called all the kynges sonnes, and the capaynes, and the prest Abiathar. And behold, they eate and drynke before him, and saye: God saue the kyng Adonias. But me thy seruant, and Sadoc the prest, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruant Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kyng commaunded this, and not certified his seruantes who shall sitt vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after him?

The kyng answered and saide: Call Bethseba vnto me. And she came in before the kyng. And whā she stode before the kyng, the kyng swore and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth (which hath deliuered my soule out of trouble,) I wyl do vnto the this daye, even as I swore vnto the by the LORDE the God of Israel, so that Salomon thy sonne shal be kyng after me, and he shal sitt vpon my seate in my steade.

Then Bethseba bowed hirselfe with her face to the grounde, and thanked the kyng and sayde: God saue my lorde kyng David for evermore. And the kyng sayde: Call me the prest Sadoc & the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada.

And whā they came in before the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto them: Take youre lodes seruantes with you, and set my sonne Salomon vpon my Mule, and cary him downe to Gibon: and let Sadoc the prest and the prophet Nathan, and anynt him there to be kyng ouer Israel, and blowe the trompe, and saye: God saue kyng Salomon, and go ye vp after him: and whā he cometh, he shal sitt vpon my seate, and be kyng in my steade: for I haue ordeyned him to be pryncce ouer Israel and Juda. Then answered Benaia the sonne of Joiada vnto the kyng, & sayde: Amen. The LORDE God of my lorde the kyng saye thus also. As the LORDE hath bene with my lorde the kyng, so be he with Salomon also, that his seate maye be greater then the seate of my lorde kyng David.

Then wente they downe, the prest Sadoc and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chierchians, & plethians, & set Salomon vpon kyng Davids Mule, & broughte him to Gibon. And Sadoc the prest toke the oyle home out of the Tabernacle, and anynted Salomon. And they blew the trompe: And all the people sayde: God saue kyng Salomon.

And all the people wente vp after him, and the people pyped with pypes, and was very ioyfull, so that the earch range at the noyse of them. And Adonias herde it, and all they whom he had called, which were with him, and they had newe eaten. And whā Joab herde the noyse of the trompe, he sayde: What meaneth this noyse of the cite and this busynes? But while he yet spake, behold, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the prest came.

And Adonias sayde: Come in, for thou art a valeant man, and brynge good eydinges. Jonathas answered and sayde vnto Adonias: Alas, the lorde kyng David hath made Salomon kyng, and hath sent with him Sadoc the prest, and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chierchians and Plethians, and they haue set him vpon the kynges Mule: and Sadoc the prest with the prophet Nathan hath anynted him kyng at Gibon, and from thence are they gone vp with ioye, that the cite range with all: that is the noyse that ye haue herde.

Salomon also sitteth vpon the kynges seate, and the kynges seruantes are gone in to wish good lucke vnto oure lorde kyng David, and haue sayde: Thy God make Salomon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kyng good lucke vpon the bed. Moreover the kyng hath sayde thus: Praise be to the LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to sitt vpon my seate, that myne eyes haue seene it.

mon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kyng good lucke vpon the bed. Moreover the kyng hath sayde thus: Praise be to the LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to sitt vpon my seate, that myne eyes haue seene it.

Then were they afrayed, and gatt them vp all that were called by Adonias, and so they departed every man his waye. But Adonias was afrayed of Salomon, and gat him vp, and wrote his waye, & toke holde of the houses of the altare. And it was tolde Salomon: beholde, Adonias feareth kyng Salomon, & beholde, he taketh holde of the hornes of the altare, & sayeth: Let tige Salomon sweare vnto me this daye, that he shall not slaye his seruant with the swerde. Salomon sayde: If he wil be an honest man, there shall not one heer fall from him vpon the earth: but yf there be euell founde in him, he shall dye. And kyng Salomon sent, and caused him to be fetched from the altare. And whā he came, he fell downe before kyng Salomon. But Salomon sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in to thy house.

And whā the tyme came that David shoulde dye, he commaunded Salomon his sonne, and sayde: I go the waye of all the worlde, be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thyselfe a man, and kepe the warch of the LORDE thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and holde his ordinances, his commaundementes, his lawes, and his testimonies, as it is writen in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayest be wyse in all that thou doest, and whiche so euer thou turnest theither that the LORDE maye raise vp his worde, which he hath spokē ouer me, and saide: If thy children kepe their waye and walke before me faithfully and truly and with all their hert and with all their soule, they shal there neuer fayle the a man vpon the seate of Israel.

Thou knowest well also what Joab the sonne of Zeruia hath done vnto me, what he dyd vnto the two chefe capaynes of Israel, Abner the sonne of Ner, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, whom he slewe and shed the bloude of warre whā it was peace, & put the bloude of warre vpon his girdel, & was aboute his loynes, and in his shues that were vpon his fete: Do thou acorpyng to thy wysdome, that thou brynge not his graye heer downe to the grave in peace.

The iij. boke of the kynge.

And to the children of Barsillai the Gileadite, thou shalt shewe mercy, that they maye eat at thy table. For so iointed they the selues vnto me, when I fled before thy brother Absalom. And beholde, thou hast with thee Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with very bytter and shamefull cursynges, what tyme as I wente to Mahanaim. Yet came he downe to meete me at Jordan, where I swore vnto him by the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll not slaye the with the swerde. But suffer not thou him to be vngiltye, for thou art a wyse man, and shalt wel knowe what thou oughtest to do vnto him, that thou mayest brynge his graye heer downe to the graue with bloude.

So David slepte with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of David. The tyme that David was kynge ouer Israel, is fortie years. Seven years was he kynge at Hebrō and thirtie years at Jerusalem. And Salomon sat vpon the seate of David his father, and his kyngdome was made very sure.

But Adonias the sonne of Hagith came into Bethseba Salomons mocher. And she sayde: Is thy cummyng peaceable? He spake: Yee, and sayde: I haue somewhat to laye to the. She sayde: Saye on. He sayde: Thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel had sett them selues vpon me, that I shulde be kynge, but now is the kyngdome turned, and become my brothers: for he hath it of the LORDE.

Now desyre I one peticion of the, Make not my face ashamed. She sayde vnto him: Saye on. He sayde: Speake vnto kynge Salomon (for he shall not shame thy face) that he maye geue me Abisag to wyfe. Bethseba sayde: Wel, I wil speake to the kynge for the.

And Bethseba came in to kynge Salomon to speake with him. And the kynge stode vp, and wente to meete her, and worshipped her, and sat him downe vpon his seate. And there was a chayre set for the kynges mocher, so that she sat at his righte hande. And she sayde: One peticion desyre I of the make not my face ashamed. The kynge sayde: Aye O my mother, I wyll not shame thy face. She saide: Let Abisag of Sunem be geuen thy brother Adonias to wyfe.

Then answered kynge Salomon, and saide vnto his mocher: Why desyrest thou Abisag of Sunem for Adonias? Aye the kynge-dome or him also, for he is my greater brother, and hath Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of JeruJa. And the kynge swore by the LORDE, and sayde: God is this and that vnto me, Adonias shall haue spoken this agaynst his lyfe. And now as truly as the LORDE lyueth which hath adenyed me, and made me to sit vpon the seate of my father David, and hath made me a house (acordynge as he sayde) this day shal Adonias dye.

And kynge Salomon sent thither by Benaia the sonne of Joiada, which smote him that he dyed. And to the prest Abiathar sayde the kynge: So thy waye vnto Anatha to thy londe, for thou art a man of death. Neuerthelesse I wyll not slaye the this day for thou hast borne the Arke of the LORDE God before my father David, and hast suffered also where my father suffered.

Thus Salomon put forth Abiathar, that he must nomore be the prest of the LORDE, that the worde of the LORDE might be fulfilled, which he spake ouer the house of Eli at Silo.

And this rumoure came before Joab: for Joab cleued vnto Adonias, and not vnto Salomon. Then fled Joab into the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, that Joab was fled into the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and beholde, he stondech at the altare.

Then sent Salomon Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and sayde: Go slaye him. And when Benaia came to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the kynge: Come forth. He sayde: No, I wyll dye here. And Benaia tolde this vnto the kynge agayne, and sayde: Thus hath Joab spoken, and thus hath he answered me.

The kynge saide vnto him: Do as he hath spoken, and slaye him, and bury him, that thou mayest put fro me and my fathers house the bloude which Joab hath shed without a cause, and that the LORDE may recompence him his bloude vpon his heade, because he smote two men, which were more righteous and better then he, and slew them with y swerde that my father David knewe not of: namely, Abner y sonne of Neri the chiefe captaine ouer Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether y chiefe captaine ouer Judah y their bloude maye be recompensed vpon y heade of Joab and of his seide for ever: but David and his seide, his house and his seide have peace for evermore of the LORDE.

And Benaia the sonne of Joiada wente vp, and smote him, and slewe him: and he was buried in his house in the wyldernes. And y kynge set Benaia y sonne of Joiada in his steade ouer the hoost. And Sadoc y prest y the kynge set in the steade of Abiathar.

And the kynge sent, and caused for to call Semei, and sayde vnto him: Buylde the an house at Jerusalem, and dwell there, and departe not from thence, nether hit her nor thither. In what daye so ever thou departest forth, and goest ouer y broke Cedron, be thou sure, that thou shalt dye the death: thy bloude be vpon thy heade. Semei sayde vnto the kynge: This is a good meanynge, as my lord the kynge hath sayde, so shal thy seruante do. So Semei dwelt at Jerusalem a longe season. But after thre years it fortuneth that two seruantes ranne awaye from Semei vnto Achis the sonne of Maacha kynge of Gath.

And it was tolde Semei: beholde, thy seruantes are at Gath. Then Semei gat him vp, and saddled his asse, and wrote vnto Gath to Achis, for to seke his seruantes. And when he came thither, he broughte his seruantes from Gath.

And it was tolde Salomon, that Semei wente from Jerusalem vnto Gath, and was come agayne. Then sent the kynge, and caused for to call Semei, and sayde vnto him: Sware not I to the by the LORDE, and assured the, and sayde: Loke what daye so ever thou departest out and goest hither or thither, be sure that thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto me: I haue herde a good meanynge. Why hast thou not kepte the then acordynge to the ooth of the LORDE, and commandement that I commaunded the?

And the kynge sayde vnto Semei: Thou rememberest all y wickednes, which thy hert knoweth, that thou dydest vnto my father David. The LORDE hath recompenced y thy wickednes vpon thy heade. And kynge Salomon is blessed, and the seate of David shalbe stablished before y LORDE for ever. And the kynge commaunded Benaia y sonne of Joiada, which wente forth, and smote him that he dyed. And the kyngdome was stablished by Salomons hande.

The iij. Chapter.

And Salomon made mariage with Pharaoh the kynge of Egypte, and toke Pharaohs daughter, and broughte her in to the cite of David, tyll he had buylded his house, and the LORDES house, and the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. But the people offered yet vpon the hye places: for as yet there was no house buylded vnto the name of the LORDE vnto that tyme. But Salomon loued the LORDE, and walked after the ordinaunces of David his father: excepte onely that he offered and brent incense vpon the hye places.

And the kynge wente vnto Gibeon, to do sacrifice there: for that was a goodly hye place. And Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerynges vpon the same altare. And the LORDE appeared vnto Salomon at Gibeon in a dreame of the nighte, and God sayde: Aye what I shal geue y. Salomon salde: Thou hast done greace mercy vnto my father David thy seruante. Like as he walked before the in faithfulness and righteounes, and in a true hert with the, and this greace mercy hast thou layed vp for him, and geuen him a sonne to sit vpon his seate, as it is now come to passe.

Now LORDE my God, thou hast made thy seruante kynge in my father Davids steade: As for me, I am but a small yonge man, knowynge nether my outgoynge ner ingoynge. And thy seruante is amonge the people whom thou hast chosen: which is so greace, that no man can nombrer them ner descrybe them for multitude. Gene thy seruante therfore an obedient hert, that he maye iudge thy people, and vnderstonde what is good and bad: for who is able to iudge this thy mightie people?

This pleased the LORDE well, that Salomon asked soch a peticion. And God sayde vnto him: For so much as thou art this, and desyrest not longe lyfe, nether riches, nether y soules of thine enemies, but vnderstondinge to heare iudgment, beholde, therfore haue I done acordynge to thy wordes. Beholde, I haue geuen the an hert of wysdomme and vnderstondynge, so that soch one as thou hast not bene before the, nether shall ryse vp after the.

Yee and that thou hast not prayed for, haue I geuen the also, namely, ryches, and honoure, so that amonge the kynges in y tyme there is not soch one as thou. And yf thou wilt walke in my wayes, so that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, as David thy father hath walked, then wyll I geue the a longe lyfe.

And when Salomon awaked, beholde, it was a dreame, and he came to Jerusalem, and stode before the Arke of the LORDES comenant, and offred burntoffer kynges, and healtbofferinges, and made a greute feast vnto his seruantes.

At the same tyme came there two harlots vnto y kyng, and stode before him. And the one woman sayde: Oh my lord, I and this woman dwelt in one house, and I was delyuered of a childe in the house with her: on the thirde daye after that I was delyuered, she was delyuered of a childe also. And we were together, so y there was no stranger in y house, but we two: y this woman's sonne died in the nighte (for she smooed him in the slepe) and she rose vp in the nighte, and toke my sonne fro my syde (where thy handmayde slepte,) and layed it in hir arme, and hir deed sonne layed she in myne arme. And whan I rose vp in the mornynge to geue my sonne sucke, beholde, he was deed. But in the mornynge I loked well, and beholde, it was not my sonne, whom I had borne.

D The other woman sayde: Not so, my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is deed. But she sayde: Not so, thy sonne is deed, and my sonne liueth. And thus spake they before the kyng. And the kyng sayde: This womā saith: my sonne lyueth and thy sonne is ded: Yonder woman sayeth: Not so, thy sonne is deed, y my sonne lyueth. And the kyng saide: Fetch me a swerde. And whan the swerde was brought before the kyng, the kyng sayde: Parte the lyuynge childe in two partes, and geue this woman the one halfe, and yonder woman the other halfe.

Then sayde the woman whose sonne lyued, vnto y kyng: (for hir motherly hart was kyndled with pite ouer hir sonne) Oh my lord, geue hir the childe alyue, and kyll it not. But the other sayde: Let it nether be myne ner thine, but let it be parted. Then answered the kyng, and sayde: Geue this woman the lyuynge childe, and slaye it not, for she is his mother. And all Israel herde of this iudgment that the kyng had geuen: and they feared the kyng, for they sawe that y wysdome of God was in him to kepe iudgment.

The iiii. Chapter.

A Thus was Salomon kyng ouer all Israel. And these were his prynces: Asaria the sonne of Sadoc the prest: Elihozeoph, and Abi Ja the sonnes of Sisa, were prestes: Josaphat the sonne of Abihud was chanceler: Benaiā y sonne of Joiada was the chiefe caprayne: Sadoc and Abiathan were prestes: Asaria the sonne of Nathan was ouer the officers: Sabud the sonne of Nathan the prest was the kynges frende: Abisar was stewarde: Adoniram the sonne of Abda was rent gatherer.

And Salomon had twelue offycers ouer all Israel, which made prouysion of fode for the kyng and his house: One had a month longe in y yeare to make prouysion: The sonne of Hur vpon mount Ephraim. The sonne of Deber at Macaz, and at Saalbaim, at Bethsames, and at Elon, and Bethhan. The sonne of Gased at Aruboth, and he had thereto Socho and all the londe of Iypha. The sonne of Abinadab all y lordshipp of Dor: y had Taphat Salomons daughter to wife. Baena y sonne of Abihud at Thernach y at Magiddo, y ouer all BethSean, which lyeth beyde Zarthana vnder Iud from BethSean vnto the playne of Iyphelo, yll the other syde of Jatmeam. The sonne of Geber at Ramoth in Gilead: he had the townes of Jair the sonne of Manasse in Gilead, and had y coastes of Argob which lyeth in Basan, euenthyre score greute walled cities, and with brasen barres. Abinadab y sonne of Jodo at Mahanaim. Abinadab in Tephthali: and he also toke Basmath Salomons daughter to wife. Baena the sonne of Husai in Asser and at Aloth. Josaphat the sonne of Paruha in Isachar. Semei the sonne of Ela in Ben Jamin. Geber the sonne of Du in the londe of Gilead, in the londe of Shon kyng of the Amoures, and of Og the kyng in Basan. One officer was in the same londe. As for Juda and Israel, they were in nombre as the sonde of the see, and at arib dionke, and were mery. Thus was Salomon lord ouer all the kyngdomes (from the water of the londe of the Philistynes, vnto the border of Egipte) which brought him gyes, and serued him as longe as he lyued.

And Salomon had daylie to his vytayles thirtye quarters of fyne meel, thre score quarters of other meel, ten fat oxen, and twety small catell, and an hundred shepe, beside hartes and Koes, and wilde goates, and sacapons, and foules. For he had the lordshipp of all the londe on this syde the water, fro Tiphsa vnto Gasa, and ouer all y kynges on this syde y water: y had peace of all his subiectes rounde aboute, so that Juda and Israel dwelt safe, every one vnder his vne, and vnder his figge tre, from Dan vnto Berscha, as longe as Salomon lyued.

And Salomon had fortye thousande carboyses, and twelue thousande horsmen. And the officers prouyded the kyng Salomon with vytayles: and what soeuer belonged to the kynges table, that brought every man his moneth, and myssed not: Barlye also y strawe for the horses and coursers, y brought them vnto the place where y kyng was, every one a fter his charge.

And God gaue Salomon marnelous greute wysdome and vnderstondinge, and a large hart, as the sonde that lyeth vpon y See shore: so that the wysdome of Salomon was greater then the wysdome of all the children towarde the south and of all y Egiptians. And he was wyser then all men, yee wyser then Ethan the Etahite, Heman, Chalcal, and Darda, the sonnes of Maholi: and had a greute name amonge all the theyt on eny syde. And he spake thre thousande proverbes, y his songes were a thousand y. And he spake of trees, from y Cedar of Libanus vnto the Ilope y groweth out of y wall: he talked also of catell, of foules, of wormes, of ffishes. And there came of all nacions to heare y wysdome of Salomon, and there came of all the kynges of y earth, which had herde of his wysdome.

The v. Chapter.

Ald Hiram y kyng of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon, for he had herde, y they had anoynted him kyng in his fathers steade: For Hiram loned David as lōge as he lyued. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram, sayenge: Thou knowest that my father might not buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE his God, because of the warre that was aboute him, vntill the LORDE delyuered them vnder the soles of his fete: But now hath the LORDE my God geuen me rest on every syde, so that there is no aduersary ner euell hynderaunce: Beholde, I am therfore aduysed to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, acordinge as the LORDE spake vnto David my father, and sayde: Thy sonne, whom I shal set vpon thy seate in thy steade, shal buylde an house vnto my name. Commaunde therfore that they hewe me downe Ceders out of Libanus, and that thy seruantes be with my seruantes, y the rewarde of thy seruantes wyll I geue the, what soeuer thou shalt aske: for thou knowest, y with vs there is no mā which can hewe tymber as the Sidonians.

D Whan Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he was very glad, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE this daye, which hath geuen David a wyse sonne ouer this greute people. And Hiram sent vnto Salomon, sayenge: I haue herde what thou hast sent vnto me: I wyll do acordinge vnto all thy desyre with Ceders and pyne trees. My seruantes shall brynge them downe from Libanus vnto y See, and I wyll make them to flore vps the See, vnto the place which thou shalt shewe me, and there wyll I cause them to aryue, y thou shalt make the to be fetchyd. But thou shalt fulfyll my desyre also, and geue fode vnto my houshelde folkes. So Hiram gaue Salomon Ceders and Pyne trees acordinge to all his desyre. But Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate to eate for his houshelde, and twety quarters of beaten oyle. This gaue Salomon yearly vnto Hiram.

And the LORDE gaue Salomon wysdome, acordynge as he had sayde vnto him, y there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they made a conenant both together. And Salomon made an outchosinge (of workmen) thorow out all Israel. And y outchosinge was thirtie thousande mē, and he sent the to mount Libanus every two monethes ten thousande, so that they were one moneth vpon Libanus, and two monethes at home. And Adoniram was ouer the outchosinge.

And Salomon had thre score thousande y ten that bare burthens, y foure score thousande that he wed tymber vpon the mount, beyde Salomons chiefe officers, which were ordeyned ouer the worke: namely thre thousande and thre hundred, which ruled y people that laboured there in the worke. And y kyng commaunded, that they shulde breake out greute and costly stones, namely fre stone, for the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and Hirams, and they that were in those coastes, hewed out y prepared tymber and stones to the buyldinge of the house.

The vi. Chapter.

In the foure hundred and foure score yeare after the departinge of the children of Israel out of the londe of Egipte, in the fourth yeare of the raigne of Salomon ouer Israel, in the moneth Sif (y is the seconde moneth) was the house buylde vnto the LORDE. This house that kyng Salomon buylde vnto y LORDE, was thre score cubytes lōge, twenty cubytes brode, y thirtie cubytes hye. And he buylde a porche before the temple of twenty cubytes longe after the bredth of the house, y ten cubytes brode before the house. And in y house he made wyndowes, which might be opened and shut with lyddes.

And rounde aboute by the wall of y house se he buylded a compase, so þat it wente both aboute the temple and the quere, and made his outwarde wall rounde aboute. The nether most stacion was fyue cubytes wyde, and þat myddest fyue cubytes wyde, and the thirde sen cubytes wyde. For he layed balkes rounde aboute the house, that they touched not þat wall of the house.

B And whan þat house was buylded, it was buylded of whole and outbroken stones, so þat there was herde nether hammer ner axe, ner eny other instrument of yron, whan the house was a buyldinge.

But on the righte syde of the myddes of the house there was a dore, so þat they might go vp to the myddest stacion by a curue grese, and from the myddest stacion vnto þat thirde. Thus buylded he the house, and fynished it, and syled þat house both aboue and by the walles with Cedar wodd. He buylded a galery also aboue vpon the whole house fyue cubytes hye, and couered the house with Cedar tymber.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Salomon, and sayde: Let this be the house þat thou buyldest. If thou shalt walke in myne ordinaunces, and do acordinge to my lawes, and kepe all my comaundementes, to walke therein, then wyl I stablysshe my worde with þe. (as I sayde vnto Dauid thy father) and wyl dwell amonge the childre of Israel, and wil not forsake my people of Israel.

Re. 7. b

C Thus Salomon buylded the house, and fynished it, and buylded the walles on the insyde with Cedar tymber, from the grounde of þat house vnto the rose, and syled it with tymber on the insyde, and overlaid the floore of þat house with bordes of Pyne tre.

And behynde in the house he buylded a wall of Cedar tymber twentye cubytes longe, from the floore vnto the rose. And there on the insyde buylded he the quere for the most holy. But the house of the temple before the quere was fortye cubytes longe: on the insyde was the whole house of Cedar with throwne knoppes and floures, so that there was no stone sene. As for the quere, he prepared it on the insyde of the house, that the Ark of the couenant of the LORDE might be set therein. And before the quere (which was twentye cubytes longe, twentye cubytes brode, and twentye cubytes hye, and overlaid with pure golde) he syled the altare with Cedar.

D And Salomon overlaid the house on þat insyde with pure golde, and shot barres of golde before the quere, which he had overlaid with golde, so that þat whole house was layed ouer with golde. And all the altare also before þat quere overlaid he with golde.

He made also in the quere two Cherubins ten cubytes hye of Olyue tre. One wyng of ether of the Cherubs had fyue cubytes, so that from the edge of his one wyng to the edge of his other wyng there were ten cubytes. Euen so had the other Cherub ten cubytes also, and both the Cherubs were of one measure and of one quantite so þat ether Cherub was ten cubytes hye. And he put the Cherubins within in the house. And the Cherubins spred forth their wynges, so that the wyng of the one touched the one wall, and the other Cherub wyng touched the other wall. And in the myddes of þat house the one wyng touched another. And he overlaid the Cherubins with golde.

And on all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he caused to make carued worke, with carued Cherubins, palme trees, and floures. And the pauement of the house overlaid he also with golde plates. And at the entrance of the quere he made two dores of olyue tre with fyue squared postes, and caused carued worke to be made therof with Cherubins, palme trees and floures, and overlaid them with plates of golde. So made he also at the entrance of the temple, four squared postes of Olyue tre, and two dores of Pyne tre (so that ether dore had two fyue dores one hanginge to another) and made carued worke therof, palme trees and floures, right as it was appoynted.

And he buylded a court also within þat thre rowes of fre stone, and with one rowe of playne Cedar tymber.

In the fourth yere in the moneth Sif, was the foundation of the LORDES house layed: and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Bul (that is the eight moneth) was the house fynished as it shulde be, so that there were seven yere a buyldinge of it.

The viij. Chapter.

When Salomon was a buyldinge his awne house thirtene yere, and fynished it, namely, he buylded an house of the wodd of Libanus, an hundred cubytes longe, fiftye cubytes wyde, and thirtie cubytes hye, four squared with rowes of pilers, and carued Ceders. And the rose aboue syled he also with Cedar wodd vpon the fyue and four pilers, for one rowe had fyfene pilers, so that there stode ever thre pilers one right against another: so that enery space betwixte the pilers was one over agaynst another, four squared with the pilers.

The iij. boke of the kynges.

And he made a porche with pilers which was fiftye cubytes longe, and thirtie cubytes brode, and yet a porche before it with pilers and a grete poste. He made a porche also vnto þat kynges seate (wherin þat iudgment was kept) and made it to be the porche of iudgment, and syled it with Cedar from the pauement vnto the pauement agayne, and his owne house wherin he dwelt, in þat back court made betwene þat house and the porche like the other. And like vnto the porche made he a house for Pharaos daughter, whom Salomon had taken to wife.

All these were costly stone heren after þat measure, cut with sawes on enery syde, from the grounde vnto the rose: and without the grete court also. As for the foundations, they were costly and grete stones, ten and eight cubytes grete: and costly fre stones theron acordinge to þat measure, and Ceders. But the grete court rounde aboute had thre rowes of fre stone, and one rowe of playne Ceders: Euen so also the court by þat house of the LORDE within, and the porch by the house.

And kyng Salomon sent to fetch one Hiram of Tyre a wedowes sonne, of the tribye of Nephtali, and his father had bene a man of Tyre, which was a connyng man in metall, full of wysdome, vnderstandinge and knowlege to worke all maner of metall worke. Whan he came to kyng Salomon, he made all his worke, and made two brasen pilers, ether of them eightene cubytes hye: and a threde of xij. cubytes was the measure aboute both þat pilers: and he made two knoppes of brasen molten, to set aboue vpon the pilers: and enery knoppe was fyue cubytes hye: and on enery knoppe aboue vpon þat pilers seuē wynges ropes like cheynes. And vpon enery knoppe he made two rowes of pomgranates rounde aboute on one rope, wherewith þat knoppe was conered. And the knoppes were like roses before þat porche four cubytes grete. And the pomgranates in the rowes rounde aboute were two hundred aboue and beneth vpon the rope, which were rounde aboute the thicnes of the knoppe, on enery knoppe vpon both the pilers. And set vp the pilers before the porche of the temple. And that which he set on the right hande, called he Jachim: and that which he set on the lefte hande, called he Boas. And so stode it aboue vpon the pilers euen like roses. Thus was the worke of þat pilers fynished.

And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes

wyde from the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye, and a threde of thirtie cubytes longe was þat measure rounde aboute: and aboute the same lauer that was then cubytes wyde, there wente knoppes on the edge therof rounde aboute the lauer. Two rowes were there of the knoppes molten with the lauer.

And it stode vpon twelue bullockes, wherof thre were turned towarde the north, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the south, and thre towarde the east, and the lauer aboue theron, so that all their hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the thicnesse was an handbreth: and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose, and it conteyned two thousande Bannes.

And he made ten brasen seates, enery one foure cubytes longe and brode, and thre cubytes hye. The seate was made so, that it had fydes betwene the ledges. And on the fydes betwene the ledges there were lyons, bullockes and Cherubins. And on þat ledges which were aboue and beneth the lyons and bullockes, were the fydes made so, that they were set downwardes. And enery stole had foure brasen wheles with brasen axeltrees. And vpon the foure corners there were proppes molten, enery one over agaynst another, vnder set vnto the kettell.

And the solet vpon the stole was a cubyte hye and rounde, a cubyte and an halfe wyde: and on the solet there were knoppes in foldes, which were foure squared and not rounde. The foure wheles stode beneth by the fydes, and the axeltrees of the wheles were harde on þat seate. Enery whele was a cubyte and an halfe hye, and they were wheles like cart wheles. And their axeltrees, spokes, nales, and shaftes were all molten. And the foure proppes vpon the foure corners of enery seate were harde on the seate.

And on the solet aboue vpon the seate a cubyte and an halfe rounde aboute, there were ledges and fydes harde on the seate. And on the plat of the same fydes and ledges, he caused to carue Cherubins, lyons and palme trees, one by another rounde aboute theron. After this maner made he ten molten seates, one maner of measure and widenes was in all.

And he made ten copper kettels, so that one kettell conteyned fortye Bannes, and was foure cubytes grete, and vpon enery seate was a kettell. And fyue seates set he on the righte syde of the house, and the other fyue on the lefte syde. But the lauer set he before was a certain measure of liquore.

on the righte hande towarde the south.

And Hiram made pottes also and shouels and basens, & so fynished he all the worke, that kynge Salomon caused to be made in the house of the LORDE: namely & two pilers, and the rounde knoppes aboue vpon the two pilers, and the two wythen ropes to couer the two rounde knoppes vpon the pilers. And the foure hundred pomgranates on the two wythen ropes, euer two rowes of pomgranates vnto euery rope, to couer the two rounde knoppes vpon the pilers. And the ten seates, and ten tetteles theron, and the lauer, and twelue bullockes vnder f lauer. And the pottes, shouels and basens. And all the ornaments which Hiram made vnto kynge Salomon for the house of the LORDE, were of pure metall. In the countrey by Iordane, caused the kynges them to be molten in thicke earth, betwene Succoth and Zarthan. And Salomon let all the apparell be vnweyed, because the metall was so much.

Moreover Salomon made all the apperell that belonged vnto the house of the LORDE: namely a golden altare, a golden table that the shewbread laye on, fyue candelsstickes on the righte hande, and fyue candelsstickes on the lefte (before the quere) of pure golde, & floures, lampes and snuffers of golde, chertoflat peces, charges, basens, spones and censours of pure golde. And the hookes of & dores on the insyde of the house in the most holy, and in the dores of the house of the temple of the LORDE were of golde.

Thus all the worke that kynge Salomon made in & house of the LORDE, was fynished. And Salomon broughed in that his father Dauid had sanctified, of syluer and golde and ornaments, and layed it amonge the treasures of the house of the LORDE.

The viii. Chapter.

When gathered kynge Salomon all & Elders in Israel together, all the rulers of the trybes and prynces of the fathers amonge the childien of Israel, vnto Jerusalem, to brynge vp the Arke of the covenant of the LORDE, out of the cite of Dauid, that is Zion. And there resorted vnto kynge Salomon all the men in Israel, at the feast in the moneth Ethanim, that is & seventh moneth. And whan all & Elders of Israel came, the prestes toke the Arke of the LORDE, and broughed it vp, and the Tabernacle of witness, and all the ornaments of the Sanctuary that were in the Tabernacle. This dyd the prestes and the Levites.

And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel & were gathered vnto him, wente with him before the Arke, and offered shepe and bullockes, so many, that they could not be nombred ner tolde.

So the prestes broughed the Arke of the LORDE'S covenant vnto hir place, euen in to & Quere of the house in the most holy under & wynges of the Cherubins. For & Cherubins spied out their wynges in the place where the Arke stode, and covered the Arke and the stanes therof from aboue. And the stanes were so luge, that & knoppes of them were sene from the Sanctuary before & quere, but on the outsyde were they not sene, and they were there vnto this daye.

And in the Arke there was nothinge, but onely the two tables of stone, which Moses had layed therein at Horeb, whan & LORDE made a covenant with the childien of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of the lande of Egypte.

But whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary, a cloude fylled the house of the LORDE, so & the prestes coude not stonde & execute the office for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled the LORDE'S house. Then sayde Salomon: The LORDE sayde, that he wolde dwell in a darke cloude. I haue buylded an house, to be an habitation vnto theia seate, & thou mayest dwell therfor euer. And & kynge turned his face, & blessed all the congregacion of Israel. And all the congregacion of Israel stode, & he sayde:

prayed be the LORDE God of Israel, which promised by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and by his hande hath fulfilled it, and sayde: Sence the daye & I broughed my people of Israel out of Egypte, haue I chosen no cite amonge all the trybes of Israel, to buylde me an house, that my name might be there. But Dauid haue I chosen, to be ouer my people of Israel.

And in dede my father Dauid was mydded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel: neuertheles the LORDE sayde vnto my father Dauid: Where as thou wast mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well, that thou art so aduysed. Howbeit thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. And the LORDE hath performed his word: that he spake: For I am come vp in my father Dauid's steade, and syt vpon the seate of Israel, as the LORDE sayde: and haue buylded an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel: and there haue I aduysed a place for the Arke, wherein is the LORDE'S covenant, which he made with oure fathers, whan he broughed them out of & lande of Egypte.

And Salomon stode before the altare of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and helde out his handes towarde heauen, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, there is no god like the, neither aboue in heauen, ner beneth vpon earth, thou that kepest covenant and mercy for all thy seruantes that walke before & with all their hert, thou that hast kept promises with my father Dauid thy seruant: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel make good vnto my father Dauid & seruant, that which thou hast promysed him, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man before me to syt vpon the seate of Israel, yf thy childre kepe their waye, so & they walke before me. Now thou God of Israel, let & worde be verified, which thou hast promysed vnto my father Dauid thy seruant.

For thou test thou & God dwelleth vpon earth: Beholde, the heauens and the heauens of all heauens maye not coneyne the: how shalder then this house do it, that I haue buylded? But turne the vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and to his supplicacion: O LORDE my God, that thou mayest heare the thankesgeuyng and prayer, which thy seruant maketh before the this daye, so that thine eyes be open ouer this house night and daye, euen ouer this place (whereof thou saydest: My name shall dwell there.) That thou mayest heare the prayer which thy seruant maketh in this place, & heare the intercession of & seruant & of thy people of Israel, which they shall make here in this place of thy habitation in heauen: and whan thou hearest it, be gracious.

Whan any man synneth agaynst his neighoure, and taketh vpon him an oath wherewith he byndeth himselfe, and & oath cometh before thine altare in this house, then heareth thou in heauen, and se that thy seruantes haue right, to condemne the vngodly, and to brynge his waye vpon his owne head, and to iustifie the righteous, to geue him accordinge to his righteousnes.

Whan thy people of Israel is synneten before their enemies (whyle they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they turne vnto the

and knowlege thy name, & make their prayer and intercession vnto the in this house, the heare thou them in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel, and brynge them agayne in to the lande, & thou hast geuen vnto their fathers.

Whan the heauen is shut vp, so that rayneth not (for so much, as they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they make their prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, and turne from their synnes whā thou troublest them, heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synnes of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel, that thou mayest shewe them the good waye, wherein they shulde walke, and let it rayne vpon the lande that thou hast geuen thy people to inheritance.

Whan a deth, or pestilence, or drought, or burnyng, or greshopper or caterpillar, is in their lande, or whan his enemye layeth lege to his portes in the lande, or whan any other plague or disease happeneth, who so euer then maketh his prayer and petition, whether it be any other men or thy people of Israel (which the are aware of their plague) euery one in his hert, and spiedeth out his handes vnto this house: Heare thou then in heauen in the seate where thou dwellest, and be mercifull, & se that thou geue euery one accordinge as he hath walked, like as thou knowest his hert (for thou onely knowest the hert of all the childien of men) that they maye allwaye feare the, as long as they lyue in the lande, which thou hast geuen vnto oure fathers.

And whan any straunger, that is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countrey for thy names sake (for they shall heare of thy greates name, and of thy mightie hande, and of thy outstretched arme) and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then in heauen, euen in the seate of thy dwellinge, and do all for the which that straunger calleth vpon the, that all the nations vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and that they maye feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how that this house which I haue buylded, is named after thy name.

Whan thy people go forth to the battayll agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye vnto the LORDE towarde the waye of the cite which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name, heare thou then their prayer and petition in heauen, and execute iudgment for them.

Whan they synne agaynst the (for there is no man that synneth not) & thou be wroth, and deliuer the vnto their enemyes, so that they cary them awaye captiue in to the enemyes londe farre or nye, and yf they remembre them selues in the londe where they are captiue, and turne, and make their intercession vnto the in the londe of their captiuitie, and saye: We haue synned, & done amysse, and haue bene vngodly, and so turne vnto & with all their hert, and with all their soule in the lode of their enemyes (which led them awaye captiue) and make their prayer vnto the towarde the waye of their londe, that thou hast gyven vnto their fathers, even towarde the cite which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication in heauen, * from the seate of thy dwellinge, and execute iudgment for them, and be mercifull vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all their trespasses, wherewith they haue transgressed agaynst the, * and graunce the mercy in the sighte of them which led them awaye prisonners, that their enemyes maye be mercifull vnto them: for they are thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whom thou broughtest out of Egipte, from the yron furnace: that thine eyes maye be open vnto the petition of thy seruant, and of thy people of Israel, that thou maist heare them in all thinges for the which they shall call vpon the * (for thou O LORDE LORDE) hast sundered them out to be an inheritaunce vnto thy selfe, from amonge all the nations vpon earth, accordinge as thou saydest by Moyses thy seruant, whan thou broughtest our fathers out of Egipte.

Par. 7. a

* And whan Salomon had ended all this prayer and petition before the LORDE, he rose vp from the altare of the LORDE, and lefte of from Enelynge and holdyng out of handes towarde heauen, and stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with loude voyce, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE which hath gyven rest vnto his people, accordinge as he sayde. There hath not one fayled of all his good wordes, which he spake by his seruant Moyses. The LORDE oure God be with vs, as he hath bene with our fathers, and forsake vs not, nether withdrawe his hande from vs, but burre oure hertes vnto him, that we maye walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundmentes, ordinaunces and lawes, which he commaunded oure fathers. And these wordes wherewith I haue made my petition before the LORDE, come nye vnto the LORDE oure God daye and night, that he maye execute iudgment for his seruant and for his people of Israel, every one at his tyme: that all nations vpon earth maye knowe, that the LORDE is God, & that there is none other. And let youre hert be perfecte with the LORDE oure God, to walke in his statutes, and kepe his commaundmentes, as it is this daye.

And the kyng with all Israel his people offered sacrifice before the LORDE. And Salomon offered deed offerynges (which he offered vnto the LORDE) two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred & twenty thousand shepe. So the kyng and all the children of Israel dedicated the house of the LORDE. The same daye dyd the kyng dedicate the myddelmofte court, which was before the house of the LORDE: that he might there performe the burnt offerynges, meat offerynges, and the fat of the deed offerynges: for the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, was to litle for the burnt offerynges, meat offerynges, and for the fat of the deed offerynges.

And at the same tyme made Salomon a solempne feast, and all Israel a greace congregacion with him, from the border of the math vnto the ryuer of Egipte, before the LORDE oure God, seven dayes, and yet seven dayes, that were fourtene daies. And on the eight daye he let the people go. And they blessed the kyng, and wente vnto their tentes reioysinge and with a mery hert, because of all the good that the LORDE had done vnto Dauid his seruant, & to his people of Israel.

The ix. Chapter.

And whan Salomon had finished the buyldinge of the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all that his desyre and pleasure was to make, & the LORDE appeared vnto him the seconde tyme, * even as he appeared vnto him at Gibeon. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: I haue hearde thy prayer and petition, that thou hast made before me, and haue sanctified this house which thou hast buylded, that I maye set my name there for ever: and myne eyes and my hert shall be there allwaye. And yf thou walke before me (as thy father Dauid walked) with a perfecte and a true hert, so that thou do all that I haue commaunded the, and kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, that will I stablish the seate of thy kyngdome over Israel for ever, accordinge as I promysed thy father Dauid, and sayde: * Thou shalt not wante a man from the seate of Israel.

But yf ye turne back fro me, ye and your children, and kepe not my commaundmentes and ordinaunces which I haue layed before you, but go and serue other goddes, and worshipper them, then will I rote Israel out of the londe that I haue gyven them. And the house that I haue halowed vnto my name, will I put awaye fro my face. And Israel shall be come a byworde and sabell amonge all nations, and so shall this hye house: so that every one that goeth by, shall be astonyed, and make an hyssyng, and saye: * Wherfore hath the LORDE done thus vnto this londe and to this house? Then shall it be answered: Because they forsoke the LORDE their God, (which brought their fathers out of the londe of Egipte) and haue receaved other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued them. Therefore hath the LORDE brought all this euill vpon them.

Now whan the twentye yeares were ended, wherin Salomon buylded the two houses, the LORDES house and the kynges house, where vnto Hiram the kyng of Tyre broughte Salomons Cedar trees & Pyne trees, and golde after all his desyre, then gave kyng Salomon vnto Hiram twentye cities in the countre of Galile. And Hiram departed from Tyre to vset the cities which Salomon had gyven him, & they pleased him not, and he sayde: What maner of cities are these my brother, that thou hast gyven me? And he called them the londe of Cabul vnto this daye. And Hiram sent vnto the kyng, sixe score hundred weighte of Golde. And the same is the summe of the care, that kyng Salomon raysed to the buyldinge of the house of the LORDE, and his awne house, & Millo, and the walles of Jerusalem, and Gazer, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

For Pharaos kyng of Egipte came vp, and wane Gaser, & brent it with fyre, & slewe the Cananites that dwelt in the cite, & gaue it for a gifte vnto his daughter Salomons wife. So Salomon buylded Gaser, & the lower Babilon, and Baelath and Thamar, in the wyldernes, in the londe, & all the cities of the countre that Salomon had, and all the cities of the charrettes, & all the cities of the harness, and what it pleased him to buylde at Jerusalem, in Libanus, & in every countre of his domynion.

The x. Chap. Ho. lviij.

And all the remnant of the people of the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, Kenites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, their children which they lefte behynde them in the londe (whom the children of Israel coude not utterly destroye) those dyd Salomon make tributaries vnto this daye.

But of the children of Israel he made no bondmen, but let them be men of warre, and his seruantes, and prynces, and knightes, and ouer his charrettes and horsmen. And the officers which were ouer Salomons busynesse, were fyue hundred and fyfye, which ruled the people, and perfourmed the worke.

And Pharaos daughter wente vp from the cite of Dauid, in to hir house, which he had buylded for her. * Then buylded he Millo likewise. And thre tymes in the yere dyd Salomon offre burnt offerynges and deed offerynges vpon the altare, that he had buylded vnto the LORDE, and burnt incense vpon it before the LORDE, and so was the house ended and fynished.

* And Salomon made shippes also at Ezion Geber, which lyeth by Elath besyde the Reed See shore in the londe of the Edomites. And Hiram sent his seruantes by shippes, which were shipmen, and had experience of the See, with Salomons seruantes, and they came vnto Ophir, and fetched from thence one & twenty score hundred weighte of golde, and brought it vnto Salomon.

The x. Chapter.

And whan kyng Salomons came of the name of the LORDE came to the cares of the Quene of riche Arabia, she came to proue him with darke sentences. And she came to Jerusalem with a marvellous greace trayne, with camels which bare spyes, and moch golde, and precious stones. And whan she came in to kyng Salomon, she spake vnto him all that was in hir hert. And Salomon tolde her eury thinge, and the kyng had nothyng in secrete, but he tolde it her. But whan the Quene of riche Arabia sawe all the wysdome of Salomon, and the house that he had buylded, and the meates of his table, and the dwellinges of his seruantes, & the offyces of his ministers, and the garments, and his butlers, and the burnt offerynges which he offered in the house of the LORDE, she wondered exceedingly, and coude no longer restrayne,

But sayde vnto the kyng: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behauiour and of thy wysdome. And I wolde not beleue it, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe hath not bene tolde me.

Thou hast more wysdome and good, the same is that I haue herde. Happye are thy people and thy seruautes, that allwaie stonde before the, and heare thy wysdome. Praise be the LORDE thy God, which had soch a pleasure vnto the, that he set the vpon the seate of Israel: because he hath allwaie loued Israel, and hath set the to be kyng, that thou shuldest mantayne iustyce and equitye.

Re. 9. c. And she gaue the kyng fyre score hundred weighte of golde, and very much spyce, and precious stones. There came neuer so much spyce thither, as the Quene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kyng Salomon. And Tyrans shippes, which caried golde out of Ophir, broughte maruelous much costly tymber and precious stones from Ophir. And of that costly tymber the kyng caused to make pilers in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and harpes and psalteries for the Musicians. There came neuer soch costly tymber, nether was it sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue the quene of riche Arabia, all that she desired and asked, besides that which he gaue her of a fre hande. And she returned, and departed in to hir lande with hir seruautes.

The golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was nyne and thytie score hundred weighte, besides that which came of chapmen, marchautes and Apotecaries, and of the nexte kynges, and of the mightie men in the londe. And kyng Salomon caused to make two hundred speares of beateen golde, fyre hundred peces of golde put he to euery speare: and thre hundred shyldes of the best golde, euery pounce of golde vpon euery shyld. And the kyng put them in the house of the wod of Libanus.

Re. 7. a. And the kyng made a greate seate of Query, and overlaid it with the most precious golde. And the seate had fyre stepes, and the heade of the seate was rounde behynde. And there were two postes to leane vpon on both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode vpon the leanyng postes, and twelue lyons stode vpon the fyre stepes on both the sydes. Soch one hath not bene made in any kyngdome. All kyng Salomons drynkyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels in the house of the wod of Libanus were of pure golde also: for syluer was not regarded in Salomons tyme. For the kynges Seraphim, which sayled vpon the See with the shippes of ram, came once in thre yere, and brought golde, syluer, Query, Apes, and Pecockes.

Thus was kyng Salomon greater in riches and wysdome, then all the kynges vpon earth: And all the worlde desired to se Salomon, that they might heare the wysdome which God gaue him in his hert. And they brought him yearly euery man his present, vessels of syluer and golde, rayment and harness, spyces, horses and Mules. And Salomon broughte charettes and horsmen together, so that he had a thousande and four hundred charettes, and twelue thousand horsmen: and those he put in the chare cities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

And the kyng broughte it to passe, that there was as much syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders as there were wyde figge trees in the valleys. And Salomons houses were broughte out of Egypte, and of Beaa: for the kynges marchautes fetch them from Beaa for money. And a chara came vpon out of Egypte for fyre hundred Syckles of Syluer, and an horse for an hundred and fyfetye. Thus were they broughte also to all the kynges of the heathenes and to the kynges of Siria by their handes.

The XL Chapter.

But kyng Salomon loued many forlandish women, Pharaes daughter, and women of Moab, of Ammon, of Edom, of Sidon, and of Zeth, even of the se nations, that the LORDE spake of vnto the children of Israel: So not ye vnto them, and let not them come vnto you: they shal surely bowe youre hertes after their goddes: Vnto these dyd Salomon encline with affection. And he had seven hundred wyues, and thre hundred concubynes, and his wyues turned his hert asyde. And when he was now olde, his wyues bowed his hert after straunge goddes, so that his hert was not whole with the LORDE his God, as was the hert of David his father.

So Salomon walked after Astaroth the god of the Sidonians, and after Moloch the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon dyd that which displeased the LORDE, and folowed not the LORDE to the vttermost as dyd his father David. The wylded Salomon an hie place vnto Chamos the abhominacion of Moabites (vpon the mount that lyeth before Jerusalem) and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the Ammonites.

Thus dyd Salomon for all his oncladysh wyues, which burnt incense, and offred vnto their goddes. But the LORDE was wroth at Salomon, because his hert was turned asyde from the LORDE God of Israel, which had two tymes appeared vnto him, and commaunded him, that he shulde not walke after other goddes: and yet kept he not that the LORDE commaunded him. Therefore sayde the LORDE vnto Salomon: For so much as this is done with the, and hast not kept my conuauent and myne ordinaunces, which I commaunded the, therefore wyll I also plucke thy kyngdome from the, and geue it vnto thy seruaunt: Neuertheles in the tyme wyll I not do it, for thy father Davids sake, but from the hande of thy sonne wyll I plucke it. Howbeit I wyll not plucke the kyngdome cleane awaye. One trybe wyll I geue vnto thy sonne, for David my seruaunt sake, and for Jerusalem sake which I haue chosen.

And the LORDE raysed vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, even Hadad the Edomite of the kynges seide, which was in Edom. For when David was in Edom, and Joab the chefe capteyne wente vpon to bury the slayne, he smote all the males in Edom. (For Joab remayned there fyre monethes and all Israel, tyll he had reed out all the males that were in Edom.) Then fled Hadad, and certeyn men of Moabites with him, of his fathers seruautes. As for Hadad, he was a yongeman.

And they gat them vpon fro Madian, and came vnto Paran, and toke men with them out of Paran, and came in to Egypte vnto Pharaos the kyng of Egypte: which gaue him an house and certeyn vytales appoynted, and gaue him a countrey. And Adad founde greates fauoure in the sighte of Pharaos, so that he gaue him to wife euen the sister of his owne wyfe Thaphenes the Quene. And Thaphenes sister bare him Genubath his sonne, and Thaphenes nourished him vpon in Pharaos house, in so much that Genubath was in Pharaos house amonge Pharaos children.

Now when Hadad herde in Egypte, that David was falle on slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the chefe capteyne was deed, he sayde vnto Pharaos: Let me go in to my countrey. Pharaos sayde vnto him: What lackest thou with me, that thou wilt go in to thy countrey? he sayde: My wyng, but yet let me go.

God raysed him vp another aduersary also, one Rezon the sonne of El Jada, which fled from his lord Hadad the kyng of Zeba, and gathered men agaynst him, and was a capteyne of the men of warre when David slewe them: and they wente vnto Damascus and dwelt there, and reigned at Damascus, and he was Israels aduersary as long as Salomon luyed. This is the harme that Hadad suffred: therefore had he euell will at Israel, and was kyng ouer Israel.

Moreover Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraite Salomons seruaunt (and his mothers name was Zeruga, a wedowe) lifte vpon his hande also agaynst the kyng. And this is the cause wherfore he lifte vpon his hande agaynst the kyng: When Salomon buylded Millo, he shut vp a gappe in the cite of David his father. And Jeroboam was a man of armes. And when Salomon sawe that he was a mere yonge man, he set him ouer all the burthens of the house of Joseph.

But at the same tyme he fortunied, that Jeroboam wente out from Jerusalem, and the prophet Ahias of Silo founde him by the waye, and he had a new cloke vpon him, and they two were alone in the felde. And Ahias toke holde of the new cloke that he had on, and rente the same in to twelue peces, and sayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thou ten peces vnto the.

For thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, euery thus wyll I rente the kyngdome from the hande of Salomon, and wyll geue the ten trybes. One trybe shall he haue for my seruaunt Davids sake, and because of the cyte of Jerusalem, which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: for they haue forsaken me, and worshipped Astaroth the god of the Sidonians, Chamos the god of the Moabites, and Malcham the god of the children of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to fulfill my pleasure, myne ordinaunces, and lawes, as dyd David his father.

Notwithstandyng I wyll not take the whole kyngdome from out of his hande, but wil make him a pryncce as longe as he lyueth for my seruaunt Davids sake, whom I dyd chose, which kepte my commaundementes and ordinaunces. From out of the hande of his sonne wyll I take the kyngdome, and wyll geue ten trybes vnto the, and one vnto his sonne, that David my seruaunt maye allwaie haue a lanterne before me in the cite of Jerusalem, which I haue chosen, that I maye set my name there. Therefore wyll I take the now, to raygne ouer all that chine here desyreth, and thou shalt be kyng ouer Israel.

G If thou folowe now all that I shall commaunde the, and walke in my wayes, and fulfill my pleasure to kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes, as dyd my seruante Dauid, then wyll I be with the, and buylde
the a sure house, as I buylde vnto Dauid, and wyl geue Israel vnto the and therewith wyll I subdue the sede of Dauid, but not for euermore. But Salomon soughte to kyll Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam gat him vp, and fled in to Egipte to Sisak the kyng of E-gipte, and remayned in Egipte, tyll Salomon dyed.

What more there is to saye of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of Salomon.
The tyme that Salomon was kyng at Jerusalem ouer all Israel, is fortye yere. And Salomon fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XII. Chapter.

And Roboam wote vnto Sichem, for all Israel was come to Sichem to make him kyng. And whan Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat herde that, while he was yet in Egipte, (whiche he was fled for Salomon) he came agayne out of Egipte. And they sent for him, and called him. And Jeroboam with all the congregacion of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayde:
Thy father made oure yock to harde: ther fore make thou now the harde bondage and the soke yock lighter, and we wyll submyt oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them:
So youre waye vnto the thirde daye, and then come to me agayne. And the people we-te their waye.

And Roboam the kyng helde a counsell with the Elders that stode before Salomo his father whyle he lyued, & he sayde: What is youre counsell, that we maye geue this people an answer? They sayde vnto him:
If thou do this people a pleasure to daye,
and folowe their mynde, and heare them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they be obedient vnto the as longe as thou liuest.
Nevertheless he forsoke the counsell that the Elders had geuen him, and axed counsell at the yonge men which were growne vp with him, and stode before him.

B And he sayde vnto them: What is youre counsell that we maye answer this people which haue sayde vnto me: Make the yock lighter, that thy father hath layed vpon

us. And the yonge men that were growne up with him, sayde vnto him: Where as the peple haue sayde vnto the: Thy father hath made oure yock to soke, make thou it easie for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them.
My litle synger shall be thicker then my fathers loynes. Now, my father layed a soke yock vpon you, but I wyl yet laye more thaon: My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions.

So vpon the thirde daye came Jeroboam with all the people vnto Roboam, as the kyng had appoynted and saide, come to me agayne on the thirde daye. And the kyng gaue the people an harde rough answer, and forsoke the counsell that the Elders had geuen him, and talked with them after the counsell of the yonge men, and sayde: My father made youre yock soke, but I wyl make it yet soke vpon you. My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions. Thus the kyng folowed not the peoples mynde, for he was turned so the LORDE, that he mighte stablish his wo-de: which he spake by Abias of Silo vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

But whan all Israel sawe that the kyng wolde not heare them, the people gaue
the kyng an answer and sayde: What por-cion haue we then in Dauid or inheritance in the sonne of Isai? Get the to thy tentes
O Israel. Loke thou now to thy house Dauid. So Israel wente vnto their tentes.
As for Roboam, he raigned but ouer the children of Israel, which dwelt in the cities of Juda. And whan the kyng Roboam sent the-ther Adoram the reuegatherer, all Israel stoned him to death. But the kyng Roboam strengthened himselfe, and gat him vp into a chariot, to fle vnto Jerusalem. Thus departed Israel from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

Now whan all Israel herde, that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent soke him to the whole congregacion, and made him kyng ouer all Israel. And no man folowed the house of Dauid, save onely the be of Juda. And whan Roboam came to Jerusalem, all the house of Juda and the be of Ben Jamin (euen an hundred and sere score thousande chosen men of armes) gathered themselves together to fight agayn-st the house of Israel, & to brynge the kyngdom agayne vnto Roboam y sonne of Salomon.

But the worde of God came to Samuel the man of God, and sayde: Speake thou to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and to all the house of Juda and Ben Jamin, and to the ocher people, and saye:

Thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shall not go up and fight agaynst youre brechren the children of Israel. Let every man go home agayne, for this is my dede. And they hertened vnto the worde of the LORDE, and turned back, to go their waye, as the LORDE sayde. But Roboam buylde Sichem vpon mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein, and departed thence, and buylde Peniel.

Jeroboam thoughte in his hert: The kingdome shall fall agayne now vnto the house of Dauid, yf this people go vp to offere in the LORDES house at Jerusalem, and so shall the hert of this people turne to their loide Roboam kyng of Juda, and the shal they slaye me, and fall agayne to Roboam kyng of Juda. And the kyng helde a coun-cell, and made two golden calves, and sayde vnto them: It is to much for you to go to Jerusalem: beholde, there is thy God (O Israel) which broughte the out of Egipte. And the one set he at Bethel, & the other in Dan.
And this dede turned to synne, for the people wente before the one vnto Dan.

He made an house also in the hye places, and made prestes of the smallest in the people, which were not of the childre of Le-ui. And vpon the fifte daye of the eighthe moneth he made an holy daye, like as the solemne feast in Juda, and offered vpon the altare. Thus dyd he at Bethel, in doyng sacrifice vnto the calves which he had made, and at Bethel he ordeyned the prestes of the hye places that he had made: and offred vpon the altar (which he had made) at Bethel, the fifte daye of the eighthe moneth, which he inuented of his owne hert. And he made the children of Israel an holy daye, &
wente vp to the altare to burne incense.

The XIII. Chapter.

And beholde, there came a ma of God from Juda (thorow the worde of the LORDE) vnto Bethel, and Jeroboam stode by the altar to burne incense. And he cried agaynst the altare thorow the worde of the LORDE, and sayde: O altar, altar, thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, there shal be borne vnto the house of Dauid a sonne, Josias by name: which on the shal offer the prestes of the hye places, that burne incense vpon the, and mens bones shal be burne on the. And he gaue a wonder token the same daye, and sayde: This is the token, that the LORDE hath spoken it, beholde, the altar shall ryne, and the asshes, that are thereon, shall be poured out.

But whan the kyng herde the worde of the man of God, that cried agaynst the alta-re at Bethel, he stretched out his hande by the altare, and sayde: Laye bondes on him. And his hande that he stretched out, wythered, and he coude not drawe it vnto him agayne. And the altare reue, and the asshes were poured out from the altare, accordinge to the wonder token that the man of God had geuen by the worde of the LORDE.

And the kyng answered, and sayde vnto
the man of God: O praye the face of the LORDE thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande maye be restored vnto me agayne. Then prayed the man of God vnto the face of the LORDE. And the kynges hande was restored him agayne, and became as it was afore. And the kyng sayde vnto the man of God: Come home with me, and dyne, and I wyl geue the a rewarde.

But the man of God sayde vnto the kyng:
If thou geuest me halfe thy house, I wil not come with the: for in this place wyll I neither eate bryd, ner drynke water. For thus am I commaunded, and thus is it sayde vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate no bryd, and drynke no water, nether retorne the waye that thou wentest.

And he departed another waye, and returned not agayne the waye that he came to Bethel. But at Bethel there dwelt an olde prophet vnto whos his sonnes came, & tolde him all the woikes that the ma of God had done that daye at Bethel, & the wordes that he had spoken vnto the kyng. And their father sayde vnto them: Which waye is he gone? And his sonnes shewed him the waye that the man of God was gone: which came from Juda. He sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddell me the asse. And whan they had sad-led him the asse, he rode thereon, and wente after the man of God, and founde him sittin-ge vnder an Olte tree, and sayde vnto him:
Art thou the man of God that came from Juda? He sayde: Yee.

He sayde vnto him: Come home with me, and eate bryd. He sayde: I maye not turne backe with the, and come with the. Neither wyll I eate bryd, ner drynke water with the in this place: for it is spoken vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt nether eate bryd there, ner yet drynke water, neither shalt thou go agayne by the waye which thou wentest. He sayde vnto him: I myselfe am a prophet as well as thou, and an angell hath spoken with me by y worde of the LORDE, and saide: Bring him agayne with the, that he maye eate bried, and drynke water. But he lyed vnto him, and broughre him agayne, so that he ate bried, and dranke water in his house.

And whan they sat at the table, the worde of the LORDE came to the prophet that had broughre him agayne, and cryed vnto the man which was come fro Juda, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast bene disobedient vnto the mouth of y LORDE, and hast not kept the commaundement that the LORDE thy God commaunded the, but hast turned backe, and hast eaten bried, and dranke water in y place, wher of he saide vnto the: Thou shalt nether eate bried ner drynke water, therefore shall not thy body come in to thy fathers graue.

And whan he had eaten bried and dranke the asse was sadled vnto the prophet whom he had broughre agayne. And whā he was gone, a lyon founde him by the waye, z slewe him, and his body was cast in y waye. And the asse stode by him, and the lyon stode by the body. And whā men wente by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon stondynge besyde the body, and came and tolde it in the cite, where the olde prophet dwelt.

Whan the prophet which had broughre him agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, therefore hath y LORDE deliuered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rente him, and slayne him, acordynge to the worde that the LORDE spake vnto him. And he sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddell me the asse. And whan they had sadled it, he wente, and founde his body cast in the waie and the asse and the lyon stondynge beside y body. The lyon had eate nothings of the body, nether had he come the asse. Then toke the prophet the deed carcase of the man of God, and layed it vpo the asse, and broughre it agayne in to the cite of the olde prophet, to mourne, and to burye him.

And he layed the carcase in his awne graue, and they mourned for him: Alas my brother. And whan they had buried him, he saide vnto his sonnes: Whan I dye, burye me in the graue where the mā of God is buried, and laye my bones besyde his bones. For it shal come to passe, that he criede thorow the worde of the LORDE against Bethel, and agaynst all y houses of the hye places, which are in the cities of Samaria.

Howbeit after this acte dyd not Jeroboā turne from his euell waye, but was persecuted, and made prestes of the hye places, of the smallest of the people: And of whom pleased him, his handes he fylled, z he was prest of the hye places. And this turned hym vnto the house of Jeroboā, to destroy him and to brynge him to naughte.

The XIII. Chapter.

At the same tyme was Abia the sonne of Jeroboam sicke, and Jeroboam saide vnto his wyfe: Get the vp, and disguise the, so that noman perceaue that thou art Jeroboams wyfe, and go vnto Silo: behold, there is the prophet Abias, which promysed me y I shulde be kynge ouer this people: and take with the ten loaves of bread and cakes, and a cuppe with hony, z go to him, that he maye tell the how it shal go to the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe did so, and gat hir vp, and wente vnto Silo, and came in to the house of Abias. But Abias coulde not se, for his eyes were dymme for age. Nevertheless the LORDE sayde vnto Abias: Beholde, Jeroboams wyfe cometh, to aske matter at the for hir sonne, for he is sicke. Speake thou therfore vnto her thus z thou. Now whan she came in, she shewed hirselfe straunge. But whan Abias herde the noise of hir fete goynge in at the dore, he saide: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboā. Why shewest thou chy selfe so straunge? I am sent vnto y an harde messaunger.

Go thy waye and tell Jeroboam: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of Israel: I have exalted the from amonge the people, and set the to be prynce ouer my people of Israel, and haue rente the kyngdome from the house of Dauid, and geuen it the. But thou hast not bene as my seruauent Dauid, which kept my commaundementes, and walked after me with all his hert, so that he did onely y thinge that was righte in my sighte: and thou hast done worse then all they that haue ben before the: thou hast gone thy waye and made the other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke me vnto wrath, and hast cast me behynde thy backe.

Beholde therefore, I wil brynge myssfortune vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyll rote out from Jeroboam enē him that maketh water agaynst the wall, the prisoner and for saken in Israel: and the posterite of y house of Jeroboam wyll I swepe out, as donges swepte out, tyll he be cleane brought to naught. He that dieth (of Jeroboam) in the cite, the dogges shal eate him vp. But him y dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eat vp, for the LORDE hath spoken it.

Get the vp therfore, and go home, z whan chy fete enter in to y cite, the childe shal dye. And all Israel shal bewaile him, and burye him. For he onely of Jeroboam shal come to the graue, because there is some good founde in him before the LORDE God of Israel, in Jeroboams house. But the LORDE shal raise him vp a kynge, which shal rote out y house of Jeroboam in that daie. And what is it, y is now in hande all ready: And the LORDE shal synne Israel, like as a rede is moored in the water: z shal rote out Israel from this good londe, that he gaue vnto their fathers, z shal scatter them beyond the water, because they haue made their groves to prouoke the LORDE vnto wrath. And Israel shal be geuen ouer because of the synne of Jeroboam, which hath synned him selfe, z made Israel to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe gat her vp, wente hir waye, z came vnto Thirza. And whan she came vpo the threshold of the house, y childe dyed, z they buried him, z all Israel made lamentacion for him. Accordinge to y worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruauent Abias y prophet. What more the is to saye of Jeroboam, how he soughe z reigned, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. The tyme that Jeroboam reigned, was two z twentye years. And he slepte with his fathers. And Naab his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Roboam y sonne of Salomon was kynge in Juda. One and fortye yeare olde was Roboam whā he was made kynge, z seven tyme yeare reigned he at Jerusalem, in the cite y the LORDE had chosen out of all y tribes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naema an Ammonitisse. And Juda dyd y which displeased the LORDE, z prouoked him to indignacion more the all y their fathers had done w their synnes which they dyd: for they likewise buylded them hye places, pilers, and groves vpo euery hye hill, and amonge all grene trees. The re were wholemōgers also, z they dyd all y abhominacions of y heythē, whom y LORDE dyd out before the children of Israel.

But in y fift yeare of kynge Roboam wrote Sifak y kynge of Egipte vp agaynst Jerusalem, z toke the treasure out of y house of the LORDE, z out of the kynges house, z all that mighte be gotten, z toke all the sheldes of golde, which Salomon caused to be made. In steade wherof y kynge Roboam caused for to make sheldes of stele, z commytted them vnder the handes of the chiefe foremen, which kepte the dore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kynge wente in to y house of the LORDE, the fore men bare them, and broughre them agayne in to the fore mens chamber.

What more there is to saye of Roboam, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. But betwene Roboam z Jeroboam there was warre as long as they lyued. And Roboam slepte with his fathers, z was buried w his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naema an Ammonitisse. And his sonne Abia was kynge in his steade.

The XV. Chapter.

At the eighteenth yeare of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, was Abia kynge in Juda, and reigned thre years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maecha, the doughter of Abisalom, and he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before him, and his hert was not perfecte with the LORDE his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father. For because of Dauids sake dyd the LORDE his God geue him a lanterne at Jerusalem, so y he raysted his sonne after him, z manteyned him at Jerusalem, because Dauid dyd the thinge y was righte in y sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all that he commaunded him as long as he lyued (sauynge in the matter with Orias y hehitite). But there was warre betwene Roboam and Jeroboam, as long as he lyued.

What more there is to saye of Abia, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. There was warre also betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his sonne was kynge in his steade. In y twentyeth yeare of kynge Jeroboam ouer Israel, was Asa kynge in Juda, and reigned one z fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His graund mothers name was Maecha the doughter of Abisalom. And Asa dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. And he remoued y who remongers out of the londe, and put downe all the Idols that his fathers had made. He put his mother from the mynistracion, that she had made vnto Miplezech in y grove. And Asa rote out hir Miplezech, and brent it in the broke Cedion: but the hye places put he not downe. Yet was the hert of Asa perfecte with the LORDE as long as belyned. And the syluer and golde, and vessels that his father had halowed, & such as was sanctified vnto þe house of the LORDE, that broughte he in. And there was warre betwene Asa & Baesa the kyng of Israel, as long as they lyued.

C Baesa the kyng of Israel wente vp agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, that no man shulde go out and in of Asas syde the kyng of Juda. Then toke Asa all the syluer and golde that was lesce in the treasure of the house of the LORDE, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it in to his seruantes handes, & sent it vnto Benadab the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hesion kyng of Siria, which dwelt at Damascos, and let saye vnto him: There is a couenaunt betwene me and the, and betwene my father and thy father: therfore sende I the a present of syluer and golde, that thou shuldest breake the couenaunt which thou hast with Baesa the kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadab agreed vnto kyng Asa, and sent his captaines agaynst the cities of Israel, and smote Zion and Dan, & Abel Beth Maacha, and all Cineroth with the whole lande of Naphtali. Whā Baesa herde that, he leste of from buyldinge Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thirza.

D Kyng Asa caused it be proclaimed in all Juda: here be no man excepte. And they toke awaye the stones and tymber from Rama, & herewith Baesa had buylded. And kyng Asa buylded Geba Ben Jamin & Mispa therewith.

What more there is to saye of Asa, and of all his power, and all that he dyd, and of y cities which he buylded, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda: sayunge that in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa slepte with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the cite of David his father. And Josaphat his sonne was kyng in his steade.

E But Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam was kyng ouer Israel in the secōde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, & raigned ouer Israel two yeare, and dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne. Howbeit Baesa the sonne of Abia of the house of Isachar conspired agaynst him, & smote him at Gibbethon, which was the Philistynes: for Nadab and all Israel layed sege to Gibbethon. So Baesa slewe him in the thirde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, & was kyng in his steade. Now whan he was kyng, he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and let nothinge of Jeroboam remayne that had breth, tyll he had destroyed, & acordinge to þe worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruauit Abia of Silo, because of Jeroboams synnes which he dyd, & made Israel synne withall: even with þe pryncer wherewith he displeased the LORDE God of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Nadab, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel, and there was warre betwene Asa & Baesa the kyng of Israel, as long as they lyued.

In the thirde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda was Baesa þe sonne of Abia kyng ouer all Israel at Thirza foure and twentye yeare, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

After thes the worde of the LORDE came vnto Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baesa, and sayde: For so moch as I lifted the out of the dust, and made the pryncer ouer my people of Israel, and thou walkest in the waye of Jeroboam, and madest my people ouer Israel for to synne, to pryncer me vnto wraich thow their synnes, beholde, therfore wyll I take awaye the posterite of Baesa, and the posterite of his house, and wyll sette his house euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. He that of Baesa dyeth in the cite, the dogges shal deuoure him: and he so beyng of him dyeth in the felde, the foules of the ayre shal eate him vp.

What more there is to saye of Baesa, & what he dyd, & of his power, beholde, it is wrytten in þe Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Baesa slepte with his fathers, & was buried at Thirza: & his sonne Ella was kyng in his steade. And the worde of þe LORDE came by the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, ouer Baesa, and ouer his house, and agaynst all the euell that he dyd in the sighte of þe LORDE, to pryncer him vnto wraich thow the workes of his handes: so that he became as the house of Jeroboam, and because he slewe this man.

The XVI. Chapter.

In the sixe & twentie yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Ella the sonne of Baesa kyng ouer Israel at Thirza two yeare. After thes his seruauit Simri, þe principall man ouer the halfe of þe charres conspyred agaynst him. As for Ella, he was at Thirza, dranke & was dronke in þe house of Arza the ruler of Thirza. And Simri came in, and slewe him in the seven & twentie yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, and was kyng in his steade. And whan he was kyng, and sat vpon his seate, he smote all the house of Baesa, & leste not so moch as one to make water agaynst þe wall: his bloud & members also & his frendes. Thus dyd Simri destroye all the house of Baesa, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake ouer Baesa by the prophet Jehu, because of all the synnes of Baesa and of Ella his sonne, which they dyd, and made Israel for to synne, to pryncer the LORDE God of Israel vnto wraich thow their vanities. What more there is to saye of Ella, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the seven and twentie yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Simri kyng viij. dayes at Thirza, and the people laye before Gibbethon of the Philistynes. But whan the people in the hoost herde saye þe Simri had conspyred and slayne the kyng, then all Israel the same daye made Amri the chiefe capteyne kyng ouer all in the hoost. And Amri wente vp and all Israel with him from Gibbethon, and layed sege vnto Thirza. But whan Simri sawe þe cite shulde be wonne, he wente in to the palace in the kynges house, & brent it with þe kynges house, & dyed because of his synnes which he had committed, in that he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes which he dyd, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

What more there is to saye of Simri, and how he conspyred, beholde, it is wrytten in þe Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme were þe people deuayded in two partes: the one parte helde with Tibni the sonne of Ginath, that they might make him kyng: the other halfe helde with Amri. But the people that helde with Amri, were mightier then the people which helde with Tibni: y sonne of Ginath. And Tibni dyed, and Amri was kyng.

In þe one and thirtieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Amri kyng ouer Israel twelue yeares, & raigned at Thirza sixe yeares. He boughte the mount of Samaria of Semer for two hundred weight of syluer, & buylded vpon the mount, and called the cite which he buylded, after þe name of Semer: y mount of þe mount of Samaria. And Amri

dyd that which was euell in þe sighte of the LORDE, and was worse then all they that were before him, and walked in all þe wayes of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nebat, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne, so that they pryncer the LORDE God of Israel vnto wraich in their vanities. What more there is to saye of Amri, & all that he dyd, and his power that he exercised, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri slepte with his fathers, & was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the eighthe & thirtieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Achab the sonne of Amri kyng ouer Israel, & raigned ouer Israel at Samaria two & twentie yeare, & dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, more then all they that were before him. And he thoughte it but a small matter to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: and toke Jezabel the daughter of Eth Baal kyng of Sidon to wife, and wente and serued Baal, and worshiped him. And vnto Baal he set vp an altare in Baals house, which he buylded him in Samaria, and made a groue: so that Achab dyd more to pryncer the God of Israel vnto wraich, then all the kynges that were before him in Israel.

At y same tyme dyd Ziel of Bethel buylde Jericho: It cost him his first sonne Abiram, & he layed þe foundation: & his yongest sonne Segub, & he set vp the portes: Acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The XVII. Chapter.

And Elias þe Thesbita one of the inhabitors of Gilead, saide vnto Achab: As truly as the LORDE God of Israel lyueth, whose seruauit I am, there shal nether rayne ner dew come this yeare, excepte I speake it.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto him, and sayde: Get thee hence, and turne the toward the east, and hyde the by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agaynst Jordane, and thou shalt drynke of the ryuer: and I haue commaunded the rauens, that they shal fede the there. He departed, and dyd acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, and wente his waye, and sat him downe by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agaynst Jordane. And the rauens broughte him bred and flesch in the mornynge and in the euenynge, and he drank of the ryuer.

And it fortuneth after cerayne dayes, that the river was dryed: vp for there was no ray ne in the lode. Then came y worde of y LORDE vnto him, and sayde: * Get y vp, and go vnto Sarepta, which lieth by Sidon: for there haue I commaunded a wedowe to make prouision for the.

B And he gat him vp, and wente vnto Sarepta. And whan he came to the gate of y cite, beholde, the wedowe was there, and gathered stickes. And he called her, and sayde: Fetch me a litle water in a vessill, y I maye drinke. And as she was goinge to fetch it, he cried vnto her, z sayde: Bynge me a morsell of bried also in thine hande. She sayde: As truly as the LORDE y God lyueth, I haue no bried, but an handfull of floure in a picher, z a curtesy oyle in a cruse: and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two stickes, z wyll go and prepare it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate and dye.

Elias sayde vnto her: Feare not, go thy waye, z do as thou hast sayde: yet make me first a morsell of bried therof, z brynge it me forth: z afterwarde shalt thou make it for y z thy sonne. For thus sayeth y LORDE God of y Israel: The meell in the picher shall not be spent, z the oyle in y cruse shall not fayll, vnto the daye y the LORDE shall cause it for to rayne vpo earth. She wente z dyd as Eli as sayde. And he ate, z she also, and hir house a certayne season. The meell in the picher was not mynished, and the oyle in the cruse sayled not, acordinge to the worde of y LORDE which he spake by Elias.

C And after these actes the sonne of the wi fe of y house was sicke: and his sicke was so excedinge sore, that there remayned no breth in him. And she sayde vnto Elias: What haue I to do with the, thou man of God? Art thou come in vnto me, y my synne shulde be keppe in remembrance, z that my sonne shulde be slayne? He sayde vnto her: Gene me thy sonne. And he toke him fro hir lappe, z caried him vp into y chamber where he him self dwelt, and layed him vpo his bed, z called vpon the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE my God, hast thou dealt so euell to the wedow with whom I dwell, y thou woldest slaye hir sonne? And he stretched out his hande ouer the childe thre tymes, z called vpon the LORDE, and saide: O LORDE my God, let the soule of this childe come agayne into him. And the soule of the childe came agayne vnto him, z he reuyned. And Eli as toke the childe, and broughte him downe from the chamber into the house and deli uered him vnto his mother, and sayde: Be-holde, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman say de vnto Elias: Now knowe I that thou art a man of God, z that the worde of the LORDE is in thy mouth of a treuch.

The XVIII. Chapter.

After a longe season came y wo de of the LORDE vnto Elias in the thirde years, z sayde: * Go thy waye, z shewe y selfe vnto Achab, y I maye cast it for to rayne vpon earth. And Elias wente to shewe him selfe vnto Achab. But there was a greute derth i Samaria. And Achab called Abdia his chiefe officer: (As for Abdia, he feared y LORDE greatly: for wha fabel roced out y prophetes of y LORDE, Abdia toke an C. prophetes, and hyd them in caues, here fiftye, z there fiftye, z prouyded for them w bried and water.) Achab now sayde vnto Abdia: Go thorow the londe vnto all the welles of water z ryuers, yf happyly we maye finde hay, z to saue y horses z mules, y all the catell perishe not. And they parted the selues into the londe, to go thorow it. Achab departed the one waye alone, and Abdia y other waye alone.

Now whan Abdia was on y waye, Eli as met him. And whan he knewe him, he fell downe vpon his face, z sayde: Art not thou my lord Elias? He sayde: yee, go thy waye, and tell y lord: beholde, Elias is here. But he sayde: What haue I offended, that thou wilt deliuer thy seruante in to the handes of Achab, that he maye slaye me? As truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, there is no people ner king dome, but my lord hath sent thither to see the. And whan they sayde: he is not here, he toke an ooth of the same king dome and nacion, that they had not founde the. And now thou sayst: Go tell y LORDE: beholde, Elias is here. Now whan I was gone from the, the sperte of the LORDE shulde take y awaye, I cannot tell whither: and yf I then came and tolde Achab, and founde the not, he shulde slaye me: But thy seruante feareth the LORDE from his youth vp. Hath it not bene tolde my lord what I dyd, whan Jisabel slew the prophetes of the LORDE, how that I hyd an hundred of the LORDES prophetes, here fiftye, and there fiftye in the caues, and prouyded for them with bried and water? And then sayst thou: Go thy waye, tell thy lord: Elias is here, that he maye slaye me. Elias saide: As truly as y LORDE Zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stode, I wil shewe myselfe vnto him this daye. Then mette Abdia to meete Achab, z tolde him. And Achab wrote for to meete Eli as.

The iij. boke of the kynge.

And whan Achab sawe Elias, Achab say de vnto him: Art thou he that troublest y Israel? he sayde: I trouble not y Israel, but it is thou and thy fathers house, because ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the LORDE, and walke after Baal. Go to, sende forth now, and gather me all y Israel together vnto mount Carmell, and the foure hundred and fiftye prophetes of Baal, and the foure hundred prophetes of y groue, which were of Jisabels table. So Achab sent vnto all the children of y Israel, z gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmell.

Then stepte Elias vnto all the people, z sayde: how longe halte ye on both y sydes? If the LORDE be God, the walke after him: but yf Baal be he, the folowe him. And the people gaue him no answer. The sayde Eli as vnto the people: I onely am left a prophete of y LORDE: but Baals prophetes are four C. and fiftie mē. Gene vs now two bullokes, z let them chose one bullocke, z hewe him in peces, z laye him vpo the wod, z put no fyre thereon: so wil I take y other bullocke, z laye him vpo the wod, z put no fyre thereon also: call ye then vpo the name of y god, z I wil call vpo the name of the LORDE: lo which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered z sayde: That is righte. And Elias sayde vnto Baals prophetes: Chose ye one bullocke, and do ye it first (for ye are many) and call ye vpon the name of youre god, z laye no fyre thereon.

D And they toke the bullocke which he gaue them, z prepared it, z called vpon the name of Baal from the moynynge vntyll the noone daye, and sayde: O Baal heare vs. But there was neither voyce ner answer. And they hopped aboute the altare, as their vse was to do. Now whan it was noone daye, Elias mocked them, and sayde: Crye loude. For he is a god, peradventure he is musynge, or hath somwhat to do, or is gone some iourney, or happyly he slepech, so that he wolde be waked vp. And they cried loude, and prouoked the selues with knyues z botkens, (as their maner was) yll y bloude folowed. But whan y noone daye was past, they propheted vntyll the tyme that the meat offeringe shulde be offered, z there was neither voyce ner answer, ner one to regarde them.

Then sayde Elias vnto all the people: Come hither all ye people vnto me. And whan all y people came to him, he repayed y altar of the LORDE y was broken, z toke twelve stones acordinge to the nombre of y rybes of the childe of Jacob (vnto whom the worde of the LORDE spake, and sayde: * Thy name shal be y Israel) and of y stones he buylded an altare in the name of the LORDE, z made a pyer rounde aboute the altare, like two forones in the come londe, z prepared the wod, z hewed y bullocke in peces, and layed him vpon the wod, z sayde: Fetch foure pitchers full of water, and poured it vpo the burnt offeringe, and vpon the wod. And he sayde: Do it yet once. And they dyd it once agayne. And he sayde: Do it y thirde tyme. And they dyd it the thirde tyme. And y water ranne aboute the altare, and y pyer was full of water also.

And whan the tyme was to offer y meat offeringe, Elias stepte forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Abraham, of y Isaac and of y Israel, let it be knowne this daye, that thou art God in y Israel, and I thy seruante, and that I haue done all this acordinge vnto y worde. Heare me O LORDE, O heare me, y this people maye knowe, how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayest afterwarde turne their hertes. * Then fell downe the fyre of the LORDE, and consumed the burnt offeringe, the wod, the stones and the earth, and licked vp the water that was in the pyer. Whan all the people sawe that, they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: The LORDE is God, y LORDE is God. Elias sayde vnto them: * Laye handes vpon Baals prophetes, y none of them escape. And they toke them. And Elias broughte them downe vnto y brook yson, z slew the there.

And Elias sayde vnto Achab: Go vp, eate z drinke, for it soundeth as though it wolde rayne sore. And whan Achab wrote vp to eate z drinke, Elias ascended vp to the toppe of Carmel, z bowed him selfe downe to the earth, z put his heade betwene his knees, z sayde vnto his lad: Go vp, and loke towards the See. He wente vp z loked, z sayde: There is nothinge. He sayde: Go agayne seuen tymes. And at the seuenth tyme he sayde: Behol de, there goeth vp a litle cloude out of the see, like a mans hande. He sayde: Go vp, and saie vnto Achab: Wynde y charer, z go downe, y the rayne ouertake the not. And or a mā coude turne him, the heauen was blacke w cloudes z wynde, z there came a greete rayne. But Achab rode his waie, z departed vnto Iesrael. And the hāde of y LORDE came vpo Elias, and he gyde his loynes, z ranne before Achab, tyll he came vnto Iesrael.

The XIX. Chapter.

AND Achab tolde Iesabel all y Elias had done, z how he had slayne all Baals prophetes w the swerde. The sent Iesabel a messaunger vnto Elias, sayenge: The goddes do this z that vnto me, yf I tomorrow aboute this tyme, make not thy soule as one of these. Then was he afrayed, z gat him vp, z wente where he wolde, z came vnto Bersaba in Iuda, and leste his lad there. But he him selfe wente a daies iourney in to y wyldernes, z came in, z sat him downe vnder a Juniper tre, z wysshed vnto his soule y he myghte dye, z sayde: It is now ynough LORDE, take my soule, for I am no better then my fathers. And he layed him downe z slepte vnder the Juniper tre.

And beholde, y angell touched him, z sayde vnto him: Stonde vp, and ate, and he loked aboute him, z beholde, at his heade there was a bied baken on the coles, z a cruse w water. And whan he had eaten and dronke, he layed him downe agayne to slepe.

B And y angell of the LORDE, came agayne the seconde tyme, z touched him, z sayde: Stonde vp, and ate, for thou hast a greete waye to go. And he arose, and ate and drake, and wente on thorow the strength of that meate: fortye dayes and fortye nightes, vnto Horeb y mount of God: and there he came to a cane, and abode there all nighte. And beholde the worde of the LORDE came to him, and sayde vnto him: What doest thou here Elias? He sayde: I have bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Iisrael haue forsaken thy couenant, and broken downe thine altares, and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I am leste onely, z they seke to take awaye my life. He sayde: Go forth, and stonde vpon the mount before the LORDE. And beholde, the LORDE wce ouer: and a greete mightie wynde, which rouet the mountaynes, and brake the harde stones, came before the LORDE, but the LORDE was not in the wynde. After the wynde came there an earthquake, but the LORDE was not in the earthquake.

The xx. Chap.

And after the earth quake there came a fyre, but the LORDE was not in the fyre. And after the fyre came there a styll softe byssage. Whan Elias herde that, he covered his face with his cloke, and wente forth, and stode in the doore of the cane. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: What hast thou here to do Elias?

He sayde: I have bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Iisrael haue forsake thy couenant, broken downe thine altares, slayne y prophetes w the swerde, z I onely am leste, and they seke to take awaye my life. But the LORDE sayde vnto him: Go y waye agayne thorow the wyldernes vnto Damascon, z go in, z anoynce the srael kynges ouer Siria, z Jehu the sonne of Nimfi kynges ouer Iisrael, z Eliseus y sonne of Saphat of Abel Meholā to be prophet in y steade. And it shal come to passe, y, who so escapeth the swerde of Zasael, Jehu shal slaye him, z who so escapeth y swerde of Jehu, Eliseus shal slaye him. And I wil reue vnto me vij. M. men in Iisrael: namely, all y knes which haue not bowed the selues vnto Baal, and every mouth y hath not kyssed.

And he departed thence, z founde y Eliseus y sonne of Saphat, plowing w twolue yocke of oxen before him, z he him selfe was amōge the twolue. And Elias went vnto him, z cast his cloke vpon him. And he leste the oxen, z ranne after Elias, z sayde: Let me kysse my sacher z my mocher, and so wil I folowe the. And he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, z come agayne, for I haue some what to do with the. And he ranne agayne from him, and toke a yock of oxen, and offered it, and sod y flesh with the wod of the oxen plowes, and gaue it vnto the people to eate, and gat him vp, z folowed Elias, and mynistrēd vnto him.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Benadab y kynges of Siria gathered all his power, z there were two z thirtie kynges w him, z hoises z charrettes, and he wente vp, and layed sege vnto Samaria, z foughte agaynst it. And he sent messaungers vnto Achab y kynges of Iisrael in to y cite, z caused to saye vnto him: Thus sayeth Benadab: Thy syluer z thy golde is myne, and thy wyues z thy best children are myne also. The kynges of Iisrael answered, z sayde: My lordē y kynges, euen as thou hast sayde, I am thine, and all that I haue.

And the messaungers came agayne, z sayde: Thus sayeth Benadab: For so much as I haue sent vnto the, sayenge: Thy syluer z thy golde, thy wyues z thy childre shalte thou geue me, tomorrow aboute this tyme wil I sende my seruantes vnto the, y they maye serche thyn house and the houses of thy subiectes: z loke what pleasaunt thinge thou hast, y shal they take in their handes, and carye awaye. So the kynges of Iisrael called all y Elders of the lōde, z sayde: Mark well z se, what myschese this mā seketh: He sent vnto me for my wyues z children, for syluer z golde, z I haue not sayde him naye. Then sayde all the Elders and all the people vnto him: Thou shalt not cōsente ner agree vnto him. And he spake vnto Benadabs messaungers, Saye vnto my lordē y kynges: All y thynge wherfore thou dydest sende vnto me y seruant at y first, wil I do, but this can I not do. And y messaungers wete, and tolde this agayne. The sent Benadab vnto him sayenge: The goddes do this and y vnto me, yf the dust of Samaria shalbe ynough, for every one of my people to brynge me an handfull therof. But y kynges of Iisrael answered, z sayde: Tell him, Let not him y putterh on y harnes, make his boast like him y hath put it of. Whā Benadab herde y (eue as he was drynkinge w the kynges in y panyllion) he sayde vnto his seruantes: Set yō selues in aray. And they set the selues in aray agaynst.

And beholde, there came a prophēt vnto Achab y kynges of Iisrael, z saide: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sene all this greete multitude? Beholde, this daie wil I deliuer the in to y hande, so y thou shalt knowe, how y I am y LORDE. Achab sayde: Dymhem: He sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Euen by the yongemen of the rulers of the lōde. He sayde: Who shal orde the battayl? He sayde: Thou. Then mustered he the yongemen of the rulers of the lōde, z there were two hundred and two and thirtie of them: z after the mustered he of the whole people of all the childre of Iisrael, sent thou fande men, and they wente out in the noone daie. As for Benadab, he drankē and was drunken in the panyllion with the two z thirtie kynges which were come to helpe him. And the yonge men of the rulers of the lōde wente forth first.

Benadab sent forth, z they brought him worde, z sayde: There come men out of Samaria. He sayde: Take them alyne, whether they be come forth for peace, or for warre. But whan the lōde rulers yonge men were gone forth, and the hoost behynde them, eue y one smote him y came in his waye. And the Sirians fled, and Iisrael folowed after them. And Benadab the kynges of Siria escaped wth hoises and hoismē. And the kynges of Iisrael wente forth, and smote hoises and charrettes, and dyd a greete slaughter on the Sirians.

Then came there a prophēt vnto the kynges of Iisrael, and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye and strength the, and take hede, and loke well what thou doest: for whan the yeare is aboute, the kynges of Siria shal come agaynst the of the new. For the kynges of y Syrians seruantes sayde vnto him: Their goddes are goddes of the mountaynes, therfore haue they gotten the victory.

But let vs fyghte with them on the playne, and thou shalt se that we shal ouercome them. Do thus, put awaye the kynges eue y one from his place, and set dukes in their steads, and appoynte the an hoost as was that which thou hast lost, z hoises z charrettes as the other were, and lea vs fyghte agaynst the in the plaine, and thou shalt se that we shal haue the victory. He cōsented vnto their voyce, and dyd so.

Now whan the yeare was gone aboute, Benadab appoynted the Sirians, and wente vp towards Alphet, to fyghte agaynst Iisrael, and the childre of Iisrael mustered, and prouyded them selues with vytailes, and wete to meete them, and pitched their cēttes ouer agaynst them, like two litle flockes of goates but the lōde was full of the Syrians.

And there came a man of God, and sayde vnto the kynges of Iisrael: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because the Syrians haue sayde, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes and not a God of the valleys, therfore haue I geuen all this greete heape in to thy handes, that ye maye knowe how that I am y LORDE. And they pitched their tentes righte ouer agaynst them seven dayes. But vpon y seuenth daie they wente together in to the battayll: and the children of Iisrael smote of the Sirians an hundred thousande fore men in one daie, and the remnaunt fled to Alphet in to the cite, and the wall fell vpon the other seven and twenty thousande men. And Benadab fled also vnto the cite in to a litle chamber.

Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herte that the kynges of the house of Iisrael are mercifull kynges, Let vs therfore put sack clothe aboute oure loynes, and haliers aboute oure neckes, z go forth to the kynges of Iisrael, peradventure he shal let y soule lyue.

And they put sack clothe aboute their loynes, and hakers aboute their neckes, and came to the kyng of Israel, and sayde: Vena-dab thy seruauit sayeth vnto the: O let my soule lyue. He sayde: yf he be yet alyue, he is my brother. And the men toke him shortly at his worde, and expounded it for them selues and sayde: Yee Venadab is thy brother. He sayde: Come and brynge him. The wente Venadab forth vnto him, and he caused him to sit vpon the charer, and sayde vnto him: The cities that my father toke from thy father, wyl I geue the agayne. And make thou streets for thyselfe at Damascus, as my father did at Samaria, so wyl I let the go with a bonde of peace. And he made a conuauent with him, and let him go.

Then spake there a man amonge the chyldren of the prophetes vnto his neighbour by the worde of the LORDE: I praye the smite me. But he refused to smite him. Then said he vnto him, because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, beholde, therefore shall there a lyon smyte the, whan thou goest fro me. And whan he wente fro him, a lyon founde him, and slewe him.

And he founde another man, and sayde: I praye the smyte me. And the man smote him, and wounded him. Then wente the prophet, and stepte vnto the kyng by the waye syde, and altered his face with asshes. And whan the kyng wente by, he cried vpon y kyng, and sayde: Thy seruauit wente forth in to the battayll, and beholde, there wente one asyde, and broughte a man vnto me, and sayde: Kepe this man: yf he be myssed, thy soule shall be in steade of his soule, or els thou shalt weye downe an hundred weighte of syluer. And whyle thy seruauit had here there to do, he was awaye. The kyng of Israel sayde vnto him: It is thine owne indygnement, thou hast geuen it thyselfe.

Then put he the asshes from his face in all the haist. And the kyng of Israel knewe him, that he was one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast let the dammed man go, therefore shall thy soule be for his soule, and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel departed vnto his house, beinge troubled in his mynde and full indignacion, and came to Samaria.

The XXI. Chapter.

After these accres it fortuneth, that Naboth the Iesraelite had a vinyarde at Iesreel besyde the palace of Achab kyng of Samaria. And Achab spake to Naboth, and sayde: Geue me thy vinyarde,

I wyl make me an herbyarden therof, because it is so nye my house: I wyl geue the better vynyarde for it: or yf it please the, I wyl geue the syluer for it, as moch as it is worth. But Naboth sayde vnto Achab: The LORDE let that be farre fro me, that I shulde geue y my fathers heretage. Then came Achab home, beinge moued and full of indignacion, because of the worde that Naboth the Iesraelite had spoken vnto him, and sayde: I wyl not geue the my fathers inheritance. And he laied him downe vpon his bed, and turned his face asyde, and ate and dronked. Then Iesabel his wyfe came in to him and sayde vnto him: What is y matter, that thy spere is so cōbred, and that thou eatest and dronkest? He sayde vnto her: I haue spoken to Naboth the Iesraelite, and sayde: Geue me thy vynyarde for money: or yf it please y, I wyl geue the another for it. But he sayde: I wyl not geue the my vynyarde.

Then sayde Iesabel his wyfe vnto him: What kyngdome were in Israel, yf thou haddest it? Seconde vp, and eate and dronk, I wyl geue the the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite. And she wrote a letter vnder Achabs name, and sealed it with his signet, and sent vnto y Elders and rulers in his cite, which dwelt aboute Naboth, and wrote thus in y letter: Proclame a fast, and set Naboth aboue in the people, and set two men of Belial before him, to testifie and saye: Thou hast blasphemed God and the kyng. And brynge him forth, and stone him to death.

And the Elders and rulers of his cite, which dwelt in his cite, dyd as Iesabel had commaunded them, acordynge as she had wrytten in the letter that she sent vnto them, and they proclamed a fast, and caused Naboth to sit aboue amonge the people. Then came the two men of Belial, and stode before him, and testified agaynst Naboth in y presence of the people, and sayde: Naboth hath blasphemed God and the kyng.

Then brought they him out of the cite, and stoned him to death. And they sent Iesabel worde, sayenge: Naboth is stoned and put to death. Whan Iesabel herde that Naboth was stoned and deed, she sayde vnto Achab: Up, and take possession of the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite, which he denyed to geue the for money: for Naboth lyueth no more but is deed. And whan Achab herde y Naboth was deed, he roso to go downe vnto the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite, and to take possession of it.

But the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, and sayde: Get the vp, and go downe to meete Achab the kyng of Israel, which is at Samaria: beholde, he is in Naboths vynyarde, in to the which he is gone downe to take possession of it, and take thou with him, and speake: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou hast slayne, and taken in possession. And thou shalt talke morouer vnto him, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Euen in the place where the dogges licked vp Naboths blode, shall the dogges lick thy blode also. And Achab sayde vnto Elias: Hast thou euer founde me thine enemy? He sayde: Yee, I haue founde the, because thou art euen solde to do euell in the sight of the LORDE. Beholde, I wyl brynge my fortune vpon the, and take awaye thy possesion, and wil rote out from Achab, euen him that maketh water agaynst the wall, and him that is shut vp and left behynde in Israel: and thy house wyl I make as the house of Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Ahia, because of y prouocacion wherewith thou hast prouoked me vnto wrath, and made Israel to synne.

And ouer Iesabel spake the LORDE also and sayde: The dogges shal deuoure Iesabel in y felde of Iesrael. Who so of Achab dyeth in y cite, him shal the dogges eate vp: and who so dyeth in the felde, the foules vnder the heauen shal eate him vp. So cleane solde to do myschese in y sight of the LORDE hath no man bene, as Achab: for his Iesabel hath so disceaued him, and he maketh him selfe a greates abhominacion, that he goeth after Idols, acordyng vnto all as dyd the Amouites, whom the LORDE expelled before the children of Israel.

But whan Achab herde these wordes, he rote his clothes, and put a sack cloth on his body, and fasted, and slepte in sack cloth, and wente aboute hanginge downe his heade. And the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, and sayde: Hast thou not sene how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? For so moch now as he humbleth him selfe in my sight, I wil not brynge that plage whyle he lyueth: but by his sonnes life wil I brynge my fortune vpon his house.

The XXII. Chapter.

Ald there passed ouer thie yeares, that there was no warre betwene the Syrians and Israel. But in the thirde year wente Josaphat the kyng of Iuda downe to the kyng of Israel. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto his seruantes: A now ye not y Ramoth in Gilead is oures? and we sit styll, and take it not out of the hande of the kyng of Syria. And he sayde vnto Josaphat: Wilt thou go with me to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead? Josaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: I wyl be as thou my people as thy people, and my houses as thy houses. And Josaphat sayde vnto y kyng of Israel: At this daye at the worde of the LORDE. Then the kyng of Israel gathered the prophetes aboute a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: Shal I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fight, or shal I let it alone? They sayde: Go vp, y LORDE shal be lyner it in to y kynges hande. But Josaphat sayde: Is there not one prophet here more of y LORDE, that we maye aske at him?

The kyng of Israel saide vnto Josaphat: There is yet a man, one Michas the sonne of Jemla, at whom we maye aske of the LORDE: but I hate him, for he prophesieth me no good, but euell. Josaphat sayde: Let not the kyng saye so. Then called the kyng of Israel a chamberlayne, and sayde: Brynge hither soone Michas the sonne of Jemla. As for the kyng of Israel and Josaphat y kyng of Iuda, they sat ether of them vpon his seate, arrayed in their garments in the place at y dore of the porte of Samaria, and all y prophetes prophesied before the. And Sedechias the sonne of Chana had made him hornes of yron, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalt thou pusshe at y Syrians, tyll thou brynge them to naught. And all the prophetes prophesied likewise, and sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou shalt prospere right well, and the LORDE shal deliuer it in to the kynges hande. And the messaunger that wente to call Michas sayde vnto him: Beholde, The wordes of y prophetes are with one acorde good before the kyng, let thy worde therefore be as their worde, and speake thou good also.

Michas sayde: As truly as the LORDE liueth, I wil I speake. And whan he came to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Michas, shal we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fight, or shal we let it alone? He sayde vnto him: Yee, go vp, thou shalt prospere right well, the LORDE shal geue it in to the kynges hande. But the kyng sayde vnto him agayne: I charge y that thou saye no ocher thinge vnto me but the truth, in the name of y LORDE. He sayde: I sawe all Israel scattered abroad vpon the mountaynes, as the sheperd hath no shepherde. And the LORDE saide: Have these no lordes: Let every one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde y kyng of Israel vnto Josaphat: Toldst not I that he wolde prophesye me no good, but euill?

He sayde: Heare now therfore the worde of the LORDE: I sawe the LORDE syt vpon his seate, and all the hoost of heauen stödinge by him at his righte hande & at his lefte. And the LORDE saide: Who wil disceane Achab to go vp, & fall at Ramoth in Gilead. And one sayde this, another that. Then wote there forth a spere, & stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I wyl disceane him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Wherwith? He sayde vnto him: I wyl go forth, and be a false spere in the mouth of all his prophetes. He saide: Thou shalt disceane him, and shalt be able: go forth and do so. Beholde now, the LORDE hath geue a false spere in y mouth of all these y prophetes, and the LORDE hath spoken euill ouer the. Then stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Cnaena, and smote Michas as vpon the cheeke, and sayde: What, is the spere of the LORDE departed fro me, to speake with the? Michas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it in y daye, whan thou shalt go fro one chamber to another to hyde the.

The kyng of Israel sayde: Take Michas, and let him remayne with Amon the ruler of the cite, and with Joas the kynges sonne, and saye: Thus sayeth the kyng: Put this man in prison, and fede him with bread and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Michas sayde: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORDE spoken thow me. And he sayde: herten to all ye people.

So the kyng of Israel and Josaphat y kyng of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes, and come in to y battayll in thine arae. The kyng of Israel chaunged his clothes also, and wete in to the battayll. But the kyng of Siria commaunded the rulers of his charettes (of whom there were two and thirtie) and saide: Ye shal fight nether agaynst small ner greater, but onely agaynst the kyng of Israel. And whan the rulers of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought it had bene the kyng of Israel, and fell vpon him with fightinge. But Josaphat cried. So whan the rulers of the charettes sawe that it was not y kyng of Israel, they turned back fro him. A certayne man bended his bowe harde, and shotte the kyng of Israel betwene the marve and y longes. And he sayde vnto his charetman: Turne thine hade, and carry me out of the hoost, for I am wounded. And y battayll was fore the same daie. And the kyng stode vpo his charet, agaynst the Syrians and dyed in the eueninge, and the bloude ranne from the wounde in to the myddes of the charet. And whan the Sonne wente downe there was a proclamation made in the hoost, and sayde: Every one gett him in to his cite, and to his countre. Thus the kyng dyed, and was broughte vnto Samaria, and they buryed him in Samaria. And whan they wasshed the charet in the pole of Samaria, y dogges licked his bloude (but the harlottes wasshed him) accordinge to the worde of y LORDE which he spake.

What more there is to saye of Achab, & all y he dyd, and of the Query house which he buylde, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. So Achab slepte with his fathers, and his sonne Ahasia was kyng in his steade.

And Josaphat the sonne of Asa was kyng ouer Juda in the fourth yeare of Achab kyng of Israel, and was fyue and thre yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned fyue and twente yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Asuba y daughter of Suhi, and he walked in all the waye of his father Asa, & departed not there from. And he dyd that which was right in y sighte of the LORDE, yet put he not awaye y places, and y people offred and burnt in cise yet vpon the hye places, and he had peace with the kyng of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Josaphat and the mighte that he exercised, and how he fought, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. He put out of the londe also the whoremongers that were leste, which remayned ouer in the tyme of his father Asa. And at that tyme there were no kynges in Edom. And Josaphat had caused to make shippes vpon the See, which shoulde go to fetch golde in Ophir, but they wente not: for they were broken at Ezion Gaber. At that tyme sayde Ahasia the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruantes passe with thy seruantes in the shippes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat slepte with his fathers, and was buryed in y cite of Dauid. And Joram his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The fyist Chapter.

Ahasia the sonne of Achab was kyng ouer Israel at Samaria in y seuententh yeare of Josaphat kige of Juda, & reigned ouer Israel two yeares, & dyd y which was euill in y sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father and of his mother, & in the waie of Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne. And serued Baal, and worshipped him, and displeased the LORDE God of Israel, euill as his father dyd. The Moabites also fell awaye from Israel, whan Achab was deede.

And Ochofias fell thow y grace in his chaber at Samaria, and was deede sicke, and sent messaungers, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, and are counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shall recouer from this sicknesse. But the angell of y LORDE sayde vnto Elias the Thesbite: Op, & go meete the messaungers of the kyng of Samaria, and saie vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to are counsell at y god of Ekron? Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not come from the bed wheron thou lyes, but shalt dye the death.

And Elias wente his waye. And wha y messaunges came to Ochofias agayne, he sayde vnto the: Why come ye agayne? They sayde vnto him: There came vp a man in onre waye, and sayde vnto vs: Go agayne to the kyng that hath sent you, and saie vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Is there no God in Israel, y thou sendest to are coucel at Beelzebub y god of Ekron? Therfore shalt thou not come from y bed wheron thou lyes, but shalt dye the death. He sayde vnto them: What maner of man was it that mett you, and sayde this vnto you? They sayde vnto him: he had a rough heer vpon him, and a letheren gyrdell abouce his loynes. he sayde: It is Elias the Thesbite.

C And he sent vnto him a capteyne ouer fyf-tye, with the same fyf-tye. And whan he came vnto him, beholde, he sat aboue vpon the mount. he sayde vnto him: Thou mā of God, the kyng sayeth: Thou shalt come downe. Elias answered the capteyne ouer fyf-tye, and sayde vnto him: If I be a man of God, the fyre shall fall downe then from heauen, and consume the and thy fyf-tye. Then fell there fyre from heauen, and consumed him and his fyf-tye. And agayne he sent another capteyne ouer fyf-tye vnto him, with his fyf-tye, which answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, thus sayeth the kyng: Come downe in all the haist. Elias answered, and sayde: If I be a mā of God, if fyre shall fall downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyf-tye. Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed him, and his fyf-tye. Agayne, he sent vnto him the thirde capteyne ouer fyf-tye, with his fyf-tye.

D Now whan he came to him, he knelled to Elias, and besought him, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, let my soule and þy soules of thy seruantes thes fyf-tye, be som what worth in thy syghte. Beholde, the fyre fell downe from heauen, and hath consumed the fyf-tye capteynes ouer fyf-tye of their fyf-tyes. But now let my soule be som what worth in thy syghte. Then said he angel of the LORDE vnto Elias: Go downe with him, and feare him not. And he gat him vp, and wente downe with him vnto þy kyng.

And he sayde vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Because thou hast sent forth messengers, and caused to be counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, as though there were no God in Israel to be counsell at his worde, therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou hast layed the, but shalt dye þy death. So he dyed, acordyng to the worde of the LORDE which Elias sayde. And Joram (his brother) was kyng in his steade in the seconde yere of Joram the sonne of Josaphat kyng of Juda: for he had no sonne.

What more there is to saye of Ochosias, what he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The ii. Chapter.

A Whan the LORDE was mynbed to take vp Elias in the tempest, Elias and Eliseus wente from Gilgall. And Elias sayde to Eliseus: Tary thou be-re I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Bethel. But Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And whan they came downe vnto Bethel, the prophetes children that were at Bethel, were forth to Eliseus, and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not, that the LORDE wyll take thy loude awaye from thy heade this daye? he sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye youre peace.

And Elias sayde vnto him: Eliseus, tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Jericho. Neuerthelesse he sayde: as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the.

And whan they came vnto Jericho, the prophetes children which were at Jericho, stepte forth to Eliseus and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not that the LORDE wyll take þy loude awaye from thy heade this daye? he sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye yo^r peace. And Elias sayde vnto him: I praye the, tary here, for þy LORDE hath sent me vnto Jordan. But he sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And they wente both together. But fyf-tye men of þy prophetes children were forth, and stode ouer agaynst the a farre of: but they both stode by Jordan. Then toke Elias his cloke, and wrappyd together, and smote the water, which dyed it selfe on both the sydes, so that they were dry shod thorow it. And whan they were come ouer, Elias sayde vnto Eliseus: What shall I do for the, afore I be taken awaye from the. Eliseus sayde: That thy spate maye be vpo me to speake twyse as much.

he sayde: Thou hast desired an þing: neuertheles yf thou shalt se me wher I am taken awaye from the, it shall be so: if no, the shall it not be. And as they were goinge together, and he talked, there came a fyrie charret with horses of fyre, and parted the both asunder. And so wente Elias vp to heauen in the stowe. But Eliseus sawe it, and cryed: My father, my father, the charretman of Israel and his horses. And he sawe him nomore.

And he toke holde of his clothes, and rent them in two peces, and toke vp Elias cloke that was fallen from him, and turned backe, and stode by the shore of Jordan, and toke the same cloke of Elias which was fallen from him, and smote it in the water, and sayde: Where is now the LORDE God of Elias? And he smote it in to the water, and it parted it asunder on both the sydes, and he Eliseus wente thorow.

D And whan the prophetes children which were at Jericho ouer agaynst him, sawe him, they sayde: The spere of Elias resteth vpo Eliseus, and so they were forth to mete him, and worshipped him to the grounde, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, there are fyf-tye va-leaunt me amonge thy seruantes, let them go and seke thy loude, peradventure the spere of the LORDE hath taken him, and cast him vpon some mountaine or in some valley. But he sayde: Sende them not. Neuertheles they constrained him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayde: Let them go. And they sent fyf-tye men, which sought him thre dayes: but they founde him not, and came agayne vnto him. And he abode at Jericho, and sayde vnto them: Tolve not I you, that ye shulde not go? And the men of the cite sayde vnto Eliseus: Beholde, there is good dwellyng in this cite, as my loude seyth, but the water is euill, and the loude vnfructfull.

he sayde: Bynge me hither a new vessell, and put salt in it. And they broughte it him, then were he forth vnto the well of water, and cast the salt therin, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue healed this water: from hence forth shal there no deede ner vnfruct-faines come of it. So the water was healed vnto this daye, acordyng to the worde of Eliseus which he spake.

And he wente vp towarde Bethel. And as he was goyng up by the waye, there came lile boyes out of the cite, and mocked him, and sayde: Come vp here thou balde heade, come vp here thou balde heade. And he turned him aboute. And whan he sawe them, he cur sed them in the name of the LORDE. Then came there two Beeres out of the wod, and tence two and fortye of the children. From thence were he vp vnto mount Carmel, and from thence he came to Samaria.

The iii. Chapter.

Ioram the sonne of Achab was kyng ouer Israel at Samaria in þe eightieth yere of Josaphat kyng of Juda, and reigned xij. yeres, and dyd þy which was euill in þy syghte of þy LORDE, but not as his father and his mother: for he put awaye þy pilers of Baal, which his father caused to make. Neuertheles he cleued vnto þy synnes of Jeroboam þy sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne, and departed not there fro.

Eliseus þy kyng of the Moabites had many shepe, and payed tribute vnto the kyng of Israel with the wolle of an hundred thousande labes, and of an hundred thousande rames.

The iij. Chap. Fo. lxxij.

D But whan Achab was deede, the kyng of Moabites fell awaye fro the kyng of Israel. At þy same tyme were kyng Joram fro Samaria, and mustered all Israel, and sent vnto Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayenge: The kyng of the Moabites is fallen awaye fro me, come thou with me to fighte agaynst þy Moabites. he sayde: I wil come vp, I am even as thou, and my people as þy people, and my horses as thy horses. And sayde morouer: Which waye wil we go vp? he sayde: by the waye in the wyldernes of Edom.

So the kyng of Israel, the kyng of Juda, and the kyng of Edom wente forth. And whan they had gone aboute seuē dayes iourney, þy hoost and the catell þy were amonge the had no water. Then sayde the kyng of Israel: Alas, the LORDE hath called thes thre kynges, to deliuer the in to the hande of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is here no prophet of þy LORDE, þy we maye are coucell at þy LORDE by him? Then answered one of þy kyng of Israels seruantes, and sayde: he re is Eliseus þy sonne of Saphat, which pou red water vpon Elias handes. Josaphat sayde: The worde of þy LORDE is with him. So the kyng of Israel and Josaphat, and þy kyng of Edom wente downe vnto him.

C But Eliseus sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: What hast thou to do with me? go to the prophetes of thy father and to þy mothers prophetes. The kyng of Israel saide vnto him: No, for þy LORDE hath called thes thre kynges, to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites. Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE Gebaoth lyueth, before whom I stode, yf I regarded not Josaphat the kyng of Juda, I wolde not regarde the, ner see oughte by þy. So brynge me now a mynstrell. And whan the mynstrell played vpo the instrument, the hande of the LORDE came vpo him. And he sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Make pottes by this broke. For thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shal se nether wynde ner rayne, yet shal the broke be full of water, that ye and youre householdes and youre catell maie drynke. And that is but a small thinge in the syghte of the LORDE. And the Moabites shal be deliuered in to youre handes, so þy ye shal smyte all the stronge cities, and all þy chosen cities: and shal fell downe all the good trees, and stoppe all the welles of water and all the good felde shal ye make waste with stones.

On the morow, whan the meat offeringe is offered, beholde, there came water þy waye from Edom, and fylled þy loude with water.

The iiii. boke of the kyniges.

But whan the Moabites herde, & the kynges came vp to fighte agaynst the, they called all & harnessed men, & their rulers, & stode on & border. And whan they rose early in & mornynge, & the Sonne wete vp vpon & water, the Moabites thoughte the water ouer agaynst the to be ened as reed as bloude, & they sayde: It is bloude, & kyniges haue destroyed them selues wth the swerde, & one hath smytten another. Now Moab get the vp to the spoyle. But whan they came to the ten-tes of Israel, the Israelites gat vp, & smote
the Moabites, & they fled before them.

Euertheles they came in, & smote Moab, & brake downe the cities, & every one cast his stone vpon all the good felde, and made them full, and stopped all & welles of water, and felled downe all the good trees, tyll there remayned but the stones in the buick-wall, and they compassed them aboute with slynges, and smote them.

But whā the kynge of & Moabites sawe & the battayll was to strōge for him, he to-ke to him seven C. men, which dūe & swerde, to fall vpon the kynge of Edom: neuertheles they were not able. Then toke he his first sonne, which shulde haue bene kynge in his steade, and offred him for a burnt offrynge vpon the wall. Then came there a greete wraoth ouer Israel, that they departed from him, and turned agayne into their londe.

The iii. Chapter.

And there cried a woman amōge the wyues of the prophetes children vnto Eliseus, and sayde: Thy seruauunt my husbāde is deed, and thou knowest that thy seruauunt feared the LORDE. Now commeth the man that he was better vnto, and wyl take awaye both my children to be bon-de seruantes. Eliseus sayde vnto her: What shal I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayde: Thy handmayden hath nothynge in the house but a picher wth oyle. He sayde: Go & waye, borowe without of all thy neighbours emptye vessels, & thae not a fewe, and go in, and shut & dore behynde the with thy sonnes, and poure of it in to all & vessels: & whan thou hast fylled them, delyuer them forth.

She wente, and shut the dore vnto her with h^r sonnes, which broughte her the vessels, and so she poured in. And whan the vessels were full, she sayde vnto hir sonne: Bryn-ge me yet one vessell. He sayde vnto her: There is not one vessell more here. Then stode & oyle styll. And she sent, and tolde the man of God. He sayde: Go thy waye, sell the oyle, and paye the creditor: but lyeue thou and & thy nes of the residue.

And it fortunēd at & samē tyme, that El-seus wente vnto Sunem. And there was riche woman, which helde him to eate wth her: & as he passed oft thorow & waye, he te in vnto her: & ate wth her. And she sayde to hir husbāde: Beholde, I perceaue that this is an holy man of God, which goeth uer thorow this waye, let vs make hi a lych chamber of boordes, & set a bed, a table, a le & a candellstick therin, that whan he commeth vnto vs, he maye resorte thither.

And it fortunēd vpon a tyme, that he came in, & layed him downe in the chamber, & slepte therin. And he saide vnto Gehasi his childe: Call this womā of Sunem. And whā he had called her, she stode before him. He sayde vnto him: Speake thou vnto her, be-holde, thou hast mynistrēd vnto vs in all these thinges, what shal I do for the? Hast thou eny matter to be spoken for to the kynge, or to the chiefe captayne of the hoost? She sayde: I dwell amōge my people. He sayde:
What hast thou then to do? Gehasi sayde:
Alas, she hath no sonne, and hir husbāde is olde. He sayde: Call her. And whā he had called her, she stode at the dore. And he sayde: Aboute this tyme yf & frute can lyeue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. She sayde: Alas, wth my lord, thou man of God, lye not vnto thy handmayden. And the woman conceaued, and bare a sonne aboute the same tyme, whā
the frute coulde lyeue, acordynge as Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

But whan & childe was growne, it fou-ned, & he wente forth to his father vnto the reapers, & sayde vnto his father: Oh my he-de, my heade. He saide vnto his seruauunt: Dri-ge him to his mother. And he toke him, and broughte him to his mother: and she set him vpon hir lappe vntyll & noone daye, & the childe dyed. And she wente vp, and layed him vpon the bed of the man of God, & shut the dore, and wete forth, & called hir husbāde, & sayde vnto him: Send me one of the seruantes, and an Ass, I wyl go quykly vnto the man of God, and come agayne. He sayde: Why wilt thou go vnto him? To daye is it nether new moone ner Sabbath. She sayde: Well.
And she sabled the ass, & sayde to the yongman: Driue forth, and kepe me not bak wth rydinge, and do as I byd the.

So she wente, and came to the man of God vnto mount Carmell. Whā the man of God sawe her ouer agaynst him, he sayde to his childe Gehasi: Beholde, the Sunamite.

is there, runne now & mete her, and are-her yf it go well with her, and hir husban-der hir some. She sayde: Well. But whan she came to the man of God vpon & mount, he hadde him by his fete. And Gehasi slepte to her, to put her awaye. But & man of God sayde: Let her alone, for hir soule is in heunes, and the LORDE hath hyd it fro me, and not shewed it me. She sayde: Whan desyred I a sonne of my lord? Sayde I not, & thou shuldest not mocke me?

He sayde vnto Gehasi: Girde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thy hande, and go thy waye. & yf eny man mete the, salute him not: and yf eny man salute the, thanke him not, and laye thou my staffe vpon & childe's face. But the childe's mother sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyncheth, and as truly as & soule lyncheth, I wyl not leaue the. Then gat he vp, and wente a fter her. As for Gehasi, he wente before them, and layed the staffe vpon
the childe's face, but there was nether voyce ner felynge. And he wente agayne to mete him, and shewed him, and sayde: The childe is not rylen vp.

And whan Eliseus came into the house, beholde, & childe laye deed vpon his bed. And he wete in, & shut the dore on the both, & made his prayer vnto the LORDE, & wente vp, & layed himselfe vpon the childe, & layed his mouth vpon the childe's mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his han-des, & so stretched him selfe forth vpon him, so & the childe's body was warme. And he rose vp, & wente in to the house once hirther and thither, & wente vp, & layed him selfe a longe vpon him. Then neded the childe seven tymes, and afterwarde the childe opened his eyes.
And he cried vpon Gehasi, and sayde: Call the Sunamite. And whan he had called her, she came in vnto him. He sayde: Take thee thy sonne. Then came she, and fell at his fete, and worshipped vnto the grounde, and toke hir sonne, and wente forth.

But whā Eliseus came agayne vnto Gilgal, there was a verth in the londe, & the prophetes children dwelt before him, & he sayde vnto his seruauunt: Set on a greete pot, and make potage for the children of the prophetes. Then wente there one into the felde, to gather herbes, and founde a Cucumbers stalle, & gathered wyld Cucumbers therof his corefull. And whan he came, he chopped it small for potage to the port, for they knewe it not. And whā they poured it forth for the me to eate, & they ate of & potage, they cried and sayde: O thou man of God, death is in the pot: for they mighte not eate it. Euertheles he sayde: Brynge meel hither. And he put it in the pot, & sayde: Poure it out for the people, that they maye eate. And then was it not bytter in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salisa, & broughte the man of God bried of the first frutes, namely twentye barlye loaves, & new come in his garment. But he sayde: Geue it vnto & people, that they maye eate. His mynister sayde: How shall I geue an hūdrēth men of this? He sayde: Geue it vnto the people, that they maye eate. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shal eate, and there shall be lefte ouer. And he set it before them, so that they ate, and there lefte ouer, acordynge to & worde of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

Aaman the chiefe captayne of the kynge of Syria, was an excellēt mā in the sighte of his lord, and mech-set by (for thorow him the LORDE gaue health vnto Syria) and he was a mightie man, but a leper. And there had men of war-re fallen out of Syria, and caried awaye a litle damsel out of the londe of Israel: the same was in seruyce with Naaman's wife, and sayde vnto hir mastresse: O that my master were with the prophet at Samaria, he wol-de heale him from his leprosy.

Then wente he in to his lord, and tolde him, and sayde: Thus and thus hath the damsel of the londe of Israel spoken. The kynge of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, & I wyl wyryte a letter vnto the kynge of Israel.

And he wente, and toke with him ten hundred weighte of syluer, and fyve thousande guldens, & ten chaunge of prayment, & broughte the letter vnto the kynge of Israel, with these wordes:

Whan this letter commeth vnto the, be-holde, thou shalt vnderstonde & I haue sent my seruauunt Naaman vnto the, that thou mayest heale him of his leprosy.

And whan the kynge of Israel red the letter, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Am I God then, that I can kyll and quykē agayne, & he sendeth vnto me, to heale the man fro his leprosy? Considre and se, how he seeketh an occasion vnto me.

Whan Eliseus the man of God herde, & the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he sent vnto him, sayenge: Why hast thou ren-te thy clothes? Let him come to me, that he maye knowe, & there is a prophet in Israel.

So Naaman came with horses and cha-rettes, and helde still at the dore of Eliseus house. Then sent Eliseus a messenger vnto him, saying: Go thy waye, and washe the seven tymes in Iordane, so shal thy flesh be restored the agayne, & be clensed. Then was Naaman wroth, & wente his waye, & sayde: I thoughte he shulde haue come forth vnto me, & to haue stode here & to haue called vpon the name of the LORDE his God, & to haue touched the place with his hande, & so to haue put awaye the leprosy. Are not y waters of Amara and Pharphar at Damascon better then all the waters in Israel, & I might washe me therin & be clensed? and he turned hym, and wente his waye in displeasure. Then his seruantes gaue hym, and sayde: Father, yf the prophet had commaunded the eny grete thinge, shuldest thou not haue done it? moche more the yf he saye vnto the: Washe the, & thou shalt be cleane. Then wente he downe, & washed himselfe in Iordane seven tymes (as the man of God sayde) & his flesh was restored him agayne, enen as the flesh of a yonge childe, and he was clensed.

Luc 4. c

And he turned agayne to y man of God with all his armye. And whan he came in, he stode before him, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe that in all londes there is no God, but in Israel. Take now therfore this blessinge I praye the of thy seruante. Neuertheles he sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, before whom I stonde, I wil not take it. And he wolde nedes haue him to take it, but he wolde not. Then sayde Naaman: Mighte there not a burthe of this carth be geue vnto y seruant, as moch as troye Milles maye beare? For thy seruant wyll nemo re do sacrifice and offer burnt offerynges vnto other goddes, but vnto the LORDE. That the LORDE maye be gracious vnto thy seruant, yf I worshippe in the house of Rimmon, whan my lord goeth there in to y house to worshippe, & leaneth vpon my hande. He sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace.

And as he was gone from him a felde bledch in the londe, Gehasi the seruant of Eliseus y man of God thoughte: beholde, my lord hath spared Naaman this Syrian, so that he hath not taken from him y which he broughte: As truly as y LORDE lyueth, I wil rane after him, & take somthinge of him.

So Gehasi folowed Naaman. And whan Naaman sawe y he ranne after him, he lighted downe from the charet to mete him, & sayde: Are all thynges well? He sayde: Yee. But my lord hath sent me, & caused to saye vnto the: Beholde, there are now come to me from mount Ephraim two yonge men of the prophetes childre, geue them a calere of siluer, & praye the) & two chaunge of rayment. Naaman sayde: Go to, take two caleres. And he pelled him, & banded two talentes in two bagges, and two chaunge of rayment, and departed it vnto two of his seruantes, which bare it before him. And whan he came in y darcke, he toke it from their handes, & layd it a syde in the house, & let the men go.

And whan they were gone their waye, he stode before his lord. And Eliseus sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou Gehasi? He sayde: Thy seruante wente nether hither nor thither. But he sayde vnto him: Wentest thou my hert to the, whan the man turned backe from his charet to mete the? Now thou hast take the syluer & the rayment, olyne trees, & nyardes, shepe, oxen, seruantes & maydens. But the leprosy of Naaman shal cleue vnto the & to thy seede for ever. Then went he forth from him leporous as snowe.

The VI. Chapter.

The children of y prophetes sayden to Eliseus: Beholde, the place wher we dwell before y, is to narrow for vs, let vs go vnto Iordane, & euery one fetch ymbie there, & we maye there buyde vs a place to dwell in. He sayde: Go ye waye. And one sayde: Go to then, & come w thy seruantes. He sayde: I wil go with you. And he wente with them. And whan they came to Iordane, they hewed downe ymbie. And as one was fellynge downe a tre, the yron fell in to the water, and he cried and sayde: Alas my lord, & it is burowed. But the man of God sayde: Where fell it in? And whan he shewed him the place, he cut downe a stick, and thrust it in there. Then swame the yron. And he sayde: Take it vp. So he put forth his hande, and toke it.

And the kynge of Syria warred agaynst Israel, and toke counsell at his seruantes, and sayde: There & there will we lye. But the man of God sent to y kynge of Israel, sayinge: Bewarre y thou go not vnto that place, for the Syrians rest there. So the kynge of Israel sent vnto y place & heres y man of God tolde him, & kepte it, & helde watch there, & dyd that not once or twyse endy.

Then was y kynge of Syrias herte vexed therfore, and called his seruantes, and sayde vnto them: Wyll ye not tell me, which of our men is fled vnto the kynge of Israel? Then sayde one of his seruantes: Naah my lord O kynge, but Eliseus the prophet in Israel telleth the kynge of Israel all that thou speakest in thy chamber whan thou lyst. He sayde: Go youre waye the and lye where he is, that I maye sende, and can se him be fished. And they shewed him and sayde: Beholde, he is at Dorhan. The sent he thither houses & charretes, & a greate power. And whan they came thither by nighte, they compassed the cite aboute. And the mynister of the ma of God arose early to get him vp. And as he wente forth, beholde, there laye a host of men aboute y cite with hoises and charretes.

Then sayde his childe vnto him: Alas sy, how wyll we now do? He sayde: Feare not, for there are mo of them y are with vs, then of those that are with them. And Eliseus prayed & sayde: LORDE open his eyes, & he maye se. Then the LORDE opened y childes eyes, & he sawe, & beholde, y mount was full of fyne hoises & charretes rounde aboute Eliseus. And whan they came downe vnto him, Eliseus made his prayer, & sayde: LORDE smyte this people w byndnes. And he smote the with byndnes acordinge to the worde of Eliseus. And Eliseus sayde vnto them: This is not y waye nor the cite, folowe me, I wil brynge you to the man whom ye seek. And he broughte them vnto Samaria.

And whan they came to Samaria, Eliseus sayde: LORDE open these mens eyes, & they maye se. And the LORDE opened their eyes, & they sawe, & beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And whan the kynge of Israel sawe them, he sayde vnto Eliseus: My father, shal I smyte the? He sayde: Thou shalt not smyte the: loke whom thou takest with thy swerde and bowe, smyte those. Set bad and water before them, that they maye eate and drynke, and let them departe vnto their lordes. The was there a greate dyner prepared. And whan they had eaten and drynken, he let them go to departe vnto their lordes. From that tyme forth came the men of warre of the Syrians nomore in to the londe of Israel.

After this it fortuned, that Benadab the kynge of Syria gathered all his hoost, and wente vp, & layd sege vnto Samaria: & there was a greate death at Samaria. But they layd sege to the cite so longe, tyll an Asses heade was worth foure score syluer pes, and the fourth parte of a Lab of bones donge worth fyne syluer pens. And whan the kynge of Israel wente vnto the wall, a woman cried vnto him and sayde: helpe me my lord O kynge. He sayde: Yf the LORDE helpe the not, wherwith shal I helpe the? with y barn or with the wyne presse? And the kyn ge sayde vnto her: What ayleth y? She sayde: This woman sayde vnto me: Geue vs y some, that we maye eate him, tomorrow wyll we eate my sonne. So we sod my sonne, & haue eaten him, and I sayde vnto her on y thirde daye: Geue vs thy sonne and let vs eate him, but she hath hyd him awaye.

Whan the kynge herde the womans wordes, he rente his clothes, whyle he was goynge to the wall. The sawe all the people, that he had a sackcloth vnder vpon his body. And he sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf the heade of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat shal this daye stonde vpon him. As for Eliseus, he sat in his house, & the Elders sat by him. And he sent a man before him, but ouer the messaunge came to him, he sayde vnto y Elders: Haue ye not sene how this childe of murthure hath sent hither, to take awaye my heade? Take hede, whan the messenger cometh, & ye holde him at the dore. Beholde, y noyse of his lordes feet foloweth him. Whyle he was thus talkynge w them, beholde, y messenger came to him, & sayde: Beholde, this euell cometh of y LORDE, and what more shal I loke for of the LORDE?

The VII. Chapter.

Eliseus sayde: Heare the worde of the LORDE. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Tomorrow aboute this tyme shal a busshel of fyne meel be solde for one Sycke, and two busshels of barley for one Sycke vnder the poire of Samaria. Then a knyghte (vpon whose hande the kynge leaned) answered the ma of God, and sayde: And though the LORDE made wyndowes in heane, how coulde soch a thinge come to passe? He sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, & shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure leporous men at y dore before the poire, and one sayde vnto another: Why tary we here whyle we dye? Though we thoughte to come in to the cite, yet is there deth in y cite, and there shulde we be sayne to dye. And yf we tary here, we must dye also. Let vs go now, and flye vnto the hoost of the Syrians. Yf they let vs lye, we shall lye: yf they slaye vs, then are we deed. And so they gat them vp early, to come vnto the hoost of the Syrians. And whan they came to the vttemost ende of y tentes, beholde, there was no body.

For the LORDE had made the Syrians to heare a noyse of hoises, charretes, and of a mightie grete hoost, so that they sayde one to another amonge the selues: Beholde, the kynge of Israel hath hyed the kynge of the Zethites, and the kyng of the Egipcians agaynst vs, to come vps vs. And they gat them vp, and fled early in the twylyght, and lefte their borches, and hores and asses in the tentes as they stode, & fled every man where hemighte saue his life.

C Now whan the lepers came to the place of the tentes, they wente in to the tentes, ate and dronke, and toke syluer, golde and rayment, and wente and hyde it: & came agayne & entred in to another tent, and toke therout, and wente and hyd it. But one of them saide vnto another: Let vs not do thus, this daye is a daye of good tidynge. If we kepe this secrete and hyde tyll the lighte mornynge, oure trespase wyl be founde out. Let vs go now therfore, that we maye come, & tell the kynges house.

And whan they came, they cried at the poite of the cite, and tolde them, and sayde: We came to the tentes of the Sirians, and beholde, there is no mā there, nether yet eny mans voyce, but hores and asses bounde, and the borches as they stonde. Then cried the porters and tolde it within in the kynges house. And the kyng arose in the nighte, & sayde vnto his seruantes: I will tell you how the Syrians deale with vs: they knowe that we suffer hunger, and are gone out of the cete, to hyde them selues in the felde, and thynke thus: whan they go out of the cite, we wyl take them alyue, & come in to the cite. Then answered one of his seruantes, and sayde: Let vs take the fyne hores that remayne, which yet are lefte in the cite (beholde, these are lefte therin for all the multitude in Israel, which is destroyed) let vs sende these and se. The toke they two charrettes with the hores. And the kyng sent them vnto the tentes of the Syrians, and sayde: Go youre waye and se.

D And whan they wente after the vnto Jordan, beholde, the waye laye full of garments and vessels, which the Syrians had cast from the, whyle they made haist. And whan the messaungers came agayne, and tolde the kyng, the people wente forth, and spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And a busshel of fyne meell was solde for a Syckle, and two busshels of barley for a Syckle also, according to the worde of the LORDE. But the kyng appoynted the knyghte (vpon whose hande he leened to be at the gate, & the people trode vpon him, so that he dyed, even as the man of God sayde, whan the kyng came downe vnto him. And it came to passe even as the man of God tolde the kyng, whā he sayde: Tomorrow aboute this tyme shal two busshels of barley be solde for one Syckle, and a busshel of fyne meel for one Syckle, vnder the gate at Samaria. And the kyng answered the man of God, and sayde: I holde, though the LORDE made wyndowes in heauen, how coulde soch a thinge come to passe? Nevertheless he sayde: Beholde, with thine eyes shalt thou se it, and shalt not be therof. And even so fortunedit vnto him, for the people trode vpon him in the gate, & he dyed.

The viij. Chapter.

Elisens spake vnto the woman, whose sonne he had restored vnto life agayne, and sayde: Get the vp, & go with thine household, and be a straunger wher thou canst: for the LORDE shall call for a verch, which shal come in to the londe seven yere lōge. The woman gat her vp, and as the man of God sayde, & wente with his household, and was a straunger in the lōke of the Philistynes seven yere. But whan the seven yeres were ended, the woman came agayne out of the Philistynes lōde, and wente forth to crye vpon the kyng for his house and lōde. The kyng spake vnto Gehazi the seruant of the man of God, & sayde: Tell me all the greates actes that Elisens hath done. And whyle he was tellinge the kyng how he had made one that was deade to lyue agayne, beholde, the woman whose sonne he had caused to reuue, came even in the meane season, and cried vnto the kyng for his house and lōde. Then sayde Gehazi: My lord the kyng, this same is the woman, and this is hir sonne, whom Elisens restored vnto life agayne. And the kyng and the woman, and she tolde him. Then the kyng deliuered her a chamberlayne, & saide: Restore her agayne all that is hers, and all the increase of the lōde, sence the tyme that she lefte the lōde vntill now.

And Elisens came to Damascon, & Benadab the kyng of Syria laye sicke. And it was tolde him, and sayde: The man of God is come hither. Then sayde the kyng vnto Hazael: Take giftes with the, & go mete the man of God, and are counsell at the LORDE by him, and saye: Maye I recover from this sicknesse? Hazael wente for to mete him, and toke rewardes with him, and of all the gowdes at Damascon, as moch as fortye Camels mighte beare. And whan he came, he stode before him, and sayde: Thy sonne Benadab the kyng of Syria hath sent me vnto the, sayenge: Maye I recover from this sicknesse?

Elisens sayde vnto him: Go thy waye and tell him: Thou shalt recover. But the LORDE hath shewed me, that he shal dye by death. And the man of God loked earnestly, & made a troublous countenance, & wepte. The kyng sayde Hazael: Wherfore wepest thou my lord? He sayde: I knowe what euill thou shalt do vnto the children of Israel. Thou shalt burne their stronge cities with fyre, and slaye their yonge men with the sword, and kyll their yonge children, and rypppe vp their women with childe.

Elisens sayde: How so, is thy seruant a dogg, that he shulde do soch a greates thyng? Elisens saide: The LORDE hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kyng of Syria. And he wote his waye from Elisens, & came to his lord, which saide vnto him: What saierth Elisens vnto the? He sayde: He tolde me, Thou shalt recover. But on the nexte daye he toke a bed couerynge, and dypte it in water, and spred it ouer him, and he dyed, & Hazael was kyng in his steade.

In the fyfth yere of Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, was Joram the sonne of Josaphat kyng of Juda. Two & thirtie yere olde was he whā he was made kyng, & reigned eighte yere at Jerusalem, & walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as the house of Achab dyd: for Achabs daughter was his wife, & he dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE. Nevertheless the LORDE wolde not destroye Juda for his seruant Dauids sake, as he promysed him, to geue him euer a lantern amonge his children.

At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, & made a kyng ouer them selues: the cause was this, Joram had gone thowt Seira, and all the charrettes with him, & had gotten him vp by nighte, and smytten the Edomites that were aboute him, and ruled ouer the charrettes, so that the people fled vnto their tentes: therfore fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Libna awaye also.

What more there is to saye of Joram, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Joram fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid, & Ochozias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the twelveth yere of Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, was Ochozias the sonne of Joram kyng in Juda. Two and twenty yere olde was Ochozias whan he was made kyng, and reigned one yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Alialia the daughter of Amri kyng of Israel, & he walked in the waye of the house of Achab, & dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE, even as dyd the house of Achab: for he was sonne in lawe in the house of Achab. And he wente with Joram the sonne of Achab in to the battayll agaynst Hazael the kyng of Syria vnto Ramoth in Gilead, but the Syrians smote Joram. Then Joram the kyng turned backe, to be healed at Jesreel of his woundes, wherewith the Syrians had wounded him at Ramoth, whā he soughte with Hazael kyng of Syria. And Ochozias the sonne of Joram the sonne of Achab at Jesreel, for he laye sicke. The ix. Chapter.

Elisens the prophet called one of the prophetes childre, & sayde vnto him: Gyrde vp thy loynes, and take this cruise of oyle with the, and go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: and whā thou comest thither, thou shalt se there one Jehu, the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Tamsi, and go in, and byd him stonde vp amonge his brethren, and brynge him in to the ynnost chamber, & take thou a cruise of oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, & saye: Thus saith the LORDE: I haue anointed the to be kyng ouer Israel: & thou shalt open the dore, and flye, and not tary. And the prophetes yonge man, the childe wente his waye vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And whan he came in, beholde, the captaines of the hoste sat there, and he sayde: I haue som what to saye vnto the O capteyne. Jehu saide: Vnto whom amonge vs all? He sayde: Euen vnto the O capteyne.

Then stode he vp, and wente in. So he poured the oyle vpon his heade, and sayde vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE God of Israel: I haue anointed the to be kyng ouer the LORDES people of Israel, and thou shalt smyte thy lord Achabs house, that I maye auenge the bloude of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the LORDES seruantes, from the hande of Jesabel, that all the house of Achab maye perissh. And Joram wyl rote out from Achab, even him that maketh water agaynst the wall, and the closed vp and the desolate in Israel: and the house of Achab wyl I make euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Ahis, and the dogges shall eate vp Jesabel vpon the felde at Jesreel, and no man shall burye her. And he opened the dore, and fled.

And whā Jehu came forth to his lordes seruantes, they saide vnto him: Are all chyn

ges well: Wherfore came this madd felowe vnto the: he saide vnto them: Ye knowe the man well, & what he hath spoken. They sayde: That is not true, but tell thou vs. He sayde: Thus and thus hath he spoken vnto me, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. Then made they haist, and euery one toke his garment and laied them vnder him in manner of a iudges seate, and blew the trompet, and sayde: Jehu is made kynge. So Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nimsi, made a confederacion agaynst Joram. As for Joram he laye before Ramoth in Gilead with all Israel agaynst Hasael the kynge of Syria. But Joram the kynge was turned backe, & he might be healed of the woundes wherewith the Syrians had wounded him, whā he fought with Hasael the kynge of the Syrians.

And Jehu sayde: If it be youre mynde, there shall noman escape out of the cite, to go and tell it at Iesrael. And he rode, and departed vnto Iesrael: for Joram laye there, and Ochosis the kynge of Iuda was come downe to vysee Joram. But the watchman that stode vpon the tower at Iesrael, sawe the company of Jehu commynge, and sayde: I se a company. Then sayde Joram: Take a charer, and sende to meete the, and saye: Is it peace? And the charer man rode to meete them, and sayde: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me. The watchman tolde it, and sayde: The messenger is come vnto them, and cometh not agayne. Then sente he another charer man, which whan he came to them, saide: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me.

And the watchman tolde it, and sayde: He is come to them: and cometh not agayne, and the goynge is as it were the goynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimsi: for he dryueth on as he were mad. Then sayde Joram: Bind the charer fast. And they bounde the charer, and so they wente forth, Joram the kynge of Israel, and Ochosis the kynge of Iuda, euery one vpon his charer, to meete Jehu. And they founde him vpon the felde of Naboth the Iesraelite. And whan Joram sawe Jehu, he sayde: Jehu, is it peace? But he sayde: What peace? The whordome and witchcraft of thy mother Iesabel is not yet come to an ende.

Then turned Joram his hande and fled, and sayde vnto Ochosis: There is treasoun vnto thee. But Jehu toke his bowe, & shot Joram betwene the armes, that the arrow wente thorow his hert, and he fell downe in his charer. And Jehu sayde vnto Bodean the knyght: Take and cast him in the pite of londe of Naboth the Iesraelite: for I remember sence thou rodest with me in a charer after Achab his father, that the LORDE wolde laye this heuy burthen vpon him. I holde (sayde the LORDE) I wyl recompence the the blonde of Naboth and of his dyd, euen in this pece of londe. Take him now and cast him in to that pece of londe, & abyng to the worde of the LORDE.

Whan Ochosis the kynge of Iudasaw this, he fled by the waie vnto a garden house. But Jehu folowed after him, and commanded to smyte him also vpon his charer in the goynge vnto wardes Gur, which lych by Jebelaam: and he fled vnto Megiddo, and dyed there. And his seruantes caused him to be caried vnto Jerusalem, and there they buryed him in his awne graue with his fathers in the cite of David. Ochosis reigned ouer Iuda in the eleuenth yere of Joram the sonne of Achab. And whan Jehu came to Iesrael, and Iesabel herde therof, she colourd hir face, and decked hir heade, and looked out at the wyndowe. And whan Jehu came vnder the gate, she sayde: Prospered Symi well that slewe his lord?

And he lifte vp his face to the wyndow, and sayde: Who is with me? Then reformed there two of thie chamberlaynes vnto him. He sayde: Cast her downe headlinges. And they cast her downe headlynges, so that the wall and the houses were sprentled with her blonde, and she was trodded vnder fere. And whan he came in, and had eaten and drunken, he sayde: Loke vpon yonder cursed woman, & burye her, for she is a kynge's daughter. Neuertheles whan they wente in to burye her, they founde nothyng of her, but the skull and the fere, and the palmes of her handes. And they came agayne and broughte him worde. He saide: This is euen it that the LORDE spake by his seruant Elias the Thessbite, and sayde: In the felde of Iesrael shal the dogges eate Iesabels flesh. So the deed carcase of Iesabel became euen as donge in the felde of Iesrael, so that a man coulde not saye: This is Iesabel.

The X. Chapter.

Achab had thre score and ten sonnes at Samaria. And Jehu wrote a letter, and sent it to Samaria, vnto the ulers of the cite Iesrael, euen vnto the Elders, & to Achabs tutors, sayenge these wordes: Whan this letter cometh vnto you to whom are youre lordes sonnes, charetes, horses, stronge cities, & ordynance, loke which is the best and most righteous amonge youre lordes sonnes, & set him vpon his fathers seate, and fighte for youre lordes house.

Neuertheles they were sore afraied, and sayde: Beholde, two kynges were not able to stonde before him, how wyl we then endure? And they that were ouer the house and ouer the cite, and the Elders and tutors sent vnto Jehu, sayenge: We are thy seruantes, we wyl do all that thou sayest vnto vs: We wyl make noman kynge, do thou what pleaseth the. Then wrote he the seconde letter vnto them with these wordes: If ye be myne, and herken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the men youre lordes sonnes, and brynge me them to morow by this tyme vnto Iesrael.

The kynges sonnes were thre score men and ten, and the chesemen of the cite broughte the vp. Now whan this letter came they toke the kynges sonnes, and slewe them euen thre score men and ten, and layed their heades in baskettes, and sent them to him vnto Iesrael. And whan the messanger came, & tolde him, and sayde: They haue broughte the heades of the kynges children. he sayde: Laye them vpon two heapes at the doore of the porte tyll to morow.

And on the morow whan he wente forth, he stode, and sayde vnto all the people: Are ye righteous? Beholde, I haue made an appoyntment agaynst my lord, and slayne him, who hath slayne all these then? Vnderstande ye nowtherfore, that there is not fallen vpon the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: and the LORDE hath done, euen as he sayde by his seruant Elias. So Jehu smote all the remnant of the house of Achab at Iesrael, all his greaue men, his kynnsfolkes, and his prestes, tyll there was not one left ouer. And he gat him vp, wente his waye, and came to Samaria.

By the waye there was a shepherdes house, where Jehu founde the brethren of Ochosis kynge of Iuda, and sayde: Whence are ye? They sayde: We are Ochosis brethren, and are goynge downe to salute the kynges children, and the quenes children. He sayde: Take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them by the welles syde at the shepherdes house, euen two and forty men, and let not one of them remayne.

And whan he wente from thence, he soughte Jonadab the sonne of Rechab, which met him, & saluted him. And he sayde vnto him: Is thyne hert righte, as myne hert is with thyne hert? Jonadab sayde: Yee. If it be so (sayde he) then geue me thy hande. And he gaue him his hande. And so he caused him to syt besyde him in the charer, and saide: Come with me, and se my zeale for the LORDE. And they caryed him with him vpon his charer. And whan he came to Samaria, he smote all that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyll he had destroyed him, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake vnto Elias.

And Jehu gathered all the people together, and saide vnto them: Achab did Baal but litle seruyce, Jehu wyl serue him better. Call vnto me nowtherfore all Baals prophetes, all his seruantes and all his prestes, that there be none wantynge, for I haue a greaue sacrifice to do vnto Baal. Who so euer is myssed, shal not lyue. But Jehu dyd it craftely, that he mighte destroye all the mynisters of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Sanctifie the feast vnto Baal, and proclame it. And Jehu sent in to all Israel, and caused all Baals ministers to come, so that there was noman left behynde, which came not. And they came in to Baals house, so that the house of Baal was full from one corner to another.

Then sayde he vnto him that had the rule of the vestrye. Brynge forth rayment for all Baals mynisters. And he broughte forth the rayment. And Jehu wente in to Baals house with Jonadab the sonne of Rechab, and sayde vnto Baals mynisters: Search and se that there be not here amonge you eny mynister of the LORDE, but onely Baals mynisters.

And whan they came in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerynges, Jehu appoynted him foure score men without, & sayde: If eny of these men escape whom I deliuer vnder your handes, then shal the same mans soule be for his soule. Now whā he had made an ende of the burnt offeringe, Jehu sayde vnto the foremen and knyghtes: Go in, & smyte every man, let noman go forth. And they smote the with the edge of the swerde. And the fore men and knyghtes threw the awaye and were vnto the cite of Baals house, and brought forth the piler in y^e house of Baal, and brent it, and brake downe Baals pyler with the house of Baal, and made a piens house therof vnto this daie. Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But Jehu lefte not of from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which caused Israel to synne) namely, from the golden calves at Bethel and at Dan. And the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Because thou hast bene wyllinge to do that which was righte in my sighte, & hast done vnto Achabs house all that was in my hert, therefore shall thy children sye vpon y^e seate of Israel vnto the fourth generacion.

¶ Neuerthelesse Jehu was not diligent to walke in the lawe of the LORDE God of Israel with all his hert: for he lefte not of fro the synnes of Jeroboam which made Israel to synne. At the same tyme beganne the LORDE to be greued at Israel. For Hasael smote them in all the borders of Israel from Jordan Eastwarde, and all the londe Gilad of the Gaddites, Rubenites and Manassites, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer by Arnon, and Gilead and Basan.

What more there is to saye of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is wyrtē in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jehu fell on slepe with his fathers, & they buryed him in Samaria. And Joahas his sonne was kyng in his steade. The tyme that Jehu reigned ouer Israel, is eight and twentye yeares at Samaria.

The XI. Chapter.

¶ Athalia the mother of Ochosias, whā she sawe that hir sonne was deed, gat her vp, and destroyed all the kynges seide. But Josēba kynges Joas daughter the syster of Ochosias, toke Joas the sonne of Ochosias and stole him awaye with his nurse in the chamber from amonge the kynges children which were slayne, and she hyd him from Athalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in the house of the LORDE sixe yeares. But Athalia was quene in the londe.

¶ Neuertheles in the seventh yeare sent Joiada, and toke the rulers ouer hūdrēds with the captaynes and fore men, and caused the

to come to him in to the house of the LORDE and made a couenaunt with them, and whā an ooch of them in the house of the LORDE, and shewed them the kynges sonne, and commaunded them, and sayde: This is it that y^e shall do: One thirde parte of you which enter on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the kynges house, and one thirde parte shall be at the porte of Sur, and one thirde parte shall be at y^e porte which is behynde the fore men, and ye shall kepe the watch at the house of Massā. But two partes of you all that go of on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the house of the LORDE aboute the kyng and ye shall get you rounde aboute y^e kyng and every one with his weapen in his hande: and who so ever cometh within y^e wall, let him die, so that ye be with the kyng, whā he goeth out and in.

And the rulers ouer the hūdrēds dyd all as Joiada the prest had commaunded them, and toke vnto them their men which entered vpon the Sabbath, with those that were of on the Sabbath, and came to Joiada y^e prest. And the prest gaue the captaynes speeres and shyldes which had bene kynges Daidos, and were in the house of the LORDE. And the fore men stode aboute the kyng, every one with his weapen in his hande, fro the corner on the righte syde of the house vnto the corner of the lefte syde, even vnto the altare and to the house. And he brought forth the kynges sonne, and set a crowne vpon his heade, and toke the wienes, and made him kyng, and they were glad, and clapped their handes together, and sayde: God save the kyng.

¶ And whā Athalia herde the noyse of the people that ranne rogether, she came to the people into the house of the LORDE, and looked, and beholde, the kyng stode by the piler, as the vse was, and the syngers and trompettes by the kyng: and all the people of y^e lōde were glad, and blew with trompettes. But Athalia rente hir clothes, & sayde: Vproure, vproure. Neuertheles Joiada y^e prest commaunded y^e rulers ouer hūdrēds, which were appointed ouer the hoost, and saide vnto them: Brynge her without the wall, and whosoever foloweth hir, let him dye of the swerde (for the prest had sayde, that she shal de not dye in the house of the LORDE.) And they layde handes vpon her, and she went in by the waye wher the horses go in to y^e kynges house, and there was she slayne.

Then made Joiada a couenaunt betwene the LORDE and the kyng, and the peo ple, & they shal be the people of the LORDE. It was also betwixte the kyng and y^e people. Then wente all the people of the lōde into the house of Baal, and brake downe his altares, and destroyed his ymages right well. And Nathan the prest of Baal slewe they before the altare: And the prest appoynted the officers in the house of the LORDE, and toke the rulers ouer hūdrēds, and the captaynes, and the fore men, and all y^e people of the lōde, & broughte the kyng downe from the house of the LORDE, and came the waye from the porte of the fore men vnto the kynges house, and he sat vpon the kynges seate. And all the people of the lōde were glad, and the cite was at rest. As for Athalia, they slewe her with the swerde in y^e kynges house. And Joas was seven yeare olde, whā he was made kyng.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ In the seventh yeare of Jehu, was Joas made kyng, and reigned fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Bersaba. And Joas dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada y^e prest taughte him. But they put not downe y^e hye places: for the people offred & burnt incense yet vpon the hye places.

And Joas sayde vnto the prestes: All the money that is sanctified to be bestowed vpon y^e house of the LORDE, namely the money y^e every man geueth vnto the treasury, and y^e money that every man geueth for his soule, and all the money that every man geueth of a fre hert, to be bestowed on the house of the LORDE, let the prestes take it vnto them, every one his porcion: with that shall they repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE, wher they fynde that there is eny decaye.

But whā y^e prestes repaied not the decaye in the house vnto the thre and twentieth yeare of kyng Joas, Joas the kyng called Joiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye not repaie the decaye in the house?

Therefore shall ye not take the money vnto you now every one his porcion, but shall geue it to the decaye of the house. And the prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repaie the decaye of the house.

Then Joiada the prest toke a chest, and bored an hole aboue therin, and set it on the righte hande besyde the altare, at the entryn gein to the house of the LORDE. And the prestes that kepte the thresholde, put all the money therin that was broughte vnto the house of the LORDE. Whā they sawe then that there was much money in the chest, y^e kynges scribe came vp with the hye prest, and bounde the money together, and tolde it as much as was founde in the house of the LORDE. And so the ready money was geuen vnto them that wrought and were appoynted to the house of the LORDE, and they gaue it forth to the carpenters and to the that brylde and wroughte in the house of the LORDE, namely, to the dawbers and masons, and to them that boughte tymbre and fre stone, to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE and all that they founde to haue nede of repayinge in the house.

Howbeit there were no syluer chargers, flat peces, basens, trompettes, ner eny other vessell of golde and syluer made on the house of the LORDE, of the money that was broughte vnto the LORDES house: but it was geuen vnto the workmen to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE therewith. The men also that the money was deliuered vnto, for to geue the workmen, neded not to make eny accomptes, but did their busynes vpon credence. But the money of trespass offeringes and synne offeringes was not broughte vnto the house of the LORDE: for it was the prestes.

At the same tyme wente Hasael the kyng of Syria vp, and foughte agaynst Gath, and wanne it. And whā Hasael set his face to go vnto Jerusalem, kyng Joas toke all that was sanctified, which his fathers Josaphat, Joiam and Ochosias the kynges of Juda had halowed, and what he himselfe had sanctified, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hasael the kyng of Syria. And so he departed from Jerusalem.

What more there is to saye of Joas, and all that he dyd, it is witten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And his seruantes made insurreccion and conspyred, and smote him in the house of Millo, at the goynge downe vnto Silo. For Josēbar the sonne of Simeath, and Josabad the sonne of Somer his seruantes smote him to death: and he was buried with his fathers in the cite of David. And Amasias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ In y^e XXIII. yeare of Joas the sonne of Ochosias kyng of Juda, was Joas has the sonne of Jehu kyng ouer

The iij. boke of the kynges.

Israel at Samaria, seventene yeare: & dyd þ which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked after the synnes of Jeroboam þ sonne of Nebat (which caused Israel to synne) and leste not of from them. And þ wrath of the LORDE wared whote vpon Israel, & he deliuered them ouer vnder the hande of Hasael kyng of Syria, and vnder the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael, as longe as they lyued.

And Joahas besoughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE herde him, for he considered the myserie of Israel, how the kyng of Syria oppressed them. And þ LORDE gaue Israel a sauoure, which broughte them out of the power of the Syrians, so þ the children of Israel dwelt in their tentes, like as afore tyme.

¶ Yet leste they not from the synnes of the house of Jeroboam, which caused Israel to synne, but walked in them. The groue at Samaria stode styll also. For of the people of Joahas there were no mo leste, but fyfye hoisemen, ten charrettes, and ten thousande fote men: for the kyng of Syria had destroyed them, and made them as the dust in the barne.

¶ What more there is to saye of Joahas, and all that he dyd, and his power, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, & Joas his sonne was kyng in his steade.

¶ In the seven and thirtieth yeare of Joas kyng of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Joahas kyng ouer Israel at Samaria sixtene yeare. And he dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne, but walked in them. ¶ What more there is to saye of Joas, and what he dyd, & his power, how he foughte with Amasias kyng of Juda, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat vpo his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria w the kynges of Israel.

¶ As for Elifus, he fell in to a sicknes, wher of he dyed. And Joas the kyng of Israel came downe vnto him, and wepte for him, and saide: My father, my father, the charet man of Israel, and his hoisemen. Elifus sayde vnto him: Take the bowe and the arrowes. And whan he had taken the bowe and the arrowes, he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Bende the bowe with thine hande. And he bent it with his hãde. And Elifus layd his hande vpon the kynges hande, and sayde: Open that wyndowe towarde the LORDE. And he opened it. And Elifus saide: Shout. And he shot. He sayde: one arrowe of the nation of the LORDE, one arrowe of saluacion agaynst the Syrians: and thou shalt see the Syrians at Aphet, tyll they be brought to naughte.

And he sayde: Take y arrowes. And whan he had taken them, he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Smyte the earth. And he smote thre tymes and stode still. Then was the voice of God wroth at him, and sayde: If thou haddest smytten syne or sixe times, thou haddest haue smytten y Syrians, tyll thou haddest vnterly brought them to naughte. Now shalt thou smyte them thre tymes.

¶ Whan Elifus was deed and buried, the men of warre of the Moabites fell in to the londe the same yeare. And it fortuneth þ they buried a certaine man. But whan they sawe the men of warre, they cast the man into Elifus grave. And whan he was therein, and touched Elifus bones, he reuiued, and stood vpon his fete.

¶ So Hasael the kyng of Syria oppressed Israel, as longe as Joahas lyued. But the LORDE was gracious vnto them, and had mercy vpon them, and turned him to them for his conuauentes sake, with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and wolde not destroye them: necher dyd he cast them out from his presence vnto this houre.

¶ And Hasael the kyng of Syria dyed, and Benadad his sonne was kyng in his steade. But Joas turned backe, and toke out of the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael the cyrcles which he had takẽ in battaill out of the hande of his father Joahas: Thre tymes dyd Joas smyte him, and broughte the cities of Israel agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ In the seconde yeare of Joas þ sonne of Joahas kyng of Israel, was Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda made kyng: syne and twenty yere olde was he, whan he was made kyng, & reigned nyne and twenty yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Ioadan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which was right in the sighte of the LORDE: yet not as his father Dauid, but enen as his father Joas did: so dyd he also: for y hye places were not put downe, but the people offred and burnt incense yet vpon the hye places. ¶ Now whan he had gotten the power of the kyngdome, he smote his seruantes which had smytte the kyng his father: but the children of þ deed slayers slewe he not, acordinge to þ which is wyrtte in the boke of the lawe of Moyses, where the LORDE hath comaunded & sayde: The fathers shal not dye for the children, & the children shal not dye for the fathers: but every one shal dye for his awne synne.

The iij. boke of the kynges.

¶ Ten thousande of the Edomites smote he also in the Sale valley, and wanne Sela in battaill, and called it Jatheel vnto this daye. ¶ Then sent Amasias messaungers vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jeho kyng of Israel, sayenge: Come hither, let vs se one another. But Joas þ kyng of Israel sent vnto Amasias the kyng of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne that is in Libanus, sent to the Cedar tre in Libanus, sayenge: Geue thy doughter vnto my sonne to wife. But a wyld beest of the felde ranne ouer y hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou hast smytte the Edomites, therefore is thine hert waken proude: Take the prayse, and byde at home: why stryuest thou for my fortune, þ thou mayest fall, and Juda with the? Howbeit Amasias consented not.

¶ Then wete Joas the kyng of Israel vp, and they sawe one another, he and Amasias the kyng of Juda at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytten before Israel, so that every one fled in to his tence. And Joas the kyng of Israel toke Amasias the kyng of Juda, the sonne of Joas the sonne of Ochosis at Beth Semes, and came to Jerusalem, and brake downe þ wall of Jerusalem from þ poire of Ephraim vnto the corner poire, even foure hundred cubites lãge: and toke all the golde and syluer, and ornaments that were founde in the house of the LORDE, and in þ treasures of the kynges house, & the children also topledge, & departed agayne to Samaria.

¶ What more there is to saye of Joas, what he dyd, and of his power, & how he foughte with Amasias the kyng of Juda, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried at Samaria amonge þ kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam his sonne was kyng in his steade.

¶ But Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kyng of Israel, sixtene yeare. ¶ What more there is to saye of Amasias, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem, but he fled vnto Lachis. And they sent for him vnto Lachis, and slewe him there. And they broughte him vpon horses, & he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers in þ cite of Dauid. And all the people of Juda toke Asarias in his sixteenth yeare, and made him kyng in steade of Amasias his father. He buylded a cloth, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kyng was fallen on slepe with his fathers.

¶ In the fyfteenth yeare of Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Joas kyng ouer Israel at Samaria, one and forty yeare. And he dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

¶ But the borders of Israel broughte he agayne from Hamath vnto þ see that lyeth in the playne felde, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE God of Israel, which he spake by his seruant Jonas þ sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Gath Ephraim. For the LORDE considered the myserable affliction of Israel, how that enen they which were shut vp and desolate, were awaye, and that there was no helper in Israel. And the LORDE sayde not that he wolde destroye the name of Israel from vnder heauẽ. And he helped the by Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

¶ What more there is to saye of Jeroboam, and all that he dyd, and of his power, how he foughte, and how broughte Damascus and Hamath agayne vnto Juda in Israel, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam fell on slepe with his fathers, with the kynges of Israel. And Zacharias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ In the seven & twentieth yeare of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, reigned Asarias the sonne of Amasias kyng of Juda: and was sixtene yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned two and fyfye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jechalia of Jerusalem. And he dyd right in the sighte of the LORDE, acordinge to all as dyd Amasias his father, sayenge that they put not downe the hye places. For the people dyd sacrifice and burnt incense yet vpon the hye places. Howbeit the LORDE smote the kyng, so that he was leper vnto his death, and dwelt in a frye house. But Joatham the kynges sonne ruled the house, and iudged the people in the londe.

What more there is to saye of Asarias, z all þ he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Asarias fell on slepe with his fathers, z was buried with his fathers in the cite of David, z Jotham his sonne was kyng in his steade.

B In the eight and thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam kyng ouer Israel at Samaria sixe monethes. And he dyd þ which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, even as his fathers dyd. He departed not from þ synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Selum the sonne of Jabes conspyred agaynst him, and smote him in the presence of þ people, and slewe him, z was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saye of Zacharias, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And this is it, þ the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Thy children shall sit vpon the seate of Israel vntyll the fourth generation. And enen so came it to passe.

Sellum the sonne of Jabes reigned in þ nyne z thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, z reigned one moneth at Samaria. For Menahem the sonne of Gadi wote vp from Thirza, z came to Samaria, and smote Sellum the sonne of Jabes at Samaria, z slewe him, and was kyng in his steade.

What more there is to saye of Sellum, z of his sedicion which he stered vp, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme dyd Menahem smyte Tiphsa, z all þ were therein, z the coastes therof from Thirza, because they wolde not let him in, and smote all their women w childre, and ryped them vp.

D In the nyne z thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Menahem the sonne of Gad to reigne ouer Israel ten yeres at Samaria, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE. As longe as he lyued, departed he not from þ synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Phul the kyng of Assiria came in to the lode. And Menahem gaue vnto Phul a thousande talentes of syluer to holde with him, and to cōfirme him in the kyngdome. And Menahem rayed vp a tare in Israel vpon the richest, fiftye Syckles of syluer vpon every man, to geue vnto þ kyng of Assiria. So the kyng of Assiria wote hom: agayne, and caried not in the londe.

the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Menahem fell on slepe w his fathers. And Pecahia his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the fiftieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecahia the sonne of Manahem to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria two yeres, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE: for he departed not fr the synnes of Jeroboam þ sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Pecah the sonne of Romelia his knyghte conspyred agaynst him, z smote him at Samaria w þ palace of the kynges house w Argob and Ariah, and fiftie men w him of þ childre of Gilead, z slewe him, z was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saye of Pecahia, z all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the two and fiftieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecah the sonne of Romelia to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria, twentye yeres, z dyd that which was euell in the sighte of þ LORDE: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

In the tyme of Pecah the kyng of Israel, came Teglatphalasser the kyng of Assiria, z toke Lion, Abel Beth Maacha, Jannoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, and all the londe of Nephthali, z caried the away in to Assiria.

And Osea the sonne of Ela conspyred agaynst Pecah the sonne of Romelia, z slayd him, and was kyng in his steade in the twelfth yere of Jotham the sonne of Osea. What more there is to saye of Pecah, z all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the seconde yere of Pecah the sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel, was Jotham the sonne of Osea kyng of Iuda, z was fyne and twentye yere olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned sixtene yeres at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Sabot. And he dyd þ which was righte in þ sighte of the LORDE. Accordyng vnto all as dyd Osea his father: for wyng that he put not downe the hye places: for the people offred z brent incense vpon the hye places. He buylded the hye pte of the house of the LORDE. What more there is to saye of Jotham, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda.

At þ same tyme beganne þ LORDE to sende Rezin þ kyng of Syria, z Pecah þ sonne of Romelia in to Iuda. And Jotham on slepe with his fathers, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of David his father. And Achas his sonne was kyng in his steade. The XVI. Chapter.

A In the seuententh yere of Pecah þ sonne of Romelia, was Achas the sonne of Jotham kyng of Iuda. Twetye yere olde was Achas whan he was made kyng, z reigned sixtene yeres at Jerusalem, z dyd not þ which was righte in the sighte of þ LORDE his God, as dyd David his father: for he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel. He caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, after the maner of the abhominacions of the heychen, whom the LORDE drewe awaye before the childre of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice, and brent incense vpon the hye places, z vpon all hilles, and amonge all grene trees. Then wente Rezin the kyng of Syria, and Pecah the sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel vnto Jerusalem to fighte agaynst it, and layed sege to Achas: but they coude not wyne it. At the same tyme dyd Rezin the kyng of Syria, bryng. Elath agayne vnto Syria, and thrust þ Jemes out of Elath. But the Syrians came z dwelt therin vnto this daye.

B Nevertheless Achas sent messaugers vnto Teglatphalasser þ kyng of Assiria, sayyng: I am thy seruant z thy sonne, come vp z helpe me out of þ hande of the kyng of Syria, z of the kyng of Israel, which are ryisen vp agaynst me. And Achas toke the syluer z golde þ was founde in þ house of þ LORDE, z in the treasures of þ kynges house, z sent a present to þ kyng of Assiria. And þ kyng of Assiria cōsented vnto him, z wente vp to Damascon, z wanne it, z caried them awaye vnto Cira, z slewe Rezin. And kyng Achas wote to Damascon for to mete Teglatphalasser þ kyng of Assiria. And whan he sawe an altare þ was at Damascon, kyng Achas sent a patrone z synilitude of þ same altare vnto the prest Vuas, euen as it was made. And Vuas the prest buylded an altare, and made it accordyng as kyng Achas had sent vnto him from Damascon, yll Achas þ kyng came from Damascon.

And whan þ kyng came from Damascon, and sawe the altare, he offred theron, z kyndled his burnt offerynges and meat offerynges vpon it, and poured his drynt offerynges theron, z caused the bloude of þ deed offerynges which he offred, to be sprentled vpon the altare. But the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, put he awaye, so that it stode not betwene the altare and the house of the LORDE, but set it in the corner on the north syde of the altare.

And Achas the kyng cōmaunded Vuas þ prest, z sayde: Vpon the grete altare shalt thou kyndle þ burnt offeryng in the mornynge, z the meat offeryng in the euenynge, z the kynges burnt offeryng z his meat offeryng, z the burnt offeryng of all the people in the londe, w their meat offeryng z drynt offerynges. And all the bloude of the burnt offerynges, z all the bloude of the other offerynges shalt thou sprentle theron: but with the brasen altare wyll I deuys what I can. Vuas the prest dyd all a cordyng as Achas the kyng cōmaunded him.

And kyng Achas brake downe the seates, and put awaye the Ketell from aboue, and toke the lauer from the brasen bullockes that were there vnder, and set it vpon þ pavement of stone. And the pulpit for the Sabbath which they had buylded in the house, and þ entree of the kynges house turned he vnto the house of the LORDE, for the kyng of Assiria sake.

What more there is to saye of Achas, what he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in þ Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Achas fell on slepe with his fathers, z was buried w his fathers in the cite of David. And Achas his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XVII. Chapter.

A In the twelveth yere of Achas the kyng of Iuda, beganne Osea þ sonne of Ela to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria nyne yeres, and dyd þ which was euell in þ sighte of the LORDE, but not as þ kynges of Israel þ were before him. Agaynst him dyd Salmanasar þ kyng of Assiria come vp. And Osea was subiecte vnto him, z gaue him trybutes. But whan the kyng of Assiria perceaued þ Osea had conspyred z sent messaugers to Sna þ kyng of Egypte, z payed not trybute yearly to þ kyng of Assiria, he beseged him z put him in prison. And the kyng of Assiria wente vp in to all the londe and to Samaria, and layed sege vnto it thre yeres. And in the nyenthye yere of Osea dyd þ kyng of Assiria wyne Samaria, and caried Israel awaye in to Assiria, and set them at Halah and at Harbor by the water Cosan, and in the cities of the Medes.

For whan the childre of Israel synned agaynst þ LORDE their God, þ broughte them out of þ londe of Egypte, from the hande of Pharaos kyng of Egypte, and serued other goddes: and walkt after the customes of the heythen, whom the LORDE had dryuen out before the children of Israel, and dyd as the kynges of Israel, and prouoked the LORDE their God, and dyd secretly the thynges that were not righte in the sighte of the LORDE their God: namely in that they buylded them hye places in all cities, both in castles and stronge cities, and set vp pilers and groves, vpon all hye hilles, and amonge all greitrees, and brent incense there in all the hye places, euen as dyd the heythen, whom the LORDE had cast out before them, and wroughte wicked thynges, wherewith they prouoked the LORDE vnto wrath, and serued the Idols, wherof the LORDE sayde vnto them: Ye shal not do soch a thyng.

And whan the LORDE testified in Israel and Iuda by all the prophetes and Seers, sayenge: Turne agayne from youre euell wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and ordynances, acordinge to all the lawe which I gaue vnto youre fathers, and that I sent vnto you by my seruantes the prophetes: they wolde not hearken, but herdened their neckes, acordinge to the hardnes of their fathers, which beleued not on the LORDE their God. Yee they despyled his ordynances and his couenaunt which he made with their fathers, and his testimonies which he witnessed amonge them, and walked in their apone vanities, and became vayne folowinge the heythen, which dwelt rounde aboute them, concernynge whom the LORDE had commaunded them, that they shulde not do as they dyd. Nevertheless they forsoke all the commaundementes of the LORDE their God, and made them two molten calves and groves, and worshipped all the host of heauen, and serued Baal, and caused their sonnes and daughters to go thoro the fyre, and medled w sorthsayers and witches, and gaue them selues ouer to do that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Then was the LORDE very wroth at Israel, and put them awaye fro his presence, so that there remayned none but onely the trybe of Iuda. Neither dyd Iuda kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE their God, but walked after the customes of Israel, which they dyd. Therefore dyd the LORDE cast awaye all the sede of Israel, and troubled them, and deliuered them in to the handes of the spoylers, tyll he had cast them out of his presence: for Israel was denyded from the house of David. And they made the a kyng, one Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which turned Israel back from the LORDE, and caused them synne so sore. Thus walked the childre of Israel in all the synnes of Jeroboam, which he had done, and departed not fro them, vntill the LORDE put Israel out of his presence, acordinge as he had spoke by all his seruantes and prophetes. So Israel was caried awaye out of their awne londe to Assyria vnto this daye.

The kyng of Assyria caused men to come fro Babilon, from Cutha, fro Aza, from Hamath and Sepharuaim, and caused them to inhabite the cities in Samaria in steade of the children of Israel. And they toke possession of Samaria, and dwelt in the same cities. But whan they begane to dwell there, they feared not the LORDE, the LORDE sent Lyons and ge the, which slewe them. And they caused to be sayde vnto the kyng of Assyria: The heythen whom thou hast broughte hither, they can not inhabite the cities of Samaria, for they knowe not the lawe of the God of the londe. Therefore hath he sent Lyons amonge them, and beholde, they slaye them, because they knowe not the ordynance of the God of the londe.

The kyng of Assyria commaunded and said: Bynge thither one of the prestes which were caried awaye fro thence, and let him go thither, and dwell there, and teach them the ordynance of the God of the londe. Then came one of the prestes which were caried awaye from Samaria, and dwelt at Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the LORDE. But every people made the goddes, and put them in the houses vpon the hye places, which the Samaritanes had made, every people in their cities wherin they dwelt. They of Babilon made Sochoch Benoth. They of Chur made Nergel. They of Hamath made Asima. They of Aza made Nibhas and Tharchak. They of Sepharuaim burne their sonnes vnto Adramelech and Anamelech, the goddes of the of Sepharuaim.

And whyle they feared the LORDE, they made prestes in the hye places of the lowest amonge them, and put them in the houses of the hye places: thus they feared the LORDE, and serued the goddes also, acordinge to the custome of every nacion, from hence they were broughte. And vnto this daye do they as in the olde fashon, so that they neither feare the LORDE, nor yet kepe their awne ordynances and lawes, after the lawe and commaundement that the LORDE commaunded the childre of Jacob, vnto whom he gaue the name of Israel, and made a couenaunt with them, and commaunded them, and sayde: Feare me other goddes, and worshippe them not, and serue them not, and offer not vnto them but the LORDE which broughte you out of the lode of Egypt, with greute power and outstretched arme, in my feare, him worshippe, and vnto him do sacrifice: and the statutes, ordynances, lawe and commaundement which he hath caused to be wyrtten vnto you, those feare ye kepe, that ye allwaye do thereafter, and feare none other goddes. And forget not the couenaunt which he hath made with you, lest ye feare other goddes. But feare the LORDE your God, he shall deliuer you from all youre enemies. Nevertheless they wolde not hearken, but dyd after their olde custome.

Thus these heythen feared the LORDE, and serued their Idols also, and so dyd their children and childers childre likewise. Euen as their fathers haue done before them, so do they vnto this daye.

The XVIII. Chapter.

In the thirde yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kyng of Israel, reigned Ezechias the sonne of Achas kyng of Iuda. And he was fyne and twentie yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned nyne and twentie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, acordinge vnto all as dyd David his father. He put awaye the hye places, and brake downe the pilers, and roted out the groves, and brake the brasen serpente, which Moses had made. For vnto that tyme had the childre of Israel brent incense vnto it. And it was called Nehushtan. He put his trust in the LORDE God of Israel, so that after him there was not his like amonge all the kynges of Iuda: neither had bene before him. He cleued vnto the LORDE, and departed not backe from him, and kepe his commaundementes, which the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And the LORDE was with him. And whither so euer he wote forth, he behaued him selfe wysely. He resisted the kyng of Assyria, and was not subdued vnto him. He smote the philistynes also vnto Gasa, and their borders, from the castles vnto the stronge cities.

In the fourth yeare of Ezechias kyng of Iuda, which was the seventh yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kyng of Israel, came Salmanasar the kyng of Assyria vpon agaynst Samaria, and layed sege vnto it, and warre it after thre yeares in the sixte yeare of Ezechias, that is in the nyenth yeare of Oseas kyng of Israel, the was Samaria wonne. And the kyng of Assyria caried Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and set them at Halah and Habor by the water Gusan, and in the cities of the Medes. And all because they hearkened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE their God, and had transgressed his couenaunt: And as for all that Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE had commaunded them, they had neither hearkened vnto any of those, nor done them.

In the fourtenth yeare of kyng Ezechias dyd Sennacherib the kyng of Assyria come vpon agaynst all the stronge cities of Iuda, and conquered them. Then sent Ezechias the kyng of Iuda to the kyng of Assyria vnto Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended, turne backe from me: I loke what thou layest vnto me, I wil beare it. The kyng of Assyria layed vnto Ezechias the kyng of Iuda, thre hundred talentes of syluer, and thirtie talentes of golde. So Ezechias gaue all the syluer which was founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same tyme brake Ezechias the kyng of Iuda the doores of the temple of the LORDE, and the plates of golde which he him selfe had caused to laye ouer them, and gaue them vnto the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Thartan, and the chiefe chamberlayne, and the chiefe butler from Lachis to kyng Ezechias with a greute power vnto Jerusalem. And they wote vp: and whan they came there, they stode styll at the conbyte by the ouer pole, which lyeth in the waye vnto the fullers londe, and called vnto the kyng. The came there forth vnto them Eliachim the sonne of Ezechias the steward, and Eobna the scribe, and Ioah the sonne of Assaph the Secretary.

And the chiefe butler sayde vnto them: Tell kyng Ezechias: Thus sayeth the greute kyng, euen the kyng of Assyria: What presumption is this that thou trustest vnto? Thinkest thou, that thou hast yet counsell and power to fight? Where vnto trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of from me? Beholde, puttest thou thy trust in this broken staffe of reede, in Egypte: which who leaneth vpon, it shall go in to his hande, and pearse it thoro. Euen so is Pharaos the kyng of Egypte vnto all them that put their trust in him. But yf ye wolde saye vnto me: We put oure trust in the LORDE our God. Is not that he, whose hye places and altars Ezechias hath take downe, and sayde vnto Iuda and Jerusalem: Before this altare which is at Jerusalem, shal ye worshippe?

Make a multitude now therefore vnto my lorde the kyng of Assyria, and I wil geue you two thousande horses, let se yf thou be able to man them: how wilt thou then endure before the smallest pryncce of my lordes subiectes? And trustest thou vnto Egypte because of the charrettes and horsemen? But thinkest thou that I came vp hither without y^e LORDE to destroye these cities? The LORDE hath commaunded me: Go vp into that lande and destroye it.

E Then sayde Eliachim the sonne of Helchia z Sobna and Joah vnto the chiefe butler: Speake to thy seruantes in the Syriac language, for we vnderstande it, and speake not vnto vs in the Jewes speche before the eares of the people that are vpon the wall. Nevertheless y^e chiefe butler sayde vnto the: Hach my lord then sent me vnto thy lord, or to the, to speake these wordes? Yee even vnto the men, which sate vpon the wall, that they maye eate their owne donge and drynke their owne stale wth you. So the chiefe butler stode and cried with loude voyce in the Jewes language, and spake and sayde: Heare the worde of the greates kynge the kynge of Assyria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias disceane you, for he is not able to deliuer you fro my hande: z let not Ezechias make you to trust in the LORDE, sayenge: The LORDE shall deliuer vs, and this cite shal not be geuen in to the handes of y^e kynge of Assyria. Solowe not ye Ezechias, for thus sayeth the kynge of Assyria:

S Do merthis blessinge, and come forth vnto me, so shal everyman eate of his vyne and of his sygge tre, and drynke of his well, tyll I come my selfe and fetch you in to a lande, which is like youre awne lode, wherein is corne, wyne, bied, vynyardes, oyle trees, oyle and hony, so shal ye lyue, and not dye. Solowe not ye Ezechias, for he disceaueth you, when he sayeth: The LORDE shal deliuer vs. Have the goddes of the heythen deliuered every one his lande from the hande of the kynge of Assyria? Where are the goddes of Semath and Arphad? Where are the goddes of Sepharuaim Zena and Iua? Have they deliuered Samaria fro my hande? Where is there one god amonge the goddes of all landes, which hath deliuered his lande fro my hande: that the LORDE shulde deliuer Jerusalem fro my hande.

As for the people, they helde their peace, and gaue him no answer: for the kynge had commaunded and sayde: Answer him nothinge. Then came Eliachim the sonne of Helchia z steward, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the secreta-

tary vnto Ezechias with rente clothes, and tolde him the wordes of the chiefe butler.

The XIX. Chapter.

Whan Ezechias z kynge herde this, he rente his clothes, z put on a sack cloth, z wente in to y^e house of the LORDE, z sent Eliachim the steward z Sobna the scribe with the eldest prestes, doctored in sack cloth, vnto the prophet Esay z sonne of Amos, z they saide vnto him: Thus sayeth Ezechias: This is a daye of trouble, z of desiaunce z blasphemy. The childen are cometo the byrth, z there is no strength to be deliuered of them. If happily the LORDE thy God wil heare all the wordes of y^e chiefe butler, whom his lord the kynge of Assyria hath sent, to blasphemie y^e lyuynge God, z to desye him with soch wordes as the LORDE thy God hath herde, therfore liste thou vp thy prayer for the remnaunt, which are yet leste behynde.

And whan Ezechias seruantes came to Esay, Esay sayde vnto them: Speake thus vnto youre lord: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Feare not thou the wordes y^e thou hast herde, wherewith the kynge of Assyrias seruantes haue blasphemed me. Beholde, I wil put him in another myrde, so y^e he shal heare tydings, z go agayne in to his awne countre, and in his awne lande wil I cause him to fall thorow the swerde.

And whan y^e chiefe butler came agayne, he founde the kynge of Assyria fightinge agaynst Libna: for he had herde that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde of Taracha the kynge of the Moians: Beholde, he is gone forth to fighte with the. Thentuned he back, z sent messaungers to Ezechias, z caused to saye vnto him: Let not thy God disceane the, on whom thou trustest z sayest: Jerusalem shal not be geue in to the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast herde what the kynges of Assyria haue done vnto all landes, z how they dāned them, z shal thou be deliuered? Have y^e goddes of y^e he then deliuered the, whom my father destroyed, as Golan, Zaran, Reseph, z the childen of Eden which were at Thalassar? What is y^e kynge of Semath, y^e kynge of Arphad, z y^e kynge of y^e cite Sepharuaim, Zena z Iua?

And whan Ezechias had receaved the letters of the messaungers and had red them, he wente vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and layed them abedde before the LORDE, made his prayer before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, thou that sytest vpo the Cherubins, thou onely art Gd amonge all y^e kyngdomes of the earth, thou hast made heauen and earth. Enclyne thine eare O LORDE, and heare open thine eyes, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Sennacherib, which hath sent hither to blasphemie the lyuynge God. It is true (O LORDE) that the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed the heythen and their lande with the swerde, and haue cast their goddes in the fyre: for they were not Goddes, but y^e worke of mens handes, wodd and stone, therfore haue they destroyed them. But now O LORDE helpe thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes vpon earth maye knowe, that thou LORDE art God alone.

The iiii. boke of the kynge.

D Then sent Esay the sonne of Amos vnto Ezechias, sayenge: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Where as thou hast made thy prayer vnto me concernynge Sennacherib y^e kynge of Assyria, I haue herde it. This is it that the LORDE hath spoken agaynst him: he hath despyed y^e and mocked the O virgin thou doughter Zion: he hath shakē his heade at the O doughter Jerusalem. Whom hast thou despyed z blasphemed? Over whom hast thou liste vp thy voyce? Against y^e holy one in Israel hast thou liste vp thine eyes: thou hast blasphemed y^e LORDE by thy messaungers, and sayde: Thou row the multitude of my charrettes haue I gone vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, vpon the sydes of Libanus. I haue hewen downe his hye Ceders and his chosen pynters, and am come to the vttemost habitation of the wode of Carmel that belongeth vnto it. I haue dygged and dronke vpon the strange waters, and with y^e soles of my feet haue I dryed vpon the See.

E But hast thou not herde how that I haue done this longe ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnynge? Now haue I caused it for to come, that contencious stronge cities mighte fall in to a waiste heape of stones, z they that dwell therein, shal be saynte, and fearfull and a shamed, and shal be as the grasse vpon the felde, and as y^e grene herbe and hay vpon the house toppes, that wythereth afore it be growne vp. I knowe thy habitation, thy out and ingoynge, and that thou ragest agaynst me. For so moch then as thou ragest agaynst me, and seynge thy presumption is come vp to myne eares, therfore will I put a ryng in thy nose, and a bydle bytt in thy lippes, and will brynge the agayne, even the same waye thou comest.

S And let this be a token vnto the O Ezechias. In this yeare eate y^e which is fallen, in the seconde yeare soch as groweth of it selfe: In y^e thirde yeare some and reape, and plante vynyardes, and eate the frute thereof. And the doughter Iuda which is escaped z remayneth, shall from hence forth take roote beneth, and beare frute aboue. For the remnaunt shal go forth from Jerusalem, z they y^e are escaped, shal go out fro mount Sion. The gelousy of the LORDE Zebaoth shal brynge this to passe.

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE concernynge y^e kynge of the Assyrians: he shal not come in to this cite, and shal shure no arrowe therein, neher shal there come eny shyld before it, neher shal he dygge eny backe aboute it, but shal go agayne the waye that he came, and shal not come in to this cite, sayeth the LORDE: and I will defende this cite, to helpe it for myne awne sake, and for my seruant Dauids sake.

And in the same nighte wente the angell of the LORDE, and smote in the hoost of the Assyrians, an hundred and fyue and foure score thousande men. And whan they gate them vp in the moynynge, beholde, all laye full of deede carcases. So Sennacherib the kynge of Assyria brake vp, and departed, and returned, and abode at Ninive. And as he worshipped in y^e house of Nisrach his god, his awne sonnes Adramalech and Sarazer smote him with the stroorde, and fled in to y^e lande of Ararat. And Asarhadon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XX. Chapter.

At that tyme was Ezechias deedesicke. And the prophet Esay z sonne of Amos, came to him, z sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth y^e LORDE: Set thine house in order for thou shalt dye z not lyue. And he turned, his face to the wall, and prayed vnto y^e LORDE, and sayde: Remembre (O LORDE) that I haue walked faithfully before the, z with a perfecte hert, and haue done y^e which is good in thy syghte. And Ezechias wepte sore. But whan Esay was not gone out of halfe the cite, y^e worde of y^e LORDE came to him, z sayde: Turne back, z tell Ezechias y^e pryncce of my people: Thus sayeth y^e LORDE God of thy father Dauid: I haue herde thy praier, z considered y^e teares. Beholde, I wil heale y^e: on the thirde daye shalt thou go in to y^e house of the LORDE, z fiftene yeares wil I adde vnto y^e life, z will deliuer the z this cite from the kynge of Assyria, z this cite wil I defende for myne awne sake, and for my seruant Dauids sake. And Esay sayde: But ge hicher a quantite of fygges. And whan they broughe them, they layed them vpon the soze, and it was healed.

Ezechias sayde vnto Esay: Which is þe token, that the LORDE wyll heale me, and that I shal go vp in to the house of þe LORDE on the thirde daye? Esay sayde: This to ten shalt thou haue of the LORDE, that the LORDE shal do acordynge as he hath sayde. Shall the shadowe go ten degrees forward, or shal it turne ten degrees backward? Ezechias sayde: It is an easy thinge for the shadowe to go ten degrees downward, þe is not my mynde: but that it go ten degrees backward. Then cryed the prophet Esay vnto the LORDE, and the shadowe wente backe ten degrees in Achas Wyall, which he was descended afore.

At the same tyme Merodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babilon, sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he had herde that Ezechias had bene sicke. And Ezechias reioysed with them, and shewed them all the house of robes, the syluer, golde, spyes, and the best oyle, and the house of ordinaunce, and all that was founde in his treasures. There was nothynge in his house and in all his domynion, but Ezechias shewed it them.

Then came Esay the prophet vnto kynge Ezechias, and sayde vnto him: What haue these men sayde? and whence came they vnto the? Ezechias sayde: They came to me out of a farre countre, even from Babilon. He sayde: What haue they sene in thyne house? Ezechias sayde: They haue sene all that is in my house, and there is nothynge in my treasoure but I haue shewed it them. Then sayde Esay vnto Ezechias: Heare the wordes of the LORDE: Beholde, the tyme cometh, that it shall all be caryed awaye vnto Babilon, and whatsoener thy fathers haue layed vp vnto this daye, and there shall nothynge be left, sayeth the LORDE. And the children which come of the, when thou shalt beget, shall be taken awaye, to be chamberlaynes in the kynge of Babilons palace. Ezechias sayde vnto Esay: It is good that the LORDE hath spoken. And he sayde moore: Let there be peace yet and faithfulness in my tyme.

What more there is to saye of Ezechias, and all his power, and what he dyd, and of the pole and water condyte, wher by he conueyed water in to the cite, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda.

And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fa-

there, and Manasses his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXI. Chapter.

Manasses was twelue yeare olde, whan he was made kynge, and reigned syue and systye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Sephura. And he dyd that which was euell in þe sight of the LORDE (euen after the abheminacion of the heithen, whom the LORDE expelled before the children of Israel) and wared forwarde, and builded vp the hye places which his fathur Ezechias had destroyed, and set vp Baals altares, and made grones (as Achab the kynge of Israel dyd) and worshipped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. And builded altares in the LORDES house, wherof the LORDE sayde: I wyll see my name at Jerusalem. And in both the courttes of the house of the LORDE builded he altares vnto all the hoost of heauē. And caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, and regarded bydes cryenge and tokens, and maynteyned soothsayers, and expounders of tokens, and so moch dyd he of this which was euell in the sight of the LORDE, that he prouoked him vnto wiath.

A grone Idol also which he had made, set he in the house, wherof the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: In this house, and at Jerusalem, which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, wil I see my name for ever, and wyl not cause þe foze of Israel to be remoued any more from the londe, which I gaue vnto their fathur, yee so that they obserue and do acordynge vnto all that I haue charged them, and after all the lawe that my seruauit Moyses commaunded them. Nevertheless they wolde not hearken, but Manasses disceined them, so þe they dyd worse then the heithen, whom the LORDE expelled before þe children of Israel.

Then spake the LORDE by his seruauit the prophetes, and saide: Because that Manasse the kynge of Juda hath gone these abhominacions, which are worse then all þe abhominacions that the Amorites haue done which were before them, and hath caused Iuda also to synne agaynst their God, therefore thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, I wyll brynge soch a plage vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that who so euer heareth it, both his eares shal glowe, and our Jerusalem wyll I stretch forth the lyne of Samaria, and the weighte of the house of Achab, and wyll wypp out Jerusalem, euen as we wyppeth a platter, and I wyl quench them.

The iiii. boke of the kynges.

And þe remnant of myne inheritaunce wil I cast out, and scatter them abroad, and wil deliuer them in to the handes of their enemies, to be spoyled and rent of all their enemies: because they haue done þe which is euell in my sight, and haue prouoked me vnto wiath, sence the daye that I broughe their fathers out of Egypte, vnto this daye. Manasses also shed exceding much innocent bloude, so long tyll Jerusalem was full on every syde, with out the synnes wherwith he caused Iuda to synne, so þe they dyd that which was euell in the sight of the LORDE.

What more there is to saie of Manasses, and all that he dyd, and his synnes which he commytted, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the garden besyde his house, namely, in the garden of Osa, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twenty yeare olde was Amon whan he was made kynge, and he reigned two yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesulmeth, þe doughter of Haras of Jarchi, and he dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, as Manasses his fathur had done, and walked in all the waye which his fathur walked, and serued the Idols which his fathur had serued, and worshipped them, and forsoke the LORDE the God of his fathur, and walked not in the waye of the LORDE.

And his seruantes conspyred agaynst Amon, and slewe the kynge in his house. But the people of the londe slewe all them þe had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people of the londe made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade. As for other thinges that Amon dyd, beholde, they are wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And he was buried in his graue in Osa's garde. And Josias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXII. Chapter.

Josias was eight yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned one and thirtie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedida the doughter of Adaia of Bascath, and he dyd that which was righte in þe sight of the LORDE, and walked in all þe waye of Dauid his fathur, and turned not asyde, neether to the righte hande nor to the left.

And in the eighteenth yeare of kynge Josias, the kynge sent Saphan þe sonne of Asaia the sonne of Mesulam the scribe, in to þe house of the LORDE, and sayde: Go vp to Helchias the hye prest, that the money that is brought vnto þe house of þe LORDE (which the tresholde keepers haue gathered of þe people) maye be deliuered vnto them, that they maye geue it to the workmen which are appoynted in the house of the LORDE, and to geue it vnto the labourers in the house (þe they maye repayre the decaye of the house) namely, vnto the carpenters, and buylders, and masons, and to them þe bie timber and fre stone for the repainge of the house: but so þe there be no accomptes taken of them concernynge the money, that is vnder their hande, but þe they deale withall vpon credence.

And Helchias þe prest sayde vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And Helchias gaue the boke vnto Saphan, that he might reade it. And Saphan the scribe bare it vnto the kynge, and brought him worde agayne, and sayde: Thy seruantes haue gathered together þe money þe was founde in the house, and haue deliuered it vnto the workmen, which are appoynted in þe house of the LORDE. And Saphan the scribe tolde the kynge and sayde: Helchias the prest hath deliuered me a boke, and Saphan red it before the kynge.

But whan the kynge herde the wordes of the boke of lawe, he rent his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Helchias the prest, and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scribe, and Asaia þe kynges seruante, and sayde: Go ye waye and are counsell at the LORDE for me, for the people, and for all Juda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is founde: for greate is the wiath of the LORDE that is kyndled ouer vs, because of fathers haue not hertened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do all that is wyrtten vnto vs therein.

Then wente Helchias the prest, and Ahicam, Achbor, Saphan and Asaia vnto Gelda the prophetisse þe wyfe of Sellu the sonne of Thecua the sonne of Harham the keeper of þe clothes, and she dwelt at Jerusalem in the seconde porte, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth þe LORDE God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you vnto me, Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wil brynge euell vpon this place, and the inhabitants therof, euen all the wordes of þe lawe which the kynge hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, and bent in-cense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me vnto wiath with all the workes of their handes. Therefore is my wiath kyndled agaynst this cite, and shall not be quenched.

D But tell this vnto the kyng of Iuda, which hath sent you to are counsell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Because thine here is not departed fro the wordes which thou hast herde, and hast humbled thyselfe before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynst this place and the inhabitants therof (how that they shall become a very desolacion and curse) I haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: therefore wyll I gather the vnto thy fathers, so that thou shalt be put in to thy graue in peace, and thine eyes shall not see all the euill that I wyll bringe vpon this place. And they broughte the kynges wordes agayne.

The XXIII. Chapter.

A And the kyng sent forth, and all the Elders in Iuda and Jerusalem resorted vnto him, and the kyng wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, the prestes and prophetes and all the people both small and greete, and all the wordes of the boke of the conuauent that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And the kyng stode vpon a piler, and made a conuauent before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, and to kepe his commaundementes, witnesses, and ordinaunces with all their hert and with all their soule, that they shulde set vp the wordes of this conuauent, which are wyrtten in this boke. And all the people entred in to the conuauent.

And the kyng commaunded Helchias the hye prest, and the prestes of the secōde course, and the keepers of the thresholde, that they shulde put out of the temple all the vessels which were made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the hoost of heauen, and he brennt them without Jerusalem in the valley of Cedron, and the dust of them was carryed vnto Bethel.

And he put downe the Remurims, whiche

the kynges of Iuda had founded, to burn incense vpon the hye places, in the cities of Iuda, and aboute Jerusalem. He put downe also them that brennt incense vnto Baal, to the Sonne, and the Mōne, and the twoluen kens, and to all that hoost of heauen. And the grove caused he to be carryed from the bank of the LORDE out of Jerusalem in to the valley of Cedron, and brennt it in the valley of Cedron, and made it to dust, and cast the dust vpon the graues of the comen people. And he brake downe the whorkepers houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherin the women made mansions for the grove.

And he caused all the prestes for to come out of the cities of Iuda, and suspended the hye places, where the prestes brennt incense, from Geba vnto Berseba. And brake downe the hye places in the portes, that were at the dore of the gate of Josua, and shreue of the dore, at the lefte hande as one goeth to the cite porte. Yet had not the prestes of the hye places offered vpon the altare of the LORDE in Jerusalem, but ate vleuended bread among their brethren.

He suspended Tophet also in the valley of the children of Ennon, that noman shulde cause his sonne or his doughter to go there, and fyre vnto Moloch. And he put downe the hoists, which the kynges of Iuda had set vnto the Sonne, at the intringe in to the house of the LORDE, besyde the chest of Acham Melech the chamberlayne which was at Paruanim, and the charrettes of the Sonne brennt he with fyre, and the altares vpon the rose of Achabs perler, which the kynges of Iuda had made. And the altares, which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the LORDE, dyd the kyng brake downe. And ramed from thence, and cast the dust of them in to the broke Cedron.

And the hye places that were before Jerusalem on the righte hande of Mount Mōn, which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buylded vnto Astaroth the abhominacion of Sidon, and to Camos the abhominacion of Moab, and to Molech the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, those dyd the kyng suspende, and brake the pilers, and rote out the groves, and fylled their places with mens bones.

And the altare at Bethel, and the hye place that Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat made, which caused Israel to synne, the sam altare brake he downe, and the hye place, and brennt the hye place, and made it to dust, and brennt vpon the grove. And Josias turned aboute, and save the graues that were vpon the mount, and caused the bones to the set out of the graues, and brennt them vpon the altare, and suspended it, acordyng to the wordes of the LORDE, which the man of God cryed out, that tolde this before.

And he sayde: What titell is this, that I se here? And the men of the cite sayde vnto him: It is the graue of the man of God, which came from Iuda, and cried out this that thou hast done agaynst the altare of Bethel. And he sayde: Let him lye, no man touch his bones. Thus were his bones deliuered with the bones of the prophet that came from Samaria.

He put away also all the houses of the hye places in the cities of Samaria (which the kynges of Israel had made to prouoke the LORDE vnto wrath) and dyd with them acordyng to all as he had done at Bethel. And all the prestes of the hye places that were there, offered he vpon the altares, and so burnt he mens bones thereon, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

And the kyng commaunded the people, and sayde: Kepe Easter vnto the LORDE your God, as it is wyrtten in the boke of this conuauent. For there was no Easter so kept as this, sence the tyme of the Judges which iudged Israel, and in all the tymes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Iuda: but in the eighteenth yere of kyng Josias, was this Easter kept vnto the LORDE at Jerusalem.

And Josias expelled all soothsayers, expounders of tokes, ymages and Idols, and all the abhominacions which were sene in the londe of Iuda and at Jerusalem, that he mighte set vp the wordes of the lawe, which were wyrtten in the boke, that Helchias the prest foude in the house of the LORDE.

His like was no kyng before him, which so conuerted vnto the LORDE with all his hert, with all his soule, and with all his strength, acordyng to all the lawe of Moyses. And after him came there no such another. Yet turned not the LORDE from the indignacion of his greete wrath, wherewith he was displeased ouer Iuda, because of all the prouocation wherewith Manasses had prouoked him. And the LORDE sayde: I wil put Iuda out of my prefence also, even as I haue put away Israel: and this cite which I haue chosen, wyll I cast out, namely, Jerusalem, and the house wherof I sayde: My name shalbe there. What more there is to saye of Josias, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda.

In his tyme were Pharaos Necho the kyng of Assyria by the water Euphrates. But kyng Josias wente agaynst him, and dyed at Megiddo, whā he had sene him. And his seruantes caried him deed fro Megiddo, and brought him to Jerusalem, and buryed him in his graue. And the people of the londe toke Josias the sonne of Josias, and anoynted him, and made him kyng in his fathers steade.

Thre and twenty yere olde was Josias whā he was made kyng, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamutal the doughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd that which was euell in the sight of the LORDE, even as his fathers had done. But Pharaos Necho toke him prisoner of Rebla in the londe of Hamath, and he shulde not reigne at Jerusalem: and rayed a tax vpon the londe, an hundredth selēres of siluer, and one talente of golde. And Pharaos Necho made Eliachim the sonne of Josias kyng in his fathers Josias steade, and turned his name Joachim. But Josias toke he, and brought him in to Egypte where he dyed. And Joachim gaue the siluer and golde vnto Pharaos, yet taxed he the londe, and he mighte geue the siluer acordyng to Pharaos commaundement. Euerie one amonge the people in the londe taxed he after his abilitie in siluer and golde, to geue it vnto Pharaos. Syne and twenty yere olde was Joachim whā he was made kyng, and reigned eleven yeres at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Sebidā the doughter of Pebaia of Rama, and he dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, even as his fathers had done.

The XXIII. Chapter.

In his tyme came vp Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon, and Joachim was in subieccion vnto him iij. yere. And he turned back, and rebelled agaynst him. And the LORDE sent men of warre vpon him out of Chaldea, out of Syria, out of Moab, and fro amonge the childre of Ammon, and caused them for to come in to Iuda, to destruye it acordyng to the wordes of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. It fortuned euē so vnto Iuda, acordyng to the wordes of the LORDE, that he wolde put them away from his prefence, because of the synnes of Manasses which he dyd, and because of the innocent bloude that he shed. And he fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, therfore wolde not the LORDE be reconcyled.

What more there is to saye of Joachim, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Joachim fell on slepe with his fathers. And Joachim his sonne was kyng in his steade. And the kyng of Egypte came nomore out of his londe: for the kyng of Babilon had conquered all that was the kyng of Egypte, from the ryuer of Egypte vnto the water Euphrates. Eightene yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kyng, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Nebustha the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, even as his father had done.

At the same tyme wente the seruantes of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babilon vnto Jerusalem, and came vpon the cyte with ordinaunce of warre. And whan Nabuchodonosor and his seruantes came to the cite they layed sege vnto it. But Joachim the kyng of Juda wente forth to the kyng of Babilon with his mother, with his seruantes, with his rulers and chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babilon receaved him in the eighte yere of his reigne.

And he toke forth fro thence all the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and brake all the golden vessel that Salomon the kyng of Israel had made in the house of the LORDE (accordynge as the LORDE had sayde) and caryed awaye all Jerusalem, all the rulers, all the mightie men, euen thousande prisoners, and all the carpenters, and all the smithes, and leste none be hynde but the poore people of the londe.

And he caryed Joachim awaye vnto Babilon, and the kynges mother, the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes: and the mightie men of the londe led he awaye prisoners also from Jerusalem vnto Babilon, and seven thousande of the best men, and a thousande carpenters and smithes, and all the stronge men of warre. And the kyng of Babilon made Matania his vncle kyng in his steade, and turned his name Sedechias.

One and twentye yere olde was Sedechias, whan he was made kyng, and reigned elenen yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Amichal the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, euē as Joachim dyd: for thus fortunēd it vnto Jerusalem thow the wrath of the LORDE, tyll he had cast them out fro his presence. And Sedechias fell awaye fro the kyng of Babilon.

The XXV. Chapter.

And it fortunēd, that in the nyenth yere of his reigne, vpon the tenth day of the tenth moneth, Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon came with all his power agaynst Jerusalem. And they layed sege vnto it, and buylded stronge holdes rounde aboute it. Thus was the cite besiged vnto the elcuenth yere of kyng Sedechias. But on the nyenth daye of the fourth moneth was the hunger so stronge in the cite, that the people of the londe had nothinge to eat. And the cite was broken vp, and all the men of warre fled in the night by the waye of the porte betwene the two walles, which goeth to the kynges garde. But the Caldees layed aboute the cite. And he fled by the waye to the playne felde. Neuertheles the power of the Caldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the plaine felde of Jericho: and all the men of warre that were with him, were scattered abode from him. And they toke the kyng, and led him vp to the kyng of Babilon vnto Reblatha. And he gaue iudgment vpon him. And they slewe Ezechias child before his eyes, and put out Sedechias eyes, and bounde him with cheynes, and caryed him vnto Babilon.

Vpon the seventh daye of the fyfth moneth, that is the nineteenth yere of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babilon, came Nabusaradan the chiefe captayne the kyng of Babilons seruante, vnto Jerusalem, and burnt the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all the houses at Jerusalem, and all the grete houses burnt he with fyre. And all the power of the Caldees which was with the chiefe captayne, brake downe the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. As for the other people that yet were leste in the cite, and were left vnto the kyng of Babilon, and the other men people, Nabusaradan the chiefe captayne caryed them awaye. And of the poore people dyd the chiefe captayne leaue in the cite to be wyne gardeners and plowmen.

But the brasen pilers in the house of the

The iiii. boke of the kynges.

LORDE, and the seates, and the brasen laver that was in the house of the LORDE, dyd the Caldees brake downe, and caryed the metall vnto Babilon. And the pottes, shouels, fleschetes, spones, and all the brasen vessel that was occupied in the seruyce, caryed they awaye. And the chiefe captayne toke awaye the censours and basins that were of golde and syluer, two pilers, one lauer, and the seates that Salomon had made for the house of the LORDE. The metall of all these ornaments coulde not be weyed. Eightene cubytes hye was one piler, and the knoppe thereon was of brasen also, and the cubytes hye: and the rope and the pomgranates vpon the knoppe rounde aboute, were all of brasen. After the same maner was the other piler also with the rope.

And the chiefe captayne toke Seraia the priest of the first course, and the chiefe doctores, and one chamberlayne out of the cite, which was appoynted ouer the men of warre: and five men that were euer before the kyng, which were founde in the cite: and Sophar the captayne, which taught the people of the londe to fighte: and thre score men of the people of the londe, that were founde in the cite: these dyd Nabusaradan the chiefe captayne take, and broughte them to the kyng of Babilon vnto Reblatha. And the kyng of Babilon slewe them at Reblatha in the londe of hemath. Thus was Juda caryed awaye out of his awne londe. But ouer the remnant of the people in the londe of Juda, whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon leste behynde, he set Godolias the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan. Now whan all the captaynes of the soudyers, and the men of warre, that the kyng of Babilon had made Godolias gouernoure, they came to Godolias vnto Mispa, namely, Ismael the sonne of Nathanias, and Johanna the sonne of Carea, and Seraia the sonne of Tanhome the Metrophatite, and Iesaias the sonne of Maechati with their men. And Godolias swore vnto them and to their men, and sayde vnto them: Feare not ye the officers of the Caldees, cary in the londe, and submytte youre selues vnto the kyng of Babilon, and ye shal prospere. But in the seventh moneth came Ismael the sonne of Nathanias the sonne of Elisama (of the kynges kynred) and ten men with him, and slewe Godolias, and the Jewes and Caldees that were with him at Mispa. Then all the people gat them vp, both small and grete, and the captaynes of the hoost, and came in to Egypte, for they were afraied of the Caldees.

The xxv. Chap. 35. lxxix.

Howbeit in the seven and thirtieth yere after that Joachim the kyng of Juda was caryed awaye on the seven and twenty daye of the twelveth moneth, Evilmerodach the kyng of Babilon in the first yere of his reigne, lifte vp the heade of Joachim the kyng of Juda out of prison, and spake louingly vnto him, and set his trene aboue the tynes of the kynges that were with him at Babilon, and chaunged the clothes of his captivitye. And he ate allwaye before him as long as he lyued. And he appoynted him his porcion, which was euer geue him daylie of the kyng, as long as he lyued.

Nadab helped them, and deliuered 3 Agatrites in to their handes, and all that was wth them: for they cried vnto God in 3 battayll. And he herde them, because they put their trust in him. And they caried awaye their cattell, fyue thousande Camels, two hundred 2 fyfye thousande shepe, two thousande Asses, and an hundred thousande soules of men. For there were many wounded, for why: the battayll was of God. And they dwelt in their steade, vntyll the tyme that they were caried awaye prisoners.

D The childre of the halfe trybe of Manasse dwelt in 3 londe: from Basan south vntyll Baal Hermon 2 Seuir, and mount Hermon: for they were many. And these were 3 heades of the house of their fathers, Ephraim, Jessei, Eliel, Asriel, Jeremia, Hodaneia, Jahdiel, mightie valeaunt men, 2 awncient heades in the house of their fathers.

Re. 13. d And whā they synned agaynst 3 God of their fathers, and wente amhozyng after the goddes of the people of the londe, (whom God had destroyed before them) the God of Israel stered vp the spiete of Phul the kynge of Assiria, and the spiete of Teglatphalassar the kynge of Assiria, and led awaye the Rubenites, Gadites, and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, and broughte the vnto Halah, and Habor, and Hara, and to the water of Golan vnto this daye.

The vii. Chapter.

A The children of Leui were, Gerson, Rahath and Merari. The childre of Rahath were, Amram, Jezeher, Hebion and Vsiel. The children of Amram were, Aaron, Moses and Miriam. The children of Aars were, Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar and Jethamar. Eleasar begat Phineas. Phineas begat Abisua. Abisua begat Buti. Buti begat Vsi. Vsi begat Serahia. Serahia begat Meraioth. Meraioth begat Amaria. Amaria begat Achitob. Achitob begat Sadoc. Sadoc begat Ahimaas. Ahimaas begat Asaria. Asaria begat Johanan. Johanan begat Asaria: for he was prest in the house 3 Salomon buylded at Jerusalem. Asaria begat Amaria. Amaria begat Achitob. Achitob begat Zadock. Zadock begat Sallum. Sallum begat Helchias. Helchias begat Asaria. Asaria begat Seraia. Seraia begat Josedece. But Josedece was caried awaye whā the LORDE caused Juda 2 Jerusalem to be led awaye captyue by Nabuchodonosor.

The children of Leui are these: Gerson, Rahath and Merari. These are the names of the children of Gerson: Libni and Simeci.

The names of the childre of Rahath are these: Amram, Jezeher, Hebion and Vsiel. The names of the children of Merari are: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynreds of the Leuites amonge their householdes.

Gersons sonne was Libni, whose sonne was Jahath, whose sonne was Simeci, whose sonne was Joah, whose sonne was Jode, whose sonne was Serah, whose sonne was Jeathrai. Rahaths sonne was Aminadab, whose sonne was Corah, whose sonne was Assir, whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Abiasaph, whose sonne was Assir, whose sonne was Thahath, whose sonne was Vriel, whose sonne was Vsiel, whose sonne was

The childre of Elcana were, Ama (Saul) 2 Ahimoth, whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Elcana of Zaph, whose sonne was Mahath, whose sonne was Eliab, whose sonne was Jeroham, whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Samuel. Whose first borne sonnes were Seni and Abia.

Gen. 10. b The children of Nephtali were: Jahziel, Guni, Jezer and Sallum, the children of Bilha.

Isa. 17. a The children of Manasses are these: Esriel, whom his concubine Aramiel dyd beare. But (first) begat he Machir the father of Gilead. And Machir gaue wyues vnto Zupim & Supim, & their sisters name was Maacha. His secōde sonnes name was Zelaphehad. And Zelaphehad had daughters.

Num. 26 d 17. a. 33. a And Maacha & wife of Machir bare a sonne whose name was Phares, & his brothers name was Sares, and his sonnes were Olam and Rakem. Olam's sonne was Bedam. These are the children of Gilead & sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasses. And his sister Molechech bare Jshud, Abieser and Mahela. And Semida had these children: Ahean, Sichein, Lithi and Amam.

The children of Ephraim were these: Sathelah, whose sonne was Bered, whose sonne was Thabath, whose sonne was Eleada, whose sonne was Thabath, whose sonne was Sabad, whose sonne was Sathelah, whose sonne was Esar and Elead. And the men of Gath, that dwelt in the londe, slew them, because they were gone downe to take their catell. And their father Ephraim mourned for them a longe season, and his brethren came to comforte him.

And he wente in to his wife, which conceived, and bare a sonne, whom he called Bua, because of the aduersite that was in his house. His daughter was Seera, which builded the lower and vpper Bethoron, & Vsen Seera. Whose sonne was Rephad & Reseph, whose sonne was Thelah, whose sonne was Thahan, whose sonne was Ladan, whose sonne was Ammihud, whose sonne was Elisama, whose sonne was Nun, whose sonne was Josia.

And their substance & dwellinge was, Bethel and the villages therof, and toward the East syde of Naeran, and toward the west parte of Geser and y villages therof. Sechem and hir villages vnto Aia and hir villages. And by the children of Manasses, Bethsean and y villages therof. Thirnach and the villages therof. Doi and the villages therof. In these dwelt the children of Joseph the sonne of Israel.

The children of Asser were these: Jemua, Jesua, Jesui, Bua and Serah their sister. The children of Bua were, Heber and Melchiel, this is y father of Birsamuth. Heber begat Japhet, Somor, Zethan, and Saa their sister. The childre of Japhlet were, Passah, Bimehal and Asuath, these were the childre of Japhlet. The childre of Somer were, Abi, Rahag, Jehuba, and Aram. And the children of his brother Hele were, Zophah, Jemua, Seles and Amal. The children of Zophah were, Suah, Zarnepher, Sual, Beri, Jemua, Bezer, Hod, Sama, Silsa, Jethran and Bera. The children of Jether were, Jephun, Phispa and Ara. The children of Ulla were Arad, Zaniel and Kizia.

All these were the children of Asser, heades in the house of their fathers, chosen out, valeaunt men, and heades amonge the princes, and were mustered to the warre for to fighte, in their nombre, sixe and twentye thousande men.

The IX. Chapter.

Ben Jamin begat Bela his first sonne, Asbal the secōde, Ahiah y thirde, Noah the fourth, Rapha the fyfth. And Bela had children: Gera, Abihud, Abisua, Neman, Ahoah, Gera, Sphuphan and Huram.

These are Ephraim's children, which were heades of the fathers amonge the cities at Gaba, and were awaye vnto Manahash, namely Naeman, Abia and Gera, the same carryed them awaye, and begat Vsa and Abihud. And Scharaim (whan he had sent them awaye) begat children in the londe of Moab of Husim and Bacra his wyues. And of these his wyfe begat he Jobab, Zibea, Miska, Malcham, Juss, Sachia, and Mirma, these are his children, heades of the fathers.

Of Husim begat he Abitob and Elpaal. The childre of Elpaal were: Eber, Misam and Samed. The same buylded Ono & Lod and the villages therof. And Bua and Sima were heades of the fathers amonge the cities at Aialon. These chased awaye the Gath. His brethren Sasat, Jeremoth, Sebada, Arad, Aber, Michael, Jespa and Jeha, these are the children of Bua. Sebadi Mesullam, Ezechi, Heber, Jesmerai, Jesia, Joab, these are y childre of Elpaal. Jatin, Sichei, Sabdi, Elocnai, Zulehai, Eliel, Adia, Buaia and Simrach, these are the children of Sema. Jespan, Eber, Eliel, Abdon, Sichi, Hanan, Hanania, Elan, Enthorhia, Jephdaia and Penuel, these are the children of Sasat. Samserai, Secharia, Achalia, Jaseria, Elia and Sichi, these are the children of Jeroham. These are the heades of the fathers of their kynreds, which dwelt at Jerusalem.

But at Gibeon dwelt, the father of Gibeon, & his wyues name was Maacha, and his first sonne was Abdon, Zur, Cis, Baal, Nadab, Gedoi, Abio and Secher. Melchior begat Simea. And they dwelt over agaynst their brethren at Jerusalem with theirs. Mer begat Cis. Cis begat Saul. Saul begat Jonathas, Melchisua, Abmadab and Esbaal. The sonne of Jonathas was Meribaal. Meribaal begat Michah. The children of Michah were: Pichon, Melech, Thaerea and Abas. Abas begat Joabba. Joabba begat Alemeth, Asmaueth and Simri. Simri begat Moza. Moza begat Binea, whose sonne was Rapha, whose sonne was Eleas, whose sonne was Azel. Azel had sixe sonnes, whose names were: Esricam, Bochui, Jesmael, Searia, Abadia, Hanan, all these were the sonnes of Azel.

The children of Esai his brother were: Olam his first sonne, Juss the secōde, Eliphe the thirde. The children of Olam were valeaunt men, and coulde handell bowes, and had many sonnes, and sonnes sonnes an hundred and fyfye. All these are of the children of Ben Jamin.

The X. Chapter.

And all Israel were nombred: and beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda, and now are they carryed awaye vnto Babilon for their synne, even they y afore dwelt in their possessions and cities, namely Israel, y prestes, Levites and Rechimim. But at Jerusalem dwelt certayne of the children of Juda, some of the children of Ben Jamin, some of the children of Ephraim and of Manasses. Namely of the children of Phares the sonne of Juda, was Vchai the sonne of Ammi, the sonne of Amri, the sonne of Imri, the sonne of Bani. Of Soloni, Asaia y first sonne, and his other sonnes. Of the children of Serah, Jeguel and his brethren, sixe hundred, foure score and ten.

Of the children of Ben Jamin, Sallu y sonne of Mesullam, the sonne of Hodania, y sonne of Asinua. And Jebneia the sonne of Jeroham. And Ela the sonne of Vsi the sonne of Michah. And Mesullam the sonne of Sephatia the sonne of Reguel the sonne of Jebneia. And their brethren in their kynreds nyne hundred and fyve and fyfye. All these were heades of the fathers in the house of their fathers.

Of the prestes: Jedaia, Joiarib, Jachim, And Asaria the sonne of Helchia, the sonne of Mesullam, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Achitob, pryncce in the house of God. And Adia the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Paschur, the sonne of Malchia. And Maesai the sonne of Abiel the sonne of Jachera, the sonne of Mesullam, the sonne of Mesylmeth, the sonne of Immer. And their brethren heades in the house of their fathers a thousande, seven hundred and thre score valeaunt men in executynge the offyce in the house of God.

Of the Levites of the children of Merari, Semaia the sonne of Hasub, the sonne of Asitani, the sonne of Hasabia. And Batbakar the carpenter and Galal. And Marhamia y sonne of Michah y sonne of Sichi, the sonne of Assaph. And Obadia the sonne of Semaia, the sonne of Galal, y sonne of Elkana, which dwelt in the villages of the Teropharites.

The porters were: Sallum, Acub, Talmon, Ahiman, with their brethren, and Sallum the chiefe: for hitherto had the children of Levi kepte the watch at the east syde of the kynges gate by armies. And Sallum the sonne of Core, the sonne of Abiasaph, the sonne of Corah, and his brethren of his fathers house.

The Corahytes were in the worke of the seruyce, to kepe the thresholds of the Tabernacle: and their fathers in the hoost of the LORDE, to kepe the intrance. Phineas the sonne of Eleasar was the pryncce over them, because the LORDE had bene with him before. Sacharia the sonne of Meselania was keeper at the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse.

All these were chosen out to be keepers of the thresholds even two hundred and twolve. These were nombred in their villages. And David and Samuel the Seer forsook them thorow their faith, that they and their children shulde kepe the house of the LORDE, namely to kepe the watch of y house of the Tabernacle.

These dorekeepers were appointed toward the foure wyntes, toward the East, toward the West, toward the North, toward be 3 South. But their brethren were in their villages, that they might come all waye on the seventh daye to be with them: for vnto these foure maner of these doctepers were the Levites committed. And they had the oversight of the chestes and treasures in 3 house of God.

In the night season also remayned they aboute the house of God: for their deweye was to geue attendaunce to open every morninge. And some of them had the euerfighe of the mynistrynge vessell: for they bare the vessell out and in. And some of the were appointed over the vessell, and ouer all the holy vessell, ouer the fine wheate floure, ouer 3 wyne, ouer the oile, ouer the frankencense, ouer the sweete odoures: but some of 3 prestes children made the incense.

Ex. 10, d Vnto Mathias one of the Levites the first sonne of Salum the Corabite, were 3 paniers comyted. And certayne of the Rahabites their brethren were appointed ouer the shewbied, to prepare it every Sabbath daye.

These are the heades of the singers amonge the fathers of the Levites chosen out ouer the chestes: for daye and night were they in worke withall. These are the heades of 3 fathers amonge 3 Levites in their kindreds. These dwelt at Jerusalem.

1 Par. 9, d At Gibeon dwelt Jeiel the father of Gibeon, his wiues name was Maecha, and his first sonne Abdon, Sur, Cis, Baal, Ner, Nadab, Gedor, Ahai, Sacharia, Mikloth. Mikloth begat Simeam. And they dwelt also aboute their brethren at Jerusalem amonge theirs. Ner begat Cis, Cis begat Saul, Saul begat Jonathas, Malchisa, Abinadab, Elbaal. The sonne of Jonathas was Meribaal. Meribaal begat Micha. The children of Micha were, Pithon, Melech and Thaherca. Ahas begat Jaera, Jaera begat Alemeth, Asmauth and Simri. Simri begat Moza. Moza begat Binea, whose sonne was Raphaia, whose sonne was Eleasa, whose sonne was Azel. Azel had sixe sonnes, whose names were: Asrikam, Bochim, Jesmael, Searia, Obadia, Zanan. These are the children of Azel.

The XI. Chapter.

1 Re. 11, 2 The Philistynes foughte agaynst Israel. And they of Israel fled before the Philistynes, and 3 wounded fell vpon mount Gilboa. And the Philistynes followed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and smote Jonathas, Abinadab and Malchisa 3 sonnes of Saul. And the battayll was sore a-gaynst Saul. And the archers came vpon him, so that he was wounded of the arches. Then sayde Saul vnto his weapenbearer. Drawe out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not, and deale shamefully with me. Nevertheless his weapenbearer wolde not, for he was sore frayed. Then toke Saul his swerde, and fell therein. When his weapenbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell vpon his swerde also, and dyed.

Thus dyed Saul and his thre sonnes, and all his housholde together. And when the men of Israel which were in 3 valley, sawe that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they left their cities and fled: and the Philistynes came and dwelt therein.

On the morowe came the Philistynes to spoyle the slayne, and founde Saul, and his sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gelboa, and they cut off his heade, and his helme, and sent it aboute in to 3 lande of the Philistynes, and caused it to be shewed betwix their Idoles and the people. And his weapen layed they in the house of their god, and stucke vpon his heade vpon the house of Dagon.

But when all they of Jabes in Gilead herde of every thinge, that the Philistynes had done vnto Saul, they gat them vp (as many as were men of armes) and toke the body of Saul and of his sonnes, and broughte them vnto Jabes, and buryed their bones vnder the Oke at Jabes, and fasted seven dayes.

Thus dyed Saul in his trespass which he comyted agaynst the LORDE, because he kepte not the worde of the LORDE: and axed counsell at the soothsayers, and axed not at the LORDE, therefore sent he him, and turned the kyngdome vnto David.

The XII. Chapter.

And all Israel rejoiced to David vnto Hebron, and sayde: Beholde, we are 3 bone and thy flesh. And a fourtye whan Saul reigned, then leddest Israel out and in. So the LORDE thy God hath ioyed vnto the: Thou shalt kepe my people of Israel, and thou shalt be the pryncer of my people of Israel. And all the Elders of Israel came to the kyng vnto Hebron. And David made a ceuenant with them at Hebron before the LORDE. And they anoynted David to be kyng ouer Israel: according to the worde of the LORDE by Samuel.

And David and all Israel were vnto Jerusalem, that is Iubus: for the Jebusites dwelt in the lode. And the citiesyns of Ierusaleme said vnto David: Thou shalt not come in hither. Howbeit David wane 3 castell of Sion, which is 3 cite of David. And David sayde: whoso euer smytheth 3 Jebusites first, shall be a pryncer & capteyne. The Joab 3 sonne of Zeruia clymmed vp first, and was made capteyne. So David dwelt in 3 castell, therefore was it called 3 cite of David. And he buylded 3 cite rounde aboute, fro Millo forth on every syde. As for 3 remnant of 3 cite, Joab buylded it, and repayed it. And David wrote forth 3 grewe, and the LORDE Zebaoth was with him.

These are 3 chese amonge 3 mightie men of David, which dealt valeantly with him in his kyngdome thall Israel, to make him kyng, accordinge to the worde of 3 LORDE ouer Israel. And this is 3 nombre of Davids mightie men: Jesabram the sonne of Achmoni the chesest amonge thirtie. He lifted vp his speare, and smote thre Canaanites. After him was Eleasar the sonne of Dothai the Ahehite, and he was amonge the thre mightie. This man was with David whan they blasphemed, and the Philistynes gathered the filth thence to 3 battayll. And euer there was there a pece of lande full of barly, and the people fled before the Philistynes. And they stoode in the myddes of the lande, and rescued it, and smote the Philistynes. And the LORDE gaue a greate health.

And thre of the chesest thirtie were downe to the rocke vnto David in to the caue of Adullam. But the Philistynes hoost laye in the valley of Rephaim. As for David, he was in the castell. And the Philistynes people were then at Bethleem. And David was desirous, and sayde: What some wolde geue me to drynke of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate. The thre brakers he sent in to the Philistynes hoost, and drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate, and caried it, and broughte it vnto David. Nevertheless he wolde not drynke it, but poured it vnto the LORDE, and sayde: God let this be farre fro me, 3 I shal not do it, and drynke the bloude of these men in 3 parell of their life: for with the parell of their life haue they broughte it: therefore wolde he not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthies.

Abisai the brother of Joab, he was the chesest amonge thre. And he lifted vp his speare, and smote thre hundred. And he was famous amonge thre, and before the thirde, more honorable then the two, yet came he not vnto the thre.

The xij. Chap. Fo. lxxxij.

Benai the sonne of Joiada the sonne of Dathail of Cabzeel, was a man of greate actes. He smote two Lyons of the Moabites. And he wente downe, and smote a Lyon in the myddes of a well in the tyme of snowe. He smote a man of Egypte also, which was fyue cubites greate of stature, and had in his hande a speare like a wevers lome. Yet wente he downe to him with a staffe, and rote the speare out of his hande, and slew him with his awne speare. This dyd Benai the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amonge thre Worthies, and most auncient amonge thirtie. But vnto the thre came he not. Howbeit David made him of his secretes counsell.

The valeaunt Worthies are these: Asahel the brother of Joab, Elhanan his Vncles sonne of Bethlehem, Samoth the Hazordite, Helez the Pelonite, Ira the sonne of Etes the Thecoite, Abisai the Anathothite, Sibechai the Husathite, Jai the Ahehite, Matherai the Netophathite, Heled 3 sonne of Baena 3 Netophathite, Jehai 3 sonne of Ribai of Gibeath of the childre of Ben Jaanim, Benai the Pirgathemite, Hura of the brooke of Gaas. Abiel the Arbathite, Asinath the Bahemite, Eliahba the Saalbomite. The children of Basem 3 Gisonite, Jonathas the sonne of Sago the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sachar the Hararite, Eliphal the sonne of Ur, Shephar the Macherathite, Abia the Pelonite, Hezo of Carmel, Maerai the sonne of Asbai, Joel the brother of Nathan, Mibhar the sonne of Hagri, Zeleg the Animonite, Matherai the Berothite the weapenbearer of Joab the sonne of Zeruia, Ira the Jethrite, Gareb the Jethrite, Urias the Hethite, Sabad the sonne of Abalai, Adina the sonne of Sisa the Rubenite, a capteyne of the Rubenites, and there were thirtie vnder him: Hanan 3 sonne of Maecha, Josaphat the Mathonite, Osa 3 Ashtarathite, Sama and Jaiel, the sonnes of Horham the Aroerite, Jediael the sonne of Simri, Joha his brother the Thirsizite, Eliel the Mahenite, Jeribai and Josia the sonnes of Eliaaz, Jerhama the Moabite, Eliel, Obed, Jaesiel of Mizobaia.

The XIII. Chapter.

These also came to David vnto Siceleg whan he was yet kepte a syde because of Saul the sonne of Cis: And they were like wyse amonge the worthies 3 helped in the battayll, and coude handle bowes with both their handes, and coude cast stones, and shote arrows with the bowe.

Of Sauls brethren which were of Ben Jamin: The chiefeſt Abieser and Joas y chil drien of Samaa the Gibeathite. Jesiel and Peletche children of Asmaneth. Baracha ⁊ and Jehu the Anthothite. Jesinaia the Gi beonite, valeaunt amonge thirtie and over thirtie. Jeremia, Jahasiel, Johanan, Josa bad the Gederathite. Eleusai, Jerimoth, Bealia, Samaria, Saphatia the Harophi te, Elkana, Jesia, Asarel, Jasabeam ⁊ Ro rahye, Joela and Sabadia the children of Jeroham of Gedor.

Of the Gaddites resorted there vnto Da uid to the castell in the wyldernesſe, mightie Worthies and men of armes, which hadled speares and swerdes, and had faces like lions, ⁊ were as swifte as the Roes vpon ⁊ moun taines. The fyist Eſer, the seconde Obadia, the thyrde Eliab, the fourth Masmana, ⁊ fyfth Jeremia, the sixte Abhai, the seuenth Eliel, the eight Johanna, the nyeneth Elſabad the tenth Jeremia, ⁊ eleuenth Machbanai. These were of the children of Gad; heades in the hoost, the leest ouer an hundred; and ⁊ greatest ouer a thousande. These are they which in the fyist moneth wente ouer Jor dane, whan it was full on both the shores, so that all the valleys were eauen both towar de the East and towarde the West.

There came of the children of Ben Jamin also and of Juda vnto the castell of David, But David wente forth vnto them, and an swered and sayde vnto them: If ye come to me in peace, and to helpe me, my hert shal be with you. But yf ye come vpo disceate, and to be mine aduersaries (where as there is yet no vnrighthe in me) the God of oure fathers loke vpon it, and rebuke it. Neuertheles the sperte endued Amasai the captaigne amon ge thirtie, and he sayde: We are thine O Da uid, and holde with the thousonne of Isai. Peace, peace be with the, peace be with thy helpers, for thy God helpeth the. Then Da uid receaued them, and made them capta ynes ouer the men of warre.

And of Manasses there fell certaine vnto David, whan he came to the battayll with the philistynes agaynst Saul, and helped them not, for the prynces of ⁊ philistynes counceled to let him go from them, and say de: If he fell vnto his lorde Saul, it mighte cost vs oure neckes. Now whan he departed vnto Siclag, there fell vnto him of Manas ses, Adna, Josabad, Jediael, Michael, Josa bad, Elihu, Silthai, heades ouer thousandes in Manasses. And they helped David against the men of warre: for they were all valiaunt Worthies, and were captaignes ouer the hoost. And every daye came there some to David, to helpe him, till there was a grea te hoost as an hoost of God.

And this is the nombre of the heades harnessed vnto the warre, which came to Da uid vnto Hebron, for to turne the kyngdome of Saul vnto him, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE.

The childre of Juda, which handled spea res and swerdes, were sixe thousande, ⁊ eight hundred ready harnessed vnto ⁊ warre. Of the children of Simeon noble men of armes for the battayll, seven thousande and an ha dieth. Of the children of Levi four thousande and sixe hundred. And Joiada the pry ce amonge them of Aaron with the thou sande and seven hundred. Sadoc the yonge valeaunt man of armes with his sathas house, two and twentye rulers. Of the chil drien of Ben Jamin Sauls brother, thurten sande: for vnto that tyme helde many of the yet with the house of Saul.

Of ⁊ children of Ephraim, twentye thou sande and eight hundred valeaunt men of armes, and famous in the house of their fa thers. Of the halfe trybe of Manasses, egh ten thousande, named by name, to come and make David kyng. Of the children of Ja char (which were men of vnderstandyng, whan nede requyred to knowe what Iſrael shulde do) two hundred captaignes, and all their brethren folowed their worde. Of Sa bulon, such as wente forth in the hoost to ⁊ warre, ready with all maner of weapons for the battayll, fyfye thousande, beyng of o ne mynde to kepe them selues in orde.

Of Naphtali, a thousande captaignes, with them such as handled shyld and spea re, seven and thyrty thousande. Of Dan, ready harnessed to the battayll, eight and twen ty thousande, and sixe hundred. Of Aſſer, such as wente forth in y hoost, ready harni sed to the battayll, fortye thousande. From beyonde Jordane, of the Rubenites, Gadites and the halfe trybe of Manasses, with all maner of weapons to the battayll, an ha dieth and twentye thousande.

All these men of warre, ready harnessed to the battayll, came with a whole hert vnto Hebron, to make David kyng ouer all Is rael. And all Israel besyde were of one mynde that David shulde be made kyng. And the re were they with David thre dayes, earpe ge and drynkyng: for their brethren had prepared for them. And sech neighbours were aboute them vntyll Isachar, Zabulon and Naphtali, broughte bried vpon Asses, Ca mels, Mules and oxen to eate: meel, fyges, ra sins, wyne, oyle, oxen, shepe, very many: for there was ioye in Israel.

The XIII. Chapter.

David helde a counsell with the captaignes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, and with all the prynces, and sayde vnto all the congregacion of Is rael: If it lyke you, and yf it be of the LOR DE oure God, let vs sende forth on euery sy deto oure other brethren in all the countrees of Israel, and to the prestes and Levites in the cities where they haue suburbs, ⁊ they maye be gathered together vnto vs, and let vs fetch the Arke of oure God agayne vnto vs: for by Sauls tyme we ayled aſter it. The sayde the whole cōgregacion, that the same shulde be done, for it pleased all the people well.

So David gathered all Israel together from Sihor of Egipte, tyll a man come vnto Hamath, to fetch the Arke of God from Kiriath Jearim. And David wente vp to all Israel to Kiriath Jearim, which lieth in Juda, to bryng from thence the Arke of God the LORDE, that sitteth vpo the Cherubins, where the name is named: and they caused the Arke of God to be caried vpo a new cart from the house of Abinadab.

Uſa and his brethren drewe the cart. As for David and all Israel, they played with all their strength before God, with songes, with harpes, with psalteries, with tabrettes, with Cymbales and trompes.

But whan they came to the barne floore of Chidon, Uſa stretched out his hande to holde the Arke: for the oxen wente out aſyde. Then waped the wiath of the LORDE ferece ouer Uſa, ⁊ smote him, because he stretched out his hande to the Arke, so ⁊ he dyed there before God. The was David fery, because ⁊ LORDE had made such a rente vpo Uſa, and called the place Perez Uſa, vnto this daye. And David stode in feare of God the same daye, ⁊ sayde: How shal I bryng ⁊ Arke of God vnto me? Therfore wolde he not let ⁊ Arke of God be broughte vnto him in to ⁊ cite of David, but caried it in to ⁊ house of Obed Edom the Gathite. So the Arke of God abode with Obed Edom in his house thre monethes. And ⁊ LORDE blessed Obed Edoms house and all that he had.

The XV. Chapter.

Uſa Hiram y kyng of Tyre sent mes ſangers vnto David and Cedre tym ber, and masons and carpenters, to buylde him an house. And David perceaued, that the LORDE had confirmed him kyng ouer Israel: for his kyngdome increased for his people of Israels sake. And David toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem, ⁊ begat yet mo son nes ⁊ doughters. And the names of them ⁊ were borne vnto him at Jerusalem, are the se: Samma, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Jebhar, Elifua, Elipaler, Uſoga, Nepheg, Japhia, Elifanuma, Baal Jada, Elipaler.

And whan the philistynes herde that David was anoynted kyng ouer all Israel, they wente vp all to ſeke David. Whan Da uid herde that, he wente forth agaynst them. And the philistynes came, and scattered the selues beneth in ⁊ valley of Rephaim. And David ayled counsell at God, ⁊ sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the philistynes? and wilc thou deliuer them in to my hande? The LOR DE sayde vnto him: Go vp, and I wil deli uer them in to thy hande. And whan they were gone vp to Baal Prasiim, David smote them there. And David sayde: God hath denyed myne enemies thorow my hande, even as the water parteth aſunder: therfore called they the place Baal Prasiim. And the re leste they their goddes. Then ⁊ comman ded David to burne them with fyre.

But the philistynes gat them thither a gayne, and scattered them selues beneth in ⁊ valley. And David ayled counsell at God agayne. And God sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not go vp behynde them, but turne the from them, that thou mayest come vpon the ouer agaynst the peertrees. So whan thou hearest about vpon the peertrees the noyse of the goyng, go thou forth then to the ba tayll: for God is gone forth then before the to smyte the hoest of the philistynes. And David dyd as God commanded him. And they smote the hoost of the philistynes from Gibeon forth vnto Gaser. And Davids na me was noysed out in all londes. And the LORDE caused ⁊ feare of him to come vpo all the heythen.

The XVI. Chapter.

Uſa he buylde him houses in the cite of David, ⁊ made ready a place for ⁊ Arke of God, ⁊ pitched a Tabernacle for it. At that tyme sayde David: The Ar ke of God is not to be borne, but onely of ⁊ Levites: for them hath the LORDE cho ſento beare the Arke of the LORDE, and to mynister vnto him for ever. Therfore gathe red David all Israel together vnto Jerusa lem, to bryng up the Arke of the LORDE unto the place which he had prepared for it.

And David broughte the children of Aaron & the Levites together. Of the children of Abiathar: Oziel the chiefe wth his brethren, an C. and twentye. Of the children of Merari: Asaia the chiefe wth his brethren, two C. and twentye. Of the childre of Gerson: Joel the chiefe wth his brethren, an C. and thirte. Of y^e childre of Elizaphan: Semaia the chiefe wth his brethren, two hundred. Of the childre of Hebron: Eliel the chiefe, with his brethren, foure score. Of the children of Usiel: Amminadab the chiefe, with his brethren, an hundred and twelue.

And David called Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes, and the Levites, namely Oziel, Asaia, Joel, Semaia, Eliel, Amminadab, and sayde vnto them: Ye are the heades of y^e fathers amonge the Levites: sanctifie y^e selves therfore & youre brethren, & ye maye brynge vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israel, to the place y^e I haue prepared for it.

For afore whan ye were not there, the LORDE oure God made a rent amonge vs, because we soughte him not, as we shulde haue done. So y^e prestes & the Levites halowed the felues, & they mighte brynge vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israel. And the children of Levi bare the Arke of God the LORDE vpon their shuldres with the staves theron, as Moses commaunded accordinge to y^e worde of the LORDE.

And David spake vnto y^e rulers of y^e Levites, that they shulde ordeyne some of their brethren to be syngers with psalteries, harpes and loude instrumentes, and Cymbales, to synge loude with ioye.

Then the Levites appoynted Heman y^e sonne of Joel: and of his brethren Assaph the sonne of Barachias: and of the children of Merari their brethren, Ethan the sonne of Cusai: and with them their brethren of the seconde course, namely Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaia, Maaseia, Machibia, Eliphecia, Mikneia, Obed EDOM, Jeiel, the doore keepers. For Heman, Assaph and Ethan were syngers, with brasen belles makinge a loude noyse: but Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseia & Benaia with psalteries to Alamoth: Machibia, Eliphecia, Mikneia, Obed EDOM, Jeiel & Asaia with harpes to synge aboue them on hye. Channania the ruler of the Levites was the master of Musick to teach them for to synge, for he was a man of vnderstandinge.

And Barachias and Eleasa were the do rekeepers of the Arke. But Sachania, Josphar, Nathaneel, Amasai, Zacharias, Benaia, Eliezer the prestes, blew the trompettes before y^e Arke of God. And Obed EDOM and Jehia were doorekeepers of the Arke.

So David and the Elders of Israel, and the captaynes ouer thousandes wente vnto fetch the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the house of Obed EDOM wth ioye. And whan God had helped the Levites y^e bare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, there were offred seven bullockes & seven rames, And David had a lynnē garment vpon him, and so had all the Levites y^e bare the Arke, and y^e syngers, and Channania the master of Musick wth the syngers. David had an ouerboddy care of linnen vpon him also.

Thus all Israel brought vp the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE with mysh, with trompettes, tabrettes, & loude Cymbales, with psalteries and harpes. Now whan the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE came in to the cite of David, Michol y^e daughter of Saul looked out at a wyndowe: & whan she sawe kynge David dauncyng & playyng, she despyed him in hir hert.

The XVII. Chapter.

And whan they brought in the Arke of God, they set it in y^e Tabernacle, that David had pitched for it, and offered burnt offerynges & thank offerynges before God. And whan David had ended the burnt offerynges and thank offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE, & distributed vnto every man in Israel (both to man and woman) a cake of bred, and a peece of flesh and a meesse of potage.

And he appoynted before the Arke of y^e LORDE certayne Levites to mynister, that they shulde geue prayse, thankes and laudes vnto the LORDE God of Israel: namely Assaph the first, Zacharias the seconde, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Machibia, Eliab, Benaia, Obed EDOM and Jehiel, with psalteries and harpes. But Assaph with loude Cymbales. Benaia and Jehasiel the prestes with tabrettes, allwaye before the Arke of y^e couenaunt of God.

At the same tyme ordeyned David first of all to geue thankes vnto the LORDE by Assaph and his brethren.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, vpon his name, tell the people what thynges he hath done.

O let youre songes be of him: prayse him, and let youre talkyng be of all his wonderful workes.

Geue his holy name a good reporte: let y^e hart of them reioyce, that seke the LORDE.

O seke the LORDE and his strength, seke his face evermore.

Remember his marvelous workes that he hath done, his wonders, and the iudgements of his mouth.

Re sede of Israel his seruauit, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

He is the LORDE oure God, his iudgements are in all londes.

Remember full euer of his couenaunt what he hath commaunded in to a thousande generations.

Which he made with Abraham, & his oath vnto Isaac.

And he confirmed the same vnto Jacob for a perpetuall lawe, and to Israel for an everlastinge couenaunt.

And sayde: Vnto the wyl I geue y^e londe of Canaan, y^e meteyne of y^e inheritance.

Whan they were yet but small & fewe in n^obre, and straungers in the same londe.

And they wente from one nation to another, & from one realme to another people.

He suffered no man to hurte them, and reproved euen kynge for their sakes.

Touch not myne anoynted, & do my prophetes no harme.

O synge vnto y^e LORDE, let all y^e earth be tellinge of his saluacion from daye to daye.

Declare his holynes amonge the heathen, & his wonderous workes amonge y^e people.

For the LORDE is greate, and can not worthely be prayseed, and more so he had in awethen all goddes.

As for all the goddes of the heathen, they are but Idols: but it is the LORDE that made the heauens.

Thankesgeyng and worshippe are before him, strength and ioye is in his place.

Ascribe vnto the LORDE ye kynreds of nations: ascribe vnto the LORDE worshippe and strength.

Ascribe vnto the LORDE the honoure of his name: brynge presentes, and come before him, and worshippe y^e LORDE in y^e bewtye of holynes.

Let the whole earth stande in awe of him: he hath made the compasse of the worlde so fast, that it can not be moued.

Let the heauens reioyse, and let the earth be glad: and let it be tolde amonge the heathen, that the LORDE reigneth.

Let the See make a noyse, and the fulness thereof: let the selde be ioyfull, and all that therein is.

Let all the trees in the wod leape for ioye before the LORDE, for he commaundeth to iudge the earth.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, for he is gracious: and his mercy endureth for euer.

And saye: Helpe vs O God oure Saviour, and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heathen, that we maye geue thankes vnto y^e holy name, and synge prayses vnto the in thy psalmes.

Praysed be the LORDE God of Israel from everlastinge to everlastinge: and let all people saye, Amen, And: prayse be vnto the LORDE.

So he lefte Assaph and his brethren there before the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE, to mynister allwaye before the Arke, eury daye his daye worke. But Obed EDOM and their brethren, eight and threescore, and Obed EDOM the sonne of Jedithun, and Hosai, to be doorekeepers. And Sadoc y^e prest, & his brethren the prestes, leste he before the habitacon of the LORDE vpon the hye place at Gibeon, to offre burnt sacrifices daylie vnto the LORDE vpon the altare of burnt offerynges in the moynynge & in the euenynge, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the LORDE, which he commaunded vnto Israel. And with them Heman & Jedithun, and y^e other chosen, which were named by name to geue thankes vnto the LORDE, because his mercy endureth for euer. And with them Heman & Jedithun to stryke vpon the tabrettes and Cymbales, and the musickall instrumentes of God. As for the childre of Jedithun, he made them doorekeepers. So all the people departed, every one to his house: and David returned also to blesse his house.

The XVIII. Chapter.

It fortuneth whan David dwelt in his house, he sayde vnto y^e prophet Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedar, and the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE is amonge the curtaynes.

Nathan saide vnto David: What so euer is in thine hert, that do: for God is with y^e. But the same nyght came y^e worde of God vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go and speake to David my seruauit: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not buylde me an house to be an habitacon: for I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I broughte forth the children of Israel, vnto this daye: But where the Tabernacle and habitacon hath bene, there haue I bene where so euer I haue walked in all Israel. Spake Jener to eny of the Judges in Israel (whom I commanded to keep my people) and sayde: Wherefore do ye not buyde me an house of Cedar timber?

B So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruauit David: Thus sayeth the LORD Ezebiaoth: I toke thee from the pasture behynde the shepe, that thou shuldest be the pryncer ouer my people, and haue bene with the whither so euer thou wertest, and haue rooted out all thine enemies before thee, and haue made thee a name, accordinge to the name of the greates men that are vpon earth. And for my people of Israel, I will appoynte them a place, and will plante them, that they maye dwell there, and nomore to be removed. And the childre of wickednes shall oppresse them nomore, like as afore tyme, when I commaunded the Judges ouer my people of Israel. And I will subdue all thine enemies, and do declare vnto thee, that the LORD will buyde thee an house.

B But when thy dayes are fulfilled, that thou departest hence with thy fathers, I will after the rayse vp thy seede, which shall be eue one of thy sonnes: his kyngdome will I stablish, he shall buyde me an house, and I will make his seate sure for ever. I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne. And I will not withdrawe my mercy from him, as I haue withdrawen it fro him that was before thee: But I will see him in my house and in my kyngdome for ever, so that his seate shall be sure for euermore.

C And when Nathan had spoken vnto David accordinge to all these wordes, and all this vision, kyng David came and sat him downe before the LORD, and sayde: O LORD God, who am I? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus farre? And this (O God, hast thou thoughte yet to litle, but hast spoken of thy seruantes house yet longe for to come. And thou LORD God hast looked downe vpon me from above, even as one man looketh vpon another. What more shall David saye vnto thee, that thou bringest thy seruante to such honour? Thou knowest thy seruante O LORD, for thy seruantes sake and accordinge to thy heart hast thou done all these greates things, that thou mightest shewe all greates things vnto thy seruante. LORD, there is none lyke thee, and there is no God but thou, of whom we haue herde with oure eares. And where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel, where God wente to deliuer him a people, and to make him selfe a name thorow greates terrible thinges, to cast out the heychen before thy people, whom thou hast deliuered out of Egypt: and thy people of Israel that thou made thy people for ever, and thou LORD art become their God.

Now LORD, let the worde be verified for ever, that thou hast spoken ouer thy seruante and ouer his house, and do as thou hast spoken: and let thy name endure and be magnified for ever, that it maye sayde: The LORD Ezebiaoth, the God of Israel is the God in Israel, and that the house of thy seruante David maye be stablyshed before thee: for thou LORD hast opened the eare of thy seruante, that thou wilt buyde him an house. Therefore hath thy seruante founde confidence to make his prayer before thee. Now LORD, thou art God, and hast promysed such good vnto thy seruante. Begynne now to blesse the house of thy seruante, that it maye be euermore before thee: for loke when thou blessest (O LORD) the same is blessed for ever.

The XX. Chapter.

After this smote David the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Gath, and the villages therof out of the hande of the Philistines. He smote the Moabites likewise, so that the Moabites were subdued vnto David, and gaue him tribute. He smote Hadad Eser also, a kyng of Zobah, when he wente to set vpon his power by the water Euphrates.

And David toke from him a thousand charrettes, seven thousande horsemen, and an eye thousande foremen. And David lamed all the charrettes, and kepte an hundred charrettes over. And the Syrians came from Damascus, to helpe Hadad Eser the kyng of Zobah. Howbeit David smote two and twenty thousande of the same Syrians, and layd men of warre at Damascus in Syria, so that the Syrians were subdued vnto David, and broughte him tribute. For the LORD helped David, whither so euer he wente.

And David toke the sheldes of golde, that Hadad Eser his seruantes had, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And out of Tibeath, and Chush the cities of Hadad Eser, toke David very much brasse, wherof Salomon made the brasen lauer, and pilers, and brasen vessels.

And when Thogu the kyng of Hamath herde, that David had smytten all the power of Hadad Eser, he sent his sonne Hadoram to kyng David, to salute him, and to blesse him, because he had foughte with Hadad Eser, and smitten him: for Thogu had warre with Hadad Eser.

and all the same vessels of golde, syluer, and of brasse, dyd kyng David consecrate vnto the LORD, with the syluer and golde that he had taken from the heychen, namely, from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, Philistines, and Amalechites.

C And Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja smote eighteen thousande of the Edomites in the Salt valley, and layd me of warre in Edom, so that all the Edomites were subdued vnto David: for the LORD helped David, whither so euer he wente.

Thus David reigned ouer all Israel, and executed iudgment and righteousnes vnto all the people. Joab the sonne of Neru Ja was capteyne ouer the hoost. Josaphat the sonne of Achitob, and Ahimelech, the sonne of Abiathar, were prestes. Sausa was scribe. Benaia the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Chetians and Pethians. And Davids sonnes were chiefe at the kynges hande.

The XX. Chapter.

After this dyed Nabal, a kyng of the childre of Ammon, and his sonne was kyng in his steade. Then sayde David: I will do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nabal, for his father dyd mercy vpon me: and so he sent messengers to comforte him ouer his father. And when Davids seruantes came in to the lande of the childre of Ammon vnto Hanun to comforte him, the prynces of the childre of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun: Thinkest thou that David honoureth thy father in thy sight, that he hath sent comforters vnto thee? For his seruantes are come vnto thee, to search and to overthrowe, and to spye out the lande. Then toke Hanun the seruantes of David, and shone them, and cut the halfe of their garments of, euery by the loynes, and so let them go. And they wente their waye, and sent men to tell David. Nevertheless he sent to mete them (for the men were put to greateshame) and the kyng sayde: Abide at Jericho, tyll youre beards be growne, and then come agayne.

When the childre of Ammon sawe, that they stynted in the sight of David, both Hanun and the childre of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of syluer, to hyre charrettes and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, out of Maachah, and out of Zobah: and hyrd two and thirtie thousande charrettes, and a kyng of Maachah with his people, which came and pitched their tentes before Medba. And the childre of Ammon gathered them selues together out of their cities, and came to the battayll.

When David herde that, he sent Joab thither with all the hoost of the men of armes. And the childre of Ammon were gone forth, and prepared them selues to the battayll before the gate of the cite. But the kynges were come, kepte them asyde in the felde.

C Now when Joab sawe that the battayll was agaynst him both before and behynde, he chose of all the best yonge men in Israel, and prepared him selfe agaynst the Syrians. As for the residue of the people, he put them vnder the hande of Abisai his brother, that they shulde prepare them selues agaynst the childre of Ammon, and he sayde: If the Syrians be to mighty for me, helpe thou me: but if the childre of Ammon be to ströge for thee, I shall helpe thee: take a good courage vnto thee, and let vs quyte oure selues manly for oure people and for the cities of oure God: neuertheles the LORD do what pleaseth him. And Joab made him forth with the people that was with him, to fighte agaynst the Syrians: and they fled before him. And when the childre of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai his brother, and wente in to the cite. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

D But when the Syrians sawe that they were smytten before Israel, they sent messengers, and broughte forth the Syrians which were beyonde the water. And Sophach the chiefe capteyne of Hadad Eser wente before them. When this was tolde David, he gathered all Israel together, and wente ouer Jordan. And when he came at them, he set the battayll in aray agaynst them. And David prepared him selfe to the battayll agaynst the Syrians, and they foughte with him: but the Syrians fled before Israel. And David slewe of the Syrians seven thousande charrettes, and forty thousande foremen. And Sophach the chiefe capteyne slewe he also. And when Hadad Eser his seruantes sawe that they were smytten before Israel, they made peace with David and his seruantes. And the Syrians wolde helpe the childre of Ammon nomore.

The XXI. Chapter.

After this came Nabab, a kyng of Tyne, as the kynges use to go forth, Joab broughte the power of the hoost, and destroyed the lande of the childre of Ammon, and came and layd sege vnto Rabba. But David abode at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabba, and brake it downe. And David toke their kynges crowne from his heade, and founde the weighte of a talent of golde theron, and precious stones. And it was set vpo Davids heade. And very moch spoyl he caried he out of the cite. As for the people that were therin, he broughte the forth, & parted them in sunder wth sawes, & hokes & betels of yron. Thus dyd David vnto all y^e cities of the childre of Ammon. And David departed againe, with the people vnto Jerusalem.

B Afterwarde arose there warre at Gath with the Philistynes. Then Sibechai y^e husathire smote Sibai, which was one of the childien of Achish, and he subdued him. And there arose warre agayne wth the Philistynes. The Elhamah y^e sonne of Jair smote Lahemi y^e brother of Goliath y^e Gathite, whose speares staff was like a reuerens leme. Afterwarde was there a battayll at Gath, where there was a man of a greete stature, y^e had sixe fyngers and sixe toes, which made foure and twentye. And he was borne also of Rapha, and spake despytefully vnto Israel. But Jonathas the sonne of Simea Davids brother smote him. These were the childre of Rapha at Gath, & fell thorow y^e hande of David, and of his seruantes.

The XXII. Chapter.

A Nd Sathan stode agaynst Israel, & entysed David to nombre Israel. And David sayde vnto Joab & to y^e rulers of the people: Go ye waye, nombre Israel from Bersaba vnto Dan, and brynge me the nombre of the, that I maye knowe it. Joab sayde: The LORDE make his people an hundred tymes mo then they are now. But my lord & kynge, are they not all my lordes & seruantes? Why doth my lord then axe ther-after? Wherfore shal there a trespase come vpon Israel?

Nevertheless the kynges worde prevailed agaynst Joab. And Joab wente forth, and walked thorow all Israel, and came to Jerusalem, and deliuered vnto David y^e nombre of the people that was tolde. And of all Israel there were a thousande tymes a thousande, and an hundred thousande men, that bare out the swerde: and of Juda foure hundred thousande and seutye thousande men, which dme out the swerde. As for Levi and Ben Jamin, he nombred them not amonge the: for the kynges worde was at hominable vnto Joab.

B But this displeased God righte sore: for he smote Israel. And David sayde vnto God: I have synned greuously, that I have done this. But now take awaye the trespase of thy seruant: for I have done very unwysely. And the LORDE spake vnto Gad

Davids Seer, & sayde: So speake to David, & saye: Thus saith the LORDE: The thynges I have layd before the, chose y^e one of them, I maye do it vnto the. And whā Gad came to David, he spake vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Chose y^e ether thie yeare dath, thie monethes to flye before thine aduersaries, & beset the swerde of thine enemies, & it maye overtake the: or thie dayes y^e sowne of the LORDE, & pestilence in the londe, & the angell of the LORDE maye destroye in all y^e coastes of Israel. Loke now what answer I shal geue vnto him y^e sent me. David sayde vnto Gad: I am in greete trouble: wyl I rather fall in to y^e hande of the LORDE, for his mercy is exceedynge great, & I wil not fall in to the handes of men.

Then dyd the LORDE cause pestilence to come into Israel, so that there fell of Israel thie score & ten thousande me. And God sent the angell to Jerusalem for to destroye it. And even in the destruccion the LORDE considered, and he repeted of the euell, and sayde to the angell y^e destroyer: It is ynough, he be now thy hande.

The angell of the LORDE stode besyde y^e barne of Arnan y^e Jebusite. And David lifted vp his eyes, and sawe the angell of y^e LORDE stondinge betwene heauē and earth, and a naked swerde in his hande stretched ouer Jerusalem. Then David and y^e Elders beyng clothed with sack cloth, fell vpon the faces. And David sayde vnto God: Am not I he that caused the people to be nombred? I am he that hath synned and done euill: as for these shepe, what haue they done? LORDE my God, let thine hande be agaynst me, and agaynst my fathers house, and not agaynst thy people to plague them.

And the angell sayde vnto Gad, that he shulde speake vnto David, that David shulde go vp, & set vp an altare in the barne of Arnan the Jebusite. So David went vp accordinge to y^e reorde of Gad, which he spake in the name of the LORDE. But whā Arnan turned him, and sawe the angell, and his foure sonnes with him, they hyd the sheues: for Arnan throsshed wheate.

Now whan David came to Arnan, Arnan loked, and was aware of David, and wote forth out of the barne, and worshipped David with his face to the grounde. And David sayde vnto Arnan: Geue me rowme in the barne, to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE therin: for y^e full money shal I geue it me, that the plague maye cease from the people.

But Arnan sayde vnto David: Take it vnto the, and let my lord be the kynge do as pleaseth him. Beholde, that ore geue I for a burnt offeringe, and those vessels to the ore, and wheate for the meate offeringe, I geue it all. Nevertheless the kynge sayde vnto Arnan: Not so, but for y^e full money wyl I bye it: for that which is thine wyl not I take for the LORDE, and offre a burnt offeringe for naughte.

E So David gaue Arnan for y^e rowme, sixe hundred. Syckles of golde in weight. And there buylde David an altare vnto y^e LORDE, & offered burnt offerings & slayn offerings. And whan he called vpo the LORDE, he herde him thorow the fyre from heauē vpon y^e altare of the burnt offeringe. And y^e LORDE sayde vnto the angell, that he shulde put his swerde in to his sheeth.

At the sametyme whā David sawe, that the LORDE had herde him vpon the come floore of Arnan y^e Jebusite, he dyd sacrifice there. For y^e habitacion of y^e LORDE which Moses had made in the wyldernes, and the altare of burnt offerings, was at that tyme in the hye place at Gibeon. But David coude not go thitherto seke God before it, for he feared the swerde of the LORDES angell. And David sayde: Here shal be y^e house of God y^e LORDE, and this the altare of burnt offerings for Israel.

The XXIII. Chapter.

A Nd David commaunded to gather together the strangers that were in y^e londe of Israel, and appoynted masons to hewe stone for the buyldinge of the house of God. And David prepared moch yron for nales in the doores of the portes, and for such thinges as were to be naled together, and so moch brasie, that is was not to be weyed: and Cedre trees innumerable: for they of Sidon & Tyre brought David moch Cedre tymber: for David thoughte, Salomō my sonne is but a childe and tender: But the house that shal be buylde vnto the LORDE, shal be greete, that his name & prayse maye be exalted in all londes, therfore wyl I prouyde for him. So David made greete prouy-sion before his deathe.

B And he called Salomon his sonne, & commaunded him to buylde the house of LORDE God of Israel, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, I was minded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, but the worde of y^e LORDE came vnto me, and sayde: Thou hast shed moch bloude, and strycken many battayls, therfore shalt thou not buylde an house vnto my name, for as moch as thou hast shed so moch bloude vpon the earth before me. Beholde, the sonne which shal be borne vnto the, shal be a quyet man: and I wyl cause him to be in rest from al his enemies on every syde, for his name shal be Salomon: for I wyl geue peace and rest vpon Israel as longe as he lyueth. He shal buylde an house vnto my name. He shal be my sonne, and I wyl be his father. And I wyl stablyshe y^e state of his kyngdome vpo Israel for euer.

Now my sonne, the LORDE shal be with the, and thou shalt prospere, that thou mayest buylde an house vnto the LORDE thy God, accordinge as he hath spoken of the. The LORDE also shal geue the wysdome & vnderstondynge, and shal commytte Israel vnto the, that thou mayest kepe the lawe of the LORDE thy God. But then shal thou prospere, yf thou take heede to do after the ordynaunces and lawes which the LORDE commaunded Moses vnto Israel. Be strait-ge, and take a good corage vnto the, feare not, and be not faynt harted. Beholde, I haue in my pouvera prouyded for the house of the LORDE, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, and a thousande tymes a thousande talentes of syluer, and brasie and yron without nombre: for there is so moch of it.

And tymber and stone haue I prepared, thou mayest get more therof. Thou hast many workmen also, masons and carpenters in stone and tymber, and all maner of men that haue vnderstondinge in all worke off golde, syluer, brasie, and yron without nombre. Rec get the vp, and be doynge, and the LORDE shal be with the.

And David commaunded all the rulers of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, and sayde: Is not the LORDE youre God with you, and hath geuen you rest on every syde? for he hath deliuered the inhabitants of the londe in to youre handes, and the londe is subdued before the LORDE and before his people. Geue ouer youre hert now therfore and youre soule, to seke the LORDE youre God, and get you vp, and buylde a Sanctuary vnto the LORDE God, that the Arke of the couenant of the LORDE and the holy vessels of God, maye be brought in to the house, which shal be buylde vnto the name of the LORDE. So David made Salomon his sonne kynge ouer Israel, whan he himselfe was olde, and had lynyed ynough.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And David gathered all the rulers in Israel together, and the prestes & Levites, to nombre & Levites from thirtie yeare olde & above. And & nombre of the (which were strong men) first heade to heade, was eight and thirtie thousande: of whom there were foure & twentie thousande, which dyd their diligence in the worke ouer & house of the LORDE, and sixe thousande officers and Judges, and foure thousande porters, & foure thousande that songe prayes vnto & LORDE with instrumentes, which he had made to synge prayse with all.

And David made the ordinaunce amonge the children of Levi, namely amonge Gerson, Zabath & Merari. The Gersonites were: Laedan and Simeï. The children of Laedan: the first, Jehiel, Sethan, and Joel, the thirde.

The children of Simeï were: Salomith, Zafiel and Zaran, these thre. These were the chiefe amonge the fathers of Laedan. These also were the children of Simeï: Jahath, Sina, Jeus and Bua, these foure were Simeï's children also. Jahath was the first, Sina the seconde. As for Jeus and Bua, they had not many childre, therfore werethey counted but for one fathers house.

B * The childre of Zabath were: Amram, Zechar, Zebion and Vsiel, these foure. The childre of Amram were: Aaron and Moses.

xod. 6. c.
Par. 7. 8
xo. 25. 8
* As for Aaron, he was separated, to be sanctified for the Most holy, he & his sonnes for euer, to burne incense before the LORDE, & to mystifier and blisse in & name of the LORDE for euermore. And the children of Moses the man of God were named amonge & try be of the Levites. * The childre of Moses were Gerson and Elieser.

xod. 2. d
The children of Gerson, the first was Se buel. The children of Elieser, the first was Rehabia & Elieser had none other childre. But & childre of Rehabia were many ther ouer. The children of Zechar were: Salomith the first. The children of Zebion were: Jeria the first, Amaria the seconde, Jahasiel the thirde and Jakmeam & fourth. The children of Vsiel were: Micha the first and Jesia the seconde.

C The children of Merari were: Maheli & Musi. The children of Maheli were: Eleasar and Cis. And Eleasar dyed, and had no sonnes but daughters. And the children of Cis their brethien toke them. The children of Musi were: Maheli, Eder and Jeremoth, these thre. These are the children of Levi amonge their fathers houses, and the chiefe of the fathers, which were counted after the nombre of & names heade by heade: which executed the worke of the offices in the house of the LORDE: from thirtie yeare olde & above. For David sayde: The LORDE God of Israel hath geuen his people rest, & shall dwell at Jerusalem for euer.

Amonge & Levites also were the childre of Levi nombred from thirtie yeare olde & above, & that they neded not to beare & habitation with all the vessels of their office, but accordinge to & last wordes of David, & they shulde stonde vnder the hande of the children of Aaron, to mystifier in the house of the LORDE in the courte, and to the chafes, and for purifyenge, and to all maner of sanctifyenge, and to every worke of the office in the house of God. And for & shewbread, for the synce floure, for the meatofferynge, for the unleuened wasers, for the pannes, for & fryenge, and for all maner of weight and measure. And in the morninge to stonde for to gent thankes and to prayse the LORDE, and in the eveninge likewise. And vpon all Sabbathes, Newmones and feastes to offer all the burnt offerynges vnto the LORDE, accordinge to the nombre and ordie, allway before the LORDE: to wayte vpon the Tabernacle of witnessse and of the Sanctuary, and vpon their brethien the children of Aaron, to mystifier in the house of the LORDE.

The XXV. Chapter.

Lhis was & ordinaunce of the childre of Aaron. * The children of Aaron were, Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar and Jehamar. But Nadab and Abihu dyed before their fathers, and had no childre. And Eleasar and Jehamar were prestes. And David ordied them after his maner: Sadoc out of the children of Eleasar, and Ahimelech out of the children of Jehamar, accordinge to their nombre and office. And there were mo chiefe strongemen founde amonge the children of Eleasar, then the childre of Jehamar. And he ordeyned them after this maner: namely, sixtene out of & childre of Eleasar to be rulers thorow out their fathers house: & eight of the children of Jehamar thorow out their fathers house. Nevertheless he ordeyned them by lot, because that both the principall of the children of Eleasar and of Jehamar were in & Sanctuary and chiefe before God. And the Scribe Simeia the sonne of Netheaneel one of the Levites, wrote them vp before & kynge and before the rulers, and before Sadoc the prest, & before Ahimelech the sonne of Abiathar, & before the chiefe of the fathers amonge the prestes & Levites: namely one fathers house for Eleasar, and the other for Jehamar.

And the first lot fell vpon Joiarib, the seconde vpon Jedana, the thirde vpon Harim, the fourth vpon Seoum, the fifth vpon Malchia, the sixte vpon Meiamin, the seventh vpon Hatoz, the eight vpon Abia, the nyenth vpon Jesna, the tenth vpon Sedania, the eleventh vpon Eliasib, the twolue vpon Jakim, the thirtenth vpon Supa, the fourtenth vpon Jesbeab, the fiftenth vpon Bilga, the sixtenth vpon Immer, the sevententh vpon Hesir, the eightenth vpon Hapi-zer, the nyententh vpon Perhabia, the twentieth vpon Jehesikel, the one and twentieth vpon Jachin, the two & twentieth vpon Samul, the thre & twentieth vpon Dalai, & foure and twentieth vpon Maasia. This is their course after their office, to go in to the house of the LORDE, accordinge to their maner vnder their father Aaron, as the LORDE God of Israel commaunded him.

Of the children of Levi amonge the childre of Amram, was Subael. Amonge the childre of Subael, was Jehdea. Amonge the childre of Rehobia, was & first Jesia. Amonge the Jezecharites was Selomoth. Amonge the children of Selomoth was Jahath. The children of Zebion were: Jeria & first, Amaria the seconde, Jehasiel the thirde, Jakneam the fourth.

The children of Vsiel were: Micha. Amonge the children of Micha was Samir. The brother of Micha was Jesia. Amonge the children of Jesia was Zacharias. The children of Merari were: Maheli & Musi, whose sonne was Jaesia. The childre of Merari of his sonne Jaesia were: Seham, Sacur & Jbi. Maheli had Eleasar: for he had no sonnes. Of Cis, the children of Cis were: Jerahmeel and Musi. The children of Musi were, Maheli, Eder and Jeremoth. These are the childre of & Levites thorow out & house of their fathers. And the lot was cast for them also besyde their brethien the children of Aaron, in the presence of kynge David and Sadoc and Ahimelech, and before the chiefe fathers amonge the prestes & Levites, as well for the lest brother as for the chiefe amonge the fathers.

The XXVI. Chapter.

And David with the chiefe captaignes sundered to the offices amonge & childre of Assaph, Zeman & Jedithun & prophetes with harpes, psalteries & Cymbales, and they were nombred vnto the worke accordinge to their effyce. Amonge the childre of Assaph was Sacur, Joseph, Netheania, Asarela, childre of Assaph vnder Assaph which prophced besyde & kynge. Of Jedithun: The children of Jedithun were, Gedalia, Zoni, Jesaia, Zafabia, Nathiebia (Simeï) these sixe vnder their father Jedithun with harpes, whose prophcieng was to geue thankes and to praise the LORDE. Of Zeman: The children of Zeman were Butia, Nathania, Vsiel, Sebul, Jerimoth, Zananias, Zananias, Eliatha, Gilthi, Xamathieser, Jabbatza, Mallothi, Zothur and Mehesior. All these were the children of Zeman the kynge's Seer in the wordes of God to lyfte vp the homer for God gave Zeman fourtene sonnes & thre daughters.

All these were vnder their fathers Assaph Jedithun and Zeman, to synge in the house of the LORDE with Cymbales, psalteries & harpes, accordinge to the office in the house of God besyde the kynge. And their nombre with their brethien, which were taughte in the songe of the LORDE (every one hauynge vnderstandynge) was two hundred & eight and foure score. And they cast the lottes ouer their offyce, for the lest as for the greatest, for the master as for the scolar.

And the first lot fell vpon Joseph which was of Assaph: the seconde vpon Gedalia to his brethien and sonnes, of whom there were twolue. The thirde vpon Sacur with his sonnes & brethien, of whom there were twolue. The fourth vpon Jari with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The fift vpon Netheania with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The sixte vpon Butia with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The seventh vpon Jestreel with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The eight vpon Jesaia with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The nyenth vpon Nathania with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The tenth vpon Simeï with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The eleventh vpon Asrael with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The twolue vpon Zafabia with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The thirtenth vpon Subad with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The fourtenth vpon Nathiebia with his sonnes & brethien, of whom there were twolue. The fiftenth vpon Jeremoth with his sonnes and brethien, of whom there were twolue. The sixtenth upon Anania with his sonnes and brethren of whom there were twolue. The seventeth upon Jassbetasa with his sonnes 2 brethren of whom there were twolue. The eightenth upon Hanani with his sonnes and brethren, of whom there were twolue. The nyententh upon Mallochi with his sonnes 2 brethren, of whom there were twolue. The twentieth upon Eliatha with his sonnes and brethren, of whom there were twolue. The one 2 twentieth upon Hozhir with his sonnes 2 brethren of whom there were twolue. The two and twentieth upon Sidalchi with his sonnes 2 brethren, of whom there were twolue. The thie and twentieth upon Mehesioth with his sonnes and brethren of whom there were twolue. The foure and twentieth upon Romamthieser with his sonnes and brethren, of whom there were twolue.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Amonge the ordinaunces of the dorekeepers Amonge the Korahytes was Meselomia of the children of Assaph. The children of Meselomia were these: the firstborne Zacharias, the seconde Jediael, 3 thirde Sebadia, the fourth Jathniel, 5 fifth Elam, the sixte Johanan, the seventh Elioenai. The children of Obededom were these: the firstborne Semaia, the seconde Josabad the thirde Joab, the fourth Sachur, 5 fifth Nerhaneel, the sixte Ammiel, the seventh Isachar, the eight Pegulchai: for God had blessed him. And vnto Semaia his sonne there were sonnes borne also, which bare rule in the house of their fathers: for they were mightie valeaunt men. The children of Semaia were, Arhni, Rephael, Obed and Elisabad, whose brethren were valeaunt men, Elihu and Semachia: all these were of the children of Obededom Meselomia had children and brethren which were stronge men, euen eightene.

Bhosia of the children of Merari had children, Simri the chieft: for 5 firstborne was not there, therfore dyd his father appoynte him to be chieft, the secōde helchias, 5 thirde Tebalia, 5 fourth Zacharias. All the children and brethren of Hosia were thirtene.

This is the ordinaunce of the dorekeepers amonge the heades of the valeaunt men in the offyce besyde their brethren, to mynister in the house of the LORDE. And the lot was cast for the small as for 3 greate thorow out the house of their fathers at every doie. The lot towarde the East fell vpon Meselomia. And the lot was cast for Zacharias his sonne, which was a man of prudent counsell, 2 vnto him it fell towarde the North: And vnto Obededom towarde the South, and vnto his sonnes besyde the house of Esupim. And vnto Supim and Hosia towarde the West by the gate of Salechet in the strete of the burnt offerings, where the tabernacles stood together.

Towarde the East were there sixte of the Leuites. Towarde the north foure on 5 tyme. Towarde the south foure on the day season likewise. Besyde Esupim two 2 tyme. By Parbar westwarde were there foure in the strete, and two besyde Parbar. These are the ordinaunces of the dorekeepers amonge the children of the Korahytes, and the children of Merari. Of the Leuites, was Abia ouer the treasures of the house of God, and ouer the treasures that were sanctified.

Of the children of Laedan, the child of the Gersonites. Of Laedan were these the heades of the fathers, namely 3 Jehielim. The children of the Jehielites were, Sethi and his brother Joel ouer the treasures of the house of the LORDE. Amonge the Ammites, Jezecharites, Hebronites and Vithites, was Sebul the sonne of Gerson the sonne of Moses, pryncce ouer the treasures. His brother Elieser had a sonne Rehobia, whose sonne was Jesaia, whose sonne was Joia, whose sonne was Sichri, whose sonne was Selomith: the same Selomith and his brethren were ouer all the treasures of the things that were halowed, which Kinge David halowed, and the pryncipall of the fathers amonge the rulers ouer thousandes 2 was hundreds, and rulers in the host (of warre) and spoiles had they halowed it, to repay the house of the LORDE and ouer all 3 Samuel the Seer, and Saul the sonne of Elia, Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of Zeruija had halowed: what soeuer was sanctified, it was vnder the hande of Selomith and his brethren. Amonge the Jezecharites was Chenania with his sonnes for the worke without ouer Israel, offycers 2 Judges. Amonge the Hebronites was Hasabia 2 his brethren, valeaunt men, a thousande and seven hundred, ouer the effyces of Israel on this syde Jordane westwarde for all maner worke of the LORDE, and to serue the Kinge.

But amonge the Hebronites was Joia the chieft amonge the Hebronites of hundred amonge the fathers. And search was made amonge them, and in the fortieth year of Kinge David there were founde valeaunt men at Jafer in Gilead, and their brethren mightie men, two thousande and seven hundred.

with pryncipall fathers, and David set the ouer the Rubenites, Gadites, and ouer the halfe trybe of Manasses, for all such busynesse as belonged vnto God and the Kinge.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

The children of Israel accordinge to their nombre, were heades of the fathers, and ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, 2 officers waytinge vpon the Kinge, to go of 2 on after their course euery moneth one, in all 3 monethes of 3 years. Euery course had foure 2 twentye thousande.

Ouer the first course of the first moneth, was Jasebeam 3 sonne of Sabdiel, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande. Of the children of Phares was the pryncipall amonge all the chiefe captaynes in the first moneth.

Ouer the course of the seconde moneth was Dodai the Ahobite, and Mikloth was the pryncce ouer his course. And vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The thirde pryncipall capteyne of the thirde moneth, was Benaia the sonne of Joia 3 priest, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande. This is 3 Benaia the Worthie amonge thirtie and aboue thirtie. And his course was vnder his sonne Ammi Sabad.

The fourth in 3 fourth moneth was Asahel the brother of Joab, and Sabadiah his sonne after him, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The fifth in the fifth moneth was Samehu the Jethahite, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The sixte in the sixte moneth, was Ira 3 sonne of Jades the Thecoite, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The seventh in the seventh moneth, was Helez the pelomite of the children of Ephraim, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The eight in the eighth moneth, was Sibechai the Gushathite of 3 Sarchites, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The nyenth in the nyenth moneth, was Abieser the Anthothite of the childre of Jeimini, 2 vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The tenth in the tenth moneth, was Maheai the Metopharite of the Serahites, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The eleuenth in the eleuenth moneth, was Benaia the Pirgathomite of the children of Ephraim, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

The twoluenth in the twoluenth moneth was Heldai 3 Metopharite of Arhniel, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

Ouer the trybes of Israel were these: Amonge the Rubenites was Prynce Elieser the sonne of Sichri. Amonge the Simeonites was Sephatia the sonne of Maecha. Amonge the Leuites was Hasabia the sonne of Amuel. Amonge the Aaronites was Sadoc. Amonge Juda was Elihu one of Davids brethren. Amonge Isachar was Amri the sonne of Michael. Amonge Zabulō was Jesmaia the sonne of Obadia. Amonge Nephtali was Jeremoth the sonne of Asriel. Amonge the children of Ephraim was Hosea the sonne of Asisla. Amonge the halfe trybe of Manasses was Joel the sonne of Pedai. Amonge the halfe trybe of Manasses in Gilead was Jetbo the sonne of Zacharias. Amonge Ben Jamin was Jaefiel the sonne of Abner. Amonge Dan was Asarel the sonne of Jeroham. These are the princes of the trybes of Israel.

But David toke not the nombre of them that were twentye years olde and there vnder: for the LORDE had promysed to multiplye Israel as the starres of the skie. Howbeit Joab the sonne of Zeruija had begonne to nombre them, and perfourmed it not: for there came wrath vpon Israel for the same cause, therfore came not the nombre in to 3 Cronicles of Kinge David.

Ouer the Kinges treasures was Asma 3 with the sonne of Adiel. And ouer the treasures in the lode, in the cities, villages and castels was Jonathan the sonne of Osa. Ouer the husbandmen to till the londe was Esri the sonne of Chelub. Ouer the vynyardes was Simei the Ramathite. Ouer the wyne Cellers and treasures of wyne was Sabdi the Siphumite. Ouer the oyle gardens and Molbery trees in the lowe felde, was Baal Hanan the Gaderite. Ouer the treasure of the oyle was Joas. Ouer 5 open of the pasture at Saron was Sitari the Saronite. Ouer the open in the valleys was Saphath the sonne of Adlai.

Ouer the Camels was Obil the Ismaelite. Ouer the asses was Jehethia the Meronothite. Ouer the shepe was Jasis the Hagarite. All these were rulers ouer Kinge Davids goodes. Jonathan Davids vncle was of the counsell a wyse man and a scribe. And Jehiel the sonne of Zachmon

^{1. Re. 4. d} was with the kynges children. Achitophel also was of the kynges counsell. Hui the Arachite was the kynges frende. After Achitophel was Jorada & sonne of Benaiia and Abiathar. As for Joab, he was the kynges chiefe captayne of warre.

The XXIX. Chapter.

^{1. Re. 7. a} ^{1. Par. 23. b} And David gathered vnto Jerusalem all the rulers of Israel, namely & prynces of the trybes, the rulers ouer the courses, which wayted vpon the kyng, the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, the rulers ouer the goodes and catell of the kyng and of his sonnes, with the chāberlaines, warryers and valeaunt men. And David the kyng stode vp vpon his feet, and saide: Heare me my brethien and my people: I was mynded to buylde an house, where the Arke of the conuauant of the LORDE shulde rest, and a fore stole for the feet of oure God, and prepared my selfe for to buylde. But God sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not buylde an house vnto my name, for thou art a man of warre, and hast shed bloude.

^{1. Re. 16. a} ^{1. Ge. 49. b} ^{1. Par. 5. a} Now hath the LORDE God of Israel chosen me out of all my fathers house, & I shulde be kyng ouer Israel: for Iuda hath he chosen to be the prynce, and in the house of Iuda amonge my fathers children hath he had pleasure vnto me, to make me kyng ouer all Israel: and amonge all my sonnes (for the LORDE hath geuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to sit vpon the seate of the kyngdome of the LORDE ouer Israel, and hath sayde vnto me: Salomon thy sonne shall buylde me an house and my courtes: for I haue chosen him to be my sonne, & I wil be his father, & wyll stablishe his kyngdome for euer, yf he be constant to do after my commaundementes and lawes, as it is this daye. Now in the sight of all Israel the congregacion of the LORDE, and in the eares of oure God, se that ye obserue and seke all the commaundementes of the LORDE yd God, that ye maye possesse this good londe and that ye and youre children maie haue & inheritaunce therof for euer.

^{1. Par. 19. b} ^{1. Par. 6. b} And thou my sonne Salomon, knowe thou the God of thy father, and serue him with all thy hert, and with the desyre of thy soule: for the LORDE searchech all hertes, and vnderstondech all thoughtes & ymaginacions. If thou seke him, thou shalt fynde him: but yf thou forsake him, he shall refuse the for euer. Take heede now, for the LORDE hath chosen the, to buylde an house to be the Sanctuary: be stronge, and make it.

And David gaue Salomon his sonne patrone of the porche, and of his house, of the celles and perlers and ynnermembers, and of the house of the Mercys: of all that he had in his mynde, namely the courtes of the LORDES house, and of the oratories rounde aboute the treasures of house of God, and of the treasures of things as were halowed, of the ordinaunces of the prestes, and Levites, and of all busynesse of the offyces in the house of the LORDE.

Golde (gaue he him) after & golde weyght for all maner of vessels of euery offyce, and all siluer ornaments after the weyght of all maner of vessell of euery offyce: and weyght for the golden candilsticks and golden lampes, for euery candilstick and his lampes his weyght: likewise for the siluer candilsticks gaue he the weight to the candilsticks his lampes, accordyng as was requyred for euery candilstick. He gaue golde also for tables of the shewbred, for euery table his weight: and siluer lyke wise for the siluer tables. And pure golde for the flesholders, besens and censors: and for the golden cuppes vnto euery cuppe his weight: and for the silver cuppes, vnto euery cuppe his weight: and for the alcaire of incense his weight, of the most pure golde.

And a patrone of the charatt of the golden Cherubins, that they mighte spredde them selues, and couer the Arke of the conuauant of the LORDE. All this is geuen in wytyng of the hande of the LORDE, to make me vnderstonde all the workes of the patrone.

And David sayde vnto Salomon his sonne: Be thou manly and stronge, and make, feare not, and be not faynt hearted, the LORDE God my God shal be with the, and shal nos with drawe his hande, ner sayle the: thou haue fynished euery worke for the seate in the house of the LORDE. Beholde, the courses of the prestes and Levites to all the offyces in the house of God are with the: euery worke, and are willinge, and haue done to all the offyces: and so haue the prestes and all the people for euery thinge that thou hast to do.

The XXX. Chapter.

^{1. Re. 16. a} ^{1. Ge. 49. b} ^{1. Par. 5. a} And kyng David sayde vnto all the congregacion: God hath chosen Salomon one of my sonnes, which yet is yonge and tender. But the worke is great: for it is not a mans palace, but the LORDE Gods. Yet haue I after all my abilitie pre-red vnto the house of God, golde for the vessels of golde, siluer for them of siluer, brasse for them of brasse, yron for the of yron, wood for them of wood, Onix stones, set Rubies, & stones of dyuerse coloures, & all precious stones, & Marble stones in multitude. Besydes this, for the good wyl & I haue to the house of God, I haue of myne awne proper good the M. talentes of golde of Ophir, & seven M. talentes of pure siluer, which I geue vnto the holy house of God, besyde all & I haue prepared, to overlaye & walles of the house, & the same which ought to be of golde, maye be of golde: & that it which ought to be of siluer, maye be of siluer: and for all maner of worke by the hande of the craftesmen. And who is now fre wyllinge, to fyll his hande this daye vnto the LORDE?

^{1. Re. 16. a} ^{1. Ge. 49. b} ^{1. Par. 5. a} Then were the prynces of the fathers, & prynces of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes, the rulers ouer the kynges busynesse, fre wyllinge, & gaue to & mynistracion in the house of God fyne M. talentes of golde, and ten M. gulden, and ten M. talentes of siluer, eightene M. talentes of brasse, and an hundred M. talentes of yron. And by whom so euer were founde stones, they gaue them to the treasure of the house of the LORDE, vnder the hāde of Jehiel the Gersonite.

And & people were glad that they were fre wyllinge: for they gaue it w a good wyl (euen with all their hert) vnto the LORDE. And David also & kyng reioysed greatly, and praysed God, and sayde before the whole congregacion: praysed be thou O LORDE God of Israel oure father, vnto the belongeth worshippe and power, glory, victory & thanks: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thine: thine is & kyngdome, and thou art exalted aboue all prynces. Thine are riches and honoure before & thou reignest ouer all, in thy hande consisteth power and might, in thy hāde is it to make euery man greate and stronge.

^{1. Re. 16. a} ^{1. Ge. 49. b} ^{1. Par. 5. a} Now take we the oure God, and prayse & name of thy glory: for who am I? What is my people? that we shulde be able with a fre wyl to offre, as this is done? For of the cometh all, and of thy hande haue we geuen it the: for we are but pilgrims & straungers before the, as were all oure fathers. On telye vpon earth is as a shadowe, and here is no abydinge. O LORDE oure God, all this abundance that we haue prepared to buylde the an house vnto thy name, came of thy hande, and is thine all together. I knowe my God, that thou tryest the hert, and that vnsaynednes is acceptable vnto the: therefore haue I geue all this with an vnsayned hert, eue with a good wyl, and now haue I had ioye to se thy people (which here are present) offre with a fre wyl vnto the. O LORDE God of oure fathers Abraham, Isaac, & Israel, kepethen euermore such purposes and thoughtes in & hertes of thy people, & prepare thou their hertes vnto the. And graunte my sonne Salomon a perfecte hert, that he maye kepe thy commaundementes, thy testimonies, & thy statutes, that he maye do all, & buylde this palace, which I haue prepared.

And David sayde vnto the whole congregacion: O prayse the LORDE yd God. And all the congregacion praysed & LORDE God of their fathers, & bowed them selues, & we shipped the LORDE & then the kyng, and offred sacrifices vnto the LORDE. And on y nexte morow offred they burnt offrynges, a M. bullockes, a M. rāmes, a M. lābes to their drynt offrynges, & plenteously offred they amonge all Israel. And they ate and drank the same daie before the LORDE with greate ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of David kyng & seconde tyme, and anoynted him to be & prynce for the LORDE, & Sadocto be the prest.

Thus sat Salomon vpon the seate of & LORDE, kyng in his fathers steade, & prospered. And all Israel obeyed him, & all & rulers & mightie men, & all kyng Davids children submytted than selues vnto kyng Salomon. And & LORDE made Salomon excellent & greate in & sight of all Israel, & and gaue him such a glorious kyngdome, as none had before him ouer Israel.

So had David now bene kyng ouer all Israel. And & tyme that he was kyng ouer Israel, is fortye yeares: At Hebron reigned he seven yeares, and at Jerusalem thie & thirtie yeares, & dyed in a good age, full of dayes, riches and honoure. And Salomon his sonne was kyng in his steade.

These actes of kyng David (both & first and last) beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the actes of Samuel the Seer, and amonge the actes of the prephet Nathan, and amonge the actes of Gad the Seer, with all his kyngdome, power and tymes which passed vnder him, both vpon Israel & vpon all the kyngdomes of the earth.

The first Chapter.

And Salomon the sonne of David was established in his kyngdome, and the LORD his God was with him, & made him exceeding greate. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the captaines ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, to the Judges, and to all the princes in Israel, and to the chiefe fathers, that they wente (Salomon and the whole congregacion with him) vnto the hye place which was at Gibeon: for there was the Tabernacle of witnessse of God, which Moses the seruaunt of the LORD had made in the wyldernes. For David had brought vnto the Arke of God from Kirjath Jearim, when he had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem. As for the brasen altare which Bezaleel the sonne of Dauid the sonne of Hur had made, it was there before the habitation of the LORD: and Salomon and the congregacion soughte God. And Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerynges vnto the brasen altare that stood before the Tabernacle of witnessse.

In the same night appeared God vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto him: Aie, what shal I geue thee? And Salomon sayde vnto God: Thou hast done greate mercy vnto my father David, and hast made me kyng in his steade. Now, O LORD God, let me not be that thou hast promised vnto my father

David, be verified, for thou hast made me kyng over a people, which is as many in number as the dust vpon the earth. Graunte me wysdome therfore and knowlege, & I maye go out and in before this people: for who is able to iudge this greate people of thine?

Then sayde God vnto Salomon: For so much as thou art so mynded, and hast not desired riches, ner good, ner honoure, ner the foules of thine enemies, ner longe life, but hast required wysdome and knowlege, to iudge my people, over whom I haue made the kyng, wysdome therfore and knowlege be geunte thee. Moreover, riches & good and honoure wyll I geue thee, so that such one as thou hath not bene before the amogge the kynges, ner shall be after thee.

So came Salomon from the hye place (which was at Gibeon) vnto Jerusalem from the Tabernacle of witnessse, and reigned ouer Israel. And Salomon gathered him charrettes and hoysmen, so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charrettes, & twolue thousande hoysmen: and those appoynted he to be in the charret cities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem. And the kyng broughte it so to passe, that there was as much syluer & golde at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as the Molberyes trees, that are in the valleys. And there were hoyses broughte vnto Salomon out of Egypt, & the kynges marchauntes fetcheth them from Aena for monye. And they came vp, and broughte out of Egypt a charret for sixe hundred syluer pces, and an horse for an hundred and fiftye. Thus broughte they also vnto all the kynges of the Hethites, and to the kynges of the Syrians.

The II. Chapter.

And Salomon thoughte to buyde an house vnto the name of the LORD, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out the score and ten thousande men to beare burthens, and foure score thousande that hewed tymber vnto the mount, and thre thousande and sixe hundred officers ouer them. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram the kyng of Tyre, sayenge: As thou dydest with my father, & senddest him Cedar trees, to builde an house for to dwell in (euen so do thou send me also). Beholde, I wyll buyde an house vnto the name of the LORD my God, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before him, and allwaye to prepare shewbread, and burnt offerynges in the mornynge and in the euenynge, on the Sabbathes & New moones, and solempne feastes of the LORD.

oure God enernoure for Israel.

And the house that I wyll buyde, shal be greate: for our God is greater then all goddes. But who is able to buyde him an house? For heauen & the heauens of all heauens maye not cōprehende him. Who am I then, that I shulde buyde him an house? But onely for this intent to burne incense before him.

Seke me now therfore a wyse mā to worke with golde, syluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, purple, yallow sylke, and such one as can graue carued worke with the wyse men that are with me in Iavry and Jerusalem, whom my father David ordeyned. And sende me tymber of Cedar, pyne tre and costely wodde from Libanus: for I knowe that thy seruantes can hewe tymber vpon Libanus. And beholde, my seruantes shalbe with thy seruantes, to prepare memoch tymber: for the house that I wyll buyde, shalbe greate & marvellous goodly.

And beholde, I wyll geue vnto the carpenters thy seruantes which hewe the tymber, twetye thousande quarters, of beaten wheate, and twentye thousande quarters of barley, and twentye thousande Batthes of wyne, and twentye thousande Batthes of oyle.

Then sayde Hiram the kyng of Tyre by wytyng, and sent it vnto Salomon: Because the LORD loneth his people, therfore hath he made the to be kyng ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreover: Praises be to the LORD God of Israel, which made heauen earth, that he hath geue kyng David a wyse and prudent sonne, and such one as hath vnderstandynge to buyde an house vnto the LORD, & an house for his realme. Therfore sende I now a wyse man that hath vnderstandynge, euen Hiram Abi (which is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was of Tyre) which can worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone, tymber, scarlet, yallowe sylke, linnen, purple and to carue all maner of thinges, and to make what cōnyng thinge so ever is geuen him, with thy wyse men, and with the wyse men of my lord kyng David thy father. And now let my lord sende the wheate, barley, oyle and wyne vnto his seruantes, acordynge as he hath sayde, and so wyll we hewe thy tymber vpon Libanus, as much as thou nedest, and wyll brynge it by fletes in the Sea vnto Japho, from whence thou mayest brynge it vp to Jerusalem.

And Salomon nombred all the strangers in the londe of Israel, acordynge to the nombre whan David his father nombred them: and there were founde an hundred and fiftie thousande, thre thousande and sixe hundred. And of the same he made thre score and tenthousande beares of burthens, and foure score thousande hewers vpon mount, and thre thousande and sixe hundred over-seers, which helde þ people at their worke.

The III. Chapter.

AND Salomon beganne to buylde the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem vpon the mount Moria, that was shewed vnto David his father, which David had prepared for the rowme, vpon the corne floore of Arnan the Jebusite. In the seconde daye of the seconde moneth in the fourth yere of his reigne began he to buylde. And so layed Salomon the foundation to buylde the house of God: first the length thre score cubytes, the bredth twentye cubytes: and the porche before the wydenes of the house, was twentye cubytes longe, but the heighe was an hundred and twentye, and he overlaid it on the ynsyde with pure golde.

But the greates house fylde he with py-netre, and overlaid it with the best golde, and made palme trees and thronne worke thereon, and overlaid the house with precious stones to beautifye it. As for the golde, it was golde of Paruaim. And the baltes and postes aboue, and the walles, and the dores of it overlaid he with golde, and caused Cherubins to be carued on the walles.

He made also the house of the Most holy, whose length was twentye cubytes accordinge to the wydenesse of the house: and the bredth of it was twentye cubytes likewise, and he overlaid it with the best golde by sixe hundred talentes. And for males he gaue fiftie Sicles of golde in weighe, and overlaid the chambers with golde. He made also in the house of the most holy, two Cherubins of carued worke, and overlaid them with golde: and the length on the wynges of the Cherubins, so that one wyng had fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house: and the other wyng had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub.

¶ Euen so had one wyng of the other Cherub fyue cubytes likewise, and touched the wall of the house: and his other wyng had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub: so that these wynges of the Cherubins were spred out twentye cubi-tes wyde. And they stode vpon their feet, and their face was turned to the house worke. He made a vayne also of yalow fyke, scilicet, purple and lynwoike, and made Cherubins thereon. And before the house he made two pilers fyue and thirtie cubites longe, and the knoppes aboue thereon, fyue cubytes. And he made thronne worke for the quere, and put it aboue vpon the pilers: and made an hundred pomgranates, and put them on the wythien worke. And he set vpon the pilers before the temple, the one on the righte honde, and the other on the lefte: and that on the righte honde called he Jachin, and that on the lefte honde called he Boos.

The III. Chapter.

HE made a brasen altare also, twentye cubytes longe, and twentye cubytes brode, and ten cubytes hye. And he made a molten lauer ten cubites wyde, the one syde to the other rounde aboue, and fyue cubytes hye. And a metelyne of thirtie cubites mighte comprehend it aboue. And ymages of Bullockes were vnder it. And aboue the lauer (which was ten cubites wyde) there were two rowes of knoppes, þ were molten withall.

It stode so vpon the bullockes, that they were turned toward the north, the corner toward the west, thre toward the south, and thre toward the east, and the lauer aboue vpon them, and all their hynder partes were on the ynsyde. The thiknesse of it was an hand bredth, and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose. And it cōteyned thre thousande Bathes.

And he made ten ketels, wherof he sette one on the righte hande and fyue on the lefte, to washe in them such thinges as belonged to the burnt offeringe, that they mighte chynse them therein: but þ lauer (made he) for the prestes to wash in.

Ten golden candelstickes made he also as they ought to be, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made ten tables, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made an hundred basens of golde. He made a court likewise for the prestes, and a greates court, and dores in the court, and overlaid þ dores with basse. And the lauer set he on the righte syde toward the south east. And Hiram made canidous, shouels and basens.

So Hiram fynished the worke which he made for kynge Salomon in the house of God: namely the two pilers with the roundels and knoppes aboue vpon both the pilers, and both the wythien ropes to couer both the roundels of þ knoppes aboue vpon the pilers, and the foure hundred pomgranates on both the wythien ropes, two rowes of pomgranates on every rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were aboue vpon the pilers.

¶ He made the stoles also and þ ketels vpon the stoles, and a lauer, and twelue bullockes there vnder. And pottes, shouels, fleshoties, and all their vessels made Hiram Abif of pure metall for kynge Salomon vnto the house of the LORDE. In the coaste of Jordan dyde the kynge cause them to be molten in thicke earth betwene Suchoth and Zaredatha.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, that the weight of þ metall was not to be sought out. And Salomon made all the ornaments for the house of God: namely, the golden altare, the tables and the shewbrides thereon, the candelstickes with their lampes of pure golde, to burne before the Quere accordinge to the maner: and the floures and the lampes and the snuffers were of golde, all these were of pure golde.

And the knyres, basens, spones and pottes, were of pure golde. And the intrance and his dores within vnto the Most holy, and the dores of the house of the temple were of golde. Thus was all þ worke fynished, which Salomon made in the house of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

AND Salomon broughte in all þ his father David had sanctified, namely, syluer and golde, and all maner of ornaments, and layed them in the treasures of the house of God. The gathered Salomon all the Elders in Israel together, all þ heades of the trybes, prynces of the fathers amonge the childre of Israel vnto Jerusalem, to bringe vpon the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the cite of David, that is Sion. And there resorted vnto the kynge all the men in Israel at the feast, that is in the fourth moneth, and all þ Elders in Israel came.

And þ Levites toke the Arke, and brought it vpon the Tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that were in the Tabernacle: and þ prestes and Levites brought them vpon. As for kynge Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that was gathered vnto him before the Arke, they offered shepe and oxen, so many, that no man coulde nombre ner reken them.

Thus the prestes broughte the Arke of þ couenaunt of the LORDE vnto hir place in to the quere of the house, euen in to þ Most holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubins, so that the Cherubins spied out their wynges ouer the place of the Arke: and the Cherubins covered the Arke and the staves thereof from aboue. And the staves were so longe, þ the knoppes of them were sene from the Arke before the quere, but on the outside were they not sene. And it was there vnto this daye. And there was no thinge in the Arke, save the two tables, which Moses put ther in at Horeb, whan the LORDE made a couenaunt with the childre of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of Egipte.

And whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for all þ prestes that were founde, sanctified them selues, because the courses were not kepte) the Levites with all those that were vnder Asaph, Heman, Jedithun and their children and brethren, beyng clothed in lynnen, songe with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes, and stode toward the east parte of the altare, and an hundred and twentye prestes with them, which blew þ trompettes. And it was, as yf one dyd trompet and synge, as though a voyce had bene herde of praylinge and genynge thankes vnto the LORDE.

And whan the voyce arose from þ trompettes, cymbales and other instrumentes of musick, and from praylinge the LORDE (because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for ever) the house of the LORDE was fylled on the ynsyde with a cloude, so þ the prestes coulde not stonde to mynister for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled the house of God.

The VI. Chapter.

Then sayde Salomon: The LORDE shall sayde, that he wolde dwell in a darke cloude: I haue buylde an house to be an habitacion vnto thee: a seate, þ thou mayest dwell there for ever. And the kynge turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel: for the whole congregacion of Israel stode, and he sayde: Praise be the LORDE God of Israel, which promysed by his mouth vnto my father David, and with his hande hath fulfilled it, whan he sayde: See the tyme that I broughte my people out of the lande of Egipte, I haue chosen no cite in all þ trybes of Israel, to buylde an hon-

Par. 7. c. se for my name to be there, neither have I chosen any man to be prince over my people of Israel. But Jerusalem have I chosen, for my name to be there: David have I elected, to be prince over my people of Israel.

B And when my father David was minded to buyde an house unto the name of the LORDE God of Israel, the LORDE sayde unto David my father: Where as thou wast minded to buyde an house unto my name, thou hast done well: howbeit thou shalt not buyde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, shall buyde the house unto my name.

Thus hath the LORDE now performed his worde, that he spake: for I am come up in my father Davids steade, and sit upon the seate of Israel, even as the LORDE sayde, and have buyded an house unto the name of the LORDE God of Israel, and in it have I put the Ark, wherein is the covenant of the LORDE, which he made with the childre of Israel.

C And he stode before the altare of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and spred out his handes: for Salomon had made a brasen pulpit, and set it in the myddes of the courte, fyve cubites longe, and fyve cubites brode, and thre cubites hye: upon the same stode he, and fell down upon his knees in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and helde out his handes toward heave and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, there is no god like the, neither in heauen ner upon earth, thou hast kept covenant and mercy for thy seruantes, that walke before the with all their hert. Thou hast kept promises to my father David thy seruante: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel, make good unto my father David thy seruante, that which thou hast promysed him, and sayde: Thou shalt not want a man before me, to sit upon the seate of Israel: yf thy children kepe their waye, so that they walke in my lawe, like as thou hast walked before me: Now LORDE God of Israel, let thy worde be verified, which thou hast promysed unto David thy seruante.

D For thinkest thou that God in very dede dwelleth amonge men upon earth? Behold holde, the heauen and the heavens of all heavens maye not conteyne the: how shulde then this house do it, which I have buyded? But turne the unto the prayer of thy seruante, and to his supplicacion (O LORDE my God) that thou mayest heare the thankesgivinge and prayer, which thy seruante maketh before the, so that thine eyes be open over the house daye and night, even over this place (wherein thou saydest thou wouldest sit) that thou mayest heare the prayer which thy seruante shall make in this place: heare now therfore the intercession of thy seruante and of thy people of Israel, who so ever they shall besyre in this place: heare thou it from the place of thy habitation from heauen: and when thou hearest, be mercifull.

When any man synneth agaynst his neighbour, and an oath be put upon him which he ought to sweare, and the oath cometh before thine altare in this house, then heare thou from heauen, and send thy seruante to be righte, so that thou reward the vngodly, and recompence him his waye upon his own heade, and to iustifye the righteous, and geue him accordinge to his righteousness.

When thy people of Israel is synfull for their enemies (while they have synned agaynst the) and yf they turne unto the, and knowlege thy name, and make their prayer and intercession before the in this house, then heare thou them from heauen, and be mercifull unto the synne of thy people of Israel: bringe them agayne into the lande, which thou hast geuen them and their fathers.

When the heauen is shut up, so that rayne not (for so much as they have synned agaynst the) and yf they make their prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, and come from their synnes (when thou hast brought them lowe) heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull unto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel: that thou mayest teach them the good way wherein they shulde walke, and let us ray upon thy lande which thou hast geuen thy people to possesse.

When a dearth, or pestilence, or drought, or blastinge, or greshopper, or caterpillar, or the like: or when their enemye layeth siege to their portes in the lande, or when any plague or disease happeneth, or when any man maketh his prayer or petition amonge any manner of men, or amonge all thy people of Israel, yf any man fele his plague and distress, and spredeth out his handes unto the, then heare thou them from heauen, even from the seate of thy habitation, and be mercifull: and geue every man accordinge to all his wayes, in so much as thou knowest his heart (for thou onely knowest the hert of the children of men) that they maye feare the, and waye walke in thy wayes, as long as they live in the lande, which thou hast geuen unto our fathers.

And when any straunger which is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countre because of thy greates name, and mightie hande, and out stretched arme, and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then from heave, even from the seate of thy habitation: and do all for which that straunger calleth vpon the, that all the nacions vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how this house which I have buyded, is named after thy name.

When thy people go forth to battayll agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye unto the toward the waye of this cite which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have buyded unto thy name, heare thou their prayer and petition from heauen, and helpe them to their righte.

When they synne agaynst the (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be wroth at them, and geue them over before their enemyes, so that they cary them awaye captiue into a countre farre offe, and yf they turne within their herres in the lande where they are prisoners, and so conuerte, and make their intercession unto the in the lande of their captiuite, and saye: We have synned, and done amysse, and have bene vngodly: and so turne themselves unto the with all their hert and with all their soule in the lande of their captiuite, wherein they are prisoners: and make their prayer toward the waye of their owne lande, which thou gauest unto their fathers, and toward the cite which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have buyded unto thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication from heauen, even from the seate of thy dwellinge, and helpe them to their righte, and be mercifull unto thy people that have synned agaynst the. My God, let thine eyes now be open, and let thine eares geue heede unto prayer in this place. Arise now O LORDE God unto thy restinge place, thou and the Ark of thy strength. Let thy prestes O LORDE God be clothed with health, and let thy sayentes reioyse over this good. LORDE God, turne not awaye the face of thine anointed: thinke vpon the mercies of thy seruante David.

The VII. Chapter.

Unto which Salomō had ended his prayer, there fell a fyre from heauen, and consumed the burnt offeringe and the other offeringes. And the glory of the LORDE filled the house, so that the prestes coulde not go in to the house of the LORDE, while the glory of the LORDE filled the LORDES house. And all the children of Israel sawe the fyre fall downe, and the glory of the LORDE over the house: and they fell on their knees with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped, and gaue thanks unto the LORDE, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for ever. As for the kinge and all the people, they offered before the LORDE.

For kinge Salomon offered two and twentie thousand bullockes, and an hundred thousand and twentie thousand shepe, and so both the kinge and all the people dedicated the house of God.

But the prestes stode in their watches, and the Levites with the musically instrumentes of the LORDE, which kinge David had caused to make for to geue thanks unto the LORDE, (because his mercy endureth for ever) the psalmes of David chorow their hant. And the prestes blew trumpettes over agaynst them, and all Israel stode.

And Salomon halowed the myddelmōst courte, which was before the house of the LORDE, for there prepared he the burnt offerings and the fat of the slayne offeringes: for the brasen altare that Salomon made, might not conteyne all the burnt offerings, meat offerings, and the fat.

And at the same tyme helde Salomon a feast seven daies longe, and all Israel with him a very greates congregacion, from Hamath unto the ryuer of Egypte, and on the eight daye helde he a conuocation. For the dedicacion of the altare helde they seven daies, and the feast seven dayes also.

But on the thre and twentyeth daye of the seventh month he let the people go unto their tentes ioyfull and with merry herres because of all the good, that the LORDE had done unto David, unto Salomō, and to his people of Israel.

Thus synished Salomō the house of the LORDE, and the kinges house, and all that came in his hert to make in the house of the LORDE, and in his owne house, prosperously. And the LORDE appeared unto Salomon in the night season, and sayde unto him: I have herde thy prayer, and chosen this place unto my selfe for an house of sacrifice.

Beholde, when I shut the heauē so & it raine not, or commaunde the gresshopper to consume the londe, or cause a pestilence to come amonge my people, to humble my people, which is named after my name: and yf they praye, and seke my face, and turne from their euell wayes, the wyl I heare them from heauen, and wyl forgive their sinne, and heale their londe. So shal myne eyes now be open, and myne eares shal be attente vnto prayer in this place. Thus haue I now chosen this house, and sanctified it, that my name maye be there for ever: and myne eyes and my hert shal allwaye be there.

D And yf thou walke before me, as thy father David walked, so that thou do all that I commaunde the, and kepe myne ordinances and lawes, then wyl I stablishe the seate of thy kyngdome, acordynge as I promysed thy father David, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man to be lorde ouer Israel. But yf ye turne backe, and forsake myne ordynances and commaundementes which I haue layed before you, and so go youre waye, and serue other goddes, and worshippe them, the wyl I rote you out of my londe that I haue geuen you: and this house which I haue sanctified vnto my name, wyl I cast awaye out of my presence, and geue it ouer to be a byworde and fabel amōge all nations. And every one that goeth by, shall be astonnyed at this hye house, and shall hyffe at it, and saye: Wherefore hath the LORDE dealt thus with this londe and with this house? Then shall it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the LORDE God of their fathers (which brought them out of the londe of Egypte) & haue cleued vnto other goddes, & worshipped them, and serued the: therefore hath he brought all this euell vpon the.

The viii. Chapter.

After twentye yeares (wherin Salomon buylded the house of the LORDE and his awne house) he buylded the cyties also which Hiram gaue vnto Salomon, and caused the children of Israel to dwell therein. And Salomon wente vnto Zemarath Zoba, and made it stronge, and buylded Thadmor in the wyldernes, and all the cornecities which he buylded in Zemarath. He buylded the upper and lower Bethoron likewise, so that they were stronge cities w walles, portes and barres. And Baelath, and all the cornecities which Salomon had, and all the cities of the charettes and of the horse men, and all that Salomon had lust to buylde, both at Jerusalem and vpon Li-bannus, and in all the londe of his domion.

All the remnant of the people of the chities, Amouites, pheresites, Henites, Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, and their children which they had lefte behynde them in the londe, (whom the children of Israel had not utterly destroyed) those dyd Salomon make trybutaries vnto this daye. As for the children of Israel, Salomon made no bondmen of them vnto worke, but they were men of warre, and of capraynes, and ouer his charettes & horse men. And the chiefe of kyng Salomons officers were two hundred and fyftee, which ruled the people.

And Salomon caused Pharaos daughter to be fetchd vp out of the cite of Damasco into the house that he had buylded for her: for he sayde: My wyfe shall not dwell in the house of David the kyng of Israel, for it is sanctified, in as much as yf Aste of the LORDE is come into it.

Then offered Salomon burnt offerings vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES altare, which he had buylded before the porte, every one vpon his daye to offre after the commaundement of Moses, on the Sabbathes, Newmones & at the appoynted seasons of the yere, euenthyetymes, namely in yf fast of vntended bled, in the feast of weter, & in the feast of Tabernacles.

And he set the prestes in ordre to their ministracion: acordynge as David his father had appoynted, and the Leuites in their offces, to geue thanks and to minister in the presence of the prestes, every one vpon his daye. And the doctepers in their courses, every one at his dore, for so had David the m of God commaunded.

And they departed not from the kyngs commaundement ouer the prestes and Leuites in euery matter and in the treasures. Thus was all Salomons busynesse made ready, from the daye that the foundation of the LORDES house was layed, tyll it was finished, so that the house of the LORDE was all prepared.

Then wente Salomon vnto Ezeon Geber, and vnto Elath by the See syde in the londe of Edomea. And Hiram sent him shippes by his seruantes which had knowledge of the See, and they wente with Salomons seruantes vnto Ophir, and fetchd from thence foure hundred and fyftee talentes of golde, and broughte it vnto kyng Salomon.

The ix. Chapter.

After the queene of rich Arabia herbe the same of Salomon, she came with a very greate tryne to Jerusalem (with Camels that bare spyces and golde, and pacious stones) to proue Salomon with darke sentences. And when she came vnto Salomon, she spake vnto him all that she had denykd in hir mynde. And the kyng tolde her all hir matters, & Salomon had nothinge in secrete, but he tolde it her.

And when the Queene of riche Arabia sawe the wysdome of Salomon, and yf howe that he had buylded, the meates of his table, the dwellinges of his seruantes, yf offices of his mynisters and their garmentes, & his butlers and their apparell, and his parlar where he wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, she coude no longer refrayne. And she sayde vnto the kyng: It is true that I haue herbe in my londe of thy behaueoure and of thy wysdome: howbeit I wolde not beleue their wordes, tyll I came my selfe, & sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe of thy greate wysdome hath not bene tolde me: there is more in yf then the same that I haue herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruantes, yf allwaye stonde before the, and heare thy wysdome. Prayed be the LORDE thy God, which had soch pleasure vnto the, that he hath set the vpon his seate to be kyng vnto the LORDE thy God. Because thy God loneth Israel, to set thou vp for ever, therfore hath he ordeyned yf to be kyng ouer them, that thou shuldest mayntayne iustice and equitye.

And she gaue yf kyng an hundred and twentye talentes of golde, & very much spyce & pacious stones. There were no mo soch spyces as these that the Queene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kyng Salomon. And Hiram's seruantes and the seruantes of Salomon, which broughte golde from Ophir, broughte costly tymbre also & pacious stones.

And of the same costly tymbre dyd Salomon cause to make staires in the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and harpes and psalteries for the Musicians. There was no soch tymbre sene before in the londe of Iuda. But kyng Salomon gaue the Queene of riche Arabia all that she desired and axed, & much more then she had broughte vnto the kyng. And she returned, and departed in to hir londe with hir seruantes.

The golde that was broughte vnto Salomon in one yere, was fyre hundred and fyre and thre score talentes, besydes that yf chap men and marchantes broughte. And all the kynges of the Arabians, and the lordes in yf londe broughte golde and syluer vnto Salomon. Of the which kyng Salomon made two hundred speares of beaten golde, & yf fyre hundred peces of beaten golde came vpon one speare: & thre hundred shildes of beaten golde, so that thre hundred peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the kyng put the in the house of the wod of Libanus.

And the kyng made a greate seate of Query, and overlaid it with pure golde: and the seate had fyre steppes, and a forestole of golde festened vnto the seate, and it had two leanyng postes vpon both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode beside the leanyng postes, and there stode twolue Lions vpon the fyre steppes on both the sides. In all realmes hath not soch one bene made.

And all kyng Salomons drynkyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels of the house of the wod of Libanus, were of pure golde: for syluer was rekened nothinge in Salomons tyme. For the kynges shippes wente vpon the See with the seruantes of Hiram, & came once in thre yere, and broughte golde, syluer, Query, Apes and peccotes.

Thus was kyng Salomon greater then all the kynges vpon earth, in riches and wysdome. And all the kynges of yf earth desired (to se) Salomons face, and to heare his wysdome, which God had geuen him in his hert. And they brought him yearly every mā his present: Jewels of syluer and golde, raymes, harness, spyces, horses and Mules.

And Salomon had foure thousande charettes, and twolue thousande horsemen, and put them in the charetcities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem. And he was lorde ouer all the kynges from the water vnto the londe of the Philistynes, and to the coaste of Egypte. And the kyng brought it so to passe, that there was as much syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as there were Molberry trees in the valleys. And there were horses broughte vnto him out of Egypte, and out of all countres.

What more thre is to saye of Salomon, both of his first and of his last, beholde, it is writen in the Cronicles of the prophet Nathan, and in the prophecies of Ahia of Silo, & in yf actes of Jeddi the Seer against Jeroboam yf sonne of Nebat. And Salomon reigned at Jerusalem ouer all Israel fortie yeres. And Salomon fell on slepe w his fathers, & was buried in the cyte of David his father. And Roboam his sonne was fige i his steade,

B And Roboam the kynge axed counsell at the Elders, which had stode before Salomon his father whyle he lyued, and he sayde: What is youre counsell, that I maye geue this people an answer? They spake vnto him, and sayde: If thou be lowynge vnto this people, and deale gently wth them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they allwaye be obedient vnto the.ouerthelesse he forsooke the counsell of the Elders that they had geuen him, and toke counsell at yonge men which were growne vp wth him, and stode before him. And he sayde vnto the: What is youre counsell, that we maye answer this people, which haue spoken vnto me, and saide: Make oure yock lighter, & thy father layed vpon vs: The yongemen & we re growne vp with him, spake vnto him, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the people, that haue talked with the & spoken: Thy father made oure yock to heuy, make thou & yock lighter, Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My litle finger shalbe thicker then my fathers loynes. If my father hath layed a heuy yock vpon you, I wyl make youre yock the more. My father chaffened you wth scourges, but I wyl beate you with scorpions.

Now whan Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam on the thirde daye (accordinge as þe Kinge sayde: Come to me againe on the thirde daie) the Kinge gaue the an harde answer. And Roboam the Kinge forsooke þe counsell of the Elders, and spake vnto the after þe yonge mens counsell, and sayde: If my father haue made yd yock to heuy, I wil make it yet heuyer. My father chastened you with scourges, but I wil beate you with scorpions. Thus the Kinge folowed not þe peoples minde: for so was it determyned of God, that þe LORDE mighte stablishe his worde, which he spake by Ahia of Silo, vnto Jeroboam þe sonne of Thebat. But whan all Israel sawe that the Kynge wolde not consente vnto them. The peple answered the kynge, and sayde : What porcion haue we then in Dauid, or inheritance in the sonne of Isai? Let every man of Irael get him to his tent. Loke thou now in thy house Dauid. And all Israel went in their tentes, so that Roboam reigned but ouer the children of Israel that dwelle in the cities of Juda. And Roboam sent forth Baram the renegatherer, but the children of Irael stoned him to deatch. And Kynge Rehoboam strengthed himselfe vpon his charret, to fy-re vnto Jerusalem. Thus fell Israel away from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

The XL Chapter.

And when Roboam came to Ierusalem, he gathered together the host of Iuda and Ben Iamin (even an hundred and foure score thousande chosenn of armes) to fyghte agaynst Israel, that they myghte brynge the kyngdome agayne vnto Roboam. But þe worde of the LORDE came to Semaia the man of God, and sayde: Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and to all Israel þat am in Iuda and Ben Iamin, and saye: Thus saith the LORDE: Ye shal not go vp, nor fyghte agaynst youre brethren: let every man go home agayne, for this is my dede. They heeded vnto the wordes of þe LORDE, and went not forth agaynst Ieroboam. As for Roboam he dwelt at Ierusalem, and buyldeð vpon stronge cities in Iuda, namely Bethle, Ekran, Teloa, Bethzur, Socho, Abdulla, Gath, Maresa, Siph, Adoraim, Laches, Ashta, Yregah, Aialon, and Hebion (which were the fenced cities in Iuda and Ben Iamin): he made them stronge, and set prynces thair, prouyded them of vytayles, oyle and wine, and in all cities prepared he shildes and speeres, and made them very stronge. And Iuda and Ben Iamin were vnder him.

The prestes and Levites also came with him out of Israel and from all the border therof, And left their suburbs & possession, and came to Juda vnto Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes expelled them, that they shulde not execute the offyce of & p^{ro}phode vnto & LORDE. But for him selfe he setted prestes to & hye places, & to feldebedes & calues, which he caused to make. And after them came there men out of all the trybes of Israel, which gaue ouer their hertes to & & LORDE God of Israel, & came to Jerusalem: for to offere vnto the LORDE God of their fathers there. And so strengthened they & kingdome.

Yuda, and mātayned Roboam the sonne of Salomen thre yeare longer: for they walked in the waye of David ⁊ Salomen thre yeares.

And Roboam toke Mabelath & doughter of Jeremoth & sonne of Dauid to wife, & Abihail the doughter of Eliab & sonne of Isai, which bare him these sonnes: Jeus, Semaria & Saham. After her toke he Maecha the doughter of Absalom, which bare him Abia, Achai Sisa and Selomich. But Roboam loved Maecha the doughter of Absalom better then all his wyues & concubynes: for he had eightene wyues and thre score concubynes, and begat eithe & twentye sonnes, and thre score doughters. And Roboam set Abia the sonne of Maecha to be heade and pryncer amonge his brechren: for he thoughte to make him kynge: for he was wyse, & more mightie then all his sonnes in all the countrees of Juda & Ben Jamin, and in all the stronge cities. And he gaue them plenteousnes of fode, and desired many wyues.

The XII. Chapter.

BUt whā the kyngdome of Roboam was confirmed and stablyshed, he forsoke the lawe of the LORDE & all Israell with him. And in the syfth yere of Roboam wete Sisack the kyng of Egipte vpon agaynst Jerusalem (for they had transgressed agaynst the LORDE) with a thousande and two hundred charyttes, and with thre score thousande horsmen, and the people were innumerable that came with him out of Egipte, Libya, Suchim & out of Ethiopia, and he wanne the stronge cities that were in Iuda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semaia y prophet vnto Ro boam and to y rulers of Iuda (which were gathered together at Ierusalem for Sisack)
z sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth y LORDE:
Ye haue leste me, therfore haue I leste you also in Sisack's hande. The rulers in Is rael with the kynge submytted them selues, and sayde: The LORDE is righteous.

But whā the LORDE sawe ꝑ they humbled themselves, ꝑ worde of the LORDE came to Sennai, & sayde: They haue humbled them selves, therfore wyl I not destroye them, but I wyl geue them a litle deliuerance, that my indignacion fall not vpon Ierusalem by Sisak: for they shalbe subdued vnto him, ꝑ
they maye knowe what it is to serue me, & to serue the kyngdomes of the worlde.

Thus wrote Sisek the kynge of Egipte vnto Ierusalem, 7 toke the treasures in the house of the LORDE, 7 the treasures in the kynge house, and carried all away, and toke

the shylde of golde, that Salomon caused to make: in steade wherof kynge Roboā made shylde of stele, and commytted the mto the chese fotemen, which kepte the doore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kynge wente in to the house of the LORDE, & foremen came & bare them, & brough hem agai-ne in to y fotemens chāber. And for so moch as he submytted himselfe, & wiarth of y LOR-DE turned fro him, so that all was not des-troied: for there was yet some good in Iuda.

Thus was Roboam the kinge stablished in Jerusalem, and reigned. One and fortys yeare olde was Roboam whā he was made kynge, and reigned seuentene yeare at Jerusalem in the cite, which the LORDE had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naama an Ammonitisse: and he did euell, and prepared not his heart to see the LORDE.

These actes of Roboam, both fyfth and last, are wrytten in the actes of Semaiā the prophet, ⁊ of Iudē the Seer, and are noted, ⁊ so are the warres that Roboam and Jeroboam had together as longe as they lyued. And Roboam fell on slepe with his fathers and was buryed in the cite of David, ⁊ Abia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XII. Chapter.

In the eighteenth yeare of Kyng Jeroboam, was Abia Kyng in Iuda, & reigned thre yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Michaia the daughter of Uriel of Gibeā. And there was warre be-twene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepared himselfe to the battayll with foure hundrieth thousande stronge chosen men of war-re. But Jeroboam made himselfe ready to fght agaynst him wth eight hundredeth thousand chosen men of strength.

And Abia gatt him vp vpon the hyll Zemaraim, which lyeth vpon mount Ephraim and sayde: Herten vnto me thou Jeroboam and all Israel: Knowe ye not that the LORD God of Israel hath geuen Dauid y^e kyngdome of Israel for ever, vnto him and his sonnes with a salt couenaunt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, the seruaunt of Salomon Dauids sonne, gat him vp & fell awaye from his lorde. And there resorted vnto him vagaboundes and children of Belial, and haue strengthened them selues against Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was but yonge and of a fearefull hert, and coulde not resist them.

Now thinke ye to see youre selues against the Kingdome of the L O R D amonge

the sonnes of David, for so much as there is so greete a multitude of you, and have 3 golden calves * 3 Jeroboam made you for gods. Have ye not expelled the prestes of the LORD the children of Aaron and the Levites; and have made you prestes of youre ownne, even as the people of the landes? Who so ever cometh to fyll his hande with a yonge bullocke and seven rammes, shal be preste unto them that are not goddes.

But with vs is 3 LORD our God, who we forsake not: and the prestes that minister unto the LORD, the children of Aaron and the Levites in their busines, and every morninge and every eveninge. Kyndle they the burnt offerynges unto the LORD, and the swete incense, and prepare the shewbryd vpon the pure table, and the golden candillsticke with his lampes, to be kyndled every eveninge: for we maye vpon the LORD our God.

As for you, ye have forsaken him. Beholde, God is the captayne of oure hoost, and with vs are his prestes, and the blowinge trompettes, to trompe agaynst you. Ye children of Israel, fight not agaynst the LORD God of yd fathers: for ye shal not prosper.

Nevertheless Jeroboam made a prieny watch on every syde, to come vpon them behynde, so that they were before Juda, and y prieny watch behynde. Now wha Juda tressed them, beholde, there was battayll before the 2 behynde. Then cryed they vnto 3 LORD, 2 the prestes tromped with the trompettes, 2 wha every man in Juda gaue a shoute, God plagued Jeroboam and Israel before Abia and Juda. And the children of Israel fled before Juda, and God gaue them in to their handes, so that Abia 2 his people dyd a greete slaughter vpon them, and there fell wounded of Israel syue hundredth thousande chosen men.

Thus were the children of Israel subdued at that tyme, but the children of Juda were comforted, for they put their trust in 3 LORD God of their fathers. And Abia followed vpon Jeroboam, and wanne cities fro him, Bethel with the villages therof, Jesana with hir villages, and Ephron with the villages therof, so that Jeroboam came nomore to strength, as longe as Abia lyued. And the LORD smote him that he dyed.

Now whan Abia was strengthened, he toke fourtene wyues, and begat two and twenty sonnes and sixtene daughters. What more there is to saye of Abia, and of his wayes and his doynges, it is wyrtten in the storye of the prophet Idoo. And Abia fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of David: and Asa his sonne was in his steade. In his tyme was the last rest ten yeaeres.

The XIII. Chapter.

Asa dyd that which was right in the sighte of the LORD God, and put awaye the straungelaters, and the hye places, and brake the lers, and hewed downe the grones, and de vnto Juda, that they shulde sette the LORD God of their fathers, and to do after the lawe and commaundementes. And the places and ymages put he awaye out of the cities of Juda: and the kyngdome rest be fore him. And he builded stryde in Juda, whyle the londe was in quietnes, whyle there was no warre agaynst him the same yeaeres: for 3 LORD gaue him rest.

And he sayde vnto Juda: Let vs worke vpon these cities, and fence them rounde abte with walles and towres, with portes and barres, while the londe is yet with vs: for we haue soughte the LORD our God, and he hath geuen vs rest on every syde. So they buylded, and it wente prosperously with them. And Asa had an hoost of me which bare speares, out of Juda thre C. thousande, and out of Ben Jamin two hundredth and fowre score thousande, that bare shyldes 2 bowes, and all these were myghtie stronge men.

But Serah the Moryan came out agaynst the 2 an hoost of a thousande and a thousande, and with thre hundredth chantee, and came vnto Maresa. And Asa went forth agaynst him. And they prepared the selues to the battayll in the valley Zephath beside Maresa. And Asa called vpon 3 LORD his God and sayde: 3 LORD, it is no ferce to 3, to helpe by fewe or by many, but pe vs O LORD our God: for oure trust is in the, 2 in thy name are we come forth agaynst this multitude. LORD our God, let no man preuaile agaynst the.

And the LORD smote the Morians before Asa and before Juda, so that they fled. And Asa with 3 people that was by him, followed vpon them vnto Gerar. And the Morians fell, so that none of them remained alyue, but were snytten before the LORD and before his hoost. And they caried exceedinge much spoyle from thence. And he smote all the cities aboute Gerar, for a fearfulness of the LORD came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cities, for there was much spoyle in them. They smote the tentes of the cattell and toke many shepe and Camels, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

The XV. Chapter.

Asa the spere of God came vpon Asa: and the sonne of Obed, which wente forth to Asa, and sayde vnto him: Heare me Asa and all Juda 2 Ben Jamin: The LORD is with you, whyle ye are with him: and yf ye sette him, he wylbe founde of you. But yf ye forsake him, he shal forsake you also. Nevertheless there shal be many dayes in Israel, that there shalbe no true God, no prest to teach, 2 no lawe. And whan they turne in their trouble vnto the LORD God of Israel, and sette him, he shalbe founde. At that tyme shal it not be well with him that geth out and in: for there shal be greete vperatures vpon all them 3 dwell on the earth. For one people shal all to smyte another, 2 one cite another: for God shal vexe them in all maner of trouble. But be ye stronge, and let not youre handes be feble: for youre worke hath his rewarde.

Whan Asa herde these wordes, and the propheciage of Asarias the sonne of Obed the prophet, he toke a corage vnto him, and put awaye the abhominacions out of all 3 londe of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cities that he had wonne vpon mount Ephraim: and renued the LORDS altars, which stode before the porche of the LORD. And all Juda and Ben Jamin gathered them selues together, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manasses and Simeon: for there fell many vnto him out of Israel, whan they sawe that the LORD his God was with him. And they resorted vnto Jerusalem in the thirde moneth of the fiftenth yeaere of the reigne of Asa, and the same daye offred they vnto the LORD of the spoyle that they had broughte, seven hundred open, and seven thousande shepe.

And they entred in to 3 couenaunt, that they wolde sette the LORD God of their fathers, with all their hert and with all their soule. And who so ever wolde not sette 3 LORD God of Israel, shulde dye, both small 2 greete, both man and woman: and they swaie vnto the LORD with loude voyce, with shoutinge, with trompettes and with shawmes. And all Juda were glad over the ooth: for they had swome with all their hert, and they soughte him with a whole wyll: and he was founde of them, and the LORD gaue them rest on every syde.

And Asa 3 kynge put downe his mother from the mynistracion, that she had founde in the grone vnto Miplezeth. And Asa roted out hir Miplezeth, and beate it in sunder, and brent it by the broke Cedron. But the hye places were not put downe out of Israel. Yet was the hert of Asa perfecte as longe as he lyued. And loke what his father had halowed, and that he him selfe had halowed, he broughte it into 3 house of God, syluer, golde and ornamente. And there was no warre vnto the fyue and thirtieth yeaere of the reigne of Asa.

The XVI. Chapter.

In the fyue and thirtieth yeaere of 3 reigne of Asa, wente Baesa the kynge of Israel vpon agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, to let Asa the kynge of Juda, 3 he shulde not go out and in: But Asa toke forth the treasure in the house of the LORD, and the syluer and golde in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Benadab 3 kynge of Syria, which dwelt at Damascon, and caused to saye vnto him: There is a couenaunt betwene me and the, betwene my father and thy father, therfore haue I sent 3 syluer and golde, that thou mayest breake 3 couenaunt with Baesa the kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome.

Benadab herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent his hoost agaynst the cities of Israel, which simeere Lion, Dan and Abel Maim, and all the come cities of Nephtali. Whan Baesa herde that, he lefte of from buyldinge Rama, and ceased from his worke. But kynge Asa toke all Juda vnto him, and carried awaye 3 stones and tymber (wherewith Baesa buylded) and he buylded Geba 2 Mizpa with hall.

At the same tyme came Hanani the Seer vnto Asa the kynge of Juda, and sayde vnto him: Because thou hast trusted vnto the kynge of Syria, and not put thy trust in the LORD thy God, therfore is the power of the kynge of Syria escaped thy hande. We re not the Morians and Lybians a greete multitude with exceedinge many charrettes and horsemen: yet gaue the LORD them in to thy hande, whan thou dydest put thy trust in him: for the eyes of the LORD loke rounde aboute all landes, to strength them 3 are in him with all their hert. Thou hast done vnwysely, therfore shalt thou have warre from hence forth. But Asa was wroth at 3 Seer, and put him in prison: for he murmured with him over this thinge. And Asa oppressed certayne of the people at 3 same tyme.

These actes of Asa both first and last, be.

holde, they are wyrtten in the boke of 3 kynges of Juda & Israel. And Asa was diseased in his feet in the nyne and thirtieth yere of his reigne, and endured ther ouer. * Neither sought he the LORDE in his sicknesse, but trufte vnto physicians. Thus fell Asa on flepe with his fathers, & dyed in the one and fortieth yere of his reigne, & was buried in his awne sepulchre which he had caused to be grauen for him selfe in the cite of Dauid.
And they layed him vpon his bed, which was fylled with sweete oboures & all maner of spyes (made after 3 Apotecaries craft)
and made a very greate burnynge.

The XVII. Capter.

And Josaphat his sonne was kynge
in his steade, & waxed mightie agaynst Israel. And he put men of warre in all the stronge cities of Juda, and set officers in the londe of Juda, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had won-ne. And the LORDE was wth Josaphat: for he walked in the olde wayes of his father Da-uid, & soughte not Baalim, but the God of his father, & walked in his commandementes, & not after the workes of Israel: therfore dyd the LORDE stablyshe the kynghome in his hāde. And all Juda gaue ptesences vnto Josaphat, & he had greate riches & worshippe. And whan his here was coraged in the wayes of the LORDE, he put downe styll
the hye places and groues out of Juda.

In the thirde yere of his reigne sent he his prynces, Benhai, Obadia, Zacharias, Mechaneel & Michas, to teach in the cities of Juda: & with them the Levites: Semaia, Merhanias, Sebadia, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adonia, Tobia & Tob Adonia, & with them 3 prestes Elisama & Joiam. And they taughte in Juda, & had the boke of the lawe of 3 LORDE wth them, & wente aboute in all 3 cities of Juda, & taughte the people.

And the feare of the LORDE came vpon
all 3 kyngdomes in the countrees that laye aboute Juda, so 3 they soughte not agaynst Josaphat. And the philistynes broughte presentes and tribute of syluer vnto Josaphat.
And the Arabians broughte him se-uenthoulande and seven hundred rammes, and seven thousande and seven hundred he goates. Thus increased Josaphat, & grewe euer greater. And he buylded castles and cor-ne cities in Juda. And dyd much in the cities of Juda, and had valeaunt and mightie men at Jerusalem.

And this was 3 ordinaunce thowout
the house of their fathers, which were rulers ouer the thousandes in Juda. And captayne, & wth him were thie hundred sande mightie men. Nexte vnto him was hanan 3 chese, and with him were thie dieth and foure score thousande. Nexte was Amasia the sonne of Sichu the serlinge of 3 LORDE, and with him were hundred thousande valeaunt men. Of a childien of Ben Jamin was Eliada a tie man, and with him were two hundred thousande ready with bowes and shafte.

Nexte vnto him was Josabed, and wth him were an hundred and foure score sande harnessed men of warre. All these sted vpon the kynge, besydes those that the kynge had layed in the stryde cities thowout all Juda.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And Josaphat had greate riches
in woishippe, and made frendshippes with Achab. And after two yeres wate he downe to Achab vnto Samaria. In Achab caused many shepe and oxen to be ne for him and for 3 people that were wth him. And he counceiled him to go vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Achab the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat the kynge of Juda: Go with me vnto Ramoth in Gilead. He sayde vnto him: I am as thou, & my people as thy people, we wyll go wth
the vnto the battayll.

But Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: Art counsell (I praye the) this day at the wynde of the LORDE. And the kynge of Israel gathered the prophetes togethe, euen foure hundred men, & sayde vnto the kynge: Shal we go to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, or shal I let it alone? They sayde Go vp, God shal deliuer it into the kynge hāde. But Josaphat sayde: Is there not yet one prophet of the LORDE here, 3 we may are at him? The kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: There is yet one man, at whome
we maye are of 3 LORDE: but I hate him, for he prophecieth me no good, but alwayes
euell, namely Micheas the sonne of Jemai.
Josaphat sayde: Let not the kynge saye so.
And the kynge of Israel called one of his chamberlaynes, & sayde: Drynge hys ne Micheas the sonne of Jemai.

And the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat
the kynge of Juda, sat either of them vpon his seate, arrayed in their garmentes. And in the place at the dore of the porte of Samaria sat they, and all 3 prophetes prophcieth before them. And Sedechias the sonne of Enania had made him house of 3 and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalt thou pushe at the Syrians, tyll thou bringe them to naughte. And all the prophetes prophecieth likewise, & sayde: Go vnto Ramoth in Gilead, and thou shalt prosper, and 3 LORDE shal deliuer it into the kynge's hande.

And the messaunger that wente to call Micheas, spake vnto him, and sayde: Beholde, 3 wordes of the prophetes are with one acorde good before the kynge: let thy worde
(I praye the) be as one of theirs, and speake thou good also. But Micheas sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, loke what my God sayeth vnto me, 3 wyl I speake. And whan he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Micheas, shulde we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to the battayll, or shulde we let it alone? He sayde: Go vp, and ye shal prospere.
It shal be geue you in youre handes. But 3 kynge sayde vnto him: I charge 3 yet agayne, that thou tell me noching but 3 truely
in the name of the LORDE.

Then sayde he: I sawe all Israel scattered abrode vpon the mountaynes, as the shepe 3 have no shepherde. And the LORDE sayde:
have these no lord? Let every one turne home agayne in peace. The kynge the kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Dyd not I tell the,
3 he wolde prophecie me no good, but euell?

And he sayde: Therfore heare ye the worde of the LORDE: * I sawe the LORDE syt vpon his seate, and all the hoost of heauen standinge at his righte hande & at his lefte.
And the LORDE sayde: Wo wyl disceane Achab the kynge of Israel, that he maye go vp & fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And whan one sayde thus, another so, there came forth a spiete, and stode before 3 LORDE, and sayde: I wyl disceane him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Wherewith? He sayde: I wyl go forth, and be a false spiete in the mouth of all his prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt disceane him, and shalt be able: go thy waye, and do so. Beholde now, * the LORDE hath geuen a false spiete in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spokē euell agaynst the.

Then stepte forth Sebedias the sonne of Enania, and smote Micheas vpon the che-te, and sayde: Which waye is the spiete of 3 LORDE departed from me, to speake thowout the? Micheas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it, whan thou comest into 3 ynnmost chamber to hyde the. But the kynge of Israel sayde: Take Micheas, and let him remayne wth among the ruler of the cite, and with Joas

the sonne of Melech, and saye: Thus sayeth
the kynge: Put this man in preson, and fede him wth bred and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Micheas sayde: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORDE spoken thowout me. And he sayde:
Herten to all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat 3 kynge of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And 3 kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Change thy clothes, and come to the battayll in thine arraye. And 3 kynge of Israel chaunged his rayment, & came in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the rulers of his charrettes: Ye shal fighte nether agaynst small ner greate, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel.

Now whan the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thoughte: It is 3 kynge of Israel, and they were aboute to fighte agaynst him. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped him. And God turned them from him: for whan the rulers of the char-rettes sawe that it was not 3 kynge of Israel, they turned backe from him. But a certayne man bended his bowe harde, & shot the kynge of Israel betwene the mawe and the lon-ges. The kynge he vnto his charret man: Turne thine hāde, and cary me out of the hoost, for I am woundid. And the battayll was fore the same daye. And the kynge of Israel stode vpon his charret agaynst the Syrians vntyll the enenynge, and dyed whā the Son ne wente downe.

The XIX. Chapter.

And Josaphat the kynge of Juda came home agayne in peace vnto Jerusalem. And Jehu 3 sonne of Hanani the Seer were south to mete him, & sayde vnto kynge Josaphat: Shuldest thou so helpe the vngodly, and loue them that hate the LORDE? And for this cause is 3 wrath vpon the from the LORDE: neuertheles there is some good founde in the, that thou hast put the groues out of the londe, and hast prepared thine here to seke God. So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

And he wente agayne amonge the people, from Bersaba vnto mount Ephraim, and broughte them agayne to the LORDE God of their fathers. And he set Judges thowout out the londe, in all the stronge cities of Juda, and a certayne in every cite. And sayde vnto the Judges: Take heede what ye do: for ye execute not the iudgment of man, but of the LORDE, and he is with you in iudgment: therfore let the feare of the LORDE be with ye.

you, and beware, and do it: for with the LORD our God there is no unrighteousness, nor respect of personnes, nor acceptinge of gifts.

C And at Jerusalem byd Josaphat ordeyne certayne of the Levites and prestes, and of the awncient fathers of Israel for iudgment of the LORD, and over the matter of the lawe, and caused them to dwell at Jerusalem, and commaunded them, and sayde: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORD, in faithfulness and in a perfect hert. In all causes that come vnto you from youre brethien (which dwell in their cities) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinaunces ye shal enforme them, & they synne not against the LORD, and so the wrath to come vpon you and youre brethien. Do thus, and ye shal not offende.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is chiefe over you in all causes of the LORD: so is Sabadiah the sonne of Ismael prynce in the house of Juda in all the kynges matters: Ye have officers likewise the Levites before you. Take a good courage vnto you, and be doyng, and the LORD shalbe with the good.

The XX. Chapter.

After this came the childre of Moab, the children of Ammon, and certayne of Ammanini with them, to fighte against Josaphat. And they came and tolde Josaphat, and sayde: There cometh a greate multitude agaynst the from beyonde the See of Syria, & beholde, they are at Hazazon Tamar, that is Engaddi.

And Josaphat was afrayed, & set his face to see the LORD, & caused a fast to be proclaimed in all Juda. And Juda came together to see the LORD. And out of all the cities of Juda came they to see the LORD. And Josaphat stode amonge the congregacion of Juda & Jerusalem in the house of the LORD before the new courte, and sayde:

O LORD God of oure fathers, art not thou God in heaven, and hast domynion in all the kyngdomes of the heythen? And in thy hande is strength and power, and there is no man that can withstande the. Hast not thou O God expelled the inhabitants of this lande before thy people of Israel? and hast thou sent it vnto the sede of Abraham thy lover for ever? so that they have dwelt in it, & have buylded the a Sanctuary vnto thy name there in, and sayde: If there come any plague, sword, and gmet, pestilence, or death vpon vs, we wyll stonde before this house even before the

(for thy name is in this house) and wyll cry vnto the in our trouble, and thou shalt heare, and shalt saue vs. Beholde now, the children of Ammon, of Moab, & they of mount Seir, vpon whom thou woldest not suffer the children of Israel to go, when they wente out of the lande of Egypte, but they were sayne to departe from the, and not to destroye them: and beholde, they deale contrary with vs, and come to chynst vs out of the inheritance, that thou hast geuen vs in possession. O our God, wylt thou notUDGE them? For in vs is no strength to withstande this greate multitude that cometh agaynst vs. We knowe not what we shal do, but oure eyes loke vnto the. And all Juda stode before the LORD, with their children, wyues and sonnes.

But vpon Jehasiel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Benaia, the sonne of Jehiel, the sonne of Machania the Leuite of the childre of Assaph, came the spiere of the LORD in the myddes of the congregacion, and sayde: Gene hede all thou Juda, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou kyng Josaphat: Thus sayeth the LORD vnto you. Be not ye afrayed, neither feare ye this greate multitude: for it is not ye that fighte, but God. Tomorrow shal ye go downe vnto the. And beholde, they go vp by Sis, and ye shal fynde them at the reed see by the broke before the wyldernes of Jeruel: for ye shall not fighte in this cause. Do ye but steepe forth, and stonde, and se the health of the LORD that is with you. Feare not O Juda and Jerusalem, and be not afrayed, tomorrow go ye forth agaynst them, and the LORD shal be with you.

The Josaphat bowed him selfe to his face to the earth, & all Juda, & the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell before the LORD, & worshipped the LORD. And the Levites of the childre of the Aharathites & of the childre of the Corahites arose to prayse the LORD God of Israel with loude voyce on hye. And they gat them vp early in the mornynge, and were forth by the wyldernes of Thekoa.

And when they were goynge out, Josaphat stode, & sayde: Herte vnto me O Juda, & ye indwellers of Jerusalem: Put youre trust in the LORD your God, & ye shal be safe, and geue credence vnto his prophetes, & ye shall prospere. And he gaue counsell vnto the people, and appoynted the syngers vnto the LORD, and them that gaue prayse in the berye of holynes, to go before the harnessed army, & to saye: O geue thanks vnto the LORD for his mercy endureth for ever. And when they beganne to geue thanks and prayse, the LORD caused the hynder watch that was come agaynst Juda, to come vpon the childre of Ammon, Moab & them of mount Seir, and they smote them. Then stode the children of Ammon & Moab agaynst them of mount Seir, to damne them, and to destroye them. And when they had destroyed them of mount Seir, one helped another to destroye them selues also. And when Juda came to Mispa vnto the wyldernes, they turned them towarde the multitude, and beholde, the deed bodie laye vpon the earth, so that none was escaped.

And Josaphat came with his people to deride the spoyle of them. And they founde amonge them so much goodes and rayment and precious Jewels (which they toke from them) that they coulde not beare them. And the dayes were they denydinge the spoyle, for it was so much. On the fourth daye came they together into the valley of blessinge: for there blessed they the LORD. Therefore is the place called the valley of blessinge vnto this daye.

So every man of Juda & Jerusalem turned back agayne, & Josaphat before them, to go to Jerusalem withioye: for the LORD had geuen them gladnesse on their enemies. And they entred into Jerusalem with psalteries, harpes & trompettes vnto the house of the LORD. And there came a feare of God vnto all the kyngdomes in the landes, when they herde that the LORD had foughte agaynst the enemies of Israel. Thus was the kyngdom of Josaphat in quyetnes, & God gaue him rest on every syde.

And Josaphat reigned ouer Juda, & was fyue & thirtie yere olde when he was made kyng, & reigned fyue & twenty yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Asuba the daughter of Bilhi. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, & departed not asyde from doyng that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD: sayng that the hye places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared their hert to the God of their fathers. What more there is to saye of Josaphat, both the first & the last, beholde, it is wyrtten in the actes of Jehu & sonne of Hanani, which he noted vp in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

Afterwarde byd Josaphat the kyng of Juda agree with Ahasia the kyng of Israel, which was vngodly in his doynges. And he agreed with him to make shippes, for to go vpon the see. And they made the shippes at Ezion Gaber. But Elieser the sonne of Dodana of Maresa prophesied agaynst Josaphat, and sayde: Because thou hast agreed with Ahasia, therefore hath the LORD bidden thy workes. And so the shippes were broken, & mighte not go vpon the see.

The XXI. Chapter.

After Josaphat fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buried with his fathers in the cite of David, & Joram his sonne was kyng in his steade. And he had brethren the sonnes of Josaphat: Asaria, Jehiel, Zacharias, Asaria, Michael & Sephatia. All these were the children of Josaphat kyng of Juda. And their father gaue them many giftes of syluer, golde & Jewels, & stronge cities in Juda. Vnto the kyngdome gaue he vnto Joram: for he was the first borne.

But when Joram came vp ouer his fathers kyngdome, & had gotten the power of it, he slewe all his brethren with the swerde, & certayne rulers also in Israel. Two & thirtie yere olde was Joram when he was made kyng, & reigned eight yere at Jerusalem, & walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, even as the house of Achab byd (for Achabs daughter was his wife) & he byd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORD.

Nevertheless the LORD wolde not destroye the house of David, for the coneuantentes sake, which he made with David, and accordinge as he had sayde, & he wolde geue him and his children a lanterne for evermore.

At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, and made a kyng over them selues: for Joram had gone ouer with his captaynes and all the charettes with him, & had gotten him vp in the night season, and slayned the Edomites on every syde, and the rulers of the charettes: therefore fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Lybna awaye from him also: because he forsoke the LORD God of his fathers. He made hye places also on the mountaynes in Juda, & caused them of Jerusalem to go awhoringe, and disceined Juda.

But there came a wyrtynge vnto him fro the prophet Elias, sayng: Thus sayeth the LORD God of thy father David: Because thou hast not walked in the wayes of thy father Josaphat, neither in the wayes of Asa the kyng of Juda, but walkest in the waye of the kynges of Israel, and makest Juda and them of Jerusalem to go awhoringe after the whordome of the house of Achab, and hast slayne thy brethren also of thy father thers house, which were better the than. Be holde, the LORDE shal smyte the w a grea te plage on thy people, on thy children & thy wyues, and on all thy substance. But thou thy selfe shalt haue much sickness in thy bowels, till thy bowels go forth from daye to daye for very disease.

D So 3 LORDE rayseb vp agaynst Joram, the spere of the Philistynes, & Arabians, which lye besyde the Morians, and they wente up in to Juda, and waysted it, and caried awaye all the substance that was founde in the kynges house, & his sonnes, and his wyues, so 3 there was not one sonne lefte him, save Joahas his yongest sonne. And after all this dyd 3 LORDE smyte him in his bowels, with such a sickness as coude not be healed. And whyle that endured from daye to daye, whan the tyme of two yeres was expyred, his bowels wente from him w his sickness, and he dyed in euell diseases.

And they made not a burninge ouer him, as they dyd vnto his fathers. Two and thirtie yere olde was he whā he was made kyng, and reigned eithe yere at Ierusalem, and walked not well. And they buried him in the cite of Dauid, but not amōge the sepulchres of the kynges.

The XXII. Chapter.

And they of Ierusalem made Ochosias his yongest sonne kyng in his steade: for the men of warre that came w the hoost of the Arabians, had slayne all 3 first, therfore reigned Ochosias the sonne of Joram kyng of Juda. Two and fortye yere olde was Ochosias whan he was made kyng, and reigned one yere at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Athalia the daughter of Amri. And he walked also in 3 wayes of the house of Achab: for his mother enty sed him so 3 he was vngodly. Therfore dyd he euell in 3 sighte of the LORDE, euen as 3 house of Achab: for they were his counsell geuere after his fathers death, to destroye him, and he walked after their counsell.

B And he wente with Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, agaynst Hasael the kyng of Syria. But the Syrians smote Joram, so 3 he curned back to be healed at Iesreel: for he had woundes that were geuen him at Rama, whan he foughte with Hasael the kyng of Syria. And 3 Asarias the sonne of Joram kyng of Juda were downe to vysee Joram 3 sonne of Achab at Iesreel, which laye sick: for it was ordeyned of God vnto Ochosias, that he shulde come to Joram, & so to go forth with Joram agaynst Jehu 3 sonne of Nimshi, whom the LORDE had anoynted to rote out the house of Achab.

Now whan Jehu wolde be anged of 3 house of Achab, he founde certayne rulers of Juda, and 3 childre of Ochosias brether which serued Ochosias, and he slew them. And he soughte Ochosias, and they ouertoke him, whā he had hyd him at Samaria: & he was broughte vnto Jehu, which slew him, and they buried him, for they sayde: he is the sonne of Josaphat, which soughte 3 LORDE with all his hert. And there was no man more of the house of Ochosias that mighte be kyng.

Whan Athalia the mother of Ochosias sawe 3 hir sonne was dead, she gat hir vp, & destroyed all the kynges seide in the house of Juda. But Josabeath 3 kynges sister toke Joas 3 sonne of Ochosias, and stalle him awaye fro amonge the kynges childre 3 were slayne, & put him with his nurse in a chamber. Thus Josabeath kynges Jorams daughter, the wyfe of Joiada the prest, hyd him from Athalia, so 3 he was not slayne: for she was Ochosias sister. And he was hyd with them in the house of God six yeres, for so much as Athalia was quene in the londe.

The XXIII. Chapter.

But in the seuench yere was Joiada 3 bolde, and toke the rulers ouer hand: dreds, namely Asaria 3 sonne of Joram, Ismael 3 sonne of Johanen, Asana 3 sonne of Obed, Macseia 3 sonne of Abia, and Elisaphat 3 sonne of Sichu with him, in to the covenant: and they wente about in Juda, and broughte 3 Leuites together out of all the cities of Juda, and the best fathers of Israel, to come vnto Ierusalem. And all the congregacion made a covenant with the kyng in the house of God, and he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the kynges sonne shal be kyng, & eue as the LORDE spake & cernyng the children of Dauid.

This is it therfore 3 ye shal do: The thirde parte of you that entre on the Sabbath, shalbe amonge the prestes & Leuites, which are doctepers at the chescholdes: & one thirde parte in the kynges house, and one thirde parte at the grounde porte. But all the people shalbe in the courtes of the house of the LORDE, and that no man go in to the house of the LORDE, excepte the prestes and Leuites that mynister there, they shal go in: for they are halowed. And let all 3 people wayte vpon the LORDE. And the Leuites shal get them rounde aboute 3 kyng, every with his weapen in his hande. And who so do goeth in to 3 house, let him dye. And they shal be w the kyng whā he goeth out & in.

And the Leuites & all Juda dyd as Joias 3 prest had commanded, and every one eate his men that entred on the Sabbath, & those 3 wente of on the Sabbath: for Joias 3 prest suffred not those two companies to parte asunder. And Joiada 3 prest gaue the captaynes ouer hundreds speares & shylde, and kynges Dauids weapens, which were in the house of God, and set all the people every one w his weapen in his hande, from the righte corner of the house, vnto the lefte corner of the altare, and to the house warde aboute the kyng. And they broughte forth the kynges sonne, & set the crowne vpon his heade, and gaue them the wyntesse, & made him kyng. And Joiada w his sonnes anoynted him, & sayde: God save the kyng.

D But whan Athalia herde the noyse of 3 people 3 ranne together and praysed 3 kyng, she wente forth to the people in to 3 house of the LORDE, and looked: and beholde, 3 kyng stode in his place at 3 intrance, and the rulers and trompettes aboute 3 kyng: and all the people of the londe were glad, & blew the trompes, and there were syngers 3 coude playe w all maner of muscail instruments. But she rote hir clothes, & sayde: Sedicion, sedicion. Neuertheles Joiada 3 prest gat him forth with the captaynes ouer hundreds and rulers of the hoost, and sayde vnto them: Brynge her forth betwene 3 walles, & who so ever foloweth her, shal be slayne with 3 swerde: for the prest had commaunded, that she shulde not be slayne in 3 house of the LORDE. And they layed handes on her. And whan she came at the intrance of the house gate of the kynges house, they put her to death there.

And Joiada made a covenant betwene him and all the people, and the kyng, 3 they shulde be the people of the LORDE. The wte all the people in to the house of Daal and destroyed it, & brake downe his altares & ymagis, & slewe Machan the prest of Baal before the altare. And Joiada appoynted 3 officers in the house of the LORDE amōge the prestes & Leuites: whom Dauid had ordeyned for 3 house of the LORDE, to offre burnt sacrifices vnto 3 LORDE, as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moyses: w loye & songes made by Dauid. And 3 porters set he at 3 gates of 3 house of 3 LORDE, 3 none shulde entre, which were defiled w any maner of thinge. And he toke the captaynes ouer hundreds and the mightie men and lordes of 3 people, and all the people of the londe, and broughte the kyng downe from the house of the LORDE, and broughte him thorow the hye porte of the kynges house, and caused the kyng sit vpon the seate royall. And all the people of the londe were glad, and the cite was at rest. But Athalia was slayne with the swerde.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Joas was seuen yere olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned fortye yere at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Beiseba. And Joas dyd that which was right in the sighte of the LORDE, as long as Joiada the prest lyued. And Joiada gaue him two wyues, & he begat sonnes & daughters. Afterwarde deuysed Joas to renne the house of the LORDE, & gathered together the prestes and Leuites, & sayde vnto the: Go forth vnto all the cities of Juda, & gather the money of all Israel, to repayre 3 house of God yearly, and do it righte soones: but the Leuites made no haist.

Then the kyng called Joiada the pryncipall, and sayde vnto him: Why lokest thou not vnto the Leuites, 3 they brynge in from Juda and Ierusalem, the colleccion which Moyses the seruaunt of the LORDE appoynted to be gathered amōge Israel for the Tabernacle of witness: for 3 vngodly Athalia & hir sonnes haue waisted the house of God: and all that was halowed for the house of the LORDE, haue they bestowed on Baalim.

Then commaunded the kyng to make a chest, and to set it without at the intrance of the house of the LORDE: & caused it to be proclaimed in Juda and Ierusalem, that they shulde brynge in to the LORDE, the colleccion, which Moyses the seruaunt of God appointed vnto Israel in 3 wilderness. The were all 3 rulers glad, & so were all 3 people, & broughte it, and cast it in to the chest, till it was full.

And whan the tyme was 3 the Leuites shulde brynge the Arke at 3 kynges commaundment (whan they sawe 3 there was much money therein) then came the kynges scribe, & he 3 was appoynted of the chefe prest, and emptyed the chest, and caried it againe in to his place. Thus dyd they every daye, so that they gathered much money together. And 3 kyng & Joiada gaue it vnto 3 workmasters of 3 house of the LORDE, and they hired masons & carpenters to repayre the house of 3 LORDE, and men that coude worke in yron and brasce, to repayre the house of 3 LORDE.

And the labouers wrought, so that 3 repairinge in 3 worke wente forwarde thorow their hande, and they set the house of God in his beuetye, and made it stronge. And whan they had persourmed this, they brought the resydue of the money before the kynge and Joiada, wherof there were made vessels for the house of the LORDE, vessels for the ministration and burnt offeringe, spones and ornaments of golde and silver. And they offered burnt offeringes allwaye in the house of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada lyued.

And Joiada waxed olde, and had lynced longe ynough, and dyed, and was an hundred and thirtie yeare olde whan he dyed: and they buried him in the cite of David, amonge the kynge, because he had done good vnto Israel, and towarde God and his house. And after the death of Joiada, came the rulers in Juda, and worshipped the kynge.

Then consented the kynge vnto the. And they forsake the house of the LORDE God of their fathers, and serued y groves and ymagges. Then came y wrath of the LORDE vpon Juda and Jerusalem because of this trespass of theirs. Yet sent he prophetes vnto the, y they shulde turne vnto the LORDE, and they testified vnto the: but they wolde not heare.

And the spiete of God came vpon Zachary the sonne of Joiada the prest, which stode ouer y people, and sayde vnto the: Thus sayeth God: Wherfore do ye transgresse the comandementes of the LORDE, which shall not be to y prosperite: for ye haue forsaken y LORDE, therfore shal he forsake you. Neuer theles they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him at y kynge's comandement in y courte of the house of the LORDE. And Joas y kynge thought not on the mercy y Joiada his father had done for him, but slewe his sonne. Notwithstondinge whan he dyed, he sayde: The LORDE shal lōke vpon it, and requyre it.

And whan the yeare was gone aboute, y power of the Syrians wente vp, and came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed the rulers in the people, and sent all the spoiles of them vnto Damascus. For the power of the Syrians came but with a few men, yet gaue y LORDE a very greate power in to their hande: because they had forsaken y LORDE God of their fathers. They executed iudgment also vpon Joas. And whan they departed fro him, they lefte him in greate sicknesses.

Neuertheles his seruantes conspyred agaynst him (because of the bloude of the childre of Joiada the prest) and slewe him vpon his bed, and he dyed, and they buried him in the cite of David, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynge. They that conspyred agaynst him, were these: Sabad y sonne of Simri the Ammonitisse, and Josabad the sonne of Simri the Moabitisse. As for his sonne, and the summe that was gathered vnto him, and the buyldinge of the house of God beholde, they are wyrtten in the storye in the boke of the kynge. And Amasias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXV. Chapter.

And twentye yeare olde was Amasias whan he was made kynge, and reigned nyne and twentye year at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joabab of Jerusalem. And he dyd y which was right in the sighte of the LORDE, but not a whole her. Now whan his kingdome was in strength, he slewe his seruantes which had slayne the kynge his father. But their childre slewe he not, for so is it wyrtten in the boke of the lawe of Moyses, where the LORDE commaundeth, and sayeth: The fathers shal not dye for the children, neither shal the children dye for the fathers: but every one shal die for his awne synne.

And Amasias broughte Juda together, and set them after the fathers houses, after the rulers ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes amonge all Juda and Ben Jamin, and numbred them from twentye yeare olde and above, and founde of the thre hundred thousande chosen men, which were able to go forth to the warre, and caryed speares and shyldes. And out of Israel appoynted he an hundred thousande stronge men of warre for an hundred talentes of silver.

But there came a man of God vnto him, and sayde: O kynge, let not the hoost of Israel come to the: for the LORDE is not with Israel, neither with all the childre of Ephraim. For yf thou comest to shewe y boldnes in the battail, God shal make the fall before thine enemies. For God hath power to helpe, and to cause for to fall. Amasias sayde vnto the man of God: What shal be done then with y hundred talentes y I haue geue y souldyers of Israel? The ma of God sayde: The LORDE hath yet more the this to geue the. So Amasias separated out the men of warre which were come to him out of Ephraim, y they shulde departed vnto their place. Then waxed their wrath very whan agaynst Juda, and they wente agayne vnto their place in wrothfull displeasure. And Amasias strenghted himselfe, and caried his people, and wente forth in to the Beth valley, and smote ten thousande of the childre of Seir.

And the childre of Juda toke ten thousande of the alnye, whom they broughte vp to the toppe of a mountayne, and cast the bowe headlinges from the toppe of the mount, so that they all to barst in iunder. But y childre of the men of warre whom Amasias had sent awaye agayne (that they shulde not go to the battayll with his people) fell in to the cities of Juda, from Samaria vnto Beth hoion, and smote thre thousande of me, and toke moch spoyle.

And whan Amasias came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he broughte the goddes of the children of Seir, and made them his goddes, and worshipped before them, and brent incense vnto them. Then was the LORDE very wroth at Amasias, and sent vnto him a prophet, which sayde vnto him: Why sekest thou the goddes of the people, which coulde not deliuer their folke from y hande? And whan he talked with him, the kynge sayde vnto him: Hane they made y of the kynge's counsell? Ceasse, why wilt thou be smytten? Then the prophet ceased, and sayde: I perceaue, that the LORDE is mynded to destroye y, because thou hast done this, and hastenest not vnto my counsell.

And Amasias y kynge of Juda toke counsell, and sent vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas y sonne of Jehu, kynge of Israel, sayenge: Come, let vs se one another. But Joas the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias y kynge of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne in Libanus sent vnto y Cedre tre in Libanus, sayenge: Geue thy daughter vnto my sonne to wife. But a wyld beast in Libanus ranne ouer y hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou thinkest: Beholde, I haue smytten the Edomites, therfore is thine hert proude to boaste. Now byde at home: why stryuest thou a fter my fortune, that thou mayest fall? Juda is the?

Neuertheles Amasias consented not: for so was it broughte to passe of God, y they mighte be geuen in to the handes of the enemies, because they soughte the goddes of y Edomites. Then wente Joas the kynge of Israel vp, and they saue one another, he and Amasias the kynge of Juda, at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytten before Israel, and they fled every one vnto his tent.

And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias y kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas y sonne of Joahas, at Beth Semes, and broughte him to Jerusalem, and brake downe the wall of Ierusalem, from y porte of Ephraim vnto the corner porte, and foure hundred cubites longe: and toke with him all the golde, and silver, and all the ornaments that were founde in y house of God with Obedi Edom, and in the treasures in the kynge's house, and the childre to pledge vnto Samaria. And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, liued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israel fiftene yeare.

What more there is to saye of Amasias (both the first and last) beholde, it is wyrtten in y boke of the kynge of Juda and Israel. And fro the tyme forth that Amasias departed from the LORDE, they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem. But he fled vnto Lachis. The sent they after him vnto Lachis, and slewe him there. And they brought him vpon horses and buried him beside his fathers in the cite of Juda.

The XXVI. Chapter.

Then all the people of Juda toke Osias, which was sytene yeare olde, and made him kynge in steade of his father Amasias. He builded the wall, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. Sytene yeare olde was Osias whan he was made kynge, and reigned two and fiftie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jehalia of Jerusalem. And he did right in the sighte of the LORDE, as his father Amasias had done, and soughte God as longe as Zacharias liued, which taughte in the visions of God: and as longe as he soughte the LORDE, God made him to prospere.

For he wente forth, and soughte agaynst the Philistynes, and brake downe y walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, and the walles of Asdod, and buylded cities aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistynes. For God helped him agaynst the Philistines, agaynst the Arabians, agaynst them of Gur Baal, and agaynst the Meunites. And y Ammonites gaue Osias presentes, and his name came in to Egypte: for he was excedinge stronge. And Osias buylded towres at Jerusalem vpon the corner porte, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, and made them stronge. He buylded castles also in the wyldernes, and dygged many welles: for he had many catell, both in the medewes and in the playnes, husbandmen also and wyne gardeners on the mountaynes and on Carmel: for he deliued in husbandrye.

And Osias had an hoost of men of warre goynge forth to the battail, which were numbred vnder the hande of Jiel the scribe, and of Maafa the offycer, vnder the hande of Hanania of the kynge's rulers. And the nombre of the chiefe fathers amonge the stronge mẽ of warre, was two thousande and fyve hundred. And vnder the hande of the hoost the hundred thousande, and seven thousande and fyve hundred mete for the battayll, in the strength of an armie to helpe the kinge agaynst the enemies. And Osiat prepared for all the hoost, shylde, speares, helmettes, brestplates, bowes and slyngstones. And at Jerusalem he made ordinaunce conyngly, to be vpon the towres and in the pynacles, to shute arrowes and greate stones. And the fame of him came farre abroad, because he was specially helped, tyll he became mightie.

And whan his power was greates, his hert arose to his awne destruction: for he trespassed agaynst the LORD his God, and wente in to the temple of the LORD, to burne incense vpon the altare of incense. But Asarias the prest wente after him, and souned score prestes with him, valeaunt men, and withstode kynge Osiat, and saide vnto him: "It belongeth not vnto thy office (Osiat) to burne incense vnto the LORD, but vnto the prestes belongeth it, enen vnto the children of Aaron, which are halowed to burne incense. So forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shall be no worshippe vnto the before God the LORD.

And Osiat was wroth, and had a censoure in his hande. And whyle he murmured with the prestes, the leprosy spronge out of his foreheade in the presence of the prestes in the house of the LORD before the altare of incense. And Asarias the chiefe prest turned his heade towarde him, and so dyd all the prestes, and beholde, he was leper in his foreheade. And they put him out from thence. Yee he made haust himselfe to go forth, for his plage came of the LORD. Thus became Osiat kynge a leper vnto his death, and dwelt full of leprosy in a fire house: for he was put out of the house of the LORD. But Joiam his sonne had the ouersight of the kynges house, and iudged the people in the londe.

What more there is to saie of Osiat (both first and last) I say the sonne of Amos hath wrytten it. And Osiat fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the pece of grounde beside the kynges sepulchres: for they sayde: he is leprous. And Joiam his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Joiam was fyve and twentye years olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned sixtene years at Jerusalem.

His mothers name was Iersa the daughter of Sadoc: he dyd righte in the sighte of the LORD as did Osiat his father. I saye: he wente not in to the temple of the LORD, and the people yet married them selfe. He buylded the hye porte of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of Ophel buylded he much, and buylded the cities vpon the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the wodes buylded he castles and towres.

And he fought with the kinge of the children of Ammon, and ouer came them, so that the childre of Ammon gaue him 3 same yere an hundred talentes of silver, ten thousand quarters of wheate, and ten thousand of barley. So much dyd the children of Ammon geue him also in 3 seconde 2 thirde yere. Thus became Joiam mightie, for he gyded his wayes before the LORD his God.

What more there is to saie of Joiam, 2 all his warres, vnd his waies, beholde, it is wrytten in 3 boke of the kynges of Iuda 2 Iuda. Fyne and twentye yere olde was he whan he was made kynge, 2 reigned sixtene yere at Jerusalem. And Joiam fell on slepe with his fathers, 2 they buried him in the cite of David, and Achaz his sonne was kynge in his steade. The XXVIII. Chapter.

Achaz was twentye yere olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned sixtyne yere at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, as did David his father, but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Iuda, and made molten ymages vnto Baalim, and burnt incense in the valley of the children of Hamon, and brēt his awne sonnes in 3 fire, after the abominacions of the heithen, whiche the LORD expelled before the childre of Iuda. And he dyd sacrifice and burnt incense vpon the hye places and vpon the hilles, and made all grene trees.

Therefore dyd the LORD his God denyer him in to the hande of the kynge of Syria, so that they smote him, and caryed awaye a greates multitude of his men prisoners, and broughte them to Damascon. He was geuen also vnder the hande of the kynge of Iuda, so 3 he dyd a greates slaughter vpon him. For Pecah the sonne of Romias smote in Iuda an hundred 2 twenty thousande in one daye (which all were valeaunt men) enen because they had forsaken 3 LORD God of their fathers. And Sichi a mightie mā of Ephraim slewe Maaseia 3 kynges sonne, 2 Asitani the pryncce of the house, 2 Elna the nexte vnto the kynge. And the childre den of Iuda caried of their brethien prisoners two hundred thousande, women, sonnes and doughters, and toke a greates spoyle from them, and broughte the spoyle vnto Samaria.

But enen there was there a prophet of 3 LORD, whose name was Obed, which went out to mete 3 hoost that came to Samaria, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, because the LORD God of youre fathers is wroth at Iuda, therefore hath he geuen them ouer in to youre handes: but ye haue slayne them so abhominably, that it is come vnto heauē. Now thinke ye to subdue the childre of Iuda and Jerusalem, to be bondmen and bond maydens vnto you. Is not this a trespase then to you agaynst the LORD your God? Herten now vnto me, and sende 3 prisoners hence agayne, whom ye haue caried awaye from youre brethien: for the wraith of 3 LORD is scarce ouer you.

Then gat vp certayne of the chiefe of the childre of Ephraim, Asarias the sonne of Johanen, Barachias the sonne of Mesillemoth, Ezechias the sonne of Salum, 2 Amasa 3 sonne of Zabai, agaynst them 3 came from 3 battayll, 2 sayde vnto them: We shal not brynge the prisoners in hither, for youre mynde is but to make vs trespase before the LORD, to make oure synnes and offences the greater: for the trespase is to much allready, 2 the wraith is scarce ouer Iuda. So the hoost left the prisoners 2 the spoyle before 3 rulers and before the whole cōgregation.

Then stode vp the men (which now were rehersed by name) and toke the prisoners, and as many as were naked amonge them, clothed they with 3 spoiles, 2 decked them, and put shues vpon their fete, and gaue them to eate and drynke, and anoynted them, and caryed them vpon asses (as many as were felle) and broughte them to Jericho to 3 palme ate vnto their brethien, and came agayne vnto Samaria. At the same tyme sent kynge Achaz vnto the kynges of Assur, 3 they shulde helpe him. And the Edomites came agayne, and smote Iuda, and caryed some awaye captiue. The philistynes also fell in to the cities in the playne, 2 towarde 3 south parte of Iuda, 2 wanne Beth Semes, Aialon, Gederoth, and Socho with the vyllages therof, Timna with the vyllages therof, 2 Gimloth with the vyllages therof, and dwelt there in. For 3 LORD subdued Iuda for Achaz sake 3 kynge of Iuda, because he made Iuda naked, and rebelled agaynst the LORD. And Tiglathpileser the kynge of Assur came me agaynst him, and beseged him, 2 he was not mightie ynough for him.

For Achaz spoyled the house of the LORD, and the kynges house, and of the rulers, to geue vnto 3 kynge of Assur, but it helped him not. Moreover kynge Achaz trespassed yet more agaynst the LORD enen in his trouble, and dyd sacrifice vnto the goddes of them of Damascon, which had smitten him, 2 sayde: The goddes of the kynges of Syria helpe them, therefore wil I offre vnto them, that they maye helpe me also, where as the same yet were a fall vnto him and to all Iuda.

And Achaz gathered the vessels of 3 house of God together, and brake the vessels in 3 house of God, 2 shut the doores of the house of 3 LORD, and made him altars in all corners at Jerusalem, and every where in the cyties of Iuda made he hye places to burne incense vnto other goddes, and provoked 3 LORD God of his fathers vnto wraith.

What more there is to saie of him and of all his wayes (both first and last) beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Iuda and Iuda. And Achaz fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in 3 cite of Jerusalem: for they brought him not amonge the sepulchres of the kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXIX. Chapter.

Ezechias was fyne 2 twentye yere olde whan he was made kynge, 2 reigned nyne 2 twentye yeres at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abia 3 doughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, as did his father David. He opened the doores of 3 house of the LORD in the first moneth of 3 first yere of his raigne, 2 made them stronge, 2 brought in the prestes and Levites, and gathered them together vnto the East streete and sayde vnto them: Herten vnto me ye Levites, sanctifye youre selues now, 3 ye maye halowe the house of the LORD God of youre fathers, and put fylchines out of the Sanctuary: for oute fathers haue trespassed, and done 3 which was euell in the sighte of the LORD our God, and haue forsaken him. For they turned their faces from the habitacon of 3 LORD our God, 2 turned their backe on it, and shut the doores of the porche, and put out the lampes, and burnt no incense, 2 offered no burnt sacrifices in the Sanctuary vnto the God of Iuda.

Therefore is the wraith of the LORD come ouer Iuda and Jerusalem, and he hath geuen them ouer to be scattered abroad, desolate and to be hyssed at, as yese with ydols: for beholde, euen for the same cause sell oure fathers thorow the swerde, oure sonnes donghters and wyues were caryed awaye captyue. Now am I mynded to make a covenante with the LORDE God of Israel, & he maye turne awaie from vs his wrath & indignacion. Now my sonnes, be not ye negligent: for the LORDE hath chesen you to stand before him, and to be his mynisters and to burne incense vnto him.

Then rose the Leuites: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asaria of the children of the Rahabites: Of the children of Merari: Cis the sonne of Abdi, & Asaria the sonne of Jehaleleel. Of the children of the Gersonites: Joab the sonne of Simma, and Eden the sonne of Joab. And of the childre of Elizaphan: Simri & Zeil. And of the childre of Assaph: Sachary and Nathania. And of the children of Seman: Jehiel and Simei. And of the children of Jedithun: Semaia and Usiel.

And they gathered their brethien together, and were sanctified, and wente in accordinge to the Kynges commaundement at the worde of the LORDE, to cleanse the house of the LORDE. And the prestes entred within in the house of the LORDE to purifye, and put out all the vncleannes that was founde in the temple of the LORDE, in the courts of the LORDES house: and the prestes toke it vp, and a ryed it out in to the broke Cedron. The first daye of the first moneth beganne they to sanctifye them selues, and on the eight daye of the moneth wente they in to the porche of the LORDE, and halowed the house of the LORDE eight dayes, and fynished it on the sixteenth daye of the first moneth.

And they were in to the Kyng Ezechias, and sayde: We haue clenfed all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burntofferings, and all his vessels, the table of the shewbread and all the apparell therof: and all the ornaments that Kyng Achas cast awaye whā he was Kyng, what tyme as he transgressed, those haue we prepared and halowed. Beholde, they are before the altare of the LORDE.

Then the Kyng Ezechias gaue him vpearly, and gathered together the Elders of the cite, and wete vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and they broughte seven bullockes, seven rammes, seven lambes, and seven he goates to be the synofferynge, for the Sanctuary, & for Juda. And he spake vnto the prestes the children of Aaron, that they shulde offer vpon the altare of the LORDE.

So they slewe the bullockes, and the prestes toke the bloude, and sprentled it vpon the altare: and slewe the rammes, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare: and slewe the lambes, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare. And y goates to synofferynge brought they before the Kyng and the congregacion, and layed their handes vpon them: and the prestes slewe them, and sprentled their blood vpon the altare to make attonement for all Israel: for the Kyng commaunded to offer burnt sacrifices and synofferings for all Israel.

And he set the Leuites in the house of the LORDE with Cymballes, psalteries and harpes, as Dauid had commaunded, and the Kynges Seer, and the prophet Nathania for it was the commaundement of the LORDE by his prophetes. And the Leuites stood with the muscull instrumentes of Dauid, & the prestes with the trompettes. And Ezechias commaunded them to offer burnt sacrifices vpon the altare. And aboute the tyme that the burnt sacrifice beganne to be offered the songe of the LORDE beganne also, and the trompettes, and dyuerse instrumentes of Dauid the Kyng of Israel and all the congregacion gaue praise & thanks: and the songe of the Musicians, and the blowinges of the trompetters, endured all tyll the burnt offering was fynished.

Now whan the burnt offering was performed, the Kyng and all they that were with him, bowed them selues, and gaue praise and thanks. And Ezechias the Kyng & the rulers commaunded the Leuites to praise the LORDE with the songes of Dauid and Assaph the Seer. And they gaue prayse tyll they were ioyfull, and they bowed them selues, and worshipped.

And Ezechias answered and saide: We haue ye fylled youre hādes vnto the LORDE: stepe forth, and bringe hither the sacrifices and thankofferings vnto the house of the LORDE. And the congregacion broughte sacrifices and thankofferings, and euery one of a fre wyllinge hert broughte burnt offerings. And the nombre of the burnt offerings, that the congregacion broughte, was thre score bullockes and ten, an hundred lammes, and two hundred lambes, and all these for the burnt offering vnto the LORDE, and they sanctified six hundred bullockes, and thre thousand shepe.

But the prestes were to fewe, and could not place of the steynes of all the burnt offerings, therfore toke they their brethien the Leuites, tyll the worke was fynished, and tyll the prestes were halowed (for the Leuites are easier to be halowed then the prestes) and many of the burnt offerings were with the fat of the thankofferings and drynt offerings to the burnt sacrifices. Thus was the ministracion of the house of the LORDE prepared. And Ezechias reioysed with all the people, that they were prepared with God: for it was done righte hastily.

The XXX. Chapter.

And Ezechias sent in to all Israel and Juda, and wrote letters vnto Ephraim and Manasses, that they shulde come to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, to kepe easter vnto the LORDE God of Israel. And the Kyng helde a counsell with his rulers, and all the congregacion at Jerusalem, to kepe Passouer in the seconde moneth: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the prestes were not sanctified ynough, and the people were not yet come together vnto Jerusalem. And it pleased the Kyng well and all the congregacion. And they appointed it to be proclaimed thorow out all Israel from Berseba vnto Dan, that they shulde come to kepe Passouer vnto the LORDE God of Israel: for they were not many to kepe it as it is wyrtten.

And the postes wente with the letters from the hande of the Kyng and of his rulers thorow out all Israel and Juda, at the Kynges commaundement, and sayde: Ye children of Israel, turne you vnto the LORDE God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and he shal turne to y escaped, which are left ouer amonge you from the hande of the Kyng of Assur: and be not ye as youre fathers and brethien, which rebelled agaynst the LORDE God of their fathers, and he gaue them ouer in to desolacion as ye se youre selues. Be not ye hardened now as were youre fathers, but offre youre hāde vnto the LORDE, and come to his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for euer, and serue the LORDE youre God, so shal the indignacion of his wrath turne awaie from you. For ys yet turne vnto the LORDE, then shal youre brethien and children haue mercy in the sighte of them which holde them in captiuyte, that they maye come agayne in to this londe: for the LORDE youre God is gracious and mercifull, and shal not turne awaie his face from you, ys yet conuerte vnto him.

And the postes wente from one cite to another in the londe of Ephraim and Manasses, and vnto Zabulon. But they mocked them and laughed them to scorne. Yet were there some of Asser and Manasses, and of Zabulon, that submytted them selues, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God came in to Juda, so that he gaue them one here to do after the commaundement of the Kyng and the rulers at the worde of the LORDE. And there came together vnto Jerusalem a greate people, to kepe the feast of vnleuened bried in the seconde moneth, a very greate congregacion.

And they gat them vp, and put downe y altars that were at Jerusalem, and all the incense put they awaye, and cast it in to the broke Cedron, and slewe the Passouer on the fourteenth daye of the seconde moneth. And y prestes and Leuites were ashamed, and halowed them selues, and broughte the burnt offerings to the house of the LORDE, and stode in their ordinance, as it was acordinge, after the lawe off Moses the man of God. And the prestes sprentled the bloude from the hande of the Leuites: for there were many in the congregacion which were not sanctified, therfore dyd the Leuites kyll Passouer for them which were not clenfed, that they mighte be sanctified vnto the LORDE.

There were many people also of Ephraim, Manasses, Issachar and Zabulon, which were not cleane, but ate the Easter lambe not as it is wyrtten: for Ezechias prayed for them, and sayde: The LORDE, which is gracious, shalbe mercifull vnto all them that prepare their hertes vnto God, to seke the LORDE God of their fathers, though they be not clenfed after the holy purification. And the LORDE herde Ezechias, and healed the people. Thus the children of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem, helde y feast of vnleuened bried seven dayes with greate ioye. And the Leuites and prestes prayed the LORDE euery daye with the loude instrumentes of the LORDE. And Ezechias spake hertely vnto all y Leuites, which had good vnderstandinge in the LORDE, and they ate the feast seven dayes, and offered thankofferings, and gaue thanks vnto y LORDE God of their fathers.

And all the congregacion denyed to kepe the feast yet other seven dayes, and so they helde it those seven dayes also with ioye: for Ezechias the Kyng of Juda gaue an offeringe for the congregacion, euen a thou-lande bullockes, and seven thousande shepe. But the rulers gave an heueofferinge for y congregacion, euen a thousande bullockes, and ten thousande shepe. And many of the prestes sanctified them selues.

And the whole congregacion of Juda reioysed, the prestes and Levites, and all the congregacion that came out of Israel, and the straungers that were come out of the londe of Israel, and they that dwelt in Juda, and greate ioye was there at Jerusalem: for sence the tyme of Salemon the sonne of Dauid the kynge of Israel, was there no soch (ioye) at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Levites stode vp and blessed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer came in to his holy habitacion in heauen.

The XXXI. Chapter.

¶ And whan all this was fynished, all the Israelites that were founde in y cities of Juda, wente out, and brake the pilers, and hewed downe the groves, and brake downe the hye places and altars out of all Juda, Ben Iamin, Ephraim and Manasses, tyll they had destroyed the. And all the children of Israel wente agayne every one to his possession vnto their cities.

But Ezechias set the prestes and Levites in their ordinaunces, every one after his office, both the prestes and Levites, for the burnt sacrifices and thankofferynges, to mynister, to geue thankes and prayse in the gates of the hoost of the LORDE. And the kynge gaue his porcion of his substance for the burnt offerynges in the moynynge and euenynge, and for the burnt offerynges of the Sabbath, and of the newmone and of the feastes, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the LORDE.

¶ And he spake vnto y people which dwelt at Jerusalem, that they shulde geue porcions vnto the prestes and Levites, y they myghte the more stedfastly endure in the lawe of the LORDE. And whā y worde came forth, the childre of Israel gaue many fyrst frutes of corne, wyne, oyle, hony, and all maner increase of the felde, and broughte in moch of all maner tithes. And the children of Israel and Juda which dwelt in the cities of Juda, broughte the tithes also of oxen and shepe, and the tithes of soch thinges as were sanctified, which they had halowed vnto the LORDE their God, and made here an heape, and there an heape. In the thirde moneth begane they to laye vpon heapes, and in the seventh moneth dyd they synishet.

And whā Ezechias with the rulers wente in, and sawe the heapes, they prayed the LORDE, and his people of Israel. And Ezechias arde the prestes and Levites concerninge the heapes. And Asaria the puse of cheise in the house of Sadoc, sayde vnto him: Sence the tyme that they beganne to bringe the heueofferynges in to y house of the LORDE, we haue eaten, and are satysfied, and yet is there lesse ouer: for the LORDE hath blessed his people, therfore is this heape lesse ouer. Then commaunded the kynge, that they shulde prepare chestes in the house of the LORDE. And they prepared them, and put in the heueofferynges, and tithes, and that which was halowed, faithfully.

And the ouersight of the same had Chanania the Levite, and Simei his brother the seconde, and Jehiel, Asasia, Naglath, Ahel, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Jesmachia, Mahath and Benaiia, ordeyned of the hande off Chanania and Simei his brother, accordinge to the commaundement of the kynge Ezechias. But Asaria was pryncer in the house of God. And Coze y sonne of Iam the Levite the porter of the Eastgate was ouer the frewyllinge giffes of God (which were geuen for heueofferynges vnto the LORDE) and ouer the Most holy. And vnder his hande were, Eden, Miniamin, Iusua, Semaiia, Amaria, and Sachania in the cities of the prestes vpon credence, that they shulde geue vnto their brethren accordinge to their courses, to the lesse as to the greatest.

And vnto them that were counted for men childre from thre yeare olde and above, amonge all the that were in to the house of the LORDE, every one vpo his daye to that office in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened for prestes in the house of their fathers, and the Levites from twentye yeare and above, in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened amonge their children, wyues, sonnes and daughters amonge the whole congregacion: for that which was halowed, sanctified they vpon credence. There were men also named by name amonge Arons children the prestes vpon the felde of the suburbs in all y cities, that they shulde geue porcions vnto all the men childre amonge the prestes, and to all them that were renombred amonge the Levites.

Thus dyd Ezechias in all Juda, and dyd that which was good, righte and true.

the sighte of the LORDE his God. And in all the busynes that he toke in hade concerninge the seruyce of the house of God, accordinge to the lawe and commaundement, to se his God, that dyd he with all his hert, and therfore prospered he well.

The XXXII. Chapter.

¶ After these actes and faithfulness came Sennacherib the kynge of Assur, and wente in to Juda, and pitched before the stryge cities, and thoughte to plucke them vnto him. And whan Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib came, and that his face stode to fighte agaynst Jerusalem, he denyed with his rulers and mightie men, to couer the waters of the welles that were without the cite, and they helped him: and there gathered together a greate people, and couered all y welles and water brokes in the myddes of the londe, and sayde: Lest the kynge of Assur fynde moch water whā they come. And he toke a courage vnto him, and buylded all the walles where they were in decaye, and made towres thereon, and buylded yet another wall without, and strengthened bulles in the cite of Dauid. And made moch ordinaunce and shylde, and set captaynes of warre ouer the people.

¶ And gathered them vnto him vpon the bridle strete by the gate of the cite, and spake herely vnto them, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, feare not, and be not afrayed for the kynge of Assur, ner all y multitude that is with him: for there is one greater with vs then with him. With him is a fleschly arme, but with vs is the LORDE oure God, to helpe vs and to fighte for vs. And y people trusted vnto the wordes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

¶ Afterwarde sent Sennacherib the kynge of Assur his seruantes vnto Jerusalem (for he laye before Lachis, y all his hoost w him) to Ezechias y kynge of Juda, y to all Juda that was at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib y kynge of Assur: Wherin put ye youre trust ye that dwell in the beseged Jerusalem? Ezechias disceaueth you, that he maye deluyer you vnto death, honger and thurst, and sayeth: The LORDE oure God shal deluyer vs from the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not Ezechias, that hath put awaye his hye places and altars, and sayde vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before me altare shal ye worshippe, and burne incense thereon?

¶ And we ye not what I and my fathers

haue done to all y people in the londe: haue the goddes of the heythen in the londe bene able to deluyer their countrees fro my hande? What is he amonge all the goddes of these heythen (whom my father dammed) that was able to deluyer his people fro my hande? y youre God shulde be able to deluyer from my hande. Therfore let not Ezechias now disceauye you, and let him not perswade you eny soch thinge, and beleue him not. For yf no god of all the heythen and kyngdomes might deluyer his people fro my hande and from the hande of my progenitours, then shal not youre goddes be able to deluyer you fro my hande.

His seruantes also spake yet more against the LORDE God, and agaynst his seruante Ezechias. And he wrote a letter to blasphemethe LORDE God of Israel, and spake of him, and sayde: Like as the goddes of the heythen in their londe haue not bene able to deluyer their people from my hande, euen so shal not the God of Ezechias deluyer his people fro my hande.

¶ And he cryed with loude voyce in the Jewish langage vnto the people of Jerusalem that were vpon the wall, to make them fearfull and to be sayntharted, that they might wyne the cite. And they spake agaynst the God off Jerusalem, euen as agaynst the goddes off the nacions vpon earth, which were but the workes of mens handes.

But contrary wyse the kynge Ezechias and the prophet Ilay the sonne of Amos prayed, and cryed vnto heauē. And the LORDE sent an angell, which destroyed all the mightie men of the hoost, and the prynces and rulers in y centes of the kynge of Assur, so that he departed agayne with shame in to his owne londe. And whan he wente in to his gods house, they y came of his owne body, slew him there with the sword. Thus the LORDE helped Ezechias and them at Jerusalem, out of the hade of Sennacherib y kynge of Assur, and of all other, and mayn caryed the frs all on euery syde, so y many broughte presentes vnto the LORDE to Jerusalem, and Jewels vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda. And afterwarde was he exalted in the sighte of all heythen.

At y same tyme was Ezechias deede sick, and he prayed vnto the LORDE, which made him promes, and gaue him a wonder to-ken. But Ezechias recōpensed not accordinge as was geuen vnto him, for his hert was lifted vp: therfore came the wrath vpon him, and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Nevertheless Ezechias humbled him selfe because his here had bene exalted, with them at Jerusalem: therefore came not the wrath of the LORD vpon them, whyle Ezechias lyued.

And Ezechias had very greates riches and worshippe, and made him treasures of syluer, golde, precious stones, spyes, shyldes, and all maner costely vessell, and corne houses for the increace of corne, wyne and oyle, and stalles for all maner catell, and foldes for the shepe, and buylded him cities, and had many catell of shepe and oxen: for God gaue him very moch good.

S It is the same Ezechias that covered the hye water condyte in Gihon, and conveyed it vnder on the west syde of y cite of David: for Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But whan the interpreters the chese of Babilon were sent vnto him, to are question at him (concernynge the wonderrokt that had happened in the londe) God leste him to be tempted, that it might be knowen what soener was in his hert.

Deut. 3.2

What more there is to saye of Ezechias, and of his mercifulnes, beholde, it is wrytten in the vision of the prophet Esay the sonne of Amos, and in the boke of the Kynges of Juda and Israel. And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him ouer the sepulchres of the children of David, and all Juda and they of Jerusalem dyd him worshippe in his death: and Manasses his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Manasses was twelue yere olde whā he was made kynge, and reigned fyue and fiftye yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORD (euen after the abominacions of the heythens, whom the LORD expelled before the children of Israel) and turned backe, and buylded the hye places, (which his father Ezechias had broken downe) and set vp altares vnto Baalim, and made groues, and worshipped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. He buylded altares also in y LORDS house, wherof the LORD had sayde: At Jerusalem shal my name be forever. And vnto all the hoost of heauen buylded he altares in both the courtes of y house of the LORD. And in the valley of the sonne of Zennon caused he his arne sonnes to go chorow the fyre, and chosed dayes, and regarded bydes cryngge, and wittches, and founded soyth sayers and expounders of tokens, and byd moch that was euell in the sighte of the LORD to prouoke him vnto wrath.

2. Par. 7.2

Carued ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) set he vp in Gods house, wherof the LORD saide vnto David and to Salomon his sonne: In this house at Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, wyl I set my name for ever, and wyl nomore let the fore of Israel runne fro the londe that I appoynted for their fathers, so farre as they obserue to do all that I haue commaunded them, in all the lawe, statutes and ordinaunces by Moses. But Manasses disceined Juda and them of Jerusalem, so that they dyd worse then the heythens, whom the LORD destroyed before the children of Israel. And the LORD spake vnto Manasses and his people, and they regarded it not.

Therefore dyd the LORD cause the rulers of the hoost of the kynge of Assur to come vpo the, which toke Manasses prisoner with bodes, and bounde him with cheynes, and broughte him vnto Babilon. And whan he was in trouble, he made intercession before the LORD his God, and humbled himselfe greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besoughte him. Then heard he his prayer, and broughte him agayne to Jerusalem to his kyngdome. And Manasses knewe that the LORD is God.

Afterwarde buylded he y vtremost wall of the cite of David, on the west syde of Gihon by the broke, and at the entrance of the Jyshegate, and rounde aboute. Ophel, and made it very hye. And layed capteynes in stronge cities of Juda, and put awaye y strange goddes and Idols out of y house of y LORD, and all the altares which he had buylded vpo the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cite, and buylded the altare of the LORD, and offred slayn offerynges and thank offerynges thereon, and commaunded Juda, that they shulde serue the LORD God of Israel. Nevertheless though the people offred vnto the LORD their God, yet offred they vpon the hye places.

What more there is to saye of Manasses, and of his prayer to his God, and the wordes of the Seers that spake vnto him in the name of the LORD God of Israel, beholde, they are amonge the actes of the Kynges of Israel. And his prayer and intercession, and all his synne and offence, and the rowmes wherin he buylded the hye places and groues and founded ydols, afore he pibled himselfe, beholde, they are wrytten amonge the actes of the Seers. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in his house, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twetye yere olde was Amon whā he was made kynge, and reigned two yere at Jerusalem, and dyd euell in the sighte of the LORD, as Manasses his father had done. And Amon offred vnto all the Idols that his father Manasses had made, and serued the. Yet dyd not he humble himselfe before the LORD, as Manasse his father had submitted himselfe: but Amon trespassed ener more and more. And his seruantes conspyred agaynst him, and slewe him in his house. Then smote the people in the londe all them that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in the londe made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Josias was eight yere olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned one and thirtye yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, and walked in the wayes of David his father, and turned not asyde, ne ther to the righte hande ner to the lefte. For in the eight yere of his reigne whā he was yet but a childe, he beganne to seke the God of his father David: and in the twelue yere beganne he to cleanse Iuda and Jerusalem from the hye places and groues, and carued Idols, and molten ymages: and caused the altares of Baalim to be broken downe before him, and the ymages that were thereon, hewed he downe. And y groues and carued Idols and molten ymages brake he in peces, and made them to dust, and scattered it vpon the graves of them that had offred vnto them. And the bones of the prestes brent he vpo the altares, and so closed he Juda and Jerusalem, and y cities of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon, and vnto Nephtali in their wyldernes on euery syde. And whā he had broken downe the altares and groues, and smytten the Idols in peces, and hewed downe all the ymages in all the londe of Israel, he came agayne to Jerusalem.

In the eighteenth yere of his reigne whā he had closed the londe and the house, he sent Saphan the sonne of Achabia and Maasiah the Shreue of the cite, and Joath the sonne of Joahas the Chaunceler, to repaire the house of the LORD his God. And they came to Ezechias y hye prest, and there was deliuered vnto them the money that was broughte vnto the house of God, which the Levites (that kepte the thresholdes) had gathered, of Manasses, Ephraim, and of all the residue in Israel, and of all Juda and Benjamin, and of them that dwelt at Jerusalem, and they deliuered it vnto the hādes of the worke men in the house of the LORD, and gaue it vnto those that wrought in the house of the LORD, where it was in decaye, y they shulde repaire it. And the same gaue it forth vnto the carpenters and buylders, to bye fre stone and hewen tymber for the balles in the houses, which the kynges had destroyed. And the men laboured faithfully in the worke.

And ouer them were ordeyned, Jathath and Obadia the Levites of the children of Merari: Zachary and Mesullam of the children of the Rahathites, to further the worke, and they were all Levites that coulde playe vpon instrumentes. But ouer them that bare burthens and furthered all manner of worke in all the offices, there were scribes, officers and doers keepers of the Levites. And whā they toke out the money that was broughte vnto y house of the LORD, Ezechias the prest founde the boke of the lawe of the LORD geuen by Moses. And Ezechias answered, and saide vnto Saphan the Scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in y house of y LORD. And Ezechias deliuered the boke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, and broughte y kynge worde agayne, and sayde: All that was geuen vnder the handes of thy seruantes, that make they: and y money that was founde in y house of the LORD, haue they gathered together, and deliuered it vnto y officers, and to the workemen. And Saphan the Scribe tolde the kynge, and sayde: Ezechias the prest hath deliuered me a boke.

4. Re. 21.2

And Saphan red therein before the kynge. And whan the kynge herd the wordes of the lawe, he rente his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Ezechias and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, and Saphan the Scribe, and Asaia the kynges seruante, and sayde: Go youre waye, are counsell at the LORD for me and for the remnant in Israel, and for Juda, concernynge these wordes of the boke that is founde. For greates is the indignacion of the LORD that is gone forth ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of the LORD, to do acordinge as it is wrytten in this boke. Then wote Helchias (with the other that were sent from the kynge) vnto the prophetisse Hulda the wife of Sallum the Sonne of Thecoath the sonne of Asra the keeper of the clothes, which dwelt at Jerusalem in the secōde parte, and they spake this vnto her.

E And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORD God of Israel: Tell the man I sent you vnto me: Thus sayeth I LORD: Beholde, I wil brynge plagues vpon this place and the inhabitants thereof, all the curses which are wrytten in the boke, that was red before the kynge of Juda: because they have forsake me, and brete incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me with all the workes of their handes. And my indignacion shal go forth vpon this cite, and shal not be quenched.

And after this maner shal ye saye vnto the kynge of Juda, that sent you to a counsell at the LORD: Thus sayeth I LORD God of Israel concernynge the wordes that thou hast herde: Because thine hert is moued, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe in the sighte of God, whan thou herdest his wordes agaynst this place and the inhabitants thereof, and hast submytted thy selfe before me, and rent thy clothes, and wepte before me, therefore haue I herde the, sayeth I LORD. Beholde, I wil gather the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be layed in thy grave with peace, so I thine eyes shal not se all the euell that I wil brynge ouer this place, and the indwellers thereof. And they broughthe the kynge worde agayne.

S Then sent I kynge, and caused all the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kynge wente vp into the house of the LORD, and all the men of Juda and inhabitants of Ierusalem, the prestes, the Levites, and all the people both small and greete: and all the wordes in the boke of the couenante that was founde in the house of the LORD, were red in their eares. And I kynge stode in his place, and made a conuauent before the LORD, that they shulde walke after the LORD, to kepe his commandementes, his testimonies, and his statutes with all their hert and with all their soule, to do accordinge vnto all the wordes of the couenante that are wrytten in this boke.

And there stode all they that were founde at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And I inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd accordinge to the couenante of God the God of their fathers. And Josias put away all abhomi-nations out of all the londes that were the children of Israel, and caused all them that were founde in Israel, to serue the LORD their God. As longe as Josias liued, departed they not from the LORD the God of their fathers.

The XXXV. Chapter.

And Josias kepte Passeouer vnto the LORD at Jerusalem, and slewethe Passeouer on the fourteenth daye of the first moneth, and set the prestes in their offices, and strenghted them to their ministracion in the house of the LORD, and sayde vnto the Levites that taught in all Israel, and were sanctified vnto I LORD: Put the holy Arte in the house that Salomon I sonne of David kynge of Israel dyd buyde. Ye shal beare it nomore vpon your shulders. Se that ye serue now the LORD your God, and his people of Israel, and prepare the house of your fathers in your courses, as it was appoynted by Dauid the kynge of Israel, and by Salomon his sonne: and stonde in the Sanctuary after I course of the fathers houses amonge your brethren the children of the people. And after the course of the fathers houses amonge the Levites, and Iyll Passeouer, sanctifye and prepare your brethren, that they maye do accordinge to the worde of the LORD by Moses.

And Josias gaue lambes and yongelodes which were males, to the Ieneofferynge for the comontye (all to the Passeouer for every one that was founde) in the nombre thirtye thousande, and thre thousande oxen, all of the kynges good. And his pryces of their awne good wyl gave to the Ieneofferynge for the people, I for the prestes and Levites (namely, Helchias, Zachary and Jehiel the prynces in I house of God amonge the prestes) for the Passeouer, two thousande and sixe hundred. And thre hundred oxen. But Chanania, Semaia, Nathanael and his brethren, Gasabia, Jaiel and Josabab the chiefe of the Levites gaue the Ientesto the Iene offerynge for the Passeouer, fyue thousande sheps, I fyue hundred oxen.

Thus was the Gods seruyce preparat, and the prestes stode in their place, and the Levites in their courses accordinge to the kynges commandement. And they Iyll the Passeouer, and the prestes toke it off their handes, and sprentled it: and the Levites toke the slaynes off them, and remoued the burnt offerynge there from, to geue amonge the porcions of the fathers houses in the multitudes of their congregacion to offere vnto the LORD, as it is wrytten in I boke of Moses. Euen so dyd they with the oxen also. And they dighte the Passeouer at the fyre accordinge to the lawe. And that which was halowed, dighte they in poetes, fettels, and pannes, and made haist for the comon people. Afterwarde prepared they for them selues also and for I prestes: for the prestes the children of Aaron were occupied in the burnt offerynges and sat vntill the nyghte. Therefore must the Levites prepare for them selues and for the prestes the children of Aaron.

And the syngers the children of Asaph stode in their place (accordinge to I Dauids commandement) and Asaph and Zeman, and Jedithim the kynges Ser, and the porters at all the gates. And they departed not from their office. For the Levites their brethren prepared for them. Thus was all the Gods seruyce prepared the same daye, that the Passeouer mighte be kepte, and the burnt sacrifices offred vpon the altare off the LORD accordinge to the commandement of kynge Josias.

So the children of Israel that were at hande, helde Passeouer at that tyme, and the feast of unleuened bred, seven dayes. Senca I tyme of Samuel the prophet, was no Passeouer kepte in Israel like this: and no kynge of Israel had holden socha Passeouer as Josias dyd, and the prestes, Levites, all Juda, and socha as were founde of Israel, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. In the eightieth yere of the reigne of Josias was this Passeouer kepte.

After this, whan Josias had prepared the house, Necho the kynge of Egypte wente vp to fighte agaynst Carcamis besyde Euphrates. And Josias wente forth agaynst him. But he sent messangers vnto him, sayenge: What haue I to do with the God of Iuda? I am not come now agaynst the, but I fighte agaynst another house: and God hath sayde, that I shal make haist. Ceasse from God which is with me, that he destroye the not. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face from him, but prepared himselfe to fighte with him, and heretened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, I came to fighte with him vpon the playne besyde Mageddo. But the Archers shot at kynge Josias. And the kynge sayde vnto his seruantes: Carry me away, for I am sore wounded. And his ser-uantes toke him from the charet, and caried him vpon his seconde charet, and broughthe him to Jerusalem. And he dyed, and was buried amonge the sepulchres off his fathers.

And All Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias, and Jeremy bewayled Josias, and all the synginge men and women, spake their lamentacions ouer Josias vnto this daye, and made a custome therof vnto this daye. Beholde, it is wrytten also amonge the Lamentacions. What more there is to saye of Josias, and his mercy accordinge to the scripture in the lawe of the LORD, and of his actes (both first and last) beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

And the people of the londe toke Joahas the sonne of Josias, and made him kynge in his fathers steade at Jerusalem. Thre and twenty yere olde was Joahas whan he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. For the kynge of Egypte deposed him at Jerusalem, and contemned the londe in an hundred talentes of syluer, and one talent off golde. And the kynge of Egypte made Eliahim his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem, and turned his name Joachim. But Necho toke his brother Joahas, and caried him in to Egypte.

Syue and twenty yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, and reigned eleue yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORD his God. And Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon wente vp agaynst him, and bounde him with cheynes, to cary him vnto Babilon. And Nabuchodonosor broughthe certayne vessels of I house of the LORD vnto Babilon, and put them in his temple at Babilon. What more there is to saye of Joachim, and off his abhominacions which he dyd, and that were founde in him, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda. And Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Eight yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes and ten dayes at Jerusalem, and dyd I which was euell in the sighte of I LORD. But whan the yere came aboute, Nabuchodonosor sent thither, and caused him be fetched vnto Babilon with the costly vessels and Jewels of the house of the LORD, and made Sedechias his brother kynge ouer Iuda and Jerusalem.

One and twentye yere olde was Sedechias when he was made kynge, & reigned eleuen yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE his God, and submytted not himselfe before the face of the prophet Jeremy, which spake out of the mouth of the LORDE. He fell awaye also from Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon (which had taken an oath of him by God) and was styfnecked, and hardened his hert, that he shulde not conuerte vnto the LORDE God of Israel. And all y^e these amonge the prestes, and the people, multiplyed their synnes, acordinge to all the abhominacions of the heythens, and dyssembled the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem.

And the LORDE God of their fathers sent vnto them early by his messengers (for he spared his people and his habitation) but they laughed the messengers of God to scorne, and despyed his wordes, and had his prophetes in derision, so longe tyll the indignacion of the LORDE increased ouer his people, and there was no remedye of healinge. For he broughte the kynge of the Caldees vpon them, and caused for to slaye all their yonge men with the swerde in the house of their Sanctuary, and spared nether yongemāner virgin, nether aged ner grauid father, but gaue them all in to his hande. And all the vessels in the house of God, greete and small, the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and the treasures of the kynge and of his prynces, all this caused he to be caried vnto Babilon. And they brent the house of God, and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, and all the palaces therof brent they with fyre, so that all the costly ornaments of it were destroyed.

And loke who escaped y^e swerde, hi caried he awaye vnto Babilon, & they became his seruantes, & the seruantes of his sonnes, tyll the persians had the empyre: that y^e worde of the LORDE by the mouth of Jeremy might be perfourmed, enen vntyll the londe had ynough of hir Sabbathes: for all the tyme of the desolacion was it Sabbath, vntyll the seventy yeres were fulfilled.

But in the first yere of Cyrus the kynge of Persia (that the worde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy might be fulfilled) the LORDE raysed vp the spiete of Cyrus the kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclaimed thorow out all his empyre, ye and by wytyng also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath geuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe, and hath commaunded me to buyde him an house at Jerusalem in Iuda. Who soeuer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with him, and let him go vp.

The first Chapter.

In the first yere of Cyrus kynge off Persia (that the worde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy might be fulfilled) the LORDE stered vp the spiete of Cyrus kynge of Persia, & he caused it be proclaimed thorow out all his empyre, ye and by wytyng also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath geuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe, and hath commaunded me to buyde him an house at Jerusalem in Iuda. Who soeuer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with him, and let him go vp to Jerusalem in Iuda, and buyde the house of the LORDE God of Israel. He is y^e God that is at Jerusalem. And whoso euer remayneth yett in any maner of place (where he is a stranger) let the mē of his place helpe him with syluer and golde, with good and catell of a good frewill, for the house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Iuda and Ben Jamin, and the prestes and Leuites, and all they whose spiete God had raysed to go vp, and to buyde the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem. And all they that were aboute them, strenghted their hande with vessels of syluer and golde, with good and catell, and Jewels, besydes that which they gaue of their awne frewill. And kynge Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the LORDE house, which Nabuchodonosor had takē out of Jerusalem, and put in his gods house. But Cyrus y^e kynge of Persia brought the forth by Michedath the treasurer, and nombred the vnto Sefbazar the pryncce of Iuda. And this is the nombre of them: thirtie basens of golde, and a thousande basens of syluer, and nyne and twentye knyues, thirtie cuppes of golde, and of other syluer cuppes foure hundred and ten, and of other vessels a thousande. So that all the vessels both of golde and syluer, were fyue thousande and foure hundred. Sefbazar broughte them all vp, with them that came vp out of the captiuyte off Babilon vnto Jerusalem.

The ii. Chapter.

These are the childre of the londe that wente vp out of the captiuyte (whiche Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon had caried awaye vnto Babilon) and came agayne to Jerusalem and into Iuda, euery one vnto his cite, and came with Zorobabel, Jesa, Nehemias, Seraia, Reeleia, Mardachai, Bilsum, Mispar, Begeuai, Rehum and Baena. This is now the nombre of the men of the people of Israel: The childrien of Phares, two thousande, an hundred, and two and seventy: the childrien of Sephatia, thre hundred and two and seventy: the childrien of Arath, seven hundred and fyue and fiftie: the childrien of Pahath Moab amonge the childrien of Jesa, Joab, two thousande, eight hundred and twelue: the childrien of Elam, a thousande, two hundred and foure and fiftie: the childrien of Sathu, nyne hundred and fyue and forty: the childrien of Sacai, seue hundred and thre score: the childrien of Bani, sixe hundred and two and forty: the childrien of Bebai, sixe hundred and thre and twenty: the childrien of Bishab, a thousande two hundred and two and twenty: the childrien of Abdoniam, sixe hundred and sixe and fiftie: the childrien of Biguai, two thousande and sixe and fiftie: the childrien of Adin, foure hundred and foure and fiftie: the childrien of Ater of Ezechias, eight and nynty: the childrien of Bezai, thre hundred and thre and twenty: the childrien of Joiach, an hundred and twelue: the childrien of Hasum, two hundred and thre and twenty: the childrien of Gibbar, fyue and nynty: the childrien off Bethleem, an hundred and thre and twenty: the men off Ne-topha sixe and fiftie: the men off Anathot, an hundred and eight and twenty: the childrien off Alimareth, two and forty: the childrien off Biriath Arim, Caphira and Beeroth, seven hundred and thre and forty: the childrien off Rama and Gaba, sixe hundred and one and twenty: the men off Michmas, an hundred and two and twentye: the men of Bethel and Ai, two hundred and thre and twentye: the childre of Nebo, two and fyfye: the children of Magbis, an hundred and fyve and fyfye: the childre of the other Elam a thousande, two hundred and foure and fyfye: the children of Harim, thre hundred and twentye: the childre of Lodhadid and Ono, seue hundred and fyve and twentye: the childre of Jericho, thre hundred and fyve and foure: the children of Senaa, thre thousande, fyve, hundred and thirtie.

The prestes. The children of Jedaia of the house of Jesua, nyne hundred and thre and seuentye: the childre of Jemmer, a thousande and two and fyfye: the children of pasur, a thousande and two hundred, and seuen and fortye: the childre of Harim, a thousande and seuentene.

The Levites. The children of Jesua and Cadmiel of the children of Hodavia, foure and seuentye. The syngers, the children of Asaph, an hundred and eight and twentye. The children of the doorekeepers. The children of Sallum, the children of Ater, the childre off Talmon, the children off Acub, the children off Harita, and the children off Sobai: altogether an hundred and nyne and thirtie.

The Nethinims. the children of Ziba, the children of Hasapha, the children of Tabaoth, the children of Ceros, the children of Sieha, the children of Padon, the children of Lebana, the children of Hagaba, the children of Acub, the childre of Hagab, the children of Samlai, the children of Hanan, the children of Giddel, the children of Gabar, the childre of Reaia, the children of Rezin, the children of Necuba, the children of Gasan, the children of Usa, the children of Pasfeah, the children of Bessai, the children of Mina, the children of Menimm, the children of Nephusim, the children of Bacbuc, the childre of Zacupha, the children of Harhur, y childre of Hazeluth, y childre of Mehira, the children of Harsa, the children of Barcom, the children of Sissera, the children of Thamab, the children of Neziab, the children of Hacipha.

seruantes were altogether, thre hundred and two and nyentye.

And these were up also, Michal, Melch, Thel, Harso, Cherub, Addon and Imma. But they coulde not shewe their fathers house nor their sede, whether they were of Israel. The children of Delaia, the children of Tobias, the children of Necoda, fyve hundred and two and fyfye.

And of the children of the prestes. The children of Sabai, the children of Zacon, the children of Barfillai, which toke one of the daughters of Barfillai the Gileadite to wife, and was counted amonge the same names: these soughte the register of their byrth, and founde none, therefore werethy put from the presthode. And Hathir saide vnto them, that they shulde not care of the most holy, tyll thererose vp a prest with the lighte and perfectnesse.

The whole congregacion as one man, was two and fortye thousande, thre hundred and thre score: besyde their seruantes and maydes, of whom there were seue thousande, thre hundred and seuen and thirtie. And they had two hundred singinge men and women, seue hundred and fyve and thretye horses, two hundred and fyve and thretye mules, foure hundred and fyve and thretye Camels, and sixethousand, seuen hundred and twentye asses.

And certayne of the chiefe fathers, when they came to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, they were well mynded vnto the house of God, that it shulde be set in his place, and gave after their abylte vnto the measure of the worke, one and thre score thousande guldens, and fyve thousande pounde of syluer, and an hundred prestes garments. So the prestes and the Levites, and certayne of y people, and the syngers, and the porters, and y Nethinims dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

The III. Chapter.

And when the seuenth moneth came, and the children of Israel were now in their cities, the people came together euen as one man, vnto Jerusalem. And there stode vp Jesua the sonne of Josede and his brethren the prestes, and Zorobabel the sonne of Saalchiel and his brethren, and buylde the altare of the God of Israel, to offre burntofferinges thereon, as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses the man of God, and the altare set they vpon the solettes: for there was a fearfulness amonge them because of the nacions and lobes) and offered burntofferinges thereon vnto y LORDE. in the mornynge and at euen. And helde the feast of Tabernacles: as it is wrytten, and offered burntofferings daylie after the nombre as acordinge was, every daye his sacrifice. Afterwarde the daylie burnt offeringes also, and of the new Mones and of all the feast dayes of the LORDE that were halowed, and allmaner of fre wyllinge offeringes, which they did of their awne fre wyl vnto the LORDE.

Upon the first daye of the seuenth moneth beganne they to offre burnt sacrifices vnto the LORDE. But the foundacion of the temple of the LORDE was not yet layed. Nevertheless they gaue money vnto y masons and carpenters, and meate and drynke and oyle vnto them of Zidon and of Tyre, to buynge the Cedre tymbre from Libanus by See vnto. Joppa, acordinge to the commandment of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yeare of their commynge vnto the house of God at Jerusalem in the second moneth, beganne Zorobabel the sonne of Salachiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josede, and the remnaunt of their brethren the prestes and Levites, and all they that were come out of the captiuyte vnto Jerusalem, and appoynted the Levites fro twentye yeare elde and aboue, so se that the worke of the house of the LORDE were forward. And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiel with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to furthur the workmen of the house of God, namely the childre of Henadab with their children and their brethren the Levites.

And when the buylders layed the foundacion of the temple of the LORDE, the prestes stode in their arraye, with trompettes. And the Levites the children of Asaph with Cantables, to prayse y LORDE: with the Dytie of David kynge of Israel. And they sung together, geuyng prayse & thanke vnto y LORDE, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israel. And all the people shouted loude in praylinge the LORDE, because the foundacion of y house of the LORDE was layed. Nevertheless many of the olde prestes and Levites and awncient fathers, which had seene the house afore in his foundacion, and this was now before their eyes, wepte loude. But many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a greatesounde, in so moch that the people coulde not knowe y ioyfull

sounde for the noyse of the wepinge in the people: for the people shouted loude, so that the noyse was herde farre of.

The III. Chapter.

De when the aduersaries of Juda and Ben Jamin herde, that the childre of the captiuyte buylde the temple vnto the LORDE God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel & to the principall fathers, and sayde vnto them: We wyl buylde with you: for we see the LORDE youre God like as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto him, sence the tyme that Assar Hadon the kynge of Assur broughte vs up hither. But Zorobabel and Jesua and the other awncient fathers of Israel, answered them: It is not mete for vs and you to buylde the house of oure God, but we wyl buylde alone vnto the LORDE God of Israel: as Cyrus the kynge of Persia hath commaunded vs.

Then the folke of the lande hyndered the people of Juda, and made them afraied to buylde, and hyred councelers aganst them and hyndered their deuyc, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntill the reigne off Darius kynge off Persia. But when Abasuerus was kynge, in the begynnyng off his reigne wrote they vnto him a complaynte agaynst them of Juda and Jerusalem.

And in the tyme of Artaxerxes, wrote Bithellam, Mithradath, Tabeel and the other of their counsell vnto Artaxerxes the kynge of Persia. But the scripture of y letter was wrytten in the Syriane speach, and was interpreted in the langage of the Syrians. Rehum y chaunceler, and Simsai the scribe, wrote this letter agaynst Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge.

We Rehum the chaunceler, and Simsai the scribe, and other of the counsell of Dina, off Arphasath, off Tarplat, off Persia, off Arach, of Babilon, of Susa, of Deba, and of Elam, and other of the people: whom the greates and noble Asinaphar broughte ouer, and set in the cities of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Canaan. And this is y summe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes:

Thy seruantes the men on this syde the water and in Canaan. Be it knowne vnto y kynge, that the Jewes which are come vp from the to vs vnto Jerusalem in to that sedicious & wicked cite, buylde the same, and make vp y walles of it, & buynge it out of y foundacion. Be it knowne now therfore vnto y kynge, y yschis cite be buylde & the walles.

made up agayne, the shall not they gene tribute, toll, and yearly custome, and their deuyc shall do y^e kynge harme. But now that we all are cherby which destroyed the temple, we wolde no longer se the kynges dishonoure. Therfore sent we out, and caused the kyng to be certified therof: That it maye be soughte in y^e Cronicles of chy progenitours, and so shalt thou fynde in the same Cronicles, and perceauie, that this cite is sedicious and noysome vnto kynges and londes, and that they cause other also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cite destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kyng, that yf this cite be buylded, and the walles therof made up, thou shalt kepe nothinge on this syde the water by the reason of it.

D Then sent y^e kyng an answer vnto Rehūm the chaunceler, and Simai the Scribe, and to the other of their counsell that dwelt in Samaria, and vnto the other beyonde y^e water. Peace and saluacion. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene openly red before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: and it is founde, that this cite of olde hath made insurreccion agaynst kynges, & how y^e vpr^o and rebellion hath bene committed therin. There haue bene mightie kynges also at Ierusalem, which haue reigned ouer all that is beyonde the water, and toll, tribute and yearly custome was geuen vnto them. Do ye now after this commaundement, forbyd the same men, that the cite be not builded, tyll I haue geue commaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent here in, lest the kyng haue harme there thorow.

Now whā kyng Artaxerxes letter was red before Rehūm the chaunceler and Simai the Scribe and their counsell, they wente up in all the haist to Ierusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbade them with the arme and ancreute. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius kyng of Persia.

The V. Chapter.

Aggs. 1. The prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary y^e sonne of Iddo, prophesied vnto y^e Jewes that were in Iuda and Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. Then gat vp Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Iosedec, and begann to buyld the house of God at Ierusalem, and with them the prophetes of God which strenghted the. At the same tyme came to the Thathnai the debite on this syde

the water, and Sethar of Bosen, and their counsellors, and saydeth vnto them: Whā hath commaunded you to buyld this house, and to make up the walles therof? They tolde we them the names of the men, that made this buyldinge. But the eye of the God came vpon the Elders of the Jew, that they were not inhibyte, tyll the man was brought before Darius, and tyll then came a wytyng therof agayne.

This is the summe of the letter y^e Thathnai the Debyte on this syde the water, and Sethar of Bosen, and their counsellors of Alpharsach (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kyng Darius. And these are the wordes that they sent vnto him: Vnto Darius the kyng, all peace. Be it known vnto the kyng, that we came in to Ierusalem to the house of y^e greate God, which is builded with all maner of stone, and balde as layed in the walles, and y^e worke goeth forth, and prospereth in their handes. Therfortheles we axed the Elders and sayd vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyld this house, and to make up the walles therof? We axed their names also, that we might certifie the, and haue wyrtten the names of the men that were their rulers.

But they answered vs wth these wordes, and sayde: We are the seruantes of the God of heauen and earth, and buylded the house y^e was buylded many yeares agoe, which a greate kyng of Israel buylded and set up. Howbeit whā oure fathers prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer in the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon the Caldee, which built downe this house, & caried y^e people away vnto Babilon.

Therfortheles in the first yeare of Cym the kyng of Babilon, y^e same kyng Cym commaunded to buyld this house of God for the vessels of golde and siluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Ierusalem, and brought it in to y^e temple at Babilon, those dyd Cym the kyng take out of y^e temple at Babilon, and deliuered them vnto Sebbazer by name, whom he made Debyte, and sayd vnto him: Take these vessels, go thy way and bringe them vnto the temple at Ierusalem, and let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Sebbazer, and layed y^e foundation of the house of God at Ierusalem. Sence that tyme hath it ben in buyldinge, and yet is it not fynished. If please y^e kyng now, let there be search made in y^e kynges treasure house which is at Babilon, whether it haue bene kyng Cym commaundement, that the house of God at Ierusalem shoulde be buylded: & sende vs y^e kynges mynde concernynge the same.

The VI. Chapter.

Then commaunded kyng Darius, that search shoulde be made in y^e library of y^e kynges treasure house, which laye at Babilon. So at Egbathanis in a castell that lyeth in the londe of the Medes, there was founde a boke, & in it was there an acte wyrtten after this maner: In the first yeare of kyng Cym, commaunded the same kyng Cym to buyld y^e house of God at Ierusalem, in the place where the sacrifice is made, & to laye the foundation to beare thre score cubites heyghe, & thre score cubites bredth, & the walles of all maner of stones, and one wall of tymber, & the expences shalbe geuen of the kynges house. And the golde and siluer vessel of y^e house of God (which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Ierusalem, and brought vnto Babilon) shalbe restored agayne, & they maye be brought vnto the temple at Ierusalem to their place in the house of God.

Get you farre from them therfore, thou Thathnai Debyte beyonde the water, and Sethar of Bosen, & youre counsellors which are beyonde the water. Let them worke in y^e house of God, that the Debyte of y^e Jewes and their Elders maye buyld the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded also, what shalbe done to y^e Elders of Iuda for the buyldinge of the house of God, that they shal diligently be care of the kynges goodes, even of the rentes beyonde the water, & gaue vnto the men, and that they be not hyndered.

And yf they haue nede of calues, lambes, & goates for the burnt offryng vnto y^e God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Ierusalem, they shalbe geuen them daylie as is acordinge: and se that this be not done negligently, that they maye offre swete sanoures vnto y^e God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his children. This commaundement haue I geue. And what man so ever he be that altereth these wordes, there shal a halfe be taken from his house, and set up, and he shal be hangid thereon, and his house shalbe pryed for the dede.

But the God that dwelleth in heauen, destoye all kynges and people, that putte to the harte to alter and to breake downe the house of God at Ierusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be diligently done.

Then Thathnai & Debyte beyonde y^e water, and Sethar of Bosen with their counsellors (to whom kyng Darius had sent) dyd their diligence. And y^e Elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered thorow the prophesie of Aggeus the prophet and Zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they buylded, and set up the worke, acordyng to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cym, Darius and Artaxerxes kynges of Persia. And they perfourmed the house vnto the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, that was the sixte yeare of the reigne of kyng Darius.

And the children of Israel, the prestes, the Levites, and the other children of y^e captiuite helde the dedicacion of the house of God with ioye, and offred at the dedicacion of the house of God, an hundreth calues, two hundreth lambes, foure hundreth goates: and for the synofferyng for all Israel, twelue he goates, acordyng to the nombre of the trybes of Israel, and set the prestes in their courses, and y^e Levites in their offices, to mynister vnto God which is at Ierusalem, as it is wyrtten in the boke of Moses.

And the children of the captiuite helde Passouer vpon the fourtenth daye of the first moneth: for y^e prestes and Levites had purified them selues, so y^e they were all cleane as one man, and tyld Passouer for all the children of the captiuite, and for their brethren the prestes, and for them selues. And the childre of Israel which were come agayne out of captiuite, and all soch as had separated them selues vnto them from the synchinesse of the heythen in the londe, to seke the LORDE God of Israel, ate & helde the feast of vnleued bread seven dayes with ioye: for the LORDE had made them glad, and turned the herte of the kyng of Assur vnto the, so that their handes were strenghted in the worke of the house of God, which is y^e God of Israel.

The VII. Chapter.

After these actes in the reigne of Artaxerxes kyng of Persia, there wente up from Babilon, Esdras the sonne of Seraia, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Saboc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Serahia, y^e sonne of Osi, the sonne of Buti, the sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleasar, the

10. a sonne of Aaron the chiefe priest, which was a quicke scribe in the lawe of Moyses, which the LORD God of Israel dyd geue. And the kynge gaue him all that he requyred, accordyng to the hande of the LORD his God vpon him.

And there wente vp certayne of the children of Israel, and of the prestes, and of the Leuites, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Netthinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of kynge Artaxerxes. And they came to Jerusalem in the fift moneth, that is the seventh year of the kynge. For vpon the first daye of the first moneth, deuyd he to go vp from Babilon: and on the first daye of the fift moneth came he to Jerusalem, accordyng to the good hande of God vpon him: For Esdras prepared his hert to seke the lawe of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach the precepte and iudgment in Israel.

2 And this is the summe of the letter, that kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the priest, the scribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LORD and of his statutes ouer Israel. Vnto Esdras the priest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutacion. I haue commaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the prestes and Leuites in my realme, which are mynded of their awne good wyll to go vp to Jerusalem, that they go with the beyng sent of the kynge and of the seven lordes of the counsell, to vyset Juda and Jerusalem, accordyng to the lawe of God, which is in thy harte: And that thou shouldest take with the, syluer and golde, which the kynge and the lordes of his counsell geue of their awne good wyll vnto the God of Israel (whose habitation is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde that thou canst fynde in all the countre of Babilon: with it that the people and prestes geue of their awne good wyll vnto the house of God at Jerusalem.

3 Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, calues, lambes, goates, and meat offeringes and drynke offeringes, to be offred vpon the altare of the house of youre God at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren to do with the remnant of the money, that do after the wyll of youre God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the mynistracion in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And what so ever thinge more shal be necessary for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, let the same be geue one of the kynges chamber. The kynge Artaxerxes haue commaunded all the treasures beyonde the water, that loke what so ever Esdras the priest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requyeth of you, that ye fulfill the same diligently, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, and tyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred bathe of wyne, and tyll an hundred bathe of oyle, and salt without measure. What so ever belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauen, let the same be done with diligencia in the house of the God of heauen, that there be no wrath vpon the kynges realme and children.

And knowe be it vnto you, that ye shal haue no auctorite to requyre taryng and tyme, and yearly rentes vpon any of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Netthinims and mynisters in the house of this God. But thou Esdras (after the wysdome of the God that is in thy hande) set thou iudges and biters, to iudge all the people that is beyonde Jordan, euen all such as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that knowe it not, they se that ye teach. And who so ever wil diligently fulfill the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, shal haue his iudgment in the dede, whether it be vnto deathe, or to banyshe, or to be condemned in good, or to be put in prison.

Praised be the LORD God of our fathers, which so hath inspired the kynges hert to garnyshe the house of God at Jerusalem: and hath enclined his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kynge, and his counsell, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was comforted (accordyng to the wordes of the LORD my God ouer me) and so gathered I the heades of Israel together, that they might go vp with me.

The viii. Chapter.

These are the heades of their fathers that were named, which wente vp with me from Babilon, what tyme as kynge Artaxerxes reigned. Of the children of Phineas, Gersom: of the children of Iehonatan, Daniel: of the children of David, Harai: of the children of Pareos, Zachary, and the child named with him, an hundred and fiftye. Of the children of Pahath Moab, Eleonai the sonne of Serabia, and with him two hundred males.

Of the children of Sechania, the sonne of Jehasiel, and with him three hundred males. Of the children of Adin Ebed, the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fiftye males.

Of the children of Elam, Jesaia the sonne of Achalia, and with him seventie males. Of the children of Sephatia, Sebadia the sonne of Michael, and with him fourescore males.

Of the children of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with him two hundred and eightene men children. Of the children of Sedonah, the sonne of Josiphia, and with him an hundred and thre score males.

Of the children of Debai, Zachary the sonne of Debai, and with him eight and twenty males. Of the children of Bigvai, Uthai and Sabud, and with them fene males. And I gathered them together by the water that renneth towarde Athena, and there abode we thre dayes.

And when I looked amonge the people and the prestes, I founde no Leuites there. The fewe I Eliezer, Ariel, Semaia, Elmathan, Jarib, Elmathan, Natha, Zachary and Mesulam the rulers, and Joiarib and Elmathan the teachers, and those sent I vnto Iddo the chiefe at Casiphia, that they shulde fetch us mynisters for the house of our God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo and to his brethren the Netthinims at Casiphia.

And (accordyng to the good hande of our God vpon us) they broughte us a wyseman from amonge the children of Maheli the sonne of Lem the sonne of Israel, euen Serabia with his sonnes and brethren, eighte. And Hasabia, and with him Jesaia of the children of Merari, with his brethren and their sonnes, twentye. And of the Netthinims, whom David and the princes gaue to mynister vnto the Leuites, two hundred and twentye, all named by name.

And euen there at the water besyde Athena, caused I a fastinge to be proclaimed, that we might humble oure selues before our God, to seke of him a righte waye for us, and our children and all oure substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kynge, sonnes and horsmen, to helpe us agaynst the enemye in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of our God is for the best vpon all them that seke him, and his violence and wrath vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and soughte this at our God, and he herde us.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe pres-tes, Serabia and Hasabia, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them there the syluer and golde and vessels for the house offeringe vnto the house of our God, which the kynge, and the lordes of his counsell and prynces, and all Israel that were at hande, had geuen to the house offeringe: and there weyed I them vnder their hande fife hundred and fiftye talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessell an hundred talentes, and in golde an hundred talentes, twentye cuppes of golde of a thousande guldens, and two costly ornamentes of good brasse, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: Ye are holy vnto the LORD, therfore are the vessels holy also, and so is the syluer and golde that is geuen of a good wyll vnto the LORD God of youre fathers: Watch ye therfore and kepe it, tyll ye weye it downe before the chiefe prestes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the chestes of the house of the LORD. Then toke the prestes and Leuites that weyed syluer and golde, and vessell, to bryng it to Jerusalem vnto the house of our God.

So we brake vp, from the water of Athena on the twelveth daye of the first moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of our God was vpon us, and deliuered us fro the hande of the enemies and preyng waytinges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of our God vnder the hande of Meremoth the sonne of Urias the priest, and with him Eleasar the sonne of Phineas, and with them Josabad the sonne of Jesua, and Noabia the sonne of Benai the Leuites, accordyng to the nombre and weighte of every one. And the weighte was all wrytten vp at the sametyme.

And the children of the captiuyte, which were come out of prison, offred burnt offeringes vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullockes for all Israel, fife and nyntye rammes, seven and fientye lambes, and twelue goates for a synofferinge, all to the burnt offeringe of the LORD. And they deliuered the kynges commysion vnto the kynges officers, and to the Debytes on this syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The ix. Chapter.

20 When all this was performed, the rulers came to me, and sayde: The people of Israel, and the prestes, and Leuites are not separated from the nations in the londes as touching their abhominacions, namely of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherefites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egipcians, and Amorites. For they haue taken the daughters of the same, & their sonnes, and haue myrte the holy sede with f nacions in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of counsell hath bene prin cipall in this trespase.

When I herde this, I rente my clothes and my rayment, and plucked out the heer of my heade and of my beard, and sat mournyn ge. And there resorted vnto me all such as feared the worde of the LORDE God of Is rael because of the greate transgression. And I sat mournynge vntyll the eueninge sacri fice. And aboute the eueninge sacrifice I rose vp fro my heuyenes, and rente my clothes and my raiment, and fell vpon my knees, and spred out my handes vnto the LORDE my God, and sayde:

My God, I am ashamed, and darre not lifte vp mine eyes vnto the my God: for oure wickednesses are growne ouer oure heade, & oure trespases are wares greates vnto y hea re. Since the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in greates trespase vnto this daie, and because of oure wickednesses haue we and o f kynges bene deliuered in to the hande of y kynges of the nacions, in to the swerde, in to captiuyte, in to spoyle, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe this daie.

But now is there a litle and sodane gra ciousnes come from the LORDE oure God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maie geue vs a nayle in his holy place, that oure God maye lighte oure eyes, and geue vs a litle lyfe in oure bondage. For we are bond men, and y God hath not forsake vs though we be bondmen, and hath enclined mercy vnto vs in the sighte of the kynges of per sia, that they shulde geue vs lyfe, and pro mote the house of oure God, and to sett vp the desolacion therof, and to geue vs an hed ge in Juda and Jerusalem.

O oure God, what shal we saye now af ter this? that we haue forsaken thy com mandementes, which thou hast comman ded by thy seruantes the prophetes, and saide: The londe wherin ye shal come to pos sess it, is an vnclane londe thow the syl thimes of the people of the londes, in their abhominacions wherewith they haue made it full of vnclanes on every syde. Therefore shal ye not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, and their daughters shal ye not ta ke vnto youre sonnes, and seeke not their pea ce and welth for ever, that ye maye be ston ge, and enioye the good in the londe, and y ye and youre children maye haue the inher itance of it for evermore.

And after all this that is come vpon vs (because of oure euell dedes and greates trespase) thou oure God hast spared oure wickednesses, and hast geuen vs a deliuerance as it is come to passe.

As for vs, we haue turned backe, & haue let gothy commandementes, to make con tracts with the people of these abhomi nacions. Wilt thou then be wroth at vs, till we be utterly consumed, so that nothyng re mayne, and till there be no deliuerance? O LORDE God of Israel, thou art righteous, for we remaine yet escaped, as it is this daie. Beholde, in thy presence are we in oure trespase, for because of it is there no standing before the.

The X. Chapter.

When Esdras prayed after this maner and knowledg, wepte, and lay before the house of God, there resorted vnto him out of Israel a very greates congre gacion of men and women, and children: the people wepte very sore. And Sachana the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of El lam, answered, and sayde vnto Esdras: We haue trespassed agaynst the LORDE oure God, in that we haue taken straunge wyues of all the people of the londe. Now there is hope yet in Israel concerninge this, therfore let vs make a couenaunt now with oure God, that we shal put awaye all the wyues (and such as are borne of them) acordinge to the counsell of y LORDE, and of them that se re the commandement of oure God, y we maye do acordinge to the lawe. Get the vp therfore, for the matter belongeth vnto the. We wyll be with the, be of good comfort, and do it.

Then rose Esdras, and toke an ooth of the rulers, prestes and Levites, and of all Is rael, that they shulde do acordinge to this worde: and they swore. And Esdras stood vp before the house of God, and wente in to the chamber of Johanan the sonne of Eli sab. And when he came thither, he founde bred, and drinke no water: for he mourned because of the transgression of them that had bene in captiuyte.

And they caused a proclamacion be made thow out Juda and Jerusalem, vnto all the children which had bene in captiuyte, that they shulde gather them selues together to Jerusalem: And that who soeuer came within thre dayes acordinge to the denyce of the rulers and Elders, all his substance shulde be forfett, and he put out from the co gregation of the captiue.

Then all the men of Juda and Ben Ja min gathered them selues together vnto Je rusalem in thre dayes, y is on the twentieth daie of the nyenth moneth: and all the peo ple sat in the strete before the house of God, and trembled because of the matter, and for the rayne. And Esdras y prest stood vp, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue transgressed, y ye haue taken straunge wyues, to make the trespase of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto y LORDE God of youre fa thers, & do his pleasure, and separate youre selues from the people of the londe, & from y straunge wyues. The answered all the co gregation, & sayde with loude voyce: Let it be done as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, & it is a raynye wecher, & they ca not stode here without, nether is this a wor te of one daie or two, for we are many y ha ue offended in this transgression. Let vs ap poynt oure rulers therfore in all the congre gacion, y all they which haue taken straun ge wyues in oure cities, maye come at the ty me appoynted, and the Elders of every cite and their Judges with them, till the wraeth of oure God because of this matter be tur ned awaye from vs.

Then were appoynted Jonathan the son ne of Asahel & Jehasia the sonne of Thecua ouer this matter. And Nesullam and Sab beth the Levites helped them. And the chil dren of the captiuyte dyd euen so. And Es dras the prest, and y auuncient fathers tho row the house of their fathers, and all that were now rehearsed by name, separated the selues, and sat them downe on the first daie of the tenth moneth, to examē this matter. And on y first daie of y first moneth brough t they the matter to a conclusion, concernyn ge all the men y had take straunge wyues.

And amonge the childre of the prestes the re were men fande y had take straunge wy ues, namely amonge the children of Jesua the sonne of Josede & of his brethren, Maeseia, Elieser, Jarib and Godelia. And they gaue their handes there vpon, that they wolde put awaye their wyues: & for their trespase offe ryng to geue a rāme for their trespase. Amonge the children of Immer, Hanani & Saba dia, amonge the childre of Harm, Maeseia, Elia, Semaia, Jehiel, and Ofia. Amonge y children of Pashur, Elioenai, Maeseia, Is rael, Nehaneel, Josabad & Eleasa. Amonge ge the Levites, Josabad, Simeel and Celaia, he is that Celita, Perhabia, Juda & Elea sar. Amonge the syngers, Elyasib. Amonge the porters, Salum, Telm and Uri.

Of Israel. Amonge the children of Pa reos, Ramia, Jesia, Malchia, Melamin, Eleasar, Malchia & Benai. Amonge y chil dren of Elam, Mathania, Zachary, Jehiel, Abby, Jeremoth & Elia. Amonge the chil dren of Sathu, Elioenai, Eliaf, Matha nia, Jeremoth, Sabad & Asifa. Amonge the children of Debai, Johanan, Hanania, Sa bai & Achlai. Amonge the children of Ba ni, Nesullam, Malluch, Adai, Jasub, Seal and Jeremoth. Amonge the children of Pa hath Moab, Adna, Chelal, Benai. Maesea, Mathania, Bezaleel, Benui and Manasse. Amonge the children of Harim, Elieser, Je sia, Malchia, Semaia, Simeon, De Jamin, Malluch & Samaria. Amonge the childre of Hasum, Mathnai, Mathatha, Sabad, Eli phelet, Jeremai, Manasse & Simeel. Amonge the childre of Bani, Maedai, Amram, Zuel, Benai, Bedai, Chelui, Naia, Jeremoth, Eliaf, Mathania, Mathnai, Jasau, Ba ni, Benai, Simeel, Selemia, Nathan, Adai, Machnadbai, Sasai, Sarai, Asareel, Sele mia, Samaria, Salum, Amaria, & Joseph. Amonge the childre of Nebo, Jeiel, Mathi thia, Sabad, Sebina, Jaddai, Joel, and Be nai. All these had taken straunge wyues. And amonge the same wyues there were so me, that had borne children.

The first Chapter.

These are the actes of Nehemias the sonne of Achabiah. It fortuned in the twelfth yeare, that I was in the castell at Susa: and Hanani one of my brethren came with certayne me of Juda, and I axed them how the Jewes dyd that were delivred and escaped from the captivity, and how it wente at Jerusalem. And they sayde vnto me: The remnant of the captivite are there, in the londe in greete myffortune and rebuke. The walles of Jerusalem are broken downe, and the portes therof are brent with fyre.

Whā I herde these wordes, I sat me downe and wepte, and mourned two dayes, and fasted and prayed before the God of heauen, and sayde: O LORD God of heauen, thou greates and terrible God, thou that kepest covenant and mercy for them that love the, and observe thy commaundementes: let thy eares marke, and let thine eyes be open, that thou mayest heare the prayer of thy servaunt, which I praye now before thy face, and nighthe for the chylde of Israel thy servaunt, and knowlege the synnes of the chylde of Israel, which we have commytted agaynst the.

And I and my fathers house have synned also. We have bene corrupte vnto the, in that we have not kepte the commaundementes, statutes and lawes, which thou commaundedst thy servaunt Moses. Yet call to remembraunce thy worde that thou commaundedst thy servaunt Moses, and saydest: If ye transgresse, then will I scatter you abroad amonge the nacions. But if ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes and do them: though ye were cast out vnto the uttermost parte of heauen yet will I gather you from thence, and will bringe you from thence, eue vnto the place, that I have chosen for my name to dwell there. They are thy servaunt, and thy people, whom thou hast delivred thowgh thy greete power and myghtie hande. O LORD, let thine eares marke the prayer of thy servaunt, and the prayer of thy servaunt, whose desire is to feare thy name, and let thy servaunt prosper this daye, and graunte him mercy in the sight of this man: for I was the kynges butler.

The II. Chapter.

In the moneth Nisan of the twelfth yeare of the kyng Artaxerxes, when the wyne stode before him, I toke up the wyne, and gaue it vnto the kyng, and I was heavy in his presence. Then sayde the kyng vnto me: Why lokest thou so sadly? Thou art not sicke, that is not thy matter, but thou art heavy hearted. Nevertheless I was sorrowfayned, and sayde vnto the kyng: God sweareth thynges life for ever, shalde I not loke sadly: the cite of my fathers buryall lyeth wayf, and the portes therof are consumed with fyre. Then sayde the kyng vnto me: What is thy request? Then made I my prayer to the God of heauen, and sayde vnto the kyng: If it please the kyng, and if thy servaunt be vowed in thy sight, I beseeke the sende me to Juda vnto the cite of my fathers buryall, that I maye buyde it.

And the kyng sayde vnto me, and so dyd the quene that sat by him: How longe shal thy journeye continue, and whā wilt thou come agayne? And it pleased the kyng to sende me, and I set him a tyme, and sayde vnto the kyng: If it please the kyng, let him geve me letters to the Debites beyonde the water, that they maye conveye me over, tyll I come into Juda: I letters vnto Asaph the lord of the kynges wood, that he maye geve me wood for to build the gates of the palace, which are harden the house and harden the walles of the cite, for the house that I shal entre into. And the kyng gaue me accordinge to the good worde of God vnto me. And whā I came to the Debites beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kyng sent captaynes and hoysmen with me.

But whā Saneballath the Chorazite, Tobias the servaunt of the Ammonites, and Tobias the servaunt of the Ammonites, heard that I greued them sore, and there was com a man which soughte the welch of the chylde of Israel. And whā I came to Jerusalem, I had bene there thre daies, I gat me up in the night season, and a fewe men with me for I tolde no man what God had geve in my hert to do at Jerusalem: and there was not one beest with me, save it that I rode upon. And I rode by night vnto the valley of beside the Dragon well, and to the Dongpote, and considered the walles of Jerusalem that were broken downe, and the portes therof consumed with fyre. And I wente over vnto the Wellpote, and to the kynges condyte, and there was no rowme for my beast, so it coulde go under me. Then wente I on in the nighthe by the hofsyde, and considered the wall, and turned back, and came home agayne to the valley pote.

And the rulers knewe not whither I wente, or what I dyd: for hither to had I not tolde the Jewes and the prestes, the counsellors and the elders, and the other that laboured in the worke, and I made vnto the: We see the myserye that we are in, how Jerusalem lyeth wayf, and how the gates therof are brent with fyre, come, let vs buyde up the walles of Jerusalem, that we be nomore a rebuke. And I tolde the of the good hāde of my God which was vnto me: And the kynges wordes that he had spokē vnto me. And they said: Then let vs get up. And we buyded, and their handes were strenghted to good.

But whā Saneballath the Chorazite, and Tobias the servaunt of the Ammonites, and Tobias the Arabian herde it, they laughed vs to scorne, and despised vs, and sayde: What is this that ye do? Will ye fall awaye agayne from the kyng? Then answered I them, and sayde: The God of heauen shal cause vs to prosper: for we his servaunt are gotten up, and are buydinge. As for you, ye have no port nor right, nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

The III. Chapter.

And Eliasib the hye prest gat him up with his brethren the prestes, and buyded the Shepegate. They halowed it, and set up the doores of it: euen vnto the tower Mea halowed they it, namely vnto the tower of Hananeel. Nexte vnto him buyded the men of Jericho. And besyde him buyded Sachur the sonne of Imri. But the Synspote dyd the chylde of Senaas buyde, they covered it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres of it. Nexte vnto him buyded Meremoth the sonne of Urias the sonne of Hacoz. Nexte vnto him buyded Mesullem the sonne of Barachias the sonne of Mesabeel. Nexte vnto him buyded Sadoc the sonne of Baena. Nexte vnto him buyded they of Thecoa. But their greates me put not their names to the servyce of their lord.

The Oldgate buyded Joiada the sonne of Passah, and Mesullam the sonne of Besodia: they covered it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres of it. Nexte vnto them buyded Melachia of Gibeon, and Jadon of Morono, me of Gibeon and of Mispa, for the feate of the Debyce on this syde the water. Nexte vnto him buyded Uziel the sonne of Harhaia the goldsmith. Nexte vnto him buyded Hanania the Apotecarys sonne, and they repayed Jerusalem vnto the brede wall. Nexte vnto him buyded Rephaia the sonne of Hur, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem. Nexte vnto him buyded Jedaia the sonne of Harumaph, ouer agaynst his house. Nexte vnto him buyded Hattus the sonne of Hasabema. But Malchia the sonne of Harim, and Hasub the sonne of Pahath Moab buyded the other pece, and the tower beside the fornace. Nexte vnto him buyded Sallum the sonne of Halobes the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem, and his daughtres.

The valley gate buyded Hanan, and the cisternes of Sannah. They buyded it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres therof, and a thousande cubytes on the wall, vnto the Dongepote. But the Dongepote buyded Malchia the sonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth parte of the vynyardes: he buyded it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres therof. But the Wellgate buyded Sallum the sonne of Chalkose, the ruler of the fourth parte of Mispa: he buyded it, and covered it, and set on the doores, lockes, and barres therof, and the wall vnto the pole of Sybah by the kynges garden, vnto the steppes that go downe from the cite of David. After him buyded Nehemia the sonne of Asbani, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethzur, vntyll the other side ouer agaynst the sepulchres of David, and to the pole Mispa, and vnto the house of the mightie.

After him buyded the Levites, Rehum the sonne of Dani. Nexte vnto him buyded Hasabiah the ruler of the halfe quarter at Regila in his quarter. After him buyded their brethren, Banai the sonne of Henadab, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Segila. After him buyded Esfer the sonne of Jesua the ruler of Mispa, the other pece hard ouer agaynst the Harneffe corner. After him buyded Baruch the sonne of Sabai the other pece woth ship fully and costly, first the corner vnto the doore of the house of Eliasib the hye prest. After him buyded Meremoth the sonne of Urias the sonne of Hacoz the other pece, first the doore of Eliasibs house, vnto the ende of the house of Eliasib. After him buyded the prestes, the me of the countre. After him buyded Ben Jamin and Hasub ouer agaynst their house. After the buyded Asaria the sonne of Maeseia the sonne of Anania nexte vnto his house. After him buyded Benui the sonne of Henadab the other pece, from the house of Asaria unto the turninge, and unto the corner.

After him buylded Palal the sonne of Vaisai, ouer agaynst the corner & the hye tower, which lieth out ouer fro the kynges house, be syde the court of the prison. After him Pe- daia the sonne of Pareos (As for 3 Methi- nims they dwelt in Ophel, vnto 3 Waterga- te, towarde the east where 3 tower lieth out) After him buylded they of Thecoa 3 other pece ouer agaynst 3 greate tower, 3 lieth out warde, and vnto the wall of 3 Ophel.

But from the housegate forth buylded 3 prestes, every one ouer agaynst his house. Af- ter them buylded Sadoc 3 sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After him buylded Semia the sonne of Sachania 3 keper of the eastgate. After him buylded Hanania the sonne of Selemia, 3 Hanum the sonne of Salaph 3 sister, 3 other pece. After him buil- ded Mesullam the sonne of Berachia ouer a- gainst his chest. After him buylded Malchia the goldsmithes sonne, vntill 3 house of the Methinims, and of the marchauntes ouer a- gainst the counsell gate, and to the perler in the corner. And betwene the perler of the corner vnto the Shepegate buylded the gold- smithes and the marchauntes.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ When Saneballat herde that we builded 3 wall, he was wroth, & toke greate indignaciō & mocked 3 Jewes & saide before his brethre & the mightie men of Samaria: What do the importēt Jewes? shall they be thus suffred? shall they offer? shall they perfourme it in one daie? shall they make 3 stones whole againe, 3 are broughte to dust, & bren? And Tobias the Ammonite beside him saide: Let the builde on, yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe their stony wall. Heare O thou oure God, how we are despysed, turne their shame vpon their awne heade, 3 thou mayest gene them ouer in to despisinge in the londe of their captiuite. Co- ner not their wickednesse, & put not out their sinne fro 3 presence: for they haue psoned the buylders. Yet buylded we the wall, & ioyned it whole together, vnto 3 halfe heigth. And the people were well mynded to labo- re.

¶ But when Saneballat, & Tobias, and 3 Arabias, & Ammonites, & Asdodites herde, 3 the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, and that they had begonne to stoppe vp 3 gappes, they were very wroth, and cōspyred all together, to come and fight agaynst Jeru- salem, & to make an hinderaunce therein. Ne- vertheles we made 3 praier vnto oure God, & set watchme vpo the wall daye & night ouer agaynst them. And Juda saide: The strength of the bearers is to feble, & there is to much dust, we are not able to bulde on the wall. And 3 aduersaries thought: They shall not knowe nether se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge the, and slaye them, & hynder 3 worke. But when the Jewes that dwelt besyde them, came out of all the places where they dwelt aboute vs, and tolde vs as good as tymes, then set 3 the people a feet their spe- res with their swordes, speares & bowes bo- neth in the lowe places behynde the wall, & looted, and gat me vp, and sayde vnto the de- fence men and rulers, & to the other people: Be not ye a frayd of them, chynke vpon 3 grete LORDE which ought to be feared, & fighte for ys brethien, somies, daughters, wyues, & houses. Neuertheles when 3 enemies here 3 we had goeten worde of it, God broughte their counsell to naughte, and we turned all againe to the wall, every one vnto his labo- re. And from that time forth it came to passe, 3 the halfe parte of the yonge men byd the la- boure, & the other halfe parte helde the spe- res, shyldes, bowes, and brestplates, and the rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda, which buylded on the wall, & bare burthen, from those that laded the. With one hande byd they 3 worke, and with the other helde they the weapon. And every one 3 buylded, had his swerde girded by his side, & so buylded they. And the trompetters stode beside me.

And 3 sayde vnto the pryncipall men, & rulers, and to 3 other people: The worke is greate & large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place now ye heare the noise of 3 trompet- soire ye chiter vnto vs. Oure God shall fight for vs, & we wil be labourige in 3 worke. And the halfe parte of the helde 3 speares fro 3 morninge sprynge, till 3 starres came forth. And at 3 same tyme sayde 3 vnto 3 people: Every one abyde with his seruante at Je- rusalem, 3 in the night season we maye geue attendaunce to 3 watch, and to labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethre, & my seruantes, and 3 men of the watch be- hynde me, we put neuer of oure clothes, so so much as to washe oure selues.

The v. Chapter.

¶ When there arose a greate complaine of 3 people, & of their wyues agaynst their brethien the Jewes. And that were some 3 sayde: oure sonnes and doughters are to many, let vs take come for the, & eate, that we maye lyue. Some saide: Let vs set 3 londes, vynyardes & houses to pledge, & take vp come in the death. But some saide: Let vs borowe money of the kinge vpo the

ry for oure londes and vynyardes. Now are oure brethiens bodies as oure awne bodies, and their children as oure children: els shul- de we subdue oure sonnes and doughters vnto bondage, and some of oure doughters are subdued already, and no strength is there in oure handes, and other men shal haue oure londes and vynyardes.

But when 3 herde their complaynte and soch wordes, it displeased me sore, and 3 ad- uised so in my mynde, 3 rebuked the coun- cillers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them: Wyl ye requyre vsury one of another? And 3 broughte a greate congregacion agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: We (after oure abilitye) haue boughte oure brethien the Jewes, which were solde vnto the heythens. And wyl ye sell youre brethien, whom we ha- ue boughte vnto vs? Then helde they their peace, & coude fynde nothinge to answer.

And 3 sayde: It is not good that ye do. Doughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heythens oure enemies? 3 and my brethre, and my seruants haue lent them money and come; but as for vsury, let vs leaue it. Therfore this same daye se that ye restore the their londes agay- ne, their vynyardes, oyle gardens and hou- ses, and the hundredth parte of the money of the come, wyne and oyle that ye haue won- ne of them. Then sayde they: We wyl restore them agayne, and wyl requyre nothinge of them, and wyl do as thou hast spoken. And 3 called the prestes, and toke an ooth of the, that they shulde do so. And 3 shoke my lap- pe, and sayde: God shake out every man af- ter the same maner fro his house and labou- re, that maynteyneth not this worde: enen thus be he shaken out, and voyde. And all 3 congregacion sayde: Amen, and praysed the LORDE. And the people byd so.

¶ And from the tyme forth that it was comytted vnto me to be a Debyce in the londe of Juda, namely from the twentieth yeare vnto the two and thirtieth yeare off kyng Artaxerxes (that is twolue yeare) 3 and my brethre lyued not of soch sustenau- ce as was geuen to a Debyce: for the olde Debytes that were before me, had bene char- geable vnto the people, and had take of the bad and wyne, and fortye Syckles of syl- uer: yee and their seruantes had oppressed the people. But so byd not 3, and that be- cause of the feare of God. 3 laboured also in the worke vpon the wall, and boughte no lode. And all my seruantes came thither to- gether vnto 3 worke. Moreover there were at my table an hundred and fiftie of the Je- wes and rulers, which came vnto me, from amonge the heythens, that are aboute vs. And there was prepared me daylie an oxe, and fyre chosen shepe, and byrdes, and euer once in ten dayes a greate summe of wyne. Yet requyred not 3 the lyuynge of a Debyce for 3 bondage was greuous vnto 3 people. Thynke vpo me my God vnto 3 best, accordy- ge to all that 3 haue done for this people.

The vi. Chapter.

¶ When Saneballat, Tobias and Gosem the Arabian, and the other of 3 oure enemyes herde, that 3 had buyl- ded the wall, and that there were no mo gap- pes ther in howbeit at the same tyme had 3 not hanged the doores vpon the gates. Saneballat and Gosem sent vnto me, sayenge: Come and let vs mete together in the vylla- ges vpon the playne of the cite. Neuertheles they thoughte to do me euill. Not- withstandinge 3 sent messaungers vnto them, sayenge: 3 haue a greate busynes to do, 3 can not come downe. The worke shul- de stonde still, yf 3 were negligent, and came downe to you. Howbeit they sent vnto me as good as foure tymes after the same maner. And 3 gaue the same answer.

¶ Then sent Saneballat his seruante vnto me the fiftch tyme, with an open letter in his hande, wherein was wrytten: It is tolde the heythens, & Gosem hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes chynke to rebell: for 3 which cause thou buyldest the wall, and wylt be their kyng in these matters, and hast ordey- ned the prophetes to preach of the at Jeru- salem, and to saye: He is kyng of Juda.

¶ Now shal this come to the kynges ea- res: come now therfore, and let vs take oure counsell together. Neuertheles 3 sent vnto him, sayenge: There is no soch thinge done as thou sayest: thou hast sayned it out of thi- ne owne hert. For they were all mynded to make us a frayd, and thoughte: They shal withdraue their handes from the worke, 3 they shal not labour. Howbeit 3 strenghten my hande the more.

¶ And 3 came vnto 3 house of Semia 3 son- ne of Delaia the sonne of Meehetabeel, & he had shut him selfe within, & sayde: Let us come together in to 3 house of God, en- vnto 3 myddes of 3 temple, & sparre 3 doores of 3 temple: for they wyl come to slaye 3, yee en- in the night wyl they come to put the to deathe. But 3 sayde: Shulde soch a mā flye? Shul- de soch a mā as 3 am, go in to 3 temple, & sa- ue his life? 3 wyl not go in.

For I perceaued, that God had not sent him: Yet spake he prophete vpon me, neuer thelesse Tobias and Saneballat had hired him for money. Therfore toke he the money, that I shulde be afrayed, and so to do and synne, that they might haue an euell reporte of me, to blaspheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobias and Saneballat, a cor- dyng vnto these their workes, and of y prophete Moadia, and of the other prophetes, y wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynished on the fyue & twentyeth daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fystye dayes. And whan all y enemies herde therof, all the heithen y were aboute vs, were afrayed, and their corage failed the: for they perceaued, that this worke came of God. And at y same tyme were there many of y these of Juda, whose letters were vnto Tobias, & from Tobias vnto them: for there were many in Juda that were swome vnto him: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sachania the sonne of Arah, and his sonne Johanna had the doughter of Mesullam the sonne of Barachia, and they spake good of him before me, and tolde him my wordes. And Tobias sent letters, to put me in feare.

The VII. Chapter.

Now whan we had buylded the wall I hanged on the doores, and the porters, syngers and Lewites were ap- poynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the palace at Jerusalem: for he was a faithfull man, and feared God more then dyd many other. And I sayde vnto them: Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened vntyll the Sonne be whote. And whyle they are yet stondinge in the watch, the doores shall be shut and barred. And there were certayne ciresyns of Jerusa- lem appoynted to be watchmen, every one in his watch, and aboute his house. As for y cite, it was large of rowme, and greates, but y people were fewe therein, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gatherd together the pryncipall men and y people, to nombre them, and I founde a register of their nombre, which came vp afore out of the captiuyte (whom Nabuchodonosor y kynge of Babilon had caryed awaie) and dwelt at Jerusalem and in Juda, every one vnto his cite, and were come with Zorobabel, Jesua, Nehemias, Asaria, Raamia, Naheman, Mardachai, Bilsan, Mispereth, Bigenai, Nehum and Baena.

This is the nombre of the men of the people of Israel. The porters were: The children of Sallum, the children of Ater, the children of Talmon, the children of Acub, the children of Sachar, the children of Sobai, altogether an hundred and eight and thirtiye.

The Nethinims. The children of Ziba, y children of Hasupha, the children of Tabaoth, the children of Cerob, the children of Sia, y children of Padon, the children of Libana, the children of Hagaba, the children of Salmai, the children of Hanan, the children of Giddel, the children of Gabar, the children of Reaia, the children of Rezin, the children of Lecoda, the children of Gasam, the children of Vsa, the children of Passah, the children of Bessai, the children of Megunim, the children of Nephusim, the children of Bachuc, the children of Hacupha, the children of Harhar, the children of Bazluch, the children of Mehida, the children of Harfa, the children of Barcos, the children of Sissera, the children of Chamah, the children of Neziab, y children of Hatipha.

And these wente vp also: Michel, Mela, Thel, Harfa, Cherub, Addo, Immer: but they coude not shewe their fathers house ner their sede, whether they were of Israel. The children of Delaia, y children of Tobia, & the children of Lecoda, were sixe hundred & two & fortye. And of the prestes were, the children of Habai, the children of Hacoz, the children of Barfillai, which toke one of y doughters of Barfillai the Gileadite to wyfe, and was named after their name. These soughte the register of their generacion, and whan they founde it not, they were put from y prest hode. And Hathirsatha sayde vnto them, y they shalde not eate of y most holy, tyll there came up a prest w y light and perfectnesse.

The whole congregacion as one ma, was two and fortye thousande thre hundred, and thre score: besyde their seruantes and maydes, of whom there were seven thousande, thre hundred and seue and thirtiye. And they had two hundred and seven and fortye synginge men and women, seven hundred and sixe and thirtiye horses, two hundred and fyue and fortye Mules, foure hundred and fyue and thirtiye Camels: sixe thousande, seue hundred and twentye Asses.

And certayne of the awncient fathers gaue vnto the worke. Hathirsatha gaue to the treasure a thousande gulden, fiftie basens, fyue hundred and thirtiye prestes garments. And some of the these fathers gaue vnto y treasure of the worke, twentye thousande gulden, two thousande and two hundred pounde of siluer. And the other people gaue twentye thousande gulden, and two thousande pounde of siluer, and seue and thre score prestes garments. And the prestes and Lewites, the Porters, the syngers, and the other of the people, and the Nethinims, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities.

The VIII. Chapter.

Now whan the seventh moneth dre nye, and y children of Israel were in their cities, all the people gathered them selues together as one man vpon the strete before the Watergate, and sayde vnto Esdras the scribe, that he shulde fetch the boke of the lawe of Moses, which the LORD commaunded Israel. And Esdras the prest brought y lawe before the congregacion both of men and women, and of all that coude vnderstonde it, vpon the first daye of the seventh moneth, and red therein in the strete that is before the Watergate, from y ligha moynynge vntyll the noone daye before men and women and scholas coude vnderstonde it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the boke of the lawe. And Esdras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wod, which they had made for the preachynge, & beside him stode Mathichia, Sema, Anania, Dria, Ezechias, and Maesia on his right hand: And on his lefte honde stode Pedaiia, Misael, Malchia, Hasum, Hasbadana, Zachary and Mesullam.

And Esdras opened y boke before all y people, for he stode aboue all y people. And whan he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Esdras prayd the LORD the greates God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes vp, and bowed the selues, and worshipped y LORD with their faces to the grounde. And Jesua, Dani, Serobia, Jamin, Acub, Sabthai, Hodaia, Maesia, Celita, Asaria, Josabad, Hanam, Plaia, and the Lewites, caused y people to gene hode vnto the lawe, & the people stode in their place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God distinctly and planely, so that men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Nehemias (which is Hathirsatha) and Esdras the priest and scribe, and the Levites & caused the people to take heed, sayde unto all the people: This daye is holy unto the LORD your God: be not ye sorry therfore, & wepe not. For all & people wepe, whā they herde the wordes of the lawe.

Etherfore sayde he unto them: Go youre waye, and eate the fat, and drynke the swete, and sende parte unto them also that have not prepared themselves: for this daye is holy unto our LORD, be not ye sorry therfore: for the ioye of the LORD is youre strength. And the Levites stilled all the people, and sayde: Holde youre peace, for the daye is holy, vexe not ye yourselves. And all the people wente their waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte unto other, and to make greete myrrh, for they had vnderstonde the wordes that were declared unto them.

And on the nexte daye were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people, and the prestes and Levites, unto Esdras the scribe, that he shulde teach them & wordes of the lawe. And they founde written in the lawe, how that the LORD had commaunded by Moses, that the childre of Israel shulde dwell in boches in the feast of the seventh moneth. And so they caused it be declared and proclaimed in all their cities, & at Jerusalem, sayenge: Go vp unto & moue and fetch Olyue bryanches, Pyncebranches, Myrtbryanches, Palmebryanches, & bryanches of thicketrees, to make boches as it is written.

And & people wente vp, and fetched the, and made them boches, every one upon the rose of his house, and in their courtes, and in the courtes of the house of God, and in the strete by the Watergate, and in the strete by Ephraims porte. And all the congregacion of them that were come agayne out of the captiuite, made boches, and dwelt therein: for sence the tyme of Josua the sonne of Nū unto this daye, had not the childre of Israel done so, and there was very greete gladnesse. And every daye from the first daie vnto the last, red he in the boke of the lawe of God. And seven dayes helde they the feast, & on the eight daye the gatherynge together, acordynge vnto the maner.

The IX. Chapter.

In the foure and twentieth daye of this moneth came the childre of Israel together with fastinge and sack clothes, and earth vpon them, and separated the sede of Israel from all the straunge childre, and stode and knowleged their synnes, and the wyckednesse of their fathers, and stode vp in their place, and red in the boke of the lawe of the LORD their God some tymes on the daye, and they knowleged, and worshipped the LORD their God some tymes on the daye. And the Levites stode by, namely Jesua, Bani, Cadmiel, Sebania, Bani, Serobia, Bani, and Chenani, and cryed loude vnto the LORD their God. And the Levites, Jesua, Cadmiel, Bani, Hasabania, Serobia, Hadia, Sebania, Perhabia, sayde: Scoude vp, prayse the LORD our God for ever: and let thankes be geue vnto the name of thy glorie, which excelleth all thankesgeyng and prayse. LORD, thou art alone, thou hast made heauen, and the heauen of all heuens, with all their host, the earth and all that therein is, the See and all that is therein: thou geuest life vnto all, and & host of heauen betwe themselves vnto the. Thou art the LORD God, that hast chosen Abrahā, and broughte him out of Ur in Chaldea, & called him Abraham, and founde his faithfull before the, and made a conuēnt with him, to geue vnto his sēde the lande of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Jebusites, and Gergosites, and hast made good thy wordes: for thou art righteous. And hast considered the mysery of our fathers in Egypte, and herde their complaints by the reed See, and shewed tokes and wonders vnto Pharaos, and on all his seruantes, and on all his people of his lande: for thou knowest & they were presumptuous & cruel against them, & so made thou the name as it is this daie. And the reed See parted thou in sunder before them, so that they went thorow the myddes of the See drye shod: & their persecuters therewith thou in to the depe as a stone, in the mightie waters, and leddest them on the daye tyme in a cloudy pyler, and on the night season in a pyler of fyre, to shewe them lighte in the waye & they wente.

Thou camest downe also vnto mount Sinai, and spakest vnto them from heauen, and gauest them righte indgements, true lawes, good commaundementes and statutes, and declared vnto them thy holy Sabbath, and commaunded them preceptes, ordinances, and lawes, by Moses thy seruant: and geuest them bried from heauen whan they were hongrye, and broughte forth water for them out of the rock whan they were thirsty: and promysed them, that they shulde go in, and take possession of the lande, whan thou haddest lyst vnto thine hande in to geue them.

Nevertheless oure fathers were proude and hardned, so that they folowed not & commaundementes, and refused to heare, and were not mynde full of the wonders & thou dydest for them: but became obstynate and heady, in so much that they turned back to their bondage in their disobedience. But thou my God forgavest, and wast gracious, mercifull, pacient, and of greate goodnesse, and forsokest them not. And though they made a molten calfe, and sayde: This is thy God, that broughte the out of the lande of Egypte, and dyd greate blasphemies, yet forsokest thou them not in the wyldernes, acordynge to thy greate mercy. And & cloudy pyler departed not from them on & daye tyme to lede them the waye, neither the pyler of fyre in the night season, to shewe them lighte in the waye that they wente.

And thou gauest them thy good sperte to enforme them, and withheldest not thy Manna from their mouth, and gauest the water whā they were thirstie. Forty yeaeres longe made thou prouision for them in the wyldernes, so that they wanted nothinge: their clothes waxed not olde, and their fete swelled not. And thou gauest the Egiptomes & nacions, & partedst the acordynge to their porcions, so that they possessed the lande of Sihon kynge of Hesbon, & the lande of Og & kynge of Basan. And their childre multiplied thou as the starres of heauen, and broughtest the in to the lande wherof thou haddest spoken vnto their fathers, that they shulde go in to it, and haue it in possession.

And & children wente in, and possessed the lande, and thou subdudest before the the inhabitants of the lande, even the Canaanites, & gauest them in to their hande, and their kynge and & people of the lande, & they might do with them what they wolde. And they wanne their stronge cities, & a fat lande, and take possession of houses & were full of all maner goodes, welles dygged out, vynyards, oylgardens, & many frute full trees: and they ate & were fylled, & became fat, & lyued in much thorrow thy greate goodnes. Nevertheless they were disobedient, and rebelled against the, and cast thy lawe behynde their backs, and slewe thy prophetes (which exhorted them so earnestly, that they shulde conuerte vnto the) and dyd greate blasphemies. Therfore gauest thou them ouer in to the hande of their enemies that vexed them.

And in & tyme of their trouble they cried vnto the, and thou hardest them from heauen: and thorrow thy greate mercye thou gauest them sauours, which helped the out of the hande of their enemies. But whan they came to rest, they turned back agayne to do euell before the: therfore ledest thou them in the hande of their enemies, so & they had & deminion ouer them. So they conuerted, and cryed vnto the, and thou herdest them from heauen, and many a tyme hast thou deliuered them acordynge to & greate mercy, and testified vnto them, that they shulde turne agayne vnto thy lawe.

Notwithstōdng they were proude, and herkened not vnto thy commaundementes, but synned in thy lawes (which a man shulde be, & lyue in them) & turned their shulder awaye, & were styffnecked, & wolde not heare. And many yeaeres dydest thou forbear them, & testified vnto them thorrow & sperte, even by the office of & prophetes, & yet wolde they not heare. Therfore gauest thou the in to & hande of & nacions in the landes. But for thy greate mercies sake thou hast not utterly consumed them, neither forsaken them: for thou art a gracious and mercifull God.

Now oure God, thou greate God, mightie and terrible, thou that kepest couenant and mercy, regarde not a litle all the trauayle & hath happened vnto vs, & oure kynge, prynces, prestes, prophetes, fathers & all thy people, sence the tyme of the kynge of Assur vnto this daie. Thou art righteous in all & thou hast broughte vnto vs: for thou hast done righte. As for vs, we haue bene vngodly, and & kynge, prynces, prestes & fathers haue not done after & lawe, ner regarded & commaundementes, & thy earnest exhortacions wherwith thou hast exhorted them, & haue not serued & in their kyngdome, and in thy greate goodes & thou gauest them, and in the large and plenteous lōde which thou gauest them to good, and haue not conuerted from their wicked workes. Beholde, therfore are we in bondage this daye: yee even in the lōde that thou gauest vnto oure fathers, to enioye the frutes and goodes therof, beholde, there are we bondmen. And greate is the increase of it vnto the kynge, whom thou hast set ouer vs because of oure synnes, and they haue dominion ouer oure bodies and call, and we are in greate trouble.

And in all this made we a sure couenant, & wrote it, & let of prynces, Levites & prestes seale it.

The X. Chapter.

The sealers were: Nehemias (that is) Zacharia the sonne of Zacharia, and Sedechias, Serais, Asaria, Jeremy, Pashur, Amaria, Malchia, Jattus, Sebania, Malluch, Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah, Daniel, Sathun, Baruch, Mesuilam, Abia, Meiamin, Maasga, Bilgai and Semai: these were prestes.

The Levites were: Jesua & sonne of Asania, Binui amonge the childre of Zenadab, Cadmiel. And their brethren: Sechania, Sobiah, Celica, Plasia, Hanan, Micha, Rehob, Hasabia, Sachur, Serebia, Sebania, Hodia, Dani and Beninu. The heades of the people were: Pareos, Pahath Moab, Elam, Sathu, Dani, Buni, Asgad, Sebai, Adonia, Bigenai, Abin, Ater, Hezechias, Asur, Hodia, Hasum, Bezai, Hariph, Anathot, Nethai, Magpias, Mesullam, Hesir, Mesefabeel, Saboc, Jaddua, Plasia, Hanan, Anala, Hosiia, Hanania, Hasub, Halohes, Pilha, Sobek, Rehun, Hasabna, Maesela, Abia, Hanan, Anan, Malluch, Harim and Baena.

And the other people, the prestes, Levites, Porters, Syngers, Nethinims, & all they that had separated them selves from & people in the lodes vnto the lawe of God, with their wyues, sonnes and daughters, as many as coulde vnderstande it, and their lordes that had rule of them, receaued it for their brethren.

B And they came to sweare, and to bynde them selves with an oath to walke in Gods lawe, which was geuen by Moses the seruant of God, that they wolde obserue and do accordinge vnto all the commandmentes, iudgements and statutes of the LORD our God: and that we wolde not geue our daughters vnto the people in the lode, neither to take their daughters for our sonnes. And yf & people of the lode broughte warre on the Sabbath, and all manner of vyttayles to sell, that we wolde not take it of them on the Sabbath and on the holy dayes. And that we wolde let the seventh yeare be fre concernynge all manner of charge.

C And we layed a statute vpon our selves, to geue yearly & thirde parte of a Syckle to the mynistracion in the house of our God, namely to the shewbied, to the daylie meat-offerynge, to the daylie burnt-offerynge of & Sabbathes, of the new mones and feast dayes, and to the thinges that were sanctified, and to the syn-offerynges, to reconcile Israel with all, and to all the busynes in & house of our God.

And we cast the lot amonge the prestes, Levites and the people, for offerynge of & wood, to be brought vnto & house of & God from yeare to yeare, after the houses of our fathers, that it might be brient at tymes appointed, vpon the altare of the LORD our God, as it is wrytten in the lawe: and yearly to brynge the firstlinges of & londe, & the firstlinges of our frutes of all trees, year by yeare, vnto & house of the LORD: and the firstlinges of our sonnes, and of our cattell, as it is wrytten in the lawe: and the firstlinges of our oxen and of our shepe, that we shulde brynge all this to the house of our God vnto the prestes that mynister in the house of our God: and that we shulde brynge the firstlinges of our dowe, and of our heue-offerynges, and the frutes of all manner trees, of wyne also and of oyle, vnto the prestes to the chestes of the house of our God. And the riches of & lode vnto the Levites, & the Levites might haue the riches in all the cities of our mynistracion.

And the prest the sonne of Aaron shal & the Levites haue also of the riches of & Levites, so that the Levites shal brynge vnto the riches of their riches vnto the house of our God to the chest in & treasure house. For the children of Israel and the children of Leui shal brynge vnto the heue-offerynges of the come, wyne and oyle vnto the chestes, that are the vessels of the Sanctuary, & the prestes & mynister, and the porters & syngers, & we forsake not the house of our God.

The XI. Chapter.

And the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem. But the other people cast lottes therfore, so that amonge them one parte wente to Jerusalem in to the holy cite to dwell, and nyne partes in the cities. And & people thanked all the men that were willing to dwell at Jerusalem.

These are the heades of the londe that dwelt at Jerusalem. In the cities dwelt Juda every one in his possession & was within cities, namely Israel, the prestes, Levites, & Nethinims, and the children of Salomons seruantes. And at Jerusalem dwelt certayne of the children of Juda & of Ben Jamin.

Of the children of Juda: Athaia the sonne of Usia & sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Sepharia, the sonne of Mabelalel, of the children of Phares. And Maesela the sonne of Baruch, the sonne of Chal Hose, the sonne of Hasaia, the sonne of Abaia, the sonne of Joiarib, the sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Siloni. All the children of Phares that dwelt at Jerusalem, were seuen C. and eight & thie score valcunt men.

the sonne of Pedaia, the sonne of Colaia, & sonne of Maesela, the sonne of Ichiel, & sonne of Jesaia. And after him Sabai, Sallai: myn hundred and eight and twenty. And Joch the sonne of Sichu had the oversight of them: and Juda & sonne of Hasnua over the seconde parte of the cite.

Of the prestes there dwelt: Jedaia & sonne of Joiarib, Jachin. Seraia the sonne of Jaddias & sonne of Mesullam, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Achitob, was prynce in the house of God: & his brethren that persoumed the worke in & house: of whom there were v. ij. C. and xxiij. And Abaia the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Plasia, the sonne of Amyi, the sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Pashur & his brethren, these amonge the fathers: of whom there were two hundred and two and forty. And Amasai the sonne of Asariel the sonne of Ahiaia, the sonne of Mesilemoth, the sonne of Immer: and his brethren were valcunt men, of whom there were an hundred and eight and twenty. And their overseer was Sadaia the sonne of Gedolim.

C Of the Levites: Semai the sonne of Hasub, the sonne of Asitram, the sonne of Hasabia, the sonne of Buni: And Sabthai and Jachabab of the chiefe of the Levites, in the outward busynes of & house of God. And Mathania the sonne of Micha, the sonne of Sabdi, the sonne of Assaph, which was the principall to begynne the thankesgyunge vnto prayer. And bacbuchia & seconde amonge his brethren, and Abda the sonne of Samma, the sonne of Galal, the sonne of Jeditan. All the Levites in the holy cite were two hundred and foure & foure score. And & porters Acub and Talman, and their brethren & kepte the portes, were an hundred and two and seuentye. As for the residue of Israel, the prestes and Levites, they were in all the cities of Juda, every one in his inheritance.

And the Nethinims dwelt in Ophel: and Bepha and Gissa belonged vnto the Nethinims. The overseer of the Levites at Jerusalem, was Vsi the sonne of Bani, the sonne of Hasabia, the sonne of Mathania, the sonne of Micha.

D Of the children of Assaph there were syngers aboute & busynes in the house of God: for it was the kynges commandement concerninge them, that & syngers shulde deale faithfully, every daye as acordinge was.

to the kyng in all matters concernynge the people. And the children of Juda that were without in the townes of their londe, dwelt some at Ariath Arva, and in the villages therof: & at Dibon, and in the villages therof: and at Cabzeel, and in & villages therof: and at Jesua, Melada, Bethphalet, Hazer, sual, Berseba and in their villages: & at Siclag and Mochoia, and in their villages: And at Enrimmon, Zarega, Jeremuch, Sanoah, Abullam and in their villages: At La chis, and in the feldes therof: At Asek, and in the villages therof: and dwelt from Berseba vnto the valley of Ginnom.

The children of Ben Jamin of Gaba, dwelt at Michmas, Aia, Bethel and in their villages. And at Anathoth, Nob, Anania, Hazor, Rama, Githaim, Hadid, Ziboin, Neballat, Lod, Ono & in the Carpenters valley. And certayne of the Levites & had portions in Juda, dwelt in Ben Jamin.

The XII. Chapter.

These are & prestes and Levites that wente vp with Zorobabel & sonne of Saalchiel and with Jesua: Seraia, Jeremy, Esdras, Amaria, Malluch, Jattus, Sechania, Rehun, Meremoth, Jddo, Ginchoi, Abia, Meiamin, Maadia, Bilga, Semai, Joiarib, Jedaia, Sallu, Amot, Helchias & Jedaia. These were the heades amonge the prestes and their brethren in the tyme of Jesua. The Levites were these: Jesua, Binui, Cadmiel, Serebia, Juda and Mathania, over the office of thankesgyunge, they & their brethren: Bacbuchia & Vni and their brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Jesua begat Joachim. Joachim begat Eliasib. Eliasib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan. Jonathan begat Jaddua. And in the tyme of Joachim were these the chiefe fathers amonge the prestes: namely of Seraia was Merai, of Jeremy was Hanania, of Esdras was Mesullam, of Amaria was Johanan, of Malluch was Jonathan, of Sebania was Joseph, of Harim was Adna, of Meraioth was Helcat, of Jddo was Zachary, of Ginchon was Mesullu, of Abia was Elchur, of Meiamin Moadia was Piltai, of Bilga was Samma, of Semai was Jonathan, of Joiarib was Mathnai, of Jedaia was Vsi, of Sallu was Callai, of Amot was Eber, of Helchias was Hasabia, of Gedalia, was Nethaneel.

And in the tyme of Eliasib. Joiada, Johanan and Jaddua, were the chiefe fathers amonge the Levites, and the prestes wrytte vnder the reigne of Darus & Persian. The children of Levi the principall fathers were wrytten in the Cronicles, vntyll the tyme of Iohanan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were the chiefe amonge the Levites, Hasabias, Serebia and Jesua the sonne of Cadmiel, and their brethren ouer agaynst them, to geue prayse and thankes, accordinge as Dauid & mā of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Nathania, Bachiachia, Obadia, Mesullam, Talmon and Acub were porters in the watch at the thresholds of the gates. These were in the tyme of Joiachim the sonne of Jesua the sonne of Josede, and in the tyme of Nehemias the Debyce, and of the priest Esdras the scribe.

C And in the dedicacion of the wall at Jerusalem, were the Levites soughte out of all their places, that they mighte be broughte to Jerusalem, to kepe & dedicacion in gladnesse, with thankesguynges, with synge, with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes. And the children of the syngers gathered the selues together from th: playne countre aboute Jerusalem, and from the villages of Bethphathi, and from the house of Gilgal, and out of the felde of Gibeon & Asmaneth: for & syngers had buylded them villages aboute Jerusalem. And & prestes and Levites purified them selues, and clensed the people, the gates and the wall.

And I caused the prynces to go vp vpon the wall, and appoynted two greates queres of thankesguynges, which wete on the righte hande of the wall towards the Donggate, and after them wete Hosai, and halfe of the prynces of Juda, & Asaria, Esdras, Mesullam, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semaia and Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes childre with trompettes, namely Zachary & sonne of Jothan, the sonne of Semaia, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of Michaia, the sonne of Sachur, the sonne of Assaph, and his brethren, Semaia, Asareel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathaniel and Juda and Hanani, with the muscicall instrumentes of Dauid & man of God.

D And Esdras & scribe before the towarde the Wellgate, and they wente vp ouer agaynst them vpon the steppes of the cite of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall to the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other quere of thankesguynges wente ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon & wall, towards & Sornacegate vpwarde, vntyll & brode wall, and to & porte of Ephraim, and to the Oldgate, and to & Sythgate, and to the tower of Hananeel, and to the tower of Meah, vntyll the Shepegate. And in & songate stode they styl, and so stode the two queres of thankesguynges of the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the prestes, namely Eliachim, Ma-seia, Muniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, Zachary, Hanania, with trompettes, and Ma-seia, Semaia, Eleasar, Vsi, Iohanan, Malachia, Elam and Aser. And the syngers songe laude, and Jesrahia was the overseer.

And the same daye were there greates sacrifices offred, & they reioysed: for God had geue them greates gladnesse, so that both the wyues and children were ioyfull, & the mych of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure chestes (wherin were & heueofferuynges, the firstlinges and the tithes) that they shulde gather them out of the felde aboute the cities, to destribute them to the prestes and Levites accordinge to the lawe: for Juda was glad of the prestes, and Levites, that they stode and wayted vpon the office of their God, and the office of the purification. And the syngers & porters stode after the commaundement of Dauid & of Salomon his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid and Assaph, were the chiefe syngers formed, and the songes of prayse and thankesguynges vnto God. In the tyme of Josobad and Nehemias, dyd all Israel geue porcions vnto the syngers and porters, every daye his porcion, and they gaue thinges halowed vnto the Levites, and the Levites gaue thinges that were sanctified, vnto the childre of Aaron.

The XIII. Chapter.

What tyme as the boke of Moyses was red in & eares of the people, there was founde wrytten therein, & the Ammonites and Moabites shulde neuer come in to the congregacion of God, because they meet not the children of Israel with bread and water, & and hyed Balaam against the, that he shulde curse them: neuertheles our God turned & curse in to a blessinge. Now whan they herde the lawe, they separated from Israel every one that had myxt himselfe therein. And before this had the priest Eliasib deliuered the chest of & house of our God vnto his kynsman Tobia: for he had made him a greates chest, and there had he aforetyme layed the meate offeruynges, the incense, the oil, and the riches of come, wyne and oyle (accordinge to the commaundement geuen to the Levites, syngers and porters) and the heueofferuynges of the prestes.

But in all this was not I at Jerusalem: for in & two and thirtieth yere of Artaxerxes kynge of Babilon, came I vnto the kynge, and after certayne dayes obtayned I licence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And I gat knowlege of & euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in that he had made him a chest in the courte of the house of God, and it greued me sore, and I cast forth all the vessels of Tobias house out of the chest, and commaunded them to clense the chest. And thither broughte I agayne the vessels of the house of God, the meate offeruynges and the incense.

And I perceaued, that the porcions of & Levites were not geuen them, for the which cause the Levites and syngers were fled, every one to his londe for to worke. Then reproved I the rulers, and sayde: Why forsake ye the house of God? But I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then broughte all Juda the riches of come, wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasures ouer & treasure, even Selemia & prest, and Saboc the scribe, & of the Levites Pedai, and vnder their hande Hanan the sonne of Sachur the sonne of Nathania: for they were counted faithfull, and their office was, to destribute vnto their brethren.

Thynke vpon me O my God here in, & wyne out my mercy, that I haue shewed on & house of my God, & on the offices therof.

At the same tyme sawe I some treadinge wyne presses on the Sabbath, and brynginge in clusters, and asses laden with wyne, grapes, fygges, and bryngunge all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem, vpon the Sabbath daye. And I rebuked them earnestly & same daye that they solde & vntayles. There dwelt me of Tyre also therein, which broughte fish and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the childre of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reprovied I the rulers in Juda, and sayde vnto them: What euell thinge is this that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye? Dyd not our fathers euen thus, and our God broughte all this plage vpon vs & vpon this cite? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

And whan the portes of Jerusalem were shutten vp before the Sabbath, I commaunded to shutt the gates, and charged that they shulde not be opened tyll after the Sabbath: and some of my seruantes set I at the gates, & there shulde no burthe be broughte in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chapmen and marchauntes once or twice ouer nyght without Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reprovied I them sore, & sayde vnto them: Why tary ye all nyght aboute the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wil laye handes vpon you. From that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath. And I sayde vnto the Levites which were cleane, that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concerninge this also, & spare me accordinge to thy greates mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that married wyues of Moab, Ammon and of Moab, and their children spake halfe in the speache of Moab, and coulde not speake in & Jewish language, but by & tongue mighte a mā perceane every people. And I reprovied them, and cursed them, & smote certayne men of the, and plucked them vp, and toke an oath of them by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sonnes, nether shal ye take their daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Dyd not Salomon & kynge of Israel synne therin? yet amonge many heychen was there no kynge like him, & he was deare vnto his God, and God made him kynge ouer all Israel, and the outlandish women.

And one of the children of Joiada the sonne of Eliasib & hye prest, had made a contracte with Saneballath the Chorone: but I chased him fro me. O my God, thynke thou vpon them that are quyte of the presthode, and haue desyled the couenaunt of the presthode and of the Levites. Thus clensed I them from all such as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of the prestes and Levites, every one to his office, and to offere the wood at tymes appoynted, and the first fruits. Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best.

- Chap. X. Of the auctorite of Mardocheus vnder the kyng.

The first Chapter.

At the tyme of Ahasuerus, which reigned from India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and seven and twentye lordes, what tyme as he sat on his seate roiall in the castell of Susan in the thirde yere of his reigne, he made a feast vnto all his prynces and seruantes, namely vnto the mightie men of Persia and Media, to the Deities and rulers of his countrees, that he might shewe the noble riches of his kingdome, and the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, euen an hundred and foure score dayes.

And whan these dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feast vnto all the people that were in the castell of Susan, both vnto grete and small, seven dayes longe in the court of the garden by the kynges palace: where there hanged whyte, reed & yalow clothes, fastened with coardes of linnen and scarlet in siluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble stone.

The benches were of golde and siluer ma de vpon a pavement of grene, white, yalow and black Marble. And there was euery charge of vessell. And the kynges wine was moche accordynge to the power of the kyng. And noman was appoynted what he shulde do: for the kyng had commaunded all the officers of his house, that euery one shulde do as it lyked him. And the quene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seventh daye whan the kyng was mery of the wine, he commaunded Methuman, Bistha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Sethar and Charcas, the seven chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasthi with the crowne regall, that he might shewe to people and prynces his puissance: for she was bewtifull. But the quene Vasthi wolde not come at the kynges worde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignaciō kyndled in him.

And the kyng spake to his wyse men that had vnderstandynge in the ordinaunces of the londe: for the kynges matters must be handled before all such as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgment. And the nexte vnto him were, Charfena, Sethar, Admatha, Thafis, Mero, Marsina and Memuchan, the seven prynces of the Persians, and Micedes, which sawe the kynges face, and sat aboue in the kyngdome. What lawe shulde be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordynge to the worde of the kyng by his chamberlaynes. The saide Memuchan before the kyng & the prynces: The quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kyng but also agaynst all the prynces and all the people in all the lordes of kyng Ahasuerus: for this dede of the quene shall come abrode vnto all women, so that they shall despyse their husbundes before their eyes, and shall saye: The kyng Ahasuerus commaunded Vasthi & quene to come before him, but she wolde not. And so shall the pryncesses in Persia and Media saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges prynces, whan they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall there arysen despayne and wraich ynough. If it please the kyng, let there go a kyngly commaundment from him, and let it be wrytten accordynge to the lawe of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi shal be nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, and let the kyng geue the kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

And this wrytinge of the kyng which shalbe made, be published thorow out all his empyre (which is grete) that all wyues maye holde their husbundes in honoure, both amonge grete and smal.

This pleased the kyng and the prynces, and the kyng dyd accordynge to the worde of Memuchan. Then were there letters sent forth in to all the kynges lordes, in to euery londe accordynge to the wrytinge ther of, and to euery people after their langage, & euery man shulde be loude in his awne house. And this caused he be spoken after the language of his people.

The II Chapter.

After these actes whan the displeasure of kyng Ahasuerus was layed, he thoughte vpon Vasthi, what she had done, and what was concluded concernynge her. Then sayde the kynges seruantes: Let there be sayre yonge virgins soughte for the kyng, and let the kyng appoynte ouersers in all his lordes of his empyre, that they maye brynge together all sayre yonge virgins vnto the castell of Susan to the Womens buyldinge, vnder the hande of Hegai the kynges chamberlayne, that kepeth the women, and let him geue them their apparell. And loke which damsell pleaseth the kyng, let her be quene in Vasthis steade. This pleased the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Mardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Simei, the sonne of Lea, the sonne of Jemini, which was carryed awaye from Jerusalem, whan Jechonias the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon carried awaye) and he nourished Zedassia (that is Hester) his vnckles daughter: for she had nether father nor mother, and she was a sayre and beutyfull damsell. And whan hir father and mother dyed, Mardocheus receaued her as his awne daughter.

Now whan the kynges commaundment and comysion was published, & many dasels were broughte together vnto the castell of Susan vnder the hande of Hegai, Hester was takē also vnto the kynges house vnder the hande of Hegai & kept of the women, & the damsell pleased him, & she founde grace in his sighte. And he put her & hir maydes in the best place of the Womens buildinge. And Hester shewed it not vnto hir people & hir kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, & she shulde not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the gate of the Womens buyldinge, & he might knowe how Hester lyde, and what shulde be come of her.

And whan the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came that she shulde come to the kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the women (for their deckynge must haue so moche tyme, namely sixe monethes with Balme & Myrrour, & sixe monethes with good spyes, so werethe women benedified) then wente there one damsell vnto the kyng, and what so euer she requyred, & must be geue her to go with her out of the Womens buyldinge vnto the kynges palace. And whan one came in the euynynge, & same were fro him on the morow in to the seconde house of women, vnder the hande of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, which kepte & concubines. And she must come vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleased the kyng, and that he caused her to be called by name.

Now whan the tyme came of Hester the daughter of Abihail Mardocheus vnckle (whom he had receaued as his awne daughter) & she shulde come to the kyng, she desired nothynge but what Hegai the kynges chamberlayne the keeper of the women sayde.

And Hester founde fauoure in the sighte of all them that looked vpon her. And Hester was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus in to the house royall, in the tenth moneth which is called Tebeth, in the seventh yere of his reigne.

And the kyng loued Hester aboue all the women, and she founde grace and mercy in his sighte before all the virgins: and he set the quenes crowne vpon hir heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kyng made a grete feast vnto all his prynces and seruantes, which feast was because of Hester) and let the lordes be in quyetnes, & gaue royall giftes.

And whan the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Hester shewed hir kynred and hir people, accordynge as Mardocheus had bydden her: for Hester dyd after the worde of Mardocheus, like as whan he was hir tūtoure. At the same tyme whyle Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes, Bigthan and Theris which kepte the doore, were wroth, and soughte to laye their handes on the kyng Ahasuerus: Wherof Mardocheus gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certified the kyng ther of in Mardocheus name. And whan inquis cion was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was wrytten in the Cronicles before the kynge.

The III. Chapter.

After these actes dyd the kynge promote Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagite, and set him hye, and set his seate aboue all the prynces that were with him. And all the kynges seruantes that were in the gate, bowed their knees, and dyd reuerence vnto Aman: for the kynge had so commaunded. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshipped him not. Then the kynges seruantes which were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: Why transgresseth thou the kynges commaundement? And whan they spake this daylie vnto him; and he folowed them not, they tolde Aman, that they myghte see whether Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had tolde them, that he was a Jewe. And whā Aman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, ner worshipped him, he was full of indignacion and despyte, that he shulde laye honours onely on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him the people of Mardocheus, but he sought to destroye the people of Mardocheus, and all the people that were in the whole empyre of Ahasuerus.

In the first moneth that is the moneth Nisan, in the twelveth yere of kynge Ahasuerus, was there occasion and oportunitie sought by Aman, from one daye to another, and from the same moneth vnto the twelveth moneth, that is the moneth Adar. And Amā sayde vnto kynge Ahasuerus: There is a people scattered abroad and dispersed amonge all people in all the landes of thine empire, and their lawe is contrary vnto all people, and they do not after the kynges lawes, neither is it the kynges profit to suffre the after this maner. If it please the kynge, let him wryte, that they maye be destroyed, and so wil I weye downe ten thousande talentes of silver, vnder the handes of the workmen, to be brought in to the kynges chamber. Then tolde the kynge his rynge from his hande, and gaue it vnto Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kynge sayde vnto Aman: Let the silver be geynted, and that people also, to do withall what pleasest thee.

Then were the kynges scribes called on the thirtenth daye of the first moneth, and there was wrytten (acordinge as Aman commaunded) vnto the kynges prynces, and to the deputies euery where in the landes, and to the captaynes of euery people in the countreys on euery syde, acordinge to the wryttinge of euery nacion, and after their language in the name of kynge Ahasuerus, and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wryttinges were sent by postes in to all the kynge's landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yonge and olde, childre and men in one daye (namely vpon the thirtenth daye of the twelveth moneth, which is the moneth Adar) and to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wryttinge, that there shulde be a commaundement geynted all landes, to be published vnto all people, that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes wente in all the haist acordinge to the kynges commaundement. And in the castell of Susan was the commaundement deuysed. And the kynge and Aman sat drinke. But the cite of Susan was disquieted.

The III. Chapter.

When Mardocheus perceaued all that was done, he rote his clothes, and put on a sack cloth, and ashyes, and wente out in to the myddes of the cite, and cried loude and lamentably, and came before the kynges gate: for there might no man entre within the kynges gate, that had a sack cloth on. And in all landes and places, as far as the kynge's worde and commaundement extended, there was greete lamentacion amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wept, mourned, and laye in sack clothes and in ashyes. So Hesters dauides, and hir chamberlaines, came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceedingly astonnyed. And she sent raynment, that Mardocheus shulde put them on, and laye the sack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wolde not take them. The called Hester Hathac one of the kynges chamberlaines (which stode before her) and gaue him a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that he might knowe what it were, and wherfor he dyd so. So Hathac wente forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cite, which was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all that had happened vnto him, and of the summe of silver that Amā had promysed to reweyd in the kynges chamber because of the Jewes, for to destroye them, and he gaue him the copye of the commaundement, that was deuysed at Susan to destroye them, that he might shewe it vnto Hester, and to speake to her and charge her, that she shulde go in to the kynge, and make her prayer and supplication to him for his people.

And whā Hathac came in, and tolde Hester the wordes of Mardocheus, Hester spake vnto Hathac, and commaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: All the kynges seruantes, and the people in the landes of the kynge knowe, that who so euer cometh within the court vnto the kynge, whether it be man or woman, which is not called, the commaundement is that the same shal dye immediatly, excepte the kynge holde out the golde cepter vnto him, that he maye lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come in to the kynge now this thirtie dayes.

And whā Mardocheus was certified of Hesters wordes, Mardocheus bad saie agayne vnto Hester: Thynte not to saue thine awnelyfe, whyle thou art in the kynges house before all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme, then shal the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance out of another place, and thou and thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come in to the kyngdome, for this tymes sake? Hester bad geue Mardocheus this answer: Go thou and waye then, and gather together all the Jewes that are founde at Susan, and fast ye for me, and yeate not and drynke not in thie dayes, neither daye ner night. And my damself wil fast likewise, and so wil I go in to the kynge contrary to the commaundement: yf I perishe, I perishe. So Mardocheus wente his waye, and dyd all that Hester had commaunded him.

The V. Chapter.

And on the thirde daye put Hester on hir royall apparell, and stode in the court of the kynge's palace within ouer agaynst the kynge's house. And the kynge sat vpon his royall seate in the kynge's palace ouer agaynst the dore of the house. And whan the kynge sawe Hester the quene stodinge in the court, he founde grace in his sighte. And the kynge helde out the golde cepter in his hande toward Hester. So Hester stepte forth, and touched the toppe of the cepter. Then sayde the kynge vnto her: What wilt thou quene Hester? what requyrest thou? axe euē the halfe of the empyre, and it shal be geue thee. Hester sayde: If it please the kynge, let the kynge and Aman come this daye vnto the banquet that I haue prepared. The kynge sayde: Cause Aman to make haist, that he maye do as Hester hath saide.

Now whā the kynge and Aman came to the banquet that Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester whan he had drunken wyne: Hester, what is thy petition? it shal be geue thee. And what requyrest thou? euen the halfe of the empyre, it shal be done.

Then answered Hester and sayde: My petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight of the kynge, and yf it please the kynge to geue me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the kynge and Aman come to the banquet that I shal prepare for the, and so wil I do tomorrow as the kynge hath saide.

Then wente Aman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whan he sawe Mardocheus in the kynge's gate, that he stode not vp and kneled before him, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Nevertheless he refrained himselfe: and whā he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, and Seres his wyfe, and tolde them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, all together how the kynge had promoted him so greatly, and how that he was taken aboue the prynces and seruantes of the kynge. Aman sayde moreover: See and Hester the quene let no man come with the kynge vnto the banquet that she had prepared, excepte me, and tomorrow am I bidden vnto her also with the kynge. But in all this am I not satisfied as longe as I see Mardocheus the Jewe syttinge in the kynge's gate. Then sayde Seres his wife and all his frendes vnto him: Let the make a galowe of fiftye cubites hie, and tomorrow speake thou vnto the kynge, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon, yf thou comest merely with the kynge vnto the banquet. Aman was well content withall, and caused a galowe to be prepared.

The VI. Chapter.

The same night coulde not the kynge slepe, and he commaunded to brynge the Cronicles and storyes: which whā they were red before the kynge, they happened on the place where it was wrytten, how Mardocheus had tolde, that the kynge's two chamberlaines (which kepte the thresholdes) sought to laie honours on kynge Ahasuerus. And the kynge saide: What worshipp and good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayde the kynge's seruantes that mynistred vnto him. There is nothinge done for him. And the kynge sayde: Who is in the court? (for Aman was gone in to the court without before the kynge's house, that he might speake vnto the kynge to hange Mardocheus on the tre, that he had prepared for him.) And the kynge's seruantes saide vnto him: Beholde, Amā stode in the court. The kynge saide: Let him come in. And whā Amā came in, the kynge saide vnto him: What shal be done vnto the man, whom the kynge wolde sayne brynge vnto woisshippe: But Hamā thought in his hert: Whom shulde the kynge els be glad to brynge vnto woisshippe, but me? And Aman sayde vnto the kynge: Let the man vnto whom the kynge wolde be glad to do woisshippe, be broughte hither, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes which the kynge vsyth to weere: and the house that the kynge rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye be set vpon his heade. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges prynces, that he maye araye the man withall (whom the kynge wolde sayne honoure) and cary him vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and cause it to be proclaimed before him: Thus shal it be done to every man, whom the kynge wolde sayne honoure.

C The kynge sayde: Make haist, and take (as thou hast sayde) the rayment and the horse, and do even so with Mardocheus y Jewe that sitteth before the kynges gate, and let nothinge sayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Aman the rayment and the horse, and arayed him, and broughte him on hoisbacke thorow the strete of the cite, and proclaimed before him: Euen thus shall it be done vnto every man whom the kynge is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Aman gat him home in all the haist, mournynge with bare heade, and tolde Seres his wyfe and all his frendes, every thyng that had happened him. Then sayde his wise men and Seres his wyfe vnto him: If it be Mardocheus of the seide of the Jewes, before whō thou hast begonne to fall, thou canst do nothinge vnto him, but shalt fall before him. Whyle they were yet talkynge with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Aman to make haist to come vnto the bancket that Hester had prepared.

The VII. Chapter.

A And whan the kynge and Aman came to the bancket that quene Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester on the seconde daye whan he had bidde ten wyne: What is thy petition quene Hester, that it maye be geuen the? And what requyrest thou? See are even halfe of the empyre, and it shal be done. Hester y quene answered and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte (O kynge) and yf it please the kynge, then graunte me my lyfe at my desyre and my people for my petitions sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And wolde God we were solde to be bondmen and bondwomen, then wolde I holde my tonge, so shulde not the enemye be so hye to the kynges harme. The kynge Abasuerus spake y sayde vnto quene Hester: What is he that? Or wher is he y darre psume in his mynde to do soch a thinge after that maner? Hester sayde: The enemye and aduersary is this wicked Aman.

As for Amā, he was exceedingly afraid before y kynge y quene. And the kynge arose fro the bancket y fro y wyne in his displeasure, and wente in to the palace garden. And Aman stode vp, and besoughte quene Hester for his lyfe: for he sawe y there was a mischance prepared for him of the kynge allready.

And whan the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden in to y parler wher they had eaten, Aman had layed him vpon the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then sayde the kynge: Wyl he force the quene also besyde me in the house? As soone as that worde wente out of the kynges mouth, they covered Amans face. And Harbona one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kynge, sayde: Beholde, there stondest a galowe in Amā house fytte cubytes hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for y kynge. The kynge sayde: Change him theron. So they hanged Aman on the galowe that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath styllled.

The VIII. Chapter.

The same daye dyd kynge Abasuerus geue the house of Aman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Hester. And Mardocheus came before y kynge: for Hester tolde how that he beloged vnto her. And the kynge put of his synger rynge, which he had taken from Aman, y gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Hester set Mardocheus out of the house of Aman. And Hester spake yet more before the kynge, and fell downe at his fete, y besoughte him, that he wolde put away the wickednes of Aman the Agagite, and his deuice that he had ymagined against y Jewes. And the kynge helde out the golden cepter vnto Hester. Then rose Hester, and stode before the kynge, and sayde: If it please the kynge, and yf I haue foude grace in his sighte, yf it be couenyent for the kynge, and yf it be accepted in his sighte, then let it be wyttē, y the letters of the denyce of Amā the sonne of Amadathai the Agagite, makē be called agayne: which letters he wrote, to destroye y Jewes in all y kynges lodes. In how can I se the euell that shal happen my people: and how can I lōke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

Then sayde y kynge Abasuerus vnto quene Hester, and to Mardocheus the Jewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Hester the house of Aman, y him haue they hanged vpon a tre, because he layed hāde vpon y Jewes. Wryte ye now therfore for the Jewes, as it liketh you in the kynges name, and seale it with y kynges rynge (for the wrytinges that were wrytten in y kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rynge, durst no man dysanulle.) Then were the kynges scribes called at the sametyme in the thirde moneth, that is the moneth Siuan, on the thre y twentieth daie.

And it was wrytten (as Mardocheus commaunded) vnto the Jewes and to the prynces, to the Debities and capteynes in the lodes from India vntyll Ethiopia, namely, an hundred and seven and twenty lodes, vnto every one acordinge to the wrytinge therof, vnto every people after their speche, and to the Jewes acordinge to their wrytinge and language.

And it was written in the kynge Abasuerus name, and sealed with the kynges rynge. And by postes that rode vpon swyfte yonge Mules, sent he the wrytinges, wher in the kynge graunted the Jewes (in what cities so ever they were) to gather them selues together, and to stonde for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, and to destroye all the power of the people and lode that wolde trouble them, with childien and women, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all the lodes of kynge Abasuerus, namely vpon the thirtenth daye of the twelveth moneth, which is the moneth Adar.

The summe of the wrytinge was, how there was a commaundement geuen in all lodes to be published vnto all the people, that y Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye to avenge them selues on their enemies. And the postes that rode vpon the Mules, made haist with all speede, acordinge to the kynges worde: and the commaundement was deuysed in the castel of Susan.

As for Mardocheus, he wente out from the kynge in royall apparell of yalow and whyte, and with a greate crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garment of linnen and purple, and y cite of Susan reioysed y was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was comeliche and gladnesse, y ioye y woisshippe. And in all lodes and cities, in to what places so euer the kynges worde and commaundement reached, there was ioye y myrth, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so much that many of the people in the lode became of the Jewes beleue, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The IX. Chapter.

In the twelveth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thirtenth daye, which the kynges worde and commaundement had appoynted, that it shulde be done, euē vpon y same daie y the enemies shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed them, it turned contrary wise, euen y the Jewes shulde subdne their enemies. Then gathered the Jewes together in their cities within all y lodes of kynge Abasuerus, to laye honde on soch as wolde do the euell, y no man coulde withstonde them: for y feare of the was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the lodes, and prynces and Debities, and officers of the kynge promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mardocheus came vnto the. For Mardocheus was greate in the kynges house, y the reporte of him was noised in all lodes, how he increased y grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all their enemies with a sore slaughter, and slewe and destroyed, y dyd after their wyl vnto soch as were their aduersaries. And at y castell of Susan slewe the Jewes and destroyed fyue hundred men: y slewe Parsandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Parmastha, Arissai, Aridai, Datisatha, the ten sonnes of Aman y sonne of Amadathi y enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kynge certified of the nombre of those that were slaine at the castell of Susan. And the kynge sayde vnto quene Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fyue hundred men at y castell of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Amā: What shal they do in the other lodes of y kynge? What is thy petition, that it maye be geuen the? y what requyrest thou more to be done? Hester sayde: If it please the kynge, let him suffice the Jewes tomorrow also to do acordinge vnto this dayes commaundement, that they maye hang: Amans ten sonnes vnto y tre. And the kynge charged to do so, and the commaundement was deuysed at Susan, y Amans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered the selues together at Susan, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, and slewe thre hundred men at Susan, but on their goodes they laied no hādes.

As for the other Jewes in the kynges lodes, they came together, y stode for their lyues, y gatt rest fro their enemies: and slewe of theit enemies fyue and seuentye thousande, howbeit they layed no hondes on their goodes. This was done on the thirteth daie of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth daie of the same moneth rested they, which (daie) they ordeyned to be a daie of feastinge and gladnesse. But the Jewes at Susa were come together both on the thirtenth daie and on the fourtenth, and on the fiftenth daie they rested, and the same daie ordeyned they to be a daie of feastinge and gladnes. Therefore the Jewes that dwelt in the vyllages and unwalled townes, ordeyned the fourtenth daie of the moneth Adar, to be a daie of feastinge and gladnes, and one sent giftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, and sent the writings vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of the kynge Ahasuerus, both nye and farre, that they shoulde yearly receaue and holde the fourtenth and fiftenth daie of the moneth Adar, as the daies wherein the Jewes came to rest from their enemies, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to ioye, and their sorowe in to prosperite: that they shoulde obserue the same as daies of wealch and gladnes, and one to sende giftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes receaued it that they had begonne to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Aman the sonne of Amadathai all the Jewes enemye, had deuysed to destroye all the Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put them in feare, and to brynge them to naught: and how Hester wente and spake to the kynge, that thow letters his wicked deuys (which he ymagyned agaynst the Jewes) might be turned vpon his awne heade, and how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daie Purim after the name of the lot, acordyng to all the wordes of this wytyng: and what they thei selues had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpon

them and their sede, and vpon all such as layed themselves vnto them, that they wold not mysse to obserue these two daies yearly, acordyng as they were wytted and appoynted, how the daies are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childers children and of all kynreds in all landes and cities. They are the daies of Purim, which are not to be ouerslypte amonge the Jewes, and the memoriall of them oughte not to perishe from their sede.

And quene Hester the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jewe, wrote with all auctorite, to confirme this seconde wytyng of Purim, and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred and seven and twentye landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus, with frendly and faithfull wordes, to confirme these daies of Purim, in their tyme appoynted, acordyng as Mardocheus the Jewe and Hester the quene had ordeined: and cernyng them: lyke as they vpon their soules and vpon their sede had confirmed the same of the fastinges and of hir complaint. And Hester commaunded to stablish these actes of this Purim, and to wyte them in a booke.

The X. Chapter.

When the kynge Ahasuerus layed downe vpon the londe, and vpon the bankes of the See. As for all the wyte of his power and auctorite, and the greates worshippe of Mardocheus, which the kynge gave him, beholde, it is wytted in the Cronicles of the kynges of Media and Persia. For Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde next vnto the kynge Ahasuerus, and greates amonge the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multitude of his brethren, as one that seeketh the welch of his people, and speaketh the best for all his sede.

The first Chapter.

In the lode of Ihus there was a man called Job: an innocent and vertuous man, such one as feared God, and eschued euill. This man had viij. sonnes, and iij. daughters. His substance was vij. M. shepe, iij. M. camels, v. C. yock of oxen, v. C. she asses, and a very greates housholde: so that he was one of the most principall men amonge all them of the east countre. His sonnes now wente on euery man, and made banckettes: one daie in one house, another daie in another, and sent for their iij. sisters, to eate and drinke with them. So when they had passed ouer the tyme of their banquettinge rounde aboute, Job sent for them, and clensed them agayne, stode vpon early, and offered for euery one a brette offeringe. For Job thought thus: peradventure my sonnes haue done some offence, and haue bene vnchastfull to God in their hertes. And thus dyd Job euery daie.

The boke of Job.

Now upon a tyme, when the seruantes of God came and stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amonger them. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked thorow it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: hast thou not considered my seruante Job, how that he is an innocent and vertuous man: soch one as feareth God, and eschuech euell, and that there is none like him in the londe: Sathan answered, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Dost thou feare God for naught? hast thou not perserued him, his house, and all his substance on euery syde? hast thou not blessed the workes of his handes? Is not his possession encreased in the londe? But laye thyne honde vpon him a litle, touch once all that he hath, and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: lo all that he hath, be in thy power: only vpon him self se that thou laye not thine honde. Then wente Sathan forth from the LORDE.

Now upon a certayne daye when his sonnes and daughters were eatinge, and drynkinge wyne in their eldest brothers house, there came a messaunger vnto Job, and sayde: Whyle the oxen were a plowinge, and the asses goinge in the pasture besyde them: the Sabees came in violently, and toke them all awaye: yee they haue slayne the seruantes with the swerde, and I only ranne my waye, to tell the.

And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, it hath consumed 2 bite vp all the shepe and seruantes: and I only ranne my waye, to tell the. In the meane season whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made thre armies, and fell in vpon the camels, which they haue caried awaye, yee and slayne the seruantes with the swerde: and I only am gotten awaye, to tell the. Whyle he was speakinge, there came yet another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and daughters were eatinge and drynkinge wyne in their eldest brothers house, and sodenly there came a mightie greete wynde out off the South, and smote the iiii. corners of the house: which fell vpon thy children, so that they are deed: and I am gotten awaye alone, to tell the.

Then Job stode vp, and rente his clothes, shaued his heade, fell downe vpon the groude, worshipped, and sayde: Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall

The ii. Chap.

I come thither agayne. The LORDE gaue, and the LORDE hath taken awaye: the LORDE hath done his pleasure: now blessed be the name off the LORDE. In all these thinges dyd Job not offende, ner murmured foolishly agaynst God.

The II. Chapter.

It happened also upon a tyme, that when the seruantes of God came, and stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amonger them, and stode before him. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered, and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked thorow it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: Hast thou not considered my seruante Job, how that he is an innocent 2 vertuous man: soch one as feareth God, and eschuech euell, and that there is none like him in the londe? But thou mouedest me agaynst him, to punish him: yet is it in vayne, for he contemnerth still in his godlynesse.

Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde: Skynne for skynne: yee a man will geue all for euer he hath, for his life. But laye thine honde vpon him, touch him once vpon the bone and flesh, and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: lo, there hast thou him in thy power, but spare his life.

So wente Sathan forth from the LORDE, and smote Job with maruelous sores by les, from the sole off the fote vnto his crosse: so that he sat vpon the grounde in the ashes, and scraped of the etter off his skin with a potsherde.

Then sayde his wife vnto him: Dost thou yet cōtinue in thy perfectnesse? curse God, 2 dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest like a foolish woman. Seinge we haue receyued prosperite at the honde of God, what shulde we not be content with aduersite also? In all these thinges, dyd not Job synne with his lippes.

Now when Jobs frendes herde of all this trouble, that happened vnto him, they came thre off them, euery one from his owne place: namely, Eliphaz the Themanite, Baldad the Shuhite, and Sophar the Naamathite.

For they were agreed together to come, to shewe their compassion vpon him, and to comforte him. So when they lifte vp their eyes a farre off, they knewe him not,

The boke of Job.

Then they cried, and wepte: then enery one off them rente his clothes, and sprynckled dust vpon their heades in the ayre. They sat them downe by him also vpon the grounde, viij. dayes and viij. nightes. Neither was there any of them that spake one worde vnto him, for they sawe that his payne was very greate.

The III. Chapter.

After this opened Job his mouth, and cursed his daye, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherein I was borne: and the night, in the which it was sayde: there is a man hidde in darkness. The same daye be turned to darkness, and not regarded of God from aboue, neither be shyned vpon wth light: but be covered with darkness, and the shadowe of death. Let the dynme cloude fall vpon it, and let it be lapped in with sorow. Let the darck storme overcome y^e night, let it not be reckened amonge the dayes off the yere, ner counted in the monethes. Despyed be that night, and discommended: let them that curse the daye, geue it their curse also, even those that be ready to raise vp Leuiathan. Let the startes be dynme thorow darkness of it. Let it loke for light, but let it see none, neither the rysynge vp of the sayre morninge: because it shut not vp the wombe that bare me, ner hyd these sorowes from my eyes.

Alas, why dyed I not in y^e byrth? Why dyd not I perishe, as soone as I came out of my mothers wombe? Why set they me vpon y^e hill? Why gaue they me suck with their milke? Then shulde I now haue lye still, I shulde haue slepte, and bene at rest: like as the kynges ad lordes of y^e earth, which buyldethem selues speciall places: As the princies that haue greete substance of golde, 2 their houses full of syluer. O that I utterly had no beinge, or were as a thynge borne out of tyme (that is put asyde) ether as yonge children, which neuer sawe the light. There must the wicked ceasse from their tyanny, ether soch as are ouerlaboured, be at rest: there are those letten out fre, which haue bene in prison, so that they heare nomore the voyce of the oppressour: There are small and grater the bonde man, and he that is fre fro his master.

Wherefore is the light geuen, to him that is in mysery? and life vnto them, that haue heavy hertes? Which longe for death, and it cometh not: for yf they might fynde the graue, they wolde be maruelous glad, as those that bygge vp treasure: To the man whose waye is hyd, which God kepeth backe from him.

This is the cause, that I syghe before I eate, and my roarynges fall out like a water floude. For the thyng that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was afrayed of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? Had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now cometh soch mysery vpon me.

The III. Chapter.

Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and sayde vnto him: If we begynne to comon with the peradventure thou wilt be myscomene, but who can witholde himself from speakinge? Beholde, thou hast bene a teacher of many, and hast comforted the weery handes.

Thy wordes haue set vp those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees. But now that the plage is come vpon the, thou shiest awaye: now that it hath touched thyself, thou art faine hatted. Where is now thy feare of God, thy stedfastnesse, thy patience, and the perfectnesse of thy life? Considre (I praye the) who euer perisshed, beynge an innocent? Or, when were the goodly destroyed? As for those that plowe wickednesse (as I haue sene myself, and sene myscheffe, they reape y^e same. For whos God bloweth vpon them, they perishe, and are destroyed thorow the blast of his wyath. The roaryng of the lyon, the cryenge off the lyonesse, 2 y^e catch off y^e lyons whelpes are brot. The greete lyon perissheth, because he can get no praye and the lyons whelpes are scattered abroad.

There is spoken vnto me a thyng in counsell, which hath geuen a terrible sounde in myne eare, with a vision in the night, when men are fallen a slepe. Soch feare and drede came vpon me, that all my bones shoke. And when the wynde passed ouer by me, the hayres of my flesh stode vp.

Then stode there one before me, whose face I knewe not: an ymage there was, and the wether was still, so that I herde this voyce: Maye a man be iustified before God? Maye there eny man be indged to be cleue, by reason of his owne workes? Beholde, he hath founde vn faythfulnesse amonge his owne seruantes, and proude disobedience amonge his angels.

How much more shal they that dwell

The booke of Job.

in houses of claye, whose foundation is but earth: hemoch eaten: They shalbe destroyed from the mounyng vnto the euenyng: yee they shall perishe, or ener they be awarre: and betaken awaye so clene, that none of the shall remayne, but be deed, or euer they be awarre off it.

The V. Chapter.

Ame me one els, yf thou canst fynde any: yee loke aboute the, vpon any of the holy men. As for the foolish man displeasure kylleth him, and anger slayeth yf ignorant. I haue sene my self, when the foolish was depergred, that his bettry was sodely destroyed: that his children were without prosperite or health: that they were slayne in the doore, and no mā to deliuer them: that his haruest was eaten vp off the hungrie: that the weapened man had spoyled it, and that the thurstie had droncke vp his riches. It is not the earth that bryngeth forth traualle, nether commeth sorrow out of yf ground: but it is man, that is borne vnto mysery, like as the byrde for to fle.

But now will I speake off the LORDE, and talke of God: which doeth thinges, that are vnsearchable, and marueles without nō bre: Which geneth rayne vps the earth, and poureth water vpon all thinges: which setteth vp them of lowe degre, and sendeth prosperite, to those that are in heuynesse: Which destroyeth the deuycs of the sorcyl, so that they are not able to performe the thynges that they take in hōde: which compasseth yf wyse in their owne craftynesse, and ouertroweth the counsell of the wicked: In so much that they runne in to darcknesse by fayre daye, and grope aboute them at the noone daye, like as in the night.

And so he deliuereth the poore from the sweorde, from their mouth, and from the hōde of the cruell: that the poore maye haue hope, & that the mouth of the oppressoure maye be stopped.

C Beholde, happie is the man, whom God punyssheth: therefore, despyse not thou yf chastenynge of the Allmyghty. For though he make a wounde, he geneth a medecyne agayne: though he smyte, his bonde maketh who le agayne.

He deliuereth the out of fyre troubles, so that in the seuenth there can no harme touch the. In the myddest of hunger he saureth yf from death: and when it is warre, from the power of the sweorde.

The vi. Chap.

He shall kepe the from the pious tonge, so that when trouble commeth, thou shalt not nedeto feare. In destruction and dath, thou shalt be mery, and shalt not be afraide for the beastes of the earth: But the captiue in the londe shal be confederate with the, & the beastes of the felde shal geue the peace:

Neethou shalt se, that thy dwelling place shalbe in rest: thou shalt beholde thy substance, and be nemoie punysshed for synne. Thou shalt se also, that thy seide shal manure, and that thy posterite shalbe as the gras se vpon the earth. Thou shalt come to thy graue in a fayre age, like as yf come shewe are brought in to the barne in due season. Lo, this is the matter, as we oure selues haue proued by experience. Therfore now that thou hearest it, take better hede to thy self.

The VI. Chapter.

Job answered, and sayde: O that my mysery weere reueyed, and my punysshment layed in the balauces: for then shulde it be henyed, then the sonde of the se. This is the cause, that my wordes are so sorowfull.

For the allmyghty hath shott at me with his arrowes, whose indignacion hath droncke vp my spere, and yf terrible feares of God fight agaynst me. Doth the wilde asse reare when he hath grasse? Or crieth the oxe, whē he hath fodder ynough? Maye a thynge be eaten vnseasoned, or without salt? What taist hath yf w hycr within the yoke an egg? The thinges that sometyme I might not a waye withall, are now my meate for very sorrow. O that I might haue my desire: O yf God wolde graunte me the thyng, that I longe for: That he wolde begynne and smyte me: that he wolde let his hende go, & hūme me downe. The shulde I haue seme cōfession yee I wolde desyre him in my payne, that he shulde not spare, for I will not be agaynst wordes of the holy ene.

What power haue I to endure? Or what is myne ende, that my soule might be pacified? Is my strength the strength of stones? Or is my flesh made of brass? Am I able to helpe my self? Is not my strength gone from me, like as yf one withdrew a good rede from his frende, and forsooke the feare of God? Myne owne brethren passe ouer by me as thēterbroke, that hastily runneth thorow wāleys. But they that feare the hōrefest, the snow shal fall vpon them.

The booke of Job.

When their tyme cometh, they shalbe destroyed and perishe: and when they be set on fre, they shalbe removed out of their place. For the pathes yf they go in, are croked: they haue after vayne thinges, and shal perishe. Confide the pathes off them, & the way es off Saba, wherein they haue put their trust. Confounded are they, that put eny confidence in them: For whē they came to opteyne the thynges that they looked for, they were brought to confusion.

Lo so are ye also come vnto me: but now that yee see my mysery, ye are afraide. Dyd I desyre you, to come hyther? Or, to geue me any off youre substance? To deliuer me from the enemies hōde, or to saue me from the power off the mightie? Teach me and I will holde my tōge: and yf I do erre, shew me wherin.

Wherfore blame ye then the wordes, that are well and truly spoken? which of you can reprove them? Saunge only that ye are sorowfull to chide mens sayenges, and can speake many wordes in the wynde. Ye fall vpon the fatherlesse, & go aboute to ouerthrowe you reowe frende. Wherfore loke not only vpon me, but vpon youre selues: whether I ly, or no. Turne into youre owne selues (I praye you) be indifferent iudges, and confide in myne vngyltynesse: whether there be any myghtynesse in my tōge, or vayne wordes in my mouth.

The VII. Chapter.

Is not the life off mē vpon earth a very vayne? Are not his dayes, like the dayes of an hyred seruante? For like as a bonde seruante desyeth the shadewe, and as an hyrelinge wolde fayne haue an ende of his worke: Euen so haue I laboured whole monethes longe (but in vayne) and many a carefull night haue I tolde. When I layed me downe to slepe, I sayde: O when shal I ryse? Agayne, I longed sore for the night. Thus am I full off sorrow, till it be darke. My flesh is clothed with wormes, fylthynesse and dust: my slenne is wythered, and crumpled together: my dayes passe ouer more speedely, thē a weener can weene out his webbe, and are gone, or I am awarre. Remember, that my life is but a wynde, & that myne eye shal nomore se the pleasures thereof: and that none other mans eye shal se me any more. For yf thou fasten thine eyes vpon me, I come to naught, like as a cloude is consumed and vanyshed awaye, euen so he that

The viij. Chap. Jo. iij.

goeth downe to hell, commeth nomore vp, ner turneth agayne in to his house, nether shall his place knowe him any more.

Therfore I will not spare my mouth, but will speake in the trouble of my spere, in yf byrternesse of my mynde will I talke. Am I a see or a whalyshe, that thou kepest me so in prison? When I thynke: my bedd shal comforte me, I shall haue some refreshinge by talkynge with myself vpon my couche: The troublest thou me with dreames, & makest me so afraide thow visions, that my soule wyssheth rather to be hanged, and my bones to be deed.

I can se no remedy, I shall lyue nomore: O spare methen, for my dayes are but vayne. What is man, that thou hast him in soch reputation, and setteest somoch by him? Thou takeest diligent care for him, and sodely deest thou trye him.

Why goest thou not fro me, ner lettest me alone, so longe till I swallowe downe my spere? I haue offended, what shal I do vnto yf, O thou preseruer off men? Why hast thou made me to stonde in thy waye, and am so heuy a burden vnto myself? Why doest thou not forgiue me my synne? Wherfore takest thou not awaye my wickednesse? Beholde, now must I slepe in the dust: and yff thou sekest me tomorrow in the mounyng, I shalbe gone.

The VIII. Chapter.

Job answered Baldad the Sabe: and sayde: How longe wilt thou talke of soch thinges? how longe shal yf mouth speake so proude wordes? Doth God peruerre the thinge that is lauffull? Or, doth the Allmyghtie destroye the thyng that is right? Whē thy sonnes synned agaynst him, dyd not he punyssh the for their wickednesse? Off thou woldest now resorte vnto God by tymes, and make thine humble prayer to yf Allmyghtie: yf thou woldest lyue a pure and a godly life: shulde he not wake vp vnto the immediatly, & geue the the bewtie of rightynesse agayne? In so much, that where i so euer thou haddest litle afoie, thou shuldest now haue greete abundaunce. Enquire of them that haue bene before the, search diligently amonge thy forefathers: I amely, yf we are but of yesterdaye, and confide not, that oure dayes vpon earth are but a very shadow. They shall shewe the, they shall tell the, yee they will gladly confesse the same.

B Maye a reff he be grene without moyfneffe: maye the grasse growe without water? No: but (or ever it be shot forth, and or ever it be gathered) it wythereth, before ny other herbe. Euen so goeth it with all them, that foiget God: and euen thus also shal the ypocrytes hope come to naught. His confidence shalbe destroyed, for he trusteth in a spiders webbe.

He leeneth him vpon his house, but he shal not stonde: he holdeth him fast by it, yet shal he not endure. Of tymes a thinge doeth flourish, and men thynke that it maye abyde
the Somershyne: it shuterth forth the braunches in his garden, it takerth many rotes, in so much that it is like an house of stoncs.

But yf it be taken out off his place, every man denyeth it, sayenge: I knowe the not.
Lo, thus is it wth him, that reioysseth in his owne deinges: and as for ether, they growe out of the earth.

Beholde, God will not cast awaye a ver-tuous man, nether wil he helpe the vngodly.
Thy mouth shal be fylled with laughynge, and thy lippes with gladnesse. They that hate the, shalbe confounded, and y^e drallinges of y^e vngodly shal come to naught.

The IX. Chapter.

J Ob answered, and sayde: As for y^e
I knowe it is so of a treuth, y^e a man compared vnto God, can not be iusti-fied. Yf he wil argue with him, he shall not be able to answer him vnto one amonge a thousande. He is wyse of hert, and mightie in strength. Who ever prospered, that toke parte agaynst him? He tramylateth the moontay-nes, or ever they be awarre, and ouerthroweth them in his wrath. He remoueth the earth out of hir place, that hir pilers shake with-
all. He commaundeth the Sone, and it ryseth not: he closeth vp the starres, as it were vnder a signet. He himself alone spredeth out y^e heauens, and goeth vpon the waves of the
see. He maketh the waynes of heauen, the Orions, the vj. starres and the secrete places of the south. He doeth greates chinges, such as are vnsearcheable, yee and wonders without nombre.

Yf he came by me, I might not loke vpon him: yf he wente his waye, I shulde not per-ceiue it. Yf he be haisty to take any thinge awaye, who wil make hym reffere it agayne?
Who wil saye vnto him: what doest thou?
He is God, whose wrath no man maye withstande: but the proudest of all must stoupe vnder him. How shulde I then answer him? or, what wordes shulde I fynde out agaynst him? Yet though I be righteous, yet will I not geue him one worde agayne, but I will suffyre my self to my iudge. All be it that I call vpon him, and he heare me, yet am I not sure, yf he hath herde my voyce: he troubleth me so with the tempest, and woundeth me out of measure without a cause. He will not let my spiete be in rest, but fylleth me wth bitternesse.

Yf men will speake of strength, he is the strongest of all: yf men will speake of righteoufnes, who darre be my recorder? yf I will iustifie my self, myne owne mouth shall condemne me: yf I will put forth my self for a perfect man, he shal proue me a wicked deer: for that I shulde be an innocent, my conscience knoweth it not, yee I my self am weary of my life.

This onerthynge wil I saye: He destroyeth both the righteous and vngodly. And though he slayeth denyly wth the scourge, yet laugheth he at the punishment of the innocent. As for the woulde, he geueth it ouer into the power of the wicked, such as the rulers be, who of all londes are full. Is it not so? where is there any, but he is soch one?

My dayes haue bene more swifte, then a runner: they are gone sodenly, and haue left no good thinge. They are passed awaye, as the shippes that be good vnder sale, and as the Aegle that hasteth to the pray. When I am purposed to forget my complainynge, to chaunge my countenance, and to coforte my self: then am I afraied of all my werkes, for I knowe, thou fauourest not an vni-uerse. Yf I be then a wicked one, why haue I laboured in vayne? Though I washed my self with snowe water, and made myne hon-des as pure as cleane, yet shuldest thou dyppe me in y^e myre, and myne owne clothes shulde defyle me. For he y^e I must geue answer vnto and with whom I go to lawe, is not a man as I am. Nether is there any dayes man to reproue both the partes, or to laye his hode betwixte vs. Let him take his rod awaye from me, yee let him make me nomore afraied of him, and then shal I answer him without any feare. For as long as I am in such fearefulnesse, I can make no answer: And why: it groweth my soule to lyue.

The X. Chapter.

Wherthelesse, now will I put forth my wordes: I wil speake out of the very heynynesse off my soule, and wil saye vnto God: O do not condemne me, but shewe me the cause, wherfore thou iudgest me on this maner. Thinkest thou it well de-me, to oppresse me, to cast me off beinge a worte of thy bondes? and to manteyne the counsell of the vngodly? Hast thou fleshy eyes then, or doest thou loke as man lokech? Are thy dayes as the dayes of man, and thy yea-res as mans yeaes? that thou makest soch inquisition for my wickednesse, and searchest out my synne? where as (notwithstandynge) thou knowest that I am no wicked person, and that there is no man able to deliuer me out of thine honde. Thy bondes haue made me, and fashioned me altogether rounde aboute, wilt thou then destroye me sodenly? O remember (I beseeche the) howe that thou madest me of the mould of the earth, and shalt bryn-ge me to earth agayne.

Hast thou not mulcted me as it were myld:
and turned me to cruddes like chese? Thou hast covered me with synne and flesch, and joined me together with bones and synowes.
Thou hast graunted me life, and done me good: and the diligent hede that thou tokest vpon me, hath preserued my spiete.

Though thou hydest these chinges in thi nebert, yet am I sure, that thou remembrest the all. Wherfore didest thou kepe me, when I sinned, and hast not clenfed me from myne offence? Yf I do wickedly, woe is me therfore: Yf I be righteous, yet darre I not lift vp my heade: so full am I of confucion, and of myne owne misery.

Thou humtest me out (beyng in heynynes-se) as it were a Lyon, and troublest me out of measure. Thou bungest fresh witnessses a-gaynst me, thy wrath increaseth thou vpon me, very many are the plagges that I am in.
Wherfore hast thou brought me out of my mothers wombe? O that I had perished, and that no eye had sene me. Yf they had caried me to my graue, as soone as I was borne, then shulde I be now, as though I had neuer bene.

Shall not my short life come soone to an ende? O helde the fro me, let me alone, that I maye ease my self a litle: afore I go thy-ther, from whence I shal not turne agayne:
Namely, to that londe of darcknesse and shadowe of death: yee into that darck cloudy londe and deadly shadowe, where as is no order, but terrible feare as in the darcknesse.

The XI. Chapter.

Z en answered Sophar the Naama-thite, and sayde: Shulde not he that maketh many wordes, be answered?

Shulde he that bableth much, be commended therein? Shulde men geue eare vnto the only? Then wilt laugh other men to scorne, and shal no body mocke the agayne: Wilt thou saye vnto God: The thinge that I take in honde, is perfecte, and I am cleane in thy sight?
O that God wolde speake, and open his lippes agaynst the, that he might shewe the (out of his secrete wysdome) how many folde his lawe is: then shuldest thou knowe, that God had forgotten the, because of thy synnes.

Wilt thou fynde out God with thy sekynge? wilt thou attayne to the perfectnesse of the Allmightie? He is hyer the heauē, what wilt thou do? Deper the hell, how wilt thou then knowe him? His length excedeth the length of the earth, and his bredth y^e bredth of the see. Though he turne all chinges vpon syde downe, close them in, or thrust the together, who darre ched him therfore?

For it is he, that knoweth the vanite of men: he seyth thei wickednesse also, shulde he not then conside it? A vayne body exalteth him self, and the sonne of man is like a wyld assesse foale. Yf thou haddest new a right herte, and liftest vp thine bondes towarde him: yf thou woldest put awaye the wickednesse, which thou hast in honde, so that no vngodlynesse dwelt in thy house: Then mightest thou lift vp thy face without shame, and shuldest thou be sure, and haue no neede to feare.

Then shuldest thou forget thy misery, and thynke nomore vpon it, then vpon the waters that runne by. Then shuldest thou be as cleare as the noone daye, and sprynge forth as the morninge. Then mightest thou haue comfort, in the hope that thou hast:
and slepe quietly, when thou art buried. Then shuldest thou take thy rest, and nomore to make the afraied, yee many one shulde set mocke by the. As for the eyes of the vngodly, they shal be consumed, and not escape their hope shalbe misery and sorow of mynde.

The XII. Chapter.

S O Job answered, and sayde: Then (no doube) ye are the men alone, and wysdome shal perish with you. But I haue vnderstandynge as well as ye, and am no lesse then ye. Yee who knoweth not these chinges: Thus he that calleth vpon God, and whom God heareth, is mocked of his negh-boure: the godly and innocent man is laughed to scorne. Godlynesse is a light despysed in y^e hertes of the rich, and is set forthem to fomble vpon.

The boke of Job.

The xiii. Chap.

The houses of robbers are in wealth and prosperite, & they that maliciously medle agaynst God, dwel without care: yee God geueth all thinges richely with his honde.

B Are the catell, & they shal enfourme the: the foules of the ayre, and they shal tell y: Speake to the earth, and it shal shewe the: Or to the ffishes of the see, and they shal certifie the. What is he, but he knoweth, that yf hōde of the LORDE made all these? In whose honde is the soule of every lyuynge thinge, and the breath of all men. Haue not the eares pleasure in hearinge, and the mouth in tastunge the thinge that it eateth? Amonge olde personnes there is wysdome, and amonge the aged is vnderstōdinge. Yee with God is wysdome and strength, it is he that hath counsell & foreknowledge. If he breake downe a thinge, who can set it vp agayne? If he shutt a thinge, who wil open it? Beholde, yf he withholde the waters, they drye vp: If he let the go, they destroye the earth. With him is strength and wysdome: he knoweth both the disceauer, and him that is disceaued.

C He carrieth awaye the wyse men, as it were a spoyle, and bringeth the iudges out of their wyttres. He lowseth the gyrdle of kynge, and gyrdeth their loynes with a bonde. He ledeth awaye the prestes into captiuyte, and turneth the mightie vp syde downe. He taketh the verite from out of the mouth, & disapoyneth yf aged of their wysdome. He poureth out confusion vpon prynces, and cōforteth them that haue bene oppressed. Loke what lyeth hyd in darcknesse, he declareth it opely: and the very shadowe of death bringeth herto light. He both increaseth the people, and destroyeth them: he maketh them to multiplie, and dryneth them awaye. He chaungech the herte of the prynces and kynge of the earth, and disapoyneth them: so that they go wādinge out of the waye, and grope in the darcke without light, stakeninge to and fro like drunken men.

The XIII. Chapter.

All this haue I sene with myne eye, herde with myne eare, & vnderstōde it. Loke what ye knowe, that same do I knowe also, nether am I inferior vnto you. Neuerthelesse I am purposed to talke with the Allmightie, and my desyre is to comon with God. As for you, ye are woit masters of lyes: and vnprofitable phisicians alltogether. Wolde God ye kepte youre tonge, that ye might be taken for wyse men. Therfore heare my wordes, and pondre the sentence of my lippes. Will ye make answe-re for God with lyes, and māteyne him with disceate? Wil ye accepte yf personne of God, and increate for him? Shal that helpe you, when he calleth you to rekenyng? Thynke ye to begyle him, as a man is begyled? Punyssh you shall he and reprove you, yf ye do secretly accepte my personne. Shal he not make you a strayed, when he sheweth himself? Shal not his terrible feare fall vpon you? Youre remembraunce shal be like the dust, & youre pryde shal be turned to claye.

Holde youre tonges now, and let me speake, for there is some thinge come in to my mynde. Wherfore do I beare my flesh in my teth, and my soule in myne hondes? Lo, there is nether cōforte ner hope for me, yf he wil slaye me. But yf I shewe and reprove myne owne wayes in his sight, he is euen the same, that maketh me whole: and whyt there maye no Apocrite come before him, heare my wordes, and pondre my sayenges with youre eares. Beholde, though sentence were geuen vpon me, I am sure to be knowne for vngilty. What is he, that will goe to lawe with me? For yf I holde my tounge, I shal dye. Neuerthelesse graunte me yf thinges, and then will I not hyde myself from the.

Withdraue thine honde from me, & let not the fearfull drede of the make me a strayed. And then sende for me to the lawe, yf I maye answer for myself: or els, let me speake, and geue thou the answer. How greates are my mysdedes & synnes? Let me knowe my transgressions & offences. Wherfore hydest thou thy face, and holdest me for thine enemy? Wilt thou be so cruell & extreme vnto a flyng leaf, and solowe vpon drye stubble? Thou layest so sharply to my charge, and wilt utterly vndoome me, for yf synnes of my youth? Thou hast put my fete in the stocks: thou lokest narrowly vnto all my paches, & markest the steppes of my fete: where as I (not withstandinge) must consume like as a flocke carion, and as a clothe that is moth eaten.

The XIII. Chapter.

What is borne of a woman, but a short tyme to lyue, and is full of dyuerse miseries. He cometh up, and falleth awaye like a floure. He is as it were a shadowe, and neuer continueth in one state. Thynkest thou it now well done, to open thine eyes vpon such one, and to brynge me before the iudgment? Who can make it cleane, that cometh of an vncleane thinge? To body. The dayes of man are shewen, yf membre of his monethes are knowen only vnto the. Thou hast apoynted him his tyme,

The boke of Job.

The xv. Chap. Ho. v.

des, he can not go beyonde them. So from him, that he maye rest a litle: vntill his daye come, which he lokech for, like as an hyreling doth.

If a tre be cutt downe, there is some hope yet, that it will sprout and shute forth the brannches agayne: for though a rote be warne olde and deede in the grounde, yet whē the stocke greatch the sent of water, it will budde, and bringe forth bowes, like as when it was first planted. But as for man, when he is deede, perished and consumed awaye, what cometh of him? The floudes when they be dryed vp, & the ryuers when they be emptye, are fylled agayne thorow the flowinge waters of the see: but when man slepeth, he riseth not agayne, vntill the heauen perish: he shal not wake vponer ryse out of his slepe. What thou woldest kepe me, and hyde me in the hell, vntill thy wrath were stilled: & so apoynt me a tyme, wherein thou mightest remembre me. Laye a deed man lyne agayne? All the dayes of this my pilgrymage am I letyng, when my chaunginge shal come. If thou woldest but call me, I shulde obeie the: only despyse not the woite of thine owne hondes.

If thou hast nombred all my goynges, & be not thou to extreme vpon my synnes. Thou hast scaled vp myne offences, as it were in a bagg: but be mercifull vnto my wickednesse. The mountaynes fall awaye at the lest, the rockes are remoued out of their place, the waters pearse thorow the very stones by lile and lile, the floudes wash awaye the grauell & earth: Euen so destroyest thou the hope of man in like maner. Thou preyest agaynst him, so that he passeth awaye: thou chaungest his estate, and puttest him from the. Whether his children come to worshipe or no, he can not tell: And yf they be men of lowe degre, he knoweth not. Whyle he lyueth, his flesh must haue trauayle: and whyle the soule is in him, he must be in sorrowe.

The XV. Chapter.

When answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and sayde: Shulde a wyse man geue such an answer (as it were one that spake in the wynde) and fylle his stomacke with anger? Thou reprovest w wordes, that are nothyng worth: and speakest the thinges, which can do no good. As for shame, thou hast set it asyde, els woldest thou not make so many wordes before God: but thy wickednesse teacheth thy mouth, and so thou hast chosen the a craftie tonge. Thine owne mouth condemneth the, and not Thyee thine owne lippes shappe the an answer. Art thou the first man, that euer was borne? Or, wast thou made before the hylles? Hast thou herde the secrete counsell of God, that all wysdome is to lile for yf? What knowest thou, yf we knowe not? What vnderstōdest thou, but we can the same? With vs are olde and aged men, yee such as haue lyued longer then thy forefathers.

Dost thou nomore regarde the comforte of God? but thy wicked wordes wil not suffre the. Why doth thine herte make the so proude? Why stōdest thou so greatly in thine owne conceite? Where vnto loke thine eyes, yf thy mynde is so puffed vp agaynst God? & lettest such wordes go out of thy mouth? What is man, that he shulde be vncleane? what hath he (which is borne of a woman) wherby he might be knowne to be righteous? Beholde, he hath founde vnfaithfulnesse amonge his owne sanctes: yee the very heuens are vncleane in his sight. How moch more then an abhominable and vyle mā, which dryndeth wickednesse like water? I will tell the, heare me: I wil shewe the a thinge, that I knowe: which wyse men haue tolde, & hath not bene hyd from their fathers: vnto whom only the londe was geuen, that no stranger shulde come amonge them.

The vngodly despayreth all the dayes of his life, & then cometh of a tryaunces yeares is vnto knowe. A fearfull sounde is euer in his eares, & when it is peace, yet feareth he destruction: he beleueth neuer to be deliuered out of darcknesse, the stearde is allwaye before his eyes. When he goeth forth to get his lyuynge, he thynketh planely, that the daye of darcknesse is at honde. Sorow and carefulness make him a strayed, & cōpasse him rounde aboute, like as it were a kinge with his hoostredy to the battayll. For he hath stretched out his honde agaynst God, & armed himself agaynst yf Allmightie. He runneth proudly vpon him, & with a stiff necke fighteth he agaynst him: where as he couereth his face with fatnesse, and maketh his body well lykynge. Therfore shall his dwellinge be in desolate citres, & in houses which nomā inhabiteth, but are become heapes of stones.

He shall not be rich, nether shall his substance continue, ner encrease vpon earth. He shal neuer come out of darcknesse, the flame shal drye vp his brannches, with yf blast of the mynd of God shal he be take awaye. He wil nether applye himself to faithfulness, nor trowth, so fore is he disceaued w vanite.

The boke of Job.

He shall perish, afore his tyme be wome out, and his honde shal not be grene. He shal be plucked of as an vntymely grape from y synne, and shal let his floure fall, as the olyue doth. For the congregacion of Apocrites is vnfructfull, & the fyre shal consume the houses of such, as are greedy to receaue giftes. He conceaith tranayle, he beareth myschefe, & his body bryngeth forth disceate.

The XVI. Chapter.
